CONGRESSMAN JONES GETS ROOSEVELT PEN

Representative Marvin Jones of this district is the possessor of one of the pens with which President Roosevelt approved the farm bill at the White House Friday. The group was photographed with the President in the executive office.

The new farm bill, more sweeping than any measure of the kind that Congress has enacted, was piloted through the legislative shoals in the House of Representatives by Mr. Jones as chairman of the House Committee of Agriculture, and in the Conference committee the burden of defending the measure with its proposals of farm relief, farm mortgage relief and currency inflation fell to Mr. Jones, and in which he was the spokesman of the administration.

We have a few pairs of boys and young mens Pants, $1.50 value, to sell for 98c.

R. H. Munn and family left Monday for Amarillo, where he has accepted a position. We are sorry to lose them, and hope the loss is temporary.

NAZARENE REVIVAL

A Nazarene revival will begin Sunday, May 28th, with Rev. P. R. Jarrell as the evangelist. Bro Jarrell is an able preacher, and will bless all who hear him.

We invite all who love Jesus and His work, and are interested in the lost, to join us in every service in the fight against sin.

Rev. Nannie Carter,
Pastor.

Mrs. McEwen and daughter, Miss Helen, Mrs. W. H. Burden and daughter returned Sunday from Paris, Texas, after a two weeks visit with relatives and friends there.

THINGS SEEM QUIET SINCE SCHOOL IS OUT

Everything seems rather quiet this week after so much activity in connection with the closing of school last week. The various programs presented at the school this year were unusually good.

A number of the teachers have made other plans, and will not be here next year. We join their other Hedley friends in wishing them well wherever they go.

GULF REFINING COMPANY PUTS NEW DEAL INTO PRACTICAL OPERATION

Extensive Advertising Campaign Launched to Show Its Belief in Upward Trend of Commerce and Industry

Here's one of the most remarkable stories, as well as one that is of special interest to all the people of Texas. Three years ago the Gulf Refining Company engineers made a discovery of revolutionary importance to the oil industry. A discovery so advanced, so significant, that it made possible a finer, longer lived motor oil than the industry had ever seen.

This discovery was an utterly new refining process—the now famous Aichlor Process, exclusive with Gulf. The oil made by it is called Gulfpride.

At first it was possible to produce only limited quantities of this new and remarkable oil. But so amazingly outstanding was its quality that—utterly without advertising and publicity—its fame spread throughout the United States and all foreign nations. It came into universal demand wherever the finest motor lubrication was sought.

Gulfpride has now proved itself beyond question the finest motor oil in the world. This oil is manufactured in the Gulf Refinery in Port Arthur, Texas. It has established seventeen world's records! It has surpassed every set of specifications ever issued for a motor oil, including U S Army, U S Navy, and British Government.

Gulfpride is in demand in all corners of the earth and shipped to all points from Port Arthur, Texas, where it is manufactured.

The current extensive advertising campaign of the Gulf Refining Company now appearing in Texas newspapers is stressing this oil, and, too, the fact that Gulf stations sell three grades of oil and gasoline at three different prices, ranging from the buying power of the motorist who wants a low priced gasoline or oil, but wants the most possible value for the money, to the motorist who wants the very best regard less of cost.

Will Rogers can be heard on the air every Sunday evening on the Gulf Refining Company radio program at 7 p. m., and Irvia S Cobb on Wednesday and Friday evenings at the same hour. A weekly comic paper is distributed free at all Gulf stations.

Our friend J W Cauthen, who was in town Saturday from his home in McKnight community, showed the editor a promissory note signed by his grandfather, James Cauthen, of Tennessee on Jan. 1st, 1861. We had never seen one like it, though such notes were probably common in those days. It reads:

"By the twenty fifth day of December next we, or either of us, promise to pay Jas L. Sherrell, one of the executors of M. R. Sherrell, Dec., one hundred and twenty dollars for the hire of Jim for the present year. Said boy is to have three suits of clothes, one of which is to be a winter suit, a bed and blankets worth two dollars and fifty cents, to be shod the year round, hired pay taxes, and lose time in case of sickness. Executors to pay doctor's bill if incurred."

SUCH IS LIFE—No Future There

Message Finally Found
Way to Grateful Woman

Three years after it was cast from the Red Star liner Belgenland, homeward bound from a cruise round the world, a bottle bearing a message and directions to its finder was picked up by a woman at Bottle Creek, Calcos, in the British West Indies, the Ocean Ferry, house organ of the line, reports.

