After the president, Mrs. Bridges, called the meeting to order, Mr. Alewine led the members in singing some old familiar songs.

A report of the executive council meeting named Mesdames Payne, Masterson, Wells and Mr. Lovall as a nominating committee for officers to serve next year. Mrs. Lovall was appointed as treasurer to serve in Mrs. Beatty's place. The association voted to accept the report of the executive committee.

Mrs. Bridges, in the absence of the treasurer, reported a balance of $45.89 and 87 members with dues paid.

The association voted to pay for pictures to be used in the Picture Memory Contest and to buy playground balls and bats as the teachers thought necessary.

There was an unusually good attendance, with 44 present who were eligible to vote in the contest. Each grade was well represented, but the sixth Grade won the award by a small margin.

The meeting of March 7 promises to be unusually interesting, as Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Hooker were appointed to prepare a program on music appreciation.

MRS. LEIGH TO BE HERE

Mrs. J. E. Leigh, state B. W. M. U. secretary, will be at the First Baptist church Sunday night, March 10. Mrs. Leigh was in Hedley two years ago and brought a very interesting and instructive message. The public is invited to come out and hear her again.

GOVERNOR ALLRED ISSUES PROCLAMATION

Governor Jimmy Allred has proclaimed March 8 as a "day of prayer and fasting" and calls upon Texans to "spend the day assuring ourselves that all Texans love God."

REVIVAL CLOSÉS

The two weeks meeting at the Methodist church closed Sunday night. Those who had the privilege of hearing Rev. Bascomb Morton, while he was here, are thoroughly convinced that there are still ministers that are not afraid to condemn sin in the high as well as the low places. While the visible results were not so great, sinners were converted, church members revived, and a general spiritual uplift of the community was felt. Two young ladies volunteered for life service during the meeting.

OLYMPIC GAMES

On Friday night, March 8, you will have a chance to see what Madison Square Garden and the Rose Bowl have been offering. There will be every game you like, basketball, volley ball and boxing.

Come and see the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, and the east pay the west right on the Hedley High school's Gymnasium floor. The admission will be only 10-15c.

We have a big sale on 6-ply tires for this month, to compete with mail order houses.

Will the Small Town Die?

That all depends.

Every town like ours either grows, stagnates or dies from lack of support from home people.

We've got to fight for our community. Let's do our trading here, help each other, keep our money at home.

Then we'll have a town we're proud of, one in which we're mighty glad to live and do business.

JUST RIGHT FOR WEAR IN KITCHEN

This "kitchen ensemble" would make a delightful present for some member of your family—that is, if you don't decide to keep it yourself, after it is finished. The apron, made especially to fit the frock, is cut simply full for protection, and boasts a convenient patch pocket and slenderizing half-beited waistline. The frock has a disarmingly demure ruffe to emphasize its nice square neckline, and cunning puffed sleeves to set off pretty arms. Vertical tucks at the waistline keep it trim, yet provide comfortable fullness in bodice and skirt. Both the apron and the frock are included in one pattern. Pattern 9846 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34. Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric and 3/4 yards contrasting.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included. Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

"I see," said Smith, "that a famous man has been saying that four hours sleep is enough for anyone."
"Tooh!" said Brown. "That's nothing. I've a two-year-old boy at home who knew that a year ago."—El Paso World-News.

Needed Experience

"Come, Mary; I will show you how to milk the cows," said Martha to her city cousin visiting the dairy farm for the first time.

"Hain't I better begin with a calf until I get more experience?" asked the city cousin.

By IRVING BERLIN
Famous Composer

ONLY the person who suffers from insomnia knows the ravages and terrors of the still night hours before the dawn of day.

Through the night lulling tunes and haunting melodies come to Irving Berlin, the famous composer; but sleep eludes him.

"Once during a hot summer night," Mr. Berlin related, "I was staying at a small Broadway hotel during the production of one of my first musical comedies.

