Annie Marie Stallings

Annie Marie Stallings of Amarillo, a niece of Jeharie Long of this city, passed away in an Amarillo hospital Friday, May 15, from injuries received in an auto accident. Funeral services were held Monday.

A suitable obituary will appear in the Informer next week.

Hawkins Infant

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the cemetery here for Eula Carleen infant daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Alton Hawkins of Canadian. The services were conducted by Rev. Hendricks and Rev. McClain of Hedley and Rev. Crawford of Higgins.

NOTICE

The Informer is asked to announce that there will be a candidate speaking and pie supper at the Bray school house Friday night, May 22. The proceeds will go to the Bray P. T. A.

Commencement Programs For Senior Class of 1936

Commencement Sermon:

May 24, at 8:00 p. m. at the high school auditorium. The sermon will be preached by Rev. R. S. McKee, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Clarendon. Special music will be furnished by the Junior class.

Senior Class Night:

May 27, at 8:00 p. m. at the high school auditorium. The class will present a Mobley production "The Rosy Pathway." This playlet has an interesting and appealing plot, and contains a bit of romance. The leading roles are played by A. V. Hendricks, valedictorian, and Imogene Bell, salutarian, assisted by Grancy Lillian Sharp, and the other class members. "Lights in Life's Rainbow" will be given by high school girls in costumes; they will also give a chorus. Mrs. Watkins and Miss Hixson will assist with piano and violin accompaniments.

There will need to be a small door fee to pay the royalty on this production.

Commencement Exercises:

May 29, 8:00 p. m. high school auditorium. The address will be given by W. H. Patrick, Clarendon. Mr. Patrick is the new president of the Panhandle Historical Society. A chorus of high school girls will sing two numbers.

Every one is cordially invited to attend these programs.

7th Grade Graduation

The Seventh grade graduation exercises will be held Thursday, May 28, at 8:00 p. m. Doris Merle Everett is valedictorian of the class, and Eutha Davis is salutarian. A suitable program will be given. The public is invited to attend.

Holland-Spear

Miss Margaret Spear of Quanah and S. M. Holland of Fargo were united in marriage Saturday, May 16, at Frederick, Okla., with Rev. Mosier, pastor of the Church of Christ there, reading the ring ceremony. They were accompanied by Lena Haines, Doris Armstrong and Richard Thomas, all of Vernon.

The bride is the attractive daughter of L. H. Spear of Quanah, and has made a number of friends in Hedley, having visited her sister, Mrs. George Thompson, a number of times.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Holland, pioneer residents of Fargo, and is a prominent young farmer of that community.

The couple will make their home at Fargo.

The Informer joins their many friends in wishing them a happy and successful wedded life.

Revival at Church of Christ

A revival meeting will begin at the Church of Christ Sunday, July 19. Rev. Jas. L. Standridge of Plainview will be the presiding.

For Sale—tomato plants and pepper plants. Eula Card

P. T. A. Entertains Senior Class

Last Thursday evening, May 14, the Seniors and faculty were guests of the P. T. A. at a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bridges.

After being informed that the dinner was an informal one, and that we should feel as if we were at home, the guests began to enjoy the delightful dinner.

The tables were decorated with Maypoles and green and white streamers. Green and white was carried out in the menu. The menu was: chicken, dressing, gravy, new potatoes, green beans, stuffed celery, salad, ice cream, cake and tea.

After dinner the maids removed the covers and the guests spent the remainder of the evening playing dominoes.

All those present spent an enjoyable evening and wish to express their appreciation to the P. T. A.

Those who enjoyed the occasion were: Verlin McPherson, Imogene Bell, Eula Duckworth, Floretta Christi, Homer Richerson, Marvin Hickey, Frank Spalding, Clyde Laurance, Omer Weed, A. V. Hendricks, Otton Plunk and Ivan Jones, Seniors. Also present were Messrs. and Mesdames Payne, Lovell, Trostle, Thomas, Miss Hixson, Mrs. Owen, Mrs. Watkins and the host and hostess.

Hedley Golf Course Being Put In Shape for City Tournament

Hedley golfers are getting the course in shape for a city tournament which will be played just as soon as the work is completed. Those wishing to work out dues are to see George Thompson who is in charge of the work immediately. The present dues are $4.00 which are the cheapest of any club in the Panhandle. All who wish to join are urged to get dues paid or work done immediately as no one will be allowed to play after Sunday May 24, without presenting membership card.

The tournament will be in two flights, one for the par shooters and one for the beginners. A qualifying eighteen holes will be played to determine the flight. It will be matched play and the winner of each flight will be presented with a cup. The cups are now on display at Hedley Drug Co. The winner will be allowed to keep the cup until the next tournament. Winning the cup three times allows him to keep it permanently.

Ladies will be allowed to play without green fees, also pastors of the local churches. Out of town visitors are allowed to play when accompanied by a member.

Rev. J. N. Kendall

Frank Kendall received a message this week stating that his father, Rev. J. N. Kendall passed away Monday at the home of a son in Boise, Idaho. Rev. Kendall was 90 years of age, and had many friends in the Panhandle, having lived at Clarendon from 1890 to 1911. He was pastor of the M. E. Church there in 1890.

A more extended article will appear next week.

There was a dense summer fog and the officer on the bridge was becoming more and more exasperated. As he leaned over the side of the bridge trying to pierce the gloom he saw a hazy figure leaning on a rail a few yards from his ship. He almost choked. "What do you think you're doing with your blinking ship?" he roared. "Don't you know the rules of the sea?" "This ain't no blinking ship, guv'nor," said a quiet voice; "this 'ere's a lighthouse."—Answers.

Gets Most Blame
Little Sarah and her little brother quarreled one day. An older sister trying to find which child was at fault finally said: "Oh, I think it was just six of one and half-dozen of the other." Little Sarah began to cry. "I know you mean I'm the half-dozen," she sobbed. "I always get the most blame."—Indianapolis News.

Two Lives

GRIEF is a delicate and fragile flower, fading even more easily than joy, but never wholly dead. Though seemingly dried and withered past recognition, yet, if but one warm breath pass over it for a moment, it will bloom again with renewed freshness. Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful, and those who seem to forget have often the saddest hearts. Two beings dwell within us; one active, busy, absorbed in the duties and pleasures of this world; while the other is sadly and dreamily living in the past, treading with tears the former paths, stopping to remember a look, to pursue a shadow.

