AMERICA'S WORLD EXAMPLE OF PEACE

It's No New Idea; but Sacrifice of Profits on Other Nations' Wars Is; Practicality Remains to Be Tested.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

7 ITH the civil war in Spain presenting new and perhaps nearer-than-ever possibilities of another great war on the European continent, the stage was appropriately set for an address by the President of the United States concerning peace, and how this country shall maintain it in the face of struggle abroad.

The address was delivered before a crowd of 12,000 persons at Chautauqua, N. Y., and additional millions at home listening to their radios. It stamped the nation's course, at least for the duration of the present administration, as setting the example of peace to the world through the "good neighbor" policy.

If President Roosevelt's speech was good political fodder, although it had been advertised as non-political before its delivery, it was that chiefly by reason of the chief executive's unrivaled artistry in seizing the dramatic opportunity to play upon the emotions of an audience, and may have been expected and excused in an election year.

Significant was the fact that the most enthusiastic applause came after the President's passionate declaration: "I hate war!" Significant in another way, perhaps, is the fact that the response would have been equally enthusiastic had he hated spinach, red flannels or washing dishes.

Decries 'Fools' Gold'

The President said that before the 1932 election, "I have made up my mind that, pending what might be called a more opportune moment on other continents, the United States could best serve the cause of a peaceful humanity by setting an example.'

Later on, he said: "I wish I could keep war from all nations; but that is beyond my power. I can at least make certain that no of the United States helps to produce or promote war."

The President also said: "If war should break out again in another continent, let us not blink the fact that we could find this country thousands of Americans gold-would attempt to break down or evade our neutrality . .

"If we face the choice of profits or peace, the nation will answer-'we choose peace."

The policy of America, the great peacemaker, setting an example to the world, is not new. Long and often sorrowful accounts of its high moral achievement and almost complete physical failure are readily to be gleaned from even the newer pages of history.

Rights of Neutrals

But the policy of foregoing the profits to be collected from other nations' wars-profits which would provide work and income for milions of unemployed- in order to maintain absolute neutrality and peace, is new. Because it requires individual personal sacrifice as well as collective good behavior, it is perhaps on even a higher moral plane than the exemplary policy. Its possibilities in application have yet to be tested in any real way.

President Roosevelt admittedly struck the popular chord when he gave assurance that the nation would dedicate itself to maintaining neutrality in the case of any war. It is little short of innovation to imply the waiver of the rights of neutrals to trade freely on the high seas in time of war.

Yet that, or nearly that, has been the demonstrated policy of the administration in the Italo-Ethiopian situation, when it announced on October 5, 1935, that Americans would deal with belligerent nations at their own risk.

Before the European war broke out in August of 1914, this nation was definitely committed to neutrality and in the two years that followed made heroic-almost comic-opera-efforts to maintain it. The government's secret agents went so far as to shadow persons suspected having tendencies other than neutral, and put them in jail or deported them.

Yet with the perspective given us by the passing of the years it would seem that our neutrality, while it was a legal fact up to April, 1917, was morally non-existent. American sympathies from the start were with the Allies. They were expertly exploited by the propaganda of the Allied diplomatic services, and only whetted by the inability of the Ger-man diplomats, with their blunders inspired by the hopelessness and speration of their situation as it ne more and more apparent

Our Peace Efforts The picture of the United States, waiting with Wilsonian idealism to be turned to as the great example of peace and the mediator of the conflict, when its sympathies were all too plain, even to the Allies, is to be found in the records of international diplomatic correspondence of the period.

that America was itching to join the fight against them.

We got into the war. It was a 'war to end all wars' so when it was over, the victorious nations attempted to organize to preserve the peace - assuming that the status quo at the end of the war could be permanently preserved, an assumption sadly shaken since. We had participated in the conference of the Hague and other international peace movements. Largely at our own President's suggestion, the League of Nations was formed, with its offspring, the World court, but we stayed out of them.

We sat in on the interminable disarmament conferences. finally, we brought forth the Kellogg pact which outlawed war-on paper. Unfortunately it did not succeed in outlawing war' on the earth's surface, and perhaps it was the Kellogg pact of which President Roosevelt was thinking at Chatauqua when he said:

"It is a bitter experience to us when the spirit of agreements to which we are a party is not lived up to. It is an even more bitter experience for the whole company of nations to witness not only the spirit but the letter of international agreements violated with impunity and without regard for the simple principles

The President cited the nation's attempts to co-operate for peace.

