Lawyers in Taxis Will Watch Polls

CHICAGO (UP)—Mobile squads of lawyers will act as trouble shooters to prevent fraud and error at the Chicago polls Nov. 4.

Jarecki, head of the Chicago election machinery, says he will use a fleet of 100 taxicabs equipped with two-way radios and each carrying an attorney.

Jarecki will start a training school for the lawyers. He said the new system will be faster and more effective than volunteer watchers.

"It will be a big advantage to get them to the scene quickly," the judge explained. "They will be able to do much more than our employes can do by telephone contact with poll officials."

The lawyers will be paid by the election board, but Jarecki said he does not know what their salaries will be.

Here's a map, drawn by Bud Bentley, which gives a simple yet clear designation of the Texas tidelands—the three-league strip and the continental shelf. Texas' claim to the dotted area goes back to 1836.

NOT OIL BUT JUSTICE

Title To Tidelands Bought With Blood

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of four articles on the Texas tidelands. In the series H. Mewhinney of The Houston Post interestingly presents the historical background of the state's sub-water oil rich lands and offers pertinent facts of importance to all Texas citizens. The second in this series will appear next week.)

By H. MEWHINNEY. ... from Dan even to Beersheba.—Judges, 20:1; 1 Samuel, 3:20, etc. (The limits of the country.)

... beginning at the mouth of the Sabine River, and running west along the Gulf of Mexico, three leagues from land, to the mouth of the Rio Grande. ... Act of the Congress of the Republic of Texas, Dec. 19, 1836, setting the boundaries of the country. ... These stories will be about the tidelands. ... Some preface will be necessary. They are not really tidelands, of course. At high tide or at low tide, they are under the waters of the Gulf. ... WHAT WE carelessly call the tidelands is a long, narrow ribbon of land—under water but at the edge of the beach—running from the mouth of the Sabine River to the mouth of the Rio Grande. It is ten and one-third miles wide. It is just 20 wide and no wider that the boundary of Texas, between the Sabine and the Rio Grande, should be three leagues off shore. Three of those leagues make ten and one-third miles. ... YOU CAN stand on any Texas sea beach that faces the Gulf—and if you wade out far enough to get rally wet, you will be standing on the tidelands. ... For the United States Supreme Court decided two years ago that Texas has no right, title or interest in that land. The matter has become an issue in a presidential election.

Let that part above stand for a geographical preface. I am afraid there will have to be a personal preface, too. Ordinarily, I dislike newspaper stories that talk about I, we, you, me and us. ... But I was born in Bell County, Texas, which in the early days was a part of Milam County. Still earlier, that was in Sterling Robertson's Colony. ... I was brought up on a farm in Milam County. ... Milam County was named for Old Ben Milam.

THERE IS a statue of Old Ben Milam on the courthouse square at the county seat. Old Ben Milam was the man who got up and made a little speech to the Texas Army one day in 1835 when the Texas Army was camped outside of San Antonio de Bexar and was laying siege to the town. The siege was not making much progress and the Texans were arguing about what they ought to do next. ... Mr. Milam's little speech was short and pointed. This is what he said: "Who will go with Old Ben Milam into San Antonio?" ... And did anybody go? ... you may ask. Three-quarters of that army of farmers and frontiersmen got up and went into San Antonio with Old Ben Milam. They took San Antonio by fighting from house to house—rifles against cannon. ... NOT THAT IT ever did Ben Milam any good. He was killed in the fight. ... He never got any oil royalties. That was years before there was drilling for oil in Texas or anywhere else. ... All he got out of it was a monument on a courthouse square. ... But the Texas after him got the freedom of Texas. They got the whole broad land. They got that narrow strip off shore that nowadays we miscall the tidelands. ... The dearest thing that Texans can own is not oil, not cattle, not money—not even money from oil royalties that might educate their children. It is the bright, shining memory of how and why they inherited those things. ... TEXAS WOULD get along all right if it never got a cent of oil out from under that loose strip of shallow water. In cold fact there is not a single producing well there right now, though geologists believe that many millions of dollars' worth may eventually be found. ... But not have title to the land—oil or no oil? ... Title to the land was purchased with the blood of Old Ben Milam, of William Barret Travis, of Bonham, Bowie, Fannin, Crockett. ... Recite your own list of the authors of that title. ... Never mind the oil. Never mind the cattle. Never mind the money. What some of those old boys in the early days wanted was justice.

Pell In Korea Reveals Gifts GIs Want Most

(UP)—With the deadline for mailing packages to Korea for Christmas approaching, wives, parents, sweethearts and friends of servicemen in Korea probably are wondering what to send overseas for Christmas.

A survey conducted by the "First Word," official news daily of the First Marine Division, indicated that the Marines have no need for Argyle socks, plaid mufflers or long-handled underwear.