"Tired out from the work of rehearsal, I could have fallen into a light sleep, but I was disturbed by the snoring of the man in the next room. I paced the floor. The snoring grew louder and louder. It was uncanny. At four o'clock it stopped, and I fell asleep for a few minutes, only to be awakened again by the regularity of the harsh notes. I slept by fits and starts.

"At six o'clock I remember I was awake.

"Frantically, I walked into the hall. The snoring man's door was open. I pushed aside the ventilating screen. An empty white-rock bottle caught my eye. I picked it up and, with one blow, brought it down with revenge upon the man's head. It shattered into hundreds of pieces. Blood trickled down the man's face. This was horrible.

"The next thing I knew a hand was grasping my arm. I could feel it, but could not see it. Was it the dead man's ghost? I tried hard to visualize it—was it the hand of a spirit detective?"

"I reached up to push the hand away.

"Wake up," roared a bellboy, who was tugging at my arm. 'You left a call for seven o'clock. Hope you had a nice night's sleep,' he added, jauntily. "The man in the next room has complained that he dreamed he heard the noise of some one walking back and forth, back and forth, all night. Hope you didn't hear anything queer."

By JOAN CRAWFORD
Motion Picture Actress

SINCE childhood, I have been afraid of darkness. It is a fear which embodies nothing definite; but complete darkness terrifies me. Consequently, I always leave a dim light burning in the dressing room which opens from my bedroom," said Joan Crawford.

"A short time ago I had an amazing experience. One night at eleven o'clock this lamp flickered fitfully, almost going out completely and then burning again. I paid little attention to it, thinking something was wrong with the current. When the same thing happened the next night, at the same hours, eleven and twelve, I called in an electrician to test the wiring at the house, and of the lamp. Nothing wrong was found.

"On the third night we stayed home just to watch the lights. We turned them on all over the house, at eleven o'clock, but that in the dressing room behaved in the same peculiar fashion. I did not want to go out to dance or sing. On the fourth night, I moved from my room to one of the guest rooms, but because of my silly fear of the dark, which I know psychologists would say I should have overcome in my childhood, I left a light burning in the hall outside my room. At eleven o'clock that light began to flicker and a few minutes before twelve, it went out entirely. We were completely mystified.

"The next morning I received a wire from New York telling me that one of my oldest friends, a woman who had been very kind to me in the early days of my career, had died at midnight the night before.

"The telegram stated that four nights before my friend had been taken to the hospital for an emergency operation, that she had been operated on approximately at eleven o'clock, and that she had hovered between life and death during the period when I had trouble with my dressing room lamp.

"My lights went back to their usual steady behavior after that fourth night. I can't explain it. Perhaps there was something defective in the current—perhaps not."

The Mason and Dixie Line

The Mason and Dixie Line was the name given to the boundary between two American states, Maryland and Pennsylvania; the name was derived from the two English astronomers, Mason and Dixon, who surveyed the boundary in 1763.

This line formed part of the boundary between the states which continued to keep slaves and those which didn't. The result is that the phrase, "Mason and Dixie Line," is now widely used as meaning the whole of that boundary.—Answers Magazine.

Piano Invented in 1720

In its present form the piano was invented in 1720, but before it came the clavichord, the spinet, and the harpsichord. In all these the music was produced by quills which plucked the strings. It was not until the piano was designed that hammers were used to strike the strings.

Character Brought Out by Ills of Depression

Some persons as I see them dealing with the depression, have not succeeded in getting any good out of it. The impact of the economic catastrophe has cracked their faith, crumpled their morale, and left them dilapidated and disillusioned.

Moreover, this has happened, in my experience, not mainly among those who have faced tragic destitution. They frequently have been magnificent. The worst failures I have seen have been among those who, having valued life in terms of wealth or business success, have collapsed when their extravagant ambitions were disappointed. The trouble with them was inside.

On the whole, however, I have been proud of the human character, as I have intimately watched men and women reacting to this depression as though it were a stimulus.—Harry Emerson Fosdick in Cosmopolitan.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

"She was affected about two months before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using them about three weeks you could not tell she ever had this condition." (Signed) Mrs. Neal Gladney, R. F. LIGHTING . . . Yesterday and Today

musical compositions, frequently dwelling on candle light, are but recollections of a luxury in bygone days?