"We co-operated," he said, "to the bitter end - and it was the bitter end - in the work of the general disarmament conference. When it failed, we sought a separate treaty to deal with the manufacture of arms and the international traffic in arms. That proposal also came to nothing.

Not Isolationists

"We participated- again to the general treaty could be signed be-

tion, we warn our citizens at home and abroad to preserve the spirit and letter of our neutrality. The country's application of the neutrality law in the Italian case has been mentioned. The next application was on last August 7 when the government instructed its diplomatic and consular representatives in Spain that its policy was one of non-interference, advising American nationals in the same vein. This raises a fine point. Our law applies to fighting between two nations-but the Spanish incident is a civil war and concerns only one nation. International law experts say that political neutrality does not obligate the nationals of a neatral nation unless that nation has a domestic law which controls such nationals. From this viewpoint it seems that our neutrality law does not cover our nationals in the Spanish case.

How Business Cooperates

Only one case has been reported which might reflect the attitude of American business men with regard to non-interference in Spain. That concerned an airplane manufacturer who stood in a fair way to receive an order. He asked the government's advice, was advised not to fill the order, and didn't fill

Department of commerce re-ports showed a sharp upswing in exports to Italy of military supplies not covered by embargo—things like copper, iron, steel, vehicles and petroleum—even after the neutrality law was passed. But it is impossible to tell whether this increase was due to the war or a natural recovery in trade. It fell off shortly before the acknowledged defeat of Ethiopia.

To his administration's "good neighbor" policy the President gave much of the credit for the harmonious conditions which he said existed in the Western World.

"Throughout the Americas the spirit of the good neighbor is a practical and living fact," he said. 'The 21 American republics are not only living together in friendship and in peace; they are united in the determination so to remain.

"To give substance to this determination, a conference will meet on Dec. 1, 1936, in the capital of our great southern neighbor. Argentina, and it is, I know, the hope of all chiefs of state of the Americas that this will banish wars forever from this portion of the earth."

3,090 Miles of Friendship

tions, we concluded with Great | Britain and France a conditional treaty of qualitative limitations which, much to my regret, already show signs of ineffectiveness.

"We shun," he continued, "political commitments which might entangle us in foreign wars; we avoid connection with the political activities of the League of Nations; but I am glad to say that we have cooperated whole-heartedly in the social and humanitarian work at Geneva. . . .

"We are not isolationists except in so far as we seek to isolate ourselves com-pletely from war. Yet we must remem-ber that so long as war exists on earth there will be some danger that the na-tion which most ardently desires peace may be drawn into war."

The gist of our new neutrality policy has been indicated. It is simply that we will not sell military supplies to any nation or nations which are engaged in war. In addiquently upheld as too neighborly. The outstanding example of good neighbors are the United States and Canada, the President said:

'The noblest monument to peace and to neighborly economic and social friendship in all the world is not a monument in bronze or stone but the boundary which unites the United States and Canada - 3,000 miles of friendship with no barbed wire, no gun or soldier, and no passport on the whole frontier."

To which his opponents might add that the lowering of the tariff wall January 1 has permitted multiple increases of imports over that frontier. But few could disagree with him when he said: "We seek to dominate no other nation. We ask no territorial expansion. We oppose imperialism. We desire reduction in world armaments."

And Americans, to a man, it may e supposed, "hate war."

GUNLOCK RANCH Behold! the New Fall Hats Arrive. Easy to Crochet Set of Lace F

SYNOPSIS

Sleepy Cat, desert town of the South-west, is celebrating the Fourth of July. Jane Van Tambel, beautiful daughter of Gus Van Tambel, hated owner of Gunlock ranch, has arrived from the East for the first time. She watches the Frontier Day celebration in company with Dr. Carpy, crusty, tender-hearted friend of the community. Henry Sawdy of the Circle Dot ranch, tricked in a fake horse race the day before by Dave McCrossen, foreman at Gunlock, plans revenge. He enters Bill Denison, a handsome young Texas wrangler, in the rodeo which McCrossen is favored the rodeo which McCrossen is favored to win, and lays heavy bets on him with Harry Boland, saloonkeeper and crony of McCrossen, Unknown to the crowd, Denison is a champlon horseman, McCrossen and the young stranger tie in the various events. They are then saked to propose their own stunts. then asked to propose their own stunts. McCrossen winning the toss, picks up a handkerchief from the ground riding full speed, facing backward. Denison easily follows suit.

