METHODIST CHURCH

The subject for the morning sermon next Sunday will be the statement in the Apostles' Creed in reference to God, the son: the church's faith in Jesus Christ what it is. At the evening hour, the subject will be the statement in reference to the Holy Ghost. These messages will complete the expression of the church's faith in God, having delivered the message of God, the Father, last Sunday. We are hoping to have a full house at each of these services next Sunday. These statements in the Creed constitute the heart of the Gospel, especially that about the son. We are so accustomed to say "I believe in Jesus Christ", but just what do I believe about Him? About His Name? His Office? Then the subject for the evening hour, "I believe in the Holy Ghost", what do I believe about Him? There are so many "foolish things" claimed about the Holy Ghost. He has a specific, definite, essential work to perform in the salvation of the lost, equal to that of the Son. Let us study this together next Sunday. May we not expect you to be present? Thank you. I shall meet you next Sunday on time at the Methodist Church.

Clarendon Hatchery

To Speak Here

B. M. Hall of Bethany Peniel College at Bethany, Okla., and Rev. Buddy Robinson of Pasadena, Calif., will be here Friday night at 7 o'clock at the Methodist Church, under auspices of the Nazarene Church. Rev. Robinson is widely known and has traveled extensively.

The public is cordially invited to come out and hear them.

Hatchery Modernized

The Clarendon Hatchery operated by Frank White Jr. has undergone a large number of improvements this year. Mr. White has gone to great expense to make the hatchery modern and up to date in every respect. Temperature in the two large incubators is thermostatically controlled, a variation of 1 degree being sufficient to cause a warning bell to ring. The incubators are kept at a temperature of 90 degrees both summer and winter. Through a modern ventilating system, the stale air in the incubators is constantly replaced with fresh washed air. Expensive fans keep the air circulating over the eggs.

All in all, the hatchery is as well equipped as any in this section, and would be a credit to a much larger city.

We are sorry to learn of the death of W. G. Ballard's mother at Quitaque Tuesday. Mr. Ballard and family and T. O. McLaughlin and family went to Quitaque to attend the funeral services, which were to be held Thursday. We were unable to obtain further information.

The Informer extends sympathies to the bereaved ones.

Doris Mendenhall of Wichita Falls visited here this week.

Ronald Golladay, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Golladay of Memphis, has been ill with pneumonia.

O. J. Ellis and family have moved to Aubrey, Texas. Hedley friends wish them good luck in their new home.

Rev. B. J. Osborn, Robt. Watkins and Messames Masterson, Osborn and Trostle attended the meeting of "The Bishops' Crusade" at Amarillo last Tuesday. It was a great gathering of the Methodists of Northwest Texas. In addition to the Bishops of the Methodist church who were present, the first native Bishop of the Methodist church of Brazil was present. He was one of the principal speakers. He tried to speak without his interpreter, and it was fairly well understood, and very interesting.

Marvin Bales of Vernon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bales of Hedley, won a trip to Chicago by being the best salesman in 17 Montgomery Ward stores.

Gene Wilson, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Caldwell, was painfully scalded last week. He is reported better.

Wanted—Car load of bones. Nice clean bleached bones $5 per ton. Carcasses and meat bones $4. Will buy any amount.

C. C. Stanford, Phone 48

For Sale—2 Farmall tractors, 3 mares, 5 horses, priced to sell.

Basketball

Hedley visited Clarendon Jan 15, to play basket ball. The bus left here about 8:30.

The girls played a very good game but were defeated. The boys were ahead the first half, but Clarendon gained two points on them the last half, making the score 15 to 13.

Future Homemakers Club

The Future Homemakers are developing in organization. We have planned our year books, have secured a motto, and have big plans for the new year. We have done one act of charity already and are striving to do other things. We are following our motto which says: "There is as much art in making a barren house into a glistening comfort as there is in painting a picture or in writing a poem." All of our ambitions now are toward being an all round girl.

A New Face in the Family Album

Act I: Mock Funeral

Supt. Payne, represented by Fred Wells, and his wife, Mrs. Hedley high school, played by Theresa Bain, were deeply grieved this morning over the death of their son, the Senior class of 1936. Dr. Jackie Ranson pronounced the class dead about 9:00 this morning. Undertaker Glenn Milner took charge of the body until the funeral. Rev. Olen Pank conducted the funeral. Pallbearers were Ules Holland, Willis Thomas, Lawrence Hunkl, and Stephen Milner. A special number in song was given by the Senior class of 1937. "I Am Glad That You're Dead You Rascal! You Interment was made on the east side of the study hall wall, where all the other dead class pictures are buried. The class is survived by his parents and two brothers, Clyde Laurence and Jimmie Alward being an all round girl.

