CITIZENS FROM ALL SECTIONS OF STATE AT RALLY

Gov. Sterling's Speech Sounds "Battle of the People of Texas For Good Government," Campaign Plans Outlined.

Fort Worth, Aug. 4.—Sounding the note of battle, Governor Ross Sterling was cheered by leading citizens from all sections of Texas when he declared at the good government rally here Monday afternoon, "I will start out Tuesday and cover this state as it has never been covered before."

He said the women will be in the forefront in this fight as they always are when the good name and the integrity of Texas are at stake. "This is your battle; it's the battle of the people of Texas for good government."

The brief address of the governor was the climax of a day of oratory lauding the Sterling administration as unsurpassed in the history of the state and attacking Fergusonism for alleged highway and pardon scandals, proxy government and its impeachment record.

Plans were made to carry the fight into the smallest towns and rural communities. "A school house campaign," was the way Dan Moody phrased it.

"I have no patience with nor sympathy for any man who is not sym-

While riding horseback on a highway near Justin, John W. Day, 73, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile. He died in a Fort Worth hospital.

A masked robber, who Roy Key, assistant cashier, said was disguised as a woman, held up the First State bank at Kirkland Tuesday and escaped with more than $1600 in cash.

While three employees of the newspaper were in the office at the time, a thief walked into the office of the Stamford American Tuesday and robbed the safe of more than $55 in cash.

Miss Mildred Bedford, 18, of Electra was adjudged Miss Texas in the annual bathing beauty revue at Lake Worth Sunday night, which was entered by 40 contestants representing towns in North and West Texas.

While teaching one of his nieces to swim, William Tucker, who had been living on the shore of Lake Dallas, was drowned Monday, it being believed that he was seized with cramps, causing him to sink suddenly.

Mildred (Babe) Didrikson of Dallas, American girl winner of the javelin throw, added her second world record performance when she won the first heat of the 80-meter hurdles in 11.8 seconds at the Olympic meet at Los Angeles.

Miss Annie Russell, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. J. Russell, pioneer residents of Crowell, drowned Sunday night in an artificial lake on her father's home after her fiancé, Milton Calloway, had made a futile effort to save her.

EARLY WARNING GIVEN TO COTTON TRUCK OPERATORS

Chief of State Highway Patrol Gives Instructions to File Complaints for All Violations Hereafter; No More Leniency.

Friendly warning to West Texas cotton truck operators from L. G. Phares, chief of the state highway patrol:

The era of courteous instruction in the law and taking of promises from truckmen "not to do it again" has passed. Says Phares in Bulletin No. 167, addressed to state highway patrolmen.

"Beginning immediately you are instructed to file complaint in each and every instance where you find a cotton truck overloaded, overlength, overwidth, overweight, improperly parked on the highway, speeding, defective brakes, without proper head, tail and clearance lights, without chauffeur's license, without a rear view mirror, and, if hauling for compensation or hire, without a permit from the Railroad Commission, or for any other violation of our highway laws."

The patrol's patience has been strained, Phares admitted. He says: "Each fall for the past three years

Public Hearing on City Budget Called For Monday, Aug. 15

Monday evening, August 15, at 8 o'clock has been set as the time for the public hearing on the city's budget, the place of meeting to be announced in next week's issue of The Mail, when formal notice from the city council will also appear.

This action was taken at the regular monthly meeting of the city council Monday night at which time the aldermen studied the budget for this year and issued the call for the public hearing.

Provision is made by state law that, after the budget is prepared by the mayor and approved by members of the city council, it is to be submitted for adoption to a meeting of the taxpayers of the city.

To expedite matters, Mayor Elliott has suggested that the taxpayers select some eight or ten from their number to go over the budget with the council.

Change in Public Psychology Seen

Washington, Aug. 4.—Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the board of the Hudson Motor company, said after a conference with President Hoover Wednesday he had expressed the belief that "the change in public psychology that everybody has been praying for has taken place."

Chapin's conference with the president was of unusual duration. He entered the executive office at 10:30 a. m. and remained more than an hour, delaying for 30 minutes presidential conferences scheduled with Senators Smoot of Utah and Schall of Minnesota as well as Matthew Woll, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

Chapin said he told Mr. Hoover business prospects "seem better than at any time since the beginning of the depression."