That such spectacular illumination from candles would compare as only modest electric illumination today?

That one modern electric lamp (50-watt size) gives the same illumination as 48 candle light give?

That the wax candle will burn about 4 hours, necessitating 250 replacements to one replacement of the electric lamp?

That an average home today has the equivalent of approximately ten such electric lamps (50-watt size) in use, and with 24 months or 1,000 burning hours as their useful life, the two-year total lighting costs, including cost of lamps and cost of electric service, is only $27?

That a comparable illumination from wax candles (not considering the inferior light or the danger accompanying any flame, its fine soot floating or gaseous odors) would necessitate consumption of 120,000 wax candles over such a two-year period at a cost to you of more than $2,400, yet complete electric "lighting" service is supplied by this company and enjoyed by all members of your household for less daily costs than a cigar to one member of the household.

Further, that over half of all domestic service customers in West Texas pay less than 4c a day for all their residential electric service, including lighting.

ELECTRIC SERVICE IS CHEAP! YOU SHOULD USE

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

SHOT OF DESTINY

IT WAS about as clumsy and unwieldy a weapon as one could imagine—that arquebus which European soldiers carried in the Seventeenth century. But no modern machine gun, rat-a-tatting out its swift stream of death, ever affected the course of American history more than an ancient arquebus, away back in 1609.

In that year Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec, accompanied a war party of Hurons and Algonquins against their enemies, the Mohawks of the Iroquois Confederacy. They found them on the shores of the beautiful lake which now bears the French explorer's name.

Champlain saw the Mohawks getting ready to shoot their arrows. He leveled his arquebus, which he had loaded with four balls, and aimed straight at one of the three Mohawk chiefs in the forefront of the enemy's line. As the gun roared, two of them dropped dead and the third was seriously wounded. Amazed to see their chiefs killed so quickly, the Iroquois warriors fled.

Champlain could not have realized it then, but this was truly a "shot of destiny." For this was the first contact of the Iroquois with the French and their hatred for these white men dated from that day. It made them allies of the English and in the long struggle between England and France for domination of North America, the aid of such warriors, perhaps the most ferocious on the continent, played a decisive part in favor of Great Britain.

"ON TO RICHMOND!"

EARLY in June, 1861, the editorial column in the New York Tribune declared "THE NATION'S WAIT CRY: Forward to Richmond! Forward to Richmond! The Rebel congress must not be allowed to meet there on the 20th of July. By that date the place must be held by the National army."

Composed by Fitz-Henry Warren of the Tribune staff, it was run by order of Charles A. Dana, then managing editor. But, because the "Tribune was Horace Greeley and Horace Greeley was the Tribune," everyone believed that he had originated it.

Day after day it appeared. Soon the whole North had taken up the cry, "On to Richmond!" By the middle of July the government could disregard it no longer.

Gen. Irvin McDowell was ordered to advance with his raw, untrained troops. The result was the battle of Bull Run on July 21 when the Union forces were utterly routed with a loss of nearly 3,000 killed, wounded and missing.

The disaster was a terrible blow to the North. Greeley published a signed statement declaring "the precise phrase 'Forward to Richmond' is not mine, and I would have preferred not to iterate it." But he was blamed for it, nevertheless. His bitter enemy, James Gordon Bennett of the Herald, said that the Tribune editor should be tried for murder because he had sent all those brave young boys to their death. Greeley was so overwhelmed by it all that he was prostrated for six weeks with an attack of brain fever.

Later he rose to heights of editorial influence perhaps never equaled by any other man. But by many Americans he is still remembered as the editor whose slogan precipitated a great disaster to our arms and to our pride.

A LITTLE MORE GRAPE

ON FEBRUARY 23, 1847, Gen. Santa Anna's Mexicans broke through the lines of Gen. Zachary Taylor's American army at Buena Vista and were about to cut off one flank. Then a little battery and a few Kentucky volunteers, commanded by Captains William Tecumseh Sherman and Braxton Bragg, swung into action. For a few precious moments they held up the Mexican advance.

