NORTHWEST TEXAS M. E. CONFERENCE

The Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the M. E. Church South was held in Plainview last week, Bishop Dickey presiding.

A large crowd attended, despite rain and mud, and splendid reports came in from all districts throughout the territory covered by the Conference.

Many changes were made in Clarendon district appointments which are as follows:

J. T. Griswold, presiding elder; Clarendon, J. P. Hamblin; Clarendon Circuit, H. G. Walton; Claude, Ed R. Wallace; Hedley, J. G. Thomas; Lella Lake, J. E. Yarborough; Plaska Mission, W. H. Strong; McLean, J. H. Huckabee; Memphis, J. T. Hicks; Mobile, John Crow; Pampa, J. M. Fuller; Shamrock, C. O. Wright; Shamrock Circuit, C. A. Duncan; Wellington, A. B. Davidson; Wellington Circuit, E. L. Sisk; Wheeler, J. A. Laney; President Clarendon College, Geo. S. Slover; Professor Clarendon College, A. W. Richeson.

Rev. S. H. Young goes to Stanton. John R. Henson has the Sweetwater station. J. W. Story goes to Quansh. John H. Hicks is a professor in Southern Methodist University. Ansel Lynn returns to Missionary work in Africa.

Hedley people regret the departure of Rev. S. H. Young and his excellent family and Rev. and Mrs. John Crow and their son, Will Allen. Our best wishes attend them in their new fields of labor. And a hearty welcome awaits the new Hedley pastor, Rev. J. G. Thomas.

WANTED:—February and March hatched pullets. Special price for White Wyandottes. Also a few roosters. Mrs. Chas. Kinslow. Phone 87.

HOW TO SAVE 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR

CROPS ARE MOVING; BUSINESS LOOKS UP

At the time this article is being put into type (Wednesday noon) the weather is "fair and warmer" and crop gathering is going forward at a furious pace. Both of Hedley's splendid gins are working day and night, at top speed, and are still unable to keep pace with cotton arrivals.

The Hedley schools closed on Tuesday afternoon for a period of two weeks, that the pupils might help in the harvest. This was a wise move, as the saving of crops is the all important thing just now.

Every able bodied person who is not engaged in other necessary work is now "making a bee line" for cotton or feed patch.

The gin at McKnight is running full capacity, we are told, and turning out a good lot of the fleecy staple.

The top price Wednesday was 33¢, which ought to be enough to help some.

Public Weigher Alva Simmons had weighed nearly 1100 bales at 2 p. m. Wednesday, and it's just beginning to come in good.

Looks mighty good just now, thank you.

A pipe-smoker's challenge to other smokers

Is there a smoker in the audience who can answer this one?

Nearly every smoker is particular about the kind of tobacco that goes into his pipe. While he may smoke a pipeful from a friend's pouch for the sake of companionship, for day-in-and-day-out smoking he prefers his own brand.

And yet if you ask the average smoker what it is he likes about his tobacco, he may have difficulty in answering you immediately.

Mr. Joe Rivers, whose letter follows, is a confirmed Edgeworth smoker. In attempting to describe what he likes about Edgeworth, he coins the word "tasty-smellfulness." But as this does not entirely satisfy him, he puts the question up to other Edgeworth smokers.

Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va.

Gentlemen: Being a pipe smoker of no mean experience (having tried most pipes and pipe tobacco) I've watched your smokers' letters in the magazine for some explanation of a taste that for me applies only to Edgeworth.

It is extremely difficult to describe this, because it seems to come as the smoke filters through the mouth and nostrils at the end of a draw from the pipe—a sort of combined "tasty-smellfulness" that most smokers find appealing.

Why don't you get some of your smokers who can write, to describe this?

Sincerely yours, (Signed) Joe Rivers

Probably there are any number of reasons why men smoke Edgeworth. One friend actually admitted he smoked it because his wife liked the shape of the Edgeworth glasses to fit on her pantry shelf.

However, the one outstanding feature of Edgeworth, as seen by most smokers, is its uniformity. Year after year, smokers can be sure of getting the same high-grade quality of tobacco.

There are no changes in the blend—no variations in the flavor or fragrance. It is always a good smoke.

If you have not tried Edgeworth send your name and address to Larus & Brother Company, 66 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

They will be glad to mail to you some free samples, generous helpings of both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed. Then you can smoke a few pipefuls and see if Edgeworth agrees with your smoking temperament.

If you will also include the name and address of your regular tobacco dealer, your courtesy will be appreciated.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

VEGETABLE COMBINATIONS ARE GOOD

Corn, Beans, Tomatoes and Other Combinations Are Excellent.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

After the abundance and variety of fresh summer vegetables has dwindled till one is entirely dependent on stored and canned products, the question of varying the monotony of cabbage and carrots becomes very real. One way to do it is to serve combinations of vegetables according to what is in season or on the pantry shelves.

The classic example of a mixture of vegetables is of course succotash—corn and lima beans. During the season of fresh vegetables succotash is at its best, but even when both vegetables are canned, separately or together, or dried, the result is very good. Corn with tomatoes; corn with tomatoes and string beans; corn with tomatoes and okra, are all excellent combinations.

Peas Blend Well.

Peas seem to blend well with other vegetable flavors, especially those which are slightly sweet. They are often served with an equal quantity of carrots, diced either before or after cooking. Peas in beet cups are both cooperative and appetizing. Somewhat formal meals. Peas with chopped cooked celery are usually liked.

Instead of peas with carrots string beans may be used. String beans appear in many of the special meat and vegetable blends for which the United States Department of Agriculture furnishes standardized recipes to 4-H club girls.

SUMMER STAINS AND HOW TO REMOVE THEM

Department of Agriculture Suggests That All Blemishes Be Treated Promptly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Possibly because wash fabrics seem to stain more easily than wool, or because summer clothing is less protected by coats, or because one's occupations during the hot months are different from those in winter time, summer garments appear to have a greater tendency to get stained. Farmers' Bulletin 861, Removal of Stains from Clothing and Other Textiles, which may be obtained on application to the United States Department of Agriculture as long as the supply lasts, suggests that all stains should be treated as promptly as possible, for a fresh stain comes out more easily than an old one. Find out what made the stain. Consider the material before applying any treatment. Try simple methods first, and work very carefully.

The best way to apply a bleaching agent is as follows: Place the stain over a bowl of hot water and apply the bleaching agent, a drop at a time. When the stain changes color, dip into the water. Repeat until the stain is removed. Neutralize with ammonia and rinse well. If the stain is obstinate, immerse it in oxalic acid or javelle water diluted with an equal quantity of hot water. Neutralize with ammonia and rinse. Use javelle water only on white cotton and linen articles.

