Water level decline at White River Lake prompts city to set voluntary restrictions

by Sheri Lewis

In an effort to slow water consumption, Post City Council members enacted a series of voluntary water restriction measures Aug. 1 following reports that the water level at White River Lake, the city's primary source for water, continues to drop.

Suggested actions include the use of a bucket when washing home exteriors; use of a cutoff valve and bucket when washing vehicles; avoiding unattended water application to lawns and landscaping; avoid allowing sprinkler runoff onto non-vegetated areas (streets, sidewalks, parking lots, for example); avoid draining and filling swimming pools; and avoid the flushing of water systems except to remove contaminated water.

The measures also suggest that city water customers with addresses ending in even numbers water only on even-numbered days of the month; those whose addresses end in odd numbers should water on odd-numbered days.

"The water level in White River (Lake) is getting quite low," Mayor Bill Pool said. "It's true that we're getting good water from Slaton, but even (Lake) Meredith looks like it's very low. I hope that we do not have to restrict the water from there, but we need to reserve all the water we can."

Pool described the current lack of moisture as a "severe drought" and noted that even during the drought conditions in the 1950s, he doesn't remember the enactment of water restrictions.

"I know this is the first time I can remember since we got White River Lake that we've had to do this," he added.

"It's pretty darn critical," said city manager Ric Walton.

Post is one of four South

Plains communities that relies on the White River Municipal Water District for the bulk of its water. Post pulls about 38 percent of the water supplied by the WRMWD. But according to Walton, WRMWD general manager Mickey Rogers recently indicated the water district likely will go to mandatory rationing sometime in the next three weeks as the lake level continues to drop.

"Whatever direction White River goes, we have to follow suit," Walton said.

The "Mild Condition Measures," representing Stage One of the municipality's Drought Contingency Plan, all are voluntary and are "intended to conserve all water use," according to documentation.

Walton said that if drought conditions persist, the next step would be to make the voluntary steps mandatory.

"That's where it gets pretty critical," he said.

In an effort to further curtail the city's water use, Walton suggested that watering at the cemetery could be cut down. Council members agreed, especially after hearing the city used 809,000 gallons of water in the cemetery from mid-May to mid-June and another 429,000 gallons from mid-June to mid-July - a significant amount, particularly when compared to the 190,000 gallons required to fill the city pool in the spring.

"I just think we have to do something," said council member Kenda Bartlett, who said she supports a cutback in watering at the cemetery.

Additionally, Walton said watering in the grassy islands along Main Street also will be substantially curtailed.

"We've got to lead by example," he said.

Watering in the city park is not expected to be affected by the cutbacks, the city manager added. Water applied to landscaping in the city park is pulled out of the park lake and not from the water supply.

In other business, council members:

- Received an emergency management update from coordinator Mike Isbell, who has completed several recent trainings and will attend an upcoming training in Austin. Isbell reported that the local Emergency Operations Center will participate in a regional exercise sometime in September; that the center is approaching intermediate-level status; that an application has been made for Texas Parks & Wildlife grant funds to assist the local fire department; and that additional hydrogen sulfide monitors are needed for use within

BEFORE I FORGET AGAIN.....

I want to wish a big belated happy birthday to Ms. Fisher Wynne who turned a young 98 on July 27. I hope you had a wonderful day Ms. Wynne and that you have many more ahead.

SYMPHIES

To Alton and Eunice Pope, I wanted you to know you are in my thoughts and prayers. Also to the Bill Stone and Buddy Hall families on the loss of their loved one and to Belinda Brown and Stephen Fluitt on the death of their mom.

GET WELL WISHES

Wanted to send get-well wishes to Eric Cravy who is in Covenant Hospital in Lubbock. From what I understand, Eric is having a pretty rough time and just wanted to let he and Jada know that they are in my thoughts and prayers.

