Girl, 3, gets jury summons

Ellie Schuckman received a jury summons in the mail last week, but her family doubts she'll serve. After all, Ellie is 3.

Still, Ellie — who lives in Fair Lawn, N.J. — said it's kind of neat to receive a letter meant "for big people." The minimum age for jurors is 18.

Bergen County uses voter and driver lists, tax rolls and homestead records to recruit jurors, jury clerk Rose Falsetto said. Ellie's name probably appeared on a tax list after her parents opened a savings account in her name.

"Obviously, it's just a bureaucracy mix-up," Ellie's mom, Helen, said Tuesday.

Sex-crazed moths to mob bogs

Expect to see a lot of oversexed moths flying around Massachusetts cranberry bogs.

Scientists have developed a new pest-fighting weapon that interferes with the moths' mating rituals, resulting in fewer babies — the dreaded Sparganothis fruitworm.

"Moths are going to have to take lots of cold showers," Jeffrey LaFleur said Tuesday.

The fruitworms can be devastating to a cranberry crop. They burrow into the fruit, munching their way from one to the next, rendering the cranberry useless as food or drink.

Scientists were able to replicate the pheromones that female moths use to attract males. When the pheromones are mixed into a bog's irrigation system, it sends the moths into a blind sexual tizzy.

The males smell the females, but because the scent is everywhere, they can't find mates. The result: fewer eggs are laid.

County raises would still leave workers short

By RONN SMITH
Editor

As the Bailey County Commission considers pay raises for county employees for the first time in two years, this might be a good time to compare how some salaries actually stack up with neighboring counties.

Bear in mind, though, that the $600-a-year raises proposed for most county employees will net only about an amount equal to the increase in insurance premiums for county employees — $38.40 a month, or $460.80.

Those who would get more substantial raises, however, would still be paid less than their counterparts in neighboring counties in most cases.

Bailey County's population, ac-ording to a 1997 estimate published in the World Almanac, has declined to 6,831 from its official 1990 census level of 7,064. (Of neighboring counties, only Parmer County has not experienced a population decline, according to the estimate figures.)

Based on the population base available for taxation, the counties' pay varies wildly. Lamb County, to the east, has an estimated population of 14,849 — more than twice that of Bailey County. Lamb County is down from 15,072 in the 1990 census.

If Bailey County grants its sheriff the proposed $2,000-a-year raise, Sheriff Coy Plott would be paid $25,583 a year as compared to the New Muleshoe school superintendent David Hutton makes a point with school board member Thurman Myers. Hutton, who came to Muleshoe after five years as superintendent in Tahoka, began his duties July 1. He replaced Bill Moore, who retired after eight years at the Muleshoe helm.

Hutton has found 'special place'

By RONN SMITH
Editor

David Hutton, Muleshoe's new superintendent of schools, said there was no doubt in his mind — or the minds of his family — when he heard that the job was open.

"We were very happy at Tahoka — it was a good school district. But Muleshoe is special place," he said. "We knew it was a progressive place but with traditional Christian values."

He said he had driven through Muleshoe many times, since he has a daughter at Clovis and his mother lives at Littlefield. And actually, he added, he had been familiar with Muleshoe since he was in high school and his father was a preacher at Turkey.

His administrative career includes five years as superintendent at Tahoka and four years as assistant superintendent and high school principal at Clyde.

Before that, he spent six years at Abilene Christian High.

His philosophy is that the school system is a mirror of the community.

"As our schools go, so the community goes," he said. "And if we have a good school system, we can make a big contribution toward whether our community stays viable or whether people start looking somewhere else."

In regard to his arrival in the Muleshoe district, "There are no huge changes in store — you don't change when things are going well," he said.

He said his goals for the district mainly consist of building on what's already in place:

• "The board has committed itself to excellence, traditionally," he said. "We want to make sure every child is prepared for the future they choose, whether that be college or the workplace."

• "We're going to continue to work to be on the cutting edge of technology so our kiddos will be technology-literate and will be skilled in all areas."

• He will be working to keep the district financially sound. "There are some places that have historically tried to pinch pennies," he said. "In this district, while the facilities are not new, they're in excellent shape."

Not only that, he added, but the district's reserves are such that a large part of the annual budget can be funded from the interest on cash reserves. That alleviates much of the pressure to raise taxes, allowing the district to maintain one of the lowest tax rates in the state.

