HEDLEY MAN WRITES FROM SEATTLE, WASH.

Our readers will be glad to peruse the following interesting letter from our townsman, J. S.
Perrine, who writes from Seattle,
Wash., August 3rd:

Editor Informer:

I don't want you to think for a moment that I have forgotten my promise to write in regard to my trip, so I will endeavor to do the best I can, hoping after it is read by your subscribers that you will not lose all of them.

I receive my paper regular,
and you cannot imagine how glad I am to receive them. To get the news from home is a welcome epistle.

We left Hedley May 16th and arrived at Seattle the 20th. Had a pleasant trip and was glad to get here. I had a great welcome here by my brothers and sisters.
I am ashamed to state I did not know any of them. When I tell you that all of our family had not been together for 34 years you can understand why I did not know them. Seattle is a beautiful city of about 450,000 inhabitants.
It is noted for its beautiful parks.
I live across the street from Volunteer Park, containing 45 acres, which I think is the most beautiful, although I have not seen them all. They have 45 parks, aggregating 1400 acres. Could not begin to describe the beauty of them; such beautiful flowers, trees, drives and lawns that make you think you are walking on heavy velvet carpets. I wish you could see the large basins of water with nothing in them but gold fish. There are many places of interest, especially the Government locks and the steamer docks. At the present time the U. S. fleet are coming in, and by August 10th there will be a great many, which will be a grand sight.

I visited the State Capital at Olympia. Took in the Capitol building, which is wonderful;
they started to build it in 1921, and it is not yet finished. Cost $6,500,000.

In making this drive to Olympia in the auto, we crossed over Puget Sound with auto on the boat, landed at Manchester, then rode around Hood's Canal where we go through beautiful timber, then along the Sound. We could see them digging clams, which was quite a sight for me. Had our lunch in a beautiful grove and then drove on to Olympia.
As we neared the city I could see the oyster beds for a long distance, where the wonderful Olympia oysters are planted. Of course the oyster season is not in, but in September they will be ready for market. We made this one day trip of 180 miles and arrived in Seattle at 7 p. m.

On the Fourth of July we took a trip up in the mountains for trout fishing, and it was great sport. Had a fine mess for dinner next day. Won't say anything about my luck as a fisherman, for Jim Clarke and others would not believe it.

I could tell you of so many places I have been, but will not take up your space, but will do my best to describe all when I get back.

I do not expect to arrive home until about October 10th to 15th, as I go from here to Los Angeles for two or three weeks. So many places here that I must not miss, and will take some time to get around.

Hope the crops are fine and plenty of rain. Regards to all.

Yours,
J. S. Perrine.

FORMER HEDLEY BOY DIES AT CLARENDON

Tommy Allison, son of Mrs. J.
L. Allison and former resident of Hedley, died Sunday night at Clarendon. The cause of death was first reported as Bright's disease, but later reports indicate that the trouble was infantile paralysis.

Tommy is survived by his mother, three brothers and one sister. He was a graduate of Clarendon High School the past season. A report that another member of the family had contracted the disease, and died, is current here, but had not been verified at the time this article is put into type.

Health authorities at Clarendon have issued a bulletin stating that there is still one active case there, that it is a very contagious disease, and warning the people against taking any unnecessary risk. The same warning has been issued here, by local officials, and it is hoped the disease, which has been prevalent for months in some sections of the country, will be overcome.

BIDS WANTED FOR SCHOOL DEPOSITORY

We will accept sealed bids from parties wishing to act as Bids must be in not later than

Aug. 27, 1927.

FINE PEACHES

mother, Mrs. W. A. Wylie, on their farm out on Route 2, was a peaches. They were extra fine specimens in size, appearance and flavor. Thanks very much.

Why I Want to Go Back to France

(First Prize Essay in the American Legion's France Convention Contest. Written by Robert McKinley of New Britain, Pa.)

I want to go back to the land of romance once more—to march down the sweltering roads again with the memory of a carefree gang of doughboys tramping along to the songs of "Hinky Dinky, Parley Voo," "Good-by, Broadway, Hello France," and dear old "Madelon." I want to be part of the dust-covered column once more; to live again the things that made it hell, yet made us love it, too—lines of sweat streaking down dusty faces and necks, dangling hands swelling up to numbness as pack straps tickled across the shoulders, noisy mess wagons with clanking pans rolling along in the rear, a passing outfit of Frags trucking out of the lines for a rest, ambulances jammed with muddy, bloody, grinning Yanks going back to Blighty—and the distant boom of big guns banging away over the hills in front of us.

I'd like to crawl back into a certain cramped and water-soaked dugout up near Toul, and watch it rain, rain, rain. I want to lie once more in a wheat field below the old chateau in Comd-en-Isle, and watch for Jerry heads popping up and down in the trenches across the Marne. I want to live again the night of July 14, when they poured up through that field to wipe us out, and to see if the same little trench is still there where we found Ed and Charley four days later, leaning over their rifles on top of the parapet just as the Jerries had knocked them off.

I want to live all the nights again, to see the burning shrapnel and to hear it whistling for its victims; to hear the frantic cries of "gas" repeating down the line; to lie listening to the dismal moan of G. I. cans going over to wake up the boys from Berlin. I want to crouch there in my dugout listening and wondering. Listening to the dull heavy boom of far-away cannon rumbling through the night. Listening to the drip, drip, drip of the everlasting rain out in the darkness. I want to lie there wondering—always wondering—what it's all about.

I want to see French hills, French fields, French sky, French people once again. I want to see the kids—to know that they've learned to smile since the war. I want to go back to France once more—not to seek new joys or thrills, but to revive the dreams of old that are fading with the years.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE A. E. F. is mobilizing again. But it is the second A. E. F. which is planning a trip abroad and this time the slogan is "On to Paris!" Instead of "On to Berlin!" All over the United States, members of the American Legion are making their plans to revisit the land over which they fought ten years ago and to attend the annual Legion convention, which will be held in Paris September 19 to 24.

