Hoover Hurrying to Washing, Perhaps Because of Farm Relief Puzzle.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CONFUSION in congress concerning plans for farm relief legislation has caused President-Elect Hoover to postpone his visit to Florida and burry to Washington. His change of plans was announced from the U. S. 8. Utah, on which he was returning to the United States. The warship will bring Mr. Hoover direct to Old Point Comfort, Va., where he is due to land January 6 and whence he will go to the capital for a stop of about ten days before going to Miami Beach. Though Mr. Hoover said the change

In his itinerary was due to pressure of personal affairs, and intimated he would not concern himself with pending legislation before his inauguration, it was taken for granted in Washington that he felt it advisable to survey the farm relief situation on the ground. Vice President-Elect Curtis and others are in favor of legislation in that line at this session, and on their suggestion Senators Fess and McNary cabled Mr. Hoover at Rio de Janeiro asking his influence in support of their position. He did not reply, so McNary talked with him by long-distance telephone, telling the President-Elect that he was confident the opposition to immediate legislation would be routed if Mr. Hoover would take a determined stand in its favor. Mr. Hoover was noncommittal, but soon after decided to come to Washington as soon as possible. Probably Mr. Hoover would be glad to avoid calling a special session of the new congress in the spring, but influential groups, including the American Farm Bureau federation, wish to postpone farm legislation, feeling that a more satisfactory measure can be obtained from the new congress. Senators Borah and Brookhart insist on such postponement and have announced that they will filibuster legislation at this session unless Mr. Hoover definitely promises to call the special session for farm relief. A filibuster might cause the failure of appropriation bills, and this of itself would necessitate a special session. Representative Dickinson of Iowa, leader of the farm bloc in the house, and some of his associates want postponement because they do not wish President Coolidge to appoint the federal farm board that will administer relief.

MR. HOOVER has not yet given an inkling of the make-up of his cabinet, but those who would select his aids for him are getting busier every day. A rumor that the Commerce portfolio had been offered to Julius Rosenwald, the multimillionaire Chicago merchant, was flatly denied by that gentleman. For secretary of state those most frequently mentioned are Senator Borah, Charles E. Hughes, Roland W. Boyden of Boston and Ambassadors Fletcher, Morrow and Houghton. W. J. Donovan, General Pershing and Hanford MacNider are suggested for secretary of war. It is generally believed the only members of the Coolidge cabinet who will be retained are Secretary of the Treas-ury Mellon, Postmaster General New and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur.

mas on the Utah was a bappy day for all. Captain Train and his of ficers gave the Hoover party an elab-orate dinner on the deck, little presents were given and received and om the feast long enough to number of sailors in the sick make them joyful with greet-

Coolidge and several others left for Georgia to spend several days hunting and fishing at Howard E. Coffin's winter home on Sapelo island. In the party was Frank O. Salisbury, a British artist, who has been commissioned by the New York Genealogical and Biographical society to paint a portrait of the President to be hung in the organization's new home in New York city. Mr. Salisbury recently did a portrait of King George of England. The President sat for the British painter during his stay in Georgia.

PLANS for the convocation of reparations experts have been agreed upon by the allies and Germany, and the governments of those lands have asked for participation by American experts. President Coolidge and his administration gave this proposition their approval, with the stipulation that the choice of the Americans be made and they be appointed by the foreign governments. In this way the administration avoids becoming officially involved in the settlement of reparations, a question which it holds does not concern the United States. It was announced in Paris that the allied governments would submit the names of Owen D. Young and Dwight W. Morrow, with Rufus C. Dawes as alternate, as the American observers. The appointments are to be submitted to President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg for informal approval. Our government is now, as always, determined that the settlement of the reparations question shall not be entangled with the question of revision of the war debts owed to America.

THOUGH the League of Nations council assumes credit for a peaceful settlement of the dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay, the plan to be followed was formulated by the Pan-American arbitration conference in Washington. It establishes an international panel of nine judges, two to be selected by each of those republics and the other five by the arbitration conference. According to the pian, the jurisdiction of the conciliation body would be restricted to the immediate controversy between Bolivia and Paraguay over the frontier clashes which occurred in the month of De cember. It would not deal with the larger problem of the general boundary relations between the two countries. Should conciliation prove impossible, then the commission would publish a report as to the facts found and also would fix the responsibility for the events which occurred.