It was now the Texan's turn. Sawdy ran out on the track to his side. "Give him the saddle-and-bridle trick," he whispered.

The wrangler, still breathing fast, de murred. "He's seen it done. Probably he can do it himself, Sawdy." 'No matter. It'll make a hit, tire

"I'm getting tired of this show myself. It's been pretty long," objected the rider. "Leave it to me, will you? I'll give him one he's never seenyou've never seen." There was a further whispered conference. "Go to it!" exclaimed Sawdy, after a moment, seemingly confident of his representative. Then he turned to the little grandstand.

"Ladies 'n' gentlemen an' honorable judges," he began. "Circle Dot has tried to contribute in a humble way to your entertainment this afternoon. You're all anxious to see this contest, grand as it has been, brought to a decision. Our entry for the prize will now present a feat never before seen Reining to the middle of the track, the wrangler drew from a buttoned breast pocket of his jersey a packet of cigarette papers and a small sack of tobacco. Seated on his pawing horse, he rolled his cigarette, put away the makings, hung the cigarette on his lip, and lifted his hat as he looked up at the spectators and felt in another pecket for a match. While doing so he awkwardly dropped the cigarette; it fell from his lip to the dusty track. He bent over in the saddle to look regretfully down at the cigarette where it lay; then turned his horse and slowly circled the offending object as he carefully scrutinized the lie.

Sawdy stepped to the side of the grandstand and, after his usual salutation, began, hat in hand: "Our Circle Dot wrangler seems to be a little awkward today—nervous, maybe. You see, ladies, he hasn't had such a bevy of elegant women to look at for many, many weeks. We've been on a long, hard drive an' haven't seen so much as a picture of a smart girl for nigh three months-no wonder he's nervous.

"Hear! Hear!" cried Carpy and his group. Sawdy, surprised, looked up. Where?" he demanded. And getting only a laugh, continued:

"Whatever the reason, ladles an' gents, the boy has dropped his cigarette. He's makin' motions to me to pick it up. But it's too much to ask of a fat man. Let him pick up the cigarette himself. Go, boy, go!" As the wrangler cantered leisurely down the track, Sawdy, as spieler, continued to explain:

"He will now try ridin' at top speed, to pick up his cigarette. If he succeeds, I am sure you will all be willin' to see him enjoy smokin' it, after a hard hour's work. If he fails under these speed conditions, he will retire as gracefully as possible from the track an' turn a similar job over to his esteemed rival. Our wrangler will use the quirt on his pony for the first time today. All we'll ask is, just please give the boy quiet when he rides up."

The wrangler had wheeled his horse fifty yards down the track and sat waiting for Sawdy's signal.

The cowman raised a warning hand. "Are you ready?" The wrangler nodded. "Go!" shouted Sawdy.

Quirting his pony smartly and bending in the saddle as the wiry little gelding sprang in long leaps ahead, the wrangier, nearing the stand. swung over to the right so low in the saddle that he trailed his hand in the dust. He was going very fast, and his job in this straining posture was to locate a narrow smudge of brown paper lying in yellow dust

CHAPTER II

In the grandstand there was a cran Ing of necks, a straining of eyes, and

Only the soft clatter of the pony's hoofs as he now flew down toward the grandstand struck the ear. A slender streak of dust rose from where the fingers trailed along the track. As he neared the vicinity of the cigarette, the wrangler lifted his fingers just above the dust and bent his straining eyes ahead. He passed the grandstand

As he did so, his right hand was flung out, just once, and his fingers struck at the flust. He dashed ahead, straightened himself gradually in the saddle, and, holding his right hand high, checked the pony and rode slowly

They looked in vain circles for a trace of the cigarette; stirred up the dust where it might be hidden. But the wrangler, riding back toward them, held the damaged cigarette between the thumb and the forefinger of his right hand.

Boland was wild. He rushed out to join the judges. "It's a plain trick!" he shouted. "He pretended to pick up one cigarette an' had another in his hand."