It's a very different A. E. F. that is going over in this year 1927 from the one that went over in the year 1917. Then its members crossed the Atlantic in crowded troop ships, their sailing clouded with the profoundest of secrecy, every mile of their journey beset by the dangers of the submarine-infested water. For the folks at home there was a long anxious wait and then finally word came back that these boys of theirs had arrived safely "Somewhere in France." This year they'll be going over on palatial steamers like the Lewathian, the Republic and the President Harding, and instead of the folks back home waiting anxiously for word from them, some of these folks will accompany them on this gala trip. For the sweethearts of 1917 are the wives of 1927, and they're

Some Familiar Scenes in France That Await the Second Coming of the A. E. F.

1. CHAMBOURD—Madame Mathilde Coupen, the Washerwoman of Chambour, it was Madame Coupen who paddled out hundreds of shirts and socks and suits of underwear for hundreds of American soldiers who passed through Chambour on their way to the front. She's standing on a ladder which points to the temporary abode of those hundreds of men.
2. ONLY ON FOOT MAY THEY CROSS—Such is the warning to the approaches of the Arch de Triomphe in Paris. Americans in the French capital for the American Legion convention must heed this warning, too. There are plenty of "pieton" signs which are being erected for their benefit. "A pieton" is a person who does an "alles a pied," in other words, a person of either sex who goes on foot. "Pieton" signs are near the Arch de Triomphe and request the visitor to "Traversez de la Chaussée," or go across on their shoes. "Allons! Pietons! And make it snappy; no matter how much your 'old dogs' are fretting."
3. ROMAGNE—Abbe Ernest Decourcier, Cure of the church at Romagne-sous-mont Faucon. The road to the right, following the direction of the arrow on the tree leads to the American military cemetery where rest the bodies of at least 15,000 American war dead. The Cure was ordered shot as a spy, but about an hour before the time set for him to face the firing squad an alibi was given for him by a German priest and he was saved.
4. LE FOIR DE PARIS—Once upon a time LeFour de Paris was quite a village, having a population of 700. Here it is today, nothing except the base of a road marker at the right. A new signboard has been erected, just to the right of where the old one stood. A monument, too, has been erected and may be seen in the picture.
5. ALLIEMOINT—Buy some maps before you start out looking for Alliepoint. Is the advice given any members of the Eightieth (Blue Ridge) division, going back to revisit the town which stood along the banks of the Agnon river. Alliepoint didn't have a chamber of commerce, but it was a respectable place and was about as much heard of as its neighboring villages of Vezpel and Thenorgues. Then it took the role of chief stopper of shells. Bred by the Eightieth, and this is what you can see of Alliepoint when you go back today.
6. LAHARAZEE—I still last summer the shaft in the German cemetery in the Argonne forest, near the dugout of the crown prince of Bavaria, was surmounted by a marble eagle. Now the eagle is somewhere in the United States. An ex-American army officer, who fought his way through the Argonne in 1918, carried it off as a souvenir.

going to Paris, too. And some mothers are going. And when they get to Paris how different it will be from 1917 also! Then it was a matter of only a few hours' leave and even those hours were spent under the watchful eyes of the M. P.'s. This year they are going back with the knowledge of seven days of glorious freedom in the French capital, of living at some of the best hotels at moderate prices. American Legion officers in charge of the arrangements for the convention have engaged five categories of hotels, and will give the boys a week in Paris at prices ranging from $10 to $40 for room only, for the seven days.

As for the matter of M. P.'s, there won't be any. No passports will be required for members of the Legion attending the convention, and they will enjoy complete freedom. Identification certificates have been accepted by all European countries, instead of passports, thus avoiding visas or charges of any kind. Since such certificates are heretofore unknown to the Paris police, the boys will have only to flourish them to get past any French authorities. Although the Legion authorities will appoint special units in each group to assist the French police force in handling the crowds, Legion officials are counting upon the fact that at least one-third of the 30,000 delegates who are going will be the wives or other female relatives of the men. They will be the real M. P.'s of this A. E. F. while it is in Paris! For that is the reason that most of them are heeding the slogan "On to Paris." Robert McKinley, the winner of the prize essay contest, whose reason for going is given above, has expressed it for all of them, when he indicated that they are going back to revisit the scenes of the greatest adventure of their lives. And they're going back, too, to read certain names on the white crosses which stand in long rows at Romagne-sous-Mont-faucon, at St. Mihiel, at the Somme, at Suresnes and at the Marne. For these are the names of their buddies, certain members of the first A. E. F. who went to France to stay!

If you are planning to trade-in your present car for a new car, remember these facts:

- 1 When you trade-in your used car for a new car, you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.
- 2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 3 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 4 The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 5 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 6 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

You are hereby commanded to summon Maud Bone by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Donley County, to be holden at the court house thereof in Clarendon, Texas, on the third Monday in October, A. D. 1927, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 1551, wherein B. A. Bone is plaintiff, and Maud Bone is defendant, said petition alleging that plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married in the State of Oklahoma on December 28th, A. ## NEGRO SUSPECT RELEASED; CHICAGO OFFICERS ALERT

The negro suspect arrested at Shreveport, La., in connection with the murder of the Weatherby family, was not the one wanted and has been released.

Local officers now feel assured of some results from the activities of officers in Chicago, where the Weatherby car was found some days ago. It has been ascertained that a negro sold the car to a Chicago Chevrolet dealer and represented himself to the buyer as Weatherby. It is believed the negro may soon be located in that city.

