met at the church last Monday, packed a big box for Buekner Orphans Home and attended to other business. Resolutions of respect for Sister Horschler were read and adopted. A new program committee was appointed, consisting of Mmes. Acord and Bridges. Twenty two members were present.

All are urged to attend next Monday's meeting. A good program has been arranged as follows:

Subject: Faith and Works.
Song, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

Scripture reading and prayer, by the leader, Mrs. A. W. Orrick.
Faith as an Active Principle in the Religious Life—Mrs. F. M. Acord and Miss Lucy Langtree.
Special song—Mrs. Goin and Mrs. Chapman.

The Importance of Works in the Christian Life—Mrs. Maggie Deal, Mrs. P. C. Johnson.
Song, "Work for the Night Is Coming."

The Relation of Faith to Works—Mrs. J. E. Blankenship.
Closing song.

Whereas, in the providence of Almighty God, it has seemed best to remove from our midst our esteemed sister and honored co worker, Sister Myrtle Horschler: The influence of her life has been an inspiration to each of us; her devotion to every worthy cause, her consecrated life, her faithfulness to her church, her family and friends, always giving and sacrificing what she could to the Master's cause;

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the Ladies Aid of the First Baptist church of Hedley, That we recognize Sister Horschler as a true devoted Christian, and express our appreciation of her true and unselfish life and devotion to duty. That we reverently bow to the will of God, and extend to her children our deepest sympathy and humbly ask God to guide and protect them.

Be it Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the children, a copy be placed on record in our Society, one be furnished the Hedley Informer, also one be sent to the Baptist Standard.

Mrs. W. G. Brinson,
Mrs. J. G. McDougal,
Committee.

TO THE HORSCHLER CHILDREN
We don't know why God took your mother,

But his wisdom we never must doubt,
It may be we loved her so dearly

That Jesus was somewhere left out;

For this we can't be great sinners,
Since both Jesus and mother is dear,
And oft she's His greatest assistant
In the plan of salvation down here.

Yes, be what dear mamma would have you,

Always loving, truthful and kind,
Doing each task that comes to you
Quite well, with a sweet willing mind,
And when you are tempted to do evil,
Say, "What would dear mamma do?"
You'll find it will always be helpful,
A safeguard to carry you through.

Let Jesus be one in your home-life,
An invisible guest at each meal,
A listener to each conversation—
'Twill inspire you with courage and zeal;
And when life's journey is ended,
When earth and it's trials are o'er,
You'll meet with your mamma in heaven
Where sorrow and pain are no more.

W. M. SOCIETY

The Womans Missionary Society met Monday afternoon in mission study. There were thirteen present and a most interesting and helpful lesson was had on China.

Next Monday will be regular Bible study. Bro. Wright will lead this, and those absent will miss a great opportunity to learn more fully the great truths in the book of John. The lesson will be found in John 3:1-21.

We would be glad to have any women in town, whether you are a member of the Auxilliary or not, to be with us in this study. Come and bring some one with you.
Supt. Publicity.

McKNIGHT ITEMS

Now that the fine rains have put the land in order, the farmers are putting the seed in the ground, expecting bumper crops.

Art Pierce's children, of Newlin, are attending school here.

A large crowd attended church meeting and listened to a good sermon preached by Bro Orrick Sunday evening.

The farmers met at the school house last Saturday and organized a Farmers Union. Let the good work go on; if the farmers don't do something for themselves, they are goners.

Curtis Pierce and Martial Scott are putting up an overhead tank and preparing sanitary water for the school.

Our school is still booming, with a daily attendance of between fifty and sixty pupils.

Mr. and Mrs Watson Parmlay made a business trip to Memphis Monday.

Quite a crowd of young people enjoyed a singing at Mr. Bales' last Sunday night.

Last Saturday our boys entertained the Ring baseball team for a while—ending in a score of 26 to 10 in favor of McKnight.

RHODESIA TODAY

Carrying Tobacco into a warehouse

CONSIDERING the fact that Rhodesia is merely a baby among the nations—it has only just passed the thirtieth anniversary of its charter—it can certainly be described as a remarkably healthy infant, and the curious anomaly of rule by a chartered company seems to have justified itself as fully in this case as in the historic instance of the East India company. It is, indeed, a remarkable feat to have taken a vast tract of country—larger than France, Germany, Belgium and Holland together—the home of continual warfare between savage tribes, and in less than thirty years to have introduced there law, order and security for natives and settlers, and many of the refinements of a high civilization, says the Sketch of London.

Till the pioneer column entered the country in 1890, to take over the concessions which had been granted to the chartered company, there was not so much as a practicable road into the interior. Today there are 4,000 miles of good roads, while the railway stretches north and south and east, connecting Rhodesia with the outer world through both Capetown and the Portuguese port of Beira. From Bulawayo it runs northwards—a link in the great Cape to Cairo railway, which Rhodesia visualized—till it reaches Belgian territory, taking the Zambesi in its stride, and crossing it by a bridge which is one of the engineering wonders of the world. A network of telegraph and telephone wires links up the scattered communities and brings them into touch with the rest of the British empire.