General Taylor, coming on to the field, saw what they were doing. Yanking off his old straw hat which he (the most un military of heroes) wore, he swung it over his head.

"Give 'em h—, Captain Bragg!" he shouted.

A few hours later Santa Anna's hosts were in retreat. Soon the United States was ringing with the praises of Gen. Zachary Taylor. "The Hero of Buena Vista." The next year the Whigs selected him as their candidate for President. They needed a good slogan for the campaign and his remark to Captain Bragg provided it.

"Elegance" of language was considered very important in that squeamish era. True, Taylor was known as "Old Rough and Ready" to his soldiers, but the Whigs were a bit dubious about the use of "h—" in their slogan. So the partisan newspapers edited his remark on that historic occasion. They substituted "a little more grape" for that questionable word, meaning that Captain Bragg should blast the Mexican enemy with grape-shot. It was a good slogan. It sent Zachary Taylor to the White House.

Science Gains Rich Data in Gold Rush

Knowledge of California Geology Increased.

Boston.—Conditions which cause factories to stand idle in many parts of the world, and which result in widespread unemployment, are themselves responsible for the opening in California of gold mines which have been deserted for decades, writes Dr. Ralph W. Chaney, research associate, Carnegie Institution, in the Boston Transcript.

With the opening of the mines there are uncovered not only the nuggets and dust of precious yellow metal, but ledges of rock containing fossil leaves, fruits, and wood—less valuable in the markets of the world, but of incalculable significance to the students of the earth's history.

When gold was discovered in California in 1849, the foothills east of the Sierra Nevada became the objective of the pioneer band which made fortunes and romance, and laid the foundations for the development of this westernmost unit of the United States. Hither came men from all parts of America.

Fortunes Made and Lost. Fortunes were made—and lost—during these early days when by crude mining methods the yellow metal was readily washed from the gravels bordering the Sierra Nevada. Then followed more pretentious mining known as hydraulic mining; by the use of huge, spouting streams of water the sands and gravels were washed away, leaving behind fragments of gold. When the white man had taken all he could from these diggings, the Chinese, who were always awaiting their chance, took over the task of squeezing from the earth the last of the golden grist.

As recently as 1908, there was recovered $750,000,000 in gold by Chinese miners almost at the center of the diggings at You Bet. The place is still called Tai Flat in honor of the Chinese foreman under whose direction it was mined, after the white miners had decided that all of the gold had been removed.

During these later years, the low price of gold has made it unprofitable to carry on extensive mining operations. Tom Brady has continued to remain as custodian of the properties of the You Bet Mining company, but the question must have arisen many times before him and before the many other men left behind in these hills after the flood of the gold boom had ebbed, as to whether there would ever again arise the tented cities of the miners, and whether great streams of water would cut once more into the gravel cliffs, seeking the yellow fragments which man has always valued.

Then came a change in the gold values as a direct result of unsettled money conditions throughout the world. From $22.67 an ounce, the price of gold shot up to $37 almost overnight. Again it became profitable to work the California placer mines, and today they are filled with men, with streams of water, with excitement. Another gold rush is under way.

Fossils Discovered. During the early days of mining at You Bet, and at many other diggings in California, large pieces of petrified wood were uncovered in the gravels.

Annoyance the miners may have felt at having to move this petrified wood, some pieces of which weigh many tons, was more than balanced by the fact that around these fossil trees the gravel was exceptionally rich in gold.

In the early days of mining activity, fossil plants were collected near You Bet, from the high ridge of gravels and clays known as Chalk Bluffs; these have been studied by paleobotanists, and important conclusions have been reached. With the closing of the mines, discoveries of fossils became less frequent, and for many years there has been no addition to our knowledge of the ancient forests of this part of California. With the revival of mining activity, new fossil-bearing layers have been discovered by the miners, and by Harry D. MacGinitie, who is studying the history of plant life at the University of California.

