6979 BALES COTTON GINNED IN HEDLEY

Up to yesterday morning the four local gins had turned out a total of 6979 bales of cotton. It's coming in fast.

A card from Tom A. Ballew collector of cotton statistics for Donley county, states that 12,087 bales of cotton were ginned in Donley county prior to Nov. 14, 1933, as compared with 9,579 bales ginned by Nov. 14, 1932.

DIES SUDDENLY

Walker Martin, son of Mrs. E. G. Dishman of this city, dropped dead about 4:00 o'clock Friday evening in Omaha Neb., presumably from heart failure. He was born in Collin county. Mr. Martin is survived by his wife and three children, Dorothy Jean 16, Bill 14, and Mary Francis 9, his mother, five brothers and three sisters. His funeral was held in Omaha at 4 p. m. Monday.

The Informer joins their many friends in extending their deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

A Christmas Present For You

This is the time of the year when most of us are thinking intently—and perhaps frantically—about the problem of Christmas gifts. And here's a good suggestion: Give a present to yourself; not for entirely selfish reasons, but in order to help those to whom Christmas this year might be just one more day.

The kind of a gift that will accomplish this purpose is one that provides employment and entails the purchase of basic commodities. And nothing fills the bill more completely than property construction and betterment. Give yourself a new furnace or a roof or an electric kitchen or a garage or some new furniture. Better yet, if it's possible, give yourself a new home—you'll be getting it for next to nothing in comparison to what the best opinion forecasts it will cost in the near future, and you'll be spreading Christmas cheer among numerous families.

Your local contractor or dealer in building materials is competent to advise you. He can show you where you can make real savings—how you can make your dollars do Spartan duty. Talk it over with him. Think how much a wave of construction, even if on an individually small scale, would mean to the social and economic welfare of your community. Give yourself that Christmas present. You'll never regret it.

Rev and Mrs. M. E. Wells visited in White Deer and Miami several days this week.

SCHOOL NEWS

The boys and girls went to Mobeetie last Friday night to play ball. The Owlets played at 7:30. They went into the game with the determination to win, but they didn't seem to click the first half. Mobeetie was in the lead 12 to 25. At the second half the Owlets began with renewed vigor. The Mobeetie girls could not hold them down. However, the Owlets were defeated 25 to 31.

The Owlets played the Mobeetie boys after the girls game. They didn't get warmed up the first half and when the whistle blew they were even 14 to 14. At the intermission Coach Newman gave them a raking over. When the second half began they started playing ball. When the game ended Mobeetie was defeated 22-27.

Saturday night the Owlets and Owlets played Mobeetie here on the home court. The Owlets having lost the night before were determined to win. They went into the game and played hard, at the end of the first half Mobeetie was two points in the lead however, the Owlets were not discouraged, they did some real passwork, and won 18 to 27.

The boys played a good game after the girls and reaped an easy victory; the score being Mobeetie 17, Hedley 33.

The Assembly was honored Friday morning with the presence of Sister Carter, pastor of the Nazarene church. She gave a very interesting talk, which was enjoyed very much by the entire student body as well as the faculty and visitors.

The contest between the classes of the High School for carnival queen closed Friday afternoon. After carefully counting the money, to the sorrow of the other classes, the Junior class was declared winner. Miss Gwendolyn Gunn being their candidate will be crowned Wednesday night. The total amount of money taken in was $46.48.

The school will be dismissed Thursday and Friday for Thanksgiving.

We hope the Seniors have a "large" Thanksgiving and enjoy the holiday. We hope everybody comes back to school Monday with full "stummicks" and reinforced mentalities.

The Seniors will get their class rings as soon as they can scrape together enough pennies to get them out of the office.

Cold weather is just around the corner, you will need those good Ball Band Overshoes, Gaiters and Boots, also wool boot sox at the Will Our Civilization Be Destroyed?

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

At a recent clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester Minn., said, "The war of the future will be one of swift attack from the air. Planes will drop explosives, gas and disease germs which will be rained on centers of civilian population. This is a machine age and wars hereafter will be waged by technical men. We are spending a quarter of a billion dollars for warships which will be obsolete in ten years."

Is Doctor Mayo's statement correct? It certainly is, if the new social order, now in the making, continues to be entirely influenced by size, bulk and monetary power. The present civilization has been largely developed upon the mistaken idea that quantity is indicative of prosperity. Popular opinion acclaims the most prosperous man lives in the largest house, the most successful business enterprise is located in the most ostentatious building. The most important city is the one which can boast of the size of its parks, municipal buildings, bonded indebtedness and the financial security of its banks. The average man thinks

Repeal Will Open Cells of Hundreds

Convicted Liquor Violators to Be Freed.

Washington.—Before Christmas day dawned and as soon after December 6 as it can be managed there will occur an exodus of "prohibition prisoners" from federal penitentiaries throughout the country without parallel since a Paris mob threw open the gates of the Bastille and tossed a monarchy into the discard.

It is more than a possibility that the governors of many of the states which have been marking time so far on the release of prohibition law offenders will follow in line with orders from Washington and free every man and woman convicted of crime under the wording of the Eighteenth amendment.

The repeal of prohibition law is no longer a possibility but as certain as death or taxes. By December 6 the last of the necessary state ratifications will have been made—and a new leaf will be turned over where the book has lain open for 13 years.

Will Use Common Sense.

According to Attorney General Homer Cummings, "a common sense attitude will be maintained in the department" in the matter of federal prisoners. He added that it might not be advisable to issue a blanket order for release, as many cases have other sides to them over and above the simple breaking of the prohibition law.

Repeal also will bring demand for issuance of Presidential pardons for the thousands who have been sentenced over the last 13 years and who now are on parole.

Already a number of those states which have voted to throw the Eighteenth amendment out of the Constitution have freed the men and women held in accordance with that law. In Michigan, Governor Comstock let out everybody.

From Indiana, where there was until last November, a bone-dry law equaling that of Michigan in severity, comes word that Governor McNutt has released all persons held on simple liquor charges and is giving consideration to all transport and traffic charges.

Leniency in Texas.

"Ma" Ferguson, governor of Texas, is, on the advice and counsel of husband Jim, who led the wets to victory, following in the footsteps of Indiana and promising consideration to the graver liquor charges after repeal is an actual fact.