Some of the common stains that occur in summer time and the methods of removing them are listed below:

- Beet and fruit juices—Use boiling water; bleach if necessary.
- Coffee—Use cold water; soap and cold water; alcohol; or a bleaching agent.
- Cream and oils—Use French chalk, blotting paper or other absorbent; or wash with water and soap; or gasoline, benzene, or carbon tetrachloride.
- Grease—Try cold water; then use an acid or bleach if necessary.
- Iron—Use oxalic acid; hydrochloric acid; or lemon; or lemon juice and salt.
- Mud—If fresh, use cold water; otherwise try to bleach with javelle water or potassium permanganate.
- Plaster—Use soap and warm water; bleach in the sun or with javelle water or potassium permanganate.
- Sweat—Bleach in the sunshine or with javelle water.
- Wine—Use water.

Okra is another vegetable that is relished even better in combination than when served alone. Okra with tomato and a suspicion of onion is excellent, either plain, scalloped or in a soup made of meat stock.

Tomatoes may be stewed with onion and served simply as a vegetable or added to corn or okra or both in a meat, fish, or poultry stew; put in a baking dish with layers of bread, cooked macaroni, hominy grits, or potato, or strained and made into gravy. A very good stuffing is made for eggplant or peppers by first cooking chopped onion in butter and then adding canned tomatoes and bread crumbs in equal parts, seasoning with salt and pepper.

Combine Celery and Turnip. Equal parts of white turnip and celery cooked together make a palatable combination. Rutabaga turnips boiled with white potatoes and both mashed together are liked by many people. Cooked cabbage and white potatoes fried together was an old-fashioned dish which used to be popular as "bubble and squeak." Sliced, boiled sweet potatoes baked in layers with apples are a little new to many people. Combinations of various greens often give good results. To spinach and chard may be added sorrel, mustard, kale, parsley, pepper or okra. Kale is strong in flavor and is improved by adding New Zealand spinach or beet greens.

PRESSING WOOLEN GARMENTS

Department of Agriculture Advises Using Thick Cloth to Sponge and Dampen Goods.

Many people have difficulty in pressing woolen garments without making them shiny. The United States Department of Agriculture advises using a thick cloth to sponge and dampen the goods. Plaits or folds may be basted in place, but the stitches should be drawn as soon as the cloth is steamed; otherwise the thread will mark the material. Heavy irons are more satisfactory on materials such as used in men's suits. Lay the thick, damp cloth over the material and then press.

The appearance of woolen materials that have worn shiny may be improved by covering the right side of the material with a cloth wrung out of ammonia water (4 or 5 drops of ammonia to 1 quart of water), pressing with a medium-hot iron until the cloth is partly dry, and then brushing the place vigorously with a stiff brush. In silk and wool, wrinkles such as are caused by packing may be removed by hanging the garment either out of doors on a damp day, or in a steamy room.

All Around the House

Keep a little bag of mustard and horseradish in the mouth of a pickle jar and the contents will not mold.

To use up left-over vegetables, cut them in pieces, moisten with a hot cream sauce and serve on toast as a luncheon dish.

Nut bread offers an appetizing change in the menu. It is very nutritious, and can be served, for its food value, with a light salad.

Vary the bread you provide for your family. Besides white bread remember to have bran, rice, whole wheat, rye and brown bread. Each has its particular virtues.

Much rummaging will be avoided if, on the week-end trip, the smaller articles, such as handkerchiefs, hairpins, powder, etc., are put in a neat little box which will fit in the suitcase.

If you want sheets to dry quickly, as well as be protected against tearing by the wind, and be very much easier to take down and fold, fold them at the hemmed side and pin to the clothesline on the selvage.

Clothes for Schoolgirls;

Two Popular Styles in Coats

IN SCHOOLGIRLS' clothes there are a few unobtrusive, but distinctive, new style features that are important. These either indicate a trend in popular demand or reveal a high light reflected from grownup fashions, or show an ingenious combination of materials—all very interesting to those who are providing wardrobes for youngsters from six to sixteen. Many a thrifty mother sends her young folks to school, well dressed, in up-to-date frocks, both in cotton and wool, are growing in demand all the time.

Since the beginning of the present season there have been two distinct styles in coats struggling for supremacy in the fashion world. Both are attractive, both have the authority of the best designers, and both continue to please, with no signs of weakening.

Spring styles are apt to appear before one or the other begins to run but made-over and remodeled frocks, which she has refashioned by introducing these new style notes.

Girls' frocks and coats, like those of grownups, feature straight lines and side fastenings. For coats, the cloths most used are astrakhan, broadcloth, chinchilla, velours, bolivia and similar weaves—all serviceable and practical. Fur trimmings are not featured in children's coats this season, but some fabric-furs are used in collars and cuffs and there is a marked liking for flaring sleeves. Brown, tan, gray and dark blue are popular colors. The coat shown at the left of the picture is a second in the race. In the meantime women may choose either type.

Two characteristic models of these different styles are pictured in the illustration. The coat at the left features a flared skirt, ornamented with braid (which gives the effect of flounces) and large designs in colored embroidery placed at intervals about the flare. The cuffs are also trimmed with braid and embroidery. Caracul is used for the narrow choker collar and the coat fastens with a huge button in colors that appear in the embroidery.

The coat at the right conforms fine example of present styles. It has an astrakhan body, velours skirt, collar and cuffs and attractive composition buttons. Chain stitching and French knots of self-color silk, in cross-bar design, decorate the collar and cuffs.

The season has developed a strong demand for plaited skirts of one material worn with over-blouses of another. Wool crepe, twills, flannels and other sturdy fabrics are used for children's frocks, and a fine example in wool crepe is pictured here. Skirts of checked wool with over-blouses of velvet, usually cut kimono style, are prominent in the displays, especially for the smaller girls. A little silk embroidery adorns the over-blouses.

Dark gingham in plain colors, with contrasting crossbars, are popular for bloomer suits, and these two-piece strictly to the straight-line mode. It is of heavy woolen material in a blanket weave, with an indistinct pattern. The large sleeves are finished with tabs and buttons and gray fox fur is used in the deep shawl collar. Of the two coats shown it is the more practical and becoming choice for the average wearer.

For evening wear both coats and capes are brilliant with metallic brocades and beautiful embroidery. In garments of this class there is a definite tendency toward the substitution of these two trimmings in place of fur

FROM EVERETT MANN

The following interesting letter, dated Oct. 24, 1923, was written by Midshipman Everett E. Mann, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., to his father, R. E. Mann, of this city:

Dear Dad:

Things are going along about as usual. I find some of my new subjects pretty hard, but I am getting along fairly good. The new method of arranging sections keeps me on my toes all the time to stay in a high section.

We're all pretty much wrought up over football. Our big game, as you know, is with Army, and we are working hard to put out a team that will be able to beat them. Our prospects are pretty good, although Army has an exceptionally strong team this year.