Mr. MacGinitie reports the finding of more than 40 kinds of leaves, including figs, magnolias, palms, sycamores and avocados. Of these none have lived down to the present in the region of You Bet, although palms and sycamores occur in warmer parts of California, and some of the others grow under cultivation. These hills are now occupied by pines and oaks, constituting a forest similar to that found in many of the temperate areas of the northern hemisphere.

A Problem—Who Can Solve It?

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Previous depressions were caused by "let up" in business and a shrinkage of bank credit. Financiers stored cash in vaults, and those who had ready cash, hoarded it. This, however, preceded previous depressions, and to a large extent accentuated its suffering. Famines were caused by lack of supplies incident to drouth seasons and general failure of crops. People went hungry because there was a deficiency of food.

The present depression, out of which we are gradually emerging, occurred not in a period of failure of crops or stagnation of business, but in the midst of a period of unprecedented prosperity. The cause for it, therefore, was not our failures but our successes. People are hungry today, not because there is a lack of food. We have more food than we can possibly consume. We have had no famine as in some Oriental countries. Farm products have been so abundant that it was necessary to destroy a portion of them in order to stabilize prices. Some persons are sick today, hopelessly fighting disease, not because we do not have adequate medical knowledge. In truth, never before in our history were we more efficiently equipped with surgical skill and medical facilities. Young men and women are being deprived of a college education today, not because they lack the means of education. Our colleges were never better fortified, and the cost per student never so small. Yet hundreds of our youth go hungry for knowledge, as many hunger for food.

What is the remedy for this condition of things? To do not lack any material thing essential to the well-being of the race, and yet something very drastic and tremendously imperative is lacking. What is that something? To find an adequate answer to that question is our most urgent need.

Picture Frames

Repainting the frame often brings a picture into harmony with the room in which it is hung, says a prominent art dealer. This applies especially to black and white prints and colored reproductions of famous paintings. Choose a color which agrees with the dominating hue of the interior or the principal color of the picture. Unfinished wood frames are now available and can easily be finished to suit the room.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

FROM the practical point of view it is as important to care for one's wardrobe as it is to select it correctly. A handsome article of apparel will soon lose its freshness and its beauty if it is carelessly handled, or not put away as it should be. Also it should be worn as befits it. In the care of the apparel should also be included the consideration of the clothes during the time of wearing them. This is a point of nicety as the wearer should never seem to be concerned about her appearance. However, it is by knowing how to manage the garments, during the time of wearing, that one can seem to be regardless of them and still prevent them from getting damaged.

Now that lace costumes are so much in evidence, it is well to know that they must be put away right, for them to be taken out and worn immediately without pressing. A lace costume can be folded and put in a box and be taken out, deftly shaken, and donned and look like new. If it were hung on a garment hanger the shoulders would be pulled and the sagging of the folds tends to make vertical creases, which are prevented when the dress is put away in a box.

A bureau drawer is equally good, if you can spare one for the dress. Tuck crushed tissue paper between the folds of the lace and in the sleeves. If there are any. As a lace costume is apt to have a jacket of the same material, it would have sleeves, although the frock probably would not. The slip of the costume may be hung up or folded and laid under the frock. Pure, good quality silk will scarcely show any creases through folding.

Frock With Lace Sleeves

A dress of whatever kind that has lace sleeves, should not be hung over a garment hanger. It may be suspended from it by loops sewed under the arms on the more substantial seams, or the loops may be sewed to the waistline seam if the frock has such a seam. In both instances the sleeves have no weight put on them.

When the lace frock is long, or possibly with a few inches that lie on the floor like a wee train, the wearer will be miserable when she wears it unless she knows first how to guard against its catching and getting torn, or being stepped on. She should practice gathering it up gracefully without appearing to be noticing what she does.

Women who wear trains have to learn to manage them. It can be done without the woman seeming to be giving the actions any thought at all. Let the train sweep when space permits and floors are smooth or carpeted. If you value the costume give it the unnoticeable attention it deserves.

