relieve the dry, parched condition of the skin which comes with exposure to the weather. The cold cream is a cleansing and healing cream and leaves the skin soft. To do the most good it should be applied at night. On dry skins it may be used as a foundation for powder. Marcelle Vanishing Cream is the better cream for daytime use and as a foundation for face powder, as it is greaseless and cannot reappear through the powder in a shine. The creams are on sale in both tubes and jars.

HEDLEY NEEDS BETTER WATER SUPPLY

As has been the case at this season for several years past, there is much talk on the streets about a waterworks system for Hedley. Up to the present time the matter has never gotten beyond the talking stage, so far as we have learned, notwithstanding the fact that a water shortage stares us in the face every summer.

Hedley must have a water and sewerage system. Our health and safety demand it. We may sit and talk, with folded arms, a lifetime and never get them. Action—concerted action—is needed, if we are to save ourselves from worry and expense, and probably worse things.

MUCH STUFF RAISED IN HEDLEY COUNTRY

Onions and beets are being raised this year in surprisingly large quantities in the vicinity of Hedley, bringing new increment into the circulation of this place.

Some prodigious yields are being recorded. For instance, Zeb Land, residing three miles from town, has harvested 12,900 pounds of fine onions from a 2½ acre tract, making an average of 5,160 pounds to the acre. The onions average 1 4 pounds each.

Land also has 1½ acres of large red turnip beets that will bring him somewhat more than $200 profit. He has also fifty acres of cotton, 35 acres of pure feed kafir and milo maize. All these crops are being made on sub irrigated land that insures production.

Donley county has several thousand acres of this naturally moistened land, most of it being in the vicinity of Hedley. Much of it is being developed each year.

Hedley is expected to gather 6000 bales of cotton this season. Though live stock has been a leading industry since the first settler came, the poultry business has outclassed it. Just a few days ago a solid carload of chickens and eggs was sent out. More money has been realized by the farmers from their poultry products than from their hogs and cattle—though the latter have been exceedingly large. —From the Star Telegram.

LOSES FINGER

T. F. Heath, while working on his windmill tower one day the past week, happened to an accident which resulted in the loss of a part of the third finger on his left hand. It was done so quickly that he can't tell exactly how it happened. The injury is causing him much pain. We hope it will soon be relieved.

SCHOOLS BUILDING IN DONLEY COUNTY

Hedley's new $50,000 school building is nearing completion, though owing to delays in material shipments it will possibly not be ready for occupancy before October 1st. But it will mark a long forward step for Hedley when it is ready.

Much work of this nature is going on a lover Donley county. Jericho and Goldston have just completed buildings at a cost of $12,500 each. Lelia Lake is now making $12,000 worth of improvements. And Clarendon is spending about $75,000 for a new high school building and remodeling the ward school. This will give Clarendon three schools, besides Clarendon College.

This year's census shows an increase in scholastics all over the county, and Clarendon College is expecting a big year.

Donley is coming to the front along school lines.

JIM EVERETT HURT

Our good friend Jim Everett, of the Fort Worth & Denver rail way, suffered a rather serious accident Monday evening. He was coming in on the motor car, when one end of a crow bar worked loose, struck the ties and bounded back, striking Mr. Everett across the forehead and inflicting a bad wound. He was taken to the company hospital in Fort Worth Tuesday evening. We hope for a favorable report from him right away.

FRUIT PUNCH IS MOST DELICIOUS

Need for Refreshing Drink Begins About the Time of Strawberry Festivals.

DIFFERENT BERRIES USEFUL

Recipe Given Herewith Can Be Varied According to the Fruits Available—Red Raspberry Flavor Will Dominate.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The need for a refreshing fruit punch begins about the time that the popular gathering known as a "strawberry festival" is in season, and continues long after strawberries are gone and other fruits must be depended on. The recipe given below can be varied somewhat according to the fruits available. If there are not enough strawberries on hand, part blackberry and part raspberry juice may be used. As the season advances other fruit juices may be substituted according to the preferences of the persons mixing the punch. A relatively small amount of red raspberry flavor will dominate a great deal of strawberry or other fruit juices. About the same proportion of lemons, sugar, ginger ale, and other ingredients should be used, but variations in the amounts of sugar and lemon juice may be necessary, according to the ripeness and character of the fruit used and the tastes of those to be served. This recipe is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Fruit Punch.

Strawberry juice, 16 cupsful. Water for sirup, 2 1/2 cupsful. Lemons, 2 1/2 dozen. Apollinaris water, 2 quarts. Salt, 1 teaspoonful. Sugar, added to berries, 2 pounds. Tea (strong) 2 pints. Sugar, made into sirup, 3 pounds. to 4 lbs. or more.

Crush the strawberries with a potato masher, add 2 pounds of sugar, let stand 2 or 3 hours or overnight. (About 6 quart boxes will be needed to make 10 cupsful of juice.) Then heat rapidly in order to make the juice flow, for 2 or 3 minutes over a hot flame, stirring constantly; be careful not to cook long enough to destroy the fresh fruit flavor. Allow to drip through a jelly bag in order to secure a bright red clear juice. Combine with other ingredients except the carbonated waters, and let stand for an hour or two, in the refrigerator, if possible. When ready to serve, add ice as may be necessary, and the Apollinaris water and ginger ale last of all.

Salt Intensifies Flavor.

The small quantity of salt called for is to intensify the fruit flavors. It does not otherwise change the flavor of the beverage. The sugar and water should be boiled together for 5 minutes and cooled before adding. This syrup will blend with the other ingredients better than will ordinary granulated sugar. The amount given will serve 60 persons.

MAKE BUTTERMILK LEMONADE

Refreshing Beverage May Be Made by Adding Lemon Juice—Some Variations Given.

Buttermilk lemonade can be made by adding to each glass of buttermilk two tablespoonfuls of sugar. The whey from cheese making may be utilized in a beverage as well as buttermilk.

Whey Lemonade and Punch.

1 quart whey. Slices of lemon or 4 tablespoonfuls sa. a little grated or gar. diced rind, nutmeg. Juice of 2 lemons. or cinnamon.

