Candidates filing for May elections

Several have filed for candidacy in the May 13 city and school district elections, but no candidates have stepped forward to serve on the Garza County Hospital District board of directors.

The filing deadline is Monday.

Contested races have developed in two of the three open positions on the Post City Council. Two candidates - Mo Herridge and incumbent Josh Whiteley - have filed for the Ward 3 council seat, while Rodney Tidwell and incumbent Harold Craig will vie for the Ward 5 position, according to a report Monday from City Hall. James Easterling has filed as a candidate for the Ward 4 seat he currently holds.

Three candidates for the Post Independent School District board of trustees had filed as of Monday. Mike Holly and incumbents Scott Creech and Alexa Collier have filed, according to reports. Three positions - those held by Creech, Collier and Milton Williams - will be filled in the election.

All three incumbents - J.W. Basinger, Joe Patterson and Tina Taylor - have filed for re-election to their posts on the Southland schools board of trustees as of Monday, according to a report from school officials.

No filings have been received for the three open positions on the Garza County Hospital District board of directors, hospital district administrator Shirley Taylor said Monday morning. Open posts include Precinct 1, currently held by Edna Owen; Precinct 2, held by Ray Bagby; and the at-large seat held by Fred Howell.

High School principal hired

A Sonora man was tapped to take over the position of Post High School principal Tuesday.

John D. Berry, who currently serves as principal of Sonora Middle School, earned approval from the Post Independent School District board of trustees to take over the high school spot, according to reports.

Berry brings 14 years of experience to the position.

The new principal will replace Johnny McGregor, who announced in December his plans to retire.

The new principal's contract is expected to begin July 1, according to earlier reports.

Post City Celebration lays out courthouse beautification

by Sheri Lewis

The Garza County courthouse could have a little more curb appeal next year if plans devised by the Post City Celebrations Inc. Project materialize.

Last week, Garza County commissioners gave the plans the go-ahead, but there's still much to do before the landscaping around the courthouse's front lawn is revitalized.

According to Thressa Harp, a member of the Post City Centennial Committee that operates under Post City Celebrations, the project may have a green light from the county, but funding has yet to be secured. The project will not require any input of tax dollars from the county.

"There is no funding yet," she said. "We hope to secure funding through a number of sources, mostly private."

Plans call for the renovation of the exterior east side of the courthouse to be updated, with newly planted evergreens, drip irrigation, landscape lighting, fresh concrete and park benches and areas filled with inscribed pavers.

The pavers portion of the project will serve as a fundraising effort for the Post Commerce & Tourism Bureau, Harp said. Pavers that were previously pulled from local streets will be cleaned up and inscribed - for a fee.

"They'll be sold to individuals in the City of Post and Garza County or to veterans," Harp said. "Then they'll be inscribed with the name or information requested and installed."

The pavers will be installed in an area to be marked: Citizens of Post and Garza County Who Made C.W. Post's Dream a Reality.

Although no funding has yet been secured. Harp said measurements pertaining to the project were taken last week to assist project coordinators in securing cost estimates.

Plans call for the project to be completed prior to the June 2007 centennial celebration.

"We'd like to have it in place to take advantage of a growing season, but there's a lot of work to be done," Harp said. "We're hoping that the really updated features will showcase the courthouse from the intersection of 84 and 380. We want people to be able to look down the street and want to go down there."

Wyvonne Kennedy will head up the pavers portion of the project. Harp said. The first pavers probably will be available at the Post Commerce & Tourism Bureau banquet on Saturday.

Bo Jackson will serve as project manager, handling design, estimates and construction. Assisting him will be Lee Norman.

Anyone interested in contributing to the courthouse beautification project should contact Linda Puckett at 495-2207 or Harp at 495-2467.

Well, here we are for one more week. I am fighting the urge to go outside and plant flowers! These past few days have been beautiful and I am ready to get out in the yard.

But--- my mother tells me that we are still going to have more cold weather, maybe even snow and I know she is probably right.