The ship was in the Gulf stream in April, 1930, when speculation on the nature and direction of the stream caused a group of passengers to attempt their experiment. A plut champagne bottle was used, its cork being driven in and shaved level with the glass and a thick layer of sealing wax placed over the cork.

The finder sent the following note: "Sir, I am a very poor woman and have the care of an invalid husband, so you can imagine how glad I was when I picked up this note and found that I am to receive a reward for it. God in Heaven will reward you, for he says that what you give to the poor you only lend to him."

A sum substantially in excess of the promised reward has been forwarded to the woman in the West Indies.

Caissons Used in Valley of River Nile 3,900 Years Ago

Expedition Finds Pyramid
Builders Employed Them.

New York.—The presence of a master mind among the engineers who built the pyramids at Lisht, near Cairo, with evidence of his ingenuity in the use of the caisson to sink the shafts for the burial of noble dead, has been revealed by the Egyptian expedition of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, through excavations last year in the Nile valley. According to Ambrose Lansing, head of the expedition, the application of the caisson principle by the Egyptian tomb builders thirty-nine centuries ago is the earliest yet discovered.

Two separate caissons, remotest types known of the device which has made possible many of the huge erections of the present day, were uncovered by the expedition. One, a stone and brick affair, remained almost perfectly intact; the other, made of wood, could be identified only by traces of its rotted beams. The appliances were among the most striking of several interesting discoveries which were made relating to the methods of pyramid building in Egypt and to the life of the time, according to the museum report.

Findings Made Near Cairo.
The finds were made at the site of the pyramid of Se'n-Worset I, at Lisht, forty miles south of Cairo, where the museum expedition resumed operations a year ago after an absence of six years at Thebes. Se'n-Worset, the second king of the early Twelfth dynasty, personally directed the building of the tomb and it was during the search for the burial places of the ladies of the royal family that the archeologists found the caisson pits.

Work was begun in the outer court at the west side of the huge mound. "Although we failed at first to find any pits," writes Mr. Lansing, "it is fortunate that we did not give up clearing this part of the court. Had we done so we might have missed what was, from an archeological point of view at least, the most interesting discovery of the season." Describing the method used by some ancient Egyptian genius in penetrating beyond a treacherous substratum of loose sand, which had handicapped the digging of the tombs, Mr. Lansing says:

"They cut through the hard upper stratum to the sand level, making the cutting sufficiently large to allow for a brick lining to the pit. A block of limestone was then cut to the same dimensions as the pit. This was hauled out to the size of the intended shaft and then lowered into the pit until it rested on the sand. On the rim of the caisson was built a brick wall. When this wall had been constructed to the level of the ground the digging of the pit was recommenced. As each basketful of sand was removed, the stone caisson, and with it the brick wall which rested on it, settled slightly. Gradually the stone sank through the sand, and as it sank courses of brickwork were added to the wall above."

Work Described in Inscription.
Discovery of inscriptions on huge stones used for the sub-casing of the giant pyramid brought forth other notable facts which enabled the archeologists to piece together a vivid picture of the manner in which the stone was brought from the quarries at Tura, on the opposite bank of the Nile some twenty miles distant from Lisht, and deposited at the foot of the pyramid under construction.

The transportation of these heavy stones, says Mr. Lansing, was chiefly a matter of man power. The problem was to keep the masons supplied with material to prevent any interruption of their labors. This was accomplished by taking advantage of the flooding of the Nile, which reduced the distance the blocks of stone had to be dragged. Mr. Lansing gives a picture of the assembling of the stones on the east bank for the arrival of the flood, followed by a massed concentration on the task of loading the barges, towing them to Lisht and unloading them there.

Students Find Fossils.
Pittsburgh.—Within the limits of Pittsburgh, high school students unearthed excellent specimens of 2,000,000-year-old fossils on a recent exploration trip. The fossils, which included corals, were found in Crinoidal limestone in a cliff.

PERSISTENCE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

I had not seen Plank for a dozen years or so until he ran into me at the Congress hotel in January. I remembered him—at once as rather slow in the head when he was in college. Calculus was not wholly an open book to him in his sophomore year, and physics and chemistry proved equally hard sledding for him. His grades were pretty low, and, contrary to the belief and doctrine of the loafer, low grades in college usually mean poor or indifferent performance in business afterwards.