Communications were rightly seen by Rhodes and his associates to be the key to the development of the country, and millions of pounds have been spent by the British South Africa company during these 30 years in improving them, in order to render accessible to British settlers the natural wealth and the wonderful climate of this favored colony. The climate is such as to make it particularly suitable for European habitation, the fact that the country is within the tropics being counteracted by the height above sea-level, the plateau which constitutes the bulk of southern Rhodesia being at an average altitude of 4,000 feet. The winter months—June to August—are dry, most of the rain falling between January and March. Even in the hot season the nights are cool. The temperature in the shade rarely reaches 100 degrees and in winter there is just sufficient frost to be of service to the farmers.

Fine Country to Live In. The proof of the pudding is in the eating—the low death rate and the sturdiness, not merely of the settlers, but of their Rhodesian-born and bred children. There is no need to send the latter home—the separation which makes India, for example, so painful a place for parents—either for health or for education. There are between thirty and forty good schools in Rhodesia, wholly or partly maintained by the government, and several of these educate their pupils up to the standard of entrance to the University of Capetown, while three carry on education to the Oxford and Cambridge matriculation examinations.

There are plenty of opportunities for sport in Rhodesia, there being some twenty-five varieties of antelope alone. Large game, in the shape of lions, elephants, rhinoceros, etc., is also plentiful. Sport of other kinds is catered to by the provision of clubs for polo, golf, cricket and other games.

In addition to mining—for gold, iron and other ores—of Rhodesia are forms and cattle-raising, and many of the best of the country are engaged in these pursuits. The climate is such as to make it particularly suitable for European habitation, the fact that the country is within the tropics being counteracted by the height above sea-level, the plateau which constitutes the bulk of southern Rhodesia being at an average altitude of 4,000 feet. The winter months—June to August—are dry, most of the rain falling between January and March. Even in the hot season the nights are cool. The temperature in the shade rarely reaches 100 degrees and in winter there is just sufficient frost to be of service to the farmers.

arrangements are under consideration for both refrigerating and canning on a large scale.

The staple product of agriculture proper is "mealies" or maize, for which there is a large demand among the natives; but the soil is so prolific that a large variety of other crops can be grown, according to the region and altitude selected. Oranges and lemons and tobacco, of both the "Turkish" and the "Virginian" varieties are being grown more and more largely, the cultivation of tobacco, in particular, being assisted by the British South Africa company, which provides expert advice and assistance, as well as curing-sheds and packing-warehouses for grading and preparing the leaf.

Has Overcome Severe Setbacks. Rhodesia has been unfortunate in experiencing many setbacks, which might have discouraged or even wrecked a less courageous community. The Matabele and Mashona rebellions were, for a time, a dangerous menace to the country, and were only quelled at a great expense of time and money; but wise and sympathetic treatment of the natives have, it is hoped, eliminated this menace for the future. The unfortunate Jameson raid involved Rhodesia in its consequences, not the least of which was that, for a time at any rate, it was deprived of the wise counsel and guidance of its founder. The riderpest outbreak of 1896 swept away a large proportion of the stock which was the mainstay of both settlers and natives; but modern science has discovered means of preventing this and similar epidemic diseases among cattle, so that fears need no longer be entertained on this head by the farmer who takes the needed measures of protection.

Lastly, both the Boer war and the war with Germany have depleted the country of a large number of its best men, at a time when they were urgently needed for development. But now the men have returned, for the most part, and the material future of Rhodesia is a bright one. With abundant natural resources, fine climate, congenial society and most of the conveniences of civilized life, Rhodesia offers a fine future to those possessed of some capital—say, from £2,000 to £5,000; for the moment conditions are not favorable for the settlement of the small man without capital.

The political future is less certain, but the majority of the inhabitants, looking to the advantage of a settled rule, undisturbed by political changes at home, and backed by the ever-ready check book of the Chartered company, seem to prefer, for the present, at any rate, to remain in statu quo, rather than to essay the doubtful experiment of either independent responsible government or inclusion in the Union of South Africa.

PUT OFFICER IN QUANDARY

That Boche Prisoner Claimed to Be Fellow Townsman Filled Him
With Mixed Emotions.

There is a good story of an incident that happened in France when a group of officers from a division made up largely of easterners was watching a column of German prisoners file past. The column halted for a moment, and from the ranks of prisoners came a voice which said—not only in good English, but also in the vernacular—"Where's the guy from Pittsburgh?" Wandering—and not knowing to this day—how news of himself and his native town had penetrated the German lines, an officer replied stiffly: "I'm from Pittsburgh! Why?" "Remember Blank's place?" the prisoner inquired. "I've heard of it," the officer replied.

BIG REDUCTION IN CHOLERA

Decrease in Swine Loss of 72 Per Cent Noted in Six Counties in North Carolina.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An example of the benefit which may come to a community from the well-directed efforts of state and federal agencies, coupled with the co-operation of farmers, for the control of hog cholera is shown in a recent report of a veterinary inspector of the bureau of animal industry. Hog cholera control work was inaugurated in six counties in the north-eastern section of North Carolina August 1, 1918. An intensive campaign was carried on for a period of 14 months. It included investigation of reported outbreaks, demonstrations in the use of serum and virus, and the disinfection of premises. As the services of practicing veterinarians were not available, a number of laymen were trained in the administration of the serum treatment for cholera. After that period of intensive activities the work was withdrawn to another section of the state, only general supervision being given to the original area.

