Mrs. J. B. Stogner

The many friends of the family here were deeply grieved last week to learn of the death of Mrs. J. B. Stogner of Idalou, who passed away at the family home there Saturday afternoon, Jan. 18. Funeral services were conducted Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at Idalou, by the Baptist pastor there. The body was then brought overland to Clarendon, where a short service was conducted by Rev. M. E. Wells of this city, and interment was made in the Citizens Cemetery, under direction of the Littlefield Funeral Home.

The Stogner family were residents of Donley county for many years, having moved here from Denton county some 25 or 30 years ago. They lived here until 1930, when they moved to St. Vrain, N. Mex., from where they moved to Idalou, their present home.

Mrs. Stogner was converted at an early age and united with the Baptist Church. She was a devout member of the church, showing in her kindly deeds and neighborly acts a true interpretation of the spirit of Christ. She was deeply devoted to her home and family, proving herself in her daily life a virtuous, Christian wife and mother. She had been ill for several years and had been bedfast for six months, but bore her affliction courageously and without complaint.

Besides her husband, who is also dangerously ill, Mrs. Stogner is survived by five children, Truman and Helia of California, Lorene and J. L. of Idalou, and Birdie of near Memphis.

The Informer joins a host of other friends here in extending sincere sympathies to the bereaved ones.

Those from Hedley who attended the services at Clarendon were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Franklin, Claud and John Nash, Mrs. W. C. Bridges, Mrs. W. I. Raines, J. W. Bland, E. L. Woodrow, and Jack Farris, and T. E. Bailey.

Circle 1, Monday 8 p. m. Circle 2, 7:30 p. m.

Prayer meeting, Wednesday 7 p. m.

Last Sunday, the subject for the morning hour was, "I believe in Jesus Christ." At the evening hour it was, "I believe in the Holy Ghost." This completes the first division of the Apostles' Creed, which is the Church's faith in God.

Next Sunday at the evening hour the subject will be the second division of the Apostles' Creed, the Church's faith in the Holy Catholic Church. This is the general criticism of the Apostles' Creed by several of the denominations, and even by some Methodists. If rightly understood, I believe all Christians could heartily say, "I believe in the Holy Catholic Church." If there is one thing that I do not believe in, and heartily detest, it is the Roman Catholic Church.

I hereby extend a warm invitation to all who will, to hear us next Sunday evening, 7 o'clock at the Methodist Church. There is an open door and warm hearts to greet all.

Hedley P. T. A.

In spite of inclement weather a small group of parents and teachers met Thursday evening at 7:00.

Because of illness all members on the program were absent except one. Mrs. Alva Simmons' splendid discussion of the place of music in the home was worth more than a cold ride to hear. Among the pictures that a child takes later into life of his home hearthside, there hangs none more beautiful than the family group gathered near an instrument singing in happy unison. Music in the home simplifies discipline problems, and it strengthens and endears home ties.

The group appointed a committee to consult with Mr. Payne for deciding where the money allotted by the P. T. A. should be spent to meet the immediate needs, except $12.50 was allowed to the primary grade to supply milk for lunches.

The next meeting of the P. T. A. will be February 17, at 8:15 in the afternoon. This program is a Founder's Day Commemoration and tree planting combined. Do not forget to come or bring your Founder's Day offering.

Please remember the change in the above program.

New shipment of spring prints arrived at Hooker's. Come in and see them.

Shower

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tollett were the honor guests at a delightful shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hooker Wednesday night of last week. They received a large number of beautiful and useful gifts, which certainly were appreciated.

The shower was sponsored by the members of the Church of Christ Sunday School class, and was attended by a large number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Tollett.

III TRUCK LEGISLATION

Any change in existing Texas truck laws which will increase the present 7,000-pound load limit will affect adversely all communities in the state, both rural and urban. This statement is proved best by identifying the causes and effects upon Texas communities.