But slow as he was, Plank had a quality which made fair to offset his slowness of brain. He never gave a thing up. If the problem was hard, he kept at it until it was solved. If he failed today, he came back tomorrow for a second trial. He hung on like a bull dog, when he once got his teeth into a thing.

"How are you doing?" I asked him after we had exchanged greetings. "Very much better than I imagine you thought I would do," he replied.

Named for Old Job

Sumner Welles of Maryland, who has been nominated by President Roosevelt as assistant secretary of state, to succeed Harvey Bundy, resigned. Mr. Welles held this same position during the Wilson administration.

"I was a poor student, as I am sure you well remember. I didn't get through in four years."

"But you did get through," I suggested. "Yes," he said, "I'm not easily downed, and I do work hard. I've made money—much more than I had expected—I'm carrying heavy responsibilities, and I think I'm a good citizen."

"Work will overcome a great many handicaps," I had to admit. "Persistence is almost as effective as genius, and whatever other virtues or talents you may have lacked, you had persistence. I'm not surprised that you succeeded."

Of course, if it were possible, I'd rather be a genius, but since this is impossible, I'm glad I'm persistent.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

So long as the government does not provide means of sending trifling sums of money through the mail with assured protection, those who inclose dimes, nickels and quarters in letters, have to safeguard themselves carefully. There was a time many years ago when paper money in these low denominations was in common circulation. Then there was a much more reasonable assurance of the money passing undetected through the post than when the amounts were in nickel or silver. But these "shin plasters," as this paper money was derisively termed, have been out of circulation a long time. Even with them, there was no government guarantee of security. There was, however, the flatness of paper, and the small size which made it difficult to detect when placed in letters.

Today many ways are used for protection in sending small coins through the mail. It is imperative to observe three things, one is flatness. Another is close sealing of envelopes so that no crevices anywhere remain through which a coin could work its way out. The third is to secure the coins so that they are not loose and can slip about. The ingenuity which various people use when sending coins is worthy of mention. Let me tell you of some of them.

First of all I shall speak of the method the postal authorities call the safest, which, please remember, they do not stand back of, although recommending it as perhaps the safest way of the sender's assuming the risk. This is the use of coin cards in which there are circular holes into which to fit the coins of different denominations under fifty cents. Across the back of each card a paper is pasted, and there is a flap over the front of the card to be pasted down after the coin is inserted and is to be mailed. In this way the coin cannot slip out or work its way through an envelope or be detected as a wee lump in the sealed envelope.

Homemade Coin Cards.
Any person can make these circular perforated cards if on pasteboard they mark around a coin and cut out the space inside the circle. They should also remember to have the card approximately the size of the envelope and have paper pasted across front and finally across the back of the card. This is one of the secure ways persons have sent coins to me.

Another good way, and one which causes but slight unevenness of con-

White Sox Hope

Paul Gregory, pitcher with the White Sox team, is the son of a minister, and a college graduate. He has been in professional baseball since 1930, and the Sox are expecting much from him this season.

Contents of an envelope is to paste narrow surgeon's plaster in two directions over the coin and to the letter paper, thus fastening it down firmly. Transparent mending paper is just as good as surgeon's plaster for this purpose, or any narrow strips of strong paper pasted firmly over the coin and to the stationery. This is a favorite method of readers. Another way is to put the coin in an enclosed envelope. The flap is folded over the envelope carefully, but not stuck down, of course. The folded envelope is enclosed in the letter in its outer envelope. Still another way to prevent a coin slipping about in letters is to cut two slits in cardboard and run the coin under them. If the coin fits tightly it will not work its way out, otherwise it will.

About Use of Needles.
Sulring the needle to the thread and the thread to the material is important if a woman would sew easily and competently. Whether the needle be long, short, or medium length, is a matter chiefly of personal preference. There are certain times, however, when a long needle best meets requirements as in darning. The needle may be coarse or fine, with lengths varying accordingly, but it is always longer than the regulation needle. Milliners' needles are somewhat longer than ordinary sewing needles. In each instance the needle is intended to carry the thread a distance exceeding that of an ordinary stitch. In darning it would be across an open space. In milliner's work not only are stitches frequently long, but also the needle is often run under folds of silk or trimming so that the thread is concealed. In order to do this the needle must be long, but not awkwardly long as are upholsterers' needles, mattress needles, and many others used in special work.

