Darrell Nowell Receives 'Golden Trowel Award'

One District Contested In School Election

As of the March 17 filing deadline, four candidates had applied for one of the three positions on the Muleshoe ISD Board of Trustees to be filled in the May 1 election. Cindy Purdy, incumbent, filed for the District 2 Trustee position. Frank Saldana, incumbent, filed for the District 3 Trustee position. The only contested race will be in District 5 where Sam Harlan, incumbent, and Lupe Olivarez will both be seeking the position. A drawing will be held in the school superintendent's office on Tuesday, March 23 at 8:30 a.m. to determine the position in which the names will appear on the ballot.

Early voting for the May 1 Trustee Election will be held in the School Administration Building, 514 West Avenue G. Dates for early voting will be April 12 through April 27. Ballots by mail may be requested by writing to Jean Richardson, Early Voting clerk, at the above address. Only those registered voters living in districts 2, 3, or 5 may vote on the candidates running for each of those districts. If you are unsure of the district in which you live, you may call the school administration office at 272-3389 or go by the superintendent's office and review the district maps on display.

coach Johnson. "There were several PR's (personal records) this meet which shows improvement for the kids. When the weather blew in Friday it looked as if we were not going to run on Saturday, but after we got there it seemed to appear to be a normal day for track (cold and windy).

"We started off the day with field events. There were some performances turned in that started off the day in great shape. David Olivarez Pole Vaulted 9'6" for a 5th place. This was great for David for two reasons, one, because he got off to a shaky start and two, it was his first track meet of the year.

"The Long Jump and Triple Jump were big boosters because we placed all three people in each of these jumps. In the long jump, Joe Reyes won (this was Joes first meet also) with a jump of 19' 3/4", and placed 2nd in the Triple Jump with 40' 1". Jesus Flores finished 3rd in the long jump with a jump of 18' 1 3/4", and 3rd in the Triple Jump with a jump of 38' 4 1/2".

"Jake Adair got 5th in the high jump with a jump of 5'4", and 4th in the Long Jump. Daniel Garbarino jumped 5' 10" and placed 5th in the high jump, and 38' 2" in the Triple jump to place 4th. Edward Rodriguez also high jumps but did not place.

"Chris Edwards had a great day in both the shot put and discus by finishing 4th in shot put with a throw of 39' 4", and 2nd in the discus by throwing 127' 3 1/2". Chad Johnson threw the discus 123' 1 1/2", and received 3rd. Johnny Gonzales threw both the shot and discus and had a throw of in the shot and placed 5th, and threw in the discus but did not place. David Serrano threw the shot put 35' 1" which was his personal best of the year.

"The running events started at 1:00 with the 3200 meter run. Russell Reyes finished 2nd with a time of 11:18.77 while Solame Cisneros placed 3rd with a time of 11:43.56, and Charles Acosta finished 7th overall for the Mules.

"The sprint relay placed 3rd with a time of 47.45. The four who ran on that were Joe Reyes, Jesus Flores, Anthony Rodriguez, and Jake Adair. The 1600 meter relay was run by Joe Reyes, Daniel Garbarino, Anthony Rodriguez, and Edward Rodriguez and they placed 3rd with a time of 3:58.

"In the 800 meter run, Rusty Black was our only entry and was a great surprise, by finishing 3rd and running a time of 2:18.60. The reason it was a pleasure to watch him was because he only started working last Wednesday (3 days before the meet) and held a runner off from Denver City to hold that 3rd place finish. The 1600 was ran by Russell Reyes who placed 2nd with a time of 5:14.46, Solame Cisneros finished 3rd with a time of 5:23.91, and Charles Acosta placed 7th.

"In the 110 high hurdles all three Muleshoe hurdlers placed in the top six. Daniel Garbarino finished 2nd with a time of 17.64, Josh Slayden finished 3rd in a time of 18.85, Jake Adair finished 4th with a time of 19.04. This was all three of their best times of the year. Daniel also placed 2nd in the 300 intermediate hurdles in a time of 44.14 and was

Pesticide Collection Program Offers Farmers Help

Farmers and ranchers in the Texas South Plains will have a solution March 22 to their problem of how to safely, legally and without penalty dispose of unusable and unwanted agricultural pesticides.

March 22 is the date of this area's Waste Pesticide Collection Program, the last of three being conducted across the state in March, explained Hale County Extension Agent Bob Benson. The collection is being conducted by the Texas Water Commission, Texas Department of Agriculture and Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"There will be no charge and no questions asked for pesticides and certain other chemicals turned in at the Ollie Liner Center," Benson said. The center is on Business Highway 27 at 20th Street on the south side of the city.

Chemicals will be accepted from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. Clean, properly rinsed metal and plastic pesticide containers also will be accepted.

Pesticides that will be accepted are insecticides, fungicides, rodenticides, nematocides, bactericides, growth regulators, harvest-aid chemicals, seed treatments, livestock pesticides and other miscellaneous pesticides.

"All private applicators in these counties should take advantage of this opportunity to dispose of these unwanted chemicals at absolutely no expense."

New laws and regulations sharply limit the options many producers have for disposing of unwanted chemicals and used containers, Dr. Zerle Carpenter, director of the Extension Service, said. "These collection days provide an opportunity for producers to catch up with these new requirements,

Kindergarten Student Or Retiree---Texas Colleges Welcome You

A Dispatch From The Education Frontier

by Jack McGuire

Texas colleges and universities, which traditionally have made their resources available to those wanting to continue their education, now are giving new meaning to the term "lifetime learning".

While more and more high school graduates push up enrollments, colleges are also adding to their campus populations in ways never thought of a generation ago.

Special incentives to come to college are being offered to prospective students from ages 6 to 60 and beyond. For example, at the University of Texas at El Paso, any resident over age 55 now can enroll at bargain rates and not worry about the pressures of grades and tests, and can also cut classes without penalty.

At the UT Pan American, students in grades 6 through 12 are welcome to that school's special College for Kids. And at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, Robert Dennis, 74, has ditched his business suit for tennis shoes, jeans and a T-shirt with a good reason. He's a student at Tech's 2 year old Seniors' Academy, a program aimed at getting those approaching Social Security Age and older to return to college. For many, it's their first formal education experience beyond high school.

Education from the cradle to the grave is in vogue across Texas today as never before. While schools like UT Austin and Texas A&M have offered extension courses for years, the goal these days at almost all universities and community colleges is to get all ages back on campus and into special or regular classes.

While many are non-credit courses offered for fun as well as learning, others place the student on a degree path. Still others are job-related.

This latter category is a growing educational need. According to a National University Continuing Education report, more than two million middle management, professional and technical positions have been eliminated in the last dozen years. As a consequence, average weekly wages have dropped 20 percent below the 1973 level.

