Thanksgiving Program

The various churches of Hedley will unite in a Thanksgiving Day program next Thursday morning at the high school building. The public is invited to attend. Rev. B. J. Osborn will deliver the main address. The balance of the program has not yet been arranged.

Shower

Mrs. F. V. Walker was hostess Friday afternoon at a pretty and unique Thanksgiving shower honoring Mrs. Harold McClain.

The rooms were decorated with flowers and pictures of the Puritans. An appropriate program was enjoyed by all. As the guests entered they were asked to register and the program followed.

Song, "Bringing In The Sheaves" was sung by the group. Scripture reading, Mrs. D. L. Hickey.

Thanksgiving duet, Misses Agatha Lovelace and Annie Mae McLaughlin.

Prayer, Mrs. O. R. Culwell. Story of the Pilgrims, Mrs. Trostle.

Thanksgiving games were enjoyed by 81 guests of the various churches of the town. One of the most interesting games was the blind folding of a number of guests, the last one being Mrs. McClain, who was led to a room where she found many beautiful and useful gifts on display, then while she stood in surprise, the girls sang, "God Will Take Care of You." With tear dimmed eyes Mrs. McClain expressed her appreciation to each one for all they had given her.

Delicious refreshments of cake and cream were then served, and at a late hour the guests departed and declared Mrs. Walker a charming hostess.

Jerry David Hall

Jerry David Hall of Frisco, Texas, passed away Tuesday Nov. 10 in a hospital at Kerrville. He was 49 years of age and was the son of W. T. Hall of this city. He was a World War veteran and was given a military burial, funeral services being held at Stiddell W. T. Hall, H. H. Hall and children and Jess Boone attended the services.

Mr. Hall was slightly acquainted here, having visited here some years ago.

He is survived by his wife and seven children, five sons and two daughters.

Their many friends here extend deepest sympathies to the bereaved ones.

HEDLEY SINGERS

Hedley Singing class meets next Sunday at the West Baptist Church at 2:30. Everyone interested in any way in having good singing is urged to be present.

We especially invite all singers and others from Bray, McKnight and Naylor to be with us. Several have promised to come. Won't you come and help us out?

Hooker's have a lot of beautiful guaranteed Dubarry hose 3/4" to $1.15 per pair. The $1.15 hose are dull crepe twist, 2 strand, very sheer.

Miss Slim Hunsucker to Wed Mr. Lake Dishman

The light of the harvest moon is as potent a factor for romance as is the far famed June moon, as evidenced by the approaching marriage which will take place tonight at eight o'clock at the Hedley high school auditorium. Highlighting the social calendar will be the marriage of Miss Slim Hunsucker, beautiful and lovely daughter of Mr. Zeb Mitchell and Mrs. Leon Reeves, to Mr. Lake Dishman. Mounds of fern palms and tall vases of white chrysanthemums will flank the altar which will be lighted by white tapers in wrought iron candelabra. Bro. Wells will read the ceremony. Mrs. Kaynell will sing the pre-nuptial solo, "Because" accompanied by Miss Bang, organist, who will play the wedding march. The bride to be who will be escorted by her father, will be gowned in classic white satin, made on the empire silhouette. The skirt will be full below the knees and flow into a deep train. Her fingertip length veil of illusion will be held in place by a hale of orange blossoms and she will carry a cascade bouquet of gardenias, lilies of the valley and garlands of Killarney roses. Miss Chas. Raina, sister of the bride elect, and maid of honor and Mrs. Eb Hooker, cousin of the bride to be and matron of honor, will wear white taffeta frocks, puffed sleeves and will carry bouquets of better times roses. Little Misses Hobart Moffitt and Clyde Bridges flower girls, will wear shell pink chiffon trimmed with green velvet bows. They will carry baskets of rose petals. Master Geo. Thompson, ring bearer, will be sweetly dressed in white satin trousers (Little Lord Fauntleroy style) and a black velvet jacket with a big bow under his chin. The happy couple will leave immediately after the wedding for a short honeymoon.