Twins, 91, Claim Age Title; Brother, 97, Backs 'Em Up

Mrs. Jane Giles and Miss Rachel Rader of Pulaski, Iowa, challenged all claimants to the "nation's oldest living twins" title, and particularly Joe and Dave Maddux of Philo, Ill. "We celebrated our ninety-first birthdays January 15," Mrs. Giles and Miss Rader declared. "That makes up 19 days older than the Maddux boys, who said they were ninety-one February 3. We have a big brother to prove it." The big brother is ninety-seven-year-old Anthony Rader still quite alert mentally.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts. Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 29c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them. Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today.

Space Dimes and Nickels GIVE YOU THE NEW KELVINATOR

with Visible COLD, Visible ECONOMY and Visible PROTECTION

Today we recommend that every owner of an automatic refrigerator learn about the new 1936 Kelvinator.
It has three outstanding, fundamental values that buyers want.

Visible Cold: Safe temperatures in the food compartment, proved by a Built-In Thermometer so there can be no doubt about how cold it is.

Visible Economy: It uses from one-third to one-half as much current, as shown in advance by a Certificate of Low Cost of Operation.

Visible Protection: A 5-year Protection Plan, signed by the oldest company in the industry.

The new Kelvinator gives you flexible rubber grids in all ice trays, and such conveniences as automatic defrosting switch, interior electric light and many others.

See the 1936 Kelvinator whether you now have an electric refrigerator or not, and let us tell you how you can have one for as little as 15c a day. Come in tomorrow.

College Students Conduct Demonstrations; Nye Report Raps Munitions Firms; Peace Plans Advocated

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

THE Gods of war, though they play with the fates of Europe, Africa and the Orient, are feeling their bloody thrones shake a little on the American side these days.

Still rumbling through the land are the thundering accusations of the report of the Nye munitions committee to the United States senate—charges that war scares are planned, started and accelerated by concerns in the international munitions trade, concerns whose representatives have been known to foment wholesale slaughter on the battlefronts, that their profits might be greater.

And now in its closing days is the month-long drive of the Emergency Peace campaign. Speakers and organizations have brought home to millions of Americans the folly of war as a result of this campaign, which was started April 22.

The new "war on war" got under way in a manner fully as spectacular as an old-fashioned recruiting campaign. Leaders in the movement were the young men and women in colleges and universities, with 500,000 of them striking from classes at one time to attend anti-war mass meetings. Several thousand homing pigeons were released from the grounds of the Washington monument, heralding the event and bearing peace messages from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to 300 different cities. Plans were laid for mass meetings to follow in other cities. In Philadelphia the Liberty bell was rung and its sounds broadcast over the radio.

Sounds Campaign Keynote.

From England came an old peace campaigner to sound the opening keynote of the present campaign and to begin a tour of speaking appearances throughout the country on behalf of peace. He was George Lansbury, M. P., former titular leader of the British Labor party in the house of commons. "Uncle George," as he is affectionately known on the other side of the Atlantic, pitched right in with all the fervid enthusiasm for which his speeches are famed.

Referring, apparently, to the war clouds brooding over his own hemisphere, he declared that "civilization is at the crisis of its fight." He said that to realize that there was no such thing as "civilized" warfare one need only read the accounts of the war now going on in Africa. He advised that nations co-operate and share the resources of the world, so that conquest would not be necessary for a nation to obtain raw materials for its industries.

"The best case against war is based on the teachings of our Lord and his own sayings," Lansbury said, "and not on what the theologians have put into his mouth. The law of life is not domination, not selfishness, but in people sinking their own selfish lives and finding them in the community."

In the climax of his speech, the white-whiskered Englishman said: "We should call an entirely new world conference, including not only the great powers but India, Egypt, Ceylon and the African peoples, and carry on the work started at the economic conferences of 1927 and 1932."

Asks U. S. Aid Britain.

This was in line with the proposals oked by the council of the League of Nations after the recent remilitarization of the Rhineland by Nazi Dictator Hitler.

"I want the United States to join my government in Great Britain, and any others, to say to the world: 'Let us give up this nonsensical will-o'-the-wisp of armaments, and say we want to make a new start in dealing with world problems'..."

"Have we learned enough to give what we have to destroy justice? Have we learned the futility of national wealth? Can we be partners in building a real Christian civilization?"

Various student organizations were quick to take up the challenge. One of them, the "Veterans of Future Wars," chiefly through the appeal admittedly lying in its masterfully-chosen name, already had converted thousands of students to the cause of peace.

Advocates of the isolation theory seek temporary neutrality legislation and go no farther than embargoes on the export of arms and munitions, while the internationalists would extend these embargoes to all materials used in warfare, including loans and credits to nations engaged in fighting. Internationalists further advocate the delegation to the President of the power of lifting any and all embargoes against a country which has been attacked in violation of the Pact of Paris.

Permanent neutrality legislation is the aim of the "keep-out-of-war" crowd. Its platform contains the following:

"Mandatory embargo on arms and ammunition and other war materials to all belligerents in time of war; the prohibition of loans and credits to warring nations, and strict regulation to forbid American vessels and American citizens from traveling in war zones.

"All trade with belligerents shall be at the risk of the shippers."

These people are willing to give up American freedom of the seas, declaring that the United States has nothing to gain and everything to lose in fighting war in Europe or Asia. The Foreign Policy association says the price of this neutrality will be high, but evidently it thinks not too high.

Total Cost of War.

"Our exports to Europe in the prosperous years from 1926 to 1930 amounted to more than $2,000,000,000. Our exports to Asia came to nearly $500,000,000. Loss of this trade would result in unemployment at home, but the cost of war would be far greater. The World War has cost us $55,000,000,000."

The internationalists, likewise, are willing to forego the traditional freedom of the seas, but they also propose consultation by the United States with other signatories of the Pact of Paris in case of violation of the pact; support of the League resolution, providing for United States membership in the League of Nations with the guaranty that this country shall not be required to become party to any action which involves armed force, and American adherence to the World Court. The isolationists oppose these alliances with the League and the Court.

Another argument for peace is the 150,000-word report of the Nye committee, which reveals the bribery and corruption which exists in the international munitions commerce, the resistance to peace efforts and the instigation of war scares by the munitions firms. It even found that it was customary to sell American war patents abroad, where they might be used against American lives and ships in the World War.

