Shower and Party

A delightful event of the week was a bridge party and shower Tuesday afternoon honoring Mrs. Bill Leggett, the former Miss Anne Mitchell, given by Mesdames Clifford Johnson, Dannie Battle and Leon Reeves, co-hostesses, in the Johnson home. Orange flowers and Hallowe'en colors provided a decorative setting for the affair. Mrs. Leggett cut high for traveling prize.

Following the games the guests were directed into the dining room where the table was centered by a wheel of fortune. Clever as well as entertaining, were the fortunes read by each guest. Mrs. Leggett's fortune was a request to search the house for a pot of gold. She found many nice gifts cleverly concealed.

A dainty salad course was served to the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Zeb Mitchell, and Mesdames George Thompson, Alva Simmons, Bill Payne, Robert Moffitt, Richard Longshore, Ted Dudley, Ed Kinshaw, Ralph Moreman, Buford Bell, Ross Adamson and Misses Odie Watkins, Myrtle Reeves, Pauline Boliver, Jennette Clarke, Theresa Webb and the hostesses.

B. W. M. U.

Mrs. Alva Simmons and Mrs. Frank Murray were hostesses to the W. M. U. on Monday October 19, at the home of the former. A missionary program from Royal Service was given with Mrs. Moffitt as leader. Those taking part were: Mesdames Wells, Heath, Caldwell and Alewine.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Wells presented Mrs. Penn Johnson with a birthday shower of handkerchiefs from those present, showing their love and appreciation of her.

Refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames Johnson, Wells, Alewine, Caldwell, Moffitt, Blankenship, Holland, Heath, Milner, Murray and Simmons.

Tender Hat Wanted.
A man walked reluctantly into a hat shop, says Ireland's Own, of Dublin.
"I've just lost a hat," he said, "and I want to buy a soft hat."
"This is the softest we have," said the assistant.
The customer gazed at it speculatively.
"What I want," he said wistfully, "is something a little more tender; I've got to eat it."

State Bank Resources Grow
More Than Three Billion Dollars in a Year

NATIONAL BANKS GAIN

American Bankers Association
Gives Details of Banking
Institutions and Notes
Stronger Condition

NEW YORK.—Continued improvement in the condition of state chartered banking institutions, with an increase of more than three billion dollars in a year in total resources, is shown in a report just issued by the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association.

The report was prepared by the division's Committee on State Bank Research from data furnished by state banking departments and parallels data issued by the Comptroller of the Currency for national banks which show similar improvements.

"The combined resources of 10,473 state supervised banks were $35,724,723,000 as of December 31, 1935," the state bank report says. "Total deposits amounted to $30,526,920,000. Total loans and discounts stood at $12,430,404,000 and total investments were $14,170,421,000."

A year previous, tables in the report show, there were 10,614 state supervised banks, with combined resources of $32,680,203,000, total deposits of $27,297,959,000, loans and discounts $12,060,033,000 and investments $12,682,325,000.

Classes of Institutions

Of the reporting state banking institutions on December 31, 1935, 82% were commercial banks, the report states, 9% trust companies, almost 9% stock and mutual savings banks and less than 1% were private banks. The report adds:

"The parallel upward movements of deposits and total invested funds of total state supervised banks during the years 1934 and 1935, after declines in these items in 1932 and 1933, are indications of definite steps toward recovery in banking.

"Based on figures assembled for total state supervised banks on resources and liabilities as of December 31, 1931 to 1935, it is noted: (1) that deposits in 1935 rose approximately 12 per cent over the previous year, as compared with an increase of about 9 per cent in 1934 over the year 1933, and declines of 7 per cent and 12 per cent in 1933 and 1932, respectively, from the preceding years of 1932 and 1931; and (2) that total invested funds increased by approximately 2 per cent in 1935 and also in 1934, while they had decreased by 9 per cent in 1933 and by 11 per cent in 1932."

Analysis Shows Stronger Position

In a survey and analysis of earnings and expenses of state banks doing a commercial business, it is brought out that in a majority of states they have increased their earning ability during 1935. On the basis of data covering 7,928 banks in 42 states, the report says:

"The most significant fact to be pointed out is that new profits of state banks—after deducting charge-offs on loans, investments, etc., and adding recoveries—were shown in 37 of the 42 states which reported in 1935, in comparison with net profits in only 11 of the 35 states reporting in 1934. Measured in terms of dollars per each $100 of invested funds, net profits in 1935 ranged between $2.40 and $10 per $100, with 19 states showing profits of $1.00 or over, per $100, while in 1934 net profits did not exceed $1.20 per $100 and only three states showed profits of $1.00 or over."