Mix, chill, and serve as a beverage. Variations.—Double the quantity of lemon juice and of sugar, and add other fruit juices and a little fruit cut in small pieces. This transforms when lemonade into whey punch. Set the punch away to chill and ripen; serve with crushed ice if desired. Rhubarb, pineapple, grape, currant and cherry juices lend themselves well to whey punch. A sprig of freshly crushed mint is sometimes added. Nutmeg or cinnamon will overcome any characteristic whey flavor. Whey punch may be frozen if desired.

LABELS FOR CANNED GOODS ARE FAVORED

Information Will Be Wanted During Winter Season.

Not Always Easy Matter to Remember History of Each Jar or Can—Printed Signs Should Have All Necessary Data.

After a busy ten or twelve hours of canning, a woman is inclined to think that anything else added on to the day's work would be just a little too much. However, tomorrow is another day and one can then usually find an hour or so in which to label all yesterday's cans with the information that will be wanted next winter.

It would seem wise to do this, according to the office of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, for though at the time of canning we may think we shall always recognize every jar and remember its history, when winter comes we may often be doubtful, until we open a jar, whether it holds blackberries or black raspberries, or whether a certain glass of jelly is plum or currant.

Labels may either be purchased or made at home by cutting plain paper in pieces about 1 by 2 inches; they should have all the necessary data printed or written on them and then they should be pasted on the jars at a uniform distance from the bottom. For example, two such labels might read:

PEACHES
COLD PACK THIN SIRUP
SEPTEMBER, 1921.

GRAPE JELLY
1ST EXTRACTION
SEPTEMBER, 1921.

Fruit, vegetables, and other canned goods should not only be carefully put up and labeled, but they should also be carefully stored. This means that a clean, cool, dark place should be provided. A cupboard with strong, rather shallow shelves and close-fitting doors will protect the products from dust, dirt, and light. If the shelves are wide enough to hold only a row, or at the most two rows of cans, it will be easy to find any particular can which one may happen to be looking for, and such an arrangement will also make the detection of any spoiled goods an easy matter.

Moreover, with a closed cupboard such as this, it will not be necessary to wrap glass jars of strawberries, peaches, and other fruits and vegetables that fade when exposed to the light.

BISCUIT CUTTER IS USEFUL

No Special Directions Are Needed for Using Little Tool for Mixing Fat and Flour.

For combining shortening with flour in making pie crust, cutting it in with knives is a hygienic improvement that is considered better than the time-honored method of mixing it in with the tips of the fingers. Moreover, aside from hygienic considerations, handling the dough too much makes a tough crust.

The office of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has lately employed a third method of mixing fat and flour, which is to cut in the fat with the biscuit cutter.

No special directions are needed to guide the cook who would adopt this simple little tool for this purpose. The fat is added to the sifted flour and salt and the two are chopped together more or less thoroughly, depending upon the quality of pie crust desired. The water is added and the biscuit cutter is used again to combine the water with the fat-and-flour mixture.

Having discovered one new way of using an old tool, the office of home economics saw these other possibilities:

Use it to mix fat and flour for baking-powder biscuits.

Use it to chop fruit, when the fruit is to be used on shortcake, in making jelly or jam, or as sauce for ice cream.

Use it to chop cold, boiled potatoes for hash or salad.

Household Questions

A chair with a broad arm is a great comfort when telephoning.

Moths are said to have a special dislike for newspaper bags.

Roll a few gratings of cheese into the crust when making apple pie.

After using steel wool, used for scouring pots and pans, place it over the stove to dry.

Coffee will be better if one or two cups are poured off and back again just before serving.

When cutting cake that is warm dip the knife in water. The pieces will be smooth and firm.

Peach dumplings may be made the same as apple dumplings, using peaches instead of apples.

SENSIBLE BATHING SUITS; MANY QUAIN REVIVALS

THERE are bathing suits and bathing suits, some of them destined by their designers for bathers who "go out to swim," and others apparently for those who "hang their clothes on a hickory limb but don't go near the water." These last are the colorful and interesting beach suits, made to be cool and worth looking at. Between the regulation swimming suits and the beach suits are all those sensible and practical bathing suits of knitted or woven wool, like those shown in the picture, that are worn by the great majority of people. For all their sports women have come to demand sensible and comfortable clothes, but they insist that the element of style be not forgotten in any of them. Therefore, manufacturers see to it that even bathing suits are attractive as well as practical, and designers have an eye to the several types of figures to be suited. The average figure looks well in a regulation bathing suit. They are made with varied neck lines and arm-eyes, and many other little details are managed to help out in the matter of becomingness.

The pretty suit at the left of the two pictured is made of dark blue wool jersey and has knee length trunks attached to a form-fitting overgarment that reaches nearly to the knees. It has a round neck line and wide, shaped shoulder straps that butt

Spangles still twinkle and painted flowers still bloom on these gauze and lace fans and they vary greatly in size and shape. Very pretty little affairs are made by painting small palmleaf fans a light color, binding them with narrow satin ribbon skirled on and winding the handles with ribbon. ### ADVICE TO IDIOTS

Bishop Hughes was talking about agnosticism at a luncheon in Portland.

"An agnostic asked me once," he said, "if I didn't come across a good many things in the Bible I couldn't understand.

IT'S THE TRUTH

Did you ever hear of a really good and useful citizen moving to a town that was dead, if they knew it? No. And you never will if that citizen is on to the matter. The first thing progressive citizens want to know, when they come to your town with the prospect of locating, is whether or not you have good schools, live churches, forward looking business men, and red blooded citizens. They are not interested about taxes, for they had them where they came from. They are not at all interested in the "local character" who sits around on the street and predicts the ruin of all the people of the town who are really trying to do something. They care less about the neighborhood gossip, and if you want to land a citizen like the above, don't even introduce him to the local character, the gossip, or the fellow that never lays his little hammer aside. Such characters always cause a progressive man to have a serious vomiting spell.—The Brownfield Herald.

Articles Appearing in The Informer Prepared by U. S. Department of Agriculture

Of the many valuable features which The Informer has arranged for as part of its service, the articles on various departments of household economy are probably as informative as any other.

These articles are prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture, and experts in the various departments of home activity are assigned to the different subjects.

Comprehensive illustrations accompany the articles, giving them an added value, and the text is written in understandable style while explaining all details. Smaller articles of value accompany the main "stories" each week which embrace many phases of home life.

Women of Hedley should not let an issue of The Informer go by without reaping the benefit to be had from its "Household" department.