Such leniency does not mean that the federal government intends to let up on the arrest and prosecution of bootleggers after the Twenty-first amendment becomes effective. Beating the law after repeal means beating the tax laws, Mr. Cummings has gone to some pains to make plain.

The history of prohibition over 13 years shows the following violation tallies as far as the federal government alone is concerned:

Persons to the number of 539,178 were convicted and fines of $75,358,000 were assessed. Since 1926—records before that time were not accurately kept—152,510 persons received jail sentences. Ten millions went in attorney's fees, court cost and loss of wages.

The federal government padlocked 48,911 places, seized 75,517 automobiles and destroyed 326,308 stills at an estimated cost to the owners of $32,000,000. From 1920 to 1929, 1,360 persons were killed in connection with enforcement. The bill for trying to dry America ran into an average of $40,000,000 a year, or a rough total outlay of $520,000,000. During that period America's illicit drink bill has been figured at $2,848,000,000.

Frenchman Finds Petunia Plants Kill Potato Bug

Paris.—Abbe Cales, pastor of the village of St. Maxens, was acclaimed as the St. Patrick of the potato bug. He was credited with the discovery that petunia plants kill the bugs either because they are bug poison or because the bugs die of overeating them.

Potato bugs were imported into France during the World war in sacked potatoes for the American expeditionary force.

Abbe Cales discovered that if petunias were planted among potatoes the bugs flocked to the petunias.

Hobo Pigeon Rides Switching Engine

Moncton, N. D.—There's a hobo pigeon in the railway yards here. Its favorite roosting place is the tender and cab of a switching engine.

Upon this mobile roost it will ride the length of the yards, but it supplies its own motive power for the return trip. It flies back to the starting point and awaits the return of the engine. Then it goes for another ride.

With a number of switching engines busy in the same yard, the pigeon always picks the same one for its trips. The pigeon is jealous of its prerogatives and will fight away any other pigeons that attempt to usurp its rights.

are considered important for the health of women as well as to men. Since it is not always possible for homemakers to devote hours to training, it may be suggested that there are such things as household athletics. These of have the glamor which is preserved in a group of women doing gymnastics and practice in a building or on grounds devoted to physical training. Nor are the exercises planned for the particular purpose of developing the human figure and making it strong. Nevertheless, they supply bending and twisting, straightening and spiral, stretching and crouching positions, etc., as decided as those required in athletics. Every homemaker can take advantage of them without spending money and to the advantage of her health and her house.

There are few of these household athletics which develop as many muscles and sinews as does dusting—a daily routine. Rungs of chairs, feet of tables, edges of lowest shelves of open bookcases, baseboards about walls, all these have to be dusted and hundreds of other low articles or parts of them. The homemaker at the task must bend, crouch, and straighten up again. There is exercise for arms, wrists, hands and also for legs and feet for there is more or less walking about which must be done. Nor is this all. The woman must stretch some to reach tops of doors, bureaus, and other pieces of tall furniture. She may even have to stand on tiptoes, thus developing the muscles of the feet.

Exercise in Making Beds.

When making beds the muscles of arms, legs and back are brought into action, for here again there must be more or less walking and stooping and the arms are kept in constant movement when pulling covers up, smoothing them and tucking them in, as every housewife knows.

Doing the laundry work is less of an athletic stunt than it used to be, if the electric washer is used of the household equipment. But, even so, there is some action requiring muscular movement. Ironing calls for arm motion, and the continual lifting and pushing back and forth of the iron calls into play the muscles of the back as well as arms.

It would be possible to go through the whole category of household tasks, viewing them in the light of their gymnastic values. But it is not so important to enumerate them as to suggest how to get the best athletic advantages from them. For instance, when stooping, bend from the waist as often as it is possible, keeping the knees straight. When crouching low, squat for this bends the knees and keeps them supple. When stretching beware of overstraining the muscles. Use a stool or step ladder for things that might cause strain. Bend sideways sometimes instead of moving the body as for a forward stoop.

Poise and Rest.

Keep the head up and the back as straight as possible, for this helps poise. Make the most athletic use of the simple and regular household tasks and be ready to stop for the rest which would be demanded of one doing regulation gymnastics when fatigued. To overdo is to lose the value of the gymnastics or the household athletics.

One of the things which helps to make life happy is the power of enjoyment. The saying quoted, "He that hath, to him shall be given," is indeed true in this instance. By exercising whatever capacity of enjoyment we have, the more power for happiness is given us. We are given perceptions, quick to note and to seize upon things greater small which tend to increase joy. Since happiness cannot exist when detrimental to others, not true happiness, the pleasure in it is to be treasured.

It is said of some people that they have the "gift of happiness" or the "gift of enjoyment." This is the result of having made the most of whatever capacity they had. It is well to remember that this same thing is true of unwelcome as welcome things. We must stem whatever capacity for unpleasant things lies within us, if we would draw unto us gifts of happiness. We must stress the good, we must note, daily, all, even the small things which make for joy.

of progress in terms of statistics, and success is measured by the balance sheet at the end of the year.

No sane person would venture the suggestion that "we return to a condition of living prior to the time we possessed many of the comforts of our modern age. Nor would any person suggest that less money be spent on the development of the arts and sciences. Perhaps we need more of such cultural advantages. The permanence of our civilization, however, does not depend upon these possessions but on the obvious reason that they all can be destroyed in the twinkling of an eye. In this respect again Doctor Mayo is right.

What guarantee have we then against the destruction of our civilization? The rise and fall of nations attest the truth of the statement, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." "If 90 per cent of reform is purely educative and the rest emotional and legislative," then is it not imperative that all forms of organized Christianity and all educational institutions teach the necessity of cultivating the spiritual values of life? Only when the spiritual transcends the material will our civilization be safe from those forces which laid in ashes other nations and completely annihilated their civilizations.

Do this for Your Child in TWO WEEKS

How to rid any boy or girl of sluggishness or constipation and build a big appetite. The trouble with children who will not eat is usual stasis. The symptoms are a tongue that's always coated, bad breath, poor color, dull eyes that are often a bilious yellow. No appetite, no ambition—even for play. Hard to get to sleep, hard to wake in the morning.

There's an absolute remedy for this condition. It gives listless youngsters the appetite and energy of a young animal! They eat! They gain! They keep well!

It's not the stomach, but the bowel condition that keeps children from eating. But the trouble is in the lower bowel—the colon. California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" that is needed to stimulate the colon muscles. The very next day, your child is eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and you will see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight and spirits.