Act II: A New Son Born

The stock, represented by Thelma Tate greeted Mr. Payne and Mrs. Hedley high school with a new son this morning about 9:15. He has been named Senior class of 1937. His arrival was announced by the singing of Happy Days Are Here Again.

The Latest Hall Talk

Seniors, what's the rush? What! you haven't turned in your term theme yet? You haven't even read your material for it? You're rushing as though you were trying to join Malcom's and MacDoff's army to fight Macbeth. You wish you could? I don't blame you; I do too.

I heard the hall echoing what the Freshmen are pondering over "Does or does not this comma belong here or there." Yes, I also heard that the Sophomores are wondering whether As You Like It is just "as you like it." Juniors, I don't think there are any more paragraphs in the library or any where else, after all this scramble. I just wonder if any of you can pick out an illustrative paragraph. I'll bet you can't.

Book reports! The Sophomores are pretty quiet except the marmoring about book reports. I heard about all those forty Freshmen and Sophomores belated book reports.

Students, calm down. After all mid term just comes once a year.

Senior Girl Is Lucky

On Friday morning the high school students were asked to vote on three Senior girls. The faculty then choose one from the three receiving the highest number of votes. This name is sent off to the district and if drawn from a number of other names is sent to the state. These names are then drawn from, and the lucky girl wins a Ruth Bryan Owen Pig image to Washington D C on April 16.

It was a close race, but Theresa Bain was the lucky girl.

Sheriff's Notice of Sale

The State of Texas
County of Donley

Whereas, by virtue of a certain Order of Sale issued out of the District Court of Donley County, Texas, on a judgment rendered in said court on the 11 day of April 1935, in favor of the said Memphis Cotton Oil Company and against the said Vester Smith and Porter Smith and being No 1791 on the docket of said court, I did, on the 4th day of January 1937, at 10 o'clock A M levy upon the following described tracts and parcels of land situated lying and being in the County of Donley, State of Texas, and belonging to the said Vester Smith and Porter Smith to wit:

"Being two acres out of the northwest cor. of a 68 1/2 acre tract of land deeded to C. G. Aten and wife, by Wm Cameron and Co., as recorded in Book 4, page 291, of the deed records of Donley County, Texas, the said land being a part of section 64 in block C 6, G. C. S. F. Ry Co. survey and described as follows:

"Beginning at the northwest cor. of said 68 1/2 acre tract above described; thence south 49 degrees east with the north line of said 68 1/2 acre tract and to the line of the C. & G. Highway, 295 2 feet to a stake for the N. E. cor.

Debating

This year for the first time since 1931 students of Hedley high school have awakened the spirit of debating. The subject this year is Resolved, The Manufacture of Monitions Should be a Government Monopoly.

The ones thus interested so far are Jonimerle Pickett and Mary Rains Bridges for the girls and Lawrence Hunkl and Calvin Reed hope to defend their side for the boys. With Mr. Harmon as coach and with plenty of determination Hedley may again be recognized for her place in Texas.

Seretha Gunn Wins Prize

Mr. Payne offered two prizes of fifty cents and one dollar to the students of his biology class who would make the best posters on good health or anything pertaining to biology. The posters were judged Thursday afternoon and Friday morning Seretha Gunn was awarded one dollar for her first prize. Marie Stanford and Oeta Jones tied for second prize, and each one was given twenty five cents.

Mister X

Well, well, Clay Plunk's hobby is watering the ducks. I thought that was work not a hobby.

Calvin, if you want to know what time it is, go look at the clock in the office.

Folks, if you need any advertising done, see Fred Wells.

If it snows enough Mrs. Cannon is going to have to teach skating instead of music.

The English III class does make good grades sometimes. I think Jack Farris sees that little librarian entirely too much.

We can't quite figure out why the Seniors have suddenly turned to movie actors. Are they trying to crash Hollywood?

Did you know all the basket ball girls and boys smoked on the court at Goodnight?

Yes, steam. What is the mad rush in the English room? May I give a book report?

Says the Freshmen, "Believe it or not Marie Mloney is the author of Log Cabin Lady."