Jane's (my sis) plum trees are blooming and every single time they do that this early we have a hard freeze. So, don't put your winter clothes up yet.

THANKS

HAPPY LATE BIRTHDAY

I really goofed last week and left my precious granddaughters birthday out of my column. So even though it's late, happy birthday Kaylyn and we love you.

DOG STORY Dog Story A guy is driving around and he sees a sign in front of a house: "Talking Dog For Sale." He rings the bell and the owner tells him the dog is in the backyard. The guy goes into the backyard and sees a Labrador retriever sitting there. "You talk?" he asks. "Yep," the Lab replies. "So, what's your story?" The Lab looks up and says, "Well, I discovered that I could talk when I was pretty young. I wanted to help the government, so I told the CIA about my gift, and in no time at all they had me jetting from country to country, sitting in rooms with spies and world leaders, because no one figured a dog would be eavesdropping. I was one of their most valuable spies for eight years running." "But the jetting around really tired me out, and I knew I wasn't getting any younger so I decided to settle down. I signed up for a job at the airport to do some undercover security wandering near suspicious characters and listening in." "I uncovered some incredible dealings and was awarded a batch of medals. I got married, had a mess of puppies and now I'm just retired." The guy is amazed. He goes back in and asks the owner what he wants for the dog. "Ten dollars," the guy says. "Ten dollars!?! This dog is amazing. Why on earth are you selling him so cheap?" "Because he's a liar. He never did any of that stuff."

UNTIL NEXT WEEK Guess that is it for this week. God bless each of you and see you next week.

School buses are a common sight around the Post High School campus; however, the bus that sat outside the high school Monday was anything but ordinary.

The John Lennon Educational Tour Bus rolled into town after 18-year-old PHS senior Jonathan McGregor was recently named winner of an essay contest organized by the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. The John Lennon Educational Tour Bus Essay Contest asked students to write 200- to 250-word essays describing how music influences

McGregor's essay was tapped as the winning entry.

As a result, McGregor had the chance to spend the day on the bus. writing and recording an original song in the mobile recording studio housed within the vehicle. A team of on-bus studio engineers was at McGregor's disposal.

McGregor asked several of his classmates - Vincent Robles, Colt Mason and Joey Guerra - to assist him in his recording session. Band director Aaron Rathbun also took part in the process.

The group recorded a song written by McGregor and a music video. Copies of the CD and DVD were provided to the participating students and the school.

PHS students toured the bus, and each received a "goody bag" that featured two Maxell CDRs, a Maxell battery pack, one Disc Maker, a John Lennon Songwriting Contest newsletter and a copy of Guitar Player magazine.

The John Lennon Educational Tour Bus is a non-profit effort designed to encourage students to "play music, write songs, engineer recording sessions and produce music video projects using the latest audio, video and live sound equipment," according to the JLETB Web site.

In addition to spending time in the recording studio, McGregor also was awarded an iPod Shuffle, a jacket and a T-shirt and a bag of Maxell products. McGregor's fellow recording students also received Tshirts and Maxell bags.

In recognition of McGregor's win, Post High School received several prizes, including a Roland Cube-60 guitar amplifiers; Apple Logic Pro 7 software; Elixir guitar strings; Sibelius G7 music; and notation software.

USDA issues $63 million for ECP

Agriculture Secretary Mike Johanns announced today that USDA is making $63 million in Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) funds available to assist agricultural producers struck by hurricanes in the Gulf of Mexico region during the calendar year 2005.

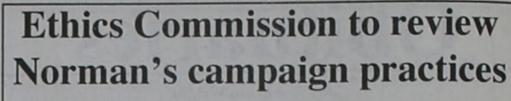

"USDA was on the ground providing food and housing assistance in the immediate aftermath and we remain committed to the recovery" Johanns said. "These funds are one more way we are reaching out to help Gulf Coast farmers rehabilitate operations damaged by last year's devastating hurricanes.

Producers in counties that were declared presidential or secretarial disaster areas due to hurricanes of 2005 are eligible.

Eligible agricultural producers may receive up to 100 percent cost-share to remove debris and restore fences and conservation structures.