The report contains voluminous tables showing the resources and liabilities of all classes of state chartered institutions and detailed analyses of earnings and expenses by states and of insured commercial state banks grouped by size of banks.

Bankers Help Farmers

The conviction that 4-H Club work lays the foundation for sound citizenship and intelligent farming influenced a New York City bank executive to contribute $500 to the Agricultural Committee of the State Bankers Association, to further 4-H Club activities in the state. "I am convinced that the work is so worthy, and is being so well handled that it should interest those who believe in building sound citizenship, as well as intelligent farming for the future," he said.

Unusual prominence was given this past year to agricultural work by the Tennessee Bankers Association. The Agricultural Committee report reveals hearty cooperation between bankers and extension workers. "Key bankers and county agents have been in closer contact than ever before," it says.

Georgia bankers have given both moral and financial backing to a Marketing Project sponsored by the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture and activities the past year showed significant results. The phases of the Marketing program emphasized in the year's work are: The retail curb market; roadside marketing; miscellaneous marketing (suited to the locality); bartering (exchange of commodities or services with neighbors); standardized canned products for sale prepared in homes or canning centers.

Budget-Balancer No. 1

—The Housewife

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

If our political spendthrifts really want to learn how to balance their budgets let them turn to the average American housewife.

She's Budget-Balancer No. 1.

She has to be. Unlike the newer economists in public office she cannot spend two dollars for every dollar she takes in, and blandly load the difference on the public. She has to cut her expenditures to fit whatever income a pay envelope may afford.

That's why those "indirect" taxes which boost the family food bill, the family rent bill, the family bills for clothing and for everything else she buys, mean so much to her. No matter on whom the tax-creators and tax-eaters attempt to load the cost, the bill is finally paid out of her thin purse.

How deeply do the billions squandered by office-holders during recent years cut into the average housewife's operating funds?

Well, research workers have estimated that the majority of taxes collected by government are passed on to the public in the form of increased prices—and that, so disguised, they consume one dollar out of every five which finds its way into the family pocketbook.

Actually, then, the average housewife faces a dual responsibility—first, to conserve the contents of the family purse, and, second, to demand that politicians cease the reckless squandering and piling on of taxes which rob her of the benefits of her sacrifices and economies.

In the overwhelming majority of American families she has succeeded in balancing her own budget. Now she is insisting that the politicians cooperate by learning to balance theirs.

OIL-PLATING DONE
HERE

(BUT BE SURE YOU READ ALL THE OTHER WINTER OIL ADS, TOO)

You will find most of the emphasis these days, on oil that flows freely.

Well and good. You SHOULD use your correct Winter grade, but... You can see that the more freely any oil flows, the more freely it FLOWS DOWN OFF the pistons, cylinders, and other parts when you stop.

Then in starting up cold, where is mere free-flowing oil?

It is waiting to be pumped up on the job. And even in much warmer weather than this—according to engineering opinion—those oil-starved waits can cost you more engine wear than all the rest of your driving!

But this Winter with free-flowing Germ Processed oil, you can have your engine Oil-Plated! ... much more than a change to OUR Conoco Germ Processed oil... really a change to unbroken Winter lubrication for YOUR engine. It may stand cold for hours—days—weeks. Yet the slippery Oil-Plating formed only by patented Germ Processed oil, will always be UP IN ADVANCE. Pistons slip easy. Starter spins. Oil-Plated engine obliges—and lives the good life, on a stingy diet of Conoco Germ Processed oil. Continental Oil Company

HOW OCEANIC FLYING PROGRESSES

Giant Floating Airplane Bases Start Trans-Atlantic Flyers on Way by Means of Powerful Catapult, Like 'Shot Out of Gun.'

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

TRANSOCEANIC commercial flying is here. The tests and explorations which for several years have been going on to lay the foundations have been made with so much attendant publicity that the actual arrival of the fact itself is comparatively little known.

Regularly and on schedule the Pan-American Airways ships are now spanning the vast Pacific; the South Atlantic has subjected its expanses to transatlantic flight, and it is expected that soon even the tempestuous North Atlantic will see regularly scheduled commercial flights between North America and Europe.

It is more than 17 years now since that mad, storm-tossed flight over the Atlantic by the two Brits, Capt. John Alcock and Lieut. Arthur Whitten Brown.

It is more than 150 years since the first successful journey by air over the English Channel.

Yet the North Atlantic only recently shows signs of giving up regularly to the flights of man with heavier-than-air craft. And it is only a few months since the first successful trip of the great flying boats over the new air lanes in the Pacific.

Pacific Passenger Runs Begin.