The charges were by no means confined to the United States, but also concerned the British arms inquiry now going on. It was charged that both American and British arms firms knew about the first German violations of the arms ban of 1924.

How Arms Salesmen Work.

The committee told how boat manufacturers sold a "considerable battle fleet" to the Chilean government after the World War, stimulating the building of war machines in other countries of South America and causing general unrest on that continent.

One of the most flagrant examples of this was in Colombia and Peru at the time of the Leticia incident, when the munitions firms kept the two countries well informed about each other's operations. One salesman, after selling a big order to Peru, boasted that he would sell "double the amount, and more modern, to the Colombian government."

One piece of evidence quoted a munitions manufacturer as spurring the activities of representatives with the order to get busy because "these opera bouffe revolutions are usually short-lived, and we must make the most of the opportunity." It mattered little that the airplanes, bombs and guns would be used to kill off a few back country Indians in South America.

Here's what the Nye committee has to say about that incident:

"All this may be little more to the munitions people than a highly profitable game of bridge with special attention on all sides to the technique of

City on Stilts

When Holland's most famous scholar, Erasmus, visited Amsterdam, he poked fun at its citizens by saying that they lived in the tree tops like birds. Who Are You?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Bayne?

THE Baynes are of English descent, and the old family seat in America was Westmoreland county, Virginia.

In 1789 Richard Bayne was born, who later married Susan, the daughter of Lawrence Pope. This alliance linked the Baynes with the Humphrey Pope family, which was established in Westmoreland county, Virginia, as early as 1650, and whose descendants have taken such prominent parts in the early political affairs of Kentucky, Illinois and Arkansas.

Descendants of the family have intermarried with the Kerfoots, Rusts, Ashbys, Cranes (of Baltimore) and other leading families.

The connection with the Papes and the fact that the Baynes were all members of the Church of England supports the theory that they were all worshippers of old Pope's Creek church, one of the two original churches of Washington parish, Westmoreland county, Virginia.

Bayne

Baynes, of Maryland, are connected by marriage with the Fowke family. The coat of arms shown here is accredited to Matthew Bayne, of Westmoreland county, Virginia, 1760.

A Clark?

LIKE so many of the early Anglo-Saxon names, the name of Clark or Clarke, originated from an occupation and in this instance the occupation was undoubtedly the office of a clerk. This office was considered a very superior one, as such a position required the services of one possessing great ability in reading and writing ancient medieval lore. Consequently, the Clarks were people of high intelligence and were looked upon with great admiration.

The Clarks in England, East Anglia particularly, were dwellers there before the Norman conquest. They were very religious and devout and were active in building priories and abbeys in that part of the country. An interesting tradition of the family connects them by marriage with the descendants of Joseph of Arimathea.

Print or Plain, Just So It's Linen

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WEAR linen in the morning, at noonday, during the afternoon hours, and when "the shades of night are falling fast," then wear linen formally. This spring and summer is destined to go down in history as a banner linen season.

The beauty about modern linens is that through ingenious processing they are being made practically crush resistant.

The glory of this season's monotone linens is their remarkably handsome colorings. For the tailored jacket suit and sports and travel costumes, emphasis is on plain, firm, medium weight linens in such deep rich tones as Dubonnet and oxblood reds, dark blue, navy, also skipper blue, Biarritz green, the voguish spice brown, popular violet shades and other equally as attractive colors. Shrimp pink and coral hues are especially noted. As to white and natural tones they will lead in the summer parade.

Prints, perhaps, provide even more exciting news. Printed linens are making a bid for the formal as well as the daytime hours. Imagine an exquisitely sheer handkerchief linen (sheers in linen are latest word) in rust, brown and white done in an authentic paisley patterning. It is linens like this that are providing new thrills in the way of media for smart evening gowns.

If your fancy happens to run to modernistic florals in vivid colorings, we suggest that you select for your next party dress one of the very new gorgeous printed linens carried out in daring orange red and green on a navy background. Speaking generally in regard to printed linens, whether for day or evening wear, a liking is expressed for widely spaced bouquet arrangements, for bizarre peasant patterns, also motifs of Chinese character as well as mystic far-east figures and hieroglyphics. Scroll designs that meander in linework all over the background are particularly good style.

The illustration demonstrates how smartly and effectively monotone linens combine with linen prints. To the left you see the suit, a new Creel model, as it looks with the jacket worn. This stunning ensemble is made of a dark green canvas type of linen for the classically tailored jacket and skirt, using crisp white linen for the bougie patterned in a green and tangerine linework crossbar print design. The linen is the finest possible quality, coming as it does from Moyzashel, Ireland, noted for its beautiful high grade linens. Observe the slight fullness at top of jacket sleeve, giving the new broadened shoulder line. The skirt has a single knife pleat at its left front to give necessary fullness.

Removing the jacket of the suit, there comes to view, as pictured in the foreground, the smart chanel print Moyzashel linen blouse. Its tangerine and green tones complement the monotone of the linen suit most pleasingly. The waistline of the blouse is slightly fitted. Two outstanding style details are the short puffed sleeves and the fact that instead of buttoning it is laced up the front, tiny cord lacing in and out through hand-embroidered eyelets.

Whims of Fashion

Necklaces of flowers are worn like leis.

Belts these days show striking designs.

Prints are making a strong bid for a comeback again.

Chinese designs and colors are exceedingly important.

Perky wee bows run down blouse fronts instead of buttons.

Natural colors, coarse fabrics, rough weaves—these are the choice of the smartly-gowned woman.

Check patterns in silks or sheer crepes are a fashion favorite for juniors and misses' new season frocks.

By wrapping yards of tulle around a head the French designer, Agnes, has launched a new mode in evening millinery.

New Gloves

Don't put on the gloves for the first time when in a hurry. Even if you do get them on without splitting they will never fit so well as when they are carefully put on, stretching the kid gently to conform with the lines of the hands. If this is done the first time, all other times will be easy.

DAISY FLY KILLER

ABOUT OWLS

Waiting for Nightfall and a Meal of Mice.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.
THE evening air of early spring in the Everglades of southern Florida is soft and mild. Delicate scents from blossoms come with the breeze, together with the voices of myriad frogs in incessant but attractive chorus from the marshes. Suddenly, from the moss-festooned live oaks in this peaceful background, comes an outburst of ferocious laughter, guttural in sound and startling in its abruptness.