Now my clothes
last 2 or 3 times
longer

SINCE I stopped abusing my clothes every week—since I began making out the list instead of scrubbing it out against a metal washboard—I must have saved at least $100. For clothes washed the safe 'scrubless' Rinso way last 2 or 3 times longer. And they come shades whiter, too—even without boiling!

The Rinso way of washing clothes is the modern way. So easy on you—so easy on your hands—so wonderfully easy on the clothes!

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as puffed-up soaps—even in hardest water. Great in washers, too—and simply grand for dishes! Get the BIG package.

Moisture Robs Aspirin
Of Its Effectiveness

When moisture comes in contact with unprotected aspirin it often causes it to decompose and disintegrate in its box. This can't happen to St. Joseph's Genuine Pure Aspirin because each box is carefully wrapped in moisture-proof cellophane. It's always fresh, always full strength, always fully effective.

Trade in Hedley

Your Home Town Market

Thousands of dollars will be saved by following the correct and patriotic principle of trading in Hedley

The Out-of-town Merchant is interested in your Money

--so's the big Mail Order House. On the other hand, your home town business man is interested in the same things you are: Your churches and your schools, your homes, the education of your children, and your general welfare and prosperity. He wishes you well, even if he should happen not to care for you, personally, because you as a citizen constitute one of the forces that will make or break his business. And just as surely, your home town neighbors and business men constitute a force that can make or break you. "No man liveth to himself." We're dependent on each other. That's simple common sense, and you know it.

Our Government —How It Operates

By William Bruckart

HOW CONGRESS FUNCTIONS

THE galleries for visitors to the chambers of the senate and the house are situated so as to give the maximum view for everyone, but that necessitated placing them on a level quite above the floors where the senators or the representatives have their seats. That circumstance does not always permit a proper understanding of debate. Many visitors go away from the Capital, therefore, with an impression that enactment of legislation is far too complex and intricate for the mind of the lay person to comprehend.

It is unfortunate that this condition prevails, but it is not the only reason why those seeing the house or the senate in session for the first time fail to understand what is happening. They see only a part of the whole picture of the legislative function. They lack a knowledge of the rules of the game, and they are not conversant with what has gone before.

The house and senate are on a par in dealing with the bulk of the laws that go on our statute books, but each body has certain functions reserved to it and with which the other one has, and can have, no concern. The house, by direction of the Constitution must originate all laws that raise revenue, those that tax you and me, and it also must start all laws—they are bills while in the legislative machinery—making appropriations of public moneys. The senate could start them, of course, but would not mean anything. The senate, however, was given certain specific duties by the Constitution also. No treaties with foreign nations are operative until approved by the senate. It likewise has the final say-so respecting nearly all appointments to office made by the President.

It was suggested above that if the visitor wanted to see the start of the talking picture, he would have to attend another theater. That other theater is the committee room. There are 47 of these committees in the house and 34 in the senate. They are permanent committees. Special committees are constantly being named to do a specific job not readily susceptible of being handled by one of the standing committees, such as an investigation. In these committees is where the bulk of the work is done; where the grain is threshed.

The regular and usual procedure, therefore, is that a representative will introduce a bill in the house, or a senator will introduce one in the senate. Frequently, the same text of a measure will appear simultaneously in each body. The rules provide for reference of the bill to the committee having jurisdiction. The committee has a regular meeting day; the new bill is taken up, usually with only members of the committee present, and it is talked over informally. If it be of great consequence the committee will order that hearings be held so that those favoring the proposed law may state its merits and that those opposed to it may voice their opposition and point out weaknesses in the bill. Sometimes these hearings will continue day after day over several weeks.

As a general rule, a witness before a committee will be allowed to tell his story, to state his views, without interruption. When his statement is finished, however, the committee members have their fling. Questions are not always designed to be fair, nor are they always aimed to bring out things which the witness desires to admit. It all depends on whether the committee member views the subject from the same angle. In consequence, the stenographic record of testimony that always is taken sometimes makes literature akin to comedy, for witnesses have a tendency to go too far; to leave themselves vulnerable to opposition criticism by overlooking weaknesses in their own statements, or by deliberate misrepresentation of facts.