This $63 million is the first allocation from $199.8 million available in ECP funds. Additional funds for oyster, nursery and poultry producers and forest landowners will be made available when new rules authorizing assistance are published in the Federal Register. USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) is developing these rules and plans to publish proposed rules for public comment in the near future.

For additional information and to apply for ECP assistance, eligible producers should visit their local FSA

Lee Norman, who captured the Republican Party nomination for the position of Garza County judge in Tuesday's primary election, is not expected to face an opponent in the November general election, but he will face a Texas Ethics Commission review of some of his campaign

In a letter dated Feb. 24, the state agency notified Norman by certified mail that a sworn complaint had been filed against him concerning several elements of his political campaign. The complaint was lodged by Phil Mathews, who also sought the Republican Party nomination for the county judge's post in Tuesday's primary election. Last week, Mathews received from the TEC a copy of its letter to

Mathews said Monday he did not file the complaint to color the election or its outcome; instead, he did so because Norman's Election Code violations were "numerous." "I wasn't doing it to (make him) look bad before the election," Mathews said. "I wasn't even sure we'd get an answer (from the TEC) before the election. I did it to get his attention. He's not above the law. The public needs to be aware.... I had given him a warning first on one of the violations and decided I was only going to be a nice guy once. He kind of thumbed his nose up at the law, and I wanted the Ethics Commission to get his attention. When contacted this week, Norman declined to comment on the

According to the letter addressed to Norman and copied to Mathews, the Texas Ethics Commission received the sworn complaint Feb. 16.

"The complaint alleges that you failed to include a political advertising disclosure statement on political advertising in violation of Section 255.001 of the Election Code and that you represented in a campaign communication that you held a public office that you did not hold at the time the representation was made in violation of Section 255.006 of the Election Code," the letter states. "The complaint also alleges that you failed to fully disclose campaign expenditures or contributions you made or received in December and January for advertising in a newspaper in violation of Section 254.031 of the Election Code."

The commission's receipt of a sworn complaint "sets in motion a process that may include a preliminary review as well as informal or formal hearings," according to the TEC Web site. "A sworn complaint may be resolved at several points in the process. The commission may ultimately resolve a sworn complaint by dismissal or imposition of a civil penalty."

On God's Word

By Timothy W. Burnett

Gentiles first receive the holy ghost...Acts 10:44-46

Looking at the scripture related receiving the holy ghost we now move to Acts 10-11. Up to this time, only people in the tribes of Israel received the holy ghost. Here is the first record of Gentiles doing the same. God's rightly divided word teaches us exactly what they did to receive the holy ghost. In this study it will be seen that the Gentiles did the exact same thing as the apostles did in Acts 2:4 and Acts 8:15-17.

To set the scene, Peter was staying with a man named Simon in the town of Joppa. At the same time a man named Cornelius from Caesarea was praying. Cornelius was a centurion, or a Roman captain over 100 soldiers. The word says he was a devout man who reverenced God with everybody in his home.

While in Joppa, Peter had a routine of meditating and praying on the roof of Simon's house. This time God gave him a vision of different kinds of animals gathered in a blanket. He was very hungry at the time. After noticing the vision, God said to him, "Rise, Peter kill and eat" (Acts 10:13). Peter told God that he would not eat, and that he had never eaten any thing that was common and unclean. God replied, "What God has cleansed, call not common." God was telling Peter something that was very different from what he understood his whole life. God repeated this three times. When God gets our attention about something three times, it is completely established.

Cornelius was praying when an angel from God came with orders to send for Peter. As a centurion he understood the importance of following orders, and he did so meekly. He sent his best soldiers who arrived to Simon's home, called for Peter and told his story. The next day Peter returned to Caesarea. When he arrived to Cornelius' house, everybody was ready to hear God's word. This is a great example of how we can approach God's word. Just completely focused, ready to listen and go back to study what we learned.