To reverse this trend, both employers and workers have turned to education for help.

Providing customized, even on-site, employee education is a major goal of UT Arlington. It offers more than 300 courses, including more than 90 devoted to computer training. In that area alone, at least 9,000 workers have enrolled to master everything from PCs to intricate computer systems.

Certification courses for legal assistants, drug and alcohol counseling and other special fields are becoming increasingly popular also.

The Center for Lifelong Learning at UT El Paso enrolls more than 250 students in classes studying subjects such as computers, astronomy, literature, music and calligraphy, plus a score of others. Two of the most popular subjects are comparative religion and the history of El Paso.

Older students who failed to complete their college work or who never went beyond high school need not fear trying again. Schools vie with one another in finding ways to make returning to class a worry free and even exhilarating experience.

Texas Tech's Senior Academy makes hitting the books a breeze for aging scholars. No previous experience or entrance exams are required. Individual counseling and tutoring is free. Even the classrooms are close together so the oldsters won't have to run to get from one class to another. If they are pursuing a degree and complete the requirements, they are handed a diploma at commencement like any other graduating senior.

And how do the elder scholars feel about it?

Genevieve Smead, an 82 year old retired nurse, is the oldest student among Tech seniors. Getting her college degree has been a life-long ambition. After her husband's death in 1984, she waited 18 months and then enrolled at Tech. She says her campus experience has been more than education.

"Heading back to school makes a person's life longer. It keeps you thinking, alert, and physically fit."

The students at UT Pan American's College for Kids are just as enthusiastic. Although many may never come back for a degree, they thrill at being at an institution of higher learning while in a secondary school.

At Pan American, any student from grades 6 through 12 can take up to four courses in each of two semesters this summer. They'll have more than 50 classes to choose from, including math, the sciences, music, drama, jewelry-making and more. If they wish have special interests, they can study communication skills, learn the fine art of baby sitting and how to manage their own finances.

"This gives students something constructive to do instead of becoming couch potatoes or roaming the streets and getting in trouble," says Dr. Kathryn Lang, director of continuing education.

So who knows? One day in the future it could be that every Texan will have attended some college somewhere in the state for sometime, even if they never graduate.

Mapping Of Human Genes Could Revolutionize Medicine

Physicians soon may be able to customize treatment of disease on the location, function, and make-up of a patient's genes, according to an article about an international research project published in the March issue of Texas Medicine.

The $3 billion, 15 year Human Genome Project will provide a master proactive instead of reactive, Dr. M.M. Haq, adjunct assistant professor at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, writes.

Texas medicine is the official news magazine of the Texas Medical Association.

"The enormous flow of information from the project could usher in the golden age of molecular medicine," Dr. Haq writes. "The project promises to be an astonishing adventure and a priceless endeavor."

The genome project, proposed in 1988, was developed by a team of university-based scientists during a 14-month study. With an October 1990 start date, the group recommended a program that would aim first at creating genetic and physical maps of the human genome.

Dr. Haq believes there are mixed blessings connected with the project. He speculates genetic engineering might lead to psychological trauma, social stigma, financial loss, and job discrimination. He suggests another problem might be malpractice suits for a wrongful birth brought by parents or individuals born with serious defects.

"Despite additional burdens and potential pitfalls brought by genetic discoveries, their promise outweighs any concern that may arouse in physicians, their patients, and society," the author concludes.

Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of nearly 32,000 physician and medical student members. It is located in Austin and has 118 component county medical societies around the state. The Association represents 82 percent of the doctors of medicine licensed and residing in Texas and 96 percent of the state's allopathic medical students. TMA's key objective is to improve the health of Texans.

Jeff Rabon, NRA Lobbyist:

"We think education is the answer, not criminalization and punishment of parents," speaking in opposition to bill which would punish parents for crimes their children committed with parents' weapons.

State Board Of Education

By: Carolyn Crawford, Chairman & Will Davis, Vice Chairman

One short-sighted proposal Texas lawmakers are considering is seriously threatening the safety of the state's Permanent School Fund. If implemented, this proposal will jeopardize the state's only stable funding source for public education, and result in value lost to the Fund of $1.7 billion by the year 2002.

Although not a household name to most Texans, the Permanent School Fund has saved Texas property owners billions of dollars in taxes that they otherwise would have had to pay to support the state's public education system. The Fund was established with a $2 million appropriation in 1854 by the Texas Constitution and, as a result of the State Board of Education's prudent management and investment policies, is now valued at more than $11 billion.

The Fund provides income to all Texas school districts each year, with the remainder of the state's share of public education costs paid from general revenue sources. During the ten-year span from 1981 to 1991, the Permanent School Fund contributed a total of $5.1 billion to the public schools.

During the 1991-92 fiscal year alone, income generated from Permanent School Fund investments totaled $739 million, and contributed $232.79 for each child attending the public schools. This amounts to 11.1 percent of the state's total appropriation for public education. It also represents revenue that otherwise would have to be collected from local taxpayers.

Current proposals before the Texas Legislature would require the State Board of Education, which is charged by the Texas Constitution with the investment and management of the Fund, to increase the income of the Fund by $50 million over normal income production during the 1994-95 biennium.

Increasing income now, in the current environment of declining interest rates, would require a conversion of some of the Fund's corporate stock investments into bonds, such that the future growth prospects and inflation protection presently structured in the Fund by these stocks would be severely handicapped.

If this proposal is approved, the combined projected income and value that will be lost by the Fund will be approximately $1.7 billion by 2002.

The State Board of Education's investment policy for the Permanent School Fund is a balanced approach of obtaining the greatest amount of current income consistent with safety of principal, and to protect the Fund against the adverse effects of inflation by buying blue-chip corporate stocks which emphasize growth of future earnings and dividends.

This policy is intended to enable the principal of the Fund to grow so that it can provide enhanced income for future generations of Texas school children. The per-student amount contributed by the Fund has steadily increased while incorporating the growth in student enrollment. For example, in 1990, the Fund provided $219.33 per student. In 1992, the Fund provided $232.79 for each of our 3.4 million students.

Some argue that the current income of the Fund could be increased if the Fund held more bonds than it currently holds. But to do so would handicap the growth of the Fund and reduce future anticipated revenue for public education.

The Board's policy of balancing the need for current income with long-term growth has proven effective. Studies have repeatedly shown that the Permanent School Fund is a top performing fund compared to other large public endowment funds.

Requiring the fund to increase the income provided to schools during the next biennium would effectively handicap the Board's balanced investment policy for the Fund. Such action is not prudent and would prevent the Fund from achieving the goals and objectives that have worked so well in the past. The proposal would sacrifice the long-term growth of the Fund in order to realize immediate higher income.