Earthquake in Palestine and Transjordan Is Fatal to Hundreds.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HUNDREDS of men, women and children—perhaps as many as a thousand—were killed in Palestine and Transjordan by the severest earthquake that region has experienced in a hundred years. Thousands were injured and other thousands were rendered homeless. In Jerusalem many famous buildings were seriously damaged, including the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the Hebrew university, the Dome of the Rock, the Basilica, the Russian church, the Bagdadese synagogue and the government house on the Mount of Olives; but the casualties in the "City of Peace" were few. Elsewhere, especially east and south of the Dead sea, the destruction in towns and villages was almost complete and hundreds of mangled bodies were taken from the ruins of houses. Half of the town of Nablus was utterly wrecked and many inhabitants were killed. It was reported that 300 were dead at Maan, 36 at Amman, 72 at Ramleh and 80 at Ludd. In Jericho there was but one victim, but the Winter Palace hotel collapsed and other buildings were damaged.

British military aviators from Transjordan helped in the rescue of many survivors, and relief work was got under way promptly. Pope Pius, deeply grieved by the catastrophe, sent instructions to the patriarchate at Jerusalem concerning relief measures. The earthquake was felt in Egypt and caused great alarm but not much damage. On the same day there were severe temblors in Victoria, Australia.

Floods following a cloudburst in the valleys of the Gottelba and Muglitz rivers, tributaries of the Elbe in Saxony, killed about 200 persons and devastated the valleys, burying the ruins of villages deep in mud. Troops and hundreds of relief workers were rushed to the rescue, the Red Cross leading the expedition and being followed by the communists, the Fascists, the "Steel Helmets" and the republican "Reichsbanner" forces, all united for once in the task of extricating and feeding the hapless survivors. The same violent storm that struck Saxony raged along the Alps and Apennines in northern and central Italy, doing vast damage.

KEVIN CHRISTOPHER O'HIGGINS, vice president of the Irish Free State, minister for justice and perhaps the leading man in the government, was assassinated as he was on his way to church in Booterstown, a suburb of Dublin. Three men fired bullets into his head and body and escaped in a motor car. O'Higgins, before his death a few hours later, whispered: "I go as Collins went and as my father went. I die as I have lived—for Ireland. I die at peace with my enemies and with God. I forgive them all."

The brutal murder caused intense indignation, not only in the Free State but throughout the world, and messages of sympathy were received by President Cosgrave from King George, the duke of Abercorn for northern Ireland and many other personages. Ramon de Valera denounced the crime as murder inexcusable from any standpoint and said he was confident the republican organization was not responsible for it. Ten men, all said to be connected with irregular organizations, were arrested, the charge being that as senior officers of secret groups they directed the conspiracy resulting in the assassination. One of the prisoners was a son of Count George Plunkett.

ANOTHER week of debate in the naval limitation conference at Geneva, and no definite results. Great Britain, still striving to maintain her predominance on the seas but not willing that the conference should fail, suggested a compromise solution of the cruiser problem. W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, said if the United States would agree to limit the number of 10,000-ton cruisers to ten each for America and England and six for Japan, he would be prepared to accept the maximum tonnage figures of 400,000 tons fixed by the United States. Mr. Gibson and his colleagues might have reached some agreement with the British with this as a starter, although it was asserted in Washington that our government could not accept Bridgeman's figures. But here the Japanese stepped in with the flat statement that they would not go above 480,000 tons for cruisers and destroyers combined, this being the total for both categories as suggested in the original American plan. Viscount Saito said his delegation was ready to return home without any treaty, and that if the Americans and British could get together, they might as well sign a two-power pact. This, however, did not suit Mr. Gibson at all.

Mr. Bridgeman requested that a plenary session of the conference be held on Thursday. At this he, Mr. Gibson and Viscount Saito again set forth the positions of their respective governments in the matter of cruisers, and there was a formal review of what had been accomplished—if anything.

Talking to the correspondents, Mr. Gibson was optimistic. "We luckily hold a middle position," he said. "The Japanese are in full accord with our original figures and we can get an agreement with the British on increased tonnage totals under consideration. Now it is up to the British and Japanese to get together."

America has not definitely held out for 25 10,000-ton cruisers, Mr. Gibson added.

REPRESENTATIVES of the agriculturists in 15 Middle Western states, attending the Northwest farm conference in St. Paul, voted to support the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill until it becomes law, though they were willing it should be revised to meet President Coolidge's objections.

Drafted by Congressman Charles Brand of Ohio, the resolutions urged that the bill be changed:

To permit the President to select nominees for the federal board to stabilize prices of farm products, instead of having them chosen by farm organizations.

To make the bill general in its application so as to include all farm products, instead of the five specifically named in the bill which Mr. Coolidge vetoed.

MR. COOLIDGE received a call from representatives of the Western Stock Marketing association who presented a plan for extending the co-operative marketing process to the cattle business, and asked government aid in its organization. Extended to the entire Western range, as is suggested, cattle would be manipulated just as the fruit growers of California handle their crops, holding them until they get a certain minimum price. Such an organization would compel the packers to bargain for cattle on the ranches instead of in the Omaha and Chicago markets.

Among other visitors of the week at the summer White House were a large number of members of the National Women's party, just from their meeting in Colorado Springs, who presented to the President their demand for "equal rights for women." The farmers of North Dakota also sent a delegation to tell Mr. Coolidge that they are in favor of the St. Lawrence waterway project and a new diversion of the Missouri river waters through the James river valley and to urge the early completion of those projects.

FRANK O. LOWDEN, whose boom for the Presidential nomination has just received the indorsement of 10,000 residents of Montana, delivered an address before the Wisconsin legislature, and seemed to make an excellent impression. He confined his talk entirely to the problems of agriculture and the necessity for stabilization of prices of farm products. Especially vigorous applause greeted these two parts of the speech:

"What the farmer asks is that he be given the same right to name a price in the first instance and that he be enabled to acquire an organization which will secure to him the same power to maintain that price which other industries through their superior organization now enjoy."

"The federal farm board should be able to empower organizations of farmers to take control of the surplus and to distribute the cost of that operation not only among the members of the co-operatives but among all the producers, whether they are members or not."

HONOLULU is host, for two weeks, of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and 100 leading citizens of ten nations bordering on the Pacific or having special interests in that ocean are trying to arrive at an understanding of the causes of friction between East and West. The conference is unofficial and the discussions are frank and open, with no germane topics forbidden.