Peter and Cornelius shared their stories about how God talked to them. After that Peter said, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34). This was huge! What did he do next? He taught about Jesus Christ. How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with holy spirit and with powerful authority. He taught that Jesus did good by healing all that were oppressed of the devil. Peter went on to explain that he and his companions were witnesses to all the things Jesus did in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem. Next he taught that Jesus was crucified and on the third day and night God raised him up from the dead showing him openly to certain chosen people.

Next he said, "Öthrough his name whoever believes in him shall receive remission of sins" (Acts 10:43). Does this sound familiar? He said the same thing in Acts 2:38. It then says that while he spoke, "the holy ghost fell on all them which heard the word." Now we see in Acts 10:44 that the holy ghost "fell on" the gentiles too. It says everybody who came with Peter were astonished. Why were they so astonished? The answer is in verse 46, "For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God." To dispel any doubt, go to Acts 11:15 where Peter was telling his story to other believers. He said, "And as I began to speak, the holy ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning." At "the beginning" the apostles were filled with holy spirit unto remission of sins, and received the holy ghost when they began to speak in tongues (Acts 2:4 & 38).

How to create conflict...

by Walter E. Williams

High up on my list of annoyances are references to the United States as a democracy and the suggestion that Iraq should become a democracy. The word "democracy" appears in neither of our founding documents -- the Declaration of Independence nor the U.S. Constitution.

Our nation's founders had disdain for democracy and majority rule. James Madison, in Federalist Paper No. 10, said in a pure democracy, "there is nothing to check the inducement to sacrifice the weaker party or the obnoxious individual." During the 1787 Constitutional Convention, Edmund Randolph said that "in tracing these evils to their origin every man had found it in the turbulence and follies of democracy."

John Adams said, "Remember, democracy never lasts long. It soon wastes, exhausts, and murders itself. There was never a democracy yet that did not commit suicide." Chief Justice John Marshall added, "Between a balanced republic and a democracy, the difference is like that between order and chaos." The founders knew that a democracy would lead to the same kind of tyranny suffered under King George III. Their vision for us was a republic.

But let's cut to Iraq and President Bush's call for it to become a democracy. I can't think of a worse place to have a democracy -- majority rule. Iraq needs a republic like that envisioned by our founders -- decentralized and limited government power. In a republican form of government, there is rule of law. All citizens, including government officials, are accountable to the same laws. Government intervenes in civil society to protect its citizens against force and fraud but does not intervene in the cases of peaceable, voluntary exchange.

Democracy, what the Bush administration calls for, is different. In a democracy, the majority rules either directly or through its elected representatives. The law is whatever the government determines it to be. Laws aren't necessarily based upon reason but power. In other words, democracy is just another form of tyranny -- tyranny of the majority.

In Iraq, Arabs are about 75 percent of the population, Kurds about 20 percent and Turkomen and Assyrian the balance. Religiously, Shia are about 60 percent of the population, Sunni 35 percent with Christian and other religions making up the balance. If a majority-rule democracy emerges, given the longstanding hate and distrust among ethnic/religious groups, it's a recipe for conflict. The reason is quite simple. Majority rule is a zero-sum game with winners and losers, with winners having the power to impose their wills on the minority. Conflict emerges when the minority resists.

The ideal political model for Iraq is Switzerland's cantonal system. Historically, Switzerland, unlike most European countries, was made up of several different major ethnic groups -- Germans, French, Italians and Rhaeto-Romansch. Over the centuries, conflicts have arisen between these groups, who differ in language, religion (Catholic and Protestant) and culture. The resolution to the conflict was to allow the warring groups to govern themselves.

Switzerland has 26 cantons. The cantons are divided into about 3,000 communes. Switzerland's federal government controls only those interests common to all cantons -- national defense, foreign policy, railways and the like. All other matters are controlled by the individual cantons and communes. The Swiss cantonal system enables people of different ethnicity, language, culture and religion to live at peace with one another. As such, Switzerland's political system is well suited to an ethnically and religiously divided country such as

By the way, for President Bush and others who insist on calling our country a democracy, should we change our pledge of allegiance to say "to the democracy, for which it stands," and should we rename "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" to "The Battle Hymn of the Democracy"?