Roberts No. 1 Swann Good for 100 Barrels

Another test on the W. D. Swann place, the J. M. Johnson's No. 1, is about ready to be drilled in.

Southern Oil Corporation and Pope and Anderson's No. 1 Tom Spears, had reached 2335 feet, up to Thursday morning, while the same company's well on the T. J. Toombs estate was down 1985 feet.

The Eastland Company test on the Hunter place, southeast of town, is reported about 1500 feet down.

Best Month in 1932.

Detroit, Aug. 4.—Registration of new passenger cars in the United States during June was greater than in any preceding month of the year, according to R. L. Polk and company.

COURT DISSOLVES INJUNCTION ORDER ON RATE REVISION

Revised Schedule in 89 Small Communities to be Placed in Effect; Railroad Commission Hearing Set for Sept. 6.

Austin, Aug. 4.—District Judge J. D. Moore Monday dissolved a temporary injunction granted the state restraining the Community Natural company from placing into effect a revised schedule of rates in 89 small Texas communities.

The state had asked that the company be restrained until a hearing had been held on the proposed revision by the Texas railroad commission. The commission has set September 6 as the date for the hearing.

No action was taken by Judge Moore on the petition of the utility for a counter injunction restraining the state from further interference with the proposed rate revisions.

Approximately 15 towns have appealed to the commission for a ruling on the fairness of the rates. Pending determination of the fairness of the rates by the commission the company has posted bond to indemnify consumers in event the rates are held to be too high.

Company officials said Monday the new schedules were not purely increases but that it was more of a revision whereby rates in the summer would be increased and rates on winter consumption decreased. Approximately 6,300 consumers are affected by the action.

Local Boy Scouts to Meet Friday Night

Members of Merkel Boy Scout troop No. 20 will meet at 8 o'clock Friday night of this week at the Methodist church to plan a series of summer trips.

It is expected that at this time all will have registered, as the last meeting showed a good attendance and much interest.

Paul Collins Elected Conference President

At the quarterly conference of Methodist young people of the Abilene district held at Baird last week-end, a Merkel boy, Paul Collins, was named president and Evelyn Darden of Abilene, secretary. Albany was selected as the place for the November conference.

St. Paul's delegation of Abilene received the conference award, a banner for the highest standard of efficiency. About 140 young people attended the conference.

Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurry college, was the main speaker of the day, preaching on the sermon topic, "Courage and Conviction." Rev. J. T. Griswold, host pastor, led a consecration service; Dan Dodson, president of Young Adults of the Northwest Texas conference, taught the young people's combined Sunday School class; and Alsie Carlton, president of Young People of the Northwestern Texas conference, was present at the assembly.

Cabinet members met under the direction of Alice Yeats of Merkel, retiring president.

Merkel Young People Attend District Meet

Holding their fifth Sunday devotion program, young people of the Abilene district met Sunday afternoon and evening, with the Central Presbyterian church in Abilene as the host church. Gordon Weir, vice president of the State Christian Endeavor organization, presided for the sessions, which included both afternoon and evening programs and a supper.

Those representing Merkel were Jack Patterson, Kennedy Whiteley and Jim Patterson.

Our local Endeavor begins at 6 o'clock and every member is urged to be there. Don't miss next Sunday.

TAYLOR COUNTY DEMOCRATS NAME ONLY STERLING MEN STATE DELEGATION SLATE

SMITH LEADER FOR ROOSEVELT

Governor Ely Pledges Himself to Support Roosevelt and Garner.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 4.—Governor Joseph B. Ely, who submitted the name of Alfred E. Smith as the democratic candidate at the Chicago convention and regarded as a strong anti-Roosevelt leader, has thrown his support to Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner.

In a statement announcing his own re-election, the governor pledged himself as follows:

"Having in mind the broad purposes of my party, and the accomplishment of those things for which it has declared itself, I shall give my support to the Democratic ticket of Roosevelt and Garner."

"It is useless for me to deny the feeling which I have already expressed," Ely said, "that the public mind would more clearly and easily find expression if the democratic party chose as its leader a man of expressed convictions and positive action as a contrast to the republican candidates for re-election. I do not now recede from the position. But my conference in Albany with Governor Roosevelt has convinced me that the platform of the democratic party adopted at Chicago will be carried out by him with earnest and energetic action."