School Board President Cindy Purdy said Hutton's clear articulation of those goals assured him of getting the job.

"The goals that Mr. Hutton just set are the reasons the board hired him," she said. "As soon as we heard that, we knew we'd found our new superintendent — we all felt the same way."

Combest announces death of daughter

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest announced Friday that his daughter, Tonya Combest, had died July 8 from complications during surgery in Miami, Fla.

He and his wife have flown to Florida to be with their family. They have asked for friends and colleagues join them in prayer.

No details on funeral arrangements were available, but Combest's office said information will be provided once it's available.

Weevil mapping under way in High Plains zone

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Using state-of-the-art technology provided by Global Positioning Satellites, the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation has begun an extensive mapping process of all cotton fields in the Western High Plains Eradication Zone.

"The mapping phase provides us with the precision we need as we begin the eradication process," said Assistant Zone Manager Michael Hester.

"We use the same GPS satellites that the U.S. military employs to give us unparalleled accuracy that is so vital in the program," Hester stated.

"The other critical element is working with cotton growers to gather information relative to establishing communication lines identifying field locations, acreage and point of contacts. Grower participation, cooperation and understanding is vital to a successful eradication effort in the zone," Hester said.

"Precise mapping helps cotton growers by allowing very accurate applications of Malathion ULV, the only insecticide used by the foundation and the same insecticide that many communities use when spraying for pesky mosquitoes. The ULV stands for ultra low volume and it is applied at 12 ounces per acre," said Program Director Osama El-Lissy.

"After many years of research and development, the U.S.D.A. and various technical experts confirm that Malathion ULV is the most effective tool in eradicating the boll weevil, specifically a purified form called Fyfanon ULV," added El-Lissy.

"This is a growers program and it is led by growers. We look forward to doing the best possible job for our producers in the zone," El-Lissy commented.

Muleshoe family entertains teen-age guest from Spain

By RONN SMITH
Editor

One Muleshoe family has a new "son," and the new "mom" is already threatening not to let him return to Spain when his visit is scheduled to end.

But she has offered to send her own son to Spain next year to visit her new son's family.

If the whole thing sounds like a bad soap opera, the real-life situation isn't nearly so melodramatic.

Seventeen-year-old Gonzalo Puyol of Madrid is spending about a month as the houseguest of the Bruce Purdy family.

Cindy Purdy said Thursday that Puyol has integrated into her family so well that "we might just decide to keep him."

The same is apparently true for the community as a whole. Purdy said teen-age girls already come to her door asking, "Is Gonzalo here?"

But Puyol says he intends to live in Spain once he's through college. "It's a good place — Tyson will see that," he said, referring to the Purdy son's planned visit to Madrid. Puyol also plans to attend college in Spain and become "maybe a lawyer — I don't know."

As far as his reaction to Muleshoe and its people so far, he said he enjoyed the Fourth of July fireworks. The professional entertainers clearly didn't make him a fan of country-western music, but he said he did enjoy the performance of Subtle Differences, a band that includes Tyson Purdy.

Puyol said the music of Subtle Differences is more like what he's used to in Spain. Tyson Purdy described his band's music as "oldies," which caused his mother to roll her eyes and say "oldies that aren't really old at all."

"Well, It Just Must Be the Will of God"

Well, it is the will of God. That's all there is to it."

So said an anguished father in India who had just lost his young son in a cholera epidemic. So, unfortunately, says someone at almost every death, tragedy, or disaster the world has ever known. We say it because we don't know cholera germ culture over your little girl's mouth as she lay in that cot there on the veranda, what would you think about that?"

"My God," he said, "what would I think about that? Nobody would do such a damnable thing. If he attempted it and I caught him, I would kill him with as little compunction as I would a snake, and throw him over the veranda."

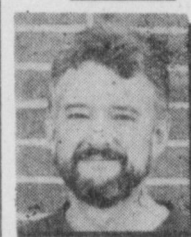

"But John," Weatherhead said quietly, "isn't that just what you have accused God of doing when you said it was his will? Call your little boy's death the result of mass ignorance, call it mass folly, call it mass sin, if you like, call it bad drains or communal carelessness, but don't call it the will of God."

In a very fine little book entitled The Will of God, Weatherhead went on to say, "Surely we cannot identify as the will of God something for which a man would be locked up in jail, or put in a criminal lunatic asylum."