Nearly 50 Americans are present, including Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford university and chairman of the institute; Prof. James T. Shotwell of Columbia university; Robert Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship company; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, lecturer of New York; Stephen P. Duggan, director of the Institute of International Education and Archbishop Edward J. Hanna of California.

EMULATING Oliver Cromwell, Marshal Pilsudski has executed an other coup d'etat in Poland by sending his soldiers into the senate and ordering it to dissolve because it would not pass laws he considered necessary without debating them. Pilsudski had given democratic rule a trial for about ten months but it wasn't satisfactory to him so he has resumed the absolute dictatorship.

PROHIBITION COMMISSIONER DORAN held a conference with his district administrators in Washington and warned them that honest physicians and retail druggists are not to be harassed in the prescription or sale of liquor for medicinal purposes. Prohibition agents are not expected to practice medicine or pharmacy in the enforcement of the Volstead act, according to Commissioner Doran, who continued that doctors and druggists, as members of responsible professions, should be given an ample opportunity to explain apparently irregular practices before they are subjected to the expense of proceeding to revoke their permits.

WHETHER the two $1,000,000 libel suits against Henry Ford will be settled out of court as a result of his public retraction of and apology for the anti-Jewish articles in the Dearborn Independent is uncertain at this writing, but Aaron Sapiro said he was negotiating a settlement of his action. In Washington there was a mass meeting of Jews called to consider Ford's apology, and eloquent appeals for its acceptance in good faith were made. But a majority of those present preferred to wait and see if Ford's actions conform to his words. So the resolution of acceptance was rejected.

JOHN DREW'S death in San Francisco caused the nation to heave a sigh of regret, for the dean of the American stage was universally beloved and respected. His entire life had been given over to the work of entertaining the public with clean, intelligent and thoroughly artistic acting and he passed away "in the harness" though he had reached the age of seventy-three years. Another capable and popular actor, Gregory Kelly, died in New York after several months' illness.

DR. F. SCOTT MBRIDE, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, has issued a statement saying the league will make every effort to elect a bone dry congress next year, despite the fact that many constitutional lawyers are of the opinion that any modification of the Volstead act would be held unconstitutional by the Supreme court of the United States. "The 1928 campaign," he says, "will be carried into every congressional district. Candidates who are not known friends of the prohibition cause will be opposed, while candidates who are friendly to prohibition will be supported to the fullest extent."

Bringing up Children

"MY sisters, my sister-in-law and myself all have families, and for years we have all given our children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. We have recommended it hundreds of times and think it just wonderful, not only to bring up children but for ourselves. At the slightest sign of stomach trouble, colds, constipation and when out of sorts, a dose or two is all they need. Truly, it is a family medicine and the stich in time that saves nine." (Name and address sent on request.)

Constipation, Colds, Coughs, Fevers and Other Perils of Childhood

One dose and mother's anxiety is lifted. The sickest stomach craves the taste of Syrup Pepsin. From infancy to old age the result is certain. Droopy, listless, feverish children respond as if to magic. Headache, stomachache, biliousness, coated tongue, constipation—these are the daily perils for which a host of mothers say Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the safeguard. Sold and recommended by all druggists.

Ocean Currents

The great current of the Pacific ocean is the Kuro Shio or Japan current, having its source in the north equatorial current. It does not send off a branch into the Bering sea as is commonly supposed. The northerly current of the Bering sea is due to local conditions.

Believing that nothing is of more lasting influence on character than impressions received during childhood, the school authorities in Oslo have invited Norway's best painters to decorate all the classrooms in the city's elementary schools with their art. The work of beautifying the schoolrooms for the moral development of the pupils is to begin as soon as the contract is made.

HOT WEATHER DRIES OUT YOUR KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS

Perspiration carries off body moisture and the liver and bowels become dry and constipated. Then—biliousness, headaches, sour stomach; the heat makes you drowsy and lazy, and your skin breaks out with pimples and boils. Don't take calomel. That's wrong—calomel is mercury—a dangerous drug. It jars the liver and cleans the bowels, that's true. But the damage it does to them, ugh! It crashes into your system like a charge of dynamite and makes it numb. It stifles the muscles of the stomach and bowels, takes YOU a day to recuperate and no telling how long for your bowels. All you need is Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful at night and you wake up feeling great. It doesn't upset you, but cleans you out good. You don't lose a day from your work and you can eat anything you want. Get the big bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone from your nearest store. They all have it. Keep it in the house so you will have it handy to take nights before going to bed.

But Flyosan will get him too!

HE'S BEEN burying flies and mosquitoes by the millions.

Flyosan floats through your rooms, killing every single fly and mosquito—getting into corners and crevices you could never see.

But use Flyosan itself—the first liquid insect spray on the market (non-poisonous). Flyosan not only kills every fly and mosquito in your house, but also kills the millions of deadly, disease-bearing germs on the body of each.

And "swatting" only scatters these germs into the air you and your family breathe.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

FLYOSAN, Liquid Spray—kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bedbugs.

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates that cockroach army.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Man Using Both Hands Can Accomplish More

Out of every hundred babies born, 17 are naturally right-handed, 3 are left-handed, and the remaining 80 are capable of using either hand with equal ease. Yet, owing to our method of training the young, by the time those hundred babies are three years old all except the three who were left-handed will use the right hand for such essential work as writing, painting and the use of all tools.

There are said to be over 400 different sorts of work in which the equal use of both hands is an advantage, but even in those in which one hand only is generally used it is a tremendous advantage to be able to use the left hand in order to rest the right.

Sir James Barrie, when his right hand failed him, had to learn to write with his left, but Sir Robert Baden-Powell, when bitten by a dog and forced to carry his right arm in a sling, went right on with his work, writing and drawing with the other hand; for he has been able to use both hands equally all his life.