Having taken all of the testimony that is offered, the committee again works behind closed doors. Not being under the necessity to watch out for the political effect of what they say, they talk frankly about the proposition before them, and reach an agreement, sometimes informally, sometimes by a record vote, as to the course they will follow. In most cases, the bill as it was sent to the committee needs correcting. Amendments to accomplish the purposes desired are drafted, with the advice of experts employed by the house and senate for that purpose, and in final form, if the majority of the committee so votes, the bill is ordered to be "reported to the house with the recommendation that the bill do pass," or to the senate, if it be a senate committee.

The fact that the bill has been sent back to the house or to the senate by one of its committees does not mean that it ever will see the light of day, figuratively speaking. Indeed, the chances are about 50-50 that it never will receive attention in the senate and they are about ten to one that nothing more will be heard of it if it was reported in the house by a committee of that body. Each house has a "calendar of business," and when a bill is reported, its members and title is entered on that calendar, there to await further attention, or possibly death because of adjournment of congress.

Proper Diet for the Children

Of Recognized Importance, Alike to Community and Family.

How theories about the proper food for children have changed in the last generation! At one time the child, after he was weaned, was considered as merely a little man or woman and given smaller amounts of the regular family diet. Then it was discovered that he could not take care of adult food and his diet was limited to an enormous degree. Later research proved that on such a simplified regime he was not getting everything he needed and therefore other foods were added to the milk and cereal diet. Now a young baby gets fruit and vegetable juices, egg yolks, minced liver, early in life and consequently thrives.

The young mother has a much easier problem now in feeding a child, although the diet does contain more things. The formula for "modernizing" cow's milk is now simple and it is seldom a problem to get it to suit the baby's digestion.

The bureau of home economics at Washington emphasizes the fact that we no longer consider the responsibility of seeing that the children in our midst get proper food as merely a family matter. It says: "Wherever there is a shortage of food for children, the community is responsible for providing each child, not merely with food enough, but with the essential food elements. Lack of food, or a wrong diet, is more damaging to the child than to the adult because the child is growing and his food, while serving his present needs, must also build for the future.

"Milk, of course, is the most important item in the diet of the child. But instead of merely the milk and gruels which in many families used to be the young child's diet, a variety of foods is recommended nowadays, even for the baby. Milk, cereals, tomato or orange juice, other vegetables and fruits, eggs and some meat—begin early, nutritionists say, to give him all these things, making sure, of course, that they are suitably prepared. Give them to him at first as fruit juices, or finely chopped or mashed vegetables, or scraped meat. Little by little let him have coarser and more solid food until, by the age of two, he is having the same kind of food as the rest of the family, though in different proportions.

"Give the child plenty of milk. Nutritionists have watched the growth of different groups of children who were all on the same diet except that some had more milk than others, or some had milk while others had not. In every case the children who had most milk outgrew the others in weight and height. If the child does not drink enough milk give it to him cooked with his mush or oatmeal, with his vegetables, or other food.

"Milk and cod liver oil or outdoor sunshine are particularly important to children as protection against rickets, a disease of the bones, or rather a failure of the bones to develop properly. Rickets, resulting in stunted growth, or crooked legs, misshapen chest, or other deformities is one of the sure signs of under-nourishment. It is the result of a lack of calcium and phosphorus or bone building (furnished in the milk) and of vitamin D (furnished in cod liver oil and produced by outdoor sunshine), which helps the child's body to use the calcium contained in his food.

"Especially for children in needy families, nutritionists urge that somehow cod liver oil be provided—at least two teaspoonfuls a day for every child under two years old, and some for older children, too, if possible. It will cost, for each child about 5 to 25 cents a week.

"For children, then, nutritionists emphasize first of all the 'protective foods.' That is to say, in families on short rations, the first things to provide are such protective foods as the children's milk, cod liver oil, some sure source of vitamin C, such as tomatoes or tomato juice or orange juice, or cabbage (to be eaten raw) and some good source of iron—green-colored vegetables and egg yolk are the best. Then come the energy foods, including bread and cereals, fats and sugars. Of the body-building foods other than milk and dairy products, the most important for children are green vegetables, eggs and liver, with some lean meat and fish.

Chopped Cabbage Sandwiches. Chop the cabbage fine, mix with a little creamed butter and use as a spread between slices of bread. Small square sandwiches (an ordinary sandwich quartered) are most easily handled by young children.

ACID STOMACH EASY NOW TO CORRECT

Just Do One Thing—That's All

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods. It usually makes itself felt in sour stomach, indigestion, headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalinize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person. TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Neutralizes Food and Tobacco Acids a few minutes after taking.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress. This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.