Buy your Xmas goods early on the "lay away plan" at Hooker's.

Miss Noel Honored

Denton, Nov. 14—After a week of rushing by campus clubs, Miss Martha Sue Noel of Hedley has been pledged a member of the Aglarian Literary Society at Texas State College for women. The organization takes an active part in sponsoring social activities on the campus.

JOINT W. M. S.

The joint missionary society met with Mrs. Masterson Nov. 16 with Mrs. Paul Pyle joint hostess. A very enjoyable program was given on Peace, in keeping with Armistice, by Miss Theresa Webb and Mesdames Watkins, Kendall, and Trostle. Delicious refreshments were served to 8 visitors and 17 members. Mesdames Battle, Robertson, Duncan Kendall, D. B. Kempton Pyle, Jess Adamson, T. E. Naylor, Clifford Johnson Masterson, Leon Reeves Watkins, Mebley, Trostle and Killingsworth and Misses Theresa Webb, Inez Barnett, Ola and Mela Curd and Wynona Kye.

The society will meet with Ola Curd Nov. 23 at 7:15, with a Harvest Day program.

Be sure to attend the pastry sale Saturday, Nov. 21, at Barnes and Hastings.

Letting Them Know
 Sandy joined a golf club, and was told by the professional that if his name was on his golfballs and they were lost they would be returned to him when found.
 "Good," said the Scot, "put my name on this ball."
 The pro did so.
 "Would you also put M. D. after it?" said the new member. "I'm a doctor." The pro obeyed.
 "There's just one more thing, can ye squeeze 'Hours 10 to 3' on as well?"—Bee Hive.

Masterful Man
 They were walking along North Main street and paused in the glare of a brightly lighted jewelry store. Unlike her escort, she seemed in no hurry to continue.
 "Look," she said, "did you ever see such good looking engagement rings for such a low price?"
 He was the masterful type. Taking her arm firmly, he answered: "Uh-huh. But look over here Isn't that a swell radio for only $11.95?"

To Ease a Headache Fast

Get Real Quick-Acting, Quick-Dissolving Bayer Aspirin

See How Genuine Bayer Tablets Work

In 2 seconds by simply dropping a genuine Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water, the tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work. Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. What happens in this glass happens in your stomach.

Virtually 1/2 a Tablet Now

If you suffer from headaches what you want is quick relief. Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets give quick relief, for one reason, because they dissolve or disintegrate almost instantly they touch moisture. (Note illustration above.)

Hence — when you take a real Bayer Aspirin tablet it starts to dissolve almost as quickly as you swallow it. And this is ready to start working almost instantly — headaches, neuralgia and neuritis pains start easing almost at once. That's why millions never ask for aspirin by the name aspirin alone when they buy, but always say "BAYER ASPIRIN" and see that they get it. Try it. You'll say it's marvelous.

Editor's Corner

We have had about an average of thirty absent from school this week. Students, we are missing you both from the class and our activities and we will be glad when you can come back to school again.

Koo Koo Carnival, Nov 27.

I think that we should feel quite proud of our high school students this year as far as conduct is concerned. There was only one U the first six weeks from 117 students, and that was for a minor offense. We have begun to build a character and to develop a personality as well as to master the rules from Clip pinger and the debits and credits of bookkeeping. We have made courtesy a pleasure, rather than an obligation. We find that it makes both the teachers and the pupils happier which is conducive of our best work.

Juniors Sponsor Program

A musicale was presented at the high school auditorium on the evening of Nov 10, by a traveling troupe called the "Five Nations." Furthermore, musical numbers in which each player gave a short history of his native country were educational as they refreshed our geography. The countries represented were Holland, Hawaiian Islands, Venezuela, South America, United States, and the man from Hawaii told about the possibility of Hawaii's becoming the forty ninth state of the union. Madame Hoff puzzled the audience with her mystic readings. Little Dumpty of Louisiana was twenty years old, three feet and six inches tall, and weighed sixty five pounds.