During October a survey was made of the counties comprising the district in question, and a questionnaire was submitted to as many of the farmers as could be reached. Answers received and tabulated indicate that there has been a reduction in losses from cholera of over 72 per cent, and an increase of over 100 per cent in swine production, due to the protection offered by the immunization of the animals. There has also been a marked improvement in the type of this class of animals, due to the knowledge that it is possible to raise more and better hogs without danger of having them destroyed by cholera.

BRONCHITIS IN LITTLE PIGS

Not Much Can Be Done in Way of Treatment—Damp, Cold Pans Are Cause of Trouble.

Bronchitis most commonly occurs in young pigs. Matured hogs are seldom troubled with it. If it attacks very young pigs it often proves fatal, but pigs two or three months old will generally survive, though their growth may be seriously interfered with. The disease is accompanied by a distressing cough, which usually disappears with the advent of warm weather and outdoor exercise. Little can be done in the way of treatment. Dry pens free from drafts, nourishing feed and as much exercise as possible are the principal points to be observed. Damp, cold pens are the most common cause of this trouble.

MORE HOGS ARE NEEDED NOW

Every Farmer Must Put Forth Best Endeavors to Produce More Pork This Season.

If we expect to continue to provide meat to foreign peoples as well as our own people, every farmer must put forth his best effort to produce more hogs. Hogs can be kept profitably upon many farms where they are not found today. Farmers who already produce hogs can produce more, for there is not much chance of producing meat this year in excess of the requirements.

A TEXAS FAMILY'S EXPERIENCE

Galveston, Texas.—"After the flood in 1900 all my family became run-down, due to exposure of being in the water, loss of sleep, etc. They were all feeling miserable and the only medicine they took was Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By the use of this they were all restored to health and strength.

"I always keep the 'Pleasant Pellets' in my home. They are an excellent regulator of the stomach, liver and bowels, or for bilious attacks. I can speak in the highest terms of all of Dr. Pierce's Medicines."—Mrs. J. W. Moss, 3913 Ave. K.

Houston, Texas.—"All my life my liver has given me considerable trouble. I have suffered with sick headaches and have had yellow blotches appear all over my body. At one time I was so bad with it that I lost all ambition to do my housework and was really 'all in' when 'Golden Medical Discovery' was recommended to me by a friend. I took six bottles of it, which made me feel like a different woman. I consider Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery the very best liver medicine I have ever known, and have no hesitancy in recommending it to those afflicted with chronic liver ailments."—Mrs. C. A. Finn, 2214 Washington Ave.

MRS. ROY ALLEN

On the 6th day of May, 1920 about 10:30 a. m., the death angel visited the home of Roy Allen and took from him his wife Ethel. The direct cause of her death was pneumonia. She took to her bed Tuesday and gradually grew worse until Thursday when the end came. Her funeral was preached at the Nazarene church by Rev. S. L. Wood Friday, May 7, at 1 p. m., and the remains laid to rest in the Row cemetery.

She leaves behind a husband three sons, a twin brother, Arthur Kyser, and other relatives and a host of friends to mourn her death. All was done that medical aid and friends could do but God in His wisdom saw fit to take her. Ethel can not come back to us, but cheer up, we can go to meet her. And what a glorious meeting it will be over there! Ethel was kind and loving to all. It is awfully hard to give her up, but it was God's will for her to go. Oh, how sweet it will be when we can meet her in that Sweet Home Over There. No woman who ever lived in Hedley was more beloved by those who knew her. She was devoted to her family and her friends. She was big hearted,—the night was never too dark nor too cold for her to do a neighborly deed where she was needed. May the dear husband and children remember the sweet smiles with which she always greeted them. Oh, smiles will be no more until we meet Ethel up there, in that Home where there are no tears or pain.

FERTILE VALLEYS ONCE SEAS GIVING NATURE FAIR CHANCE

Naturalists of Opinion They Were Laid Bare by Great Convulsions of Nature.

Many of the most fertile valleys and plains in the world appear to be the bottoms of ancient lakes laid dry, an exit having been opened by some convulsion of nature. In some instances by mere gradual operations, for the waters that were previously enclosed by impenetrable barriers.

Most of the great rivers were formerly successions of lakes, like the St. Lawrence river in North America. The level spaces between the Allegheny mountains and other parallel chains appear to have been inland lakes, until the rivers which descend from these heights formed for themselves exits.

The Euxine and Caspian seas, as well as Lake Aral and several others, are the remains of an extensive sea, which covered the great part of the north of Asia, according to the belief of Peter Simon Pallas. It has been conjectured that the opening of the Bosphorus was the occasion of the draining of this ocean in the midst of Europe and Asia, the memory of this disruption of the two continents being preserved in the traditions of Greece.

Sluggard Quite Willing to Lie Abed While She Did a Good Job of Repair Work.

"Arise!" we said in a tone admirably adapted for declamatory purposes, addressing the sluggard, who was still slugging at an unreasonably late hour. "The lark is up to meet the sun. The bee is on the wing. Remember the manner in which the inexperienced schoolboy read aloud the admonition to Lucy: 'P's had been taught that when he encountered two letters of the same kind he should pronounce them 'double-o,' or what ever they might be, instead of 'a, o.' So he sternly recited, not 'Up, up up, Lucy! The sun is in the sky, and so forth. Why do you not do 'em up and to your tasks away?'"