The great animal artist, Landseer, could paint two pictures at the same time, using both hands. The famous Leonardo da Vinci was equally accomplished, and so was Holbein, the portrait painter. More wonderful seems the fact that the well-known surgeon, Mr. Simeon Shell, could operate equally easily with either hand. Sir Oliver Lodge is another well-known man who uses both hands with ease.

It is the left side of the brain that controls the muscles of the right side of the body, so by learning to use the left hand a person actually rests one side of his brain and is therefore able to do more work at a stretch.

Beautiful Church Tower

Many of the parish churches of England and Wales are beautiful, but the tower of the church at Wrexham, Wales, with its corner turrets high as medieval fortresses, its spirals and crockets, intricate bands and graceful cornices, is a thing of astonishing beauty and worthy to have graced a minster. As a noted traveler once said: "One cannot look at it without acknowledging a debt of deep gratitude to those who built it so many centuries ago."

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

To make lemon tapioca pudding, take one-half cupful of the minute tapioca and cook in a quart of milk in a double boiler. When the tapioca is clear add the well-beaten yolks of two eggs and one-half cupful of sugar. Add the grated rind of a lemon and cook until smooth. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff, add three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Put the pudding into a baking dish and cover with the meringue. Brown lightly and serve cold.

Graham Wafers.—These are so much better for the children to eat than rich cookies, and so much cheaper made at home that they are worth trying. Take one quart of good graham flour, one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat and a good cupful of milk. Mix and knead well, then roll out to one-fourth inch in thickness, cut into small oblongs, prick with a fork and bake carefully, as they burn quickly around the edges.

Creamed Mushrooms.—Brush and peel the caps, removing any earth by brushing. If carefully picked they will need no washing, but if it is necessary wash quickly and drop at once into hot butter. Cook five minutes, add cream and serve poured over well-buttered toast. Serve at once.

Broiled Mushrooms.—Broil the top of the caps first, then turn and fill each with a bit of butter. Cook until well heated through and serve on toast squares.

Mushroom au Gratin.—Peel one-half pound of fresh field mushrooms, sprinkle with salt and let stand one-half hour. Fry one sliced onion in two tablespoonfuls of cooking oil, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and when well blended add a cupful of stock made from cooking the stems of the mushrooms in water to cover. Cook until thick, add seasonings and the mushrooms to the sauce. Cover with a half cupful of well-buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Mexican Rabbit.—Mix one cupful of freshly boiled rice with one cupful of tomatoes and the same of corn, one half of a green pepper cut in shreds, one slice of onion, chopped, one-half pound of cheese, a teaspoonful of paprika, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two well-beaten eggs. Turn into a well-greased baking dish. Sprinkle with crumbs mixed with melted butter and bake in a moderate oven in a dish set in water. Serve when the mixture is firm in the center.

Good Things We Like.

Simple desserts, which may be served to young and old, appeal to the busy housewife.

Lemon Jelly and Sliced Bananas.—Prepare the lemon jelly from a package which needs but the addition of a pint of boiling water.

When it is firm (if prepared the day before) it will be ready to cut into cubes. Put the cubes in the center of a glass dish and heap the sliced bananas around them. Pour over a thin custard, using a cupful of milk and egg and a strained honey for sweetening. The tartness of the jelly is especially good with the bananas.

Orange Parfait.—Boil together one cupful of sugar and one cupful of water until it threads or at 218 degrees on a candy thermometer. Pour the sirup onto two stiffly beaten egg whites, fold in the whipped cream (two cupfuls) and add one cupful of strained orange juice. Turn into a mold and pack in ice and salt. Allow to stand four hours before serving.

Orange Souffle.—To the whites of three eggs add a small pinch of salt and beat until stiff, then gradually beat in three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Beat the yolks of the eggs until light and lemon colored, add six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and enough orange juice to make of the consistency of coffee cream. Into this fold carefully one-half of the beaten whites, turn into a baking dish and cook in a dish of water until it puffs. Spread over it the pulp of three oranges, cover with the remaining egg white and set in the oven to brown quickly. The pulp of oranges when cooked at a high temperature will become bitter.

Simple custards baked, steamed or served as a sauce on fruit, are always a wholesome dessert for both little people and the grown-ups. A caramel custard is always enjoyed. Melt a half cupful of sugar in a heavy frying pan, add hot milk to dissolve and when well dissolved add one egg to each three-fourths cupful of milk, bake in a pan of water or steam in water over the gas flame. Remove as soon as the custard thickens as overcooking spoils a custard, making it coarse and unwholesome.

After preparing celery for the table, save the tops to put in soup.

Science Seeks Origin of Polynesian Races

The determined search of scientists for the answer to a great historic puzzle—the origin of the Polynesian races—is about to try a new channel. Edward W. Gifford, associate curator at the Museum of Anthropology in the University of California, has been added to the staff of the Bishop museum, Honolulu, for special race research in the Pacific. He will voyage to the Fiji islands in May in an effort to discover Polynesian traits, or remnants of them. The Bishop museum has been collecting a vast amount of material dealing with prehistoric days in the Pacific, and has sent a series of scientific expeditions into the South seas and to the Asian coast. A friendly working agreement has been reached with the government of Dutch East Indies for an investigation of early vestiges in the Dutch possessions. A large and well equipped bureau of ethnology has been established there.

Electricity on the Farm

While old-fashioned oil lamps are still used in about half the farm homes of this country, the General Federation of Women's Clubs finds, in a survey recently completed, that 28 in every 100 of the farms have electric service, 19 of these being served by electric light companies and the remainder generating their own power. Eighteen out of each 100 farmers' wives have electric irons.

Anyone who pans his friends behind their backs, doesn't deserve to have any.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwniski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancée, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, half-breed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has drifted ashore. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Garth tells Joan part of the reasons for his presence at Elkwan. He takes the Quarriers to Albany, from whence they can proceed to Montreal.

"And that is what keeps you here this winter," she hazarded, "when it might be Montreal; your love of hunting—the wilderness?"