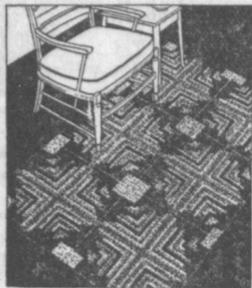

of this tract: thence south 295 2 feet to a stake for the S. E. Cor. of this tract; thence north 49 degrees west 295.2 feet to a stake in the west line of said 68 1/2 acre tract, for the S. W. cor. of this tract; thence north with the west line of said 68 1/2 acre tract 295 2 feet to the place of beginning and containing 2 acres of land more or less, and known as the Smith Bros. Gin, at Lella Lake, Texas, and situated in Donley County, Texas."

And on the 2nd day of February 1937, being the first Tuesday of said month between the hours of ten o'clock A. M. and four o'clock P. M. on said day, at the court house door of said county, I will offer for sale and sell at public auction, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the said Vester Smith and Porter Smith in and to said property.

Household Questions

Add chopped pickles, pimientos and olives to regular cabbage salad and you will concoct a tasty relish suitable to serve with fish, fowl or meat.

A cracked egg can be boiled if the shell is first rubbed with lemon juice. The acid coagulates the albumin and prevents it from cooking out of the crack.

Parchment shades, if they are shellacked and varnished, may be washed with white soap and water. A little furniture polish applied after washing helps to brighten them.

When making pastry, roll in one direction only if you want it to be light. Rolling first in one direction and then in another is almost sure to make it tough.

Try cleaning denim chairs with moist bread one day old. The end pieces will hold together best. Window shades and rugs can also be cleaned by rubbing with bread.

Period Influences Superb Fabrics

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FORMAL gowns for the midwinter social season are said to be the most sumptuous and extravagant seen at any time since pre-war days.

The "dress-up" movement is growing more and more so with each passing hour. From style centers come reports that an astonishing number of formals are selling this season and that the call for handsome afternoon gowns in rich metallics, velvets and laces is reaching far beyond the usual.

Gorgeous, glinting, gleaming, sparkling and arrestingly colorful are the fabrics and laces that are fashioning the luxury apparel noted at fashionable gatherings. Then, too, the trend to greater elegance is expressed in the emphasis placed on luxurious accessories, on flattering little dinner hats and elaborate evening headdresses.

Even more thrilling than the elegant materials and the vainglorious accessories that distinguish this season's formal modes are the various period influences that mark their styling. Designers, seeking inspiration for the costume creations, are delving into fashion lore of centuries past as they never delved before. The picturesque Tyrolean and Dalmatian mood is expressed in terms of colorful embroidery, which is generously used at present, and in other intriguing details that are adding greatly to the gaiety of current fashions. Boleros are flourishing in the mode both day and night, and in the evening the latest is to throw a lace mantilla over head and shoulders and wear a red, red rose for corsage—fashion has gone as picturesquely Spanish as that!

One of the most outstanding gestures toward recapturing styles of the past is the reincarnation of the lovely Empire gowns taken from the days of Josephine and Napoleon. The stately and very beautiful dresses worn by the standing figures in the illustration bespeak the new Empire move as interpreted by designers in the style apparel creator group of the Chicago wholesale district. In these gowns we see the modern woman transformed into a glamorous true-to-tradition Napoleonic type. The silhouette, as you see, achieves a fashionable figure launched with a new profile of erect carriage and imperious dignity, accenting a high bust and waistline, flat diaphragm, deep décolletage, short puff sleeves and long graceful skirt.

Superb lame weaves gleaming with gold and silver and striking color are used for these gowns. The gown to the left is of an eye-catching metal brocade in an alluring tangerine color. Handsome lame in a vivid emerald green fashions the center dress, with narrow green-metal ribbon accenting the high bust line.

The spirit of embellishment and splendor, in keeping with the new luxury trend, has invaded the lace realm also. Very lovely Chantilly laces have their floral patternings outlined in metal threadwork, while some laces add a decorative touch of embroidery or perhaps are starred with sequins, pearls and such. A dinner and evening ensemble stressing the vogue for the jacketed formal gown is attractively expressed in metallic-outlined Chantilly as worn by the seated figure in the picture. The neckline of the dress is square and the jacket ties softly with a bow. Which is the same as telling you when you buy lace for your frock it is not enough, you must allow an extra length for a jacket. In this way it serves a twofold purpose—with the jacket informal enough to wear to the simple dinner party, without the jacket a gown formal enough for the most pretentious evening occasion.

LACE MANTILLA

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

White metallized silk moire for a picturesque wide-skirted formal evening frock with a Spanish mantilla of black silk lace gracing shoulders and head, here indeed is the costume-ideal for the debutante to wear to mid-winter festivities. Such grand silks as we have with us this season! The silk moires are beloved indeed and they are lovely in white or colors. White shot with silver is supremely chic. And the new silk brocades! One can't describe them for their beauty is beyond word pictures. These brocades are stunning for princess evening coats that button down the front.