Widow of Bill Sterrett Dies.

Dallas, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Fannie L. Sterrett, 81, widow of the late Col. William Greene Sterrett, nationally known Texas newspaper man, died Tuesday at the Dallas home of her daughter, Mrs. E. T. Staten.

Retail Business Up.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Retail business today is definitely on the upswing, Paul S. Willis, president of the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, told the convention of the organization.

Exclusion of Six Ferguson Men Is Voted; Only Two Contested Points During Proceedings; W. W. Hair Presides.

Sterling forces dominated the Taylor county convention of democrats held in the district court room at Abilene Saturday afternoon to the extent that an all-Sterling delegation was sent to the state convention at Lubbock in September.

Twenty-nine persons, all presumably favorable to Governor Sterling, were named by the committee on state convention delegates, which consisted of Dallas Scarborough, chairman, R. D. Green, of Abilene, J. D. Harrison of Guion, James Hurt of Ovalo and W. O. Boney of Merkel.

Only two contested points arose during the proceedings, the first of which was a motion by Judge James F. Stinson to include the name of R. W. Haynie on the state delegation in view of his outstanding representation of the 17th district at the national convention in Chicago in June. To this, as chairman of the committee on state delegates, Scarborough objected, voicing the decision of the committee to send only Sterling men.

In time and after spirited debate, it was developed through statement of Mr. Haynie himself that he was a Sterling supporter and, without objection, either from committee or convention proper, his name was added to the list.

The other flare-up followed a motion by Harry Tom King to include a Ferguson minority, six delegates or more, on the state delegation. On a poll of the 30 precincts, the motion was defeated 69.2 to 17.7.

Following announcement of the result of the roll call, the convention adopted the list of delegates presented by the Scarborough committee, with only King voting a loud "No."

W. W. Hair, of Abilene, served both as temporary and permanent chairman, with T. N. Carswell, also of Abilene, as secretary.

LIST OF DELEGATES.

Delegates named to the state convention are:

R. M. Wagstaff, Oliver Cunningham, C. M. Hunt, J. D. Harrison, E. W. Whittle, A. E. Fogle, C. J.

Way of Life

SOMETHING SIMPLE

I wish to ask that no more Plans for solving the economic situation be sent to me. My quota is completed; my files are full. My mental decision to retire from Plan Reading was reached some time ago.

An earnest gentleman with a gleam in his eyes got in anyhow the other day. He asked me to read a book in which a new prophet sets forth a new religion. The gentleman assured me that if only all men and women could be led to think the thoughts of this prophet every difficulty would fold up.

While we talked I turned the pages of the book, and after about a minute I assured him that I should not need to read it in order to know that it would have no influence.

He was aggrieved. "You have a closed mind," he charged.

"Not at all," I said. "I happen to know what kind of words move the world. I'll give you an example:

"The Lord is my shepherd," etc.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers founded on this continent," etc.

"Contrast these simple words with a couple of phrases from your book," I said:

"The definitely "anticipatory" value of the self-protecting mechanism of covenant obligations . . ."

"Expanding consciousness obtainable through the direct application of the method of cyclic evolution . . ."

"Nobody is going to overturn the world," I concluded, "unless he is able to make his ideas understandable even to a little child. Second-raters are always obscure. But the head man in any department of life, I care not whether it be medicine, theology, science or what, he can make a talk that will fascinate a kindergarden."

John Bunyan explained to his readers that he might have adopted a "stile" much more fancy but he wanted his book to be read by common people everywhere. He has his wish: "Pilgrim's Progress" will live as long as anything in our language.

Lincoln's style grew steadily clearer and simpler as he grew in years and wisdom.

"What harm can a book do that costs a hundred crowns?" Voltaire exclaimed. "Twenty volumes folio will never make a revolution; it is the little pocket pamphlets that are to be feared."

FIRST LOVIES

by FELIX RIESENBERG

FOURTH INSTALLMENT.