Playing the beam of light from an electric torch through the branches, you discover presently two glowing spots of ruby red, reflections from a pair of eyes. As your own eyes adjust themselves to the feeble illumination, you can distinguish dimly the shadowy form of a great barred owl. The hubbub stops immediately, for the bird is puzzled by the spot of light; but as you continue along the trail the owl, now behind you, utters a loud, prolonged whoo-oo-oo-aw that resounds eerily among the trees. Until day-break you hear at intervals the wild undulation of its calls filling the darkened woodland.

The voices of owls are more familiar than their persons, as most of them are active principally at night, and without special search the birds themselves are difficult to see. Their presence, unseen but constantly evident, has caused imagination to play about them until in practically every country in the world there have grown up fables and superstitions regarding owls.

The little owl of Europe, about as large as the American screech owl without the ear tufts of that species, has long been an emblem of wisdom, and in early years was accepted as a special ward of Pallas Athene of the Greeks.

He Only Looks Wise.

The vogue of the owl as an emblem of wisdom is not due to any special intelligence of the bird, but to the conformation of the head, with the two eyes so placed that they look directly ahead like those of a man.

As the companion of night-flying witches, or as one of the ingredients in the brews concocted by these trouble-makers, the owl developed a black and unsavory reputation, attested by many references to its evil omen in Shakespeare and other writers.

Among American Indians, owls, though feared at times, were in better repute and were the basis of various lively legends. Zuni tales include stories of one called "gray owl" that lived in a house as a man does. The Pima Indians held that at death the human spirit passed into the body of an owl and, to assist in this transmigration, they gave owl feathers, kept for the purpose in a special box, to a dying person.

Among the Plains Indians, the Arizara included an owl group as one of their eight mystic societies, and in the sacred rites of this body they used the stuffed skin of an owl with disks of cunningly fitted buffalo horn for eyes.

Owls are found throughout the world from the Arctic regions through the continents and to remote islands in the sea. More than 300 kinds are known, ranging in size from the tiny elf owl, no larger than sparrows, to the powerful horned owl and eagle owl, which are two feet or more in length.

Scientifically, all owls are included in one order, the Strigiformes, in which two families are recognized, one for the barn owls (Tytonidae) and the other (Strigidae) for all other species.

Regardless of their size, owls are instantly identified by their broad faces with prominent disks of feathers about the eyes, coupled with sharp, curved beaks and claws, and long, fluffy feathers. Their nearest relatives are the whippoorwills, night-hawks, and goatsuckers.

Formerly it was thought that owls were allied to hawks and falcons, but on careful study it was found that these two groups differ radically in structure. The resemblances are superficial and are due to the form of the beak and claws, which have undergone similar development from seeking the same kinds of foods.

Romantic Things Connected With the Prosaic Sausage

There are a lot of romantic things about dry sausage. A piece of Genoa sausage, for example, with the twine running in nautical loops and hitches, reminds one that Genoa was famous for its sausage, sailors and ships back in the Middle Ages.

Evidently the people of Milan, too, just couldn't forget the tall, straight lines of their cathedral. For milano sausage is corded with the twine running in lengthwise strands and always reminds one of tall church spires. One can get a European tour by reading dry sausage names. For example, the spicy Italian sausages—milano, cappelletti, D'Arles, frizzes, pepperoni and alexandria—make one think of gondollers, of olive groves, of castles clinging to the cliffs, or of bays of dark blue water; and in the names of the lightly spiced sausages—mettwurst, farmer and holsteiner—a sturdy procession of staid old German burgo-masters goes by.

The homes of owls are located in hollows of trees, caverns in rocks, or in stick nests built by hawks, crows, or other birds. Often no nesting material of any kind is used. The eggs are white, occasionally tinted with buff or pale blue, but without markings, and are peculiar in being usually elliptical or nearly round. The young are covered with white down and remain in the nest under care of the parents for a considerable time.

In defense of their young, owls are often aggressive and swoop at any and all who chance to pass, sometimes with startling effect when the attack is delivered without warning.

Their Plumage is Soft.

All owls have soft plumage composed of long, fluffy feathers. The wings have softened margins, so that in flight the birds move without sound, as if they were shadows. In owls, the lower leg, or tarsus, and upper surfaces of the toes, bare in most birds, are covered with feathers, these being reduced or absent only in a few species that inhabit warm countries. The plumage colors run usually to gray, brown, and buff, with lighter markings of buff and gray. White and black are extensive in some, but brighter colors are rare or absent.

The eyes of owls are fixed so immovably in the head, where both are directed forward, that the bird must change the position of the head to alter its line of vision.

Though the majority of owls remain hidden in shaded, secluded places by day, there are a few that are abroad by day or by night indifferently. This is true of the snowy owl, which lives in summer through the long Arctic day, and of the borrowing owls of open country in the new world. The latter delights in resting in the sun, and in broad daylight detects and watches hawks and other birds flying at such great heights that one can barely see them.

What They Eat.

Owls live mostly on animal food which is captured alive, except that occasionally they feed upon rabbits freshly killed by automobiles along our highways, or upon other carcasses. Mice, rats, and other small mammals are regular prey, as are birds of various species.

The barred owl eats many crayfish and fish, while crabs and fish are staple foods of the fish owls of Africa and India, which have featherless legs and rough, horn-surfaced toes to assist in capturing such slippery prey. Horned owls have been known to capture goldfish in ornamental pools, but this is unusual.

Owls, like hawks, tear their prey apart and swallow the pieces entire. During digestion the flesh is assimilated, while bones, fur, feathers, and other indigestible portions are formed into compact pellets, which are regurgitated to leave the stomach empty for another meal. Such pellets accumulate about roosts and, through identification of the bones contained, give a valuable index to the food of the bird concerned.

The great horned owls and snowy owls are ferociously predatory, killing rabbits, squirrels, and other creatures of good size. The former has been known to capture and eat small owls. In the Dominican Republic was seen a burrowing owl tearing at the body of a young bird of its own kind which had been killed and thrown aside by some native.

Occasionally wild mice increase for various reasons until they form a veritable plague. Under such circumstances short-eared owls gather in abundance and aid in reducing the numbers of the pests. Burrowing owls feed extensively on beetles and other large insects.

Noble Thoughts

THE note of the day in all its higher and nobler trend of thought is to include, to share, to communicate. Emerson has remarked that "exclusiveness excludes itself." All that we keep out we go without. If we admit no one we deprive ourselves of every one, and if we admit a few in order to lay to our souls the flatteringunction of exclusiveness, we exclude the many. If you have greater knowledge, finer culture, do not exclude but share, and find in it its divinest sweetness.—Lillian Whiting.