HATS NOT BECOMING TO AVERAGE WOMAN

The selection of becoming hats promises to be more difficult than ever this season. Seldom has there been such a generous choice, as far as actual style trends go, but most of the numerous different shapes prove unbecoming to the average woman.

Height still reigns supreme, although many milliners have tried to retain the more moderate, rounded and shallow crown. The tall crowns, still shaped like inverted flower pots, prevail on every type hat, but the turban. Some of these felts seem to be inspired by early Pilgrim days in America, while others look more like modern Alpine hats with taller crowns.

Adding Accessories Gives New Effects to Costumes

If you know your fashion arithmetic you will discover that one costume can be made into two by the addition of the right accessories. Take those black suits, for example, which have a modest bit of Persian lamb trimming on collar, cuffs and pockets. It doesn't matter whether the jacket is short or long, or whether it is fitted or swaggy—the choice of a blouse, hat and gloves determine the ensemble's perfection.

For afternoon and informal evening needs there are elegant blouses of metallic fabrics and satins, while for tailored needs the shirtwaist blouse with studs is the smartest you can find. Light gloves, dark gloves or bright gloves have their advantages as do hats of felt or velvet.

Skirts and Sleeves
While there are exceptions to this rule, in most cases plain sleeves are used on dresses when the skirt is flaring, and full sleeves on dresses having narrow skirts.

UNCOMMON AMERICANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

First War Correspondent

ON THE monument which they erected over his grave are inscribed these words: "He was a poet, journalist, author, and farmer—eminent in all." Yet this does less than justice to the career of George Wilkins Kendall.

A native of New Hampshire, Kendall became a printer at an early age and followed his trade in many cities. He was in New York in 1833 when an outbreak of the dreaded cholera caused him to take ship for New Orleans. There he entered the employ of a paper called the True American, and while working there conceived the idea of a new daily newspaper which should follow the policies that had made the New York Sun and Philadelphia Ledger so successful.

Taking into partnership Francis A. Lumsden, a fellow employee, Kendall launched the New Orleans Picayune in January, 1837. He was only twenty-eight at the time and his resources were small. But he was such an enterprising editor that the Picayune soon became one of the best known papers in the country.

At the outbreak of the War with Mexico in 1846, New Orleans became the chief outfitting point for the American forces. It was also the natural center of communication between the armies in the field and Washington. Kendall was quick to see the journalistic opportunity which this offered. He organized a system of relays of horses and riders between Mexico and New Orleans and of fast boats between New Orleans and Baltimore. Then he accompanied the armies of Scott and Taylor and began sending back vivid firsthand accounts of their battles, frequently writing his dispatches while cannon roared and bullets whistled around him.

Kendall supplied the government with its first knowledge of the battle of Buena Vista and it was again this enterprising journalist who informed Washington that the treaty of peace had been signed. He came out of the war with the title of major and a bullet in his knee, received at the storming of Chapultepec. In his later years he retired to a farm in Texas where he was a successful farmer and stock raiser and he died there in 1867.

Ambassador to His Native Land

HE WAS born a Yankee during the early days of the American republic. Forty years later, having helped establish a new American republic, he came back to his native land, the accredited minister to its government from the government of the younger nation of which he later became the last president. And that in brief is the paradoxical career of Anson Jones.

Born at Great Barrington, Mass., on January 20, 1798, young Jones decided to become a doctor. After several years study in Litchfield, Conn., he was licensed to practice in 1820. Then the wanderlust seized him and he wandered to Philadelphia, to New Orleans, to South America and finally settled in Texas in 1833.

At the outbreak of the troubles between Texas and Mexico he was among the first to advocate a declaration of Texas independence. When the war started he enlisted as a private but was soon appointed a surgeon in the Texas army of liberation. With it he served at San Jacinto and after the republic was founded he became representative from Brazoria to the Texan congress.

In 1838 he was appointed minister to the United States. Thus this Yankee came back to his homeland as an "ambassador" from a "foreign power." While in Washington, he was elected to the Texas senate and later became its president. During the second term of Sam Houston as president of the Lone Star republic, Jones was his secretary of state, and in 1846 he was elected president.

That was a critical year in the affairs of the new nation. There was talk of annexation by the United States and a sharp division of opinion arose among Texans over it. One of those who was opposed to it was the President. But the citizens of the republic voted overwhelmingly in favor of it and on December 29, 1845, the republic of Texas came to an end and the state of Texas succeeded it.