Theatre Party

A delightful evening was spent Thursday Nov 12 by the Senior class. The class with Mrs Cannon, sponsor, Mr and Mrs. V H Harman and son, and Mrs W C Payne and son, motored to Clear endon to see the amusing film, "The Big Broadcast of 1937." Although the class had many laughs, the funniest one was "What is it that you sleep on, sit on and brush your teeth with?" The answer to this riddle was a bed, a chair and a tooth brush. After the show, the drug store was raided by the class where cold drinks were enjoyed.

And don't be fooled by winter weather. Outside temperatures are varying and uncertain—but it's always summer in your kitchen. If the temperature where your food is kept is not in the Safety Zone—below 50°—all the time, there's danger.

DANGER—Above 50° bacteria multiply rapidly, causing foods to spoil.

STAR DUST
 Movie • Radio
 By VIRGINIA VALE

"THE Gay Desperado" is an important picture in more ways than one. It is the second of the two pictures made by the producing unit formed by Mary Pickford and Jesse L. Lasky some time ago—and certainly it seemed likely that those two veterans of the movie industry ought to be able to turn out good pictures.

But the first, "One Rainy Afternoon," fell flat as a bad sponge cake. And at first the second one seemed doomed to similar failure. Then it began to catch on. It deserves the success. It is one of the most delightful pictures made in a long time, and one of the funniest. And Nino Martini, its handsome hero, has one of the most gorgeous voices that the movies have been able to lure from the operatic stage.

The entire cast of "The Gay Desperado" is excellent. Leo Carrillo nearly steals the picture. Miss Auer is irresistibly funny. Ida Lupino, as the heroine, is better than usual.

And young James Blakeley, playing the only serious role, is excellent. He is one of the ever-growing number of Social Registered New Yorkers who are making names for themselves in Hollywood, and when the picture was shown in New York the ermine-coated and top-hatted carriage turned out in force.

Those ever-watchful statisticians who check up on the popularity of radio performers are discovering that it's the comedians who forget the script occasionally to tuck in an amusing remark they've just thought up who are the most popular. Bing Crosby does it—and how much better those programs are since he returned from his vacation.

Very important people, these talent scouts for the big movie producers. And how they favor certain happy hunting grounds! One of their pet spots is a night club in New York called The Paradise.

The other night Samuel Goldwyn's scout was there, a fact hastily revealed to the cast of the floor show—or to most of them. Naturally, they played to him. But one girl didn't.

She is Joyce Duskin. She is quite tall, very pretty, and wants to sing. A while back in a newspaper she saw a call for girls to work in a night club. She'd never had experience of that kind, but she applied, and got a job. But—the last show isn't over till nearly three in the morning. That means sleeping late the next day, and leaves no time for music lessons. Possibly she was considering that fact when the movie scout was scouting her show—anyway, she didn't even know that he was there!

Claudette Colbert is still convalescing from her automobile accident. But as soon as she's well enough, she'll return to the cast of "The Maid of Salem." After that plans will be made for her next picture, "Woman Interne."

Among her other distinctions, Greta Garbo is the only movie personage rebelling against compulsory enrollment in the Screen Actors' guild who was not suspended by Actors' Equity. Lionel Barrymore was among twenty-four leading actors and actresses who were barred by Equity from appearing on the legitimate stage.

Paulette Goddard rushed off East for a vacation recently before settling down to work on the first of the two pictures in which Charlie Chaplin will direct her and at the same time raise her to stardom. He has broken a rule by buying a story, "Regency," for the second of these pictures—till now he's always written his own. He has rewritten many of his efforts, too, in days gone by, to make them suit his critical fancy.