WONDERFUL NEWS FOR OUR FAMILY

Our daughter and son-in-law, Stan and Megan Everitt of San Angelo, received wonderful news last week and I would love to share with all of you. They have been waiting with much anticipation for the call to fly to China to pick up their daughter and it finally came last week. They will go the end of September and be united with Miss Alexandria Mei Everitt and bring her home. Needless to say we are all so excited and cannot wait to get our hands on her. I will keep you all posted!!

JUST TOO CUTE NOT TO SHARE

Well, I finally made my mind up - Picked a black and lacy one - I told the lady, "Bag it up," And figured I was done.

But then she asked me for the size I didn't hesitate I knew that measurement by heart, "A six-and-seven-eighths."

"Six and seven eighths you say? That really isn't right." "Oh, yes ma'am! I'm real positive - I measured them last night!"

I thought that she'd go into shock, Musta took her by surprise When I told her that my wife's bust Was the same as my hat size.

"That's what I used to measure with, I figured it was fair, But if I'm wrong, I'm sorry ma'am." This drew another stare.

By now a crowd had gathered And they all was crackin' up When the lady asked to see my hat, To measure for the cup.

When she finally had it figured, I gave the gal her pay. Then I turned to leave the store, Tipped my hat and said, "Good day."

My wife had heard the story 'fore I ever made it home. She'd talked to fifteen women Who called her on the phone.

She was still a-laughin' But by then I didn't care. Now she don't ask and I don't shop For women's underwear. ~ Author Unknown

TILL NEXT WEEK

Hope you all have a great week end. May God bless each of you. Remember to pray for rain. Smile, God loves you!!

Beware of venomous snakes

by Nancy McDonald
Garza County Extension Agent-Family & Consumer Sciences

The most common and widespread venomous snake in Texas is the Western diamondback rattlesnake.

It has brown, diamond-shaped markings along the middle of the back and alternating black and white rings on the tail. They average 3 1/2 to 4-1/2 feet in length, and can reach seven feet. Rattlesnakes are usually identified by their warning rattle - a hiss or a buzz - made by the tip of their tails.

Understanding what snakes look for and their behavior will help you know when to be wary and what to do if you encounter one.

Snakes like tall grass so keep the lawn around your home trimmed low. Remove any brush, wood, rock or debris piles from around the residence - they make great hiding places for snakes and their prey.

Rattlesnakes might be waiting there for a rodent, and the warmth of the hand may cause the snake to strike reflexively. Always wear shoes while outside and never put your hands where you cannot see them.

One should also be careful when stepping over fallen logs and rock outcroppings and take care along creek banks and underbrush.

The best first aid for a poisonous snake bite is to seek medical care immediately. You should also keep the victim calm, warm, and reassured. Do not drink alcohol or use ice, cold packs, or Freon spray to treat the snake bit or cut the wound, as was once recommended.

Snakes do not prey on humans and they will not chase you, in fact they usually retreat or escape if given the opportunity. The danger comes when they are either surprised or cornered. Do not play around with a dead snake; they have been known to bite and envenomate. Care should be taken at night, when snakes are more active, and the chance of stepping on a snake is greater. Fortunately, snakes try to avoid people.

Property Tax Rates in GARZA COUNTY

This notice concerns 2006 property tax rates for GARZA COUNTY

It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

	General Fund	Farm to Market/ Flood Control Fund	GARZA CO HEALTHCARE DISTRICT
Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$ 2,135,019	$	$ 502,202
Last year's debt taxes	$ 0	$	$ 0
Last year's total taxes	$ 2,135,019	$	$ 502,202
Last year's tax base	$ 479,778,780	$	$ 476,382,810
Last year's total tax rate	$.4450/$100	$ /$100	$.10542 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 2,133,293	$	$ 501,938
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 599,976,474	$	$ 596,312,300
= This year's effective tax rate for each fund	$.35556 /$100	$ /$100	$.08417 /$100
Total effective tax rate	$.35556 /$100		$.08417

(Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings.)