Bowing to the inevitable, Jones turned over the reins of government to James Pinckney Henderson, the first governor of the state of Texas, and retired to his home in Washington county. In 1857 he was prominently mentioned as a candidate for United States senator but he was destined never to return to Washington where he had once gone as "ambassador." In a fit of insanity he died by his own hand on January 8, 1858, convinced to the last that Texas had made a mistake in giving up its independence.

Pleasure Giving—

Talking to Advantage of Others and Joy to Ourselves in 1937

TALKING is the recognized medium of communication between persons who are together or who, being absent, use a telephone. It is unfortunate having such a marvelous medium at our command that we so often fail to put it to the use worthy of its value. It is possible to send a glow of happiness through the listener when we speak merited words of appreciation. It is possible to solace those in sorrow by words of comfort spoken from the heart. It is possible to make joy doubly glad some by expressing our happiness in the good fortune of others. Through talking to our children we can spur them on to do fine things, or encourage them in worthy resolves. In short the good we can do by talking in the right spirit is inestimable. By talking in the right way we bring good to others and joy to ourselves.

It is when we swerve from the best use of the spoken word that we drag it down and harm both ourselves and our hearers. There is an expression "too much talk" which is significant of this very thing. The words speak for themselves, declaring that it would be advisable to cease saying the things we are. It is never said of good words. Of them we could say: Let us have more talk of the same sort, it is needed.

Have you ever considered how much is said when derogatory talk is going on? Words are spoken and reiterated over and over again, as if by repetition the unpleasant things would be increased. Unfortunately this is what happens. Unkind or unfriendly conversation, by some perverse twist of human nature, is sure to be repeated, and usually with embellishments. Either the one who repeats it cannot believe her ears, and wonders if anyone else knows about the unfortunate circumstances, or else she finds a strange pleasure in repeating slander. It may be the derogatory words are against someone she dislikes. It may be they are about a total stranger. If the talk was commendatory repeating it would foster fine things. Good things should be given frequent repetition.

We all could add so much to the pleasure and joy of living during the new year 1937, if we would set a watch on our talk, and by a wishful determination use this great means at our command to help others. It is one of the things that costs nothing and yet which can do such an endless amount of good. It is a way open to all alike.

By a chance that rarely favors desperate measures, Denison sprang from the final leap across the bridge gap into a fringe of sand and willows that overgrew the eastern bridge approach.

Threading the undergrowth on his trembling horse, Denison got away from the bridge as fast as he could; somebody was still throwing rifle slugs toward it; but once away from the danger point, he lost no time in making himself heard. Out on the old trail the steers, alarmed by the shooting, and worried secretly by the two Indians, were milling, and McCrossen, shouting and cursing, was trying to bring order out of the confusion.

Denison, from the willows, called loudly, "Who's driving these cattle?"

"The man that owns 'em," shouted McCrossen, riding out into the open, fifty yards away. "Who the hell are you, hidin' in that brush? If you're a man, show yourself."

Denison pushed into the open. "You're driving this bunch, McCrossen?"

"I am. What do you want, Denison?" he demanded angrily.

"I want these steers, McCrossen. And I want you."

"These steers belong to me for wages, an' I've got twice as many back here yet. Now I've got just one word for you, Denison: Get out of my way an' keep out of my way."

"If you've got any rights in these cattle, turn 'em back to the Meadows and lay your claim for wages before the Stockmen's Claims Board," retorted Denison.

"What the hell's all this to you? Do you claim 'em?" demanded McCrossen savagely.

"I don't claim a hoof, but I want to talk with you, McCrossen, before you jump to the Panhandle."

"What about?"

"About who fired my ranch house and about Henry Sawdy."

"Tryin' to pick a quarrel with me, eh, Denison? Well, you needn't try very hard. I don't like you, Denison. I never did. I never had any use for you. Now will you pull off these bums that are millin' my steers?"

"Will you head 'em back for the Meadows and talk to me?"

"No!"

"No!"

The two refusals were fast. But while the second was being uttered, Rebstock cried, "Crowd him, Dave!" and fired at Denison.

The next instant three horsemen were plunging at one another on rearing horses and throwing their shots at one another in a very uncertain light.

Retreat was out of the thinking. Denison, caught between the two men, was forced to divide his fire. With a blow stinging his left arm, he jumped his horse past the two, whirled, and came back outside, with McCrossen shooting at him fast. The maneuver of Denison's put McCrossen into Rebstock's line of fire.