But we do. All too often we do. Like insurance companies who label everything they can't control or don't understand an "act of God," we lay at the feet of the Author of life the blame for death and we attach to the Giver of all good gifts the responsibility for almost everything that goes very badly wrong. I know, because I do it, too.

It is a mistake that says more about me than I like to think.

what else to say. Better to keep our mouths shut. We say it because we feel that in some way everything that happens in a world created by an all-powerful God must be part of His will. Wrong. That was true in Paradise, but it has ceased to be true since sin and its consequences, everything from cockleburbs to mortality, entered Eden and spoiled Paradise.

The little boy had died. The father was trying to resign himself to life without his son. "It is just the will of God," he said again to a wise missionary named Leslie Weatherhead who knew him well enough to try to help him think about what he was saying:

"Supposing someone crept up the steps onto the veranda tonight, while you slept, and deliberately put a wad of cotton soaked in

Cowboy fashion's strictly in the eye of the beholder

I'm the kinda cowboy who gives Wranglers a bad name! It's not that I don't try on each pair before I buy. You have to! You know the old saying about bulls, "There's more variation within the same breed than there is between breeds." Same for jeans: "There's more variation within the same size than there is between sizes."

Maybe I'm just odd-shaped — hard to fit. They do make one style of Wranglers that have legs that fit tight around a shovel handle, which I appreciate. My calves are so puny I have to tamp dirt in my boot tops to hold 'em on.

But no matter how skinny they make the legs, the seat still bags. When I finally do get 'em on, I give the appearance of a swing set somebody tried to gift wrap.

I've gotten picky about shirts. Buttons, except on the collar, with flaps on the pocket. I kinda back myself into a corner with such outrageous preferences. I can walk into a western store with a shirt inventory large enough for the Chinese army and the only shirts with my requirements are size 18 1/2 x 32, or they are the spitting image of a Denny's restaurant uniform.

Style and good taste are not my primary considerations. It's been said that my fashion statement is sort of a cross between Porter Wagoner and Dennis Rodman.

I do manage to wear good boots, but I buy bargains for my work boots. I got a great deal on some steel-toed Red Wings, size 9, on sale for $55. They're tough; I been wearing 'em for two years. I'm tough, too. I normally wear a size 10.

comparison is not entirely fair, since Cochran County's income is enhanced by mineral wealth.)

Parmer County's sheriff pay is right in line with Lamb and Cochran counties, though — at $29,370. (Parmer County's population has increased from 9,863 in 1990 to an estimated 10,475 in 1997.)

While no general conclusion can be drawn from the figures cited, Bailey County's salaries do appear to be lower than standard.

County Judge Marilyn Cox stated during the last county commission meeting that Bailey County's employee pay is "among the lowest in the state of Texas."

Puyol added that music is strictly a spectator sport for him. "I like a lot of music — I have a lot of CDs, but I don't play," he said.

He was not completely unfamiliar with Muleshoe, since his older brother, Jaime, and older sister, Blanca, both visited here in the past.

He said people here are not very different from those in Spain — whether teen-agers or adults. "In England, the people are very different, but here more or less the same," he said.

Puyol said he plays soccer for El Prado, a 12-year school. When asked, "Do you win?" his response is "yes, yes" as if that would be a foregone conclusion.

Members of his newly adopted family, seated around the dining table, all smile and nod as if to say, "That's our Gonzalo."

Lamb County sheriff at $30,000 a year — a difference of only 15 percent in pay with more than a 200 percent population difference, which at first glance makes Bailey County seem generous.

But when the comparison turns to Cochran County, to the south, the picture changes completely.

Cochran County, whose population has declined from 4,377 in 1990 to 3,978 (estimated) in 1997, pays its sheriff $29,083 — barely less than the more populous Lamb County.

That translates to Cochran County paying its sheriff 12 percent more — even after Bailey County grants the $2,000 raise — although Cochran County's population is only slightly more than half as big as Bailey County's. (This

Restored tractor is Muleshoe man's treasure

By RONN SMITH
Editor

Don Phelps of Muleshoe is in love with his tractor.