By F. A. WALKER

VACANT HOUSES

IN THEIR grave solitude and desolation, vacant houses are pathetic reminders of empty minds, neglected and forgotten by those able to take best care of them.

On old country roads you may often see such habitations, seemingly eager to profit by a smile of welcome, but quite unable to do it.

Rank weeds are about the doors, the walls are weather-worn and stained, presenting altogether a sad picture.

And these vacant houses started gayly in life; warm in friendship and love, full of hope and aspiration. As the years rolled by they dreamed less and finally sank into a hopeless state of despondency.

You may like vacant houses or not, but there they are, telling in a language of their own of the days that are departed and the joys that are done.

And what happens to vacant houses happens in a far more lamentable way to empty minds, whose owners habitually neglect them, and pay for their disregard the sharpest penalties, at a time when their own reward should be munificent.

If you are wilfully neglecting your mind, allowing the weeds to grow about the doorway, you will find some day that you are living in solitude in a dreary dwelling, from which your friends of old turn away in sadness.

You were so self-reliant in your youth that you did not care to enlarge and beautify your thoughts.

Gradually you neglected this important duty until the weeds grew and crowded out the flowers. Too proud to stand up straight and stretch out your arms to embrace knowledge, you sat down in idleness or shirked your opportunity.

Being now your own witness and your own judge, there is alas! no possible escape from punishment.

The world has moved on and left you behind in a wilderness of mold and darkness, where you have time to reflect and repent.

But, be it known, whatever your age, you may yet improve your vacant house and make it a thing of beauty.

Women, as a rule, can do this more readily than men, yet men at forty and fifty have been known to form studious habits and flood their old vacant houses with light until its brilliancy illuminated up the whole world!

YOUR HAND

How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies—the Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm

A BUSINESS PERSON'S HAND

IN THE hand of a good man or woman of business the fingers are well opened, when held naturally, this showing versatility and self-confidence. The mount of Mars, which lies below the mount of Mercury (the latter is at the base of the little finger), should be strong and well-marked, because this indicates courage and willingness to take risks when necessary.

An exceptionally favorable sign for a man or woman of business is a tripod, or three-pronged division of the line of fate at its end. The line of fate runs up the center of the hand. This sign shows great success in business. If the finger of Mercury is unusually long, in proportion to the other fingers, it shows acquisitiveness and care of money, and is therefore a good sign for a business person. If there is a short line running upward from the line of life to or toward the finger of Jupiter, which is the index or first finger, it is a sign of ambition that is or will be gratified. Last, look in the center of the palm for a triangle that is well formed. This indicates forethought and intuition, valuable qualities in business.

Leave no time for sorrow;
On them better fix your gaze—
Today and tomorrow.

Don't waste time in fretting
For lost hours;
Don't waste time regretting
The lost flowers.
Better hours are growing
Than memory can borrow;
Sweeter flowers are blowing
Today and tomorrow.

Don't waste time repining
O'er bad days;
Don't waste time declining
The good ways.
Smile and look around you,
And new courage borrow;
Better days surround you—
Today and tomorrow.

HOW THEY DO IT

SPENDING your days addressing to the world at large the question: "How do they do it?" is not going to bring you any information.

You will see in your travels the banker, the railroad president, the painter, the author all respected, all useful, all getting a great deal out of a life that they have, each in their own way, made easier for others.

You will read, perhaps, that this man started on a farm, that the other began as an office boy, that the railroad president once wiped engines on the line which he now rules.

And if you are normal the question "How do they do it?" will occur to you very frequently.

For these men will look much like other men; they will talk like other men. They will have the same interest in baseball scores and the outcome of a big prize fight.

And it will be difficult for you to understand just what it was that placed them in the high positions they occupy, and kept them there.

The answer to your question is fortunately not inaccessible. You can find out how they do it, if you try.

Nearly all of them have written, or will write, exactly how they did it or if they do not they will tell others who will put it on paper for you to see.

And you will be very much surprised to discover that in most cases the one thing that did it was application and industry—in other words hard work.

Geniuses are men apart. They don't know how they do it, and they can't tell.

But successful business men and lawyers and doctors are not geniuses, they are merely men with good natural ability, and enough energy to keep working till they get what they are after.

Study and read their biographies wherever you find them. They will answer for you a very important question. And if they can help you just a little toward exerting more energy and cherishing a little higher purpose, the time you spend in reading about them will be paid for at the rate of many thousand dollars an hour.

VARIATIONS OF STANDARD SALAD DRESSINGS.

MAYONNAISE dressing should be thick like whipped cream, and remain so for a long time, if kept in a cool place. Olive oil is by far the most tasty to use in making mayonnaise, but corn oil makes a very good substitute, and as far as appearance is concerned, is equally as good.

To vary mayonnaise add to three-fourths of a cupful, two tablespoonfuls of tomato puree; this is tomato cooked down until very thick and put through a sieve.

Piquante mayonnaise—add two tablespoonfuls of chopped olives and pickles.

Cream mayonnaise is prepared by adding three or four tablespoonfuls of whipped cream to three-fourths of a cupful of mayonnaise.

Chutney mayonnaise—add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of chutney.

Connely mayonnaise—add one-half cupful of cold boiled rice.

Thousand layer dressing—to one cupful of mayonnaise add one-half cupful of salad oil, very slowly; one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika, one tablespoonful of chopped chives, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of green peppers, chopped; and one-third of a cupful of chili sauce.

Russian dressing—to one cupful of mayonnaise add three tablespoonfuls of chili sauce, two tablespoonfuls of pimento cut in small pieces, one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, one teaspoonful of chopped chives and three-fourths of a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce.

Lemon Filling.

Boil together five minutes one cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of melted butter, one-half cupful of water and the juice of two lemons. Add two well-beaten eggs. Beat well; cool before using.

Butter Scotch.

Take one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth of a cupful of milk. Boil until it hairs. Use on spice cake.

Fig Filling.

Cook one cupful of chopped figs in one-half cupful of water, the juice of a lemon and when cool stir in powdered sugar until thick. Use on layer cake.