Only a week or two from the time that you read this the giant Clipper ships will begin carrying passengers on the Pacific run, from San Francisco to China, with stops here and there at islands some of which are not even big enough to be a respectable dot on a map of the ocean. Already the Clippers are carrying mail and baggage.

The comings and goings of the Clipper ships are no longer news, and neither are those of the giant Zeppelin Hindenburg, which flies back and forth in all kinds of weather over the Atlantic. The number of passengers she carries has been increasing with every trip, until today 70 persons are just a neat package for her.

Behind the scenes of these flights is where most of the important work is conducted. For the Pacific flights, stations have been built and crews trained at Honolulu, Midway island, Wake island, Guam and Manila. Even in these out-of-the-way spots the early travelers on the trans-Pacific lines will find modern hotels and efficient organizations to take care of the comfort as well as the safety of their trips.

The trips of the Zeppelins between Germany and South America have literally been going on for years. So regular is their performance, they are as much taken for granted as street cars in a big city.

Big airships, however, only cut about a day from the time of the fastest of the new ships which cross the Atlantic. If speed is to be the big advantage of flying, it is to heavier-than-air craft that we must look.

Catapult New Development.

French and German airplanes have for some years been carrying the mail across the South Atlantic. In the hundreds of crossings that have been made only one or two ships have been lost. Their swift planes take off from the water or are speeded on their way from anchored catapults.

The catapult is one of the most important developments in the flights across the Atlantic with which Germany has lately been experimenting. The device is used by method; actually the pilots of the ships would be right at home in the role of "human cannon ball" for a circus. Besides this, the upkeep of the 8,000-ton "mother" ships is an item that eats up any profits that might be expected from airships which can carry at most a small number of passengers.

Will Try Larger Ships.

The two new German planes Aeolus and Zephyr are the two largest ever to be catapulted from a ship. Fully loaded, they weigh ten tons apiece. The catapult of the Gerpiston shaft. These extend beneath the cylinder to another drum at the far end. From this end there are two more cables which extend upward between the rails of the catapult to a sort of steel sled, upon which the plane about to take off is mounted.

The airplane is held in position by four hinged arms with braces like cantilevers. Two of these press against plates on the boat hull, and the other two fit into slots forward on the hull and beneath the wings. When the machine starts into motion, these last two drop. This leaves only the two in the rear to propel the airplane along the 100-foot greased runway.

The pump which loads the air compressor is powered by a Diesel motor. Beneath the compressor is another compressed air tank which is charged to 150 atmospheres.

Regulate Air 'Charge.'

The charge in the "air gun" has to be regulated for different winds and loads of different sizes. The captain of the "mother" ship, Alfred man ship Schwabenland is so powerful that in a space of 100 feet it starts these great flying boats from standing still to 80 or more miles an hour.

The Aeolus, shown here, is one of the German planes, launched from a "mother" ship by means of a catapult, and which is engaged in the study of weather conditions along the proposed route of Trans-Atlantic flights.

Next spring the Germans intend to try the catapult with even larger ships. They will make 24 crossings to South America and return with 14-ton planes of the Dornier type, which will take off from catapults.

The catapult is a scientific development of the siege weapon, from which it takes its name, that was used in ancient times. The one aboard the Schwabenland is 126 feet overall. It is mounted on the port side of the ship, with the take-off flush with the stern. Even the mountainous waves of the North Atlantic do not put it out of commission, for the ship carries a great sheet of canvas which is spread out over rough waters to make them lie flat and permit operation. This apron lies about a foot or two under the water and extends from the stern of the ship about 40 feet. When it is used the ship has to be Kottas, turns the ship stern-first into the wind and puts the engines in reverse so that the Schwabenland has some sternway.

There are three instruments called anemometers which tell the crew when the wind is right for a take-off. One is located atop the after mast, one is mounted on the stern and the third is located near the ship about to begin its flight.

The motor of the plane is running, of course, and when the pilot is ready to depart he "gives her the gas" and the engine starts to roar. A light flashes on the nose of his plane.

Allow Plane Full Load.

There is a great flash of flame and a cloud of smoke. In the twinkling of an eye the plane is away, dropping never a foot off the stern. Trailing behind are the hiss of escaping air and the smell of burning oil.

Transoceanic flying has passed out of the "stunt" stage. It is not even very dangerous any more. The treacherous North Atlantic has been flown three times in the last month, twice by a radio crooner and his pilot and once by a woman.

By contrast the Alcock - Brown flight of 17 years ago was one of the most colossal pieces of sheer luck imaginable. They tossed about in the gale for hours, often dipping nearly into the sea, without navigation instruments or radio, and crashed without being hurt upon their landing in Ireland.