Odds and Ends . . . Franchot Tone and James Stewart have just signed new contracts with Metro. It's reported that Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor will be married early in December. . . . despite rumors of his new devotion to Greta Garbo. . . . Joel McCrea, as a boy, adored the Westerns made by Bill Hart and Tom Mix—and says he won't be happy till he's made one himself. . . . Julia Sanderson and Frank Crummit are one of the most devoted couples on the air—off it, either, for that matter. . . . Clark Gable gave Carole Lombard a gold bracelet and a puppy for her birthday.

BELGIUM RETURNS TO NEUTRALITY

King Leopold's Move Is Seen as Final Collapse of Collective Security System Under the League; Weakens French Alliances.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

KING LEOPOLD of Belgium has announced that in the future the policy of his nation will be to withdraw "from the quarrels of our neighbors." This edict is destined, it is believed, to set up for Belgium a neutrality comparable with that which she heroically tried to protect during the World war.

In diplomatic circles, the king's action is taken to mean the final collapse of the system of collective security under the covenant of the League of Nations which had most of the props knocked out from under it with the failure of sanctions against Italy in the Ethiopian incident.

Of course the whole idea of Articles X and XVI of the covenant is that all the signatory nations will pitch in together against a power that attacks one of them. The two articles are actually, in theory at least, the mainspring of the league.

Any neutral nation which sought to embrace the protection of the collective security plan immediately forfeited its neutrality. The general belief at the time the league was founded was that neutrality would be impossible for any European nation in the next war. Wilson himself was a subscriber to this belief.

Along with Belgium, the Scandinavian nations gave up their neutrality to enter the league. Switzerland entered only upon the condition that the league make her an exception and recognize her neutral position.

France, ever since the close of the World war, has been fearful of German revenge upon her, especially since the growth of the Nazi government under Adolf Hitler, whose militarized mind breaks the shackles intended for the Germans, as the losers of the war, like so many twigs.

Hoping to strengthen her protection against Germany, France added to her benefits of collective security by making a number of alliances with other powers, always with the "western front" in view.

No one can deny that, if France were to face a hostile neighbor of greater population and industrial power than herself with any sort of equality, these alliances were necessary. The crowning achievement in the French diplomatic campaign was the treaty with Soviet Russia engineered by Louis Barthou, since deceased.

This pact realized for Germany, whose territory centers the continent, the fear of an alliance of mutually hostile nations facing her on both the western and the eastern borders.

Alliances Weakened. King Leopold's neutrality pronouncement was received with much joy in Berlin, because Reichsfuhrer Hitler regards it as a sign of the breaking down of the French collective security alliances. It meant the breaking of an alliance between Belgium and France which had stood since 1920, and it reduced the length of the "hostile border" on Germany's west by one-third. If, as many informed persons believe, Hitler is interested only in defending the western border, and has no concealed notions of attacking nations beyond it, this should make his job that much easier.

The reason for Hitler's concentration of arms along the western borders, it is believed, is a sort of "compensation" for threats implied by French alliances with powers in central and eastern Europe. When Der Fuehrer militarized the Rhine zone he made more difficult the chances of France's aiding any ally in the central or eastern regions.

The Belgian neutrality makes this more difficult than ever. Belgium had participated with France in the occupation of the Ruhr.

Under the old Franco-Belgian treaty of 1920, France could have moved forces into the Rhine region, but Belgium would not necessarily be obliged to. It would have been possible, however, that Belgium could have fallen under obligation to attack Germany without having been invaded by German forces.

trality. Belgium cannot help but have become alarmed at the new military strength of Germany under Hitler and his brown shirts. The rising growth of the German army must forebode something, they conclude, and if that something should come about, they want no part of it. Neutrality seems the most practical "out."

Russia Provides Scare. With recent developments wherein the Russians seem bound on lending aid to Communists in Spain, while Germany looks on with suspicion, it is apparent that any nation which had an allegiance with France would feel uneasy as long as the Franco-Soviet alliance exists.