The Paraguayan ministry of war has ordered the demobilization of the troops that were enrolled during the crisis over the Gran Chaco boundary.

MEXICAN rebels, who are exceedingly active in several regions, burned the supports of a railway bridge across a canyon in Chihuahua, and a train on the Kansas City, Mex ico and Orient line crashed to the bottom of the ravine, two trainmen being killed and 30 persons hurt. The train was carrying many notables to ceremonies at the opening of a branch line.

President Portes Gill has announced that in the future all rebels or revolutionaries captured will be given the benefit of trial by jury, or at least court-martial, the policy of summarily executing them being ordered discon-

COMMANDER RICHARD E. BYRD on Christmas day sent the following wireless message to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur:

"We have reached today the great mysterious fce barrier. It presents to us an ice cliff higher than the mast of the ship. On this Christmas day we are thankful and proud to report that we have been able to carry the American flag several hundred miles farther south than It has ever been, and it seems fitting that an airplane, that instrument of good will, should reach its farthest south on Christmas day.

I ITTLE navy propagandists may be pleased to learn that even if the United States builds the fifteen cruisers for which a bill is pending in congress, our navy would still be far below parity with that of Great Britain. Statistics showing this were made public by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and Chairman Hale of the senate naval affairs committee, to combat the arguments of those opposing the measure. The pacifists are redoubling their efforts against the proposed naval legislation. The citizens' committee, a New York organization, has called for a nation-wide cruiser conference in Washington on January 8, under the auspices of the "Washington council on international relations." At this meeting, according to the announcement, delegates from each state will interview their senators and then report back to the conference on their position in regard to the cruiser bill, "The cruiser bill should not pass," ir the watchword.

CHINA'S five greatest military leaders and a large number of other army men met in Nanking under the auspices of the Nationalist government to confer on the disbanding of troops, the organization of a national army and the establishment of a military financial budget. The big five were President Chiang Kai-shek, Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, Gen. Hsi-shan, Gen. Li Chai-sum and Gen. Li Tsung-jen. Colonel Bauer, German military expert, was on hand to give them advice. The correspondent of a Shanghai paper predicts the early fall of Chiang Kai-shek's government and says Feng Yu-hslang will be the leader of the new element in the Kuomintang party, composed of the radical vounger mem-

ATEST reports from Kabul declare the Afghan capital is still quiet, but the danger of the situation is shown by the fact that Amir Amanullah has sent his queen and his mother to another city and most of the foreign women have been removed by airplane. The rebels are said to have been evicted from the heights near Kabul and driven back forty miles, but volunteers are still "rushing to the defense of the government."

Safety, silence and simplicity are features of the new Ford six-brake system

ONE of the first things you will notice when you drive the new Ford is the quick, effective, silent action of its six-brake system.

This system gives you the highest degree of safety and reliability because the fourwheel service brakes and the separate emergency or parking brakes are all of the mechanical, internal expanding type, with braking surfaces fully enclosed for protection against mud, water, sand, etc.

The many advantages of this type of braking system have long been recognized. They are brought to you in the new Ford through a series of mechanical improvements embodying much that is new in design and manufacture. A particularly unique feature is the simple way by which a spe-cial drum has been constructed to permit the use of two sets of internal brakes on the rear wheels.

A further improvement in braking performance is effected by the self-centering feature of the fourwheel brakes - an exclusive Ford development. Through this construction, the entire surface of the shoe is brought in steady, uniform contact with the drum the instant you press your foot on the brake pedal. This prevents screeching and howling and makes the Ford brakes unusually silent in Another feature of the Ford brakes is the ease of adjustment.

The four-wheel brakes are adjusted by turning a screw conveniently located on the outside of each brake plate. This screw is so notched that all four brakes can be set alike simply by listening to the "clicks."

The emergency or parking brakes on the new Ford require little attention. However, should they need adjustment at any time, con-sult your Ford dealer for prompt, courteous, and eco-nomical service. He works under close factory super-vision and he has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest use from your car over the longest period of time at a mini-mum of trouble and

History told as it would be written today By IRVIN S. COBB

Bunker Hill From Three Angles

The Boston Tea Party was past history; so, too, was Paul Revere's Ride. At Lexington a little handful of minute-men had fired the shot that would be heard around the world.