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

TWO DAYS AFTER THANKSGIVING

The violinist has got a rival. I'm sure he has. It's Mr. Easterbrook. He's old—much as forty—and bald-headed and fat, and has got lots of money. And he's a very estimable man. (I heard Aunt Hattie say that.) He's awfully jolly, and I like him. He brings me the loveliest boxes of candy, and calls me Puss. (I don't like that, particularly. I'd prefer him to call me Miss Anderson.) He's not nearly so good-looking as the violinist. The violinist is lots more thrilling, but I shouldn't wonder if Mr. Easterbrook was more comfortable to live with.

The violinist is the kind of a man that makes you want to sit up and take notice, and have your hair and finger nails and shoes just right; but with Mr. Easterbrook you wouldn't mind a bit sitting in a big chair before the fire with a pair of old slippers on. If your feet were tired.

Mr. Easterbrook doesn't care for music. He's a broker. He looks awfully bored when the violinist is playing, and he fidgets with his watch-chain, and clears his throat very loudly just before he speaks every time. His automobile is bigger and handsomer than the violinist's. (Aunt Hattie says the violinist's automobile is a hired one.) And Mr. Easterbrook's flowers that he sends to Mother are handsomer, too, and lots more of them, than the violinist's. Aunt Hattie has noticed that, too. In fact, I guess there isn't anything about Mr. Easterbrook that she doesn't notice.

Aunt Hattie likes Mr. Easterbrook lots better than she does the violinist. I heard her talking to Mother one day.

ONE WEEK LATER

There hasn't much happened—only one or two things. But maybe I'd better tell them before I forget it, especially as they have a good deal to do with the love part of the story. And I'm always so glad to get anything of that kind. I've been so afraid this wouldn't be much of a love story, after all. But I guess it will be, all right. Anyway, I know Mother's part will be for it's getting more and more exciting—about Mr. Easterbrook and the violinist, I mean.

They both want Mother. Anybody can see that now, and, of course, Mother sees it. But which shall take I don't know. Nobody knows. It's perfectly plain to be seen, though, which one Grandfather and Aunt Hattie want her to take! It's Mr. Easterbrook.

And he is awfully nice. He brought me a perfectly beautiful bracelet the other day—but Mother wouldn't let me keep it. So he had to take it back. I don't think he liked it very well, and I didn't like it, either. I wanted that bracelet. But Mother says I'm much too young to wear much jewelry. Oh, will the time ever come when I'll be old enough to take my proper place in the world? Sometimes it seems as if it never would!

Well, as I said, it's plain to be seen who it is that Grandfather and Aunt Hattie favor; but I'm not so sure about Mother. Mother acts funny. Sometimes she won't go with either of them anywhere; then she seems to want to go all the time. And she acts as if she didn't care which she went with, so long as she was just going—somewhere. I think, though, she really likes the violinist the best; and I guess Grandfather and Aunt Hattie think so, too.

Something happened last night. Grandfather began to talk at the dinner table. He'd heard something he didn't like about the violinist, I guess, and he started in to tell Mother. But they stopped him. Mother and Aunt Hattie looked at him and then at me, and then back to him, in their best see-who's-here!—you mustn't-talk-before-his-way. So he shrugged his shoulders and stopped.

ONE WEEK LATER

Well, I guess now something has happened all right! And let me say right away that I don't like that violinist now, either, any better than Grandfather and Aunt Hattie. And it's not entirely because of what happened last night, either. It's been coming on for a while—ever since I first saw him talking to Theresa in the hall when she let him in one night a week ago.

Theresa is awfully pretty, and I guess he thinks so. Anyhow, I heard him telling her so in the hall, and she laughed and blushed and looked sideways at him. Then they saw me, and he stiffened up and said, very proper and dignified, "Kindly hand my card to Mrs. Anderson." And Theresa said, "Yes, sir." And she was very proper and dignified, too.

Well, four days ago I saw them again. He tried to put his arm around her that time, and the very next day he tried to kiss her, and after a minute she let him. More than once, too. And last night I heard him tell her she was the dearest girl in all the world, and he'd be perfectly happy if he could only marry her.

Well, you can imagine how I felt, when I thought all the time it was Mother he was coming to see! And now to find out that it was Theresa he wanted all the time, and he was only coming to see Mother so he could see Theresa!

Of course, so far, I'm the only one that knows, for I haven't told it, and I'm the only one that's seen anything. Of course, I shall warn Mother, if I think it's necessary, so she'll understand it isn't her, but Theresa, that the violinist is really in love with and courting. She won't mind, I'm sure, after she thinks of it a minute. And won't it be a good joke on Aunt Hattie and Grandfather when they find out they've been fooled all the time, supposing it's Mother, and worrying about it?

Oh, I don't know! This is some love story, after all!

TWO DAYS LATER

What do you suppose has happened now? Why, that wretched violinist is nothing but a deep-dyed villain! Listen what he did. He proposed to Mother—actually proposed to her—and after all he'd said to that Theresa girl, about his being perfectly happy if he could marry her. And Mother—Mother all the time not knowing! Oh, I'm so glad I was there to rescue her! I don't mean at the proposal—I didn't hear that. But afterward.

It was like this: They had been out automobiling—Mother and the violinist. I was in my favorite window-seat, reading, when they came home and walked into the library. They never looked my way at all, but just walked toward the fireplace. And there he took hold of both her hands and said:

"Why must you wait, darling? Why can't you give me my answer now, and make me the happiest man in all the world?"

"Yes, yes, I know," answered Mother; and I knew by her voice that she was all shaky and trembling. "But if I could only be sure—sure of myself."

"But, dearest, you're sure of me!" cried the violinist. "You know how I love you. You know you're the only woman I have ever loved, or ever could love!"

"Why Must You Wait, Darling?"

Yes, just like that he said it—that awful lie—and to my mother. My stars! Do you suppose I waited to hear any more? I guess not!

I fairly tumbled off my seat, and my book dropped with a bang, as I ran forward. Dear, dear, but how they did jump—both of them! And I guess they were surprised. I never thought how't was going to affect them—my breaking in like that. But I didn't wait—not a minute. I just started right in and began to talk. And I talked hard and fast, and lots of it.

I don't know now what I said, but I know I asked him what he meant by saying such an awful lie to my mother, when he'd just said the same thing, exactly "most, to Theresa, and he'd hugged her and kissed her, and everything. I'd seen him. And—

But I didn't get a chance to say half I wanted to. I was going on to tell him what I thought of him; but Mother gasped out, "Marie! Marie! Stop!"