Reporting on the Ports

by Bill O'Reilly

Confused yet? Republicans like Bill Frist and Dennis Hastert say no way a company owned by the United Arab Emirates should take over administrative duties at six American ports from a British corporation. And Democrats like Hillary Clinton and Barbara Boxer agree: No Arabs in charge of anything at U.S. ports!

Also, for the first time since the Paleolithic period, The New York Post and The New York Times concur: No Arabs in charge of anything at U.S. ports!

But wait a minute. The Wall Street Journal and The Washington Post also agree: Let the UAE do the job; and those papers are about as similar editorially as Rush Limbaugh and Al Jazeera.

So what's going on here?

First, the United Arab Emirates is, along with Jordan and Kuwait, America's strongest Middle East ally in the war on terror. The UAE allows the U.S. military to base on its soil and run combat operations into Iraq and Afghanistan. The Emirates also allows the Germans to train Iraqi police candidates on UAE land.

In addition, the UAE cooperates with the CIA and actually captured Al Qaeda big shot Abdul Raheem Al-Nashiri, who masterminded the attack on the USS Cole, and turned him over to the U.S.A. The Emirates has become a huge help in the war on terror, according to both the Pentagon and the State Department.

The downside is that the UAE is a conservative Muslim nation that does not recognize Israel and has supported fascists like the Taliban in the past. Throughout the country, as in all Arab nations, there are jihadists who would kill Americans if they could.

But the key question in this controversy is simple: What is more dangerous for America: to spit in the eye of an Arab ally, or to allow that ally to work in some of America's ports?

I believe Osama bin Laden would love for the U.S.A. to humiliate the UAE by firing their company without cause. If Washington says to the Arab world, "Hey, it's fine for a British company to work in our ports, but you guys have to hit the road," how do you think that's going to play on Al Jazeera?

Talk about racial profiling?

So, the USA is caught between a mosque and a hard place. What the Bush administration must do is honor the contract, but install strict oversight and accountability, as it should do on every foreign company doing business in the USA in this age of terror.

Finally, Congress should pass legislation that would, in the future, ban all foreign companies from controlling operations at U.S. ports of entry, so this kind of mess doesn't happen again. As Al Gore might say, we need to be the controlling authority.

But for now, the cold truth is that the U.S.A. will not win the war on terror without the help of nations like the United Arab Emirates. We simply cannot afford to fire that nation. If we lose these people, we'll lose the war.

Illegal surveillance: A real security threat

by James Bovard

Americans seem to have forgotten why the Founding Fathers prohibited government from spying on them. Public opinion polls show that a rising percentage of Americans approve of the warrantless National Security Agency wiretaps of Americans that Bush ordered.

But such blind faith in government simply ignores the lessons of U.S. history. When the feds have unleashed themselves in the past, many innocent Americans' lives were devastated.

During the 1960s and 1970s, the FBI carried out thousands of Counter Intelligence Program (COINTELPRO) operations, often combining illegal surveillance with efforts to subvert any opposition to the government. Covert FBI efforts sought to incite street warfare between violent groups, wreck marriages, portray innocent people as government informants, sic the IRS on citizens, and cripple or destroy left-wing, black, communist, or other organizations.

The FBI inflicted its wrath on speakers, teachers, and writers. A 1976 Senate report noted hundreds of COINTELPRO operations aimed "to get university and high-school teachers fired; to prevent targets from speaking on campus; to stop chapters of target groups from being formed; to prevent the distribution of books, newspapers, or periodicals; to disrupt news conferences; to disrupt peaceful demonstrations."

The FBI smeared anyone they disapproved of, from Martin Luther King on down. In 1968 the FBI ordered field offices to gather information illustrating the "scurrilous and depraved nature of many of the characters, activities, habits, and living conditions representative of New Left adherents." FBI headquarters commanded all FBI agents, "Every avenue of possible embarrassment must be vigorously and enthusiastically explored."