But hardly had Denison whirled when he felt a sickening blow in the stomach from McCrossen's gun, hardly ten yards away. He had been crouching on his horse's back and was already stirrup-loose. He slid off and rolled like a cat toward the brush.

Rebstock saw the trick but, forgetting that a wounded man is the most dangerous man, he yelled and spurred straight at him.

The horse refused the smell of blood. He shied. Rebstock spurred him. As the horse reared, the feeble light of the moon struck, for an instant, Rebstock's features. In that instant Denison fired point-blank at him.

The blow was terrible. Rebstock's arms jerked high, and his gun flew into the air. He sprang convulsively upward, toppled and, as his frightened horse whirled, lurched from the saddle to the ground. He never spoke again.

Fully expecting that McCrossen would ride in to finish him, Denison flipped open the loading gate of his gun instinctively, and punched out the empty shells.

His head in a whirl, expecting that any instant McCrossen would be on him, Denison tried to reload. Just as he got the cartridge into his revolver, he caught the sound of a horse's hoofs and then heard Bob Scott calling.

"Here, Bob," exclaimed Denison from the brush. "Look out for McCrossen."

Scott slipped off his horse. "McCrossen won't bother for a while. Are you hit, Bill?"

"I stopped a couple of slugs some-ow. What about McCrossen?" he asked irritably.

"He's lyin' over by the bridge. He wants to talk to you, Bill."

"Twist a tourniquet around this arm before I try it, Bob. Don't trust McCrossen. Have you got his guns? He'd like nothing better than another crack at me," muttered Denison, staggering, with Scott's help, to his feet.

"McCrossen's stripped clean," declared Scott. "He's dyin'. That's the plain truth. Can't you make up your mind to see what he wants?"

"Go ahead. But give me my gun and watch out," muttered Denison.

In the light of the moon, McCrossen, propped up by Fryin' Pan, reclined against the trunk of a half-grown tree. His eyes were closed.

"Here's Bill, Dave," Scott spoke low and gently. "You said you wanted to speak to him."

"Yes, Dave?" said Denison, haltingly.

"I'm done, Bill."

"Dave," exclaimed Denison, "I'm sorry it had to end this way."

"I talked pretty rough tonight," said McCrossen, brokenly, spitting the blood out of his throat.

"That's all right, Dave."

"Didn't really mean it all. You've always shot square, Bill. If some folks I've trained with had done that way, I mightn't be here tonight. Bill, a favor—"

"Go on, Dave."

"I've got an old-maid sister back East. She's all I've got. I'd hate her to know this come, rustlin', Bill."

"It'll never be said, Dave."

"Let it be a straight-out fight, Bill—you know."

"I know, Dave; I know. What's her address?"

"In my trunk, Bill," murmured McCrossen thickly. "Promise?"

"I promise."

"Give me—your hand."

Pardaloe was the first to reach Gunlock on the way home shortly before daylight. He rode in on his way to town to get hold of Dr. Carpy for Denison, whose condition worried him.

"I Know, Dave; I Know. What's Her Address?"

Fortunately the surgeon was already at Gunlock, whether he had been summoned to care for Sawdy.

With Sawdy's flesh wound already bandaged, Carpy sat in the living room, drinking a pot of coffee supplied by Jane.

He was enjoying in leisurely fashion his third or fourth cup of steaming stimulant when the sound of hoofs was heard. In a moment a resounding rap came at the door.

Jane started. In terrified appeal, she looked at the doctor. Carpy responded by calmly wiping his lips.

"Who's there?" he demanded curtly.

"Bill Pardaloe!" came the response. Carpy flung the door open.

Jane ran out of the bedroom. "Oh, Mr. Pardaloe!" she cried. "Where is Bill? Where is he?"

"He's on his way back to the hospital."

"Is he hurt? Is he wounded? Tell me!" cried the frantic girl.

"Why, no, yes—that is, he was aimin' to get back to the hospital before Doc found out he was gone," parried the veteran awkwardly.

Carpy intervened sternly: "Where is he now? Talk, Bill!"

"Ain't I talkin'?" exclaimed Jane unsteadily, but with cold decision.

"Why, what do you mean, girl?"

"I mean he's at Gunlock to stay. He's never going to leave it!"

(THE END)

"Where you from?" demanded Carpy, still stern.

"Deep Creek."

"Was there a fight?"

"There was a little brush, Doc."

"Was Denison wounded?"

"Why—I guess he was plinked, Doc, yes."