Frigidaire Unharmed After Plunge from Blimp into Bay

Look out there! It's a flying Frigidaire falling from a Goodyear dirigible into salty Biscayne bay at Miami, Fla. Subjected to one of the most severe tests ever given an electric refrigerator, this stock model unit built by Frigidaire Division of General Motors was dropped 100 feet from a blimp into Florida waters. Towed around by a speedboat to guarantee complete submersion, it was hauled out, found sealed as tightly as when it left the factory and was put into immediate operation freezing ice-cubes. Aeronauts who witnessed the spectacular test were amazed that the refrigerator survived the terrific impact of the drop and came out without a single leak in its permanently sealed mechanism or a break in its cabinet, because, after all, they reasoned, household refrigerators are not supposed to be manhandled that way.

A stock model Frigidaire household refrigerator has survived one of the most guelling tests to which a home appliance ever has been subjected. West Texas Utilities Co. dealer here for the products of the Frigidaire Division of General Motors learned today.

Recently, in Miami, Fla., a Frigidaire was placed in a sling attached to the bottom of the Goodyear blimp Puritan and flown over Biscayne Bay between Miami and Miami Beach. Mr. Dudley was informed. The Bulletin telling him of the test follows:

"The new hermetically sealed 'meter miser' with which the 1936 Frigidaires are equipped, and the new doubly sealed steel cabinets have just furnished spectacular evidence of ability to withstand abuse to which no normal refrigerator will ever be subjected.

"Arrangements were made with Capt Jack Boettner, manager of airtide operations for Goodyear, to take aloft and drop the Frigidaire, encased only in canvas lifting straps such as piano movers use. It struck with a terrific impact. Those on shore were certain it had broken open and sunk. But it popped up, floated and seemed to be all right. A speedboat retrieved it and towed it back and forth through the salt water to insure complete submersion of the sealed mechanism and refrigeration unit. Then it was dragged on to shore and opened up in the presence of witnesses having no connection with Frigidaire.

"The inside of the food compartment was found to be absolutely dry. But would it run? A power line had been strung some 1,200 feet to the beach and when the Frigidaire was hooked on to it, there was a slight purr and the unit began operating. Within a few minutes the super freezer plate was cold and when the ice trays were filled right there on the beach, ice soon began to form. "To make certain that there had been no structural damage that would make the refrigerator unfit for use, a man with an oxy acetylene torch was put to work. He cut away the side of the cabinet and found the insulation between the steel exterior shell and the inside food compartment shell dry. The drop, the submersion for hours in salt water and the subsequent tests proved beyond any question, the soundness of the hermetically sealed construction of the mechanical unit and the strength of the wrap around sealed steel cabinet. When it is remembered that it is quite improbable that a refrigerator ever will be put to such severe strain in the uses for which it is designed, the survival of this Frigidaire stands out as proof of its superiority."

Mr Dudley attempted to have the refrigerator used in the test sent here for public display. It has been placed in the Frigidaire patent museum at Dayton, Ohio, however.

ASSURANCE OF SAFE FOOD PRESERVATION

Government Bulletins and health authorities agree that perishable foods must be kept below 50 degrees and above 32 degrees. Meats, milk and other costly foods keep only a short time unless chilled below 50 degrees. Frigidaire is equipped with a remarkable cold making mechanism—the Meter-Miser. Safety Zone temperatures are automatically maintained, even in hot Spring and Summer weather of 110 degrees and over. This is your assurance that Frigidaire will safely protect your food—and the health of your family.

On Guard!

Frigidaire builds this Food-Safety Indicator right into the cabinet—visible proof that foods are kept at Safety-Zone Temperature, below 50 degrees and above 32 degrees.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, Barry Gilbert, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a storm. He makes himself at home. Dying at the fireplace, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; and a chauffeur, Evans. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had persuaded him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he meets Judge Hambridge and his daughter, Patricia. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday. Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambridge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambridge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss. The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambridge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER III—Continued

"Did you ever see Kelly?"
"No."
"The was enormous. Must have been six-foot-two in his stockings. I'm five-foot-five in mine. I'd've had to stand on a chair to hit him on top of the head."
"Unless he was sitting in one."
"The body wasn't anywhere near a chair. It was up against the door to the hall. The paper says the door. The Filipino got in through the dining room. I got out through the hall door. He saw me. How did I do that, if Kelly was lying against it?"
"I don't know."
"Two more things: The lights were burning full tilt when I left. I could see Kelly's shadow on the blinds as I passed the house on my way home. Were they still burning when the butler came in the next morning? And, if not, who turned 'em out?"
"What's the other item?"
"The other item's the crux of the whole business," Jack answered. "Mike rushed me out because the phone rang, and the fellow that rang it was coming over to talk to him. Did he come? If not, why not? And, if that fellow did come, isn't it likely that he's the guy that killed Kelly?"

CHAPTER IV

It was long after one o'clock when they walked out of the Tombs. She was all in now. Barry spurged on a taxi to take her "home" to the dingy boarding house where the disowned Ridders lived, in the upper Forties. In spite of her protests, Barry kept his word as to giving her most of that hundred and fifty. "It isn't mine," he declared.
"We'll eat together Monday, after I've talked to Winslow. I'll be around about six o'clock."
It was two now—a warmish Saturday afternoon. Nearly forty-eight hours before he could hope to find the attorney. Any inexpensive hotel would do. He registered at one of a few blocks from Peggy's. "Barry Gilbert," he wrote.
From his new residence, Barry went to the Astor, and called Mrs. Ridder. The message read:
"Making good stop water-wagon and on track of a job stop friend of mine met in Florida locked up for murder didn't commit stop can you arrange credit here up to two thousand dollars stop won't use unless necessary for friend and will return every penny stop wire Peter Winslow lawyer for confirmation if desired stop this is my big chance to do something worth while stop writing details all's well don't hurry back love, John."
"I'll need that two thousand quick," Barry thought. "Winslow'll want a retainer, and there'll be a lot of other things." Barry wondered what to do with his forty-eight hours. "I'll stroll down to Kelly's place," he decided, "and give it the once-over."
From Sixth avenue, he turned into 10th street, and stopped before what the tabloids were calling "the scene of the murder." It was an old-fashioned red-brick house, with a bay window, and a heavy front door. A policeman stood guard, and a group of the curious loitered as near as they dared.