Now, at Bunker Hill, on June 17, 1775, nearly a year before the Declaration of Independence would be written, was to be fought the first considerable battle of the Revolution. Bunker Hill was connected by a ridge with Breed's Hill, both being on a narrow peninsula a short distance from Boston.

The significance of Bunker Hill did not lie in its size or in the fact that it was the first real engagement of the Revolution—for Lexington was, in effect, a running skirmish—or in any of its physical results. It lay in something morally and humanly fundamental. That the victory was claimed by the British meant something but not much. That the ericans were defeated largely through the shortage of their ammunition meant less even. In view of the ultimate consequences to us as a nation and to the earth in general, what made Bunker Hill one of the great battles of history was that it served to raise the combative instincts of Americans against tyranny, that it welded together the independ-ence-loving people of this continent in a bond which forever has endured and, finally, that it destroyed the fetish that green hastily-levied citizen-soldiery could never meet and withstand the shock of drilled, disciplined and organized professionals.

This rarely has been done in any age. But at Bunker Hill it was done, and by doing it those volunteers from the New England farms and New England villages breathed strength into the heart and hope into the soul of American liberty.

N THE week after the Battle of Bunker Hill-within the space of four days, to be exact-three men of different faiths wrote letters giving their own differing versions of the engagement and its probable results. Two of these men were actual participants, one being a volunteer with the Americans, the other being an officer with the British. The third was a spectator, and he was a deeply prejudiced partisan of the English side, a "Tory," as the revolting Colonists called his sort then and thereafter. Mark how closely the dates of writing followed-June 20, June 23,

From these letters, which were gathered for this series from sources widely separated, it is possible to get, at conflicting angles, a vision not only of the battle but of the opinions of those arraigned on opposite sides. The Continental, plainly a stalwart Yankee through and through, tells of the splendid behavior of his compatriots, The generous Englishman voices a sentiment common enough among his people at home-a belief that right is on the side of the home-spun soldiers against whom he just has fought, and determination to sacrifice his military career, which must have been dear to him, rather than again draw his sword to support a cause which he regards as oppressive. The transplanted Royalist looks on these presumptuous fellow subjects of his who have dared to defy the crown as arrant rebels. Well, the history of mankind shows that insurgents always have been rebels-unless they succeed. It is only after they have won that the world is willing to acknowledge them as revolutionists. This gentleman calls the uprising a delusion; he regards it, this well-fed Boston merchant, as being unprovoked. Except in his private convictions there is nothing of the radical about him. Today some would dub him a conservative, others, in derision, would brand him a stand-patter. History shows that every great political spasm produces many like him.

Now, these three eye-witnesses-the agree as to the numbers engaged and also as to the extent of the casual ties. But on one point they do agree, the native Yankee boasting of it, the Britisher admitting it with admiration, the foreign-born Tory conceding it begrudgingly and with evident reluctance.

And that point is that the spirit of revolt so deeply is rooted in the souls of the little American force then in arras, that the men composing it-the New England farmhands, the artisans, the workingmen, the small gentry, as counter-distinguished from the wealthy and established classes who, an a group, have sided with King George-will surely fight once more and fight on and on.

The three prophets were right, each in his own way. The Americans did fight once more and many times more, and they won. And because they won we speak of the founders of this nation as Loyalists and not as Rebels.

History has a way of repeating itself. In 1775 the Americans dared oppose the tyrannies of a stupid German king-for there was nothing British about George the Third, except his title to his throne. In 1917 more than two million Americans went overseas to oppose the false and brutal theories of another German king. In each instance the king ultimately was beaten and the peoples of the nations cherish-ing the principles of representative government triumphed.

The First Letter.

The author of the first letter here reproduced was a resident of Providence, R. I. Addressing a friend in New York on the second day, but one, following the fight, and dispatching his communication by courier on that day, he wrote this:

"You doubtless have been alarmed with divers accounts of the contest which happened on the 17th instant between the king's troops and our army, so I shall give you a narrative in a few words.

"to the evening of the 16th, Colone Putnam took possession of Bunker Hill, with about two thousand men.

our people imprudently spoke aloud that our powder was all gone, which being heard by some of the regular officers they encouraged their men to march up to the trenches with fixed bayonets and enter them; on which our people were ordered to retreat, which they did with all speed, till they got out of musket shot. They then formed, but were not pursued. "In the meantime six of the British men-of-war and four of their floating batteries were brought up, and these kept up a continual fire on the causeway that leads on to Charlestown; our people retreated through the fire: but not without the loss of many in dead and injured.