Poland's pact with the French government is said to be about to fall apart because of the Soviet alliance, and it is believed that this same alliance was one of the chief instruments for making up King Leopold's mind to remain neutral.

There were some reports that King Leopold's declaration did not mean a complete severance of alliances with France and Great Britain, but was merely intended as an expression of "long-term" policy.

The king has declared: "Belgium's geographical situation compels us to maintain our military machine so as to dissuade our neighbors from using our territory to attack another state."

Suiting actions to the word, Belgium has made an additional appropriation of $100,000,000 for strengthening its defenses. Also, the length of military service required has been stepped up.

Last March, after the Hitler invasion of the demilitarized Rhine zone, Britain, France and Belgium entered into an agreement which provided for frequent consultations of the general staffs of each nation. The chief topic of conversation, naturally, is what to do in case Germany decides to move westward.

Britain's Interest Vital. There are two ways in which France may look at the new returned Belgian neutrality. If it includes strengthening of Belgian military forces as it seems to, then France should be thankful, for it will be just that much more difficult for Germany to invade France through Belgium, so this policy is no hindrance to them.

King Leopold might conceivably mean—although it is scarcely probable that he does—that if Germany were to attempt to reach Paris through Belgium, he would not permit French troops in his country in an attempt to set back the invasion, or that he would not allow British airplanes to soar over his land and drop bombs upon the German soldiers.

It is known that Britain, to protect her frontier, which she now considers to be the Rhine, has plans involving the use of Belgian flying fields, as well as those of northern France. There is no wonder she is vitally interested in the exact extent to which Belgium intends to carry neutrality.

Unconscious Influence. We are touching our fellow-beings on all sides. They are affected for good or for evil by what we are, by what we say and do, even by what we think and feel. May flowers in the parlor breathe their fragrance through the atmosphere. We are each of us as silently saturating the atmosphere about us with the subtle aroma of our characters. In the family circle, beside and beyond all the teaching, the daily life of each parent and child mysteriously modifies the life of every person in the household. The same process on a wider scale is going on through the community. No man liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. Others are built up and strengthened by our unconscious deeds; and others may be wrenched out of their places and thrown down by our unconscious influence.

HISTORIC MURDER

ONE hundred and ten years ago a man was murdered and as a direct result of that crime we now have, every four years, national conventions of delegates from every state and territory in the Union to nominate candidates for President and vice-president. Here's how it came about:

In 1826 William Morgan of Batavia, N. Y., published a book which purported to reveal the secrets of Freemasonry. Soon afterwards he disappeared and the Masons were not only accused of having kidnaped him and drowned him in the Niagara river but also of blocking a proper investigation of his disappearance. From western New York, opposition to the Masons spread to other states and several demagogic young politicians, among them Thurlow Weed and William H. Seward of New York and Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania, seized upon the movement to promote their own ambitions.

The result was the organization of the Anti-Masonic party and in September, 1830, the first Anti-Masonic convention, the first national convention of any party, was held in Philadelphia, attended by 96 delegates from ten states. It was decided to hold another convention the next year to nominate candidates for President and vice-president and this meeting was to be composed of as many delegates from each state as there were representatives in both houses of congress.

Accordingly in September, 1831, the convention was held in Baltimore and it nominated for President William Wirt of Maryland, who had been attorney-general in Monroe's cabinet, and for vice-president Amos Ellmaker of New York. In the election of 1832 these candidates won only the electoral vote of Vermont. Later this party was absorbed by the Whigs and lost its identity, except in Pennsylvania where it elected a governor in 1835 and continued as a separate party for a few years.

But during the Anti-Masonic party's short existence it had pointed the way for others to follow in the method of choosing candidates. It gave them the national nominating convention and while convention procedure has since been changed in many ways, from that day to this the fundamental principle upon which it was based has remained unchanged—democratic representation of the party constituency.