Literally Raised From the Dead

A six-pound baby is alive and kicking in New York after having been literally raised from the dead by a policeman, Officer Caesar Cozzati, and Dr. Bernard Zaglin. The baby was born to Mrs. Mary Pupples, whose first four babies are said to have been born dead. "This one seems dead, too," muttered Doctor Zaglin. "but we'll see what we can do." Spanking, drugs, and blowing into the face of the baby seemed futile, and Officer Cozzati arrived and helped the doctor blow into the child's face, and half an hour after, when both doctor and policeman were winded, two other officers arrived with an inhalator and with that the spark of life that had been started by Doctor Zaglin and the officer was fanned to flame. Three hours later Doctor Zaglin pronounced the infant "the finest baby I've ever seen."

Winter Slumber Time for Trees and Plants

The trees go to sleep for the winter. All the perennial plants take their long rest. Almost the only thing that continues to grow is the winter wheat. Give that a day or two of sunshine and it sends forth new sprouts. And the dandelion, even in the midst of winter, needs but a bit of encouragement to open its buds.

Not until late February does the sap begin to flow and the trees awake from their slumber. It is marvelous how they accommodate themselves to the vicissitudes of our climate. But more marvelous is how the birds who do not go south for the winter manage to live. All of them find shelters where, in the extremity of weather, they seek refuge and with inexhaustible vitality wear out the storm.

In heavy snow the quail will huddle together under a pile of brush and be warm and comfortable. The cardinals love thick shrubbery or matted vines. The squirrels find safe homes in the hollows of the trees, which they often share with the little hoot owls. The rabbits go abroad at all seasons. The summer traveler in the far north can tell the depth of the snow the previous winter by observing the height at which the rabbits have nibbled off the tops of the young trees. The tiny field mice in their burrows manage nicely, but they have taken kindly to the ways of civilization, and when the first frosts come they swarm into the farmers' barns and stables. All of them, without exception, birds and beasts, put on a heavier coating for the winter.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A CHILD'S LAXATIVE SHOULD BE LIQUID

(Ask any doctor)

For your own comfort, and for your children's safety and future welfare, you should read this:

The bowels cannot be helped to regularity by any laxative that can't be regulated as to dose. That is why doctors use liquid laxatives.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

The right liquid laxative dose gives the right amount of help. When repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will clear up a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. Every druggist has it.

"Tessie, where are you going?" Mrs. Delaney peremptorily asked her daughter from the pantry doorway.

The girl clutched the door-knob to steady her trembling fingers. "Oh—just out."

"Where?" Mrs. Delaney's voice was just a trifle shrill.

"Oh, ma, I'm over twelve," replied her daughter.

"Yes," rejoined her mother, "you're twenty-one. That's why you ought to show some sense. And let me tell you once and for all, young lady, you've got to stop meeting this sneaky fellow."

"Well, I won't," burst out the girl, passionately. "I'm old enough to take care of myself. And . . ."

"The hospitals and morgues are full of girls who thought the same thing," interrupted her mother.

"And Fremont Sawyer is a gentleman," continued the girl.

"Then preserve me from a gentleman who won't come to a girl's house and let her out of an automobile on the corner."

Teresa flushed a shamed red. The shaft had struck.

"What of it?" She braved the issue. "I suppose if his name was Sullivan or O'Toole or McCarthy he'd be wonderful."

Previous experience should have taught Teresa that she could not outscore her mother in crushing rejoinders.

"My best friends are Mrs. McGregor and Mrs. Uditsky next door," said the mother, heavily; "and two finer women don't live. But, I tell you this, Tessie, oil and water don't scratch, but they don't mix, either. And when it comes to marriage—"

"Who said anything about marriage?" queried Teresa with forced jauntness.

"Well then, what's he about?" thundered Mrs. Delaney. And then the pent-up anxiety of the past months burst forth in a tempestuous torrent of scathing, bitter words.

"All right," cried Teresa, angrily. "I can look out for myself. I work . . ."

"Yes, you'll go far," sniffed Mrs. Delaney.

Every bit of Teresa's fair office salary went for clothes and gewgaws to adorn her pretty self.

"Now, see here, Tessie—"

"Tessie! Can't you call me Teresa?"