She is thinking of the pictures of Ethel, Guthrie surmised, and wonders why I stay. As the York boat trailed, pushed by the following breeze, his gaze swept the shimmering waters of the gray strait to the sunlit barrens of the island. Then he faced her frankly.

"I'm not sure what keeps me here. It pulls me—the country, this life. After the war, everything was changed. Montreal had grown callous. No one cared for anything but pleasure—and money. It seemed as if the whole world had forgotten them—the ones who 'went west,' and what they died for. I grew to hate it—the office. My nerves were a bit jumpy from the gas, I suppose. I was off color, of course, but everybody who had been in it had a hard pull to readjust—to settle into the grind again. It was all new to me—business, the works, and I wished I was back with the battalion—with the mud, and the rest of it."

She nodded. "I know just how you felt. There were times after I returned when I was simply homesick for my wounded and the hospital life. I've really dreamed of it."

"It gets you, doesn't it? although you curse it while you're in it?" His gray eyes lit with memory.

She smiled in understanding. "It was hard, and awful—yet it does get one, as you say. It was life in the raw, stripped of the veneer—the shams. That is the reason, I suppose."

"Yes, stripped of the shams—that's it." He frowned, then went on. "Shot, here, misses it terribly—the noise, and excitement, and the men. He fights it all over again in his dreams. I know when he hears the guns or sees a Fritz. He looks like a mad porcupine—all quills, as he thrashes in his sleep. Eh, shot? . . . Stand to!"

With a low rumble in the hairy throat, the war dog leaped back, stiffening from nose to cocked tail, ears pricked, quivering nostrils testing the air, as the hair lifted on mane and back.

"Bravo, shot!" she cried, reaching to pat the tense head of the dog. But the albatross ignored her, his small terrible eyes questioning Guthrie's face for the reason for the familiar "Alerte," which stirred wild memories of black nights shot with flashes of light; of noises great and small; of men crawling—running; of men lying still.

Guthrie calmed the excited dog. "You see, like the rest of us, he hasn't forgotten."

"Good old shot!" And Joan Quarrier stroked the head of the dog who had returned to them. But her thoughts were of the girl in Montreal, and the riddle of Guthrie's exile.

Through the September day the York boat followed the coast south. In mid-afternoon Guthrie anchored off the Big Willow river and going ashore in the canoe, made camp that Joan Quarrier might have hot tea and food, and sleep, while he and Etienne, with the sailors, stayed with the boat.

The following afternoon, on the high south shore of Albany Island, they saw the quaint, square roofs of the Oblate mission, and that night three men sat in the tedium at historic Fort Albany, where each autumn, for two centuries, men had watched the last wedges of the gray geese fade into the south; seen the coming of the long snows and the ice bridge the river channels; starved or feasted through the slow beat of the desolate days. Here, in the red years of the Seventeenth century, the old log fort, built by the English, was stormed, retaken and stormed again, in the bitter war with the French for the fur trade. Here, generations of men had lived and loved and died, marooned in the James Bay silences.

The talk of the three men in the tedium centered on the meeting of the free-trader with Quarrier and the news that McDonald was to winter on the west coast.

"Major," said Hugh Cameron, the factor, dubiously shaking a grizzled head, "this fellow's wintering at Akimiski will ruin our fox trade. He'll be so handy to their traps that they'll dribble in their pelts as fast as they get 'em, for his trade goods and groceries."

"Etienne counts on the loyalty of the older hunters. We intend to keep in touch with them."

"Keep in touch? How're you going to cross that strait before January? It'll be full of drifting ice."

"The ice won't be set hard, but we intend to make it with a canoe on our sled. We'll carry the sled in the canoe or the canoe on the sled, as the conditions change."

"Risky—that's a bad piece of water. I've seen the ice set and break up again three times before January. And when you get there, how're you going to keep them away from his schooner?"

"We'll make a try, anyway," replied Guthrie. "Etienne and I don't intend to let our share of the trade slip through our fingers by hugging the fire at Elkwan."

"Well, good luck to you!" sighed the old trader. "Since the French company came to the bay, the Indians have forgotten the years we kept them from starving. They're out of hand now. Do what you can."

For a space Cameron seemed to dream of the past glories of the company he served, then suddenly asked: "You know what he did in August?"

"No."

"Why, he sailed into Charlton Island and tried to buy gas and flour at the depot. McMann laughed at him, of course; but that red-headed freebooter coolly announced that when he needed it, he would come and take it—said if we wouldn't sell it to him, he had government authority to seize it."

"He was right there; Ottawa's made that ruling, you know," suggested Blaikie, Cameron's clerk.

"Yes, they've made the ruling," rasped Cameron, "but do you think he'd get supplies from me when he's come into the bay to rob us of the trade?" The columns of smoke that the factor blew from his mouth were the measure of his irritation.

"Oh, by the way, Guthrie," asked Blaikie, with seeming innocence, "what was your trouble with this puffy old boy, Quarrier, you brought here today?"

Alive to the fact that the story of Ninda and his summary handling of the geologist had received due embellishment when Quarrier met Cameron on the arrival of the York boat, Guthrie suspected the motives of the clerk, and he had no intention of discussing the Quarrier episode or of subjecting the memory of the dead girl to the comment of a stranger.

"I've made my report to Mr. Cameron," he said with finality. "You heard Quarrier tell his story this afternoon. What are you after?"

Blaikie choked with anger, but the scarred cheek and the war record which had followed Guthrie to James bay in a letter from the Montreal headquarters of the company had made its marked impression at Albany. The clerk retreated behind a cloud of pipe smoke.

"Now, since that's settled," said Cameron, loudly clearing his throat and meeting Guthrie's look with a wink, "let's get back to business. Where do you suppose this McDonald gets his backing?"

"There are plenty of people in Newfoundland who'd back him after the haul he made last year on the east coast."