"That is a very good story," replied the sluggard, "but it does not move me. We are told that nature does most of her repair work on us while we are in bed. It is my intention to lie here until she fixes me up so that I feel like going to work."

GOOD THINGS WORTH TRYING.

An inexpensive cake that is not at all common is:

Apple Cream Cake.—Take a half-cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, three eggs, four tablespoonfuls of milk, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar and half of a teaspoonful of soda. Mix as usual and bake in layers, using the following for filling:

Apple Cream.—Grate one good-sized apple; add the white of an egg, unbeaten, and one cupful of powdered sugar. Beat all together for 20 minutes, or until quite stiff; add almond or vanilla to flavor.

Bread Crumb Pudding.—Take two and one-half cupfuls of bread crumbs which have been put through a meat grinder, one cupful of sour milk, one-half cupful of shortening, two eggs (one will do), one teaspoonful of soda, one cupful of raisins, one cupful of any preserve, one cupful of sugar; add cinnamon to flavor. Steam two hours.

Prune Pudding.—Take one cupful of choice prunes which have been soaked over night, stone and chop fine; add the whites of three eggs and a cupful of sugar. Bake in a slow oven. Serve with cream.

Suet Pudding.—Take one cupful of finely chopped suet, one cupful each of molasses and sour milk, three and one-half cupfuls of flour, two beaten eggs, one cupful of raisins, one teaspoonful of soda and spices to taste. Steam two hours and serve with an egg sauce.

Date Pie.—Take half a pound of dates, cover with boiling water; remove pits and rub the dates until smooth; add one egg, three-quarters of a cupful of water, a bit of salt, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and a pint of milk, and bake in a crust like a custard pie. The dates may be stewed in the water until the pits show, then the same water used in the mixture.

Stuffed Eggs.—Remove the yolks from two hard-cooked eggs, mash the yolks and mix with two tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of anchovy paste. Add salt, pepper and cayenne, mix well and refill the whites. Serve in head lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Of all fruitless errands sending a tear to look after a day that is gone is the most fruitless.—Dickens.

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Even with very little space one may have a garden and, by having a new crop growing as the crop already matured is being used, there is always something green coming on.

Radishes and carrots may be sowed in the same row; the radishes when pulled will help to loosen the earth around the carrots, and as the radishes grow much faster they are out of the way before the carrots need the room. Vegetables that grow quickly and those that are slower of growth are best to sow together when space is very valuable. Where there is room a small herb bed will be an especial delight. Sage, summer savory, chervil, thyme, marjoram and other herbs will take but a small space and give back large yields of savory herbs which will be used all the year.

Peas can be planted a week apart for four or five crops, if one is fond of that delicious vegetable. Most all gardeners strive for the early varieties of vegetables, but they are not always as well flavored or as satisfactory as those that come a little later.

An asparagus bed, when once started, will bear for years with little care. Asparagus is one of the earliest of vegetables and almost universally well liked. A few cans may be put up for winter after the appetite has been partly satisfied, or when the bed produces abundantly. A can or two may be put up at a time, taking little time and labor.

A few horseradish plants should be placed in every garden; they will multiply and if enriched each year will grow for years.

One or two bladders of Rhus, or two more of the same, will grow in any country and will be a great help in the winter.

It is longer but not very long at the back. On spring and summer millinery flowers, grains, grasses and grapes are featured and many have streamers of silk or velvet ribbon. An example of these pretty trimmings—a revival of times gone by in the styles, appears in the hat of liscere braid with its sash of moire ribbon and clusters of flowers and grapes with wheat and grass among them.

Among the hats for midsummer there are many black ones of hair braid and malines or lace. Some of them have very wide brims and collars of velvet ribbon with a single long sash end. Sometimes two or three very long roses droop over the brim, and the variety of flowers and brims, show the variety of the hat. A lot of these hats are made in the city.

Established Modes in Afternoon Frocks

IF BUT one afternoon frock might be allowed in a wardrobe, we would find most women selecting black or dark blue satin as the material for making it. Every experienced woman knows a frock of this kind to be the most useful thing in her possession, and every year designers interpret the new styles in a variety of ways, using plain black or blue satin with the certain knowledge that the frocks will please. Foulards in black or dark color with white figures or in other color combinations which have been selected for illustration here, are both good examples of afternoon frocks made in these popular fabrics, and each has something new to recommend it. The black has a body cut in kimono style with round neck and short sleeves. The skirt is set onto this body with a wide tuck and is gathered at the hips where it is shaped into a deep curve. The new feature in this frock is the deep border at the bottom of the skirt of a machine-made smoking. The same smoking makes the cuffs. A narrow frill of fine lace at the neck and a girde of heavy silk cord, ending in a long and handsome tassel, measure up to the quality of the dress.

I SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Finally was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lowell, Mass.—"I was all run down and had an awful pain in my right side, was persistently constipated and had very dizzy spells. I suffered for three years and was perfectly miserable until a friend was telling me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I found it a wonderful medicine. I can now do twice as much work and I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other women. You can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. M. THEALL BESSEY, 136 Appleton Street, Lowell, Mass.

