City postoffice as second-class matter.

CITY, TEXAS.

per on time, will confer a favor by reporting same to us.

Roumania is the 14th nation to enter into the worldwar.

The price of wheat has taken a tumble but that won't cause flour to be any cheaper.

A man has a legal and moral right to quit his job, but has neither the legal or moral right to interfere with the other man who takes his place.

If the railroad strike is pulled off, you had better get your breadstuffs and other things to eat, for things of that kind are going to be scarce if the strikers have their way.

It is all right for candidate Hughes to criticize the Wilson administration in its Mexican policy, but he forgets the republicans under Mr. Taft did not set anything under the Mexicans while they were in power.

The proposed railroad strike is set for Labor Day. Crepe would be a fitting color for the day, for it means famine and death to many if the strike is conducted after the usual manner. It will be a carnival of crazy fools.

Sheriff Burrows, of Robert Lee, has no society about him. He has a suit-case full of half-pints of obedient in his possession and would not give a friend a drop of it the other day when we landed in Robert Lee. He says the suit-case and its contents belongs to a colored gentleman whom he is entertaining at his hotel. This colored gentleman is said to be a traveling salesman.

A new Overland automobile badly battered and mutilated stood (or rather lay) beside the railroad track as the writer passed through Bronte last Monday. On Saturday several women and children in this car had undertaken to drive across the track just ahead of a moving freight car, but they missed their calculations and the car was struck and torn up.
How the occupants escaped unhurt is still the talk of the town. It is generally conceded that those ladies and children will hereafter take time to let a train pass before they try to cross a railroad track.

Intolerance

In his admonition to the people at the First Baptist church, at San Angelo, last Sunday Rev. E. F. Lyon urged that only christian men and women be chosen to teach their children. He said: "I would rather my child go without instruction than have one of these Christian Scientists for its instructor." In other words, we understood the good brother to mean that he would prefer to doom his child to a life of ignorance and menial servitude than to have a man or woman who honestly differed with him in the matter of religion to teach his child the things that are necessary to make life worth while; and, at the same time, deny the employment of an honorable calling because the faith is not identical with his.

We are not in the habit of criticizing preachers, for we believe that one good, broad-gauged preacher, who refuses to wear the shackles of prejudice, intolerance and bigotry, is worth more to the peace and harmony of a community than a brigade of policemen. On the other hand, we hold that one narrow-minded, intolerant, prejudiced, bigoted preacher can raise more un-shirred shod in a community than a socialist campmeeting and forty polecats.

Rev. Lyon is a good and able man, and we respect him; but we despise the sentiment that would ostracize a man or woman in an honorable calling for no other reason than that they see the mandates of the Holy Bible from a different angle and worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience.

The writer was raised by Baptist parents, and has raised a family that is practically all Baptist; but instead of being taught, and teaching that Baptist teachers are the only fit ones to teach children, we were taught and teach the maxim, "that if the counsel be good, no matter who gives it." If the counsel of this good brother had been followed in bringing up this writer, he would now be able, with both eyes wide open, to look through a keyhole and see all that was going on in the world. He would now see that every man who was not a Baptist, and who did not believe as he does, was a liar, heathen and horse thief. He would now be revelling in the glorified assurance that all Mormons, Catholics, Christian Scientists, Methodists and Campbellites in the land would be in hell in thirty seconds after breath had ceased to come and go—and go because they did not believe as he does.

As it was, after much misery, sorrow and tribulations in early life, the writer learned not to take himself and his religion too seriously, for he learned that there were others. He learned charity, and that sweet grace opened his eyes to tolerance and forbearance. When he fain would think that only Baptists were fit for the society of God, Jesus and the angels, he would remember that sweet Presbyterian girl who afterward shared his joys and sorrows and is the mother of his children. He reasoned that if only Baptists could go to heaven, he did not want to go there, for he knew that if he didn't find his wife there, he would quit that country and go where she stayed; so, fearing the judgment, the grace of God taught him not to judge, and to leave the salvation of the other fellow up to him and his God.

What difference does it make who teaches our children that which the pagans taught thousands of years ago? If a Jew teaches your child the principles of mathematics laid down by Euclid, a pagan; a Catholic teaches him the laws laid down by Archimedes, the heathen; or if a Christian Scientist teaches him the laws of hygiene as evolved by an infidel, what difference does it make? Who does it hurt?

Is it possible that the good brother thinks that the Baptist faith is so weak and vulnerable that it will be contaminated and infected by coming in contact with those who hold adverse views? Is his offspring weak and vacillating that they could be weaned by the mere association with a highminded teacher who would scorn to intrude his religious views upon an unsuspected child? Such a view publicly expressed is an aspersion and an insult to every teacher in the land.

Happily, the lawmakers who framed our wise and good laws which govern our school did not hold such views on this matter or else our whole school system would now be dominated by the prevailing religgiven by her father.

The little girl had walked with G.
D. Blackburn, who was on his way to work at the depot, to the railroad north of the school house. On her return, she realized that something had bitten her, but did not know it was a snake until she returned to the place where she remembered something had struck the calf of her leg, and there she found a large rattlesnake. She ran home and reported to her parents that she had been bitten by a snake.
Her father applied his lips to the wound and sucked the poison while he reached for his pocket knife to lancetate the wound, and in the meantime Mrs. Cole corded the limb and telephoned Dr. Everitt, who answered the summons at once and gave the little one the usual treatment. For two days it seemed as though the wound would prove fatal, but the child is now rapidly recovering and will soon be out again.

Mr. Cole returned to the vicinity, where the child indicated the snake was located, next morning and there killed a rattlesnake, about four feet long. It is supposed that this was the snake that had bitten the little girl on the morning before.

Harley-Davidson Makes Long Trip, Using Kerosene

Clyde Bishop, with the motor department of the San Angelo Hardware Company, claims for himself two feats which he accomplished on a Harley-Davidson during the past week. One is a daylight run from San Angelo to Sweetwater and return, via Colorado and Sterling City and the other is the negotiating of 31 miles on a Harley on a half-gallon of kerosene oil.

The latter seems to be most remarkable. Motorcycle engines, like automobiles, are supposed to burn gasoline and not coal oil, but a Harley will do most anything when it has to, says Bishop. The thirty-one mile jaunt Thursday was from San Angelo to Mereta, and thence to Miles. In the Rannels county town, the local man filled up his tank with gas.

Wednesday morning Bishop left this city at 7 o'clock and was enjoying a cooling drink in Sweetwater by the stroke of ten. He had traveled almost ninety miles in covering the distance, which, by rail is but little over seventy-two miles. After a stay of three hours and thirty minutes the rider speeded over to Colorado and thence to Sterling, where he tarried an hour and half more. San Angelo was reached by dark.