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate, and/or enhanced indigent health care expenditures)	$ 2,133,293	$	$ 501,938
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 599,976,474	$	$ 596,312,300
= This year's effective rate	$.35556 /$100	$ /$100	$.08417 /$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$.38400 /$100	$ /$100	$.09090 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$.00733 /$100	$ /$100	$ 0 /$100
= This year's rollback rate for each fund	$.39133 /$100	$ /$100	$ /$100
This year's total rollback rate	$.39133 /$100		$.09090

Statement of Increase/Decrease

If GARZA COUNTY adopts a 2006 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of $.35556 per $100 of value, taxes would increase compared to 2005 taxes by $ 1360.00

Schedule A - Unencumbered Fund Balances

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Taxed for non-taxable items?

Everyone knows we are all getting ripped off at the gas pump. But did you ever realize that there are certain food items that are non-taxable?

My source tells me that the following food items are not taxable: all chips and dips, salty snacks, jerky, Little Debbie cakes, juice such as Minute Maid, milk, break, all medication, bottled water, canned food, baking goods, cold sandwiches, Lunchables, bacon and even eggs.

Makes you wonder how many of these things we have been paying taxes on. Surely our friendly merchants would not do this to us.

On God's Word

By Timothy W. Burnett

The Church is made up of saints...Part 3

In our study of the Church, we now look at its general make up.

The Church of God is made up of an overall body of people who were purchased by the blood of Jesus Christ (Acts 20:28). The word Church is used throughout the Epistles and Revelations. The first three chapters of Revelations addresses the church as it will exist during the period of time starting after Christ returns for the born again saints, and ending on the Great and Notable Day of the Lord (see also Acts 2:20). After Christ returns for the born again saints (1Thessalonians 4:13-18) it will no longer be possible for saints to be born again, but it will continue to be possible to become saints.

During the administration of the grace of God the church is made up of people who have been filled with holy spirit, as well as those saints who are saved. This distinction is revealed in 1Corinthians 1:2, "Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of the Lord, both theirs and ours." The church is basically made up of them who are called saints as well as all the saints who call upon the name of the Lord.

To be sanctified basically means to be filled with holy spirit, being made righteous. According to Romans 10:9-10, these are they who have believed with the heart that God raised Jesus from the dead. 1Corinthians 1:2 reveals a distinction between the saints and they who call upon the name of the Lord.

The distinction is seen in the word "with." This word referred to being in close proximity with others. There are two categories of people who are in close proximity with each other. The saints are in close proximity with the saints who call upon the name of the Lord. In other words, not all saints will choose to call upon the name of the Lord. But there should still be a close bond between all the saints and they who call upon the name of the Lord.

According to Acts 2:21 and Romans 10:13 calling upon the name of the Lord results in salvation. Romans 10:14 shows that it can not occur unless people have first believed unto being filled with holy spirit. As it is written, "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed." Acts 2:4 reveals the first example of people being filled with holy spirit and spiritually calling upon the name of the Lord unto salvation from having to suffer through the great tribulation period and ultimately having to face God's final judgment day.

The saints who call upon the name of the Lord will be gathered together in the clouds and abide forever with our Lord Jesus Christ in heaven. More study is required on this, but the saints who have not called upon the name of the Lord during the age of the grace of God, and are alive during Christ's first return (1Thess. 4:13-18), will be plunged into the great tribulation period become part of the churches addressed in the book of Revelations chapters 1-3.

Jesus Christ did the will of his Father and allowed his blood to be shed so that anybody who believes can become a member of the true church of God, and even save themselves by spiritually calling upon the name of the Lord. Praise God in heaven His love toward the world.

It's like a checking account

by Wes Burnett

At the July 31, 2006 meeting of the Garza County Commissioners' Court, Judge Giles W. Dalby quoted from 1987 Texas Attorney General Opinion, claiming that the opinion justified county payments from a budget line item that did not have enough funds to cover the expenses.