Why women will continue to suffer so long is more than we can understand, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound!

For forty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"HAVE I A CHANCE?"

Synopsis.—Dick Morgan of Syracuse, N. Y., a failure in life, enlisted in the Foreign Legion of the French army under the name of Henry Hilliard. He is disgraced by shrapnel. The French surgeons ask for a photograph to guide them in restoring his face. In his rage against life he offers in derision a picture postcard bearing the radiant face of Christ. The surgeons do a good job. On his way back to America he meets Martin Harmon, a New York broker. The result is that Morgan, under the name of Hilliard, goes back to Syracuse to sell a mining stock. He is determined to make good. He tells people of the death of Morgan. He finds in Angela Cullen a loyal defender of Dick Morgan. He meets Carol Durant, who had refused to marry him. She does not hesitate to tell him that she had loved Morgan. Hilliard finds he still loves her and is tempted to confess. Hilliard tempts Cullen, his former employer, with his mining scheme. He discovers a rival for Carol's love in a nice young fellow named Armstrong.

CHAPTER VIII.

For thirty days Hilliard had listened to the eulogies of his secret self. He had heard from a hundred sources the same belief repeated, that Dicky Morgan, given time and counsel, would have made the city as proud of him for his intrinsic worth as it now was proud of him for his military valor. This praise of Dicky Morgan had at first stunted Hilliard; after that, it had exalted him; still later, it had abused his soul. He had longed, ceaselessly, during that third period of his introspection, to take the city to his heart, to reveal himself, to answer for Dicky Morgan's failures and to pledge himself anew to the achievement which Dicky Morgan's friends had prophesied; and then he had been overwhelmed by the recollection that he had made this course impossible. If he had only known that all his deceptions were needless! If he had only known that Dicky Morgan could have come home, and been forgiven! What anguish he could have saved—and what repentance! And the problem was still the same—should he continue, safe in his masquerade, to the goal he had set for himself, or should he risk the worst, and save his conscience by renunciation?

By far the most distressing factor in this puzzle was his relationship to Carol Durant. He had seen her only half a dozen times during the month, and never alone—the fates or Armstrong had circumvented him—but he was head over heels in love with her again, and he sensed, from fugitive glances and a stray word or two on her part, that she wasn't entirely averse to him. But what would Carol think if she knew that this grave and tender stranger was hiding behind the wrath of Dicky Morgan—it was a thousand times the worse! If she were ever truly in love with Henry Hilliard, it was impossible!

slaughter against Mr. Cullen, and, after that, to gather subscribers where he chose. He said that Hilliard was wasting time, and ought to begin to collect signatures. Hilliard had mentioned, in a moment of indiscretion, the assistance which Angela had unconsciously given him, and Harmon had appraised it highly; but it angered him, when he saw this reference written down in Harmon's letter, to have her name brought into the instructions, even by implication. Still . . . had he not invited this upon himself?

It was in a dizzying quandary, then, that Hilliard kept his next appointment at the Durants'. The problem had grown so many branches, sent forth so many tentacles of bewildering confusion, that he hardly knew what to say, where to turn. His one consolation was that the miracle which had been performed upon him had given him a mask of impenetrable calm. At least, he didn't have to wear his forebodings on his countenance.

And yet, almost the first words Carol said to him were: "Something's troubling you, Mr. Hilliard." He was momentarily demoralized, and came near showing it—tried to pass it off with a laugh. "Did I make it as plain as all that?" "No," she said, "it wasn't plain at all."

His laugh was remarkably hollow, but he persisted in it. "Why, how did you think of it, then?" "Just from your eyes," she told him. "What's the matter? Anything I could help straighten out for you? Or couldn't I listen? That helps a lot, sometimes—" She dropped her eyes, and the color deepened in her cheeks. "Isn't there anything I can do?" she said. "Or . . . that father could? You frighten me . . ."

"I'm sorry. . . . No, please don't think of it. I ought to be shot if I've made you unhappy." The bitterness in his voice was acute; and by paradox, it was caused mainly by her sweet concern for him, and his realization of how little he deserved it.

"You always seem to be pushing the world away from you," she said, after a pause. "Why do you, Mr. Hilliard?" "I didn't know that I do," he said dispiritedly. "And it would be a queer thing for me to do deliberately, when I want your friendship more than anything else I can possibly imagine—wouldn't it?"

"But a woman," said Carol slowly, "almost always has to be a confidante before she becomes a friend. . . ."

was a phantasm which his brain reeled to contemplate! The lump in his throat came near to strangling him. It seemed to Hilliard that hours must have elapsed before he had the strength to rise, and cross the room. His brain was buffeted by wildly giddy passions; he was only partly aware that Carol, trying to rise from the bench, was wide-eyed and intuitive apprehension. Volition had gone from him; he was acting without reserve, without premeditation.

"Tell me!" he said thickly. "Have I got a chance? One in a hundred? One in a thousand? But a chance?" "Oh! . . . Mr. Hilliard!" Her plea was to his chivalry, and had to be. "Tell me . . . would I have . . . if I should share everything you—"

One hand was pressed close to her breast; the other was outstretched, defensive. "Don't! Don't! Don't spoil what—"

"You'll have to answer me. . . . I can't wait any longer. I'm not worth your little finger and I know it. . . . but I want a chance . . . just a fighting chance . . . you've got to answer me, Carol . . ."