On the 27th our team plays Princeton in Baltimore. The whole regiment is going up for the game, and we hope to win. Incidentally, the 27th is Navy Day. President Coolidge has expressed his approval of the observance of this day throughout the United States. The Navy is well known along the coast, but inland it is more or less a myth. As you know, according to the treaty we are supposed to have a navy equal to Great Britain's and two fifths larger than Japan's. Unfortunately, these suppositions are not facts. The general apathy of the country toward an efficient navy has its reflection throughout the service, and the Navy League instituted Navy Day in order to bring the subject before the minds of the people.

I know that you are pretty busy and don't have much time to think about things other than your own business. However, I am sure that you carry both life and fire insurance. The Navy, as we have been told so often by those higher up, is the cheapest form of National Insurance. There is a book by Mahan called "The Influence of Sea Power on History" which shows that there never has been a country which amounted to anything without having a first class navy.

The Academy's contribution to Navy Day is going to be our parade from the train thru Baltimore to the stadium and evolutions before the game. The Navy is well known in Annapolis, but there are a good many people in Baltimore who will be interested in seeing our parade. There is more or less romance about any uniform, and we hope that we shall do ourselves credit and perhaps gain a few friends for the Navy.

The Navy is striving to move up to an equality with Great Britain, but of course the Navy has to abide by the judgment of the people of the United States, in whose employ we are. If you all don't back us up, you won't have any navy. Inasmuch as the navy is educating me and offering me a career, it seems that you ought to be a booster and that you ought to know a little more about the service than does one who has no direct interest in it aside from his interest as an American citizen. If you really believe in the Navy, which I know you do, talk it up. Tell some one else so, and tell them why you think the Navy is an important National asset. Little drops of water, you know.

Will let you know the result of our game with Princeton.

Love to all,
Everett

The Judge is doing everything he possibly can to get court business dispatched and at the same time allow the people to stay with their business as closely as possible during the rush season. This action on his part is much appreciated by Hedley people. From all over the newly created district come words of commendation of the manner in which the affairs of the court are handled by Judge Templeton and Attorney Beville, thus proving the wisdom of Governor Neff's appointments.

SATURDAY A BIG DAY FOR THE BALL TEAMS

The boys' first game of basketball was played here Saturday afternoon with Estelline. The Hedley boys were victorious a score of 20 to 11, with Lee Reeves as star. A large crowd attended the game and made the boys feel as though everyone interested in athletics this year.

Immediately following the basketball game, Memphis and Hedley played football. The score stood 27 to 0 in favor of Memphis. Throughout the game the cry seemed to be, "Get the Jew," and most of the time the boys "got that Jew."

The girls basketball team on Saturday morning boarded the train for Claude, where they met that team in the afternoon. The game, played on an indoor court, was fast all the time and resulted in a victory for Claude with a score of 33 to 18. On account of lack of sufficient practice during the weeks of rainy weather, our girls were handicapped during the first half, and the score was very uneven. However, during the last half Hedley outplayed Claude and showed beyond doubt that our girls will develop into a very strong team.

The Claude girls were not only good athletes, but proved to be hostesses of the best type. One of our High School teachers very cordially entertained us after the game till train time, and by our actions we showed that we were enjoying every minute. From the time we left Hedley till we returned, our trip was one continual bit of pleasure. Even our defeat failed to lower our spirits, and we returned with a feeling of regret for our lack of success, but with a determination to improve in the future.

Hiding a rash won't heal it

Attempts to conceal complexion blemishes usually fail, and only serve to draw attention to the defects.

Underneath most unattractive skins is a clear, pleasing complexion—all that is needed is the proper treatment! It is surprising how often a brief use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap will clear away blotches, redness and roughness and give the skin its natural freshness and charm.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

CALENDAR OF YEARS

HE WHO aspires to make his mark should endeavor always to choose the best investment for his time and energy.

The golden hours of opportunity soar swiftly away, and when night hovers about us, we who are resolved to rise above the common level, frequently ask ourselves whether we have improved or wasted the vanished day.

If we have stood on tip-toe, reached up to the highest point to make an imperishable mark, we seldom find cause for self-reproval, though we may not be wholly satisfied with our well-meant accomplishments.

As a matter of truth, the man or woman who is never fully contented with past achievements, who ever feels that he or she by exerting a little more effort might have gone a stride or two farther, is already marching bare-footed toward the glorious heights.

And this is so in every field of worthy endeavor, whether it be preaching or teaching, weaving or forging, or making love.

As fast as we progress, if we have within us the determination to keep going, we find there is some splendid treasure lying in our path designed for us to pick up and store away for future use.

By retaining this precious thing, to which we prudently add others, we in time acquire capabilities whose value is everywhere recognized.

The learning we get in this manner gives us wisdom. The experience we obtain from patient work, close observation, civility and hard rubs, teaches us how to apply our wisdom to the best advantage.

Experience is an essential to achievement as is wisdom.

On the other hand, those fickle and frivolous humans who run one day and shamble the next, never certain of their course, become notoriously inefficient, unable to avoid the dust in the rear, while they shuffle along with weary feet and broken hearts.

Every day you will see their wistful, disappointed faces.

And if you listen, you will hear their bitter words of self-condemnation rustling along the walls of their frowning prison of servitude, from which there is no escape, except by the turn-back of the calendar of the years.

GOOD BOOKS

IN A MAN'S hours of relaxation he needs human companionship. He cannot play without somebody to play with. And he needs play to develop his intellect evenly as much as he needs work.

Men who do not know how to play are to be pitied. They grow dull and morose. Nobody wants to associate with them. They lead unhappy, lonely lives, and die unloved.

But the wise youth makes a budget of his time as the shrewd business man makes a budget of his expenses. Leisure must be apportioned wisely—a part to be spent in the company of books.

Books contain the best that there is in really great men.

Not only are they necessary to development, but they are splendid companions.

The lad who spends his time with dull companions in a pool room when he might be listening to Emerson, or Huxley or Spencer is a very foolish youth.

Novels, if they are the right sort, are almost, if not quite as instructive as works on philosophy and science.

The learning that the great novelists disclose in their stories incites a desire for information. Many a man has acquired and allayed a thirst for education by a passage in a good novel.

If you are in doubt as to the best book to read, consult a librarian in an public library.

For or she, if you state your desires, will map out for you a useful course in reading. When it is given to you,

IT WAS a little vine-wreathed cot tage.

Just within the edge of town, Roses hung to eaves and trellis, And their peals drifted down, While a tragic scene was acted Just inside the cozy room.

Where a man and woman labored, Lost to morning cheer and bloom; Gathered here and there the objects Dear mementoes—now forlorn— Of the day they entered gaily On their happy wedding morn.

From the wall he took a picture, From a shelf she lifted books, Silently they stripped the cottage, Leaving bare its pleasant nooks; Eyes and voices cold and lifeless, Each avoided other's way, Soon they cleared the little parlor Of the things they'd meant to stay; When, from out a crowded trunk-till Tumbled something small and white, And a flood of burning rear-drops Hid the object from their sight.