"He's going to be a thorn in our side, Guthrie. He's no ordinary chap; he's got nerve and ability. Queer thing happened when he came into Charlton. One of the half-breeds there stared at that face of his and laughed. McDonald grabbed the Indian by the throat and shook him like a rabbit; then roared: 'Laugh, d—n you! It's funny, is it? A thousand Canadians died the day I got that!'"

Profoundly stirred, Guthrie's sympathy went out to this stranger with the twisted mouth. What raw torture, what secret agony must have been his—facing the world with a grimace! How well he sensed the impotent fury—the bitterness of this man, doomed to the pitiless stares—the callous curiosity of the rabble.

"I wonder what day that was," queried Guthrie, aloud, unaware that his fingers touched the cicatrix on his cheek.

"If he'd only do something illegal," Cameron hastened to say, "the company could run him out of the bay."

There was a glint, frankly combative, in Guthrie's eyes as he heard the future of a Canadian veteran so cavalierly disposed of.

"That might not be so easy. From what the Indians say, he carries Lewis guns. Do you know any of our people who would relish meeting Laughing McDonald at the butt end of a machine gun?"

"He wouldn't dare fight us—shed blood on this bay!"

"Cameron," said Guthrie, and the glitter returned to his eyes, "I'm inclined to think that the company had better avoid any attempt at force with an overseas man with a mutilated mouth. He's apt to run amuck—to forget the war's over."

As he studied Guthrie's brooding eyes, Cameron knotted his thick brows, vaguely aware that the scar on the face of the speaker had prompted the remark.

"Well, however that may be, he's a dangerous competitor. After dropping that scared company Indian like a bag of salt, according to McMann, he asked if there were any more slackers who wanted to laugh at the kiss of a Hun shell—There weren't any!"

Guthrie smiled, his thoughts colored by memories.

"Yes," continued Cameron with a sigh, aware that the man he addressed was not listening, "it looks bad for Kapiskau and Elkwan this year."

Later, by the light of a candle in the small room assigned to him by the factor, Garth re-read two letters he had found waiting at the post. The letter of his brother, dictated to his secretary, and typewritten, expressed extreme shock at the failure of the wanderer to return; deplored his indifference to the future of the Guthrie Steel company and to his own; condemned his callous and shabby treatment of the lovely girl who worshipped him; had grown floridly eloquent in its emphasis of the distinction lately conferred on the Guthrie family in Charles' knighthood, and resented profoundly the blot which his hitherto

Sealing Wax Now Put to Decorative Uses

Sealing wax is perhaps less important than it was before mullaged envelopes came into use, but never was sealing wax so versatile as now, nor so useful artistically. Many a delicate decorative object that appears to be enamel ware or carved and painted wood or colored glass turns out to be merely molded sealing wax. Pendants and beads and artificial flowers, plaques and vases and candlesticks are among the objects beholden for their beauty to this material. Molding it, many an untrained woman has done something in home craftsmanship.

A lump of sealing wax on the end of a steel knitting needle melted over

Centenary of the Lucifer

The year 1927 marks the centenary of the original lucifer match, which was first made by John Walker, Stockton - upon - Tees, England. These matches became immensely popular but Walker refused to capitalize his discovery financially. It was also just a hundred years ago that gas for illuminating purposes was introduced in New York city, although in 1792 an English manufacturer used it.

a flame and cooled in a glass of water, shaped with a molder and decorated by melting in other colors becomes a handsome bead. A metal-rimmed pasteboard tag covered with warmed sealing wax and embellished with drops of wax, shaped when soft into bunches of grapes or flowers, becomes a "drop" to finish the necklace. Earrings and pins and hat ornaments are made in the same way.

A Constant Process

"Look, Augustus, there goes Mr. Plumkuten. He has been in Doctor Isbeens' hands for ten years on account of a nervous breakdown."

"Oh, yes, he has cured him several times. But every time Plumkuten gets the doctor's bill he has such a shock that he gets another nervous breakdown and the doctor has to take him in hand again."

Salaries of Engineers

The average graduate of engineering colleges starts with $1,500 a year, receives $4,000 ten years later and $7,500 thirty years later. About 10 per cent work up to $30,000 or more a year by the time they are fifty.

stainless escutcheon had sustained by Garth's inexplicable action.

In the name of his proud war record, his honor as a gentleman, and his future participation in the councils and direction of Guthrie Steel, now almost a household word in the Dominion, Charles commanded his errand brother to return where love and duty called.

Holding this intimate communication, which the busy Charles had seen fit to share with his secretary, over the flame of the candle, Garth grimly watched it burn.

Clara, characteristically, had approached from a different angle. Although his letters, she wrote, had not mentioned his health, she was confident that he was still ill. He had tried that cold, cruel north. Why not give the country near home a chance, where his devoted family and a broken-hearted girl pined for him. If he could have seen how stanchly Ethel had taken the blow. She was showing a brave face to the gossips—was going everywhere, but hiding a wounded heart. They called her "The Widow," and, of course, people were mystified, but she and Clara were only counting the days when dear old Garth would return to them.

She finished with: "Ethel and I are like sisters, inseparable. And she's so proud of Charles' new honor. 'Think of it!' she said the other day, 'to be the sister-in-law of the great Sir Charles Guthrie!' So you see, Garth, she is still the same old Ethel, loving you—forgiving all."

"Yes," the man who read agreed, a corner of the mouth lifting, "she's the old Ethel." And he blew out the candle.

Earlier, at the Church of England mission, where Joan Quarrier and her brother were staying until Cameron could send them to Moose, he had said good-by, for at dawn he was to start for Elkwan. The manner of Reverend Swan, who opened the door to Garth's knock, was distinctly cool, but as he had avoided the missionary during his year at Albany, and developed a warm friendship with Pere Rousseau, the Oblate, the inhospitable reception was anticipated and ignored. The little man with the pale hair and eyes, fidgeted with embarrassment at the appearance of Garth.

"I am in doubt as to whether Miss Quarrier's brother would wish her to see you," said the clergyman, with as brave a show of dignity as his five-foot-four could command in the snubbing of the man whose eyes twinkled in frank amusement at the effort.