If the Board had not established and held to its policies ten years ago, the income of the Fund would contribute much less to the support of schools than it does currently. Does it make sense for Texas to spend in the short term what it will have to pay back many times over in the long run? Most rational taxpayers would not consider that to be a prudent policy.

Long-term growth of the Permanent School Fund is vital to financing a high quality education system for the future. We urge every Texas taxpayer to protect the legacy of the Fund.

Let your legislators know that you want to preserve the integrity of the Fund and the State Board of Education's stewardship of it.

The state should not sell out for the short term what will in the long run be the benefit of every Texas citizen--a dependable source of long-term growth and income from the Permanent School Fund.

New Drug For Genetic Disease

A new drug to treat a rare genetic disorder is being used at several U.S. medical centers to treat Gaucher's disease.

"Before the introduction of ceredase, bone-marrow transplants were the standard treatment," said Dr. John Belmont, a molecular geneticist at Baylor College of Medicine at Houston. "But with transplants there is an increased risk for complications. Ceredase is a genetic medicine success story."

Gaucher's disease causes enlargement of the spleen, blood abnormalities and easily broken bones. The disease, common among Jews of Eastern European descent, can only be acquired if both parents carry the defective gene.

The disease is caused by a lack in the blood of the enzyme glucocerebrosidase.

Pain Relief For MS Victims

Normal pain killers do not help with the nerve pain associated with multiple sclerosis (MS), but a drug commonly prescribed for depression may bring relief.

Dr. Loren Rolak and other researchers at Baylor College of Medicine at Houston are investigating the effectiveness of amitriptyline and fluoxetine (sold as Prozac) for treating MS pain. The antidepressants raise the body's level of serotonin, a chemical that helps control nerve pain.

"About 30 percent of MS patients suffer severe pain," Rolak said. "The nerves that carry pain are damaged and become extremely sensitive."

Serotonin helps control pain by shutting off the nerves carrying the pain, he said.

Tuck And Patti At The Lubbock Memorial Civic Center

Tuck and Patti, Windham Hill's top selling jazz act, will perform at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Theatre on Friday, April 2, at 8:00 p.m. This program is in conjunction with the Lubbock Arts Festival and University Center Programs at Texas Tech University. Tickets are priced at $10.00 for Texas Tech students and $15.00 for all others.

When Tuck plays his guitar he's her band-the drums, bass and castanets-yet he plays alone and never switches instruments. When Patti sings, her melodies can speak with a quiet eloquence or get so funky they virtually shimmy to the groove. Tuck and Patti waited until the music industry was about to choke on its own synthesized, mechanized aesthetic, then came out swinging. This stunning guitar/voice duo who had put in years on the steakhouse circuit dousing catchy tunes with a sophisticated jazz feel were rewarded with awestruck audiences, a record deal, countless TV appearances and a Bammie awards for best jazz album.

Their honors and success aside, Tuck and Patti make their biggest statement through an unlikely process that honors music above all else and brings joyful improvisation into the mainstream.

Tickets are available at both the UC Ticket Booth and Select-a-Seat outlets. For information, call the UC Ticket Booth at 742-3610.

Men - Listen Up! Little Things Carry Big Impact

Most men tend to think big! Give him a mountain to climb, a river to cross, a fight to endure or a boulder to move, he'll do it! If his wife is offended he'll become a brick wall in her defense and honor. If his child is harmed or threatened he's transformed into a ferocious animal!

But, in relating to a woman, it's hard for us men to understand that they like some little thoughtful things more than the big. It's even seen in the different shopping styles. Men will rush in, go directly to what they want, buy it and leave. Women wander in, stroll around, look at and pick up to examine anything that catches their eye and stay a long time.

Men-I think it's like this-we try to express our feelings by doing something big. I think we get more mileage out of the little things though. It seems to help by doing little things like:

- leaving little notes around from time to time
- buying a small gift without an occasion (even a card will do)
- making a phone call during the day just to say "hi"
- holding her without sexual advances
- doing a task that she normally does
- when she asks for help, doing it gladly
- recognizing and acknowledging her hard work
- common courtesies or manners (opening doors, helping her with her coat, let her be seated first, respect, etc.)

Think about it - it works! They will feel good! We like it when small things come our way, too. When someone speaks, smiles, gives us a firm handshake, offers help, etc.

I experienced that the other day with our Sheriff's Department. They didn't move mountains, swim rivers or fight anybody for me. They tried to assist me and a friend in a little matter. They were courteous on the phone and even drove by to check on me. It sure felt good! Thanks, I won't forget it.

The classes will meet 8 a.m.-5 p.m. daily in the SPC Petroleum/Law Enforcement Technology Building, room 115. Cost is $24 a person.

Registration deadline is noon April 2.

The course is designed to help officers deal with problems encountered in combatting child abuse and mistreatment by parents and other adult members of society, explained George Lawless, coordinator and an associate professor at SPC's law enforcement program. "Officers will learn common characteristics of abusers and investigative strategies for child abuse cases, and they'll study all laws related to child abuse and mistreatment of children and determine responsibility to the law," he added.

The course is one of the recommended courses required by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education for completion of 40 hours of training every two years. The course also meets intermediate certificate specifications.

Formal registration will be completed during the first class session. Either payment in full or a purchase order number is required. A minimum 10-12 persons must enroll.

To register or obtain more information, contact the SPC Office of Continuing Education beginning March 22 at 894-9611, ext. 291.

Ladies Golf Association

Ladies Golf Association met in their regular monthly meeting at the Muleshoe Country Club on Wednesday, March 17, 1993. Sherry Shipman planned the menu of spaghetti, garlic bread, green salad, cherry peppers, carrot sticks, and strawberry shortcake. The tables were nicely decorated for St. Patrick's Day by Raygena Trieder with green tissue paper in glasses and shades of green streamers running down the tables. Thanks Raygena for making things so festive for us!

In the absence of President Darlene Henry, the meeting was called to order by Vice-President Jeanine Gunstream. Secretary Sherry Shipman read the minutes of the previous meeting and they were approved as read. Treasurer Charlotte Fields then presented the treasury report.

Birthday girls for the month of March are Lynn Campbell and Claudine Elliott. We hope that you both have a great birthday celebration.

There was no old business presented. The new business brought before the club was the suggestion that we begin to watch for sales on items such as soft drinks, and weiners in preparation of the upcoming tournament concessions. Volunteers were requested for chairpersons for the No. 3 tee box concession for the men's tournament on May 1 and 2. Carolean Hamilton and Sheila Stevenson graciously consented to take this task. Motion was also made that the ladies association purchased a watering hose to be used on the No. 3 tee box so that the flowers that beautify that area may be watered more easily.

High Plains Chairman, Analita Haley presented golf balls to Helen Templeton, 2 balls; Janetta Precure, 1 ball; and Claudine Elliott, 2 balls.