She was trembling within reach of him, but it never occurred to him to touch her, and if it had, he would have refrained, out of sheer consciousness of his lack of right. His face, working tragically, averted her.

"Yes," she said, hardly above a whisper. "There's . . . one chance in a thousand. There's . . . that much, anyway."

His arms went out to her—stayed—dropped. He stepped backward, out of the danger zone. "Then I'll take it," he said.

She had given him a chance, on an implied condition which he could never meet. She had given him a chance—and what in the name of heaven could he do with it?

CHAPTER IX.

From the marbled dignity of the Trust and Deposit company, where he had bought a New York draft for fifteen thousand dollars, and smaller ones for ten and seven, Hilliard emerged presently to South Warren street, and stood there on the sidewalk for a moment, numbed by the first galvanizing consciousness of success.

He had come back resolved to win. In his second trial, the position he had failed to approximate in his first; he had set himself a commercial standard, and, gauged by it, he was advancing rapidly, for today's trio of subscriptions, added to Mr. Cullen's check of yesterday (and Mr. Cullen had acted as though he had gained a personal victory in persuading Hilliard to accept it), made up a glittering total, a stupendous total; and already Hilliard's earned commissions formed a sum to gloat about. Despised as a salesman, he had sold to four impartial business men the commodity hardest in all the world to sell. Scorned for his behavior, he had made his sales on the basis of a character which hadn't been questioned since the day of his arrival. His mind and his muscles demanded action; to relieve the pressure of his spirits, he set off vigorously, swinging exultant.

On impulse, he crossed the street for the purpose of patronizing a florist's, where, ignoring the conventional measure of the even dozen, he ordered a prodigious armful of American Beauties for Carol Durant. This done, and feeling very rich and independent, he rounded the righthand corner, and got himself greeted by two citizens of standing and importance who, in halting him, displayed a deference not ordinarily granted to the average resident of Hilliard's age. Would Hilliard condescend to speak at the next meeting and dinner of the Chamber of Commerce on France in wartime? Hilliard would. And this indication of his new-won status fired him afresh.

Logically enough, his swirling thoughts followed a well-worn trail which led him straight to Carol; and for the thousandth time he tried to set a future date, depending on the outcome of his mission here, at which he could confess, and ask forgiveness for his mummery, and simultaneously ask credit for his regeneration.

enough to me, Mr. Hilliard, to be worth taking time over—to be perfectly frank with you, I've got five hundred dollars I want to put in some high-class, gilt-edged speculation. Mr. Cullen gave me some pointers, and now I'm interested in your copper mine. Only—and this is where the hitch comes in—I've sort of got into the swing of the law, you know, and that makes men—well, what you might call judgmental. You get so you want to look at everything from all four sides. And I thought maybe because of the attending circumstances—you'd be kind enough to explain the whole thing to me. Would you?"

Hilliard, who didn't know whether to be touched or amused, compromised by nodding gravely. "There's one thing I'll have to tell you, though," he said; "I don't advise any one to gamble in copper mines, or anything else, Waring, unless that person could actually afford to lose his whole investment, and not be hurt."

"You Don't Mean to Say It Isn't a Sure Thing!"

And in this particular case, since I happen to control the situation, I won't permit it. Does that hit you, or doesn't it?"

The young man's mouth opened in amazement. He had been priming himself to be a clever investigator, and to pick yawning flaws in Hilliard's underwriting, and here his thunder was stolen before he had had a chance to stake the agis of his cleverness.

"Why—it isn't a gamble, is it? I understood—Mr. Cullen said—" "It's safer to figure it as a gamble, Waring. It's safe to figure all these things that way. Of course, we think it's a wonderful prospect, and a practically positive success, but I don't mind telling you that so far I haven't allowed a man who couldn't afford to lose his whole subscription—and didn't understand very clearly that he might—come in for so much as a plugged nickel. And that would apply to you, too."

The law student gasped, incredulous. "You don't mean to say it isn't a sure thing?" "Is any speculation? You see I'm not working very hard to take your five hundred away from you, Waring." The boy scowled.

"I suppose it's really too small for you to bother with. Is that what you're driving at?" Hilliard smiled cordially. "It is, and it isn't. From any one I didn't know, I'd rather not touch it. It isn't a good plan, ordinarily, to have a lot of small stockholders. But from you—and if it isn't more than you ought to risk—"

Waring snatched at the straw. "Well, seeing you're who you are, and I'm who I am, would you be willing to give me just as much information as you would if I had twenty times as much to put in?"

"Come up to the room," said Hilliard impulsively; and he was actuated solely by the obligation he felt toward all of Mr. Cullen's friends. "You come along up to the room, and I'll show you everything I've got. Will that do?"

At the last words the amateur detective had brightened. "You've come now very well. But I'll run up this evening. If you'll just as good . . . He held . . . took it . . . said I'm . . ."

blushed and jerked his head to the front; Hilliard chuckled and continued his stroll. He entered the Hotel Omondaga from the east and headed across toward the news-stand. Out of a red and gold chair in the spacious lobby a gentleman rose to meet him—a gentleman who in appearance was a very fair replica of the well-known Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford, except that he was somewhat more refined and less obese. His animation was obvious, but he delayed to remove both his gray suede gloves before he offered to shake hands with Hilliard.

