Items Are Needed For Garage Sale The Junior class of Bovina High

HERE'S AN ANGLE to the presidential campaign that you may not have heard much about, but you need to.

Perhaps you have wondered about the "low key" approach to the election being taken by former presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. One of the few political action committees that we would endorse suggests that the reason for this is that if Bill Clinton is elected president, it will assure Jackson of a seat in the Senate.

"How can that be?" you ask. Clinton has strongly endorsed statehood for the District of Columbia, and Jackson has already been elected as "Shadow Senator" for D.C., to give him a position to lobby for statehood.

We have suggested before that the state of Texas use its constitutional right to divide up, to give residents of this area of our state, and the present state more "clout" in Washington through the gaining of senators and legislators. Whenever this subject is brought up, politicians from Austin to Washington try their best to brush it off as "that crackpot idea" surfacing again.

Yet, the liberal Democrats are anxious to create the state of New Columbia, and grab two more liberal votes in the Senate, which is the only branch of congress where conservatism still has a fighting chance. In fact, the liberal Democrats no doubt have the votes to push D.C. statehood through congress at any time. But President Bush has forcefully pledged to veto the liberals' D.C. statehood bill.

Reports say that at the Democratic convention, Jesse Jackson and Washington mayor Sharon Kelly gloated that D.C. statehood is assured if Clinton is elected.

Why does Washington, D.C. need several more liberal votes in our nation's congress?

Since a large part of the 600,000 people who live in Washington is already involved in government in some way or other, why should the rest of the nation allow the creation of yet a more intricate intanglement in our nation's capital?

When the U.S. created the 49th and 50th states of Alaska and Hawaii, our leadership was greatly motivated by the threat of unfriendly nations close to these possessions that might attempt to take them from the U.S. Remember that the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, was the catalyst that drew our nation into World War II?

There was similar fear regarding Alaska, which is "across the street" neighbors to Russia. That was a big reason for the creation 50 years ago of the Al-Can Highway, to connect Alaska to the lower 48 states by land transportation.

There is no such emergency that we know of, that pertains to Washington, D.C. As far as we know, no foreign country has a dark plan to sneak into D.C. in the dead of the night, and steal it away from the U.S. (A number of folks might add the line -- "and more's the pity!")

Down through the ages, the possibility of adding stars to Old Glory's blue field has almost invariably been accompanied by a political fight as to what effect it might have on congress. Statehood in many instances was delayed for years while our elected officials argued this very subject.

But statehood for the District of Columbia is somewhat different, in that it's ENTIRE MOTIVE would be political. There's no other reason for D.C. residents to want statehood.

They're not living out on the frontier, deprived of the luxuries. Its citizens probably cash more welfare checks there than any other city of its size. That would be an entire electoral district that the liberal establishment could always count on at election time.

At a time when Americans are taking the attitude of "Cleaning the House," it just doesn't seem from here that we need to create more of a problem than we already have.

According to the Texas Association of Physician Assistants, "A Physician Assistant is a skilled health professional who is approved by the Texas Board of Medical Examiners and the Texas Medical Practice Act as qualified to work under the supervision of a physician." This means seeing patients in the clinic as well as in the emergency room at the hospital.

Some of the patient services a P.A. provides include taking medical histories, performing physician exams and making assessments. In a rural setting, that also includes prescribing medications under the guidelines of the Texas Medical

To be admitted into a Physician Assistant program, at least two years of college is required, however, most individuals have baccalaureate degrees in pre-medical sciences as well as one or more years of direct patient care experience.

The Physician Assistant programs are in medical schools and universities affiliated with teaching hospitals accredited by the American Medical Association. In Texas, those locations are UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas, UTMB at Galveston and Baylor Medical School in Houston.

Upon graduation, Physician Assistants are certified by taking an exam overseen by the National Board of Medical Examiners. Recertification takes place every two years through continuing medical education and every six years by reexamination.

Many Physician Assistants are also admitted into special surgical programs within the general P.A. curriculum. Upon completion of their education, these P.A.'s usually go into such areas as cardiothoracic surgery, orthopedic surgery, plastic surgery or general surgery.

However, the P.A. in the rural setting provides a much needed service in areas which have been designated as "medically underserved."

This individual becomes an extension of the physician in order to give the best health care possible to the largest number of people possible, decreasing the long distances many rural residents must drive.

Local Youth Is Honored As Scholarship Semifinalist

Chris Wilson of Bovina has been named a semifinalist in the competition for Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1993.

Chris entered the competition by taking the 1991 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test as a high school junior.

The test served as an initial screen of more than one million Merit Program entrants from over 19,000 secondary schools nationwide.