Darlene Henry's name was drawn in the monthly drawing; however she was not there to make her claim.

Members present for the meeting were Anita Algood, Linda Elder, Claudine Elliott, Melzine Elliott, Charlotte Fields, Jeanine Gunstream, Analita Haley, Carolean Hamilton, Jerry Mayo, Argilee Millen, Jeanetta Precure, Evelyn Riley, Sherry Shipman, Marlene St.Clair, Marilyn Young, Leslie Denny, Pam Atwood, Starla Ellis, Kay Fields, Sheila Stevenson, Cookie Bamert, Neats Foster, Alice Arguella, and Martha Young.

Special guests were Marie Lenau, Lucy Smith, Rebecca Musselman, and Jeanetta Precure's grandchildren, Dustin and B.J.

Diet Helpful In Cancer Recovery

The diagnosis is enough to suppress the heartiest of appetites. However, you can play a critical role in your own recovery by eating a diet rich in calories.

"Diet is extremely important to a cancer patient," says Catherine Regenbrecht, a senior dietitian at Methodist Hospital in Houston. "To get well, you have to eat well."

After surgery or a treatment, such as chemotherapy or radiation therapy, many will lose their appetites. Foods smell bad and no meal sounds appealing. Regenbrecht says this is no time to force a person to eat. "A cancer patient knows they should eat, and they don't need extra pressure from their family and friends."

She suggests frequent meals with smaller portions while keeping in mind high calorie/high protein foods. Peanut butter, cheese, macaroni and cheese, ice cream, or baked potato with butter, cheese and sour cream are good starts.

"At Methodist, we really stress to our patients who are recovering, this is not the time to watch your waistline," Regenbrecht emphasizes. "It is more important to build up your energy level."

When preparing food, remember to stay away from foods with strong flavors and odors, such as fish, onions, green vegetables, or spicy foods. Foods with strong smells tend to worsen nausea or appetite loss.

Keep The Flame Burning

For 25 years, children and adults with mental retardation have participated in year-round training and athletic competition in a variety of sports through Texas Special Olympics. This year, more than 25,000 Texas athletes, including 700 local athletes, will participate in 16 different sports in anticipation of competing in the area games on April 3, before reaching the Texas summer games May 19-21 in Denton.

But they can't do it without help. They can't keep the flame burning without that special spark from volunteers who have become the backbone of Special Olympics. With their help, Texas Special Olympics has grown from the 350 athletes to attend the 1969 games in Waco to the 3,800 athletes expected to attend the 25th Anniversary Summer Games this year in Texas, the largest state competition in the nation.

They won't be alone. More than 1,100 coaches, 1,000 family members, 4,000 volunteers and 20,000 spectators will be there to lend a warm hug, a helping hand or encouraging smile. Locally, 350 athletes, 100 coaches, 200 family members and 600 volunteers are expected to attend the summer games. Still, it's not enough.

Texas Special Olympics is reaching only a small percentage of the Texans who could benefit from the year-round sports training and competition. Texas Special Olympics has come a long way from its frisbee throwing and tug-of-war events to today's competitions that include track and field, basketball, soccer, gymnastics, equestrian, wheelchair races and much more.

As the number of events and athletes continues to grow, the need for volunteers expands. Volunteers opportunities abound on the local and state levels. Obviously, there is a spot waiting for those who are athletically inclined. But the Special Olympics also need people who can type information into a computer, serve water to the athletes, escort the media around events, welcome spectators, sell souvenirs, raise funds, present medals and even recruit more volunteers.

To volunteer, all that is needed is an extra hour each week or month, or maybe just a free day this year. For further information, call the Area 17 Special Olympics office at 747-2808.

When You're "Losing It!"

In times of crisis it's common for a person to feel like their head is swimming, feel confused and generally feel like they are about to lose their minds. There is too much happening to think about at one time and a little taking-care-of-yourself won't help.

When you feel like you're about to lose your mind, it can help to slow down, take one task at a time until it's completed. Then move to the next one. This helps you have a sense of control and accomplishment about things.

This type of confusion is normally temporary and will subside when the crisis is past. During a crisis you will probably do, say and think things you normally wouldn't. Don't quit doing what you know is right, you can get through it. It's like treading water. You don't get to shore but you do stay afloat-later, when you get your strength back, you can start swimming!

New Computer Program Offers Energy Education To Homeowners

Homeowners can learn how to make their homes more energy-efficient with the help of a new computer program designed by the Texas Energy Extension Service. "The Energy Efficient Home" program offers a self-guided "tour" through an energy-efficient home. Users can stop at any point in the program to learn more about specific energy-efficient features in and around the home.

Some stops along the tour include energy-saving tips for kitchen appliances, hints on how to conserve water and tips for lowering water heating cost.

"This type of computer-aided instruction offers a level of interaction that appeals to people of all ages," said Kathleen Casey, a training specialist with the Texas his best also. Riley Byers ran a time of 52.06 and placed 4th.

"In the 100 meter dash Joe Reyes, and David Oliveres ran it with Joe Reyes getting 3rd with a time of 11.31. In the 200 meter dash was Anthony Rodriguez, David Oliveres and Riley Byers. They all had their best times of the year. Edward Rodriguez ran the 400 meter dash and finished 3rd with a time of 59.99.

"Overall it was a great confidence builder for us. Joe Reyes finished as the High point person on the team with 30 points and Daniel Garbarino was 2nd with 29 points.

"The Baseball Team had a tournament this past weekend in Plainview and some of our kids who do both track and baseball were playing baseball and that hurt us a little. Rushad Kirven was still hurting which also hurt us.

"We will take the week off before we run in the Muleshoe Relays on the 27th. It's our spring break and we have some kids hurt so we need the rest. Everything looks good for us at this time. Everyone's working hard and keeping a good attitude. If you get a chance to come watch the kids workout or run in a meet, please do so. They really enjoy that alot," Coach Johnson continued.

Not acceptable are treated seed, waste oils, solvents, paints, explosive materials, pesticides (herbicides) containing 2,4,5-T or Silvex, petroleum products, pesticides and wood preservatives containing Pentachlorophenol, fertilizers or nutrient materials that are neither hazardous or contain pesticide mixtures, or explosives.

"The goal of this program," the county extension agent said, "is to help private producers remove from the environment chemicals that they can't use and which may pose a threat to residents and their water supplies in farming and ranching communities.

plus get accurate information and advice on how to dispose of these materials in the future," he said.

Before taking chemicals to the collection site, producers can obtain from the county extension office a list of safety measures for transporting and the type of information about the materials which the collection point will need, the county agent said.

This is one of three such collections being held this month. One was March 16 in Beaumont. Another will be March 26 in Dumas, at the municipal landfill southeast of the city on East 19th Street.