"Very well, Teresa. But you don't stir out of this house to meet that road snake. There are plenty of amusements right here in town without needing to cross over to reach God-forsaken places—and I mean it. I'm going to settle this affair, once and for all."

"I don't wonder that girls leave home!" raged Teresa.

"Aw, say, Tess, cut the rough stuff," interjected a husky, boyish voice.

A copper-haired lad of fifteen sauntered into the room.

Passing his mother, he put a grimy hand on her shoulder and said, "Want to go see Wallace Beery, ma? You know he always hands you a laugh."

His boyish subterfuge was so transparent that Mrs. Delaney suddenly bowed her head. Strangled sobs escaped her.

Teresa and Charlie stood aghast. Mrs. Delaney was not a person given to surface emotions.

Teresa's heart pounded painfully. She wanted to fling her young arms around her mother and say, "Ma, don't cry like that. Honestly, I love you."

Unfortunately, members of families are shy at expressing affection for one another.

Yet the tense situation might have cleared somehow had not Charlie dispelled that golden chance by his ensuing indignant words:

"You certainly are a flat tire—and so's that ham-and-egger you travel with."

Teresa wrenched the door open.

"Maybe you'll be glad if I travel so far that I'll never come back," Mrs. Delaney rose, her usual poise fully restored.

"Go, Teresa," she directed, gravely; "and may the grace of God be with you."

Teresa, awe-stricken and shivering, ran down the gloomy stairway.

Once on the sidewalk, in the golden sunshine, her rankling thoughts cleared magically.

She looked at her enameled wrist-watch—her mother's gift to her on her twenty-first birthday. Mrs. Delaney wore Teresa's discarded one.

Teresa hesitated. . . . But a vision of a tall young man floated before her.

A young man of mysterious eyes, mysterious charms, mysterious enterprises, who, by his own account, could have any girl in town.

Teresa moved forward briskly.

She had intended walking to the ferry-landing this gorgeous day. But the wordy encounter with her mother having delayed her, she was obliged to board a trolley and transfer to a ferry tram. She reached the slip just as the ferry boat was edging away.

She saw the widening expanse of bottle-green water churning soapsily in the wake of the heavily-laden ferry boat. "Kismet."

Her eyes, smarting with scalding tears, she retraced her steps, her heart heavy.

She knew Fremy well enough to realize that he would not wait for the next boat—an hour hence.

She remembered his oft-quoted de-

Why Many Middle Aged Need Psychologic Aid

"Preventive medicine has succeeded in controlling or eliminating such pests as smallpox, tuberculosis, malaria, yellow fever and typhoid and has so prolonged life that more and more persons are living through the middle age and beyond. This has been a great achievement, but it is now the problem of psychologic medicine to make the lives of these persons successful, to help them to achieve a contented spirit and to give them a flexibility of mind which will enable them to meet the new changes while retaining that which is worthy and of good repute in the old ways," Dr. Smiley Blanton says in an article on "Psychology of the Middle Years" in Hygeia Magazine.

"The most important thing in achieving this result is to train the child in infancy and adolescence to see life as it really is and not so to coddle him with affection that he can never face harsh reality. When the training in childhood has not been adequate, when the middle-aged person suffers from fears, depressions,

PERIOD OF PLAY SHOULD BE HELD AS CHILD'S RIGHT

By MARY G. McCORMICK
Supervisor of Health Teaching, New York State Department of Education.

A frequent mistake on the part of parents is to be too ambitious for the child. After a youngster has attended school for five or six hours he has a right to an hour or two of uninterrupted play. The period from the time he arrives home from school until his supper is served should be his own.

Unfortunately, many parents seize upon this pitifully small playtime to load the child with music lessons, dramatic lessons, dancing lessons and other kinds of lessons which, added to the time already spent in school, means that he works a longer day than most adults.

The result is that a child tends to become nervous and fretful. He gets insufficient physical exercise. He is deprived of sunshine and fresh air and his health suffers.