You forget anniversaries? Haven't you been laughed at in rather a weepy way because you forget birthdays, or your wedding anniversary, or the child's birthday or the mother-in-law's something or other? Well maybe you have. But haven't you been pretty much involved in keeping your home on the outside of its inhabitants? Should you have kept your notebook in your mind you would probably not have done your job well. Yet there is no gaining saying the man that can or the woman that can combine these little big things with the big little things is a wonder; there are few of us who have the kind of make-up that can do the job well and remember every little detail of home life, too.

The gravest battle that ever was fought— Still I tell you where and when? On the maps of the world you will find it not; 'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay not with cannon or battle shot, With sword or nobler pen, Nay not with eloquent word or thought, From the mouth of wonderful men,

But deep in the walled-up woman's heart, Of women that would not yield But bravely, silently, bore her part, Lo! there is the battlefield.

GOOD EATS FOR THE FAMILY

Baked Halibut.

Arrange six slices of salt pork in a dripping pan. Cover with one sliced onion and add a bit of bay leaf. Wipe two pounds of halibut and place on the pork and onion. Cover with a paste prepared with three tablespoons each of butter and flour mixed together. Over all sprinkle three-quarters of a cupful of buttered cracker crumbs and arrange five strips of pork over the crumbs. Bake 50 minutes. Serve with a sauce from two tablespoons of fat in the pan, two tablespoons of flour, one cupful of milk. Season well to taste and serve garnished with lemon and parsley.

Cheese Sandwiches.

These are nice with a cup of tea or as a supper dish. Cut stale bread in one-quarter-inch slices, spread with butter and sprinkle with salt and cayenne. Put a slice of cheese between each two slices of bread and fry in a little butter until delicately browned on both sides.

Oyster Croquettes.

Strain the juice from a pint of oysters, cut the oysters fine and return to the liquor, add two beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne, and enough cracker crumbs to mix into croquettes. Dip into egg and crumbs and fry in hot fat. Serve with cabbage salad.

Essential to Profitable Farming

The Utility Express Truck $550 Chassis Only f. o. b. Flint, Mich.

Fits any Standard Truck Body

No business can succeed unless its product is profitably sold. Most farms have a fine production department but no sales department. They grow crops and stock bought by buyers who get the price.

One of the chief reasons for this unprofitable situation is the average farmer's poor facilities for moving his crops or stock to the place where he can sell or ship to the best advantage. Because of the time and expense of horse delivery millions of dollars worth of produce spoils annually on American farms. The saving of this waste would, in many cases, change a losing farm to a money-maker.

This low-priced, high-grade, reliable truck was designed as a money-saver and money-maker for farmers and business houses needing fast low-cost haulage of heavy or bulky goods. It fits any standard type of truck body. Ask any Chevrolet dealer for price of the style of body you require.

In Columbus' Crew.

The gift to England by the Spanish government of a model of the Santa Maria, in which Columbus discovered America, recalls the little-known fact that the vessel had an Englishman among her crew when she made her immortal voyage. In the list of the ship's company appears the entry "Tallarte de Lajes (Ingles)," and Sir Clements Markham suggests that Tallarte, being the Spanish form of Alard or Alard, the man was probably a connection of the famous seafaring family of Alard of Winchelsea, another member of which, Gervase Alard, became the first English admiral in 1306. An Irishman also was numbered among the crew, entered simply as "William of Galway."

Poetic Interpretation.

Poetry interprets in two ways: It interprets by expressing with magical felicity the physiognomy and movement of the outer world, and it interprets by expressing, with inspired conviction, the ideas and laws of the inward world of man's moral and spiritual nature. In other words, poetry is interpretive both by having natural magic in it, and by having moral profundity.—Matthew Arnold.

A cream puff sounds so much more attractive than it is.

Weakness of intuition is that half the time it's wrong.

In a compromise, no one is satisfied.

Greek Cynics.

The Cynics were a sect of Grecian philosophers, founded by Antisthenes about 396 B. C. The Cynics were noted for their morose and gloomy views of life; for their disregard of all sciences, save that of morality; and for their contempt for the ordinary conventionalities of life. The word cynic is derived either from Cynosarges, the place where Antisthenes taught; or from Nainos (Gr. doglike), in allusion to the snarling or surly manner affected by the philosophers of this school. To Diogenes of Sinope, the most distinguished disciple of Antisthenes, the Athenians erected a column of Parian marble surmounted by a dog.

Oysters and Clams.

For 48 hours young oysters enjoy freedom as moving creatures. Then they settle down for life. Among the oysters' enemies are the starfish. These five-fingered gentry sometimes destroy a whole bed in one night. There are giant clams weighing 50 pounds. Limpets, a shell fish found stuck to rocks when the tide goes out, have kept many an English fisherman's family from starvation in unlucky seasons. Limpets go on traveling expeditions at night, but with a wonderful homing instinct, return to exactly the same spot on their "home" rock.

Why the Doctor asks; "Do you drink coffee?"

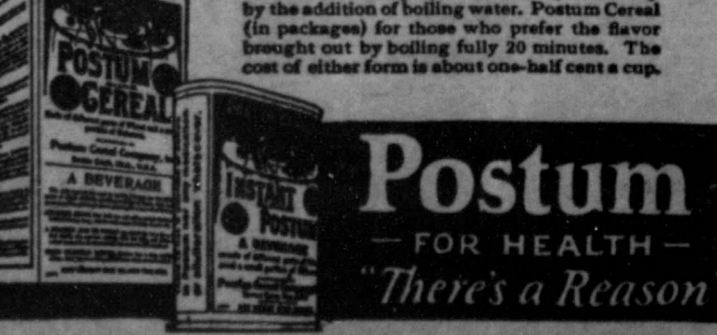

If you are troubled with headaches, insomnia, indigestion, or sluggishness of the liver or bowels, probably one of the first questions your doctor asks is, "Do you drink coffee?"

He knows, better than anyone else, that the drug, caffeine, present in coffee, tends to irritate the nervous system and is a frequent cause of disturbance to health.

If coffee causes trouble, and you value health, stop coffee and drink Postum.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—absolutely free from caffeine or any other drug. It has a delicious flavor, that many people prefer to coffee.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

"But on the Sunday afternoon a message was brought to the house. They were all very disturbed. Without their knowing, I listened. Word had come that he was to be killed. I needn't tell the next part, because you know it."

"Then the papers," said Sir James slowly, "are still at the back of the picture in that room."

"Yes," the girl had sunk back on the sofa exhausted with the strain of the long story.

Sir James rose to his feet. He looked at his watch.