At each site, all eligible waste chemicals will be examined and then transported to permitted hazardous waste disposal facilities.

During the first such collection program in 1990, more than 27 tons of unwanted pesticides were collected from a 37-county area of West Texas. Last year, some 197 tons were collected at four sites, with more than 80 tons turned in at O'Donnell. About 10,000 clean, properly rinsed metal and plastic pesticide containers also were turned in at the four sites last year.

A PCG representative will conduct the election, review and answer questions about recent and planned PCG activities.

Muleshoe Lions Club

President Mike Caldwell called the meeting to order, and song, prayer, and the pledge were given.

It was announced that there will be a Board of Directors meeting next Wednesday, March 24, 1993 at 11:30 a.m. before the meeting.

Lonnie Adrian, in charge of the program for the March 17th meeting, discussed the upcoming car show to be held Friday and Saturday, April 23 and 24 at the Bailey County Coliseum. A proposition was made and will be voted on by board members, to purchase a car and sell raffle tickets on it until July 4, when the winner will be drawn. Adrian showed a video of the recent Amarillo Car Show and various antiques and classics were discussed.

The meeting was dismissed by President Caldwell.

Energy Extension Service who designed the program.

Casey said the program can be used not only by the average homeowner but also in schools, public libraries and lobbies of public utility offices as a service to customers.

The program runs on Macintosh computers with at least one megabyte of RAM and System 6.0.5 or later. The program also requires HyperCard 2.0 or later to run.

However, if you do not have HyperCard, "The Energy Efficient Home" can be purchased with a "HyperCard Player," which allows you to run the program. The program alone costs $1. The cost of the program with the HyperCard Player is $2. for ordering information, call the Energy Hotline at 1.800-643-SAVE.

Cotton Growers Told Marketing, Management Key Elements

Better marketing and better management of the crop are the keys to staying in business and making a profit in the next five years, growers at the Beltwide Cotton Conference at New Orleans were told by a cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In the next three to five years, there will be little change in cotton acreage in Texas and Oklahoma, said Dr. James R. Supak, Extension Service cotton agronomist at College Station. Only long-staple grains in yields are anticipated, he said, but lint quality will improve. His predictions were based on a survey of producers, ginners, Extension faculty and researchers in nine subregions that make up the growing area of the two states.

Some 4,500 growers, agribusiness representatives and educators attended the five-day conference.

Supak told the delegates the survey indicates that six factors are most likely to influence acreage, yields and quality in Texas and Oklahoma. He said these are weather, insect management (pesticide resistance), rising input costs, government regulations, loss of support programs, and farm credit availability.

Options for reducing costs include "fine tuning" production practices, short-season production systems and conservation or reduced tillage. Available technology that could be adopted according to the survey, include integrated crop management systems, narrow-row production, low energy precision application (LEPA) irrigation, practices to improve stand establishment, weed control, crop termination and harvest practices.

"To stay in business, growers must improve their marketing skills, work to implement a statewide boll weevil eradication program, improve management skills, become proactive with regard to environmental and other governmental issues, become more involved with producer organizations and be willing to accept leadership roles," Supak said the survey reported.

He said the survey indicates: "For the most part, farmers do an excellent job of producing cotton but have only limited marketing experts. With reductions in government support programs, growers will need to learn how to use the available marketing tools and become more involved in forming marketing groups and promoting locally grown cotton and "value added" products.

"Cotton farmers need to become even more skilled as managers. This means learning more about growth and development of the plant and using this knowledge in timing and application of crop inputs, such as fertilizer and water.

"For several years profitability was closely associated with yields. There was a reasonable probability that additional inputs that increased yields would also boost net returns. But how cotton prices and rising costs of inputs are forcing growers to reassess their production strategies and concentrate on increasing profits regardless of what happens to yields and quality.

"With the exception of the Texas High Plains, the implementation of an effective boll weevil eradication program is considered the most viable alternative for containing insect control costs and managing insect resistance to pesticides. At present, the boll weevil is the key

News From U.S. Representative Larry Combest

You may already know the importance of your farming and ranching neighbors to our region, but you might not have realized how important they are to the entire State of Texas, and to the rest of the world. In the value of total crops, livestock, dairy and poultry production, our 19th congressional district is first in Texas. Within the boundaries of our congressional district, Panhandle and South Plains farmers produce more than one-third of the corn and one-fourth of the cotton grown in Texas. Ranchers raise more head of cattle in our 20-county district than anywhere else in the state. County extension agents estimate the economic value of these crops and livestock at more than 2-point-3 billion dollars.

As just a slice of the nation's agriculture economy, Texas plays an important part in feeding and clothing the world. From farm to market, agriculture provides 21 million jobs nationwide—that's 17 percent of the U.S. work force. Fully 90 percent of the jobs are found off the farm. In the small number of farmers and ranchers living on the land, each producer provides food and fiber for 94 other Americans and 34 people in other countries.

Efficiency and environmental conservation has improved greatly since the 1950's. From farming parents to their children, stewardship of the land is their heritage. I often make the point to my colleagues in Congress that for this reason, farmers are natural environmentalists. However, proposed regulations on pesticide use and burdensome dictates on land use continue to threaten to take farm management decisions out of the hands of farmers. Some in Congress fail to realize that farming families would not place the inheritance of their farmland at risk. Along with increased soil and water conservation, good farming practices replenish the land for next year's crop. Migrating birds and local wildlife benefit from food and habitat created from the set-aside of farming acreage. With efficiency, comes a 55 percent increase in yields since the 1950's.

For all this home-grown goodness, Americans spend only 10 percent of their earnings for food—the lowest in the world. Europeans spend more than 14 percent of their income for food; the Japanese must spend 18 percent of their salaries to feed themselves.

U.S. agricultural exports total $37 and a half billion, cutting our non-farm trade deficit by 14 percent. Each dollar of agricultural exports generates an additional $1.59 for American transportation, processing, marketing and warehousing. America's food and fiber machine is big business.

Each generation of farmers and ranchers has bestowed to us a precious national family heirloom. American agriculture has put food on tables around the world and made a living for those who live off the land. For farm and ranch families, agriculture has an additional reward; to breathe country air and appreciate sunsets.

Lee Hamilton, Congressman (D-Ind): "Do you really believe that most of us here (in Congress) are crooks?," speaking to Ross Perot.

Fringe Benefits

Purchases by the UT systems from businesses owned by women and minorities more than doubled in the last fiscal year.

Termed "historically underutilized businesses" by state law, such companies sold more than $28 million worth of goods and services to the UT system, up from $13.9 million the year before.

Such companies also received more than $4 million in subcontracts related to construction projects at UT System component institution during the year, up from $1.9 million for the 1991 fiscal year.

The UT System has become a model among state agencies for increasing the amount of business conducted with firms owned by women and minorities.