"Hell!" blurted out Bill Pardaloe 'Where's the cigarette he dropped here in the first place?" he asked, pointing to the track. "It was right here. I seen it." He appealed to the other judges, "You seen it." The two nodded assent. "What you talkin' about, Bo?" Boland was industriously searching the track. "Find it! But be damned careful you don't try to drop another cigarette like it! Watch him, John," warned Pardaloe, wrought up.

"The horse might have picked it up on his hoof," bellowed Boland. "Yes," commented Selwood. "Yes. Examine the pony's mouth, too, Boland. He may not have swallowed it yet. I say, gentlemen," he added, "the Circle Dot boy has done a clean job. Now let's see McCrossen perform."

But McCrossen, stubbornly rejecting all his backers' entreaties, refused to perform. "Wouldn't I be a sucker to try to beat a man at his own game?" he demanded.

"That trick's no part of frontier ridin'. It's never been done before at a Sleepy Cat celebration."

"It's progress, gentlemen; progress, I call it. If it ain't been done in Sleepy Cat, It's been done plenty at other celebrations. So you," thundered Sawdy, "want a brilliant crowd of fair women and brave men to set here year after year an' be bored stiff with the same old tricks? Gents!" he appealed to the judges, "I call for judgment."

The judges huddled. At a little dis tance Sawdy and Lefever huddled with the wrangler on the gelding. Presently Lefever stepped over to the judges. 'Gents," he announced, "before you de cide, we make another proposal. Our man will now undertake to duplicate any trick on a horse that the Gunlock champion wants to try. We want to be perfectly fair."

"You mean," retorted Selwood. "you're mean enough to beat the boots off him an' carry away the boots. Well, Boland," he called out, turning to the saloon keeper, "you heard that. Do you want to take that challenge?"

"McCrossen has done all the tricks and done 'em well."

"If you decline," declared Selwood "judgment for the fancy ridin' goes to Circle Dot. It is so ordered. Stop your yawp, Harry Boland."

Boland continued to protest, but the verdict, announced to the spectators, met with wild approval. They declined to let the wrangler go. They swarmed out on the track and refused to let him

He was assailed with cries. "Do it again! . . . Once more! . . . Again!"

Sawdy, after a conference with the favorite, made a stentorian announcement: "If you'll all get off the track and shut up," he began, "our lad will give you one more exhibition."

When the track was cleared and the men were again seated, the portly spieler continued: "To show there wa no trick in the cigarette ride, and to show there's no collusion, I'll ask any lady in the audience to throw any litpersonal ornament of wear out on the track. Now hold on." He held up his hand in warning as several women began to search for something to throw out. "The object must be not too small to grasp. . . . A ring? Doubtful. . . . A hatpin? No, for God's sake, nothin' sharp. Hold still. That young lady next to Dr. Carpy"—he pointed—"isn't that a small bracelet I see on her left arm? Just the thing. Lady, if you'd lend us that bracelet for a minute, we'll show you some ridin'."

Sawdy was addressing Jane Van Tambel.

"Oh, I won't do it!" exclaimed Jane Sawdy looked pained, but kept his eye fixed on the bracelet. "Go ahead, girl, throw it out!" suggested Carpy.

TREND TOWARD RICH HUES FOR AUTUMN

A new fashion season means a new brainstorm for the experts who must name the featured hues in women's attire. Every name must be suggestive of the hue but it has to be different from its predecessors, otherwise a woman will think it isn't new.

For the coming autumn season. the trend in shades is toward rich colorings and the names chosen show a tendency toward specific description rather than flowery language. Sage green, for example, looks exactly like the herb for which is it named. It has that same soft, grayed tone which is unusually lovely. Maple sugar brown is another new tone which has a pale, subdued cast that is different from the browns usually appearing in the autumn.

Suit Simplicity Subtle and Therefore Expensive

Simple suits are always in demand, but the simplicity of such suits is subtle and therefore always expensive. Chanel has created a beauty which appears for summer in lightweight gray flannei, and for early autumn wear in smooth navy wool. The jacket, with one-button fastening at the waist, is slightly fitted in front and has a straight back. On one of the wide-stitched revers is a slit pocket that holds a hankie. There is a tiny turnback cuff that continues from a set-in seamed panel with three buttons.

Heel Taps

Although many of fashion's high priests claim that flats and low-heeled evening slippers are definitely out, they refuse to take the count, according to the latest style news from Paris.