Judge Dalby said that the county was "correct" in making the payments. He said that the opinion enforces the notion that the county has to follow federal wage laws.

It is true that the county must abide by the wage laws, but those laws do not apply in the matter of payments in excess of budgeted line items. In that issue, the AG Opinion (JM-680) specifically (and underlined in the opinion) specifies that the county must adhere strictly to the budget as approved, or as amended.

In the case of payments for overtime in the Sheriff's Department, the county treasurer violated state law, which forbids payment for any line item that is over budget. Payments must be made for overtime, but they can not be made until the commissioners' court approves shifting of money from other funds to cover the over-budget line item.

In the Garza County case, the overtime line item was short beginning in March, and it was over budget until July 31, when the court approved transferring funds from other Sheriff's Department sources.

The AG opinion emphasizes: "... and no expenditure of the funds of the county shall thereafter be made except in strict compliance with the budget as adopted by the court." (P. 3410).

Citing the law (Article 689a-11), the opinion repeats the requirement "that county salary payments comply with the county budget" and cites a 1984 AG opinion (JM-192).

Further, the opinion cited by Judge Dalby addresses the issue of overtime (P. 3411): "... if a budget line item exists for the payment of overtime compensation, the county commissioners court may nevertheless direct that the overtime compensation be paid out of the regular salary line item. Article 689a-11 requires that counties comply with their budgets."

"If the overtime compensation line item lacks the funds for the overtime compensation legally due under the FLSA (federal wage law), the compensation could be paid from the line item for salaries.

"As indicated, if an unforeseeable emergency caused the need for overtime work and therefore overtime compensation, an emergency amendment to the budget would be warranted," the opinion continues (P. 3411).

In the Garza County case, the budget line item did not have the necessary funds for payment as required by the law, compounded by the fact that the fund transfers were retroactive, in direct violation of the law.

The issue is really quite simple ... when a budget line item has exceeded its budgeted amount, the treasurer is obligated by law to withhold payments from that line item until the commissioners court amends the budget.

It's not unlike a business which maintains more than one checking account, and making payments from an account that has no funds is considered a violation of the law ... it's called writing "hot checks." It makes no difference if the business has plenty of funds in other accounts, until those funds are transferred to the shorted account, no payments can be made from an account which is considered "over drawn."

When it comes to disbursing the people's money, elected and appointed government officials must adhere strictly to the law. Otherwise, there can be no security for those who fund government.

The minimum wage system

by Walter E. Williams

There are decent people, without a selfish hidden agenda, who support increases in minimum wages as a means to help low-skilled workers, and there are other decent people, with the identical goal, who strongly oppose increases in the minimum wage. So the question is: How can people who share the same goals, helping low-skilled workers, come up with polar opposite means that produce polar opposite results?

It all depends on one's initial premise. It would do us some good to make our initial premises explicit and check them against reality. One initial premise is that an employer needs a certain number of workers to accomplish a given task. That being the case, increasing the minimum wage simply means that all low-skilled workers will enjoy a higher salary and employers will have lower profits and/or customers will pay higher prices. With this vision of how the world operates, the logic of increasing the minimum wage as a means of helping low-skilled workers is impeccable.

Another initial premise is that there is no fixed number of workers necessary to accomplish a given task. Employers might be able to substitute capital for labor such as using dishwashing machines instead of dishwashers, automatic elevators instead of elevator operators, self-service gasoline stations rather than full-service gasoline stations, online reservations rather than reservation clerks or relocating their operation overseas. People who share this initial premise can still have concern for the welfare of low-skilled workers but argue that increasing minimum wages will cause unemployment for some of them and deny job opportunities for others. Given their initial premise, the logic of their argument is also impeccable.

Thus, the question to decide is which initial premise best describes how the world operates. Is it the one that says there's a fixed number of workers necessary to perform a given task, or the one that says employers have flexibility in the mix of workers and capital they use and where in the world they can choose to manufacture? I think the latter description more properly describes how the world operates.