"Our loss is sixty men in killed and missing and about one hundred and forty wounded. The brave Doctor Warren is among the former, and Colonel Lardner among the latter. We left six field pieces on the hill. Our people are now entrenched on Pleasant Hill within cannon shot of Bunker Hill. The loss of the king's troops must be very considerable; the exact number one cannot tell. If our people had been supplied with ammunition they would have held possession most carefully. The enemy have begun firing on Roxbury with firebrands to set it on fire, but have not yet succeeded.

"Our people are in high spirits and are very earnest to put this matter on another trial!"

The Second Letter.

The second letter, written from on board one of his majesty's ships in Boston harbor to a gentleman in London, on June 23, reads as follows: "On the evening of the 16th we were informed that the Provincials were erecting a battery on the heights near Charlestown and that they intended from thence to bombard the chy of Boston. Early on the 17th we were alarmed with an account that they had been at work upon it all night and had nearly completed it. We were immediately ordered to land some battalions and in the meantime our great guns were fired against se who appeared to be busily em ployed at the battery. Whether our shots did not reach far enough to create any confusion among them, or it was owing to their resolution, I cannot say; but certain it is that the moment they discovered the landing of our troops they formed in order of battle and so far from retreating. as we expected, they marched towards us with the utmost coolness and regularity.

"Nothing can exceed the panicky and apparent dislike of most of the king's troops to enter into this engagement. They, for the most part, openly express a dislike to the service in which they are engaged, and nothing but the fear of military punishment prevents their daily deserting. The generals, perceiving the strength and order of the Provincials, ordered a reinforcement to join the troops already landed, but before they came up, the cannonading on both sides began. The Provincials poured down like a torrent, and fought like men who had no care for their persons; they disputed every inch of the ground. and their number were far superior to ours. The king's troops gave way several times and it required the utmost efforts of the generals to rally them. At the beginning of the engagement many of them absolutely turned their backs, not expecting so hot a fire from the Americans. The latter feigned a retreat in order, as we suppose, to draw our troops after them and by that means to cut them in pieces, and we are informed that the enemy had a reserve of four thousand men for that purpose.

"The king's troops, concluding that the Americans quitted the field the Americans quitted the field through fear, pursued them under that apprehension but did not proceed far enough to be convinced by that fatal experience which was, as we hear, designed for them, of their mistake. hear, designed for them, of their mis-take. The engagement lasted up-wards of four hours and ended in-finitely to our disadvantage. The flower of our army are killed and wounded. During the engagement Charlestown was set on fire by the king's troops in order to stop the progress of the Provincials, who after their sham retreat returned to attack them; but I think it was a wanton act number are afflicted with the scurvy, occasioned by the want of fresh provisions, I heartly wish myself with you and the rest of my friends; and the first opportunity that offers I will sell out and return, for at best only disgrace can arise in the service of such a cause as that in which we are engaged. The Americans are not the poltroons I myself once was taught to believe them to be; they are men of liberal and noble sentiments; their very characteristic is the love of liberty; and though I am an officer un der the king of Great Britain, I tacitly admire their resolution and perseverance against the present oppressive measures of the British govern-

The Third Letter.

The author of the third letter was a prosperous merchandiser. He was not a native born. He came out from Scotland in his youth and settled in Boston. Here in a letter bearing date of June 24 is what he had to tell to his brother in the old country:

"From the 19th of April to the 17th of June nothing very material hap-pened. On the 12th of June the general issued a proclamation offering his majesty's most gracious pardon to all who would lay down arms and return to their duty, except two of the ringleaders; and likewise establishing martial law in this province while this unnatural rebellion exists; but no regard was paid to this.