SYNOPSIS: Johnny Breen, 16 years old, who had spent all of his life aboard a Hudson river tugboat plying near New York, is tossed into the river in a terrific collision which sinks the tug, drowns his mother and the man he called father. Ignorant, unschooled, and fear driven, he drags himself ashore, hides in the friendly darkness of a huge covered truck—only to be kicked out at dawn—and into the midst of a tough gang of river rat boys who beat and chase him. He escapes into a basement doorway where he hides. The next day he is rescued and taken into the home of a Jewish family living in the rear of their second-hand clothing store. He works in the sweatshop store—and is openly courted by Becka—the young daughter. . . . The scene shifts to the home of the wealthy Van Horns—on 5th Avenue, where lives the bachelor—Gilbert Van Horn—in whose life there is a hidden chapter. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Gilbert Van Horn was never married or divorced. He never worked, never worried so far as the world knew, and seldom did anything to disturb the social balance of the outer world. Having been born into a prepared position, he agreed with life, and to a large extent life agreed with him. Gilbert Van Horn was considered a typical Van Bibber, a creature utterly unknown to fact, but loved of fiction.

Gilbert was genial. Women were attracted to him; so general was this that the effect became negligible. He had good breeding and common sense and a certain lack of perception. The combination saved him from becoming an utter loss. Had he wished he might have married money but the thought never occurred to him. The daughters of a half dozen of so of the country's richest and hardest-working plutocrats might have accepted him, one at a time, of course.

These hard-working men might even have respected him. Gilbert Van Horn stripped like a heavyweight and had a wide reputation as an amateur pugilist.

But we must go a bit further with the story of this bachelor, prize fighter and general all 'round favorite of fortune.

He was certain of a beneficent providence that looks out for gentlemen. To be a gentleman, as he understood it, was the highest ideal of, well, of a gentleman. He never got beyond that; it was like many of the great fundamental things, it was simply so, and no gentleman could question it, and still remain a gentleman. His code for in those days it was the fashion to have one, included a frank understanding in advance. Whatever hopes he raised were always doomed to disappointment.

Gilbert had no desire to make money, for the frugal habits of his father had left the family fortune fairly well recuperated. It was not a colossal fortune, but it was ample, at least for a bachelor. His funds had been placed in trust and this did much to make him static. He was liberal, in a way, and when the feeling seized him, he could be downright generous, actually crippling himself for months on end to do a good turn for a friend. But the trustees saw to it that his generosity was confined entirely to his income.

At thirty-five Van Horn still believed in the beneficence of his particular fortune. He was growing slightly heavy as his bent for hard exercise slackened and his hair tinged with gray. At forty doubt seized him, doubt that overtakes all men as they approach those middle years when the little question begins to be heard—"What have you done with your precious twenties and thirties?"

What had he done? Nothing in fact. But he did remember a lot of great times, times he was fond of recalling when in company with that wit, Judge Marvin Kelly, friend of his father and big brother to the orphan Gilbert Van Horn. Marvin Kelly, a politician, not unknown in Tammany Hall, a power and a philosopher, smoothed over much rough ground in the mental trail of Van Horn.

"Judge" he said one day as they were in the library smoking and talking. "A distant connection of mine has died, out in Kentucky, a Lambert; Hosea Lambert. He leaves a daughter Josephine. I'm thinking of having her on here. She's my nearest relative, so far as I know," he added, looking out of the window.

"How old?" Judge Kelly was practical.

"About twelve."

"H'm, safe enough—for a few years."

Josephine arrived in New York, a little girl with a sash and very long legs who rolled a hoop. It was another milestone in the life of Gilbert Van Horn. Aunt Wen, or Mrs. Anthony Wentworth, a decayed lady of quality, to describe her in formula, accompanied Josephine and remained in the Van Horn home. There was no question about her remaining, and Gilbert when he came to consider the matter, was glad enough to have her there. Certainly many matters must arise in the life of young girl requiring the instruction of a gentlewoman. This profound thought came to him quite as a shock. He liked to have Josephine around, liked to have her climb on his knee and make much of him. It was the first bit of honest affection Gilbert Van Horn had ever known.

Having done with the Van Horn myth let us step back for a few years and review the incident that has been slightly touched upon; the incident of the river and of the boy, born to the name of Breen, on the river, but actually begotten by Van Horn.