Any drug store has the real California syrup of figs, all bottled, with directions. Nature never made a nicer acting or nicer tasting laxative. (It is purely vegetable.) Remember California syrup of figs when sickness, a cold or any upset has clogged a child's bowels.

WARNING: Even when it's something to give children, some stores will try to substitute. So be sure the bottle says CALIFORNIA Syrup of Figs.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY
 Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lee of Plaskett celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday, Nov. 25, 1933, with their eleven children present.

In honor of her grandparents, Miss Virgie Mae Wootley was married to Mr. Jesse Lee of Hamilton on the night of the anniversary. The marriage which occurred in the beautifully decorated home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Foster, was solemnly performed by Rev. W. A. Barber of the First Baptist church, being the ring ceremony with little Zola Lee Foster as ring-bearer. Mrs. Foster played Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the bridal party entered, and softly played "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" during the ceremony. Sunday, Nov. 26, the children and grandchildren gathered at the parental home bringing a basket lunch and honored Mr. and Mrs. Foster with a beautiful dinner. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Foster, the honorees, Messrs. and Mesdames Elias Wootley, L. E. Walker, and W. N. Fuqua, of Hamilton; W. W. Boyd, McLean; C. H. Bennett, Hedley; J. W. Foster, Jingo, N. Mex.; E. E. E. R. F. S. W. Sheriff's Notice
 The State of Texas, County of Donley.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a certain Alias Execution order of sale issued out of the Honorable District Court of Donley County on this 8th day of Nov. 1933, on a judgment rendered in said court on the 11 day of April, 1933, in favor of the Memphis Cotton Oil Co., and against the said Vester Smith and Porter Smith, in the case of Memphis Cotton Oil Co. against Vester Smith et al, No. 1791 in such court, placed in my hand for service, I, Guy S. Pierce, as Sheriff of Donley county, Texas, did on the 8th day of Nov. 1933, levy on certain real estate described in said execution and order of sale, situated in Donley county, Texas, described as follows, to wit:

"Being two acres out of the northwest corner of a 68 1/2 acre tract of land deeded to C. G. Aten and wife by Wm. Camenson and Co. by deed recorded in Book 4 page 291 of the Deed Records of Donley County, Texas, the said land being a part of section 64, in Block C-6 G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. Survey and described as follows: "Beginning at the northwest corner of said 68 1/2 acre tract above described; thence south 49 degrees east with the north line of said 68 1/2 acre tract and to the line of the C & G Highway, 293 2 feet to a stake for the N. E. corner of this tract; thence south 295 2 feet to a stake for the S. E. corner of this tract; thence north 49 degrees west 295 2 feet to a stake to the west line of said 68 1/2 acre tract for the S. W. corner of this tract; thence north with the west line of said 68 1/2 acre tract 295 2 feet to the place of beginning and containing 2 more or less and as the Smith Gin at Lella Lake, Texas, situated in Donley County, Texas, and levied as the property of Vester Smith and Porter Smith, and that on the first Tuesday in December, 1933, the same being the 5th day of the said month, at the Court House door of Donley County, in the city of Clarendon, Texas, between the hours of 10:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m., by virtue of said levy, judgment and order of sale, I will sell said above described real estate at public vendue for cash, to the highest bidder, as the property of said Vester Smith and Porter Smith.

And in compliance with law, I give this notice by publication, in the English language, once a week for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding said day of sale in the Hedley Informer, a newspaper published in Donley County.

And by posting notices thereof at three public places in the county of Donley, one of which is at the Court House door of this county.

Witness my hand this 8th day of Nov., 1933.

This Remarkable Electric Cooker Will Prepare Meals... AUTOMATICALLY!

With a modern Electric Cooker all you do is put in the food, turn on the "high" current until the cooker is hot, then switch to "low" and the cooking is finished automatically by the stored-up heat! No worry... no basting... no watching. It does better cooking with less heat, less work and less cost!

—And this modern Electrical Servant bakes, stews, roasts and browns. It does it all easily, economically and healthfully... with all delicious food-flavors sealed-in, and all vitamins, too! Starches and mineral salts retained in the food... not cooked out as in old-fashioned methods.

Ask for a complete and interesting demonstration—TODAY! Costs less than a few days' groceries... and will return your money the first month!

CONVENIENT TERMS

The effect of the adoption of the plan, he said, "even if successful in the Midwest, might be that the very states the governors are trying to help might be left holding the bag while other states expanded production."

These questions are wholly aside from grave problems of legality under existing law and questions as to raising the necessary funds. The governors were called upon, instead, to give full co-operation to the program of benefits and curtailed production already under way.

It looked like we had found a way to make money," said Jovial Mrs. Ester, "but I wasn't any hand at jelly making. But I talked it over with mother and we rummaged the attic and old trunks until we found a cook book which contained recipes for jams and jellies, some of which were one hundred years old, I guess."

WHEN GEN. ITALO BALBO was preparing to lead his epochal mass flight of Italian planes from Rome to Chicago, friends warned him that its success would mean his own relegation to obscurity, because of Mussolini's determination to keep others out of the limelight. This has now come to pass. Balbo, who was air minister, has resigned and has been made governor of Libya, the colony on the north coast of Africa. There had been mystery almost ever since Balbo returned from his triumphant flight concerning his standing with Mussolini. He was received as a hero at Rome and made air marshal. Then he dropped out of the news completely, and it was rumored he was in disfavor. The duke has reorganized his cabinet according to a plan formed long ago. He has himself assumed the portfolios of the navy and aviation, in addition to the five offices he already held.

HENRY FORD has started to lay off his men to bring their working hours under the 35-hour code maximum, according to his announced plan. His plants had been operating on a 40-hour basis. The recovery officials were astonished by this move, and General Johnson tried to avert it by offering to "consider an exception" in Ford's case, without avail.

Henry Ford

Observers watched this renewal of the prolonged NRA-Ford controversy with keen interest. They said the Ford statement that the layoff was solely to meet NRA requirements was another indication that the manufacturer intends to comply with the letter of the law while at variance with the spirit of the program.

WORK for 4,000,000 persons now on the relief rolls, through the immediate expenditure of $400,000,000 of public works money is contemplated in a new program announced by President Roosevelt. Through a new "civil works administration" under Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, the President announced, the government will provide the financial backing for new federal, state and local projects of a "noncompetitive" nature.