And then I stopped. I had to, of course. Then she said that would do, and I might go to my room. And I went. And that's all I know about it, except that she came up, after a little, and said for me not to talk any more about it, to her, or to any one else; and to please try to forget it.

I tried to tell her what I'd seen, and what I'd heard that wicked, deep-dyed villain say; but she wouldn't let me. She shook her head, and said, "Hush, hush, dear!" and that no good could come of talking of it, and she wanted me to forget it. She was very sweet and very gentle, and she smiled; but there were stern corners to her mouth, even when the smile was there. And I guess she told him what was what. Anyhow, I know they had quite a talk before she came up to me, for I was watching at the window for him to go; and when he did go he looked very red and cross, and he stalked away with a never-will-I-darken-this-door-again kind of step, just as far as I could see him.

I don't know, of course, what will happen next, nor whether he'll ever come back for Theresa; but I shouldn't think even she would want him, after this, if she found out.

And now, where's my love story coming in, I should like to know?

TWO DAYS AFTER CHRISTMAS

Another wonderful thing has happened. I've had a letter from Father—from Father!—a letter—me!

It came this morning. Mother brought it in to me. She looked queer—a little. There were two red spots in her cheeks, and her eyes were very bright.

"I think you have a letter here from—your father," she said, handing it out.

I could see she was wondering what could be in it. But I guess she wasn't wondering any more than I was, only I was gladder to get it than she was, I suppose. Anyhow, when she saw how glad I was, and how I jumped for the letter, she drew back, and looked somehow as if she'd been hurt, and said:

"I did not know, Marie, that a letter from—your father would mean so much to you."

I don't know what I did say to that. I guess I didn't say anything. I'd already begun to read the letter, and I was in such a hurry to find out what he'd said.

I'll copy it here. It wasn't long. It was like this:

"My Dear Marie:
"Some way Christmas has made me think of you. I wish I had sent you some gift. Yet I have not the slightest idea what would please you. To tell the truth, I tried to find something—but had to give it up."

"I am wondering if you had a good time, and what you did. After all, I'm pretty sure you did have a good time, for you are Marie now. You see, I have not forgotten how tired you got of being—Mary. Well, well, I do not know as I can blame you."

"And now that I have asked what you did for Christmas, I suspect it is no more than a fair turnout to tell you what I did. I suppose I had a very good time. Your Aunt Jane says I did. I heard her telling one of the neighbors that last night. She had a very fine dinner, and she invited Mrs. Darling and Miss Snow and Miss Sanborn to eat it with us. She said she didn't want me to feel lonesome. But you can feel real lonesome in a crowd sometimes. Did you know that, Marie?"

"But I left them to their chatter after dinner and went out to the observatory. I think I must have fallen asleep on the couch there, for it was quite dark when I awoke. But I didn't mind that, for there were some observations I wanted to take. It was a beautifully clear night, so I stayed there till nearly morning."

"How about it? I suppose Marie plays the piano every day, now, doesn't she? The piano here hasn't been touched since you went away. Oh, yes, it was touched once. Your aunt played hymns on it for a missionary meeting."

"Well, what did you do Christmas? Suppose you write and tell

"Your Father."

I'd been reading the letter out loud, and when I got through Mother was pacing up and down the room. For a minute she didn't say anything; then she whirled round suddenly and faced me, and said, just as if something inside of her was making her say it:

"I notice there is no mention of your mother in that letter, Marie. I suppose—your father has quite forgotten that there is such a person in the world as—"

But I told her no, oh, no, and that I was sure he remembered her, for he used to ask me questions often about what she did, and the violinist and all. "The violinist!" cried Mother, whirling around on me again. (She'd begun to walk up and down once more.) "You don't mean to say you ever told your father about him?"

"Oh, no, not everything," I explained, trying to show how patient I was, so she would be patient, too. (But it didn't work.) "I couldn't tell him everything because everything hadn't happened then. But I told about his being here, and about the others, too; but, of course, I said I didn't know which you'd take, and—"

"You told him you didn't know which I'd take!" gasped Mother. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

After Election.

Plain Jane Dare

By ROSE MEREDITH

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Jane Dare is the plain one of the family," people usually remarked when the question of beauty arose. "Celia is lovely, Abigail is fascinating, Emma is a little witch—but poor Jane with her brilliant hair and dull eyes is hopelessly plain!"

Jane knew it, and resented it, but kept her hurt feelings hushed to her own bosom. If one cared enough about her to unlock the plain portals of her heart and soul—so be it! She was the middle one of the family of four motherless girls, and she was the housekeeper, the home maker. The others had careers. Jane couldn't be spared for a career.

Celia had a voice—Celia was musical—she had worshippers by the dozen. Abigail was a high school teacher, and Emma was a trained nurse.

"Jane is a wonderful cook—a perfect housekeeper!" Celia would praise. "Wonderful!" Abigail would echo. "Perfect!" chimed Emma.

Jane was happy most of the time, but she did long to do things—great things—meet interesting people; sometimes she thought wistfully she might have been a writer, if she had had a chance for development. However, she did sell some recipes, and carefully prepared articles on home making to some of the women's magazines, and her prestige rose in the family.

One winter Celia became engaged to the minister. Shortly after that Abigail attracted the attention of Professor Rodney of a near-by college, and Emma might have married any one of her patients any day!

"Jane would make some man a splendid wife and housekeeper—she is wonderful," Celia would sigh.

"Wonderful," Abigail and her professor would echo.

"Perfect," Emma would add, thus placing her laurel wreath on Jane's red hair.

"Rubbish!" Jane would groan dismally.

Today Jane was in a state of inward revolt. Celia had telephoned that she would bring the minister home to dinner; Abigail had sent word that the professor would be there and would Jane please have a prune whip for dessert, and last of all, Emma called up to say that she was bringing some one with her.

"O—mercy!" she gasped, as she gained speed.

"Have the best dinner in the world, darling," she had cooed. "You know how!"

Jane looked stormy. She wondered what her father would have said if he had been alive—he would have told her to be patient; it would come out all right in the end.

"I will cook the dinner," decided Jane, "and it will be a good dinner—then Rebecca can come down and serve it—I will run away. I can't stand the monotony any longer." All the afternoon she labored over the preparation of the dinner and the arrangement of the table. When everything was ready, only needing Rebecca's skilled hand in serving the meal, Jane bathed and dressed herself in a green linen, took a small, heavily-laden basket and the latest book and left the house. She followed a narrow path through the orchard where apple blossoms fell like snow about her; where robins were thrumming with the evening song, down the little wood road that led to the edge of the sandy bluff overlooking the sound. The wind was cool and brought odors of wild blossoms and the salt savor of the sea.