The South Atlantic was flown the first time by Cabral and Coutinho in 1522. Flying over the land of the polar regions four American army planes spanned the North Pacific and the North Atlantic; two of them completed the flight and the other two were lost, although there was no one killed. The British dirigible R-34 crossed the North Atlantic the week before Alcock and Brown turned the trick. The Los Angeles, dirigible built in Germany for the American army, was flown here. Commander John Rodgers flew 1,700 miles of the route from California to Hawaii in a plane, and Commander Franco of Spain piloted his lighter-than-air craft across the stretches of the South Atlantic.

Invention of Air-Cooled Engine.

It was the invention of the air-cooled engine which took the largest share of danger out of ocean flying, chiefly because it eliminated the necessity for carrying many extra pounds of water for cooling engines. Admiral Byrd used air-cooled engines on his flight to the North Pole and back, and Lindbergh used one on his historic flight.

Remaining aloft for 33½ hours and traveling 3,600 miles in one uneventful hop, Lindbergh probably did more than anyone else to convince the public that flying was a safe and coming thing. Perhaps the greatest importance of all the early flights was not the actual feats they accomplished, but the "public relations" work they did for flying.

Past Cruelty in Spain

Savage cruelty to one another is nothing new to Spain. In the 1890s in one of the many Spanish civil wars of the last century, after a battle in the streets of Madrid when many of the captured rebels were killed as examples, Queen Isabel, not satisfied, sent word to her general to kill still more of the captured.

Her general's reply is worthy of repetition: "Does the lady not understand," he said, "that if we shoot all the soldiers we catch, the blood will rise up to her own chamber and drown her?"

Household Questions

If cream or custard sauce curdles put the vessel in which it is cooking in a pan of hot water and heat well. It will soon become smooth again.

To remove lime which accumulates on the inside of a tea kettle boil a strong solution of vinegar inside of the kettle, then rinse thoroughly before putting in water.

When preparing fruit salad sprinkle bananas, peaches, pears and apples with lemon juice or marinate with French dressing as soon as they are cut. This prevents discoloration from exposure to air.

Flaked salmon and chopped cucumber pickles moistened with mayonnaise makes a tasty sandwich filling.

Sandpapering baby's shoes before they are worn prevents slipping and saves many a fall.

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

TED LAUNCHES A NEW SHIP

This amphibian will be America's largest. It will carry 32 passengers and a crew of four, and is rapidly nearing completion in the Douglas factory at Santa Monica, Calif.

the two German ships which recently inaugurated commercial flying over the North Atlantic.

Officials of American aviation companies were interested spectators at demonstrations of the German floating aerial base ships recently. One of them contains the most powerful catapult aboard ship. Germany now has converted three freighters into catapult ships and is building another.

Each of the ships has a crew of 60 or more men. They carry enough fuel and provisions to stay out at sea for several weeks.

Although the South Atlantic air-lanes ships carry as much as 500 pounds of mail on a single flight, they do not yet carry passengers. One of the reasons for this is the catapult method of take-off. It is not exactly comfortable for passengers to be shot into the air by this moving forward at a speed of about two knots.

The ingenious Germans are clever at picking up ships from choppy waves. There is a great crane on the starboard side of the Schwabenland, from which lines are dropped into the water. The mechanism which controls these lines causes them to rise and fall in time with the waves.

Air Propels Catapult.

Compressed air is the force which drives the great catapult. The Krupp works, which built the huge German cannon of the World war, constructed the cylinder which itself looks not unlike a cannon. It is 16 feet long, mounted beneath the track of the catapult, and drives a piston 2 feet in diameter.

Six steel cables are wound around a drum which forms the end of the

CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

USE COMMON SENSE IN CHOOSING LIFE PARTNER

A girl who did not care to do much jazzing and drinking and petting at twenty and who has put in half-a-dozen sober years of office work since, finds this sort of company stimulating—for just a few years.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS
POPULAR situation in the novels I used to read when I was a little girl was that of the beautiful heroine who was torn between love and duty in selecting a mate. A clever Irishwoman who used the pseudonym of "The Duchess" used to write romances then, and this was her favorite theme. Darling little, romping Molly, the toast of the garrison, the impoverished Squire's daughter, was wooed by the big handsome mustachioed Captain of the Guards, whom she adored and was also sought in marriage by worthy, dull, rich Lawyer Drysdale, or perhaps by the drunken, despicable Earl of Kilowengarry himself. Our mothers, who belonged to the generation that strictly supervised its daughter's reading, were not enthusiastic about the novels of The Duchess. The Duchess always used the present tense, which lent thrill to the young reader but was disapproved on the ground of bad style by my mother; also The Duchess used the word naked when decent Victorians preferred bare.