It was in the summer of 1883 that the great internal and hushed-up scandal of the Hallet-Van Horn household had its beginning at the country place in Astoria, in that fine mansion overlooking Hell Gate. Gilbert, home following his junior year at college, was being sheltered from the vile contacts of the city and the haunts of Brevoort Van Horn. He was studious, but not so much of books as of nature. Mrs. Hallet-Van Horn's maid, a comely, lively girl named Harriet, the most satisfactory handmaid—Mrs. Van Horn had ever enjoyed, stumbled upon Gilbert, at ease in his mother's boudoir, reading Nick Carter. Mrs. Van Horn was in the city shopping. The fact that the maid had stepped from a luxurious bath may have added somewhat to the astonishment of the young man. For the first time he was aware of the fact that female proportions were actual.

Very early the next year a condition of extraordinary difficulty became manifest. Harriet, to be quite plain, was in a family way, a decidedly annoying situation in view of the fact that she alone seemed able to do Mrs. Hallet-Van Horn's hair as it should be done.

At once suspicion hovered about the house. Harriet would not confess the name of the culprit. Harriet supposed, if the truth were known, that she would be imprisoned for life.

Then the eager flicker of suspicion hovered about the house. It rested, in turn, on every male. Even Jules, the page, was under suspicion.

"No, ma'am, it was not him." So Harriet patiently absolved them, one by one, in the daily, hourly inquisition.

"The butler, old Simmons? Lord, no ma'am. Not him, oh, no!"

Could it be an immaculate conception? Mrs. Hallet-Van Horn almost wished her faith was strong enough to believe it, but no, a miracle of that sort might happen to her, but not to that girl.

A month of utter torture followed. The situation became worse. Her husband, Brevoort Van Horn, must be the guilty party. He simply must.

The storming between Lida and Brevoort grew so intense that even the servants were wrought up. Mrs. Hallet-Van Horn became hysterical, to the point of speaking before Simmons.

"Beggin' your pardon, Mr. Van Horn," Simmons lingered outside the door as Brevoort left his wife's apartment. "May I speak sir?"

"By all means, Simmons. Who in hell did it?"

"I hope you will pardon my presumption, sir."

"Simmons, spill it. Was it the parson, or who?"

"It was Mr. Gilbert sir."

"Gilbert!" Brevoort stood somewhat gazed. "Great Jupiter her son. And mine," he added, as an afterthought. "Well I'll be damned!"

The bringing down of Gilbert from college, he was coming anyway for the midyear recess, was an event. He had not forgotten the incidents of the preceding fall. In fact he had a rather lively idea of a renewal of the affair: Gilbert, also, was a simple fellow.

"Your mother wishes to see you,

at once, Mr. Gilbert."

The meeting was in the library. Brevoort stood before the fireplace, shifting from one foot to another. His spats gave him the curious appearance of a man who is standing in a puddle of glue.

Mrs. Lida Hallet-Van Horn reclined in a large cushioned chair, her back to the windows. She was fully and somewhat formally dressed. A shawl of black lace, thrown over her shoulders, intensified her pallor. Husband and wife did not speak. After all he had done then to accuse her own boy!

When young Gilbert came into the rather tense room, his father gave him a look of pity. Mrs. Van Horn, the Hallet for a moment subdued, smiled at him wanly. He bent, and she kissed his forehead. Her cheeks flushed. That handsome boy. Her boy.

Gilbert sensing something unusual, wondered what was up.

"Gilbert," Brevoort tried to get things moving. He was due down at the club, at Twenty-first Street, a beastly drag, at four. "Your mother has asked us here. I have asked you, Gilbert, I mean we, that is your mother and me."

"Not me," Lida Hallet interposed, her voice sharp. "Not me, Mr. Van Horn; you, and, and Simmons." She bowed into her hands; a handkerchief dabbled at her glistening eyes.

"Well, the fact is—" Brevoort was somewhat at a loss. "Let us send for her." He looked pleadingly at his wife. Of course. It was a brilliant idea. "Ring for Simmons."

"Simmons," Mrs. Van Horn spoke with icy coolness. "Have Harriet come up at once." The matter would soon be settled.

They stood for some minutes, eternities, father, mother, son. Gilbert, his eyes on the fire, began to do some thinking on his own account. Had the girl told, of—of— He had not looked at it in that light, as any harm to his parents, you know.