Another "Super" For Texas

A west Texas mountain one day will be the site of a telescope that will be among the largest.

Construction will start this year on the $12.8 million Spectroscopic Survey Telescope that will study the compositions of asteroids and stars. Astronomers think it will also help refine the numbers that determine the age and expansion of the universe.

The site will be at the UT Austin McDonald Observatory near Fort Davis. When it's completed in 1996 it will be the second largest telescope in the world.

Penn State, Stanford and two German universities are also partners in the project.

A Solution To The Alzheimer's Puzzle

Researchers at the UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas may have discovered an accurate tool for diagnosing Alzheimer's disease.

Until now, only a biopsy or an autopsy has been accepted as an accurate diagnosis. The researchers have found that blood flow imaging in the brain is almost 100 percent accurate with autopsy verifying the disorder.

Bullock Announces Appointments To Texas Partnership

Lt. Governor Bob Bullock has appointed two Texans to a blend of academic and legal expertise to the board of the Texas Partnership for Economic Development.

Carlos Contreras and Dr. Bernard Weinstein were named to govern the partnership, which serves as an advisory body to the Texas Department of Commerce. Both men have been serving on the new board for the past year.

Contreras, 35, is an associate in the Austin law firm of Naman, Howell, Smith and Lee, where he specializes in financial institutions, civil and tort litigation and administrative law. His knowledge of regulatory law and financial institution liquidations was garnered during three years as assistant general counsel to the Texas Banking Department.

At the department, Contreras analyzed state and federal law, issued formal opinions to bankers, examiners and the public, and served as an advisor to the State Finance Commission and the State Banking Board. He is a graduate of the University of Texas school of Law, the LBJ School of Public Affairs and St. Mary's University, from which he graduated Magna Cum Laude.

Weinstein is director of the Center for Economic Development and Research and a professor applied economics at the University of North Texas in Denton. He previously taught at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, the State University of New York, the University of Texas at Dallas, and Southern Methodist University.

The author of dozens of books, monographs and articles on the subjects of economic development, public policy and taxation, Weinstein also has consulted with a wide variety of government bodies, associations and corporations, including Q.T. & T., Texas Instruments, the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the city of San Antonio, and the Western Governors Association.

Weinstein, 50, holds degrees from Columbia University and Dartmouth College.

Crosby-Floyd Extension Agent Honored By Texas Pest Management Association

The highest award given by the Texas Pest Management Association for integrated pest management (IPM) has been presented to C. Mark Brown, extension agent-pest management for Crosby and Floyd counties.

Brown received the award at the TPMA annual meeting in Austin recently. TPMA is a non-profit grower organization which promotes safe and effective management of pests in cotton, grain sorghum, corn and other crops.

Brown joined the Texas Agriculture Extension Service in 1986, conducting an IPM program which serves the two counties. He supervises four crop scouts and a demonstration aide who, each summer, evaluate pest populations on some 7,000 acres of cotton, corn, sorghum, and sunflower. The gross value of such crops exceeds $1 million annually.

A recently completed four-year intensive evaluation of the Crosby-Floyd Pest Management Program showed that 98 percent of the respondents to a producer survey said Brown's program had been of value to their operation.

Participants in his IPM program, compared to non-participants, had reduced insecticide costs by $1.69 an acre for cotton, $4.75 an acre for sorghum, and $17.77 an acre for corn. Yield increases for participants, compared to non-participants, was 14 pounds and acre for cotton, 274 pounds an acre for sorghum, and 1,179 pounds an acre for corn.

In addition to managing this IPM program, he also assists growers in the two counties solve insect problems on 600,000 acres of crops. Brown also works with homeowners, aerial applicators, consulting entomologists and others on specific pest problems.

Ralls producer Steve Verett said Brown's IPM program "has provided a very beneficial service to not only the participants in the program but for all producers who have attended numerous related turnrow meetings."

A native of Plainview, Brown holds an A.S. degree from Clarendon College, a B.S. in crops and entomology and an M.S. in entomology, both from Texas Tech University. While at Tech, he received an award as the outstanding plant science student.

He has been named one of the Outstanding Young Men Of America; holds the early-career award from Epsilon Sigma Phi, the professional society of the Extension Service, and has received district and state awards for result demonstration handbooks from the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association.

Faith in one's self is the foundation of success.

How employee literacy affects your bottom line

How does the education level of my employees affect their job performance and my bottom line? What can I do about it?

Every major study of the past few years has found a connection between the ability of U.S. business to hold its own in the global marketplace and the need for upgrading basic education skills in the work force. This has caused a dramatic increase in the number of workplace education programs across the United States. Research suggests that workers learn at a much faster rate when programs are focused on job-related reading rather than on "general" literacy.

Workplace education programs have a handsome pay-off in both improved worker performance and bottom line gains. This translates into improvements in productivity, customer satisfaction, delivery time, scrap and error rates, and worker morale. Gains also are noted in employee motivation, self esteem, willingness to take responsibility, ability to perform well in teams, communication, and problem solving.

At the present time, 3 to 5 percent of small businesses in the U.S. have workplace education programs, serving between 200,000 and 300,000 workers each year. The vast majority of workplace education programs are taught at the worksite.

Participation by the employee is usually voluntary; the most frequent pattern is a 50/50 donation of time by employer and employee. Community colleges are the education partners of choice for most small businesses.

The Texas Department of Commerce's Texas Literacy Council can help you upgrade the basic skill levels of your employees by coordinating a customized employee training program and can provide a packet of resource information on workplace training.

LESS SPENDING, NOT MORE TAXES,
NEEDED TO REFORM ECONOMY

America stands at an economic crossroads. The choices we make today will be the foundation for a stronger -- or a weaker -- tomorrow.

Those choices were clear to me on the night of the State of the Union address, when I was one of a handful of Senators invited by President Clinton to escort him to the podium from which he addressed Congress and the nation.

Our economy has been ripped apart by years of rampant deficit spending which has left us with a mind-boggling debt and precious little to show for it. Now we must make the tough choices necessary to rebuild our economy.

I applaud President Clinton's efforts to affect fundamental economic change and to make our government fiscally responsible. I support his plans to create jobs for Americans and to invest in our children's education through the Head Start program. I agree that we need an earned income tax credit and depreciation schedules which protect our competitiveness in international trade.

But I simply cannot agree that we need more taxes now.

During my brief time as your United States Senator, Washington has been buzzing with talk about "sacrifice." Those who support tax increases say it is time for the people to rally behind their government.

I say it is time for government to rally behind the people. A government which wastes people's money has no business asking for more.

That is why we must take aim -- not at taxpayers' pocketbooks, but at government waste.

I know that the responsibility for cutting waste begins with each individual. That is why I have cut my own salary by 20 percent and directed my office to reduce its expenditures by 20 percent.