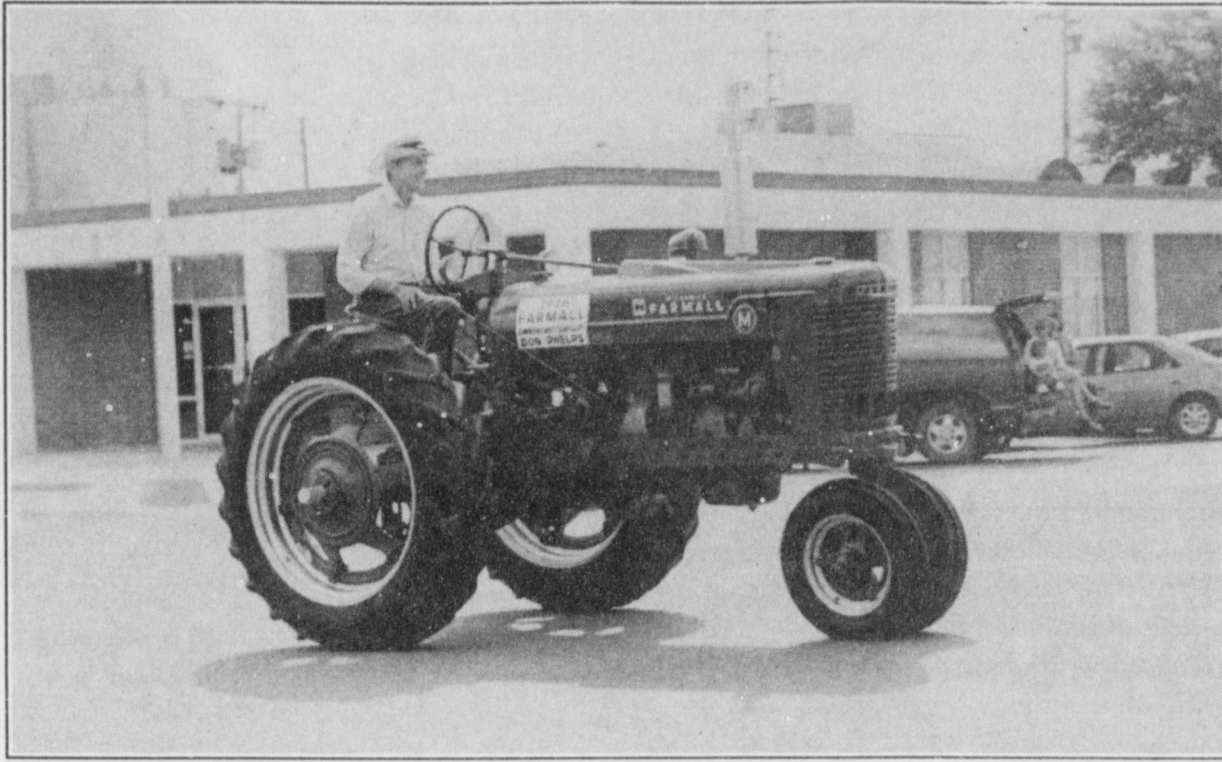

But it's not just any tractor — it's a 1946 Farmall M that Phelps restored after buying it "by the pound," as junk.

He bought it four years ago and drove it for the first time in last year's Fourth of July parade. Last weekend, he added a repeat performance in this year's parade.

Phelps said that when he bought the tractor, at Bula, the motor was locked down. "I used diesel oil and spark plug oil and it took me a year to get it where the motor would turn," he said.

The only part that isn't original, he said, is the propane system — he had to install a new one because parts were not available for the old Ensign propane system.

He estimates he spent about 100 hours working on the tractor to get it in running shape and all painted up like new. He even got the authentic decals to go on it, ordering them from Des Moines, Iowa.

For Phelps, driving the tractor is like reliving part of his youth. When he was growing up on a farm in southwestern Oklahoma, his dad made a good enough wheat crop to buy a 1942 M plus a planter and a tandem disc, all for $1,300, he said.

Phelps said he himself began driving tractors at the age of 9 (since he's 67 now, that would make 1941 his debut year on the tractor).

His love for all tractors is shared by his wife, Jo. And that's a good thing — he has now acquired two other old Farmalls, he said, and one of the deals included a 5-foot Allis Chalmers combine he hopes to restore to working order.

He did allow that when his wife saw his first restoration project on a trailer ready to head for its paint job, she said, "Why that's an old rust bucket." But when it came back home and he got it restored, her comment changed to, "Why that's pretty." The Phelps are members of the South Plains Antique Tractor Association.

Change granted in Shawnlee Perry case

The trial of the man accused of murdering 5-year-old Shawnlee Perry of Earth in 1992 will be held outside Lamb County.