Mr. Hopkins asked governors, mayors and other officials to make their suggestions for projects at once. At his headquarters it was explained that the projects might include levees, the landscaping and beautifying of highways, destruction of breeding grounds for germ-carrying insects, sanitation projects and similar "useful" works.

CHICAGO'S wonderful exposition, A Century of Progress, has come to an end, but it will be reopened on June 1, 1934, bigger and better than ever. This welcome news was announced by President Rufus C. Dawes, who said the managers were acting in harmony with the requests of President Roosevelt and of many individuals and organizations. The fair next year will have more exhibitors and concessionaires, and the lighting and decorative scheme will be revamped. All the comfort facilities will be free, and stricter control will be kept over shows and concessions.

ROADSIDE MARKETING By T. J. Delohery

FRUIT JUICES, JELLIES, JAMS, IN DEMAND

ALL of the small fruit, vegetable and dairy products which William H. Brinton raised on his 35-acre farm near Parkersburg, Penn., was hauled to town and offered to wholesalers. What he didn't sell was taken back home and Mrs. Brinton put it up in cans and glass jars.

Now Brinton only takes to market what products are not good enough for his wife to eat; and Mrs. Brinton buys many things from neighboring farmers in order to supply the demand from hundreds of people who come to their roadside market and from customers living in other states who order by mail.

The experience of this farm woman has been duplicated by scores of others who sell canned meats, fruit juices, jams, jellies and preserves direct to consumers or who place them in local stores on a commission basis to be sold in competition with high-class factory-made products.

Dixie Farms, near Mattewan, Mich., comprising 35 acres, was in danger of being foreclosed until the owner, Mrs. Iona Ester, happened to offer a batch of homemade grape juice and jelly to passing motorists. It was in sheer desperation that Mrs. Ester placed the fruit juice and jelly on a table in front of her home. In less than an hour it was gone.

"I had tried to make money," said Jovial Mrs. Ester, "but I wasn't any hand at jelly making. But I talked it over with mother and we rummaged the attic and old trunks until we found a cook book which contained recipes for jams and jellies, some of which were one hundred years old, I guess."

"The house was an uproar that night. Every available pot, pan and kettle was going. We worked all night making jellies and grape juice, and when dawn broke, I thought we had made enough stuff to last a year. But we had hardly gotten in bed when Mr. E. D. Young, a friend, who was taking care of the sales, roused us with the news that we needed more stock—we had sold out the second time."

"Dead tired, we went at it again. And every day after that, until the tourist season closed, we were going at top speed. That winter, when we talked over our success and the possibilities of the future, we felt convinced that we had the makings of a business which would be profitable.

"We guessed it right. Business was better the next year and it has kept on growing. We process all of our own fruit and what we buy of neighbors. And our selling season doesn't end with tourists leaving the road. It continues through to the holidays, many people now using our assorted package of jellies and jams as Christmas gifts."

W. S. Farnsworth, for 40 years one of the prominent fruit growers in Ohio, was unable to find a satisfactory market for his apples, and other fruits until he changed his method of selling. When marketing was put in the hands of his son-in-law, Mr. Young, he immediately advertised in local and surrounding town newspapers.

Then he contacted retailers who, seeing the publicity, the quality fruit and the possibility of sales, put Farnsworth apples on display. Sales boomed, then dropped as suddenly. Young, with characteristic enterprise, changed the package, using a colored basket and covering the apples with netting to keep out the insects and dirt.

More advertising. The package, which is known as "Farnsworth Family Pack," was featured in window displays and again the demand picked up. Clear cider, too, was brought to the retailers. Bottled and labeled it moved into consuming channels rapidly, even where cider sales had theretofore been sluggish.

When newspaper advertising showed its worth, Young thought it might help the demand for Farnsworth fruit and fruit products if he had a market building on the farm and invited people out to visit the place. Accordingly, space was bought in the motor club magazine, the ad consisting of an invitation to visit the home of "Farnsworth's Family Pack" and a map showing how the orchards could be reached by motor.

Visitors were treated to samples of fruit, cider and apple butter and shown the market houses, where rows of baskets of apples, jugs and bottles of cider and jars of golden apple butter all properly labeled and arranged so as to make a most attractive display, were. Naturally, sales followed, but in no case were prices below those in the retail stores. This policy was adopted to protect the retailers.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington. — William Pitt, the younger, observed during his premiership of England that the consequences flowing from the acts of statesmen were the things that mattered and the truth of his thought has had no better demonstration than in the turn of events which has followed adoption of the principle of the national recovery act. The acts of the statesmen, in this instance, conducted the national government directly into the middle of private business, enterprise and initiative under the guise of partnership with the government. The consequence flowing from those acts is the slow, but certain, development of a new type of permanent self-control for industry.

I am referring, of course, to the proposition that has come at once to be known as the "Swope Plan," because it was Gerard Swope, head of the giant General Electric company, who fathered the plan. It, indeed, he did not work out the details, and gave it the impetus to carry on. The Swope name is synonymous with big business and industrial leadership, hence the prestige that the Swope plan had from the start.

But, whether business likes it or not, and whether the bulk of the people at this time agree with the principle, I have found few persons in a position to survey the future who fail to see anything in the picture other than continuation of some of the NRA principles, and Mr. Swope appears to perpetuate them. Mr. Swope appears to recognize that there are numerous evils in the NRA system now obtaining and at the same time to recognize the necessity for a thorough house-cleaning by business itself. In other words, the Swope plan contemplates providing business with authority to do the things NRA was organized to do but, in the nature of things, cannot possibly do.

Since there are too many details to permit of a discussion of all of them in these columns, permit me to summarize the Swope plan as a logical set-up for the control of all industry by itself, with a national chamber of commerce at the top. In the administration of that chamber, the federal government would have a part, and that provides the necessary government supervision. The present system of codes for this and for that, big and miss, enforced by men and women, who, in some cases, have had no practical experience whatsoever, would be superseded by trade associations for each industry.

There would be the necessary regulatory committees in which the industrial folks themselves would be in the majority but in which the government would participate so that it knew what was going on. The primary responsibility, as becomes readily apparent, would be on the business interests and the government would horn in only when human avarice or crookedness upset policies predicated upon sound judgment and far vision.