KANSAS CAMPAIGNER

THE state of Kansas is in the limelight this year because for the first time in history a nominee of one of the major parties comes from the Sunflower state. Moreover, it has two candidates for the presidency—Gov. Alf. M. Landon heading the Republican ticket and Earl Browder of Wichita, the leader of the Communist party.

This is not the first time, however, that a Kansas has been a nominee. Back in 1884 there was another, also a governor. His name was John Pierce St. John, a native of Indiana, an adventurer in California in the gold rush days, a lawyer in Illinois and a soldier in the Civil war, rising to the rank of lieutenant-colonel of an Illinois volunteer regiment. After the war he moved to Missouri where he practiced law for a time and became noted as a political orator. In 1869 he moved to Kansas where he was to win his greatest renown.

He served in the state senate in 1874 but declined re-election and in 1878 was elected governor by the Republican party. Re-elected in 1880, he won the Republican nomination for a third term in 1882 but was defeated in the election.

Always a pronounced enemy of the liquor traffic, St. John was nominated for President on the Prohibition ticket in 1884 and polled a total of 151,809 votes. This was 20,000 more than the vote for Butler, the candidate of the "Greenbackers," so that he was the "runner-up" in the race between Cleveland and Blaine.

During his canvass for the presidency, St. John traveled extensively over the United States making speeches in behalf of the "dry" cause. In fact, during his 14 years of public life he is said to have hung up a record of travel exceeded by few candidates for office. He traveled more than 300,000 miles by rail, during which time he never had an accident nor was sick a day and made a total of 4,000 speeches, missing but four engagements in all that time.

Norwegian Pagan Festival

Originally a Norwegian pagan festival in honor of the sun, St. Hans eve is celebrated throughout the country with bonfires, dancing and merry-making the whole night through. In Oslo, the entire population, it seems, either boats out to islands in the fjord or goes out onto the tops of near-by mountains for the celebration. Bonfires are lighted on every hill, and at the outdoor museums here and at Lillehammer, great demonstrations of folk dancing are given.

"Oh, Bill!" said Jane. "Don't think of me—do just as if I were not here." She threw her own arms around his neck, and their lips met again in passionate appeal.

"Then come, Jane. We must dash through this pine before that fire you hear roaring catches up to us."

"Is that awful roar from a fire, Bill?"

"It is. It's our worst danger. Let's go, Jane."

To cross the wide belt of pine their course lay obliquely downhill. If anything were needed to spur them on, the thunder of the fire sweeping down the forest behind served as a dread warning that they had only minutes left to escape disaster.

Halfway down the ridge, Denison paused to rest Jane in his arms. She was panting like an antelope.

"Brave girl!" he murmured. "Not a sob—not a tear—"

"But we must hurry, Bill," she panted.

"Get a little breath for the next run."

"Can we make it, Bill, dear?"

"We've got to make it," he muttered. "I'll save you, Jane, if it's the last thing I do in life."

"Don't save me unless you save yourself—remember that!"

"Come! We must make the spring—the spring!"

The timber was thinning, the ground growing rougher. The frontiersman and cowman who had gone through every adventure that befalls a man in a life of danger and escape made little of finding safe footing from rock to rock. But his charge had a harder time trying to keep her feet and to keep the pace. Denison offered to carry her. She would not hear of it.

He himself saw, before Jane realized it, that the end of her strength was at hand. Striving vainly to keep up, she stumbled and with a little moan fell forward on the ground. Denison picked her up in his arms. She could not speak; only panted. Her heart, pressed against his breast, pounded like a hammer.

"Put me down, Bill! Put me down!" she sobbed when she could breathe and form the words. "You must save yourself! Is the spring far, now?"

"Not far. Clasp your arms tight around my neck," was all he said, leaping along.

"You can't save us both; save yourself. You are dearer to me than my life, Bill."

"So are you to me. Hang on," he panted. "I'll never put you down!"