"Come," he said, "we must go at once. You have been followed here—not a doubt of it. When we leave the house we shall be followed again, but not molested, for it is Mr. Brown's plan that we are to lead him. But the Soho house is under police supervision night and day. There are several men watching it. When we enter that house, Mr. Brown will not draw back—he will risk all, on the chance of obtaining the spark to fire his mine. And he fancies the risk not great—he will enter in the guise of friend."

Tuppence flushed, then opened her mouth impulsively. "You know who Mr. Brown is, don't you?"

"Yes," said Sir James gravely. "I have been morally certain of his identity for some time—ever since the night of Mrs. Vandemeyer's mysterious death."

"Ah!" breathed Tuppence.

"For there we are up against the logic of facts. There are only two solutions. Either the chloral was administered by her own hand, which theory I reject utterly, or else—"

"Yes?"

"Or else it was administered in the brandy you gave her. Only three people touched that brandy—you, Miss Tuppence, I myself, and one other—Mr. Julius Hersheimmer!"

Jane Finn stirred and sat up, regarding the speaker with wide, astonished eyes. Springing to her feet, she cried out angrily:

"What do you mean? What are you trying to suggest? That Mr. Brown is Julius? Julius—my own cousin?"

"No, Miss Finn," said Sir James. "Not your cousin. The man who calls himself Julius Hersheimmer is no relation to you whatsoever."

CHAPTER XVII

Mr. Brown.

Sir James' words came like a bomb-shell. Both girls looked equally puzzled. The lawyer went across to his desk, and returned with a small newspaper cutting, which he handed to Jane. Tuppence read it over her shoulder. It referred to the mysterious man found dead in New York.

"As I was saying to Miss Tuppence," resumed the lawyer, "I set to work to prove the impossible possible. The great stumbling-block was the undeniable fact that Julius Hersheimmer was not an assumed name. When I came across this paragraph my problem was solved. Julius Hersheimmer set out to discover what had become of his cousin. He went out West, where he obtained news of her and her photograph to aid him in his search. On the eve of his departure from New York he was set upon and murdered. His body was dressed in shabby clothes, and the face disguised to prevent identification. Mr. Brown took his place. He sailed immediately for England. Since then he had been hunting and gloving with those sworn to hunt him down. Every secret of theirs had been known to him. Only once did he come near disaster. Mrs. Vandemeyer knew his secret. It was no part of his plan that huge bribe should ever be offered to her. But for Miss Tuppence's fortunate change of plan, she would have been far away from the flat when we arrived there. Exposure stared him in the face. He took a desperate step, trusting in his assumed character to avert suspicion. He nearly succeeded—but not quite.

"Now were ready. I know better than even to suggest going without you, Miss Tuppence—"

"I should think so indeed!"

Sir James' car drew up at the corner of the square and they got out. A policeman produced a key. They all knew Sir James well. The three entered the house, pulling the door to behind them. Slowly they mounted the rickety stairs. At the top was the ragged curtain hiding the recess where Tommy had hidden that day. Tuppence had heard the story from Jane in her character of "Annette." She looked at the interested velvet with interest. Even now she could almost swear it moved—as though someone was behind it. Suppressing Mr. Brown—Julius—was there waiting.

Impossible of course! She must not give way to this foolish fancying—this curious insistent feeling that Mr. Brown was in the house.

Hark! What was that? A stealthy footstep on the stairs? There was someone in the house! Absurd! She was becoming hysterical.

Jane had gone straight to the picture of Marguerite. She unhooked it with a steady hand. The dust lay thick upon it, and festoons of cobwebs lay between it and the wall. Sir James handed her a pocket-knife, and she ripped away the brown paper from the back. . . . The advertisement page of a magazine fell out. Jane picked it up. Holding apart the frayed inner edges, she extracted two thin sheets covered with writing!

No dummy this time! The real thing!

"We've got it," said Tuppence. "At last. . . ."

Sir James took it, and scrutinized it attentively.

"Yes," he said quietly, "this is the ill-fated draft treaty!"

"We've succeeded," said Tuppence. There was awe and an almost wondering unbelief in her voice.

Sir James echoed her words as he folded the paper carefully and put it away in his pocket-book, then he looked curiously round the dingy room.

"It was here that our young friend was confined for so long, was it not?" he said. "A truly sinister room. You notice the absence of windows, and the thickness of the close-fitting door. Whatever took place here would never be heard by the outside world."

"You feel—as we all feel—THE PRESENCE OF MR. BROWN. Yes—as Tuppence made a movement—"not a doubt of it—MR. BROWN IS HERE. . . ."

"In this house?"

"In this room. . . . You don't understand? I AM MR. BROWN. . . ."

Stupefied, unbelieving, they stared at him. The very lines of his face had changed. It was a different man who stood before them. He smiled a slow cruel smile.

"Neither of you will leave this room alive! Shall I tell you how it will be? Sooner or later the police will break in, and they will find two victims of Mr. Brown—three, not two, you understand, but fortunately the third will not be dead, only wounded, and will be able to describe the attack with the wealth of detail! The treaty? It is in the hands of Mr. Brown. So no one will think of searching the pockets of Sir James Peel Edgerton?"

There was a faint sound behind him, but, intoxicated with success, he did not turn his head.

He slipped his hand into his pocket.

"Checkmate to the Young Adventurers," he said, and slowly raised a big automatic.

But, even as he did so, he felt himself seized from behind in a grip of iron. The revolver was wrenched from his hand, and the voice of Julius Hersheimmer said drawlingly:

"I guess you're caught redhanded with the goods on you."

The blood rushed to the K. C.'s face, but his self-control was marvellous, as he looked from one to the other of his two captors. He looked longest at Tommy.

"You," he said beneath his breath. "You! I might have known."

Seeing that he was disposed to offer no resistance, their grip slackened. Quick as a flash his left hand, the hand which bore the big signet ring, was raised to his lips.

"Ave, Caesar! te morituri salutant," he said, still looking at Tommy.

Then his face changed, and with a long convulsive shudder he fell forward in a crumpled heap, whilst an odor of bitter almonds filled the air.

CHAPTER XVIII

A Supper Party at the "Savoy."

The supper party given by Mr. Julius Hersheimmer to a few friends on the evening of the 30th will long be remembered in catering circles. It took place in a private room, and Mr. Hersheimmer's orders were brief and forcible. He gave carte blanche—and when a millionaire gives carte blanche he usually gets it!

The list of guests was small and select. The American ambassador, Mr. Carter, who had taken the liberty, he said, of bringing an old friend, Sir William Beresford, with him. Archdeacon Cowley, Dr. Hall, those two youthful adventurers, Miss Prudence Cowley and Mr. Thomas Beresford, and last, but not least, as guest of honor, Miss Jane Finn.