"I feel wicked, but I am quite contented," said Jane as she sat down on the edge of the overhanging cliff, with her possessions in her lap. She closed her eyes a moment, but they popped open at once, for she was in motion! The turf had broken under her weight, and she was gently, steadily sliding down the sand-faced cliff. Many a time had she done it as a child, squealing with delight to land among the sand dunes on the shore.

"O—mercy!" she gasped, as she gained speed. In a scurry of flying sand, clutching her basket, book and sweater to her breast, she tobogganed down the slope and ran plump into a solitary man who was sitting on the sands staring at the far horizon.

"Gracious—child—what do you mean, little girl?" He picked Jane up and shook her a little. "That's a dangerous thing to do. Once when I was a kid I was sliding down that bank and it dislodged a great bowlder. The thing came down and crushed one of my little playmates—broke her arm—"

"Dan Barton—oh, Dannie, do you remember that, and how you waited on me hand and foot until I was well again?" Jane was brilliantly alive now; her clear, pale skin was flushed like a sea shell; her loosened hair framed the exquisite oval of her face, and her eyes were the color of the bright blue sky.

"Jane Dare! You have grown into a—"

He paused breathlessly, as if searching her face for traces of the little playmate. "Has any one ever told you—?" Again he stopped, and Jane blushed still deeper, wondering why he spoke that way when every one knew that she was just plain Jane Dare.

"Sit down and tell me all the news," he urged, and Jane did so, hardly able to meet his intense blue gaze. No man had ever looked at her in that way before, but she had seen the minister look at Celia, and Abigail's professor. Suddenly she felt sorry for them all.

"I must go home and serve dinner," she exclaimed penitently; and she told him the whole story while they enjoyed the lunch she had brought in the basket. Dan told her how he had planned to spend the summer with his mother in the old house, and how he would commute to and from the city.

"I shall see you often, Jane Dare," he told her as they went slowly through the old woodland path that wound up to the cliff, and the wood road and the orchard, where the blossoms dropped like a bridal veil on "plain Jane's" ruddy hair. They came into the dining room, blissfully happy, and all unaware that they were so. Everybody stared at Jane with the sparkling blue eyes, the bright hair, the rosetted cheeks. And they saw their old friend, Danny Barton, whose coming had brought about this transformation.

"Never say 'plain Jane' again!" muttered the minister to his betrothed, and no one ever did!

NOVEL STYLES IN MALEKULA

Women of Big Numbers Tribe at First Sight Looked More Like Walking Haystacks.

I have never seen human beings more wretched than the women of the Big Numbers tribe on the island of Malekula in the New Hebrides. At first sight they looked like walking haystacks. They wore grass dresses, consisting of a bushy skirt that hung from the waist to the knees, a sort of widow's veil that was thrown over the head and face so as to leave a tiny peephole for the wearer to look through, and a long train that hung down the back nearly to the ground. A more cumbersome and unsanitary dress was never devised, says a writer in an exchange. It was heavy. It was hot. Worst of all, it was dirty. Every one of the dresses was matted with filth. I did not see a single pig—and there were dozens of them rooting about inside and outside the houses—that was so dirty as the women of that village. I afterward found that for women to wash was strictly taboo. From birth to death water never touched their skins!

I got my cameras ready, but the women hid in the houses and would not come out to be photographed. Finally Nagapate, the great chief, commanded them to come into the clearing, and they crept whimpering out of the little doors.

Nagapate's wives were as wretched as any of the other women. We had heard from the natives at our headquarters on the island of Vao that Nagapate had a hundred wives, but there were only ten of them. We presented them each with a string of beads and a small glass jar of cheap candy. They did not even look at their gifts. They wanted only to get the ordeal over and to escape. During all our stay in the village the poor, browbeaten wretches never got up enough courage to look at us. Their lords and masters felt our skins and our hair and our clothes, examining us with embarrassing freedom. But whenever we came upon a woman, she squatted down and hid her face behind her grass veil.

Protest.

But how can one toil at the great task with this hurry and tumult of birds just outside the open window; I hear the thrush, and the blackbird, that romantic liar; then the delicate cadence, the wily descending scale of the willow-wren, or the blackcap's stave of melody. All these are familiar—but what is that unknown voice, that thrilling note? I hurry out; the voice fees and I follow, and when I return and sit down again at my task the yellow-hammer trills his sleepy song in the moonday heat; the drone of the greenfinch lulls me into dreamy meditation. Then suddenly from his tree trunks and forest recesses comes the green woodpecker, and mocks at me, an impudent voice full of liberty and laughter.

Why should all the birds of the air conspire against me? My conscience is with the sad human species, with lapsed and erroneous humanity, not with that inconscient, wandering, feather-headed race.—Logan Pearnall Smith.

BAPTIST MEETING IS LARGELY ATTENDED

The revival meeting which began last Sunday at the First Baptist Church is the center of deep interest, and large crowds are attending the two daily services at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Rev. R. L. Cole, a successful evangelist whose home is at Lutkin, is doing the preaching, and has delivered some fine sermons.

Rev. George Hutto, a strong preacher and fine singer, who did such splendid work in our meeting last summer, is here from Granite, Okla., and taking part in each service.

In addition to these and other faithful laborers, our pastor, Rev. Y. F. Walker, is himself a "whole team" in this work and we are expecting great things before the meeting closes.

Mrs. J. L. Tims has returned from a visit to her mother and other relatives. Her brother accompanied her home.

Prof. H. A. Jackson, a twin brother and a sister are here on a visit to their brother, M. M. Jackson, and others.

C. A. Hicks, one of our "Old Reliabilities," boosted our bank account the other day with a subscription renewal.

Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Oiler have returned from a two months trip to Rochester, Minn., and other points in the North.

Miss Faye Culwell is leaving today for a visit with relatives in Amarillo.

Frank Jones, one of our good Route 1 friends, favored us with a big subscription renewal one day the past week.

Mrs. Frank Kendall and children returned last week from a visit to Walter Rockwell and family in Amarillo. The Rockwells brought them home in their car, and remained here a couple of days.