"Ballister kisses Molly's exquisite naked throat," The Duchess would say. "Her tumbling gold hair loosens itself and blinds him in a river of perfumed silk."
It was forty long crowded years ago when my mother would pick up a copy of "Molly Bawn" or some other favorite and scornfully, patiently read some such phrase to her shamed and giggling daughters, and yet the stories of "The Duchess" have somehow remained fresh in my mind all that time; there must have been some good in them.

And that the old situation is still a new situation where maids and their hearts are involved, a letter lying on my desk this morning proves. A canny Scotch-American girl named Jeanie is in the same fix Molly was in so many years ago; two men want her, and she doesn't know which one to take. Her father and mother, with whom she lives, want her to marry Thomas. But then there's Larry! Jeanie's heart rather yearns toward Larry. Thomas is the comparatively young president of a rubber company; he is a splendid, reliable, admirable young man; Jeanie's father is one of his employees. Larry is at present a clerk in a Bank, but his heart is far from clerking. He writes poetry, he plays in little amateur plays, he has great plans. Jeanie's people don't like him because he is somewhat intemperate, but Jeanie, who at twenty-seven is two years older than Larry, is confident she could soon cure that.

She writes me fully the advantages and disadvantages of each side. Thomas is forty, and Jeanie feels that may be a little old. On the other hand Larry is young for twenty-five, and has had other girls. Thomas has loved Jeanie since she was in Grammar school. "I think I WOULD marry Thomas, and have it over, if it wasn't such a SENSIBLE thing to do!" confesses Jeanie. "But with my father anxious for me to do it, and my mother so delighted at the idea, and Thomas so—so darned PERFECT, I just feel like somehow jumping the traces! Tom's first wife was my dearest friend, and his little boy loves me, and THAT'S an inducement, but somehow I feel as if it would be more romantic—more thrilling, to do things against the grain, marry in spite of criticism, take a chance, go crazy for once in my life!"

This girl writes for my advice, and I'm going to give it to her, but perhaps she won't take it. Girls at her age are very apt to go a little "arty," and for a few years the easy hospitality of someone's studio—usually an unsuccessful someone, for successful artists and writers have no time for this sort of pleasant philandering—the gipsy meals and the good talk, the delightful feeling of being Bohemians, and not caring who pays for the red wine, or who is married or not married to who, is all very delightful. A girl who did not care to do much jazzing and drinking and petting at twenty, and who has put in half-a-dozen sober years of office work since, finds this sort of company stimulating—for just a few years.

Why shield them from every danger except EYESTRAIN?

Isn't their sight worth enough to make you find out what your lighting may be doing to it?

● You bundle up your children against cold and rain. You see that they are tucked snugly in bed at night. You are constantly on guard lest they be harmed in some way. You try to shield them from every danger . . . but are you sure about eyestrain?

Sight is their most precious possession. Yet do you let them read and play on the floor where the light is never adequate for even simple visual work? Can you say for sure whether the lighting in your home is letting your children's eyes develop normally? Do you know that your child has enough light for his studying tasks?

Don't guess—be sure. There has been too much guessing about proper lighting. And mainly because of improper lighting, one child in every five has defective vision by the time he finishes grade school. The ratio increases to two out of five by the time they reach college age.

The I.E.S. Indirect Floor and Student Lamp is a simple, economical way to be sure that your child is studying under proper lighting conditions. What is more, the entire family can enjoy and will appreciate this modern, better light. See these lamps on display . . . today!

Wide opening at top throws light to ceiling, eliminates shadows.

Glass bowl softens light, prevents glare.

Wide shade spreads light over wide area.

Bus Fund Program

One of the most entertaining programs given here in some time was witnessed by a large crowd in the high school auditorium Friday night. The program was given by Cal Farley's Flying Dutchman Circus of Amarillo, and was sponsored by the Hedley school board, proceeds going to the Hedley bus fund. Mr. Farley kindly consented to bring his troupe here and put on the program free of charge in order to help raise funds to meet the payments which are due on the busses.

The program was exceptionally good, each performer rendering his part well. One of the high points was a beauty contest, in which "Dutch" Mantell was voted winner. Another was Herr Mantell's orchestra, composed of a jews harp, banjo, washboard, etc.

After paying expenses, the program netted about $75. to be applied on the bus fund. The school board deserves much credit for bringing this high class of entertainment here, and the citizens of the school district are sincerely grateful to Mr. Farley and his troupe for their help.