To most people the 29th, the much-heralded "Labor Day," had passed much as any other day. Speeches were made in the Park and Trafalgar square. Straggling processions, singing the "Red Flag," wandered through the streets in a more or less aimless manner. Newspapers which had hinted at a general strike, and the inauguration of a reign of terror, were forced to hide their diminished heads. The bold-er and more astute among them sought to prove that peace had been effected by following their counsels. In the Sunday papers a brief notice of the sudden death of Sir James Peel Edgerton, the famous K. C., had appeared. Monday's paper dealt appreciatively with the dead man's career. The exact manner of his sudden death was never made public.

Tommy had been right in his forecast of the situation. It had been a one-man show. Deprived of their chief, the organization fell to pieces. Kramenja had made a precipitate return to Russia, leaving England early on Sunday morning. The gang had fled from Astley Priors in a panic, leaving behind, in their haste, various damaging documents which compromised them hopelessly. With these proofs of conspiracy in their hands, aided further by a small brown diary taken from the pocket of the dead man which had contained a full and damning resume of the whole plot, the government had called an eleventh-hour conference. The labor leaders were forced to recognize that they had been used as a cat's-paw. Certain concessions were made by the government, and were eagerly accepted. It was to be Peace, not War!

But the cabinet knew by how narrow a margin they had escaped utter disaster. And burnt in on Mr. Carter's brain was the strange scene which had taken place in the house in Soho the night before.

He had entered the squalid room to find that great man, the friend of a lifetime, dead—betrayed out of his own mouth. From the dead man's pocket-book he had retrieved the ill-omened draft treaty, and then and there, in the presence of the other three, it had been reduced to ashes. . . . England was saved!

And now, on the evening of the 30th, in a private room at the Savoy, Mr. Julius P. Hersheimmer was receiving his guests.

Soon the supper party was in full swing, and with one accord Tommy was called upon for a full and complete explanation.

"Tommy's been the goods this trip! And, instead of sitting there as dumb as a fish, let him banish his blushes, and tell us all about it."

"Hear! hear!"

"There's nothing to tell," said Tommy, acutely uncomfortable. "I was an awful mug—right up to the time I found that photograph of Annette, and realized that she was Jane Finn. Then I remembered how persistently she had shouted out that word 'Marguerite'—and I thought of the pictures, and—well, that's that. Then of course I went over the whole thing to see where I'd made an ass of myself."

"Go on," said Mr. Carter, as Tommy showed signs of taking refuge in silence once more.

"That business about Mrs. Vandemeyer had worried me when Julius told me about it. On the face of it, it seemed that he or Sir James must have done the trick. But I didn't know which. Finding that photograph in the drawer, after that story of how it had been got from him by Inspector Brown, made me suspect Julius. Then I remembered that it was Sir James who had discovered the false Jane Finn. In the end, I couldn't make up my mind—and just decided to take no chances either way. I left a note for Julius, in case he was Mr. Brown, saying I was off to the Argentine, and I dropped Sir James' letter with the offer of the job by the desk so that he would see it was a genuine stunt. Then I wrote my letter to Mr. Carter and rang up Sir James. And then I got a bogus note from Tuppence—and I knew it."

"But how?"

Tommy took the note in question from his pocket and passed it round the table.

"It's her handwriting all right, but I knew it wasn't from her because of the signature. She'd never spell her name 'Tuppence,' but anyone who'd never seen it written might quite easily do so. Julius had seen it—he showed me a note of hers to him once—but Sir James hadn't! After that everything was plain sailing. I sent off Albert post-haste to Mr. Carter. I pretended to go away, but doubled back again. When Julius came bursting up in his car, I felt it wasn't part of Mr. Brown's plan—and that there would probably be trouble. Unless Sir James was actually caught in the act, so to speak, I knew Mr. Carter would never believe it at him on my unsupported word—"

"I didn't," interposed Mr. Carter, ruefully.

"That's why I sent the girls off to Sir James. I was sure they'd fetch up at the house in Soho sooner or later. I threatened Julius with the revolver, because I wanted Tuppence to repeat that to Sir James, so that he wouldn't worry about us. The moment the girls were out of sight I told Julius to drive like h—ll for London, and as we went along I told him the whole story. We got to the Soho house in plenty of time and met Mr. Carter outside. After arranging things with him we went in and hid behind the curtain in the recess. The policeman had orders to say, if they were asked, that no one had gone into the house. That's all."

And Tommy came to an abrupt halt. There was silence for a moment.

"By the way," said Julius suddenly, "you're all wrong about that photograph of Jane. It was taken from me, but I found it again."

"Where?" cried Tuppence.

"In that little safe on the wall in Mrs. Vandemeyer's bedroom."

"We all kept back something or other," said Tuppence, thoughtfully. "I suppose secret service work makes you like that!"

Mr. Carter rose to his feet.

"I will give you a toast. The Joint Venture which has so amply justified itself by success!"

It was drunk with acclamation.

"There's something more we want to hear," continued Mr. Carter. He looked at the American ambassador.

"I speak for you also, I know. We'll ask Miss Jane Finn to tell us the story that only Miss Tuppence has heard so far—but before we do so we'll drink her health. The health of one of the bravest of America's daughters, to whom is due the thanks and gratitude of two great countries!"

CHAPTER XIX

And After.

"That was a mighty good toast, Jane," said Mr. Hersheimmer, as he and his cousin were being driven back in the Rolls-Royce to the Ritz.

"The one to the Joint Venture?"

"No—the one to you. There isn't another girl in the world who could have carried it through as you did. You were just wonderful!"

Jane shook her head.

"I don't feel wonderful. At heart I'm just tired and lonesome—and longing for my own country."

"That brings me to something I wanted to say. I heard the ambassador telling you his wife hoped you would come to them at the embassy right away. That's good enough, but I've got another plan. Jane—I want you to marry me! Don't get scared and say no at once. You can't love me right away, of course, that's impossible. But I've loved you from the very moment I set eyes on your photo—and now I've seen you I'm simply crazy about you! If you'll only marry me, I won't worry you any—you shall take your own time. Maybe you'll never come to love me, and if that's the case I'll manage to set you free. But I want the right to look after you and take care of you."

"Oh, Julius!"

"Well, I don't want to hustle you, Jane, but there's no sense in waiting about. Don't be scared—I shan't expect you to love me all at once."

But a small hand was slipped into his.

"I love you now, Julius," said Jane Finn. "I loved you the first moment in the car when the bullet grazed your cheek. . . ."

In the meantime the Young Adventurers were sitting bolt upright, very stiff and ill at ease, in a taxi.

They sat very straight and forebore to look at each other.

At last Tuppence made a desperate effort.

"Rather fun, wasn't it?"

"Rather."

Another silence.

"I like Julius," essayed Tuppence, again.

Tommy was suddenly galvanized into life.

"It has been fun, hasn't it, Tommy? I do hope we shall have lots more adventures."

"You're insatiable, Tuppence. I've had quite enough adventures for the present."