Place yourself in the position of an employer and ask: If a worker costs me, say, $7 in wages, plus mandated fringes such as Social Security, unemployment compensation, sick and vacation leave, making the true hourly cost of hiring a worker $9 an hour, does it pay me to hire a worker who's so unfortunate to have skills that enable him to produce only $5 or $6 worth of value per hour? Most employers would conclude that doing so would be a losing economic proposition.

There are a couple other villains in the piece that force employers to respond to increases in wages that exceed a worker's productivity. If he did hire such workers, he would earn lower profits. Soon, investors would abandon him and put their money where returns are higher.

There's another villain -- the customer. If the employer retained workers whose wages exceeded their productivity, to cover his costs he would have to charge you and me higher product or service prices. I don't know about you, but I prefer lower prices to higher prices, and I'd switch my patronage to those firms who adjusted to the higher labor cost.

Congress can easily mandate higher wages, but they cannot mandate higher worker productivity or that employers hire a particular worker in the first place. Those of us who truly care about the welfare of low-skilled workers should focus our energies on helping them to become more productive, and a good start would be to do something about the rotten education that many receive.

Mr Bush ... are you there?

by Sheldon Richman

If President Bush is trying to convince us that he hasn't the slightest understanding of the Middle East, then he's doing an outstanding job. Every statement he makes — and this goes for his secretary of State, Condoleezza Rice, too — is soaked in ignorance. Any American who is paying attention should be shuddering to think that this man is running U.S. foreign policy.

Let's ignore Rice's statement that the destruction of Lebanon represents the "birth pangs of a new Middle East." To equate Israel's reckless disregard for Arab life, as in Qana, with a mother's giving birth is obscene.

President Bush, in his usual arrogant way, shows that he knows nothing of what he speaks. He still opposes an immediate ceasefire, explaining on Fox News, "See, stopping for the sake of stopping [!], you know, is — is — is — can be OK, except it won't address the root cause of the problem." Which is? "And the root cause of the problem is armed militias firing rockets from a sovereign nation into another sovereign nation."

Is he aware that before 1982 Hezbollah did not exist? Does he have a clue what brought it into existence? He might be inclined to think that it arose to grab Israeli soldiers across the border. But in fact it arose after Israel invaded Lebanon — despite a year of quiet on that border — in order to wipe out Palestinian refugees displaced by Israel's earlier program to "redeem" Arab-owed land. Israel remained in southern Lebanon for 18 years. It even set up its own Christian Lebanese militia to do some of the dirty work. Israeli forces killed tens of thousands of Lebanese during the siege of Beirut and the occupation. The Israeli-sponsored militia slaughtered hundreds of Palestinians in refugee camps like cattle. Israel had its way with Lebanon, and no one could do anything about it.

Hezbollah organized to resist that illegal occupation. This is legitimate under international law, not to mention moral law. Not every Hezbollah action has been defensible, but most people would say the same about Israel. We should not lose sight of the context or the fact that the U.S. government assisted Israel in virtually every respect, especially by the provision of money and weapons.

President Bush says Hezbollah must be disarmed. Why? So Israel can continue to treat southern Lebanon like a door mat? Much is made of Israel's departure from Lebanon in 2000, as though this were some magnanimous gesture. It was driven out by Hezbollah, which not only defended the Lebanese, but provided a variety of services to the suffering Shi'ites — schools, medical clinics, homes, and more. When Lebanon had elections, Hezbollah members were elected to Parliament. Israel withdrew, but it has not respected the border. As documented by the UN, its warplanes violated Lebanese airspace daily. Here's what Israeli analyst Ran HaCohen writes: "Since Israel withdrew from Lebanon six years ago, then, it hasn't given its northern neighbor even a single day of quiet.... And just as Israelis wonder about the purpose of Hezbollah's missile arsenal, so could Lebanon, and so should we all, wonder what was the purpose of the thousands of Israeli overflights and sonic booms in Lebanon's sky: was it to gather some information not available to Israel's satellites anyway, or, much more likely, just to terrorize Lebanon's population by showing them that we violate their sovereignty 'whenever we deem it necessary'?"