Remarkable; Barry thought, how people could stand staring at anything connected with a tragedy.
There was another little group at the corner, where workmen were putting in a new traffic light standard. Broken off short, its predecessor lay on the pavement. Having nothing better to do, Barry asked, "What's the excitement?"
"Taxi smash."
"When?"
"Just before two o'clock yesterday morning. Killed a woman. Crushed her right up against that post. Broke it off short. Don't seem possible."
No wonder the Judge was "upset."
Curious, Barry thought, these two violent deaths within a few yards and a few hours of each other. Curious, too, that the Judge's stroll should have brought him so near the house in which Kelly lay murdered, but no more remarkable than the series of events that had involved Barry in the whole affair. "Life's full of coincidences," Barry mused. "It's only in fiction that people pay much attention to 'em. Winslow said the Judge went for a walk, and that's the simplest explanation of the whole matter."
He was at the attorney's office before ten o'clock on Monday morning. He was ushered into the pleasantly furnished corner room that was Peter's. The lawyer rose, as Barry entered, and came forward, one hand outstretched, and the other holding a newspaper. "The early bird, eh?"
"I'm not exactly looking for worms," Barry replied. "I want that position we were talking about, if I can get it, but, just now, I'm a lot more interested in this Kelly murder. You've read about that, I suppose."
Peter nodded.
"I saw the headlines after you left the Hambridges on Friday," he said. "I didn't bother about it much then. But, this morning, I found Saturday's Herald Tribune on my desk. And, of course, I'm always interested in murders."
"I know the boy who's accused of this crime," Barry said.
"You do? That's exciting. Tell me about it."
Barry did, omitting only the detail of Ridder's identity.
"I met them in Florida," he related. "Rogers worked in a hotel there. I liked the girl even then. She'd been putting up such a game fight to make a man of her husband, and was succeeding so wonderfully. I suppose I'm the only friend they've got around here, and that's why she came to me."
Winslow listened sympathetically.
"That sort of thing always gets me," he observed. "A woman tied up to some man who's not worthy of her, and in love with him."
"This boy's not so bad," Barry argued. "And it's a lead-pipe cinch that he didn't kill Kelly."
"Think so."
"Dead sure."
"All right. Make me sure."
Barry tried.
"There was someone else coming when Jack left," he concluded. "If he came, he either found Kelly dead, in which case he'd've given the alarm, or he found Kelly alive, in which case, of course, Jack didn't kill him."
"Very ingenious," Peter remarked. "But what makes you think someone else was coming?"
"That's why Kelly fired Jack out."
"Who says so?"
"Jack—and Peggy."
"Not very conclusive," Peter objected.
"Who do you think did it?"
"I'm not concerned as to who did it," Peter declared. "Only as to who didn't."
"Jack didn't. You'd know that if you looked at him."
"I feel sorry for the girl. I'll go down to see Rogers. Somebody ought to've gone—long ago—to file an appearance. There shouldn't have been any preliminary hearings without proper representation."
"You'll take the case, then?"
"I suppose so. Now, how about that job I thought we might land at my brother's?"
"I certainly need it."
"Let's see if he's in."
"Get Jamison Winslow," he instructed the operator.
In a few minutes the phone rang. "That you, Jimmy?" Peter said into it. "You've heard of John Clarke Ridder, haven't you? Well, his son's in here, and wants work. How about it? Got anything over there?"
The instrument made raucous noises. "All right," Peter continued, at last. "I'll send him around, and you talk to him."
"Chrysler building," he informed Barry, "and he's waiting for you."
"I don't know how to thank you."
"What for?"
"Mainly for helping two people in a lot of trouble."
Peter smiled once more.
"That inside-job theory sticks to my mind," Barry remarked. "Is there a Mrs. Mike Kelly?"
Peter laughed outright.
"You're determined to be Sherlock Holmes, aren't you?" he asked. "All right. There is a Mrs. Mike Kelly. I'd just finished reading about her. She sued for divorce recently and withdrew the case. Do you think that might indicate that she killed her husband?"
"Cherchez la femme, you know."
Peter laughed again.
"Search for the woman," he translated. "But, then, there appear to have been a good many women in Kelly's life. We mustn't jump at conclusions."
"No," Barry admitted. "No, I suppose not."
"All the same," he thought, the other side of the door, "it's pretty evident that a woman who sues for divorce is a little bit anxious to get rid of her husband."

But there was nothing doing at Jamison Winslow's.
"I'm sorry," he said, "but we're laying off men every day now. Why aren't you on your father's newspaper?"
"My father and I haven't been very friendly."
"So I've heard. But I've got an idea. That's what I wanted to talk to you about."
It was quite a simple idea.
"We place thousands of dollars worth of advertising with The Globe. And I know the city editor pretty well. His name's Harwood. If I gave you a letter to Ernie, and he gave you a job, and you made good while the boss is in Europe, wouldn't that square things when he got back?"
Barry grinned.
"It might," he said, "and then again it might not."
"What I heard," Jamison Winslow went on, "was that your father wanted you in his business. If that's true, he'd certainly be pleased at your going in."
"I'd like to succeed on my own."
"Well, why not? We don't have to tell Harwood who you are. Not in the beginning, anyway."
"That is an idea," Barry agreed. "Since the row, I've been calling myself Barry Gilbert."
"Not a bad pen name," Jamison Winslow declared. "All right; we'll stick to it. I've a hunch that you'd make a good newspaper man."
"That's what your brother said."
Ten minutes later, Barry Gilbert—himself again, so to speak—was on his way to The Globe.

The Globe occupied a new and imposing building in Thirty-ninth street. Asking for Mr. Harwood, Barry found himself in the city room. Men in their shirt sleeves sat at desks, smoking and pounding on typewriters, and most of the people who had rushed in and out of the elevators rushed in and out of the door. Harwood's office proved to be a small and comparatively quiet cubby-hole just off the concourse.
He had always been a newspaper man. Square cut, not very tall, but with big hands and broad shoulders, his hair was as red as Barry's. He had been John Clarke Ridder's city editor when John Clarke was a reporter, and he remained John Clarke's friend, too, with more real power, and ability, than any other man on The Globe.