"Well, shopping is almost as good," said Tuppence, dreamily. "Think of buying old furniture, and bright carpets, and futurist silk curtains, and a polished dining table, and a divan with lots of cushions—"

"Hold hard," said Tommy. "What's all this for?"

"Possibly a house—but I think a flat."

"Whose flat?"

"You think I mind saying it, but I don't in the least! Ours, so there!"

"You darling!" cried Tommy, his arms tightly round her. "I was determined to make you say it. I owe you something for the relentless way you've squashed me whenever I've tried to be sentimental."

Tuppence raised her face to his. The taxi proceeded on a course round the north side of Regent's park.

"You haven't really proposed now," pointed out Tuppence. "Not what our grandmothers would call a proposal. But after listening to a rotten one like Julius's, I'm inclined to let you off."

"You won't be able to get out of marrying me, so don't you think of it."

"What fun it will be," responded Tuppence. "Marriage is called all sorts of things, a haven, and a refuge, and a crowning glory, and a state of bondage, and lots more. But do you know what I think it is?"

"What?"

"A sport!"

"And a d—d good sport, too," said Tommy.

[THE END.]

DAIRY HINTS

Dairyman's Formula for Milk of Good Quality

"Feed, weed and breed" is the dairyman's magic formula for good milk, according to M. H. Keeney, dairy specialist of the New Jersey State Agricultural college, in a statement stressing the present market demand for cheaper milk.

"The market will not pay a big price for milk," writes Mr. Keeney, "so we dairymen must cut our production costs. The two factors controlling the economical production of milk are the adaptability of the cow for giving milk, judged by her conformation, and by the milk scales and the Babcock test, and the amount and kind of food taken. The feed bill is the largest direct expense, and the dairyman's high road to success lies in producing a unit of clean, wholesome milk for the least possible cost."

"The first essential for good milk is good cows, the other is proper feed and care—it may be summarized briefly in three words, feed, weed and breed. Silage and alfalfa hay are the best for cheap milk, and they are the best and cheapest roughage feeds. Every dairyman should have them and should follow these directions: 'Feed all the roughage a cow will clean up. Part of it should be a legume, such as clover or alfalfa. 'Keep a balanced ration. 'Give sufficient feed, such as silage or roots. 'Feed grain in accordance with milk production—for a Holstein or Ayrshire, approximately one pound of grain for each three pounds of milk. A variety of grains in the mixture is desirable. 'Feed and milk regularly. 'Give plenty of fresh water at all times. 'Give access to salt daily. 'Buy grain feeds on the basis of their protein and energy, not simply by the hundredweight.'"

Bred Heifers Are Often Best Buy for Dairyman

What age of heifer is the best buy is a question frequently asked of the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca. The men there who are giving thought to herd improvement explain the advantages and disadvantages in the purchase at all three of the ages, as baby calves, as yearlings, and as bred heifers. Baby calves are cheaper and more easily shipped. However, they are somewhat less likely to live than older stock; and further, there is more uncertainty as to how they will develop. With yearlings, the chances of living are better, and the type is more likely to be fixed, yet a long time still remains before they will be productive. But since yearling heifers may sell at a disadvantage, they may be a good purchase.

Bred heifers are frequently the best buy. They are developed as to size, and the possibilities for milk production can be estimated. Their mortality rate should be low; and the cost of carrying to production is slight. They may even be worth a slight premium where there is a good market for milk, and it is desired to establish a herd promptly.

Timothy Is Not Favored as Feed for Dairy Cows

Timothy hay is all too frequently fed to dairy cows. There is only one occasion when its use for this purpose can be developed—when the cows are to be dried off. Where dairy cattle are being fed and timothy hay is the only dry roughage available, it should be sold and clover or alfalfa purchased. Timothy is generally quoted on the central markets as high or even higher than the legume hays, and the dairyman can well afford to make the exchange even though he has the hauling to pay. The improvement obtained in production will be remarkable, and will generally mean all the difference between paying to keep the cows and allowing the cows to aid in supporting you.

Cleanliness Important in Production of Milk

Cleanliness is the most important factor in the production of clean wholesome milk. Much of the dirt and filth that gets into milk and produces deterioration, comes from improper methods of handling after being drawn. However, brushing off the loose dirt and dust about the flanks and udder and wiping the udder with a dry cloth materially assists in lessening the danger of dirt getting into the milk at milking. Cows during the summer season, if stabled at night or confined to a yard, become more or less dirty about their rear quarters and should be well cleaned before being milked.

Calf Needs Much Care

Very young dairy calves demand skillful attention in order to grow and develop to the best advantage. The three most important rules to observe in hand-feeding are: First, cleanliness; second, regularity; and third, proper proportioned ration.

Skim Milk for the Calf

The skim milk should be continued until the calf is six months old, if possible; also provide the calf with pen-vine hay, or alfalfa hay after it is four weeks old.

A SPECIAL INVITATION

You have a special invitation and all—but more especially the members of the Methodist church—to be at the Methodist church next Sunday, Nov 11, at 9:30 a. m. This for several reasons, but will mention only a few. First, it is your duty, not only as a church member, but as a citizen of the town and community. Second, because we are going to reorganize our Sunday School; also going to have some special music; in fact, going to have a good time both religiously and socially. So come and be with us.

Listen, you people who never go to church, Sunday School and prayer meeting; ask yourself this question: If every church house was torn down and moved out of Hedley, and we would never have another sermon preached, never have another prayer meeting, never have another Sunday school in Hedley, how long would I stay in Hedley? Then ask yourself: What am I doing to help the church?

And you church members ask yourselves this question: If all the members of the church went to church as often as I do, and went to Sunday school as often as I do, and went to prayer meeting as often as I do.—in fact, "If all the church members were just like me, what kind of a church would my church be?"

Come on, if you are not going to some other church, and be with us next Sunday.

Listen, you men and boys that sometimes sit and stand around on the sidewalks and streets during the hours of Sunday school and preaching. I'm sure you mean no harm by doing so, but come and be with us and help to make Hedley a better town, both morally and religiously, and hasten the time when our sidewalks and streets will be vacant during the hours of Sunday school and preaching.

Sunday School Supt.

MRS. HINCKLEY NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Memphis, Tenn.—"Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sweep a room without resting. I could not do my work except a little at a time, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day some one threw your little book on to my porch, and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles, and then in about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all of my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me my health."—Mrs. O. J. HINCKLEY, 316 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses. It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

The many people here who have gotten such wonderful results from Black and White Ointment for pimples, blotches, bumps, "breaking out," eczema, rash, itching, etc., are proving their gratitude by giving it the most wholehearted and enthusiastic word-of-mouth publicity ever known.

The fact that Black and White Ointment is already selling at the phenomenal and unheard of rate of nearly two million packages a year, proves louder than words can tell how dependable it is to people who had never before been able to get relief from their skin troubles by using anything else.

Black and White Ointment is economically priced in liberal size packages. The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have it.—Advertisement.