"Well!" said Martin Harmon, effusively, "you're looking great! Must agree with you up here, what? Didn't expect me, did you?" "No!" Hilliard's expression was a study; he had dealt so long with Harmon on a distance that he had almost forgotten what the broker looked like. "Why didn't you wire me you were coming?"

"Didn't know it myself until pretty near train-time—spur of the moment. Well, got any business yet?" Involuntarily, Hilliard smiled, and the smile spread wonderfully, until Harmon caught the contagion of it and beamed more royally than ever. "The man you called the 'decoy duck'—remember when you wrote that to me?—well, he quacked yesterday."

Harmon put his hand on Hilliard's shoulder; it was an accolade. "Really? How much?" "Thirty." For the life of him Hilliard couldn't resist a slight forward thrust of his chest.

Mr. Harmon's eyes glazed for an instant. "Good—good! That's clever work, son! Clever and quick. But I knew you'd do it. Thirty! That's fine! Anybody else?" Hilliard laughed exultantly.

"Yes, three more—a total of sixty-two. I mailed you a draft yesterday morning; the others are in my pocket now. I've just come from the bank." "Great work, son!" Mr. Harmon breathed rapturously. "That puts us pretty nearly where we belong. Sixty-two thousand! It's a running start for the big race! You certainly didn't get left at the post, Hilliard! Deducted your commissions yet?"

"No; I thought you'd rather do the bookkeeping in your own office and send me a check." Harmon's approval was manifest. "You show me the drafts and I'll write you a check this minute. Let's go sit down in the grill, and have something. This is fine work, now I want to tell you!"

"I rather thought so myself." Hilliard had led the way to the grill and commandeered a side-table. "In fact—" He lowered his voice. "In fact, as things have worked out, Mr. Harmon, I almost wish I hadn't tried to play it just this way. I mean—"

But Harmon had already grasped the point. "Oh! Is that so? You must have made a hit. And all your old friends you were so hot up about—weren't they as peevish at you as you thought?" "No," Hilliard grew warm. "I'd give a good deal," he said soberly, "if I hadn't tangled myself up in all that limitation history. Well, I'm in for it now. I've published so much that I didn't need to—I'm wondering how in thunder I can ever get out of it when the time comes. That was the idea, you remember—coals of fire. What's bothering me is that there's nobody to tend the furnace."

"But I thought you were so anxious to keep in the sh—" Hilliard crawled in a hole, and pulled himself up. "Well, we'll wait and see. . . . I've gone a little further—and of course, you know I've hardly scratched the surface yet—"

"I know you haven't." The big man tucked his gloves into his breast pocket and brought out a silver cigarette case. "Have one?"

"A piece of d— worth— less prop—"

FOR COUNTY JUDGE

In confirmation of the rumor which has been afloat for some time, and of which we made mention in last week's Informer, Judge W. Z. Hoggard has made formal announcement of his candidacy for County Judge, and his name appears this week in the proper column. The Judge is well known, especially in this end of the county, and will make a vigorous campaign over the county before the primary.

As his campaign introductory, Judge Hoggard submits to the people the following letter:

To the Voters of Donley County, and all others who are friendly to the cause of right and justice:

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of County Judge of Donley county, Texas, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

I represent no gang or faction; I have no connections or affiliations, either partisan or political, which would in any wise embarrass the conduct of the office I seek. I have no hobby or prejudices toward party or power, and as an officer I sincerely believe in rendering an impartial and efficient service to all. I favor the enforcement of law and order irrespective of person, property or influence (prince or pauper).

Good people, if you will give me this office I will conduct it in a manner that you will never have cause to regret your generosity nor your judgement.

Neither will I ever be absent or unmindful of your friendship and the confidence that you place in me. Try me for the better, and I will serve you.

Respectfully yours, W. Z. Hoggard.

MACE FOR COMMISSIONER

In our announcement column may be found the name of E. B. Mace, who is a candidate for County Commissioner, precinct No. 3, which includes Hedley and Lelia Lake.

Mr. Mace has for a good many years been a prominent citizen of Lelia Lake and vicinity, and has always taken an active interest in community life and public affairs generally. He is a good roads enthusiast and has quite a good deal of experience of this nature.

WARNING!

Buy Your Coal Early!

Last winter you suffered some inconvenience, perhaps discomfort through inability to secure coal. All the elements contributing to this which existed last year still exist, only more so. Decreased, and Decreasing, Labor Supply; Irregularity and Unsteadiness of Labor; Certain and Unescapable Car Shortage ---

ARE FACTS.

THE MINES CANNOT PRODUCE THE REQUIRED COAL for the year unless working twelve months, not merely six. Your dealer has neither financial nor bin capacity to receive coal during the summer in sufficient quantities to protect you unless YOU help him by Early Buying.

IT IS YOUR DUTY

- To the miner, by keeping the mines in operation,
To the dealer, by supplementing his buying and storage ability,
To your family, by assuring your fuel supply,
To yourself, by buying when coal is cheapest,

TENSE PRESSURE ON HER HEAD

"My Sides, Back and Head Pained Me Just All the Time," Says Alabama Lady, Who Took Cardui and Got Well.