"Where was he hit?" demanded Carpy.

"In the forearm, Doc. We got a tourniquet on that—he got another in the stomach."

Carpy felt the force of the disclosure. "Is he bleeding at the mouth?" he thundered.

"Why, no, Doc. But he claims he's all in."

"We'll bring him out, if that's all. Who was in the fight? Talk fast!"

"Dave McCrossen and Barney—with Bill."

"Where are McCrossen and Rebstock?"

"Right where they were when John Fryin' Pan left me. He was on his way to the Reservation to hunt up a couple of bucks to bury 'em and bring in the cattle," said Pardaloe in matter-of-fact fashion.

"Sit down here, Bill. Jane," directed the doctor, "get the boy a pot of coffee."

"And boil plenty of clean water on the stove."

"Yes, doctor. Bill is going to stop here on the way in, isn't he, Mr. Pardaloe?" asked Jane, tremulously.

Pardaloe nodded. "Ought to show up after while. They're ridin' kind of slow."

Jane ran to the kitchen. She roused Quong to heat the water and came back with supplies.

"No," continued Pardaloe, deep in a saucer of hot coffee, "I didn't see it. I was over on the west side of the creek—it's bad crossin' there. I don't know how Bill came up. They never could-a got him across down there. We cut over the reservation and plugged for Gunlock—"

He pricked up his ears and interrupted himself. "Shucks! That sounds like somebody now!"

Jane listened eagerly. "I can't hear anyone," she said.

"You will in a minute. There they are again."

Jane ran for the door. "Hold on a minute, Missy," exclaimed Pardaloe. "Let's make sure who it is."

He opened the door himself, stepped quickly outside, and shut it behind him. Within a very few minutes, ages to Jane, she heard the stamping of horses. Pardaloe flung the door open and called for Carpy. Jane hurried out with him.

Drooping low, Denison, iron-willed, had stuck to the end of the grueling ride. Scott told how they had followed up the east bank of the creek—he himself on Rebstock's horse; how by great good fortune they had found a flask of whisky in Rebstock's saddlebag, and that this had helped revive the wounded man when they halted to "spell" him; and how they had crossed Deep Creek at a reservation ford not far below Gunlock ranch.

Carpy and Pardaloe lifted Denison down from the horse. Jane supported his head and stooped to caress him and murmur low words. They laid him on her bed.

While Carpy tore open Denison's clothing and made a hasty examination, buckets of hot water were brought in.

The surgeon, with wearied back, presently straightened up. "Jane," he said solemnly, "you're a lucky girl. The bullet that meant death for your boy struck his belt buckle and tore around his side. Look here. This was all I was afraid of, this stomach wound. I didn't think so much about Bill, here. But, Jane, I didn't want you fixing for a funeral when you ought to be fixing for a wedding! We'll get him back to the hospital in a few days."

"Oh, no, Doctor," exclaimed Jane unsteadily, but with cold decision.

"Why, what do you mean, girl?"

"I mean he's at Gunlock to stay. He's never going to leave it!"

UNCOMMON AMERICANS

"Magnificent Failure"

IN ALL the history of missionary work in America, there is no more remarkable record than that of David Zeisberger. For 63 years he labored among the Indians and during that time he traveled many thousands of danger-filled miles through the wilderness on foot and by canoe. He built no less than 13 Indian towns as centers of Christianity in a heathen land and he lived to see all but one of them wiped out of existence. He had failed but truly his was a "magnificent failure."

Zeisberger was born in Moravia in 1721 and in 1740 came to Georgia where his church was organizing a mission among the Creeks. Next he was sent to Pennsylvania where he aided Count Zinzendorf in building the Moravian towns of Nazareth and Bethlehem.

Beginning his work among the Delawares at Shamokin, Pa., he was adopted by the Munsey tribe of that nation. Then he went to New York where the Six Nations made him a sachem and keeper of their records, an unusual honor for a white man. When the French and Indian war began he was compelled to return to Bethlehem because both French and English were suspicious that his charges were partisans.

After Pontiac's conspiracy had been crushed in 1763 the Moravian led his flock to Wyalusing, Pa., and established two more missions: on the Allegheny and the Beaver. Then the call for service beyond the Ohio came to him and in 1772 he founded Schoenbrunn ("Beautiful Spring"), the first white settlement in the future Buckeye state. Next the town of Gnadenhuetten was established and an era of peace began.