Now he glanced at the Winslow letter, and grinned.
"Think you can write, I suppose?"
"Pretty sure I can't."
"Then what're you gonna do on a newspaper?"
"Get news."
Ernie Harwood looked him over.
"How?"
"Well, just now, it happens that I'm a friend of Jay Rogers."
"The fellow that killed Mike Kelly?"
"The fellow they say killed him."
"Yeah!"
Ernie squinted into the bowl of his pipe.
"How long have you known Jimmy Winslow?" he inquired.
"About half an hour. His brother asked him to get me a job."
"Peter Winslow?"
"Yes."
"Peter Winslow going to defend Rogers?" he snapped.
"Yes."
Ernie reached for a telephone.
"Peter Winslow's defending the Rogers boy," he barked into the instrument. "If it's straight, play it up in the next edition."
To Barry he said, "How did you get Winslow to take the case?"
For the second time, Barry related his story of meeting the Rogers in Florida. From there, he jumped to the visit of Mrs. Rogers, repeating what she had told him, and dilating upon their interview with the boy in the Tombs.
"What did he say?" Harwood asked.
"I don't feel at liberty to repeat that until I've spoken to Peter Winslow," Barry answered, "but it's given me two clues that I'd like to follow up."
"All right," Ernie said. "Follow 'em. Your salary's fifty dollars a week. Report straight to me."
"Yes, sir."
"Wait a minute. I'll put you next to somebody who'll introduce you at police headquarters. We've got that angle covered, of course, but you'd better be in touch there. What I want you to do is to follow your own leads. Bring in something."
"Roth, come here!" he called. "I want you to take Mr. Gilbert down to the homicide bureau."
Nothing seemed entirely impossible that bright mid-May morning, as Barry swung into Broadway.

Up to now, he owed everything to his impudence—that first stake, the clothes he wore, Peter Winslow's favor, and all that had followed. They constituted an amazingly fortuitous chain of circumstances. But the chain had lifted him to solid ground. "It's up to me now," Barry said, feeling square with himself, and the world, and strangely gay and self-confident.
"I'm going to start right," he said, "by paying those bills, and giving Peggy the rest of that two hundred. I'm going to figure up my board and room at Southampton, and give her that, too. A fellow like me can't afford to be crooked."
(TO BE CONTINUED)

Speed of Sound

The speed with which sound travels through various materials varies greatly. In air, sound waves move 1,087 feet per second. They move through water nearly five times as fast as through air, and through hard dense materials such as steel and glass the sound waves travel from 15 to 28 times as fast as through air.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

JAMES MELTON, one of radio's sweetest singers, has finished his latest radio assignment and arrived in Hollywood to work in "Cain and Mabel." Before leaving New York he made inquiries as to his own importance in the picture—wanted to know what sort of breaks he'd get on publicity, etc.

He knew that Marion Davies, being the star, would come first in the hearts of the publicity men for the company. A casual inquiry revealed the fact that he'd come second, which was all right with him. But for the moment neither he nor his informant recalled that Mary Boland was also cast for that picture—and Miss Boland is pretty important, being an excellent actress and a favorite of movie fans as well.

Also—Mr. Melton is, first of all, a singer. The script calls for a prize-fighter as a hero. The question at the moment is—if you take his singing away from Mr. Melton, will you have a prize-fighter?

Now it's Harold Lloyd who wants to make pictures in color. He has been making experiments on his own hook for the last two years, but is not yet quite sure whether or not color would add to the type of comedies that he makes.

Furthermore, he's through with making just one picture a year; from now on he'll make two a year, he thinks, or at least, two every three years. And with his latest one, "The Milky Way," as an example, that comes under the heading of good news.

Those radio programs of Bing Crosby's are rapidly becoming one of the best of the broadcasts; he is getting really big names, (or rather, his sponsor is getting them for him), and he makes a delightful master of ceremonies. Better add this program to the list of those you tune in on Thursday evenings.

When you see "The Great Ziegfeld" (and of course you'll see it!) you'll hear "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" beautifully sung. Allan Jones sang it, while Stanley Morner was photographed as if he were singing it. Jones did not get screen credit, and Morner, who has a good singing voice, got credit but didn't sing.

The youngsters in Hal Roach's "Our Gang" started on a personal appearance tour a while ago, which has proved so successful that they will go on and on right through the summer. Not only children, but grown people as well, arrive for the first show and then right on till closing time.

As if there hadn't been enough trouble over Mae West's latest, "Klondike Annie," the Chinese government is objecting to it now, so Mae won't be a welcome visitor in the Orient.

Another picture that you'll want to see is "I Married a Doctor"—which you'll recognize as Sinclair Lewis' great book, "Main Street."

Josephine Hutchinson and Pat O'Brien have the leads, and do exceedingly well by them. However, here's a word of warning to young, unmarried doctors; don't take the girl you hope to marry to see this one, for it may make them feel that doctors don't make very good husbands.

Staging a come-back in pictures was rather a hard thing for Dolores Costello Barrymore to do; she was a victim of the early days of talkies, when she was given such insane speeches that audiences laughed at her, which cost her an opportunity she really deserved.

But she took voice lessons, and diction lessons, and did so well in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" that Paramount has signed her up. Now it looks as if a real career is opening for her.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . When people in New York asked Bette Davis if she was going to fly back to Hollywood she said, "No; I'm a sissy, I'll take the train."
At Tolson and Ruby Keeler did the same . . . But a few accidents have not frightened the general public; plane reservations still have to be made way ahead . . . Eddie Robinson refused to be frightened; his mother was ill in New York, so he flew to see her, and flew back . . . Anita Louise is the latest star to embark for picture-making in England . . . Eddie Cantor's new radio contract calls for something like $15,000 a week, but he'll have to pay his company himself . . . Ed Wynn will return to NBC soon, and have Graham McNamee with him again.

New Slit Sleeves and Youthful Bodice Go With This Spectator Sports Frock

Pattern No. 1868-B

Some are chosen and some are not, as you remember. And this is one of the "summer" chosen! A pretty had fun, but this perfectly stunning spectator sports frock makes up for it. And you can wear it yourself when summer sets in if you'll send for the pattern now.

It is surprisingly easy to make, and with the aid of the step-by-step chart, illustrating the cut and fit of the new slit sleeves and the way to pleat and stitch-up the youthful bodice, you will immediately realize how automatically it goes together. The bodice has a lot of blouse to it, even makes you suspect that it's held underneath by an elastic band, and the side pleats of the skirt have

Familiarity

FAMILIARITY makes us careless and unobservant. But there comes a day when we observe and think. Then we suffer. As a boy I loved life and country things. I used to get up to see the sun, as an old divine I once read remarks, "coming forth from his chambers in the East." I have come in to breakfast drenched in dew. How it used to gladden and sparkle in the morning light! But that is all a thousand years behind.—J. A. Stewart.