After another run he paused. "Bill, I can run a little now. Let me try it!"

"Please, dear! Let me try!"

He shook his head and struggled on the fire was only minutes behind him its roar deafening.

A cry roused Jane in his arms.

"The spring!"

She cried to him in happy answer.

There was not an instant to spare. He slid down the steep side of the hollow that enclosed the spring. Jane, still in his arms, he rolled into the pool and lay panting beside her. The shock of the icy water revived her. He soured her head into the water. The pool was wide enough to submerge Jane, but not himself. He rolled in the shallower edge, wet himself all over and, holding her head just clear of the surface as she spluttered and coughed, gave her orders: "Keep your face down. Don't, don't open your eyes. You're safe if you do exactly as I say."

Savage flames burst above their heads. The burning air showered searing fragments of bark and branch on them as they lay huddled, comforting each other with words. "Breathe carefully, Jane," he cried in her ear. "This air will wear your lungs. Fill your nose and mouth with water. Spit and splutter it out. My God, it is upon us!"

The heart of the fire was on them. They could no longer hear or think. Flame belled and danced. Tongues of fire licked at their hiding heads. Denison mechanically dipped water into Jane's hair. Consciousness was nearly gone. Only the effort to live and the fierce instinct to protect the one he loved animated him.

With their trial of endurance almost at an end, a sudden explosion burst in the air above them. Denison, forgetting his caution, opened his eyes in the fear that a tree was falling. His eyeballs were scorched in a fraction of a second. He dashed his face back into the water; but mischief had been done.

At last the terrific outburst abated. With the hope of life reanimated, the two rose in the pool in their steaming clothing. Darkness fell from the sky above, but the forest was lighted with smoking and burning tree torches, the afterglow of its destruction.

The two who had passed through and escaped a hideous catastrophe stood clasped in each other's arms thanking God and delirious in a newfound, lull-time happiness.

"Water!" exclaimed Denison. "I'm perishing, in spite of my cold bath. Aren't you thirsty?"

"Yes, but not suffering. I didn't have to carry you, you know."

Moving a few feet up to the basin of the spring itself, they pushed aside debris from the water's surface, drank from their cupped hands and dashed water over their faces.

"Jane," said Denison when he rose again, "it was almost worth it for the way it's brought you and me together."

"It was," she whispered. "I've given you my trust."

"For all time, Jane?"

"For all time, Bill. Nothing shall ever part us, now."

CHAPTER VIII

Picking their way haltingly and cautiously down through smoking pines, dodging burning limbs that snapped and crackled menacingly overhead or crashed to the ground about them, the refugees emerged from the forest and could see that Denison's ranch buildings had escaped the flames.

The instant they reached the ranch house, Denison ran to the well, filled the water bucket, and carried it to Jane. Sitting on the ground, bareheaded, they slaked their thirst out of the dipper together.

Denison turned to the corral. Jane, who had gone into the house, had got the fire going and was slicing bacon when she heard the clatter of hoofs outside, and angry voices.

"Where's my daughter, you damned scoundrel?" were the first words she uttered. The sound of the voice that uttered them sent her running, the knife still in her hand, to the door.

Amazed to dumbness, she saw her father and McCrossen in the saddle, facing Denison, who stood at the gate of his corral.

"Van Tumbel," Denison spoke carefully, "you're too old a man for me to quarrel with. Just remember you're on my property and keep a civil tongue in your head. I've taken more of your abuse in years gone by than I ought to take. Now put your question civilly."

"I don't want no truck with you, Denison," shouted Van Tumbel, raging. "Where's my girl?"

McCrossen had raised about and was starting for the house. "Swing back here, McCrossen," Denison sang

"I didn't come out here to be grossly insulted," she retorted.

"Where's your pony?"

"Heavens knows where it is, or where Bill Denison's is. I hope they're not burned up."

"Well, come along home. McCrossen will lend you his horse."