FEDERATED GROWERS MOVING BIG TONNAGE

Hold Dominant Position in Apple and Potato Markets.

The autumn harvest of the 25,000 growers comprising the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers, developed at the first of this year by the marketing committee of 21 of the American Farm Bureau federation, is centering the largest tonnage of fruits and vegetables ever to go through a centralized, national co-operative sales service.

With 175 branch offices and representatives covering practically all carlot markets of the United States, and with sales contracts in Canada and abroad, the grower-owned and controlled sales service has gained favor rapidly, resulting in an increased membership of co-operative organizations of growers, and a well-balanced list of products to be sold during the remainder of the year.

Sixteen co-operative associations in Michigan organized this summer into the Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc., are marketing a heavy tonnage of grapes, largely Concord, through the Federated; also peaches, apples, pears, and plums. Apples and pears are being sold for the Illinois Fruit exchange, which with 900 members organized into a chain of local associations joined the national sales organization early in the season.

During the summer season a number of the western members of the Federated, such as the Wenatchee-Okanogan Co-operative federation and the Inland Empire Co-operative federation, which have well organized fruit and vegetable associations in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, have extended their organization activities to control a large per cent of the products from those states now being handled by the Federated.

With a heavy tonnage of apples and pears, the 1923 deal of the Western New York Fruit Growers' Co-operative Packing association is now active. Peaches and some early apples have been going to the market for the past few weeks; fall apples are now being harvested and a heavy tonnage of winter varieties are to come later. Last year this Federated member shipped 3,600 cars. The distribution shows the fruit was sold into 21 markets in 26 states and three foreign countries. The member's apples were shipped steadily from October 7 until the first week in May with no greater variance than ten cars per week from an average shipment of 70 cars per week throughout the entire seven months' period. The continued merchandising of the "Catawba" brand of apples for this member has placed the product in an enviable position in the carlot markets of the country.

Co-operative fruit tonnage from Colorado has come into the "limelight" this season with the organization of the United Fruit Growers' association, which through its affiliation with the Federated has been placing branded peaches, apples and other fruits upon the carlot markets of the country.

The government co-operative packing plant at Inwood, W. Va., operating through the Inwood Fruit Growers' club, and putting up a superior pack known as the "Johnny Apples" brand, joined the Federated sales service this year.

The strengthening of the local units of the Ohio Fruit Growers' Co-operative association has greatly increased membership and tonnage of the Ohio growers.

Bartlett pears, Elberta peaches, prunes and apples from a number of newly-formed co-operative associations in Utah, similar tree fruits from the organized growers of Idaho and New Jersey are adding important tonnage that for the most part is the result of the first year's efforts in co-operative marketing.

MAYOR THOMASON PRAISES TANLAC

Judge George Washington Thomason, Mayor of Tarrant City, Ala., and one of the most highly respected citizens of the state, is still another man of prominence and unimpeachable integrity to give his unqualified endorsement to Tanlac.

"Chronic indigestion brought me to the verge of a general break-down three years ago and nothing seemed to afford much relief," said Judge Thomason. "I could hardly eat enough to keep going, and became so weak and nervous I could hardly attend to my duties."

"Finally I started on Tanlac and six bottles fixed me up so fine that I felt ten years younger, and my good health still remains with me."

"Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.—Advertisement."

You Can't Dodge It. The captain entered the officers' mess kitchen.

Michigan Growers Control Tonnage of More Than 4,000 Cars—Push Organization.

The Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc., is making wonderful progress in the organization of Michigan's co-operative fruit marketing industry. Within the past few months it has organized 75 per cent of the co-operative packing house output in the state and to-day controls a tonnage of more than 4,000 cars of peaches, apples, grapes and pears. It is working forward to a goal of 5,000 cars of fruit to be marketed through the farmer-owned and controlled Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc.

The Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc., is affiliated with the Michigan State Farm Bureau under the commodity control type of organization. Offices at Benton Harbor have been opened, with Secretary F. L. Bradford in charge.

SELL POTATOES IN LOUISIANA

Farm Bureau Exchange Handled 105 Cars of Tubers at Average Price of $2.01.

The Louisiana Farm Bureau Irish potato growers' exchange during the past season marketed 105 cars of Triumph potatoes at an average price of $2.01 per hundred pounds, according to a general report recently prepared by A. G. Hamilton, market specialist of the Louisiana State university extension department and acting sales manager of the exchange.

Utilize New Law. The Rock Island (Illinois) Milk Producers' company has been organizing under the direction of the Illinois Agriculture association, assisted by the co-operative marketing department of the American Farm Bureau federation. This co-operative is the first one to be organized under the new Illinois co-operative law. It has 200 members, all of whom are signed upon the four-pool standard American Farm Bureau federation contract.

that nothing whatever could be done. All of the young ladies were injured and their car was wrecked.

Miss Ruth is recovering slowly,
as are the other young ladies,
and her friends here are rejoicquite bad, was not worse.

MARRIED

Mr. E. L. Hansucker and Miss
Alva Allen, both of this city, gave their friends quite a surprise by going to Clarendon the first of the week and being united in marriage.

The bride is a daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. A. L. Allen, has been reared in Hedley, and is highly esteemed by a host of friends.

The groom has lived here two or three years, is an industrious young man of good character, and will make the young lady of his choice a good husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansucker are now keeping house at their home in this city.

We extend our congratulations and best wishes.

POSTED NOTICE

My pastures are posted according to law. No hunting allowed. Come play with me, but leave your guns at home.

J. E. Blankenship,

Mr. and Mrs. J. Claude Wells and Joe M. Warren were pleasant callers on the Informer family for a short time Wednesday afternoon. They had motored over from Wellington, Mr. Warren going to his home in Clarendon, and Mr. and Mrs. Wells to visit relatives in Amarillo.

Mrs. J. W. Webb left Sundafor Ardmore, Okla., to attend her father, Dr. J. O. Gilliam, who is seriously ill. Dr. Webb returned from there a few days ago, and reports Dr. Gilliam's condition very grave.

W. N. Crawford of Kingland,
Ark., was in Hedley this week on business. He is a brother of
J. T. Crawford, who died here about four years ago.

Mrs. D. C. Moore and Mrs. E.
W. Alley were visiting in Memphis Wednesday.

BIG SHOE SALE CONTINUES

WE HAD INTENDED TO CLOSE OUR BIG Shoe Sale last Saturday night. Owing to the rainy weather and impassable roads, which prevented many from coming to this Sale and supplying their needs in Shoes, we had decided to continue our Big Sale of Shoes for a short time, to give those that could not come last week the same chance at this sale that those had who lived closer to town.

*We Still Have Shoe
Bargains Galore*

COME TO THIS SALE OF HIGHEST QUALITY
Shoes. You will not regret it. The Saving and the Quality Shoes are here.