In this light Hezbollah's seizing of Israeli soldiers looks less like unprovoked aggression, doesn't it? It didn't fire rockets at Israel until the IDF started pounding the very core of Lebanese society.

But Hezbollah gets arms from Iran, President Bush protests. Can he really say this with a straight face? Does Israel not get arms — the most sophisticated known — from a foreign power? Who speeded up shipment of precision bombs to facilitate the current demolition of Lebanese civil society? Hello? Mr. Bush, are you there?

CITY OF POST

Water Restriction Measures:

EFFECTIVE WEDNESDAY August 2, 2006,
UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE:

The Mild Condition Measures set forth herein have been implemented by the City Manager under direction of the City Council with the occurrences of trigger conditions set forth in the City's Drought Contingency Plan. In addition, occurrences of trigger conditions established by any of the City's wholesale water suppliers will result in implementation of corresponding conservation measures by the City of Post.

Stage One: Mild Condition Measures

The listed actions are voluntary on users and are intended to conserve all water use.

1. Publicize a voluntary restriction of non-essential water use as set forth herein. Non-essential water uses shall include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following:
 - a. Washing of windows, siding, eaves and roof with a hose, without the use of a bucket.
 - b. Washing of vehicles without cutoff valve and bucket.
 - c. Unattended sprinkling of grass, gardens and landscape shrubs.
 - d. Allowing water to runoff vegetated areas onto streets, sidewalks, parking lots, etc.
 - e. Draining and filling swimming pools.
 - f. Flushing of water systems, except to remove contaminated water.

2. Publicize a schedule for voluntary outdoor use of water for lawn, garden and landscape irrigation as follows:
 - a. Customers with addresses ending in an even number (2,4,6,8,0) may water on even numbered days of the month.
 - b. Customers with addresses ending in an odd number (1,3,5,7,9) may use water on odd numbered days of the month.
 - c. Individual with parcels of property with either no address or with two addresses shall notify the City, in writing, whether the property will be watered on odd or even numbered days.

3. The City of Post will notify commercial/industrial users and major water users of the situation. The necessity for initiation of strict restriction methods will be explained.

Water district outlines conservation measures

With water supplies across the South Plains dwindling, officials with the Garza County Underground and Fresh Water Conservation District have provided a few ideas to help irrigators be conservative with water when irrigating crops.

- The following suggestions have been offered:
- Drip irrigation is more efficient than other systems. Its advantages include use of less energy for pumping; field operations can continue; high levels of management can be achieved by supplying plants with precise amounts of water; fertilizer can literally be spoon-fed to plants through drip systems; labor costs are usually less than with conventional row watering systems. Disadvantages include high initial investment (although as field size increases, costs per acre are usually somewhat less); management requirements are high; problems sometimes develop with rodents gnawing on drip tapes.
 - Pivot irrigation is more efficient than row watering and only slightly less efficient than drip irrigation when the Lepa System is used. Fertilizer also can be applied to the crop through a pivot system.
 - Furrow irrigation is less efficient than drip irrigation or pivot irrigation. As much as 70 percent of water applied by furrow irrigation may not be utilized because of seepage and evaporation losses. Installation of a gated pipe system can decrease the amount of water used to irrigate a field by 50 percent. Installation of surge valve system can gain an additional 20 percent in water savings over gated pipe alone.

Cotton hits six week high

Contrary to weakness seen in key outside commodity markets, cotton futures on the New York Board of Trade finished at six-week highs on Thursday as speculative and fund buying was spurred by technicals. Earlier in the week, seasonally slow activity and a lack of news kept some market participants on the sidelines as many still are waiting for the next supply/demand report from USDA to provide a clearer market direction.