The program, too, would eliminate what observers here have feared countless, namely, the building up of a gigantic bureaucracy in Washington. That is what is happening under NRA and one cannot be blind to it even while admitting the gains resulting from NRA activities. When Mr. Swope made his announcement before the advisory and planning commission of the Department of Commerce, he barely hinted at that phase, yet it was plain he was aware of the growing tendency, since it is history how government encroaches further and further unless the people themselves call a halt.

Mr. Swope laid his plan before the council and the nation with the admonition that: "If business does not organize to control itself, either the state or the federal government will."

So the program was born, and it immediately received the blessing of the administration and expressions of good luck from various other sources. It may be, and probably will be, that enmity and petty jealousy will stick out for changes in favor of individual groups, but as far as I have been able to learn the structure has been set up and it is likely to stand as a principle. I mean by that, the chances are industry will choose in the end to accept what it may consider to be the lesser of two evils from its own standpoint; it will take either something built up from the Swope plan that will keep commerce and industry on a decent plane, or it will have to swallow further encroachments from a governmental bureaucracy.

It is to be remembered that President Roosevelt has insisted that he is not irrevocably committed to any of the plans for recovery which he has sponsored. He has described them generally, as he said of the agricultural adjustment program, that it is experimental, a move by trial and error to determine what will end the depression. Consequently, it seems fair to assume that Mr. Roosevelt will support the Swope plan quite some time yet, even if it goes awry in the end.

The President at last has launched out on a course of aid for the so-called heavy industries. He has determined on this program after long delay, and only after he had been urged to do so by dozens of men who ought to have some understanding of the country's economic problems. The public works administration loan to the railroads was the first step and others have followed. It is a move designed to make capital available for expenditure by those heavy industries in the belief that those expenditures will encourage others in kindred industries to lay out some of their own resources, if they have any, so the normal cycle of money flow will be restored.

There can be no doubt, of course, that every time expenditures are made for construction, repair or remodeling, jobs have been made available, and when jobs are made available there is more spending by those given work. It is obvious that each of these adds something to the country's buying power, but the question is, how much? That seems to be the weakness of the plan to help heavy industries, as it was the weakness of other plans involving expenditures. While the $135,000,000 that was loaned to about twenty railroads, for example, will start some folks to work, it will require a good many more millions to carry that theory through to successful completion, according to the best judgment I have been able to obtain.

But that fact is not one in criticism. It is pointed out merely in emphasis of another fact, namely, that this recovery is and must of necessity be a slow process. It will be so slow that most folks will lose patience and confidence in the future. That will help never one bit.

Let us take the railroad loan up for consideration, again. It is small, comparatively speaking, but repeating that which was said above: it will result in jobs. The heavy industries after all are the big employers of labor, and if they are able to increase their pay rolls in however small amounts, there will be just that much momentum given to the wheel which must turn continuously if there is to be prosperity throughout the world. So as the other industrial and agricultural recovery programs move forward with their varying degrees of success, the attempt to get those heavy industries on their feet surely must be considered as a unit of the general plan and one that is highly important in the structure of economic life.

The first payments to farmers under the wheat acreage reduction program have been made. The first one was made to a farmer in Iowa from which state Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture comes. I was told at the department that it just happened the first payment went out there. All details of the contract had been arranged and so the check went forward. It so happened, however, that Iowa was one of the trouble spots in the farmers' strike, and the quick action to get money out there might naturally have been taken in hope of providing some of those farmers with a reason to quit the strike.

It is the expectation of the Department of Agriculture that the wheat program will result in distribution of around $102,000,000 to the farmers. The acreage reduction signed up will take about 7,800,000 acres out of production next year, and the payments now being made represent about 70 per cent of what each farmer will receive. The remainder will be paid next spring when the farmers' contracts will have been fully executed in the sense that the acre concerned has not been planted either this fall or next spring.

Despite their "wet" leanings, Postmaster General Farley and Attorney General Cummings have had to decree that liquor advertisements in newspapers and magazines may not go into "dry" states. They have ruled that it is proper for a newspaper or a magazine, carrying a liquor advertisement, to circulate in a state where prohibition is not operative under state laws, but otherwise the advertisement must not be circulated.

I do not imagine it was a pleasant thing for "Big Jim" Farley to do, because it was he who fought harder for repeal than any other high Democratic leader. And possibly the action was made more distasteful to Mr. Farley because it was another Democrat, "Jim" Reed, of Missouri, who had sponsored the law that barred liquor advertising from the mails, when he was a member of the senate. Senator Reed, always a wet, had put forward the amendment barring advertisements of liquor for the purpose of "seeing how far the dries will go." They went, and Senator Reed had to vote for a provision of law that he knew was absurd.

I have made numerous inquiries lately and I can find no logical reason for barring the advertising, except that it is in the law. It does not occur to me that anyone will be made more thirsty by reading an advertisement; that liquor can be ordered and will be delivered "if and when" repeal comes.

THIRTY-SEVEN states—more than necessary—having voted for prohibition repeal, the Eighteenth amendment is knocked out of the Constitution. The dry regime comes to an end on December 5, when the thirty-sixth state convention that meets to ratify the repeal of the act. The latest states to go on for repeal were Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and Kentucky. On the day North and South Carolina rejected the repeal amendment, being the first commonwealths to do so. This result was ascribed to the fact that the prohibitionists made a lively campaign, while the repealers were inactive. The vote of Utah was somewhat of a surprise, for the Mormon church had urged all its members to vote for retention of the Eighteenth amendment. Obviously, many of them disregarded this monition.

NEVER again will we call off this strike until our demands are met by the federal government," declared Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday Association. Whereupon the "embattled farmers" of the Middle West resumed their protesting with renewed vigor, determined to prevent the moving of produce to the markets of the leading cities. Reno and his followers were enraged because President Hoover, on the advice of George N. Peek, head of the agricultural adjustment administration, and Secretary Wallace, had rejected the pricing plan offered by Governors Langer, Olson, Langer, Schmedemann and Berry. And those governors were less irate when they left the White House. They declared their attempt to bring about complete regimentation of agriculture was a complete failure and that they were disappointed and disgusted. They freely predicted "a great deal of disturbance" unless management prices go up on this year's crops, and the farm strikers saw to it that as prediction was justified.

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from some synthetic, habit-forming cathartic may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be corrected in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Advances Certain Now Is the Time to Buy

"In every line of industry and trade higher wages are operating to increase production costs. Things are going to be more valuable than money, and at such a time free buying is the part of prudence.