I applaud President Clinton's efforts to cut government waste. He too has slashed his staff and ordered the entire Executive Branch to do the same. He has identified 150 specific spending cuts.

But I believe making specific cuts in a variety of particular programs is only a beginning. It is not enough to target one wasteful project or another. We must fundamentally change the way government works.

We must make wasteful spending against the law.

I have just introduced legislation to initiate a full-scale, innovative performance audit of the federal government. This audit would be conducted by front-line employees and taxpayers dedicated to eliminating waste.

This audit plan is tougher than any previously proposed because it will empower the Executive Branch to rescind wasted funds instead of subjecting the audit results to the whims of special interests.

Texas State Comptroller John Sharp recently conducted a similar audit of state government which identified savings of 12 percent. And I suspect there is at least that much waste in some federal spending, and room to improve delivery of federal services.

Stopping waste also means passing a Balanced Budget Amendment to the Constitution. It means giving the President the line-item veto.

These measures will force government to sacrifice. But fundamental reforms to make sure the government does a better job for what we pay.

Until the day comes when government really is a good value, I can not in good conscience consider raising taxes.

Taxpayers have given a lot already. They work hard. They pay their bills. They invest in their future. They spend their money responsibly.

We should ask no less of our government.

Advertising is the servant of those who know how to use it.

Those who smile often have more friends than those who frown.

There's no such thing as something for nothing in life.

The test of intelligence is your ability to detect sham.

State Capital
HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - The Legislature advanced several anti-crisis bills last week and debated how much school property taxes will be hiked if voters approve the "Robin Hood" amendment on the May 1 ballot.

Meanwhile, former Attorney General Jim Mattox announced he will not run for the U.S. Senate in the special election to avoid a bloody fight among Texas Democrats.

The mystery issue for the moment is how much the Robin Hood plan would cost Texans in new taxes; debate is split along party lines.

Gov. Ann Richards and party Democrats are campaigning to convince voters to adopt the plan, but they will wait until after the election to fund it, so no one knows the price tag.

This strategy is driving Republican bankers because they know that Democrats, with majorities in both houses, can price it as high as they want.

Early Estimates High

Last week, after funding estimates started surfacing, State Rep. John Culberson, R-Houston, charged Robin Hood would raise local school property taxes statewide by $2.50 per $100 valuation, or $2,500 for a $100,000 home.

Democrats responded they plan to cap it at $1.50, or $1,500.

Gun Control Bills

Gov. Richards has vowed to veto legislation allowing Texans to carry concealed weapons, but House sponsors worked the bill to the floor and said they'll override her veto.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock has said he won't let it get to the Senate floor. The bill includes some safeguards with a lengthy permitting process for citizens who pass a gun safety course and a criminal background check.

House members also approved a bill making it a crime to stalk. Stalking is defined as repeated behavior to harm, harass or torment, but the offender would have to threaten the victim's family or property in order to be charged with a crime. A second offense becomes a third-degree felony.

More Gas Tax to Schools

Rep. Jerry Yost, R-Longview, has filed a proposed constitutional amendment that would devote more of the state gasoline tax to public education.

The state constitution requires that 75 percent of the revenue generated by the 20-cents-per-gallon gas tax goes to the Texas Department of Transportation. The remaining 25 percent goes to public education.

Changing the formula to 65 percent for transportation and 35 percent for education would free up an additional $351 million for schools during the 1994-95 biennium, Yost said.

"This is the people's money," Yost said, adding that voters should be allowed to re-examine how the money is spent."

But Yost said he expects strong opposition from the highway lobby. Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House appropriations committee, agreed. "There's going to be a good fight over that," he predicted.

Credit Union Problem

Texas Credit Union Commissioner John Hale is under the heavy scrutiny of a legislative committee for seizing a healthy credit union's deposit insurance fund last year, spending its money without accounting to members, and paying refunds less than promised.

Credit union officials statewide are angry at Hale for paying a consultant more than $16,000 monthly to manage the fund.

Cabinet's Second Texan

Most Texans don't know they have a second Texan in the Clinton cabinet: Transportation Secretary Federico Pena, former Denver mayor, is a Brownsville native.

Hometown friend, Dr. William C. Davis, recalls that in 1968, when University of Texas student politics were dominated by frat and Frank Erwin, Pena masterminded a coalition to run Mickey Mouse for student body president.

Despite the nonsense, Mickey's campaign finished third, but was courted for a runoff endorsement, which Pena used to negotiate minority issues then simmering on campus. Pena's political career was born.

Davis, now a UT-Brownsville professor, uses his connections to lobby for higher education in Texas.

Other Highlights

Parents who fall behind on child support payments could lose their driver's license under a measure approved by the Senate. The bill by Sen. Chris Harris, R-Arlington, would establish procedures to deny or suspend the driver's license of anyone who is at least 30 days delinquent in paying child support.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department plans to build the George Bush Gallery of the Pacific War next to the department-operated Nimitz Museum and Historical Center in Fredericksburg. The target date to complete the $4 million gallery is September 1995.

The Senate passed Caller ID legislation, which allows one to see the name and telephone number of the person calling them before they pick up the phone, touted as protection against harassment phone calls.

Straight Talk About Back Pain
Back strain is one of the more frequent causes of employee injuries in the workplace. Only the common cold accounts for more lost days of work.
Back strain results when ligaments or tendons are overstretched or muscles are damaged by overuse. Injuries are often due to improper lifting, pulling, pushing, carrying, lowering, bending, or twisting.
A little prevention can go a long way toward reducing the chances of back injury. For instance, pay attention to the way you sit, walk, lift or twist, and keep in mind that leg muscles are stronger than back muscles.
Debbie Thornton, director of Physical Medicine at Methodist Hospital, suggests the following safe lifting techniques to avoid back strain.
* Bring objects as close to the body as possible before lifting.
* Place feet apart, putting one slightly in front of the other.
* Bend your knees to a comfortable degree. Remember, since leg muscles are stronger than back muscles, it's better to bend and push up from the knees than from the waist.

- * Avoid fast, jerky movements when lifting.
- * Setting the object down carefully is just as important as picking it up.
- * Don't be shy. Ask for help when you need it. Know your limits and don't try to overdo it.
- * Use dollies or mechanical equipment whenever you can.

Whether you are considered an employee or an independent contractor determines not only how you pay your taxes, but also what kind and how much.
Generally, an employee is under the control of an employer about when, where and how to work.
An independent contractor, on the other hand, is responsible to an employer only for the successful completion of the job. The independent contractor, rather than the employer, controls or directs the method and means of accomplishing the job.
Publication 937, Business Reporting, lists 23 factors used to determine if you are an employee. If you want the Internal Revenue Service to determine your status, fill out Form SS-8, "Determination of Employee Work Status for Purposes of Federal Employment Taxes and Income Tax Withholding," and send it to your IRS District Director.
Both Publication 937 and Form SS-8 may be ordered by calling 1-800-829-3676.