HOW FAR CAN YOU GO... BEFORE HE SAYS... You need a quart!

The "FIRST QUART" Tells the Story

Out of the experience of thousands of motorists has been developed a simple method of comparing oil performance... the "First Quart" Test. It is just a matter of noting how many miles you go after a drain-and-refill before you have to add a quart. If you are obliged to add oil too frequently, try the "First Quart" Test with Quaker State. See if you don't go farther before you have to add that tell-tale first quart. And, the oil that stands up best between refills is giving your motor the safest lubrication. Quaker State Oil Refining Company, Oil City, Pa.

Douglass Announces For State Senator

Curtis Douglass, attorney of Panhandle, Texas, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator for the 31st Senatorial District. Mr. Douglass' friends, in placing his announcement with this paper, announced that Mr. Douglass and a group of his friends from his home county are making a tour of the senatorial district and will, in a short time, visit our city.

Mr. Douglass is a native Texan and has been actively engaged in the practice of law for the past fifteen years, ten of which have been in Carson County. He was formerly Judge Advocate of the Department of Texas of the American Legion, and served as district attorney of the 84th Judicial District of Texas.

In submitting his candidacy, Mr. Douglass stated:

"The question of taxation presents us with a problem where the views are many, wide and divergent. The sponsor or proponent, of any one theory soon meets with the inevitable finding that every respective interest is trying to shift the burden to the other. Truly, it must be admitted that there will never be enacted a tax measure that will be suitable, in all respects, to every element alike.

"It is a simple task to enact a measure increasing our taxes, but the passage of a measure lowering the levy must be admitted by all to be well nigh impossible. The conditions of the day demand first, that before an increase in taxation is had, every means possible, yet consistent with good government, should be used and exhausted toward substantially reducing our expenditures. Economy must be the watchword—every citizen must become tax-conscious. So, therefore, let's first take up the slack and effect a substantial reduction, and when this is done, should the savings fail to produce the revenue needed, let us then proceed in an orderly and systematic course toward the readjustment and equalization of the burden to the end that all be accorded the same measure of justice, fairness and equality. "I am opposed to any character of new taxation unless the advantage, to the extent of our homes and the necessities of life, at least, be totally abolished. The ad valorem tax on real estate beyond the homestead should be abolished, or else decreased, to the extent where ownership of real estate will be an asset rather than a liability. I will oppose any further taxation that may have as its subject those articles which are basically and necessarily fundamental to our very existence.

"The natural gas reserve in the Panhandle of Texas is the largest natural gas reservoir in all the world. This gas belongs to the people of Texas as a whole—it is a product of nature that can never be replaced when gone. It is an indispensable natural resource. It is a fuel that every housewife should be privileged to use and a comfort that should be enjoyed in every home. Shall we extend to a few, at the expense of many, the right to enrich themselves by exhausting this vast natural resource?"

"I am for the unqualified, positive and absolute conservation of this great natural resource. Four years have passed since our first conservation law was enacted, yet, since this time, the amount of gas wasted represents enough to supply all of the domestic consumers of Texas for a period of fifty years.

"It is high time that the public, and not the conflicting interests be represented in this matter.

"The progress and enlightenment of the day demands the inauguration of a pension system for old age assistance. The principle is good, and no one should question the high-minded purpose of those who wish to care for the aged.

"Whatever be the defects of our present pension law, time will give us the opportunity to observe and make such corrections as are necessary. In any event, though, immediate provision should be made to pay the pension law now provided for by law; the delay on this matter is inexcusable. The law came as the result of a direct mandate from the people. The Legislature of Texas had two full sessions in which to make proper provision for payment, yet it is doubtful today whether any revenue of an appreciable amount is now, or will be, available to pay this bill. The pension should be paid immediately so that those who are to share the benefits thereunder will not be held in further doubt.

"If I am elected, I shall strive honestly to interpret the will of the great rank and file of our citizenship. No special interest, group or faction will dictate the course of my policies. My sole purpose will be to carry forth a program that will be for the common good of all."

TO THE CITIZENS OF DONLEY, COLLINGSWORTH, HALL AND CHILDRESS COUNTIES:

This is announcing to you that I am offering myself for judge of your District Court. In becoming a candidate for this office I am not unmindful of the responsibilities connected with the office, or of the honor of being a judge in whom the citizenship finds ability, fairness, integrity and a prompt disposition of matters before the court,—this, not only to save expenses and conduct the court in an orderly and business like manner, but that justice be promptly had in all matters before the court.

Born in Texas, I have resided in Collingsworth County for forty-six years; practiced law since 1907,—after having graduated from Clarendon College and Cumberland University,—served as county attorney, and county judge, and have had considerable experience as District Judge. Many citizens of Childress County, Hall County, of Donley County and of Collingsworth County have had opportunity to see and observe my manner of holding and presiding as District Judge, and, having practiced law in the courts of all the counties of the district, most of you have had opportunity to know the character of man I am, and likewise, having as a boy freighted to Memphis and Childress for many years, and as a young man having attended school in Clarendon for four years, every citizen of the district can, if desired, learn my life from boyhood to this date. I am now fifty two years of age.

Those who have offered for this office to this date are my friends, and will be when this campaign is over for the reason that this office, honorable though it is,—if held with honor,—is not to me worth the sacrifice of friendships.

Courts should be tribunals of justice,—and without delay,—where every human and property right is settled with fairness and in accordance with the law which fixes our relations each with the other and with the commonwealth, and this justice should be had with the most possible dispatch, and with economy. It is my firm belief that when you have elected me your district judge, the court will be able to make such a record for fairness, economy, and prompt dispatch of business, that you will feel with me, THAT THE HONOR OF BEING YOUR OFFICER LIES IN DOING WELL THE DUTIES IMPOSED, for to me there would be no honor in being your judge unless therein I could be such an officer as will do well the duties of such position.

I deeply appreciate the many friends over the district who, believing in me, have expressed their wish that I should offer for this office, and to all alike I hope for your thoughtful consideration, and then your active support, and will endeavor to see you personally, that you may know the manner of man I am to offer for this important and honorable office.