"There is in this country an enormous latent buying power. Alongside it is an even more enormous latent demand for things. Our clothes are shabby, our automobiles rattle, our houses need painting. We need nearly every thing, and for 4 years we have been buying the very starvation minimum. We were afraid to buy because prices had steadily fallen and we were afraid of losing our jobs. It was the thing to do in a downward spiral. But it is not the thing to do when everything is going the other way. Lower prices, unemployment, save. Higher prices, reemployment, buy. That is good sense and good business."—General Johnson.

W. M. SOCIETY

The ladies of the Methodist Missionary societies held their regular meeting at the church, there being quite a little business to be attended to and election of officers we did not have our social meeting. The first discussion was regarding the bazaar. Will open same on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 2. Mrs. Maness was appointed chairman of committee to secure place, which will be at the Equity Union Store beginning at 2 o'clock. We decided to have a cooked food sale in connection with the bazaar, also request the ladies of the church to each piece quilt block 18 inches sq. and bring to bazaar Sat. Dec. 9, these to be sold also.

The zone meeting for this part of the district will be held at Lakeview Thursday, Dec. 7. A good representation from here is requested. Business of the session being completed we went into the election of officers. For this part Mrs. Kendall was asked to preside, Mrs. Webb was unanimously re-elected president. She has been so efficient and faithful the past year we did not wish to change.

WIFADASOS CLUB

Wifadasos Club gave a Thanksgiving party, entertaining their husbands, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 27.

The Home Economic room was beautifully decorated in keeping with the season. Tables were laid for 41 guests.

Our incoming president gave a very appropriate toast to the husbands, Mr. Steele, the school superintendent, gave the response. The evening was spent playing various games which were very much enjoyed.

Those present were: Mesdames and Mesdames Jess Guill, John Dickson, N. E. Grimsley, John Klinger, Brown, Q. L. Glass, Steele, J. W. Noel, John Moreman, O. R. Hull, R. Newman, Kempson, John A. Ross, Adamson, Joe Crawford, Mesdames Wiggins, Swift, Geo. Armstrong, Ruth Duncan, Jap. Shaw, Bill Luttrell, Paul Adamson, E. D. Whiteside and J. W. Webb and Vernon Webb.

W. L. W. H., Tom and Mrs. Ruby Mitt went to Corsica last Friday in response to a message that Mrs. B. J. Stewart, grandmother of W. H. Tom and Ruby, was very ill at her home there. We are very glad to report that she is now very much improved.

Mrs. A. W. Plumble left Friday morning for Albuquerque, N. Mex., to visit her brother, who is in a hospital there.

"On the stage? What shows have you been in lately? I've seen you before—seems like it was in the movies, though. I didn't recognize you that day—on account of those dark glasses, but I could swear—"

Beatrice rose. "I'm afraid we're wasting a lot of your time. I am awfully busy myself, too. I have an idea that Rocky will be quite willing to give Doris a divorce, but that is only my own opinion, and it hasn't the slightest weight really, as I know absolutely nothing about it. This young woman is hardly a fly-by-night sweet-heart of Rocky's as you seem to suppose. She happens to be a friend of mine whom Rocky has helped out of a rather tight scrape—"

Molly rose. She whistled as she did so. "What a sap I've been!"

Doris stared blankly. Beatrice bit her lip.

"This is interesting," continued Molly. "I knew I'd seen you in the movies—in the news reel it was."

Beatrice found her voice: "You're mistaken."

"Am I really?" She turned to Beatrice. "What part will you play in the big scene, young lady? Isn't there some law about concealing a criminal? I wouldn't be in your shoes for the world—Miss St. Gardens. I really wouldn't."

"I think you'd better go," said Beatrice.

"After I've telephoned the police, Roy, will this be a sensation! Am I lucky? I can see my picture in every paper in the country. Along with yours, of course." She inclined her head to Doris mockingly. "I see it all now. Schoolgirls together. Rocky the big Galahad. Nobody would ever think of looking here for Diane Merrell! No wonder you didn't want to see me."

Beatrice turned to Doris. "Rocky ought to be here soon. Perhaps he can talk some sense into her."

"I'm a woman of impulse," said Molly. "and I feel a strange whim rushing over me to call up the police."

Beatrice closed her eyes. Then she said in a calm tone: "Let me show you the telephone."

Molly with a small sneer on her pretty mouth took a last look at Doris and followed Beatrice.

Beatrice opened a door. It led to a small clothes closet. Before Molly quite knew what was happening Beatrice had pushed her in.

She locked the door. "It will give you time to get away, Doris. My roadster is right outside."

Doris clutched Beatrice by the hand. "All right. Only—I'm going to give myself up—in the nearest town."

"No—don't. Wait. I'll give you some money. Drive toward Canada, and Rocky will overtake you at—let me see—at Burlington."

"No, Beatrice. It's too late. And tell Rocky if he comes, I'll swear I've never seen him before."

"Yes. Please. You've done so much. I can't stand it. It would break my heart if you got in trouble."

Beatrice had found her purse. She gave it to Doris.

"The key to the car's inside."

Doris ran through the door on the screened porch, and out over the lawn to the side road. She slid into the seat, and inserted the key. The car started. Her hands were on the wheel, her feet at home on clutch and brake. She did not stop to think that she knew how to run a car. She drove.

She came out on the highway and hesitated for the fraction of an instant—to the right lay the town, St. Gardens' town—the place where Rocky was known. She must go the other way, then.

A car was coming from the town. It might be bringing Rocky from the train. She could not resist a fleeting glance. It was not Rocky's car—and he would be in his own car because he had driven it to the train. She drew a deep breath. Did she hope Rocky would come and save her? She must not allow herself to think that.

She turned away from the approaching car—a mud-spattered black sedan. She had not seen who was driving. If it wasn't Rocky it didn't much matter. Now she was on the smooth cement, and finding that Beatrice's car could certainly go.

She was going seventy, and the speedometer was slowly mounting. Perhaps she would be arrested for speeding. All the better. Then she would be able to tell the cop who arrested her herself. She wouldn't even have to think about giving herself up.

As she drove she caught sight of another car in the mirror. Was she being pursued after all?

Her foot on the accelerator, she soon lost sight of the car behind. Now the signs of a town were appearing at last. And here was the little hidden road she had hoped for. She turned sharply over a dirt road toward a small still and left it. If that sedan was really pursuing her, this ought to throw it off the track.