Regulation cold weather clothing and gear issued is more than adequate for their needs. In their place, the Leathernecks would welcome inexpensive wrist-watches of the waterproof-rust-proof variety, portable radios with extra batteries and cigarette lighters.

Candles Welcome Heavy-duty old-fashioned candles are welcome always and can be used to light up the inside of a dark bunker during the long winter nights.

Gasoline lanterns are issued to the front line troops but there are never enough to go around. If you send your Marine a gasoline lantern, be sure you include extra gas mantles and several extra generators.

Halloween Treat

When these small masked creatures knock at your door around Halloween and say "Tricks or Treat," invite them in, admire their costumes, and give them a treat. It's fun for everybody, and good insurance against tricks.

Halloween treats should be foods good for children, and foods wrapped to stay fresh and wholesome until eaten. Doughnuts from your grocer's ready-to-eat cake department make perfect "tricks or treat" fare. Choose the kind made from a famous cook book recipe. These fresh doughnuts, deliciously coated with powdered sugar, come eight to a windowed box.

Wrap each doughnut in wax paper first. Then wrap in a paper napkin and tie with ribbon. Attach candy kisses to the ends of the ribbon. You can buy everything you need except the ribbon (and maybe you have some left from last Christmas), right in your grocery store.

the cakes, candies and cookies and in their place substitute cheese, packaged soups, good soluble coffee, tea, potted meats, crackers, sardines, or other delicacies in jars or cans. Fresh fruit of any type is at a premium during the winter but it must be well-packed to keep from freezing.

Auto Thefts Gain in Nations Cities

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—The sharpest increases in urban crime trends is in auto theft which shows a rise of 18.6 per cent above last year's figures according to reports from the Cleveland Street and Traffic Safety Lighting department.

Police have stated that attempts to decrease the rate are thwarted by poor street lighting. They say thugs hide in the shadows until police cruisers have passed, and then sneak out to steal or strip automobiles.

newspapers are high on their list. A pin-up calendar will brighten a bunker's drab interior and he will be able to mark off the days bringing him nearer home.

Last but not least, send plenty of pictures. Girl friends and wives not ashamed of their figures should send one taken in a bathing suit. It will keep your Marine warm during a cold winter.

Tips On Winter Care Of Car

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP)—In case you have trouble starting your car during winter months, here are some of the tricks employed in the "far north" where temperatures often drop 30 degrees and more below zero:

Some motorists use five-weight motor oil, instead of the heavier conventional w.e.g.s. in cold weather this makes it easier to turn over the motor since the oil doesn't get as thick.

Some drivers start their cars at least every four hours and let them warm up thoroughly to prevent them from getting "too stiff" and "too hard to turn over."

Motorists also use "head bolt heaters"—electrical bolts which fit into the head of the engine and attach to electrical outlets — to keep oil and grease in the engine from getting "too still." Also used are "electrical dip sticks" which are put in cars in place of the conventional oil-measuring dip-sticks. Plugged into electrical outlets these also serve to keep the car warmed up.

Most motorists make it a point to keep their gas tanks at least half-filled to help prevent moisture condensation which could lead to freezing of the gas line. The fuller the gas tank is kept, the better.

Food Packages For Overseas

Americans who wish to assure Thanksgiving and Christmas cheer for relatives, friends or needy families overseas can take their choice this year of three CARE food packages especially prepared for gift-giving.

The annual CARE Holiday

Package, containing a whole canned turkey plus the dinner trimmings for as many as 12 persons, is again available at $18.75 for delivery in Austria, Belgium, Finland, France, West Germany and Berlin, Great Britain (England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland), Greece, Italy, the Netherlands and Norway.

In addition, CARE offers the canned turkey alone at a cost of $12, and a tasty $6.95 Budget Food Package designed to supplement the bird or travel proudly on its own. These two assortments may be ordered for recipients in East Germany and Yugoslavia as well as the above countries, while the Turkey Package is also available for Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

Orders may be mailed to CARE, 20 Broad St., New York 5, N. Y., or any local office of the non-profit agency. Deadline for Thanksgiving orders is November 1; for Christmas delivery, December 1.

Texas' first TB Christmas Seal sale, in 1909, totaled $1300.

SIXTEEN STATES FIGURE IN ELECTORAL VOTE SHIFT; TEXAS GAINS, NOW HAS 24

By Frank Eleazer
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — As many voters have to be reminded from time to time, but as politicians never forget, presidents actually are elected by an institution known as the electoral college.

That is why, when the presidential nominees lay out their campaign tours, they keep one eye on the may and the other on a state-by-state list of electoral votes. It's the electoral vote that counts.