Many Informer subscriptions are due. If yours is, pay us.

M. L. and J. L. Munn have leased the R. L. Bailey Barber Shop, and will continue the business at the same stand. They invite the public to pay them a visit.

Mrs. Van Boone and children and Miss Beulah Kirkpatrick returned Tuesday from an auto trip to points in Oklahoma, where they visited relatives and friends.

H. A. Bridges, M. O. Barnett, Arthur Bell, Bill Hamilton and M. G. Whitfield have returned from the State W. O. W. Encampment at Galveston. They made the trip in a car, and report a delightful time.

Miss Lucile Craft of Memphis is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. C. Herd.

Revs. I. L. Campbell and D. M. Fitzgerald went to Oklahoma the first of the week.

Mrs. Ed Whiteside and Miss Ora Kempson are visitors to Amarillo today.

SOOTHES AND HEALS THE BOWELS

Arrests and Relieves Most Obstinate Cases of Watery Diarrhoea, in Adults and Children, Harmless and Tasteless

Dr. James Ware's Red Powder is a tried and true prescription for that very painful, debilitating and dangerous disease—Watery Diarrhoea.

Taken as directed, it promptly stops the discharges, soothes the irritated bowels and lets the healing processes begin at once. It is harmless and tasteless—you can't take enough of it to hurt you and even children do not object to taking it.

Formulated by Dr. James Ware, a famous Southern physician, in use for over 40 years. It gives relief in all acute and chronic cases of Diarrhoea, Cholera-Infantum and such kindred ailments of adults and children.

Ware's Red Powder, Ware's Black Powder or Tablets, Ware's Baby Powder—standard family remedies. Price 50c and $1.00 a package. Send for booklet on stomach and bowel troubles—free. The Ware Chemical Co., Dallas, Texas.—Adv. 5

SPENT $750.00 TO NO AVAIL WITH DOCTORS

Ware's Baby Powder Relieved His Baby of Intestinal Indigestion in 43 Hours Cured in a Few Days

Geo. W. Thomas, prominent citizen of Shreveport, La., wrote us July 23, 1919, of this experience with his baby boy: "Eight years ago my baby boy, then three months old, was in constant pain, crying continuously, suffering from intestinal indigestion, and after spending $750.00 with the doctors, I got a box of Ware's Baby Powder, and in 48 hours my baby was relieved and in a few days was entirely well."

What a Housa, La., Mother Says About It

Mrs. Alford Picoa, 803 East Park Ave., Housa, La., writes us March 30, 1922, as follows: "Please send me twenty (20) boxes of your Ware's Baby Powder by parcel post, c. o. d. I have used your baby powder in my own home and many of my friends want your Ware's Baby Powder because they have seen what it did in my home. One of my children weighed 134 pounds before he began using your Baby Powder; before two months had passed he had gained nine pounds; and today he weighs 234 pounds and is in perfect health."

For over forty years, Ware's Baby Powder—the prescription of Dr. James Ware, famous old Southern physician—has been a healing boon to babies for bowel troubles, teething and summer complaints, etc. Keep the stomach and bowels in a healthy condition and you need have no fear of these distressing troubles so general among babies especially during the teething period. Perfectly harmless, mixed according to directions, (a teaspoonful of Ware's Baby Powder, a half teaspoonful of sugar, add enough water to make four doses), children love to take it. At your drug store, in 50c and $1.00 packages. Prepared in the laboratories of The Ware Chemical Co., Dallas, Texas. Adv. No. 3

EVEN CAREFUL CALOMEL USERS ARE SALIVATED

Next Dose of Treacherous Drug May Start Misery for You.

Calomel is dangerous. It may salivate you and make you suffer fearfully from soreness of gums, tenderness of jaws and teeth, swollen tongue and excessive saliva dribbling from the mouth. Don't trust calomel. It is mercury; quicksilver.

If you feel bilious, headache, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than any calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. —Advertisement.

DAIRY FACTS

SERVICEABLE BREEDING RACK

Useful Device When Bull Becomes Heavy Is Not Difficult to Build—Must Be Braced.

A bull that is a good individual and that has excellent breeding back of him should be kept in service at least until his daughters come in milk. If he transmits his breeding to his daughters he should be kept in service until he is no longer useful. To follow this plan it is necessary to exchange bulls with other breeders and in most cases it will be necessary to use a breeding rack after the bull becomes too heavy. It is too often the case that the breeding value of a good bull is not discovered until he is dead.

A very serviceable breeding rack can be made as follows: Take two planks 2 by 12 by 9 feet long and place them on a level foundation for the floor of the breeding rack. These planks should be placed one and one-half feet apart in the front part of the rack and two feet in the rear, inside measurements. Each side of the breeding rack has three posts made of the same material as the floor which are four feet high in front and one and one-half feet in the rear. The posts are nailed to the floor and a plank 2 by 12 by 9 feet long is nailed on the top of the posts. Two-inch strips are nailed across the top of the breeding rack at intervals of ten inches to prevent the bull from slipping.

The breeding rack must be well braced with 2 by 4's as indicated in the diagram. Four pieces 1 by 6 are nailed across the front end to prevent it from spreading. A 2 by 4 is nailed across the floor plank just back of the middle posts. A stanchion is placed in the front end of the breeding rack which is so constructed that it can be moved backward or forward.—The Prairie Farmer.

TESTS DETECT REMADE MILK

Necessary That Some Method Be Devised That Natural Product Be Distinguished.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The increased use of remade milk and cream—that is, milk and cream made from powdered or condensed milk and sweet-cream butter—has made necessary some method by which they may be distinguished from the natural products. Such a test has been devised by chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture, and it is now possible to detect as little as 10 per cent of remade milk in a mixture with natural pasteurized milk. If milk powder has been used in making the mixture, the amount that can be detected will depend on the degree of heat used in its manufacture.

The test for both milk and cream is based upon the color produced when the washed curd made from them is dissolved in sodium hydroxide. When this curd solution has stood for several hours a characteristic yellow color develops in the samples taken from remade milk and cream or mixtures containing them; samples of the natural products or only slight mixtures do not show it.

Remade milk and cream are whole-some foods if made properly from good, natural milk, but should be sold for what they are, and this test makes it possible for food officials to determine whether or not the consumer is being deceived.