Many Americans have shrugged off the recent controversy over illegal wiretaps because they assume that the government would never be concerned with people like themselves. But the FBI continually expanded its enemies list. Nixon aide Tom Charles Huston testified to Congress about COINTELPRO's tendency "to move from the kid with a bomb to the kid with a picket sign, and from the kid with the picket sign to the kid with the bumper sticker of the opposing candidate. And you just keep going down the line."

Boundless federal spying on Americans fundamentally changes the relation of the government to the people. The FBI's efforts struck fear not only in average Americans but also in the members of Congress, who were supposed to oversee and check the FBI's uses of its power. The House majority leader, Hale Boggs, explained in 1971, "Freedom of speech, freedom of thought, freedom of action for men in public life can be compromised quite as effectively by the fear of surveillance as by the fact of surveillance."

Other federal agencies also trampled citizens' privacy, rights, and lives during the late 1960s and early 1970s. The IRS used COINTELPRO leads to launch audits against thousands of suspected political enemies of the Nixon administration. The U.S. Army set up its own surveillance program, creating files on 100,000 Americans and targeting domestic organizations such as the Young Americans for Freedom, the John Birch Society, and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Many of these operations -- like the current NSA wiretapping -- scorned the Bill of Rights. The Fourth Amendment protects Americans against "unreasonable searches and seizures" and requires that government agents have a warrant based on probable cause issued by a magistrate "particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized" before intruding. The purpose of the Fourth Amendment was to prevent government officials from having "dictatorial power over the streets" and elsewhere -- to restrain the arbitrary power of officials vested with the coercive power of the state.

Federal Judge Gerhard Gesell, in a 1974 ruling on illegal Nixon administration searches, observed, "The American Revolution was sparked in part by the complaints of the colonists against the issuance of writs of assistance, pursuant to which the king's revenue officers conducted unrestricted, indiscriminate searches of persons and homes to uncover contraband." Unfortunately, the revolutionary spirit now animating Washington is fighting to replace the right to privacy with the right to intrude.

If Americans permit their rulers to intercept their phone calls and email messages, then is there any abuse that people will not accept from Washington?

Does the fact that someone works for the government automatically entitled him to know what his neighbors are saying and thinking? If Americans permit the feds to exempt themselves from the law, then the only freedom left in this country will be freedom to obey and applaud politicians, no matter what they say or do.

Illegal wiretaps will pave the way for other government crimes. The more information government gathers on people, the more power it will have over them. The more expansive and secretive government intrusions become, the easier it becomes for government to rule by fear.

James Bovard is the author of the recently released Attention Deficit Democracy (www.jimbovard.com) and eight other books and serves as policy advisor at The Future of Freedom Foundation (www.fff.org).

Trust the President?

by Jacob G. Hornberger

It shouldn't surprise anyone that there are Americans who say, "Trust the president" with respect to spying on Americans, monitoring their conduct, and recording their telephone conversations without a judicially issued warrant. After all, there were those who said, "Trust the president," when the president and his associates were scaring American grown-ups half to death with the imminent prospect of Saddam Hussein coming to the United States and exploding "mushroom clouds" over American cities. Throughout history, there have been segments of the populace in every society who, mostly out of fear, have said, "Trust our ruler. He will take care of us."

But as the Framers understood, no one can be trusted with omnipotent power. No one. Not even "good" people.

Consider President Bush's promise that he'll employ his power to spy on Americans and record their telephone conversations only against genuine "terrorists" and not against ordinary, law-abiding Americans. One big problem with the president's promise is that who exactly a "terrorist" is constitutes a very subjective determination. And given the paranoia and fear that inevitably afflict government officials in times of "crisis," the scale defining "terrorism" inevitably slides toward people who simply oppose the policies of the government, especially as the fruits of such policies turn rotten and bitter.

Ask yourself: Why do government officials monitor anti-war protests and demonstrations? How likely is it that a person who is planning a terrorist attack is going to be speaking at or demonstrating at a public anti-war rally, where he knows that cops, secret agents, and cameras are all over the place?