Senior District Judge Jack Young agreed last week to a change of venue for the trial of Eddie Rowton, 46, a former neighbor of Shawnlee's family.

Rowton was accused of the slaying in April 1998 while he was serving a 35-year prison sentence in the rape and beating of a New Mexico woman in Bailey County.

As a neighbor of the Perrys, Rowton participated in the search for Shawnlee's body, which was found in a field three months later by a farmer.

Officials said the trial probably will be held in Odessa starting about mid-September to October. Rowton is scheduled to stand trial before that on a sexual assault charge alleging that on April 28 he forced another male inmate to perform a sex act on him.

The deadline for items to appear in Around Muleshoe is 5 p.m. Monday for Thursday's edition and 5 p.m. Thursday for Sunday's edition. Items may be brought to

Emu oil eases sunburn pain

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Ouch! Fun in the sun isn't always fun—especially if you forget to put on the sunscreen. Despite knowing the risks of sun exposure, many Americans avoid the necessary precautions to protect themselves from the sun's harmful rays. The result: an enjoyable day at the beach can turn into a painful memory. As we all know, the itching, redness and blistering associated with sunburns isn't soon forgotten.

If sunburn causes you distress this summer, there is relief. The best way to alleviate painful sunburn is to soak in a cool tub of water or place cold water-soaked towels or gauze on the affected areas. To help hydrate the skin, follow up the cold-water treatments with a light coating of emu oil. Emu oil, produced by the ostrich-like emu, has been known to reduce pain and blistering of burns with three minutes of application.

Emu oil can be found in health and natural food stores, via the Internet and by direct mail. For more information about emu oil, visit the American Emu Association's web site at www.aeu-emu.org or call 877-457-7972.

THE BATTLE FOR TITANIC

The world's most famous ship lies submerged two-and-a-half miles in the icy waters of the North Atlantic. For 73 years, it lay undisturbed, a grave-marker for the 1,500 lives lost and a time capsule of the treasures enclosed. Since September 1st, 1985, when the Titanic was located, a fierce struggle has raged in the U.S. courts over who owns the rights to the wreck and what should happen to it. The Battle for Titanic tells a story of greed, obsession, courtroom conflicts, and Cold War intrigue.

Titanic has been immortalized by Hollywood, celebrated on Broadway, and exploited by business. Since 1985, more than 5,000 artifacts have been removed from the wreck; their fate is a bitterly contentious issue. RMS Titanic Inc., the company that controls the wreck and has endured a costly decade of legal battles and controversy, stages exhibitions of some of these items. George Tulloch, the company's head, says "To recover, conserve and protect [the artifacts] in the courts is only a meaningful process if you are trying to share them with the public and the future." However, the exhibitions provide revenue for his company through the sale of items like an inflatable model of the ship — replete with an iceberg — t-shirts, and silk boxer shorts.

Many people decry this "debasement" of the ship's memory; some oppose the removal of any items from the wreck. Among those is Dr. Robert Ballard, the man who located Titanic in 1985. "This is like stripping the old lady of her jewelry in the grave," he says with regret, knowing that his discovery started the feeding frenzy. Ballard believes unequivocally that all items removed from the ship should be returned.

Ballard dedicated his life to finding the Titanic. Frustrated by the enormous costs of salvage operations, this naval reserve officer and friend of John Lehman, former Secretary of the Navy, took advantage of the political climate in the early 1980s and struck a deal with the U.S. Navy. America was fighting the Cold War then, building up and bolstering the reputation of its armed forces. Lehman explains in The Battle for Titanic why the U.S. Navy agreed to let Ballard use Navy vessels and equipment. Finding the Titanic — the "Mount Everest of shipwrecks," in Ballard's words — "would prove to the Russians, in a highly visible way, the superiority of American military technology."

The Battle for Titanic considers the many questions raging over the remains of the world's most famous maritime disaster. Is it too late to preserve the remaining treasures at the bottom of the Atlantic? Should they be salvaged? Should the excavated artifacts be returned? Do the relics of such a tragedy belong in a museum? Should Titanic be the object of commercial gain or is the ship too important to leave to the mercy of the marketplace? The controversy continues.

The Battle for Titanic will be broadcast Monday, July 12th at 10:00 p.m. on KENW-TV. It repeats Tuesday, July 20th at 12:00 midnight.