Whether you are considered an employee or an independent contractor determines not only how you pay your taxes, but also what kind and how much.

Protect your rights!
"Render" your property by March 31st.

A "rendition" is a report to the appraisal district that lists all the taxable property you owned or controlled on January 1st of this year. The rendition form is available at your local appraisal district office... or you may draft a similar form.

Who must file a rendition?

You must file a rendition if you own tangible personal property that is used to produce income—such as the inventory and equipment used by a business.

Are there any advantages to you?

- The advantages of filing a rendition are:
- You give your opinion of your property's value. If the appraisal district believes the value is higher, it must notify you in writing of the higher value and explain how you can protest that value to the appraisal review board.
 - You record your correct mailing address so your tax bills will go to the right address. If your bill is mailed to the wrong address, the law still holds you responsible for paying your taxes on time or paying extra charges for late payments.
 - You can also file a "report of decreased value" to notify the appraisal district of significant depreciation of the value of your property in 1992. The district will look at your property before assigning a value in 1993.

Whats the deadline?

The last day for filing or postmarking 1993 renditions is Wednesday, March 31. You can get an extra 30 days if you ask for it in writing by the March 31 deadline.

Where do you file?

File renditions with your local appraisal district at:

Billions Available For Home Repair Grants And Subsidized Loans

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income, there are federal, state, and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Government at all levels recognizes that neighborhoods are the basis of life in our country. When a neighborhood deteriorates, many things happen, both physically and socially. Homes that are shabby seem to make a neighborhood more attractive to crime and criminals. An area in decline is like a spreading cancer. As homes become rundown and in need of maintenance, the residents lose their desire to keep up the neighborhood. Streets become receptacles for trash, schools lower their standards and very quickly the selling price of homes in the area drops sharply. This accelerates the cycle of degeneration.

In order to keep and maintain the nation's housing and neighborhoods, government at all levels have programs to give homeowners money (that does not have to be repaid) for repairs or to lend them money at below market levels at no interest to pay the contractor of their choice for the necessary work. In addition there are tax incentives to promote efficient energy use.

These programs are not restricted to low-income people, slum areas or urban neighborhoods. Owners of single or multi-family dwellings are eligible for some programs regardless of income. Most of the loans offer long terms and low payments.

Some of the other home improvements covered under these programs are: attic and wall insulation, new windows, outerwall siding, security doors and locks, window guards, sidewalks and masonry work, bathrooms and kitchens, electrical and plumbing work, new roofs, gutters or downspouts.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group, has just published Consumers Guide To Home Repair Grants And Subsidized Loans, a 208 page book which lists over 8,500 sources of loan and grant programs offered by all levels of government, utility companies and others, typical programs offered and eligibility requirements. Form letters for inquiries to these loan and grant programs offered and eligibility. The book can be obtained for $10.95 plus $3 for shipping and handling from CERC GRANTS, 350 Scotland Road, Orange, NJ 07050 or by calling 1-800-USA-0121 for credit card order. Robert L. Berko of CERC, tells

Trash-Off Volunteers Will Be On The Road Again April 3

There are two things every Texan can count on in the springtime--lots of wildflowers and less litter. Some 85,000 Adopt-a-Highway and Keep Texas Beautiful volunteers across the Texas Department of Transportation hosts the eighth annual "Great Texas Trash-Off".

This massive effort, which is considered the largest one-day cleanup in the nation, is a part of TxDOT's "Don't Mess With Texas" antilitter campaign.

"The Trash-Off helps us get ready for the wildflowers and all the visitors that come to see them," says J. Don Clark, director of TxDOT's Division of Travel and Information. "It's also a great way to remind the public not to mess with Texas."

Trash-Off volunteers are expected to pick up nearly 6.8 million gallons of litter that day, with the Adopt-a-Highway participants taking to the state's roadways while Keep Texas Beautiful groups scour city streets and parks. Coca-Cola, which has sponsored this event for three years, will provide giant trash bags and special coupon books to volunteers.

Since TxDOT launched the Don't Mess With Texas and Adopt-a-Highway programs in 1985, the state has seen a 72 percent reduction in roadside litter and has saved an estimated $7.1 million in litter expenditures. The Adopt-a-Highway program, which originated in TxDOT's Tyler District, has been duplicated in 47 other states. In Texas, nearly us, "Some of these programs have no income ceilings and others allow income of as much as $100,000 per year. There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans or give grants to poor credit risks. One of the authors of this book received a $5,000 NJ grant plus $4,000 interest free loan from his utility company. In many areas, people with disabilities can receive grants to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways."

Since it is important that the work be done properly, the book describes in detail how to pick a reputable contractor, negotiate a contract and insure that work is done properly and for a fair price.

4,000 groups have adopted some 8,000 miles of highways.

Keep Texas Beautiful, the state affiliate of Keep America Beautiful, coordinates Texas' accredited community litter prevention, beautification, and solid waste education programs.

Living Water

What vision this living water would be to a desert wanderer! The nomad and the lonely prospector may dream of running water, but they depend on wells and canteens for their meagre day to day supply.

Most people dip their little store of joy in life from an evasive source and try desperately to store enough to last until the next oasis. What a vision a living eternal source of joy would be to them. Why, they would say, it's like being born again; like having a new life!

Christianity says that deciding to trust in God and trust in the day by day life He gives is like finding living water in the desert. And more, he who drinks from this water will never thirst again. Come to Him then who gives you life. Trust Him and live.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church should be in everyone!

NEWS VIEWS

Paul Temple, Louisiana environmental expert:
"It's going to be years before we get down to a reasonable level," speaking of the heavy pollution of the Mississippi River.

George Bush, U.S. president:
"We are not threatening anyone. But we must enforce U.N.
resolutions," explaining why
U.S. jets downed an Iraqi jet which entered the security zone above Iraq.

Bill Clinton, U.S. president-elect:
"I've got a mountain of paper that piled up while I was working on Cabinet selections.
Now I have to go to work."

Caspar Weinberger, former defense secretary:
"They (Lawrence Walsh and his team of lawyers) tried to coerce false testimony. When they couldn't get that, they went after me with five felony counts. Cooperation meant enabling them to implicate President Reagan."

MICROWAVE TIPS

The microwave oven can be used to finish onion soup with bread and cheese.
Prepare soup conventionally or with microwave, then top with small bread slices or pic-ces, sprinkled with cheese.
Put soup in individual serving bowls (which can go into a microwave oven) and microwave on High for 5 1/2 to 7 1/2 minutes--or until cheese melts.
Rearrange bowls twice during microwaving.