She climbed a fence, and found herself in a cemetery. A small breeze sighed gently, the odor of white phlox came from behind a white stone. It was time to find an officer of the law, time to give herself up.

She must do it. If she didn't, Molly would do it, and involve Beatrice and Rocky.

She had come out on the road by now, and was approaching three half-grown men who were standing under a large elm tree and staring at her curiously. She stopped before the boys.

"Can you tell me where I can find a policeman?"

The boys looked harder than ever. Perhaps they had already guessed why she had come.

A dark eyed stocky boy jerked his head sideways. "You want the constable. That's him."

Under a nearby tree a lanky old man was stretched out with a policeman's cap tilted down over his face.

"Hey, Vance, someone wants to see you!"

It seemed a long time before the tall skinny constable roused himself. As he got to his feet slowly Doris saw that he was a very old man with a stoop in his thin shoulders. He straightened his hat and blinked for a minute inquiringly.

Doris hurried toward him.

"Wa—al now," said the old fellow amiably as she came near, "you want to see me about something?" The faded hazel of his eyes twinkled down at her kindly.

Doris looked at him, unable to speak for a minute.

"You're the officer of the law in charge in this town?"

"I guess you might call me that," drawled the old fellow slowly.

"I'm—I'm—" It was hard to say who she was. It seemed so ridiculously untrue—"I'm Diane Merrell. The alec cops around here see around wearing skirts. Why only the other day they arrested the wife of some young fellow that was up visiting the big artist up Jonesboro way—fellow the name of St. Gardens—you surely have heard of him!"

"Yes, I know. I—"

"I'm going to ask you a few questions, and if you can prove to me that you're Diane Merrell, darned if I don't arrest you—" He grinned, showing brown stumps of teeth. "Yes, sir—rather ma'am, I should say, darned if I don't arrest you. Let's see. Now if you are Diane Merrell, you can tell me a few things about yourself, can't you?"

"Why yes, I suppose so—but I shouldn't think—"

"Wa—al, first of all, what's your father's full name?"

She racked her brains. Why hadn't she noticed that when she was reading the papers?

"Why—let's see. Charles—no, John Merrell."

"It's Samuel. But I'll give you another question—" He eyed her humorously.

"Let's see? Where was it you went to school?"

"Why I went to—look here, what is the use of all these questions? If I give myself up for murder, that ought to be enough, isn't it?"

The constable swung himself back to his desk. "Wa—al next time you give yourself up you better get more information. Mr. Merrell's name is Samuel, and I remember you went to Vassar. Now you go on back to your mamma and your papa. I expect they're looking for you right now."

Doris rose. She would have to go on to the next town, find a bigger place. There must be hundreds of policemen who were willing to arrest her.

"Don't know as I ought to let you go. Somebody will be around lookin' for you like as not, and you're liable to get into trouble."

He spoke half to himself. Before

Velvet Wraps and Colorings

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THERE is a color glory about this season's velvet evening wraps which is simply entrancing. The scene in the foyer of the theater or opera house as fair patrons of the arts flit about in their gorgeous velvet wraps reminds one of a huge jewel box filled with animated rubies and sapphires, emeralds, turquoise and topaz, for fashion has decreed a vogue of jewel colors for evening velvets. The list of delectable colors also includes such deep rich hues as eggplant, blackberry and the now-popular rust. Also eel gray.

Even more alluring and exotic are the new Chinese colorings, for jades and lacquer reds and vivid blues and the golden yellows of the Orient are top headlines on the present autumn and winter velvet color card.

However, it is not only wealth of color that intrigues in the velvet realm, for there is added lure in the fact that the termin velvet includes a wide diversity of weaves in these modern times. That aristocrat, Lyons velvet, is present both in stiff and soft versions. Likewise the beloved transparents continue to hold their own. Then by way of novelty comes such beguiling types as the very fashionable ribbed velvets and the many crushed, uncut, dull panne and faconne varieties.

Velvets enlivened with metal thread-work also make one conscious of the new elegance which is sweeping through fashion. To fail to mention at this time the richly colorful plaid velvets which are the envy of every woman who sees them would be a grave sin of omission.

Quality, color, matchless detail, all combine to make the superbly beautiful velvet wraps in the picture carry the message that this is indeed an era of luxurious fashions in which we are living. The first of this particular quartet is hip-length, and of eel gray Lyons velvet. The modish, low-shoulder silhouette is accentuated by smocking.

To those who covet a sleek slenderness of line, the fact that wrap-around coat types remain in favor, is most happily reassuring. The stunning dolmanlike three-quarter-length velvet wrap illustrated to the right is the top, is that sort. Velvet in a lovely corbeau blue fashions this exquisite garment. The lining is a lighter blue, and the lavish fox which borders this model is creamy pale beige.

Another from among the aristocrats in the realm of evening wraps is used below to the left in the group. Here velvet of sumptuous mien dramatizes the luxury of the present season. In point of styling detail it is a masterpiece. Collars which fence about the neck as does this one, bespeak the newest of the new.

Before we proceed with this series of velvets-beautiful, we want to take time to call your attention to the handsome jeweled hair ornaments and the glittering bracelets which lend glamorous accent to the appearance of each of the ladies of fashion posed to the left (above and below) in the picture. Hair ornaments are real style news. Also bracelets set with precious stones.

Over her charming gown of shimmering white satin, milady posing to the right below wears a gorgeous floor-length coat of ruby transparent velvet. It has a scarf collar of self-velvet, and to add to so richly colorful a wrap would be but an anti-climax.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsoir

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsoir, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsoir is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsoir contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsoir is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsoir. (adv.)

girl wanted for murder. I've come to give myself up."

"Now, now, don't be in such a hurry."

"But—"

"So you're the little girl that done the murder?"

"Yes."

"You don't look so terrible fierce."

"Please—this is hard for me. I—"

She could not make out the old man's attitude. He was stooping over on the ground fumbling for something he had dropped. He found it at last and straightened. It was a pipe. Then he began a long search in his trousers pockets for a pouch full of tobacco.

"When you've been in this world as long as I have," he said slowly, "you'll learn it don't pay to get yourself excited."

"But don't you understand—"

"Why, you're all worked up. You come on into my office and we'll see if we can't straighten this thing out."