Then, in a voice which Garth knew would be clearly audible to the girl he wished to see, he said: "Miss Quarrier will decide whether her brother's assistance whether she wishes to see me. Will you tell her I am here?"

Holding his position in the doorway, undecided as to his next move, the missionary reddened with anger at the trick. Then footsteps sounded behind him and the low voice of Joan Quarrier asked: "Is there someone to see me, Mr. Swan? Oh, it's Mr. Guthrie! Good evening." And she pushed past the disgruntled missionary to take Garth's extended hand.

"Do you mind talking outside? Mr. Swan fears that your brother doesn't approve of me," Guthrie flung at the figure in the door as he moved away with the girl, who sensed what had passed. "You see, your good brother has already poisoned the clerical mind," laughed Garth as they walked slowly to the clearing. "I'm leaving early tomorrow and came to say good-by."

The moon was up and Guthrie's side-long glance caught the sobering of her face. She was looking straight ahead and the light which drew a shimmering trail over the quiet surface of the Albany brushed her heavy hair with silver.

"You're worried about your geese—it was fine of you to waste precious time bringing us here."

"I am still in your debt, Miss Quarrier," he said, and as he watched the profile of the girl walking beside him with its straight nose and firm chin, the realization that she was passing out of his life—this woman whom chance had thrown into the tragedy at Elkwan—came swift as a blow. The old sense of loss, felt so often in the days when a friend—a comrade—"went west," returned to him. The vivid color and tang of her personality—the splendid strength of her—were stirring him with an appeal hitherto unheeded. Now that the brief days of their comradeship were over, the memory of Joan Quarrier's instant comprehension of the nature of the ploy, approaching affection, which Ninda inspired in him—of how the salve of her sympathy had eased the raw bitterness—poignantly returned.

And now this friendship—born of chance—was to be cut short off by the wall of a thousand miles of forest. She glanced curiously at the man who walked beside her in silence. "I shall think of you often up there with Etienne, and Shot, and old Anne," she hazarded. "It seems so lonely and so—unnecessary."

But Guthrie avoided reference to the cause of his exile. "We shall remember you—all of us. Without you it would have been unthinkable."

"It was strange—that storm, and meeting as we did. Poor little Ninda!" she said, dreamily watching the silhouette of a belated canoe from the whitish nets drift into the path of moonlight.

FAMOUS MINING STRIKES

By THOMAS E. STEWARD

"Holy Moses" and "Last Chance"

THE rich strikes at Creede, Colo., of ores containing silver, gold, lead and zinc, brought about in 1891 and 1892 a repetition of the early-day mining rushes that had been so picturesque a phase of early western life. Creede became a roaring mining camp and its population swelled to 10,000 in a few months. Its newspaper, The Creede Candle, which is still published, then carried at its masthead the slogan, "It's day all day in the daytime, and there is no night in Creede." There wasn't.

This outburst of mining enthusiasm started with the discovery of a rich claim by N. C. Creede and his associates. Shown a piece of ore from the claim, Creede exclaimed, "Holy Moses!" That name was given to the mine, which was not the first but was one of the important early discoveries in the district.

In June, 1891, Theodore Renniger and Julius Haas were grubstaked by two butchers of El Norte, Calif., and set out for the Creede district. It is reported by W. H. Emmons, author of the United States geological survey's treatise on the district, that Renniger allowed their burros to get loose and started to chase them. Picking up a rock to shy at one of the animals, he noticed unusual mineral characteristics in it and examined the immediate territory more closely. In this way was discovered the Last Chance mine. Close beside it the Amethyst was staked out, and by the end of 1892 ore valued at $4,215,000 had been taken from these and adjacent mines, nearly half of it from the Amethyst and more than one-third from the Last Chance.

As an example of the way prospectors dealt with their finds it is recorded that Haas sold his share in the Last Chance for $10,000. Renniger and one of the two men who grubstaked the outfit sold for $65,000 each. The other El Norte butcher, Mr. Granger, was offered $100,000, but refused and retained possession of his property.

A line was rushed into Creede by the Denver and Rio Grande railway and business was soon thriving in the new community.

Mineral production of Mineral county, in which Creede lies, has now already passed the $40,000,000 mark in total.

At Sutter's Mill

JOHANN SUTTER, a German of Swiss descent and French training, decided in 1839 to become an American, so he settled as a rancher on the banks of the American river in C. Mex. pro. inter. W. the a li and fan the heig M tail lean spar new era in the history of gold production. It was soon found that the bank of the Sacramento river and of practically every stream in the entire district were rich deposits of flake gold that could be recovered by the placer method of washing.

No sooner had the news reached San Francisco than that infant port was deserted, merchants and clerks, doctors and lawyers, even state officials, joined the wild rush to the vicinity of Sutter's ranch.

The tidings spread swiftly afield and men began coming from every part of America, and after a time from Europe and even from Asia. There were Mexicans, Kanakas from the South Sea Islands, Peruvians, Chileans and Chinamen, in the mob. In great part the interest in a Panama canal took its rise from this gold rush. Many, unwilling to waste the long months that were necessary to traverse the Overland trail, took ship to Colon and struggled across the isthmus to Panama, from which port they caught another vessel and made their way northward. So great were the crowds on the isthmus that many stayed there for weeks before they could book a passage to San Francisco. Enterprising souls saw the chance for huge profit and built the Panama railroad, forerunner of the canal. For years it was the most profitable investment ever built, and there was talk of building another across the much wider Isthmus of Tehuantepec in southern Mexico.

The overland migration of '49 was probably without parallel in modern times. Between August and December of that year no fewer than 80,000 persons accomplished the 2,000-mile journey through a savage and partially explored wilderness, crossing two mountain chains as high as the Alps and vast tracts of burning desert. In addition to these obstacles came the opposition of two of the fiercest Indian nations, the Pawnees and the Sioux.