"Harriet can't be found, ma'am," Simmons reported. "She left the house, ma'am, cook says, this noon. She's took her own things. She has apparently left, ma'am."

"Mother—" Gilbert, awkward, nervous, asked. "What, what about Harriet?"

"Son, oh, how can I say it. The awful lies, the horror of it." She covered her face, her head bent down; sobs shook her shoulders. Her delicate white hands trembled, her rings flashing in the firelight. "I simply can't say it. Deny everything, Gilbert. Tell them they lie."

"Son," Brevoort's quick eyes caught the look of consternation, of realization, in the boy's face. Again he had an uncomfortable feeling that this thing, if told at the club, would meet with roars of mirth. "Mother's maid, Harriet, is about to, that is, to become a mother. We, that is I—"

"Not me, Gilbert, not me," she sobbed and trembled.

"We believe you are responsible for her condition. Is this so?"

Gilbert hung his head for a time, then he looked straight at his father, past his mother who suddenly faced him, her eyes bright and eager for the glad denial, ready, willing, anxious to hear him fling back the vile insinuation, fling it back like a Hallet.

"I suppose I am to blame. I—"

A cry from the chair. Mrs. Lida Hallet-Van Horn had fainted. There in the library, surrounded by books as unknown as life, books filled with the stuff of dreams and crimes and love, these people enacted a scene. The young man was the least to blame. Mrs. Hallet-Van Horn refused to see her son. He went back to his studies marveling at the curious trick life had played. How was he to know that things could be so serious? (Continued Next Week.)

Exceptionally Low Round Trip Fares Offered by T. & P.

Saturday will be a "Red Letter Day" for many vacationists and business men who are planning to take advantage of drastically reduced round trip rates on the Texas and Pacific railway to visit either Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso or certain other points on the T. and P., according to Frank Jensen, general passenger agent. For this special occasion round trip tickets will be sold at a fraction of the usual one-way fare only on Saturday, August 6, and will be good on Texas and Pacific trains leaving on this day only.

In addition to exceptionally low round trip fares this "Red Letter Day" excursion marks a radical departure from the usual reduced rate offer in several respects. Tickets purchased on this occasion provide a ten-day return limit, allowing sufficient time for an enjoyable vacation, an extended visit with friends and relatives or a long business trip. Pullman car fares on the trains on which the special rates apply also have been materially lowered. Children will be carried for half of the reduced adult fare.

This drastic round trip rate reduction is being made in response to a popular demand from those who could not afford to make such long trips at regular rates, Mr. Jensen said. The Texas and Pacific is preparing to care for the comfort of those who take advantage of this exceptional offer and all agents have complete information covering rates and train schedules. Pullman reservations may be made in advance of the day of departure.

Warns Cotton Truckers

(Continued from Page One.) We have been confronted with the cotton truck problem and I think that we have been very courteous in the past in warning and trying to educate this class of operators. Within the next few days many trucks throughout the state, and especially in South Texas, will again start hauling cotton. From our past experience with this class of operators, and their failure to comply with our warning, I am led to believe that you should file a case against each one of these offenders. In the majority of cases the operators of these trucks are hired for the single trip and, of course, they try to make the quickest possible time from the point where the load originates to the point of destination. There have been several cases called to my attention where operators have gone to sleep while driving these trucks. In the past two years several people have been killed, thousands of dollars worth of personal property destroyed and hundreds of miles of highway practically ruined by the careless operation of this class of trucks, and the operator's disregard for our highway laws.

MOORE GRANTS INJUNCTION. The cotton truck situation, clouded heretofore by a series of local injunctions against enforcement of the maximum load law, was considerably cleared Saturday when, in 98th district court of Travis county, Judge J. D. Moore issued a temporary injunction restraining all persons operating trucks on state highways from violating any provisions of House Bill 335, particularly the sections limiting to 7,000 pounds a load carried past a common point loading place, and limiting to 14,000 pounds a load carried between points of origin and common carrier stations.

For example, a 14,000-pound load of wheat may be trucked from Merkel to an Abilene elevator, but only 7,000 pounds of that wheat may be trucked in one load beyond Abilene, which is a common carrier station. Highway patrolmen construe a 13-bale cotton shipment to be within the 7,000-pound limit in most cases, but any truck hauling 14 or more bales will be stopped for weighing; and, if overweight, complaint will be lodged, unless the operator has proper permit.