"On the 17th instant, at daylight, it was observed by some of the ships-ofwar that the rebels had thrown up an intrenchment on a hill on the other side of the river about one mile from Boston. The alarm about this new movement of theirs was general; for, from this, if they were suffered to go on, they could beat down or burn the town. At nine o'clock a battery on an eminence in this town directly opposite their works began to play upon them but found it could not dislodge

"The rebels fired a few shots into this town and then desisted, for their shots did no execution. Eighteen hundred of the best of the troops were immediately ordered to embark on board of boats and go and engage then under the command of General Howe. About three o'clock they landed on the other side about half a mile from the rebels, under the cover of five or six ships-of-war, which kept a continual fire on the ground betwixt the place of landing and the enemy who chose to lie in their breastworks all this time. As soon as the troops had got themesives in order they began to advance, cannonading all the way till they came within gunshot. Charlestown, on the foot of the hill, consisting of about two hundred houses, was set on fire by the fort on this side at the instant the engagement began, whose flames raged in the most rapid manner, the buildings being chiefly of wood. Sure I am, nothing ever has or can be more dreadfully terrible than what was to be seen and heard at this time! The most incessant discharge of guns that ever was heard with mortal ears continued for three-quarters of an hour, and then the troops forced the trenches and the rebels fled.

"The place where the battle was fought is a peninsula of a mile long cross Ball Blue in the laundry. #### Praises British Troops.

"A very small part of the enemy's intrenchments was seen on this side, it being only thought to be the work of a night; but their chief breastworks were on the other side of the bill: it was found to be the strongest post that was ever occupied by any set of men, and the prisoners that were taken say they were nine thousand strong and had a good artillery. Five cannon were taken. The spirit and bravery that the British troops exhibited on this occasion, I suppose, is not to be surpassed in any history! But, oh! the melancholy sight of killed and wounded that was seen on that day! In four hours after their landing, not less than five hundred wounded were relanded here, and one hundred and forty were left dead on the field, amongst whom was a large proportion of brave officers, viz: thirtysix killed and forty-four wounded; three hundred of the rebels were killed and thirty-six wounded left on the field, but they carried off great numbers of their wounded in their retreat. To the great satisfaction of all good men, Doctor Warren was slain, who was one of their first and greatest leaders.

"Early next morning I went over and saw the field of battle, before any of the dead were buried, which was the first thing of the sort that I ever saw, and I pray God I may never have the opportunity of seeing the like again. The rebels are employed since that day fortifying all the hills and passes within four miles, to prevent the troops from advancing into the country. We hourly expect the troops to make a movement against them, but they are too few in number, not less than twenty thousand being equal to the task. I cannot help mentioning one thing which serves to show the hellish disposition of the accursed rebels: by parcels of ammunition that were left on the field, their balls were

CHAPTER V

Billie Warren rode with Harris on the last lap of the circle. There were but two men remaining with them.

"Moore!" Harris called, and the man turned his horse down the head of a draw that would lead him out into the bottoms a trifle less than a mile above the wagon. Harris heard e shrill whistle behind him and turned sidewise in the saddle to took back, saw that Moore had regained the ridge and was signaling. They turned and rode back to him.

"There's another," Moore said. pointing down the gulch. "It's get ting to be a habit."

A dead cow tay on a little flat s bundred yards below. For three con secutive days some rider had found a fresh-killed Three Bar cow. Every animal had been shot.

"I'll took this one over myself, Harris decided. "There's only two more guiches to work. Each one of rou boys take one."

The girl followed him as he turned down the first steep ditch. They pulled up their horses and sat look ing at the cow. A trickle of blood pozed out of a hole between her eyes Harris rode in a circle round the

"He downed her from some point above," he said. "Not a sign any where close at hand." He surveyed the ridges that flanked either side of the draw and the little saddle-like de pression at the head of it from which they had just descended. From be youd this gap came the shrill nicker of a borse, the sound chopped short as if a man had clamped his hand or the animal's nostrils to silence it Harris turned swiftly to the girl. "It's a plant," he said. "Ride-

He suited his action to the words and jumped his horse off down the bottoms. He waved her over to one

"Keep well away from me!" he or "They don't want you."

They hung their spurs into their mounts and the horses plunged down the steeply-pitching bottoms, vaulting sage clumps and bounding along the cow trails that threaded the brush Two hundred yards below the row the draw made an elbow bend. The girl rounded it and as Harris fol lowed a jump behind he felt jarring tug at the cantle of his saddle and the thin, sharp crack of s rifle reached him. The guich made reverse bend and as they swep! around it Harris swung sidewise it the saddle and tooked back. They were entirely sheltered from any point on the divide six hundred yards behind them. He pulled his horse to swinging trot and they rode dewi

"We didn't get started any too soon," Harris said. She waved those already on the spot toward the rope corral.

fresh horse. "Scatter out; some of you below where we came down, some above." she said. "Five hundred to the man that brings Morrow in."