Here's the way it works. Each state has a vote equal to the number of its house and senate members. The least populated states — Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming — have only three electoral votes each. New York has the most with 45. The total electoral vote is 531. It takes 266 votes to elect a president.

Normally—except when an elector bolts as one did in Tennessee in 1948—each state's entire electoral vote is cast for the nominee who gets the biggest popular vote in the state.

Campaign managers recall that in 1948 a few thousand extra or changed votes in three big states—Ohio, California and Illinois—could have switched the outcome in those states and elected Thomas E. Dewey instead of Harry S. Truman.

That is why, in states where political sentiment is pretty closely divided, both Republicans and Democrats this year are putting on the pressure to get out every possible vote.

Because of population shifts recorded in the 1950 census, the electoral vote this year has been increased in seven states and decreased in nine. California, which had a big boost in population, scored the biggest increase in electoral strength, jumping from 25 to 32 votes.

Florida gained two votes and Maryland, Michigan, Texas, Virginia and Washington one each.

Pennsylvania lost three votes. New York, Oklahoma and Missouri lost two each. One vote was lost by Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee.

Here is a table of electoral votes by states, four years ago and today:

State	1948	1952
Alabama	11	11

DOWN THE DRAIN GOES YOUR ENERGY

By the time those fresh vegetables are on your dinner plate tonight, as much as 40% of the all important B vitamin will be destroyed, according to the American Medical Association's Handbook of Nutrition. Heat, air and water destroy these necessary energy-building elements.

There's no way of cooking food, without destroying much of its nutritive value. Even less energy builders are in restaurant food, from which vitamins may be steamed away for hours before it is eaten.

Animals would die quickly if they had to survive on the foods most people eat every day, according to Dr. Robert R. Williams, one of the world's greatest nutrition authorities.

Government surveys show vitamin starvation occurs in all income groups. There are few today who suffer from obvious malnutrition, but hidden hunger is reflected in lack of energy, fatigue, restlessness, a tired feeling and similar symptoms.

It's necessary to eat as many raw foods as can be squeezed into the menu, and little water should be used in double boilers and pressure cookers. With all these precautions, much of the B vitamins will still be destroyed. So for most people, a daily vitamin supplement has become a good idea.

Speaking of vitamin supplements Dr. Williams says "Many scientists use them and feel they benefit from them."

Most generally indicated, however, is an all-purpose vitamin which, as in the case of the Rybutol formula for example, contains 22 vitamins and minerals in sufficiently high doses to meet the needs of the average person.

Scarlet Fever Menace During Autumn Months

The State Department of Health has just issued a warning in regard to scarlet fever, as the number of cases usually increases during the fall months. The majority of deaths from this disease occur from October through February.

Scarlet fever is a very contagious and serious disease. Grown people may contract it, but children under 15 years are especially apt to have it, if exposed. It is especially dangerous for children under 5 years, and Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, warns mothers to "not let your children take any chances with scarlet fever. Call the doctor as soon as the first symptoms appear."

If your child has contracted scarlet fever, the first signs you may notice are that he seems tired, restless and out of sorts. Usually, there is a sore throat, chills, vomiting, or convulsions and fever. His skin is dry and hot. His tongue is furred, and under this white covering, it is red and swollen. In ordinary cases, these early signs are followed in a day or two by a rash. Little flat red points, close together, appear first on the neck and chest and soon the rash, very red in color, spreads over most of the body.

The doctor is required by law to report the case to the local health officer. Do your part by following carefully the quarantine instructions which the health officer will give you, since a severe or fatal case of scarlet fever may develop from the contact with some one who has only a light attack. Children who have had scarlet fever, or who have been exposed, must not return to school until permission is given by the health officer and physician.

of the Eastland County organization.

The local drive is part of a simultaneous state-wide effort to increase Farm Bureau membership from almost 57,000 to 75,000 members by Oct. 17. More than 12,000 farmers and ranchers and their wives are taking the day off Friday to make this biggest of all Texas Farm Bureau Federation drives a success. The campaign will continue until Oct. 17, when county membership chairmen will wire in the results to the Waco headquarters.

President Myrick said that the 1952 county quota has been set at 825. Last year 386 members were signed up in the county organization. As of August 31, new members enrolled in 1952 totaled 151.

In stressing the importance of the membership campaign, the county president stated that farmers must organize to protect their own interests. The Farm Bureau, he said, is a tool the farmer can use beyond the fences—in Austin and Washington.

"The Farm Bureau is an organization of, by and for the farmers and ranchers. Resolutions adopted in the county, state and national organizations determine the policy of the Farm Bureau. Certainly, no one can better solve agricultural problems than the farmers themselves," he said.

Since 1946, all but 22 of Texas' 254 counties have had one or more mass chest X-ray surveys.