The cotton movement will not get under way in this territory before September.

State Sterling Rally

pathy for Mrs. Ferguson and I say this as a southern gentleman," Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman declared.

The 11 counties in which he was manager of the Tom Hunter campaign for governor will be won for Sterling, J. L. Lightfoot of Comanche predicted.

Ferguson promised to cut expenses in half in 1924 but did not carry out his pledge and now is making the same old promises, former Congressman Oscar Callaway of Comanche said.

Dr. J. D. Sanderfer of Abilene, president of Simmons university and a native of Arkansas, was in Europe when the Fergusons entered the runoff two years ago and to avoid the gibes, he told acquaintances he was from Arkansas, the educator related.

Other speakers included Stewart Smith, Beaumont; E. R. Bryan, Mineral Wells; W. F. Nabor, Fort Worth; George Wallace, Dallas county manager for Hunter in the first campaign; W. F. Nelson, Mineral Wells; Dr. J. L. Ward, Decatur; Mrs. C. M. Pearce, Fort Worth and P. H. Singletary, Huntsville. A telegram was read from Lawrence R. Melton, Dallas, state commander disabled veterans of the World war, pledging his support to Sterling.

Ernest Alexander, Fort Worth, state campaign manager, called the session to order with the declaration that continuation of honesty and responsibility in government was at stake.

Looks Like Hoover; So He Got The Role

It's not every man who can be president for a day.

That honor fell to Tom Hackett, Hollywood character actor, during the production of "The Washington Masquerade," in which Lionel Barrymore and an elaborate cast are playing at the Ritz Theatre, Sweetwater, starting Sunday.

The Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer drama of political life at the national capital includes a vivid reception of the president, with the diplomat corps, high army officers and national and foreign statesmen in attendance. So the problem was to find an actor to play the president.

"Find me a man who looks like Hoover," ordered Charles Brabin, the director. In an hour the casting director produced Hackett, who looks enough like the president to pass for him.

Hackett has been playing small roles in Hollywood productions, usually enacting policemen or detectives. But the prominence given him by playing the president has put him in line for better parts.

The new picture is a vivid story of the "inside" in Washington politics, with Barrymore as a senator and political power who is lured into trouble by a woman lobbyist. A notable cast includes Karen Morley, Diane Sinclair, Nils Asther, Reginald Barlow, William Collier, Sr., William Morris, Rafaela Ottiano, C. Henry Gordon, Burton Churchill and Henry Kolker.

Fergusons High in Campaign Expense

Austin, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Miriam Ferguson expended $4,614 in her campaign for governor in the first democratic primary, her expense account filed with the secretary of state revealed. Contributions were listed at $1,216.

Governor R. S. Sterling's expenses were $3,441.17 and contributions $1,450 and Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls spent $4,362.36, their accounts showed. Hunter said he did not receive any contributions.

If you once have a taste of the New NuGrape, you always come back for more. It's just that sort of a flavor—a mysterious something, born of plump Concord grapes and sunshine. There is nothing anywhere near like it, with its bouquet of dew-ripened grapes, and its sparkling, dancing life—as of champagne.

Next to impossible to keep the New NuGrape on ice at home—the family sneaks in for "just another bottle," even when a case is purchased at a time. But since Nature and Science brewed it and brought it to its delightful state of appetizing perfection—you can drink as much as you please as often as you please.

There is no substitute for the New NuGrape. Accept none, for it would only mean disappointment. The genuine is sold everywhere for 5¢.

IN-HONOR AFFAIRS.

Mrs. Comer Haynes was a most charming honoree for a beautiful party on Tuesday afternoon at the Oak street home of her mother, Mrs. E. M. McDonald, with Mrs. Heizer Teaff and Miss Vennie Heizer co-hostesses with Mrs. McDonald. The house was profusely decorated with lovely summer flowers forming a pretty background for nine tables appointed in pretty colors of pink and green game accessories. A lovely bridal motif was carried out in tallies and score pads; pink and green baskets of pink and green mints and pink and green glasses for iced drinks augmented the color scheme.

The honoree was most becomingly gowned in a fashionable model of Navy Jericho-crepe.
