ON THE ALERT

Last week Merkel was alerted for a tornado, storm or other weather disturbance. Many people took to cover, and rightly so. Nothing happened, other than strong winds and a heavy rain. But had there been a tornado lashing its way toward Merkel, there probably would have been few casualties as a result of the warnings made by the police department and the civil defense. Sirens blasted. Many people who heard them fled to safety. Many cellars were reported full of people.

The civil defense and others who helped spread the alarm should be congratulated on their fine job. You can't tell—the real McCoy could have been hidden in those storm clouds, and it would have raced in as rapidly as a Kentucky thoroughbred that many people would have been injured.

Again, we say a job well done.

YOUNG BASEBALLERS

The baseball season is under way in Merkel. The Little Leaguers and the teen agers are starting. This is a fine program, and especially so for a city the size of Merkel to promote. Those in charge are doing a wonderful job for the kids of Merkel, for it gives them a pastime that is healthful, clean and wonderful for the town. Keep moving forward.

C. Zehnfenning, tail twister; Booth Warren and W. O. Boney, directors 2 years; and W. W. Haynes to fill unexpired term. A. T. Sheppard is holdover director.

A movement to foster Boy Scout activities here, with a view of reorganization of one or more troops, was launched Tuesday afternoon. Present were Roy Reid, president of the Lions club, Stanley King, Herbert Patterson, Yates Brown, Dee Grimes, Dr. Zehnfenning, L. C. Edwards and S. P. Nesmith.

Rainfall thus far in 1935 is 17 inches . . . 10.8 inches was recorded in May.

There will be six new teachers in Merkel schools this next year, according to Supt. Roger A. Burgess.

While en route to Merkel to attend the funeral of Mrs. N. E. Sandlin, Mrs. Smith's mother, D. B. Smith, Prague, Okla., accompanied by Little Billy Van Tubbs, happened into an accident near Henrietta. His steering wheel broke and the car went into a 20-foot ditch.

This Happened in Merkel Forty Years Ago

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Magness, formerly of Dallas, returned to Merkel the first of the week and will make their home here in the future. Mr. Magness being on the road most of the time, they will take light rooms at the J. W. Daniel residents.

Misses Dota and Olivia Garoutte were among those who attended the high school play, at the Cozy theater on Friday night of last week and were free to express their opinion of the play.

Miss Eunice Bullock has returned to her home in Eastland county after spending the winter here with her uncle.

Master Harry Merritt is in Abilene visiting his friend W. J. Cunningham, on South First St.

Miss Amy Gunn narrowly escaped a serious if not fatal injury Monday when a horse she was riding suddenly kicked and struck her right above and between the eyes with its hoofs. The accident happened on Kent St. near the Ash home. Parties near by, seeing the stricken young lady, rushed to her aid to find her unconscious. She was then taken to her mother's house where medical aid was given to her.

Strange Devices Among Tools Of Atomic Science

Strange and awesome devices are among the tools with which scientists today are probing the mysterious world of the atom. By-products of the atomic age and America's search for nuclear knowledge many of the new instruments might have been fostered in the mind of Jules Verne or H. G. Wells, and later discarded because they were considered "too incredible."

Yet, their collective presence in the laboratories and workshops of American industries and research laboratories eventually may have as profound an effect on the lives of the nation's farmers and city-dwellers as the steam locomotive or the automobile.

The nation's atomic scientists today are employing these hyper-sensitive instruments to explore minute worlds to a degree never before imagined possible.

With the electron microscope used by General Electric company scientists in research work at the Hanford atomic energy works, for example, particles one ten-millionth of an inch in diameter can be observed.

Viruses and certain molecules became visible with instruments of this type for the first time in the history of the world, and if you could write letters that small, you could cram 40,000 printings of the Gettysburg Address onto the tip of a human hair. Members of the Biology section of the GE organization operating the Hanford plant for the Atomic Energy Commission use the microscope to observe animal tissues and other materials which have been exposed to radiation.

Seeing to it that Hanford vacuum and gas-filled tubes used in research work are "leak-free" is the job of a mass spectrometer leak detector. The device is so sensitive that it would require 2000 years for the tire to lose all of its pressure.

Weight-measuring instruments used at the Hanford plutonium-producing plant register weights of particles so small that they are beyond human comprehension. A micro-balance, one of three super-sensitive instruments in use by GE scientists, can measure particles weighing no more than one-hundred-thousandth of a gram.

There is no place for such a device as this in the butcher shop around the corner but to the scientist in his laboratory, it is an indispensable tool in his quest for greater knowledge about the amazing world of the atom.

The young cow is called a calf, and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad.

The cow's tail is mounted aft and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies, and the tassel on the end has a unique educational value. Persons who milk cows and come often in contact with the tassel have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as a function. When this one is filled, a warehouse and has no other the cow retires to a quiet place where her ill manners will occasion no comment and devotes herself to belching. The raw material thus conveyed for the second time to the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach. There it is converted into cow.

The cow has no upper plate. All of her teeth are parked in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result, she bites up and gums down.

The male cow is called bull and is lassoed in Texas, fought in Mexico, and shot in Washington. The cow, 14 cents in the hands of the packers, and $2.40 at the near-east restaurant. — from "Cheer" by E. C. Palmer & Co.