"He needn't. I will walk home just as soon as I have cooked some bacon for Bill Denison."

"Come along now."

"Did you hear me? I'll come home—each word was defiantly emphasized—when I have made coffee and cooked bacon for Bill Denison. When you get home, be kind enough to ask Bill Page to saddle a horse for me and bring it over." With this, Jane walked swiftly back to the cabin. Van Tumbel, in a muttering rage, followed by McCrossen, started home.

A slender supper was at length got together. Then Jane made Denison lie back in a chair and submit to cold compresses on his eyes.

Waiting for Bill Page proved no hardship, but when the hands of Denison's little alarm clock pointed to midnight it dawned on Jane that her request had been ignored and that her father or McCrossen had meant she should walk home or compromise herself by staying all night at Denison's.

She boiled a bit inside when she realized the situation, but prepared to walk. To this Denison would not listen. He got up two ponies—he had but one extra saddle—and, despite her objections and protests, insisted on riding home with her.

It needed no announcer in the morning to tell Jane that her father had come home. She lay, exhausted and with every bone in her body aching, beyond her usual rising time. But there was an unusual scurrying about outside her room. Quong, old and winked, was the only man of the household not in the least perturbed by the surprise return of Van Tumbel.

Jane came to the table as her father was leaving it. "I want to see you after breakfast," was the gruff greeting he vouchsafed Jane.

She found Van Tumbel seated at his desk in his bedroom, looking over bills. Jane went up to him.

"I could hardly believe my eyes when I saw you yesterday, father," she said coldly. "Did the doctor give you permission to come home?"

After a shuffling of papers came the first shot at Jane: "What did you fire McCrossen for?"

"Because he refused to obey orders," she retorted instantly.

"Whose orders?"

"My orders."

"Who owns this ranch?"

"You do, and," she added, keen-eyed, "you made me manager."

"I'll take that job off your shoulders. McCrossen is foreman here now. And I am boss. Now what about this skunk, Denison?"

"What about Mr. Denison, father?"

"He's a crook. And as long as you live, keep away from him."

"What has he ever done to you that's wrong, father?"

"He and his brother's been trying for five years to beat me out of Gunlock Spring and all that ranch land back of it."

"That's part of what he's done to me. He's stole my cattle besides. McCrossen is the only man that stayed by me through thick and thin. McCrossen's the right man for you. You can get married tomorrow if you want to."

"I haven't the slightest idea of getting married tomorrow, father. And if Mr. McCrossen were the only man left, I certainly should never marry. There's not a straight hair in his head. He's been robbing you for years."

"Sounds like that skunk Denison's been filling your ears for you."

"Bill Denison's barely ever mentioned McCrossen's name to me."

"Well, keep away from Denison for good, don't forget that."

Jane flinched inwardly but spoke low and clearly: "I can't promise that, father."

"Why not?"

"I don't think it's right."

"Ain't I your father?"

"Yes."

"Ain't a parent a-goin' to be obeyed?"

"If he is reasonable. I'm not a child, father."

He grew furious. "I don't give a damn what you are, you're a-goin' to take up with any enemy of mine, 'n' you might just as well know it now—and I'll see that you don't."

Van Tumbel, quitting the house, rode with McCrossen, to determine what further measures should be taken to insure safety for the ranch buildings. The two men halted at the foot of Gunlock Knob.

"A lot of good timber gone in that blaze, Van," muttered McCrossen.

Van Tumbel was silent for a moment. "The ranch ain't worth as much as it was yesterday, that's sure," he said at last. Then after another pause: "I wouldn't mind the timber if the damned fire had held on till it cleaned out Denison."

Both were looking down on the neighbor's ranch.

"I wish I was rid of that fellow." Van Tumbel's words fairly grated out of his harsh throat. Why couldn't that blamed fire have cleaned out his buildings yesterday?

"It was a close scratch. If the wind had shifted—"