TAKE RIGHT CARE OF CREAM

During Hot Weather It Should Receive More Attention—Cool Soon as Possible.

During hot weather cream must receive better care on the average farm. As soon after separating as possible, cool the cream by setting the can in cold water. Never mix the fresh warm cream with the cream from previous separation until cooled as low as possible. Do not keep cream too long at the farm. Send it to the creamery or take it to the cream station at least twice a week, and three times a week when the weather gets hot. Poor, stale cream will not make good butter. If the creamery cannot make good butter the average price of cream will be lower than if good butter can be made.

Bacteria Furnish Nitrogen.

Sweet clover, like most legumes, depends largely for its nitrogen on the work of bacteria that live in nodules on the roots of the plant. While it is not always necessary to inoculate the seed with this bacteria it is always advisable.

Tomato Wilt Carried.

Tomato wilt is carried by the plants and the disease is very often scattered by this means; therefore care should be taken where plants come from.

LIVE STOCK FACTS

PLAN FOR IMPROVING STOCK

Progressive Firm of Butchers in Ohio Hit on Novel Scheme to Build Up Quality.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Recognizing that live-stock improvement is beneficial to the meat trade as well as to producers of animals, butchers are becoming interested in the better-sires idea. A progressive firm of butchers in a small Ohio city seeks to better the live stock of that locality by a plan described in the following letter to the United States Department of Agriculture:

"While we have never made a business of dealing in purebred live stock," says the writer, "we have always encouraged their use. We try to keep a line on well-bred young bulls in our vicinity, and whenever we buy an animal for slaughter we use our best efforts to have him replaced with something better. We believe this plan will help to build up the quality of cattle in the neighborhood, to the advantage of both ourselves and the farmers.

"When we kill an animal that has an exceptionally good 'dress' we display the carcass in our window, giving on a card the age, live weight, dressed weight and the percentage of dressed meat. In this way we advertise to producers that they get more live weight and we get more dressed weight from well-bred stock than from inferior stock of the same age. We have demonstrated also the superiority of veal calves from well-bred parents, and have shown that they mean more to the farmer in dollars and cents than the other kind."

In commenting on the plan, live-stock specialists in the bureau of animal industry point out that small-town butchers are in a position to help

First Cross Shorthorn Steer Obtained by Using a Purebred Sire With a Common Cow.

In influencing the quality of future generations of cattle and hogs that come to their cutting blocks. The plan as presented by the firm of butchers is in accord with methods of live-stock improvement advised by the department.

ACUTE SHORTAGE OF HORSES

Farmers Experience Difficulty in Obtaining Animals Required for Farm Work.

Difficulty is being experienced by many farmers in obtaining work horses needed. This fact has been made clear to W. H. Peters, chief of the animal husbandry division of the University of Minnesota, by the number of inquiries made by him and members of his staff as to the available supply of farm work horses.

"There isn't any doubt that for the last two years the number of colts raised has been less than the number of horses that have died," said Professor Peters. "The inevitable result of this condition already making itself evident? If this condition is maintained an acute shortage of work horses is bound to result.

"Farmers who have good sound mares will find it profitable to breed them. This will be particularly true if the mares can be mated to a good sound stallion of desirable draft type. In communities where such a stallion is not available, any farmer with a half dozen or more mares will find it profitable to purchase and keep such a horse."

MARKET HOME GROWN FEEDS

Farmer Should Determine Number of Head of Cattle to Keep by Available Feed.

The number of live stock which a farmer feeds on his farm should be determined by the amount of home grown feeds which he has on hand, and the price which he can get for these feeds if sold on the market. As a general rule live stock will market home grown feeds at a profit if the live stock is given a square deal; but it is out of the question to expect scrub stock to be economical users of feeds.

Immunizing Against Cholera.

When immunizing hogs against cholera do not make injections in the ham or shoulder as this lowers the value of those portions of the carcass. Inject serum in the flank or between the fore legs.

Oats Not Fattening.

Oats make a very poor feed for fattening cattle, as they are so bulky that the cattle cannot eat enough of them to put on the necessary amount of fat.

Curious Fire Engine. What might be described as a double-tandem bicycle, with four wheels arranged like those of a wagon, and four seats for riders, two in front and two behind, and carrying a hose reel, rotary pump, etc., was exhibited recently in Paris. The machine is intended as a fire engine in small towns. When the scene of fire is reached the pedals are thrown into gear with the pump, the hose is unrolled, and the riders, resuming their seats, work the pump by means of the pedals. It is claimed that this machine can outstrip any fire engine drawn by horses on the way to a conflagration, and that its pump is at least as effective as those of the hand engines used in many towns.

Women in Serbia. Woman suffragists in Serbia, writes Mrs. Slacko Grouitch, wife of the Yugoslav minister to the United States, interest themselves not only in legislation that give women equality before the law, but are also sponsoring legislation for the protection of child labor. The memory of the soldier Mallet, who was sentenced in 1915 to death in contumacious for having deserted to the enemy, has now definitely been cleared of all stain by the Mourges Military tribunal. As a result hair is now growing freely over the whole of her scalp.

GRAND JURY RETURNS MANY INDICTMENTS

Thirty eight felony and twenty seven misdemeanor indictments were returned into the District Court at Clarendon by the recently adjourned grand jury.

Unless our knowledge is faulty or our memory tricky, this is a record breaker for Donley county, which has long been one of the most law abiding counties in the state. Just think of it! Sixty five indictments in Donley county at one time!

True, no "capital" crimes are charged in any of these indictments. But, even if the charges are all of a more or less petty nature, this record is nothing to be proud of.

Disregard for the law never helped any man to reach a desirable goal, and never failed to kill any community that persistently countenanced such disregard.

We hope no other Donley county grand jury will ever find cause to turn in sixty five indictments at one term of court.

COUNTY AGENT RESIGNS

Lincoln's Climatic Paint

There's nothing that adds more to the value and appearance of that home than a nice coat of paint. There is no paint that will give you a better or more lasting coat than Lincoln's Climatic. It has been tested for each climate, and only paint suited to the individual climate will be sold there. There is a wider difference in paint than in any other commodity. You can buy cheaper paints than Lincoln's Climatic, but when it comes to amount of surface covered and the lasting qualities, it can't be excelled. Let us give you an estimate on your paint bill.