The problem is that, as their policies begin to fail, the increasingly paranoid and fearful government officials come to believe that their "enemies" include those who are exposing the lies and false realities generated by the government. In the mind of the government official, telling the truth about government policy decreases morale and empowers the enemy. Thus, people who oppose the government's policies and tell the truth about such policies increasingly become part of the "problem." They become a "threat," one that can more easily be monitored and targeted than genuine terrorists can be.

Remember what the president said early on: In the war on terrorism, you're either with us or against us. At some point, federal officials ask themselves the troubling question, "Where do those who expose and oppose federal policies fall within that equation?" And inevitably they arrive at the wrong answer to that question.

Thus, the most likely reason that the president isn't going to the secret, rubberstamp FISA court to secure his warrants is that he and his minions know that they're targeting Américans for whom not even the rubberstampers on the FISA court would approve a warrant. That is, they're spying on and monitoring innocent Americans who aren't "terrorists" but who oppose the president's war on Iraq or his "war on terrorism" After all, since the secret FISA court rubberstamps virtually all warrant requests anyway, why else would the president not go through the motions of securing the rubberstamp?

Finally, it's important to keep in mind that all this spying and other violations of civil liberties are just part and parcel of the U.S. Empire and its interventionist policies. That is, the policies, including the president's invasion and war of aggression against Iraq, generate the anger and hatred that produce the terrorist counterstrikes, which then provide the president with the excuse to claim and exercise omnipotent power to fight the terrorists.

That's why the ultimate solution to all this is not simply to force the president to obey the law with respect to search warrants but instead to abandon the imperial, militarist, interventionist, warlike course that has guided U.S. foreign policy for decades. As James Madison pointed out and as Americans are discovering, war is the greatest threat to our liberty because it encompasses all the other threats, including out-of-control government spending, violations of privacy and civil liberties, overgrown bureaucracies, and sometimes even conscription.

Coach Wright also commented that he felt like the girls who came before this group, Jessica and Zane Mason, Gentry Creech, Christin Collier, and Kayla Dunn, deserved a lot of the credit for how well this group of girls performed. "They paved the way for girls powerlifting at Post" stated Coach Wright. Israel Beggs and Blake Nichols will compete at Regional this Saturday in Brownfield. Coach Wright is expecting great things from them as well.

Lady Lopes hammer Abernathy 23-3

In a blistering show of power hitting and pitching, the Post Lady Lopes overwhelmed Abernathy last week by a score of 23-3, invoking the 10 run rule in the 5th inning.

"We had great pitching," coach Whitfil emhasized. The team collected 18 hits with Alana Zubia hammering a home run and four RBIs. Steffi Norman also recorded a home run. "It was just a great hitting and team work effort," the coach added.

A tighter game against Denver City set the Lady Lopes back with a 5-7 loss. "We lost our focus in the 7th inniing," the coach reports, "But we out-played them most of the game." Allison Blevins got a home run and 2 RBIs with Alana Zubia credited with one RBI. Ashley Powell also had one RBI.

"Errors got the best of us and let them back into the game," the coach concluded.

Lady Lope 2nd basewoman Steffi Norman (right) catches a pop fly ball against Denver City last Saturday in Post. Also in the play is Ashley Powell (left).

Lake Alan Henry Special

Exclusively in The Post Dispatch

Even you're not a fisherman, you can still enjoy nature's beauty at Lake Alan Henry.

Catchin' the big one!

by Capt'n Mike

Somebody is going to catch a big fish soon I hope. But it will probably be after the big rain that I hope we get. Please everyone practice catch and release and watch out for fires it is so dry, it will go up in a second. The lake is a couple of feet low but in great shape for spring.

Post and Garza County will defiantly be seeing a large amount of new faces in town this year. This promises to be the best fishing year yet.

Fishing Report

Sunday night just got back from the lake, most were singing the blues but a couple of fellows who fish the lake all the time said that it was a pretty good weekend with the big fish in the 5# range.