But trouble was brewing for him. Although Zeisberger restrained the Delawares from taking part in the Revolutionary conflict, he soon found that he was under suspicion by both the British and the Americans. The British stirred up the Wyandots to break up the mission at Schoenbrunn and its teachers were tried as American spies. Finally in 1782 came the crowning blow, when a party of brutal Americans committed the hideous massacre of 96 Christian Indians at Gnadenhuetten. The broken-hearted Zeisberger started with the remnants of his flock on a journey which took them first to Michigan, then back to Ohio and finally to Canada where he founded Fairfield on the Thames river.

In 1798 the Moravian Indians and their leader came back to the Tuscarawas river in Ohio where Zeisberger founded his last town—Goshen. There his "long life of amazing fortitude, faith and patience" came to an end in 1808.

Real Estate Promoter

THOUGH you may regard real estate promoters as products of modern times, the fact is one of the greatest "put over his deal" early in the history of the republic. His name was Joel Barlow and he was a lawyer, a diplomat and a poet, which may account for the fact that once "his siren voice persuaded a group of French emigrants to seek a Garden of Eden in Ohio."

Back in 1787 two groups of land speculators, known as the Ohio Associates and the Scioto Associates, secured the right from congress to purchase land in the Northwest territory with the almost-worthless Continental currency with which it had paid off soldiers of the Revolution. Then the Scioto Associates sent Barlow to France to dispose of these lands. They had nothing but an option on the lands but that didn't stop Barlow.

He sold a tract of 3,000,000 acres to a French Scioto company which in turn retained farms to peasants and artisans who were willing to emigrate to America. In the spring of 1790 some 600 of them arrived in Alexandria, Va. William Duer, head of the Scioto Associates, was filled with dismay for there were neither agents to meet them nor lands ready for them.

Foreseeing the trouble that was ahead when hundreds more land-hungry Frenchmen arrived, Duer hastily arranged to take over lands of the Ohio Associates, who owed him money. For this debt he got nearly 200,000 acres on the Ohio river opposite the mouth of the Great Kanawha.

There he brought the Frenchmen and in October, 1790, the town of Gallipolis was founded. Rufus Putnam was engaged to build their huts for them but Duer soon found that it would be impossible to fulfill all the glowing promises which Barlow had made—to provide good homes and profitable occupation for the skilled artisans among them. By 1792 Duer had gone bankrupt, land titles were still in a bad tangle and the settlement of Gallipolis began to dwindle. For years thereafter congress had to listen to many a tale of woe from the victims before their claims were settled.

It's Harder to Lose Pounds Than It Is to Gain More of Them

Overweight Generally Has But One Cause and That Is Overeating.

"The slim, the irritable, the hungry woman takes on the proportion of one of our minor menaces," says Fannie Hurst in her amusing little book, "No Food With My Meals." Miss Hurst is writing frankly from her own experience in attempting successfully to lose pounds. She admits herself that although she undertook her reduction program under the direction of the doctor, she was not content with the comparatively slow results and cut still further the low calorie diet which the physician gave her.

It is one of the mysteries of life that it is much harder to lose added pounds than it is to gain them. The bathroom scales, which are now so general a part of equipment, enable us to keep a check on weight. It is not so easy for those extra pounds which creep upon us unaware as it was once upon a time. A few days of dieting in time will save the slender figure. Remember, however, that, in general, the addition of a few extra pounds with the years is an asset. They are usually needed to balance those lines which the years write.

Unless there is some glandular deficiency, overweight has but one cause, namely, overeating. The avoidance of more calories than are needed for use by the body for its own processes and for the activity of our lives may usually be a simple matter if there are no between meal sweets and no over-indulgence in bread, butter, other fats and rich desserts with meals. Not complete avoidance! It is only the second helpings that are usually responsible for undue weight gain. Looking out for that pound in time will actually save time. Just one word of warning, however, don't advertise publicly your diet program.

Bunyan Created Lakes

Elk and Torch lakes, the beautiful finger lakes that stretch parallel for miles along the shore of Lake Michigan near Elk Rapids, date back to the days of Paul Bunyan, according to the old lumberjacks.

Lake Michigan, they say, was scooped out by the mighty Paul, to be used as a log pond. Instead of skidding the logs into a stream and floating them down to his pond Paul would hitch onto a section of land and drag it over to the lake, log off the timber, and then haul the section back.

One day Paul hooked onto a particularly heavy timbered section near the Boardman and started Babe, the blue ox, out to haul it over to the lake. There had been a heavy rain, the ground was greasy, and Babe's feet slipped.

Torch and Elk lakes remain, an eternal testimonial to the blue ox and the time his feet slipped.—Detroit Free Press.