Called for The Screen History

During the same search period 617 boys were interviewed in Hollywood, mostly from local schools. Nearly 70 of them were tested before 23 were picked to complete the class of which Glenn Ford becomes the heckled teacher. O (the Hollywood "discoveries") only two have been in pictures previously. Chris Randall, who hails from New Orleans, had just made his debut with Kirk Douglas in "The Racers." Jerry Micholson, born in St. Paul, had made his bow at the age of five in "Journey for Margaret" with Margaret O'Brien.

Most surprised of the Hollywood group was Jerry Wynne. He had arrived in California only nine days earlier from New York. There he had been a student teacher in P. S. 83. Now he was on the other side of the fence, playing a juvenile tough.

Automation is suddenly in everyone's vocabulary. Translated in terms of a man's work, it means being replaced by a machine.

Many people have thought in the past that their jobs would be taken over by a machine, and in fact, many have been. On the other hand, it seems when a machine takes over a job, it has a tendency to create work for not only the person displaced, but for others also.

I suppose what most of us are looking for is a machine which will do all of our work and leave us idle entirely. Of course, we will want to be paid while we are idle. In fact, that seems to be the attitude of a great many people—past, present, and doubtless it will be in the future.

While most everyone has been looking the other way, three South American nations have welded themselves together in economic unity. Chile, Bolivia, and Argentina are now linked by agreements pledging economic integration. Argentina has grain, meat, lumber, and small industry. Chile and Bolivia have coal, oil, copper, tin, nitrates, and hydroelectric potentialities.

The pacts call for sharing of capital for investments, and mutually building highways and pipelines. If it works out, dependence on Europe and the United States for markets for raw materials will diminish.

There is nothing wrong with economic intergration in Latin America, but if we properly develop our foreign trade, we will be furnishing these countries the things they need and securing from them certain raw materials essential to maintain our standard of living. Certainly we cannot afford to lose any more foreign markets.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission has announced that claims of the thousands of civilian American citizens trapped by the Japanese at Wake Island, Guam, Midway, and the Philippines during World War II—and those in the military held prisoner of war by the enemy—must be filed by August 31, 1955.

The Defense Department is worried. More than two million workers are engaged in the manufacture of military supplies, but have not received security clearance. Those who handle "secret" and "top secret" work get a careful check. Below they get a "confidential" clearance, sometimes in a matter of minutes. The military points out that some contractors give "confidential" clearance as soon as a worker is hired.

Frankly, the Defense officials do not know what to do about it. They are unable to spare the personnel necessary to check all these workers. The FBI needs more money and men to do the job. The problem has been dumped into President Eisenhower's lap.

Most of the labor unions are seemingly against these security checks being made. They contend, as do some others, that it would create a sort of gestapo.

People in sensitive positions were checked for security during the war, and I can see no reason why it could not be done even better at the present time.

"If a man acts like a man long enough, he is likely to be one."

Slip and Sach Aid Young Heir

Leo Gorcey and Hunt Hall in Slip and Sach of the Bowery Boys get involved with a bunch of crooks trying to grab a fortune from a youthful heir in "High Society," their new comedy hit from Allied Artists, which shows Friday & Saturday at the Queen theatre.

At first they are a part of the plot, but when they learn the true situation, they join with the youngster, route the conspirators, and save the heritage.

In their customary roles are Bernard Grocey as Louie, David Condon as Chuck, and Benjie Bartlett as Butch. Others in the cast are Ronald Keith as the lad, Dayton Lumms as the social crook, Amenda Blake as his cunning sister and Addison Richards as a crooked lawyer.

The picture was produced by Ben Schwab and directed by William Beaudine.

 deadlock the House took time out to pass a constitutional amendment resolution to create mosquito tax districts.
 A badly slashed Trinity River Authority bill passed the Senate. A feature was inserted to allow downriver users additional water above their own "normal flow" rights, without paying for it.
 Rep. J. O. Gillham of Brownfield won House passage of his bill to raise college registration fees from $25 to $50 a semester. But it was modified to exempt students working 20 hours or more a week. Sen. Jimmy Phillips of Angleton promised to fight it until adjournment if taken up in the Senate.
 Sen. William H. Shireman of Corpus Christi abandoned his bill requiring lobbyists to register. Opponents amended it until he said it affected public officials more than lobbyists.
 Rep. J. E. Cox's "unfair sales" bill passed the Senate after it had been watered down until opponents said it was unconstitutional—but meaningless even if valid. The Conroe representative's bill was restricted to grocery stores. Its prohibition against selling below cost also prohibited a merchant from limiting sales or refusing to sell his entire stock to competitors at the advertised price. This would denude competitors to buy the bargain merchandise before housewives had an opportunity to take advantage of the advertiser's specials.

Cotton Still Texas Best Income Crop

Crop possibilities for Texas' new diversified agricultural economy are described in an article to appear in the June issue of Texas Business Review, publication of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.
 The author is Dr. Raymond V. Lesikar, former research associate in the Bureau and now a staff member at Louisiana State University.
 "Cotton is still Texas' chief crop income source and will continue to be on into the foreseeable future," Dr. Lesikar emphasized. "The only change is that now cotton is moving a bit to make room for a number of supporting secondary crops."