Do not load your child down with outside duties. His school work is enough. If you are ambitious for his future wait until he old enough to take a personal interest in his career before you begin to force one upon him. His childhood will be gone soon enough. He should not be robbed of it.

For their health's sake, let your children do the things they want to do, providing their activities do not encroach on the rights of others. There are more educational opportunities concealed in commonplace games than parents realize.

Nature's Wisdom

Sentimental poets have sympathized with the trees exposed to the fury of the winter blasts. But the long rest they have from October to March is part of their lives. Botanists have taken our oaks and maples to the far south where winter is unknown. Yet trees adapted to this latitude do not thrive there any more than the olive and the palm thrive here. To sorrow for the trees because of winter is like sorrowing for the polar bear because he lives amid snow and ice. The polar bear enjoys it. That is his natural habitat, for which he is suited.

Nature knows best, and all that she does is part of the wisdom of the ages.—Cincinnati Inquirer.

Mormon Cricket Promises Another Bothersome Year

One of the pests of the early settlers, particularly the settlers of the northern Rocky mountain region, has come back once more to add to the many trials of the wheat and other cereal growers, says the Washington Star. This particular pest, the Mormon cricket, was so named because of the fact that the Mormon settlers were the first to really suffer from their voracious appetites for grain.

Singularly, the crickets originate in the mountain areas, particularly on uncultivated land where the eggs are laid and the young hatch by the myriad.

The campaign of eradication begun recently is based largely on a drive to kill the young when they first hatch and before they have an opportunity to migrate to the wheat fields.

The most effective way to prevent damage by the Mormon cricket, Dr. P. N. Annand of the bureau of ethnology explains, is to kill the bands of young crickets in the wild lands where they hatch out by dusting them with a mixture of powdered calcium arsenite and hydrated lime. If their migration is not stopped in time, he continues, the only way to save cultivated crops in their path will be to erect barriers of corrugated tin roofing or galvanized sheet iron. These barriers, although effective in halting the advance and in killing individual insects, are expensive and difficult to handle.

Degree of Murder

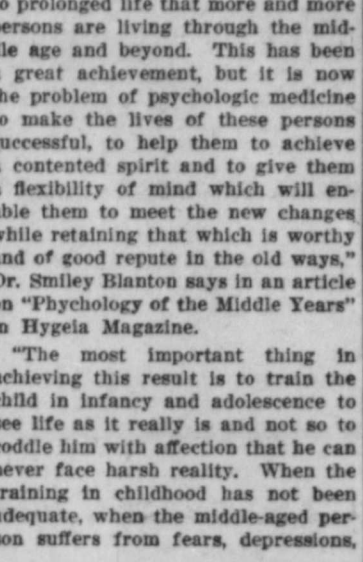

In Pennsylvania and in New Jersey there are two degrees of murder. Both degrees are distinguished from manslaughter by reason of the presence of a mental state called malice. In first degree murder this malice is relatively more serious than in second degree in that there is a specific intent to kill or the death is caused while some heinous offense like robbery, rape, arson, kidnapping, or burglary is being committed. In both states, first degree murder is punishable by death or life imprisonment, in the discretion of the jury. For second degree murder the maximum sentence in Pennsylvania is 20 years; in New Jersey, 30 years.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

KERBOW-VAUGHN

K. W. Kerbow of Clarendon and Miss Mary Vaughn of this city were united in marriage at Childress, Sunday, Feb. 17. Rev. Heath, Baptist pastor there, read the ceremony.

The groom is the popular son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kerbow, long time residents of Clarendon, where he is engaged in business. He graduated from Clarendon High School and Junior College, and attended Texas A. & M. College at College Station.

The bride is the charming granddaughter of Mrs. Nellie Kutevan of Hedley. She was for a time a student in the Hedley schools, later attending Kidd-Key at Sherman. She was a graduate in 1932 of the Hookaday school in Dallas. She has for some time lived with her grandmother at their home south of Hedley.

Both bride and groom have many friends in Hedley and Clarendon who extend congratulations and best wishes for a happy future.

Why make your childrens dresses? You can get them at the B. & B. Variety