Dazedly Doris was beginning to realize that the old man had not taken her seriously. Perhaps he had never heard of Diane Merrell.

He turned and began walking very slowly toward a ramshackle store that was nearby.

Doris followed him.

There was no one in the gloomy interior of the dark store. At the back was a door with "Constable" marked in large black letters. It led into a small office where Doris followed the old man.

He seated himself in a swivel chair very deliberately. "Bout everybody's been in for their mail, so I guess we won't be interrupted," he said.

"I'm afraid you can't have taken what I said very seriously, Constable," said Doris abruptly.

"Wa—al now, let's talk a little bit about it. What makes you think you're Diane Merrell? You know there have been lots of girls found, don't you?"

He went on the constable. "Why now, if I was to arrest you and send you on up to the police in New Jersey you'd be about number ten on the list." He chuckled. "Don't know a girl should want to be in her shoes, though."

Doris felt that she was wasting time. The office was a blurred jumble. How was she to convince him of her earnestness?

he could make up his mind Doris marched out.

As she made her way through the empty store she noticed the sign, "Western Union." She could send a telegram to her father collect: Samuel Merrell, Morristown, New Jersey. Then if the old man wanted to hold her there, let him.

He was pottering along after her slowly.

"Where's the telegraph operator?"

"Wa—al now, you want to send a telegram?"

"Yes, certainly."

"Who you going to telegraph?"

Doris looked at him silently. She felt that she was being kind to her in his way, but her patience was ebbing.

"I'll tell that to the telegraph operator."

"I'm him."

"But—"

"Yep, I'm him. I'm the postmaster, too, and the storekeeper here. You see I'm quite a fellow in these parts. Wouldn't think it to look at me now, would you?" He handed her a telegraph blank.

"S'pose you want to send it collect?"

"Yes," said Doris furiously.

"All right. Write it out. Let me see what it is."

Doris took hold of the blank angrily. When this old fellow found out the truth he wouldn't be quite so sure of himself. She wrote rapidly:

"Samuel Merrell, Morristown, New Jersey."

"I am here in—"

She interrupted her work to ask, "What is the name of this town?"

"Cherry Corners, Vermont."

Doris wrote—"Cherry Corners, Vermont. I want to give myself up to the police." She signed the message Diane. She handed it to the aged operator, who scrutinized it closely for some seconds.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Scott Popularized the Novel

Sir Walter Scott was the first to make the novel popular among the widest mass of readers and Balzac made of the novel the most important literary vehicle of modern civilization.

ICE BLUE COLOR IS BEST FOR LINGERIE

The latest news in lingerie hues especially first place in tints to blue, especially ice blue. This off-white shade was first shown in satin dresses for evening wear last year.

New underthings in this color are trimmed either with Alencon lace dyed to match, or with real Valenciennes either in white or ochre. Other fashionable shades are salmon and rose leaf, as well as white.

Both dull and shiny fabrics are being used in lingerie, always, however, with a smooth surface unlike the rippled, pebbled weaves used in dress fabrics today. Crepe de chine is the classic fabric, but there are seen also dull rayon crepes, Peau d'Ange jerseys, and satins whose dull-finished backs can be used for contrast.

Boat Neckline Appearing Again on Style Horizon

Our old friend, the boat neckline, is sailing across fashion's horizon again, this time a more seaworthy craft than formerly. A crisp cuff has been added, to give piquancy to the face above it, and accent the flattering line from shoulder to shoulder. Guaranteed to meet any requirement from noon to midnight, the boat neckline is delightful on a luncheon frock, appealing on a dinner dress, and sweetly naive on a formal gown.

Organdie is crisply becoming on a simple dark frock, taffeta or ubiquitous satin, effective at the dinner hour; and lame would be grand for evening. Astute designers, however, are using material of the gown for the cuff bateau when the model is a formal one.

Hats Copy Dresses

Some of the smart new hats take their cue from dresses, copying dress materials. Ribbed and corded silks, such as bengaline and faille, are especially nice for a first fall hat, since they are so light in weight.

OPEN-TOP SLEEVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here is a most style-worthy dinner gown from more than one point of view. In the first place the hammer crepe of bemberg mixture in a lovely starlight blue which fashions the prettily feminine frock is not only good to look upon but it is all that delightfully wearable and genteel fabric should be. Of course you too in the charm of the flattering open top sleeves at first glance. For the matter who wouldn't, for what an adorable fashion it is!

News from College Station

The Texas cotton farmer's spirits have improved 100 per cent over a year ago because of the 42 million dollars received in cotton plow up checks this fall. It is revealed in statements made by county agents to the Extension Service at Texas A and M College. Old debts and back taxes are listed as the two chief ways in which this money has been spent, although much of it has gone into purchase and repair of farm machinery, and purchase of clothing and household necessities.
Business in towns is reported decidedly improved as a result of these checks and the price of cotton which is generally acknowledged to have been increased would have been no more than 5 cents per pound had the campaign not been conducted, county agents say. Merchants and farmers are said to be almost unanimous in support of the 1934-35 cotton plan whenever it is presented.
Many farmers report that the cotton program has put them in the best financial position they have had since 1928-29. County agents cite cases where part and sometimes all of the Government check has been left as a net deposit in the bank. Several bank ers declare that debts 7 and 8 years old have been paid in full out of these Government funds.
Payments of over due land taxes is reported in many places and there are some instances of the plow up checks being used as a down payment on land.
It is a fair summary of county agent reports on the subject to state that there is little evidence of foolish expenditures, that the chief use of the plow up money has been in liquidating debts, and that while there may not be much more money on most farms this fall, the farmer's credit standing has been greatly improved and his morale enormously increased.

can be secured for only $4.75, with a beautiful glass or Whip-o-lite shade and tripod for but slightly more. If you prefer color, choose an Aladdin in colored crystal for an even $5.00, choice of two colors, green or amber.
Why struggle along in the semi-darkness of the old style kerosene lamp, when this Aladdin will fill it with radiance and cheer, save at least one-half on oil, in fact it actually pays for itself in a short time.
Simple, safe, sanitary — smokeless, odorless and troubleless. Get yours now at this lowest of all low prices.
BIG PRICE REDUCTIONS Substantial savings now on all Aladdins—metal table, bracket, hanging and floor lamps and on new color of shade lamps. Beautiful new Whip-o-lite shades also at reduced prices.
Come in and see an Aladdin in operation—it will amaze you!
