When Capt. John Haskell left the painted. schooner Maria, fifty-six years old, but still able to anchor off Lincolnville Beach, Maine, while he went home to Owls Head for Easter, he owed Ebenezer Bowker, ship chandler, $26 for supplies. But it didn't worry Ebenezer any. Captain John had been trading with him for more than 30 years and had always paid his bills to the last cent. And it would have been all right had Captain John come back but he didn't: he died of pneumonia a few days after reaching home.

After trying vainly to find someone who felt like paying the bill for stores, Bowker got out an attachment. He hired a Belfast lawyer to draw the papers and got Constable Seth Pease to serve them.

Next morning when Mr. Bowker got to the store he found Constable Pease sitting on the steps waiting for him with the information that the Maria had dragged her anchor in the night and was aground two miles down the beach, and just over the line into Knox county, where he (Constable Pease) "ain't got no jur-is-dic-shun. God Save Us From a Hen-Pecked Nation.

I follow the plow for a living and my views may have in them the smell of the soil; my hair is turning white under the frost of many winters and perhaps I am a little old-fashioned, but I believe there is more moral influence in the dress of woman than in all the statute books of the land. As an agency for morality, I wouldn't give my good old mother's homemade gowns for all the suffragette's constitutions and by-laws in the world. As a power for puritying society. I wouldn't give one prayer of my saintly mother for all the women's votes in Christendom. As an agency for good government, I wouldn't give the pleaof a mother's heart for righteousness for all the oaths of office in the land. There is more power in the smile of woman than in an act of congress. There are greater possibilities for good government in her family of laughing children than in the cabinet of the president of the United States.

The destiny of this nation lies in the home and not in the legislative halls. The hearthstone and the famity Bible will ever remain the source of our inspiration and the Acts of the Apostles will ever shine brighter than the acts of Congress.

This country is law-mad. Why add to a statute book, already groaning cry of woman? If we never had a Postum," is the way an Illinois man describes himself. He says:

"For years I was a coffee drinker until at last I became a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia, constipation, headaches and indigestion. "The different kinds of medicine I tried did not cure me, and finally some one told me to leave off coffee and take up Postum. I was fortunate in having the Postum made strictly according to directions on the pkg., so that from the start I liked it. "Gradually my condition changed.

The old troubles disappeared and I began to feel well again. My appetite became good and I could digest food. Now I am restored to strength and health, can sleep sound all night and awake with a fresh and rested body.

"I am really a monument built by Postum, for I was a physical wreck, distressed in body and mind, and am now a strong, healthy man. I know exactly what made the change; it was leaving off coffee and using Postum.'