USDA's crop report showed an average of 34 percent of the crop in very poor to poor condition versus last week's 32 percent and last year's average of 11 percent. An average of 39 percent of the crop is in good to excellent condition compared to last week's 38 percent and last year's 61 percent.

Meanwhile, USDA reported net export sales of U.S. cotton totaled 50,800 bales of old crop in the week ended July 27, an 18 percent increase from the previous week but 51 percent less than the four-week average.

Major purchases by Mexico, China, Japan, and Guatemala were partially offset by cancellations from other countries.

Net sales of 63,000 bales of new crop for delivery in 2006-07 were mainly for Mexico and Indonesia.

Export shipments during the week reached a marketing year high at 598,800 bales, up 29 percent from the previous week and 44 percent from the four-week average.

Primary destinations included China, Mexico, Turkey, and Indonesia. Spot cotton sales increased this week as online trading by producers in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas in the week ended August 3 totaled 2,998 bales compared to the previous week when 1,045 bales were traded. Average prices received by producers in the most recent week ranged from 43.60 to 48.68 cents per pound compared to 49.34 to 51.45 cents per pound the previous week.

assessments for the first time this season.

In the meantime, some analysts have been wondering when the market might start considering the wilting U.S. crop as a friendly fundamental pricing factor.

"One look at USDA's most recent crop condition report shows that if the Cotton Belt were to somehow receive hurricane-type precipitation, given the current drought conditions in most areas, the rain would be a welcomed and yield-improving event," a trader said.

Keeping Summer's Bounty Safe to Eat

Fresh melons and berries fill the aisles of grocery stores and markets. Roadside produce stands full of home grown fruits and vegetables are seen along the highway. All of these are signs that summer is here and so is a bounty of fresh produce.

Summer's harvest of fresh fruits and vegetables is an important part of a healthy diet. Just remember to handle fresh produce safely to prevent foodborne illness.

To help consumers keep fruits and vegetables safe to eat, the Partnership for Food Safety Education (www.fightbac.org) gives six recommendations for safe handling of fresh produce:

Check: Before purchasing, make sure the produce is not bruised, cut, or damaged. If purchasing items that are pre-cut, such as melons, or packaged, such as salads, buy only the items that have been kept refrigerated.

Clean: Hands should be washed in warm, soapy water for at least 20 seconds before and after handling fresh produce. Make sure cutting boards, counter tops, peelers and knives are also clean before using them.

Fresh produce should be rinsed under running tap water before you eat it. That's also true for fruits and vegetables that have rinds or skins that will not be eaten. If bacteria contaminate the outside of a melon for example, when you slice into it you have the potential of bringing that contamination into the fruit.

Separate: In the grocery cart, keep fresh fruits and vegetables away from such items as cleaners, detergents, and raw meat, poultry, and fish. At home, that advice also holds true during storage in the refrigerator and during preparation: Keep fresh produce away from raw meat, poultry and fish. Do not use the same cutting board for produce and meats unless it is cleaned with hot, soapy water before and after food preparation.

Cook: If fresh produce has been in contact with raw meat, poultry, fish, or their juices, throw it away or cook it thoroughly.

Chill: To prevent bacterial growth, store all cut, peeled, or cooked produce in the refrigerator within two hours.

Throw away: Fresh fruits and vegetables that have not been refrigerated within two hours of cutting, peeling, or cooking should be thrown away. Remove and throw away bruised or damaged portions of fresh produce before cooking or eating it raw. Any fruit or vegetable that will not be cooked and that has been contaminated by raw meat, poultry, fish, or their juices should also be thrown away. If in doubt about the safety of a fruit or vegetable, throw it out! For more information on safe handling of fresh produce, contact me at (806) 495-4400 or you may come by the Texas Cooperative Extension office 215 West Main Street in Post.