They also said that a 10#er had been caught on top water. Lots of bugs flying around the lake. On Feb.28 I killed a mosquito on my arm, that is very unusual for West Texas this time of year.

Top water fishing seems to follow the bugs. The crappie seem to be improving. There was several folks on the crappie house Sunday night. That's a good sign, more folks mean more fish being caught.

If I were fishing these staging bass, I still think the white spinner big gold blade is good, but I might start throwing some top water and maybe a buzz bait and let it run under the water some.

Be lazy about it the fish still are.

Capt'n Mike's points of interest on Lake Alan Henry

To the right of the boat ramp up the first draw to the left, there is a live oak tree that three of us can barely get our hands around, what a tree. The biggest I have seen in Garza County.

Cheaper By The Dozen

Cheaper By The Dozen is one of the best family films I have seen in a long time. Moving can be hard but this group of a dozen kids makes it the hardest! Steve Martin is absolutely hilarious and made me laugh throughout the whole movie! At first the kids find out they're moving and take a vote thinking that they can talk their parents out of moving but end up moving anyway because their dad got a way better coaching job! They move into a huge house and go to big schools, but they really don't fit in. In my opinion I would recommend going to rent if not buy this movie, I really enjoyed it and I think you will too!

Living on the Edge of the Caprock by Greg Jones, County Extension Agent

Garden Checklist for March, 2006

- Check with your local county agent for the average last killing freeze date for your area. Killing freezes can and do occur after this date, but it will be a good indication.

- Prepare beds for planting warm-season flowers and vegetables.

- For early color in the landscape, try some of the following annuals as transplants: ageratums, cockscombs, coreopsis, cosmos, cleomes, marigolds, nasturtiums, petunias, phlox, portulacas, salvias, sweet alyssums, sunflowers, and zinnias.

- Start hanging baskets of petunias and other annuals for another dimension in landscape color.

- Select and order caladium tubers as well as geranium and coleus plants for late April and early May planting. Do not plant caladiums until soil temperatures reach 70 degrees F.

- As camellia and azalea plants finish blooming, fertilize them with three pounds of azalea-camellia fertilizer per 100 square feet of bed area. Check mulch on azalea and camellia beds and add where needed.

- Beware of close-out sales on bare-root trees and shrubs. The chance of survival is rather low on bare-root plants this late in the season. Your best bet at this time of year is to depend on container-grown or balled-and-burlapped plants for landscape use.

- In North Texas there is still time to plant seeds of your favorite annuals in flats to be transplanted out-of-doors when danger of frost is past.
- Fertilize roses every 4 to 6 weeks from now until September.

weeks from now until September. The traditional heavy pruning practices are appropriate for Hybrid Teas, but most antique and shrub roses require less severe methods. Weak or dead canes should be removed or shortened to healthy tissue any time during the year.

Earth Kind uses researchproven techniques to provide maximum gardening and landscape performance while preserving and protecting the environment. For more information on Earth Kind Landscape Management Practices see our web site: http://earthkind. tamu.edu

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank everyone for the flowers, cards, gifts, and phone calls during my stay in the hospital. Also, a very special thanks to Brenna, Samantha, Tamara, and Jacki for being such good friends.

Lori Jones

I would like to begin by telling you how much our family appreciates all your thoughts and prayers for us during our loss of our mom. Our mother, Mary Alice Olive, would not of wanted us to throw such a fuss about her but we are all grateful for her and what she left behind in each of us. She was one of a kind and that may be why so many of you loved her as we loved her. It's going to be hard to fill her shoes because we all know she never wore any shoes. She was a natural, big-hearted and beautiful woman and that is why we loved her so much. She was able to speak what was in her heart but also trying to spare one's feelings. She was very strong until the very last minute of her life. She will be remembered daily and loved always. We are going to miss our momma. But each time we look at each other we will see a piece of our mom that she left behind in all that knew and loved her. Again, we thank all of you for everything you have done to help our family with our loss, from all the beautiful cards and flowers to the meals that you prepared and the prayers and thoughts for us. We hope you will remember our mom like we will remember her. We love you momma.