"It's no use, Billie," Harris coun seled mildly. "He's plum out of the country by now. It'll be dark in three hours-and it's right choppy country

Waddles interposed and seconded ner move.

"Let 'em rip," he said. "There's just a chance."

Bangs was the first to change mounts. The boy's physical qualifica ions were as sound as his mental ability was limited and it was his pride to have a string of mounts that included the worst horses in the lot He rode from the corral on Blue, hold ing the b'g roan steady, and headed up the ridge a mile below where flar ris and the girl had come down

Foster chose the next: five riders were but a few jumps behind. Harris did not change horses but searched hastily in his war bag and slipped the strat, of a binocular case across his shoulders and rode off with the girl as she finished cinching her sad dle on a fresh horse.

In tess than five minutes from the time she had reached the wagon the just Three Rar man had mounted and gone. Harris rode with her up a tong ridge that led up to the divide; they followed another into the next bot toms and ascended the second divide This was sharp and rocky, its crest a maze of ragged pinnacles. He chose the highest of these and dismounted to sweep the range with his glasses. The high point afforded a view of every ridge for miles. After perhaps half an hour Harris caught five horse men in the field of his glasses. They

As the two men reached the bottoms the frenzied horse had stopped and was fighting to free himself of the thing that followed him. He moved away from it in a circle but it was always with him. He squeated and kicked it, then dashed off in a fresh panic, side-swiping his pursuer.

Harris' rope tightened on his neck and threw him. As he rolled over Foster's noose snared both hind feet and he was held stretched and helpless between two trained cow horses while the men disengaged the bundle that had once been Bangs. One boot heel was missing and his foot was jammed through the stirrup, evidence that the horse had pitched with him and the loosened heel had come off, allowing his foot to slip through as he was thrown.

Harris pointed to a burnt red streak cross the right side of Bangs' neck. He unbuttoned his shirt and revealed similar streak under his left armple. Old Rile cursed horribly and his face seemed to have aged ten years. "They learned that from the aibf-

He had told them of the shot fired at Harris and they had known that some other Three Bar man would find the traff tending from the direction of their camp. "It's coming dark." Harris "And by morning they'll be thirty miles away. That sort of a killing was never fustened on to any man vet."

The old man raised a doubled fist and his face was lined with sorrow. "Bangs was almost a son to me," he said. "I taught him to ride-and we've rode together on every job since then. You hear me! Some one is go ing to die for this!"

During the next week the girl in wardly accused the men of beartlessness. They jested as carelessly us if nothing unusual had occurred and she heard no mention of Bangs. It seemed that it took but a day for them to forget a former comrade who had come to an untimely end. Rile Foster had disappeared but on the nith day he turned up at the Three Bar wagon and resumed his work without the least explanation of his

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasanttasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just

"I just couldn't resist any longer telling you of your wonderful medi-cine, Milks Emulsion. I have been constipated as long as I can remember. Had typhoid fever when I was eight years old and since then my bowels haven't moved freely. Doctors have given me bowel medicine and I have taken pills, salts, castor oil, and everything a person could think of. They didn't do me any good whatever. "Now, whenever I hear anyone say they are constipated, I immediately tell them of Milks Emulsion. I have taken about 12 large bottles, not all of them regular. Now I keep Milks Emulsion in the house and take it regular. I have taken so much medicine that I thought it was all alike.

"I had a sallow complexion, no color, and felt miserable all the time; but now I have the color of health, and health is something I wouldn't exchange with anyone for a fortune I wouldn't take ten times the price I paid for Milks Emulsion for the re-

Her bowels started working immediately, and in little or no time she was eating so she got to be a pest at the table, always asking us to pass things. Her weight increased, her color improved and she began to romp and play again like other children. Now she's the picture of health, and strong as a boy." Pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup acts surely and quickly to cleanse your child's stomach and howels of the souring waste that is keeping her half-sick, billious. sallow, feverish, listless, weak and puny. But it's more than a laxative. It tones and strengthens the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. Ask for it by the full name, "California Fig Syrup," so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

"It is my mistake," admitted the wife, much to the man's surprise. "You see," she added, "I did not expect you to get home before midnight, as usual, and why wash these dishes that I had intended to break on your head when you came in?"

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS

ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form.