In each state, semifinalists are the highest scoring participants, and they represent about half of one percent of the state's seniors. Chris will now continue in competition toward finalist status. Finalist and scholarship winners will be announced in March of 1993.

Chris now attends the Texas Academy of Mathematics and Science at the University of North Texas. He is a senior at the Academy and will graduate in May of 1993.

Officials at Bovina High School received a letter from Richard J. Sinclair, Director of the Texas Academy, last week complimenting the Bovina Schools on Chris' achievements.

Part of the letter read: "Chris has continued to perform at the outstanding level in the Academy that he did at your high school.

It is a credit to your school and your teachers that he was able to perform at such an excellent level in a difficult and challenging program Thank you for the outstanding job that you did in preparing Chris for our program, PSAT, and life."

Chris is the son of Kregg and Brenda Wilson of Bovina.

Surprise! Surprise! Rouel Barron was surprised, shocked, and surprised again on Thursday night

September 17, at about 9 p.m. Both sons, Jerry and Donald Ray; a sister Margaret Truitt; two granddaughters, and a greatgranddaughter and a friend showed up on his front porch, unannounced.

This all was planned a month ago for Rouel's 80th Birthday on the 18th. After this surprise was over he was then told on Friday morning that a few friends would be coming in the afternoon, (another shock). There were 25 people, besides the relatives, that came for birthday cake and ice cream.

Those coming from Ft. Worth and Dallas area were son Jerry and a sister Margaret. From the Phoenix-Tucson area was son Donald Ray and his daughters, Marissa Chapel and Beth Barron. Marissa's daughter Meredith and a friend of Marissa's, Jeff Anderson also came. They stayed until Sunday.

It was a special time for all even if Thelma had to be a little sneaky to keep the secret. We want to thank all of those who helped us celebrate. Rouel said, "It is not so bad to be 80 when you get so much attention."

On the other hand, you may indeed be going through a very difficult time in life right now. You may be one of the many people who hurt emotionally, grieve in spirit, or experience great financial stress.

Perhaps you hurt due to a broken relationship in the family, or you are discouraged because of a personal disappointment, or you are in the process of grieving over the death of someone dear. As a pastor, I wish I always had the answers for people's needs and instant cures for everyone's problems.

can do is pray for others and try to help one another through the difficult times by looking to God for encouragement and strength.

The scriptures give us help in knowing how we, as Christians, can best cope with our hurts and problems, as well as reach out to help our neighbor.

(1) We can continue to have faith in God! Romans 8:28-29 still has meaning for us today. Difficult times are not the time to abandon our faith in God. Rather it is a time to let our faith be strengthened! As never before we must trust God with our lives, our families, our jobs, our farms, and our finances. Our faith, in turn, will be an encouragement to those around us.

A missionary in a new culture was not used to sitting on the floor. She sat down as the others with her arms around her knees, back to back with a young Christian native lady, but hesitant to put her weight against the girl, although her back ached. But the young Christian woman turned her head and whispered in the missionary's ear, "If you love me, lean hard!" That's what the Lord says to each of us when we hurt: "If you love Me, lean hard!"

(2) We can care for others who are hurting, too! We can do this in several ways. First, we can let them know we are praying for them, and ask them to also pray for us. Then we can encourage them, letting them know we love them and will stand with them during their difficult time.

And finally we can be honest

Roman prison, we can say, "I will rejoice." (Philippians 1:18)

Even in hard times and deep hurts, there is peace for those in Christ. We can be thankful in all situations! Even in the most trying times and discouraging circumstances we can say, "Thank you, Heavenly Father, for loving me! Thank you for your son, Christ Jesus, who promised never to leave me or forsake me!"

Yes, God will somehow see us through. We may not know how, but we can know Who! And "I am persuaded He is able . . . !" (1 Sometimes the best any of us Timothy 1:12). If He is there for us, may He help us to be there for others! Keep looking up!

Emergency Loan Apps Accepted

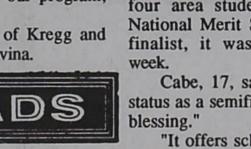

Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by excessive rain and hail are being accepted at the Farmers Home Administration office, located at 109 Third Street, Farwell, FmHA county supervisor, Thomas S. Taylor, said today.

Parmer County is one of 24 in Texas recently named by Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan as eligible for loans to cover part of actual production losses resulting from the excessive rain and hail.

Thomas S. Taylor said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80% of their actual losses or the operating loan needed to continue in business or $500,000, whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest is 4.5%.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30% loss of production to be eligible for an FmHA emergency loan," Taylor said. Farmers participating in the PIK or Federal Crop Insurance program will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their losses.

"Applications for loans under this emergnecy designation will be accepted until May 10, 1993, but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possibly over into the new farming season," he said.