Uniontown, Ala.—"After the birth of my baby, I came near dying," writes Mrs. Maude Felts, of Uniontown. "I was in an awful condition. . . . It just looked like I would die.

"I couldn't bear anyone to even touch me, I was so sore, not even to turn me in bed. My sides, back and head all pained me just all the time.

"We had the doctor every day and he did everything he knew how, it looked like. Yet I lay there suffering such intense pains as seems I can't describe.

"Finally, I said to my husband, 'let us try Cardui' . . . He went for it at once, and before I had taken the first bottle the . . . came back, the soreness began to go away, and I began to mend. The intense pressure seemed all at once to leave my head, and before long I was up.

"I took three bottles and was well and strong and able to do my work. I believed Cardui saved my life. . . . I cannot praise it enough for what it did for me."

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop Eating Meat for a While if Your Bladder is Troubling You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician once or get from your pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; dissolve a teaspoonful in a glass of water for breakfast for a few days. Your kidneys will then act normally and urinous salts is made from grapes and lemon juice, and has been found to clean and soothe the kidneys, also to clean the bladder and thus ending bladder trouble.

HOME TOWN HELPS

URGES ALL TO OWN HOME

Secretary of Labor Wilson Gives Many Reasons Why Building Should Be Undertaken Now.

I want to see every worker own his own home.

A man can borrow money on what he puts into a home. He can't on what he pays out for rent.

Your bank will assist you to build a home.

Own a home for your children's sake.

Construction adds to the wealth of the country. Build now.

A comfortable home is the first step to independence. Any official of your bank will tell you more about it.

Let us make America a nation of home owners. The president of your bank will be glad to talk it over with you.

Save your money by building a home.

During the war it was patriotic not to build. Now we can best show our patriotism by building.

Add to the nation's wealth and your own resources by building a home. The officials of your bank will advise you how to finance it.

Let everyone employed on this job help set a pace that will make building popular and profitable.

Best efforts on this building will prove an inspiration for some one to erect another near-by.

"One good turn deserves another."

Good work here will encourage others to build.

Efficient work here will encourage others to build elsewhere.

Build now that city hall, courthouse, schoolhouse, church, factory, memorial. Build now.—W. B. Wilson, secretary of labor.

GET BUSY ON THAT GARDEN

Cultivation of Vegetables Just as Important This Year as It Was in 1919.

With springtime, we ought to have a revival of interest in gardens. For, whatever the paragraphs may have said about the war gardens, the fact is that they did a lot of good. We ought to have more of them this year than we have ever had; there will be just as much need for them. The war gardens did not receive the credit to which they were entitled. Few people appreciated just how much they helped the nation. Funny stories were told concerning them; facetious remarks were made in connection with those who undertook to grow a little food in the backyard. But every vegetable brought to maturity contributed just that much to cutting the cost of living for the producer.

There is no reason to believe that garden vegetables will be cheaper this year than they were last year. There is every indication, in fact, that they will be fully as high or higher. It is going to cost just as much to produce the vegetables; labor is no cheaper this spring than it was last spring—nor is anything else. So it will be well for people who have a plot of ground to begin figuring upon growing something upon it, and this is the season to do the figuring.—Columbus Dispatch.

Many More Gardens Needed.

Thousands of families learned the value of home gardens in wartime. United States department of agriculture specialists believe it essential that these families' interest be maintained and that other thousands be added to the home-food producers. "Now is the time to begin making plans for your 1920 thrift garden," these specialists declare. "First, locate a piece of suitable land; second, make your plan; third, get your seeds; fourth, start work at the earliest possible moment."

A request to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., will bring a booklet that will tell how to plan your garden, how much seed to buy, how to get the land in shape for cultivation, how to take every other step in the process of making your back yard or some other vacant lot help feed you.

Old Prediction Verified.

Utilization of the Nile as a source of Palestine's water supply, predicted thousands of years ago, when the ancients were combating the same problem, was accomplished by a remarkable engineering achievement of General Allenby's army. Pipes were laid from the "sweet water canal" near Kantara, which has its source in the Nile, and water pumped at the rate of several million gallons a day across the Suez canal, through the desert, supplies the lower part of Palestine.

LIFT OFF CORNS WITH FINGERS

Doesn't hurt a bit and costs only few cents

Magic! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers! Truly! No humbug!

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.—Adv.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

"Say, is a shipment of liquor to go on this vessel?" "No; this vessel is going to a dry dock."

STOMACH TROUBLE AND CONSTIPATION ENDED

Suffered So He Couldn't Work for a Year, but Mr. McCormick Was Cured Promptly.

"I had stomach trouble and constipation for five years. One year of this time I was unable to work, suffering untold agony. I doctored with some of the best physicians, also took many proprietary medicines, but could not find permanent relief. Finally a friend recommended Milks Emulsion. The first few doses relieved me greatly, and three bottles of it effected a permanent cure."—C. A. McCormick, Anderson, Ind.

Mr. McCormick is only one of many hundreds who have endured torture for years and then found that Milks Emulsion gives blessed relief and real, lasting benefit. It costs nothing to try.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy and natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.50 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.