These are:

1. Increasing truck loads mean correspondingly increasing the distance which the truck can profitably carry its load.
2. Increasing the distance of profitable truck haul means bringing the small town wholesale houses and industrial plants, such as wholesale grocers, bottling plants, feed mills, oil mills, grain elevators, cotton compresses and retail lumber yards, into direct competition with similar establishments in large cities.
3. Such competition will inevitably result in further drying up the small country towns by taking from them the payrolls, taxes and local purchases represented by their present establishments. Property values, both residential and commercial, will decline; volume of retail sales will grow smaller and former employees will migrate to the cities to reinforce the ranks of the unemployed and the bread lines.

4. Large cities, at first stimulated by increased trade territories, bought at the expense of the country towns, will be ultimately affected adversely because of the resulting unhealthy condition of the rural communities forming these trade territories.

5. Because of the consequent shrinkage of the state's tax revenues from country towns, taxes from the cities will have to be increased correspondingly.

6. The lower truck load limit of Texas now has the effect of acting as a barrier at Texas borders to the movement of the larger truck loads carrying merchandise from the metropolitan and producing centers of other states. Any increase in Texas truck load limits will break down that barrier and permit the free truck movement into the state of many commodities which unquestionably would be sold directly to the retailers, thus destroying, in a large measure, the business of wholesalers and jobbers now located in Texas cities.

Conditions which affect adversely the well-being of Texas communities also affect Texas railroads in identical manner and degree.

Pseudonym Used

By S. S. Van Dine,
Author of Serial

S. S. Van Dine, author of "The Garden Murder Case," our newest serial story, is actually named Willard Huntington Wright. This little known fact about America's foremost writer of detective fiction was uncovered only a few months ago.

As Willard Huntington Wright, Van Dine was an obscure literary, dramatic and art critic, also writing a few books on scholarly topics which gave him little fame. In 1916 he published his first novel, "The Man of Promise," but it attracted small notice.

It was in 1925 that the modern Van Dine was born. By way of occupational therapy after a long illness he wrote "The Benson Murder Case," creating the master sleuth, Philo Vance. In order to avoid comparison of this more popular type of literature with his previous scholarly works, he adopted the pseudonym of S. S. Van Dine, taking an old family name of his maternal grandmother.

"The Benson Murder Case" was published in Scribner's magazine and in book form during 1928. Within a year came Van Dine's second mystery story, "The Canary Murder Case." Already he had become a best seller and his detective, Philo Vance, was a household word.

Following an anthology, "The Great Detective Stories," and an introduction under his own name to "Some Famous Medical Trials," he continued the exploits of Philo Vance, turning them out since at the rate of one a year. After Van Dine's enormous success as a writer of detective fiction, his earlier neglected novel, "The Man of Promise," was reissued in 1929 and received high praise.

Born in 1888 at Charlottesville, Virginia, the author was graduated from Harvard University where he was a prize student in anthropology and entomology. With his wife, who was Eleanor Rulapaugh, a portrait painter known professionally as Claire De Lisle, he lives in Los Angeles.

Van Dine's newest story, "The Garden Murder Case," has received enthusiastic praise from critics everywhere. You will be thrilled by this tale as it unfolds serially in our paper.

What We Are Doing In Our Classes

The high school thinks the Home Economics girls have turned the Home Ec room into a kindergarten, but we have not. We are only studying toys for children. These are good toys for every age child. If you do not believe it ask Miss Hixon.

In general science we have made many interesting experiments. We have proved that air has weight, and that the English system of measurement is not so good as the metric system.

In English we have found that we must learn grammar before we can study literature.

In Algebra I we are studying stated problems. We have found that they are not to be laughed at.

Wanted—A rubber stamper with Janet Cooper and Russel Gull on it so that Mrs. Owen won't have to write them absent every day.

How sad every one was to say goodbye to Mr. X and the unknown Y in Algebra II.

Say students did you know that there were living cells in the human body? To appreciate this, you will have to draw them for Mr. Payne.

The Sophomores are reading a good story that ends just "as you like it."

Did you know that Home Ec II girls could be carpenters? Every teacher will be hiring us to make her a filing cabinet as soon as the model is completed.

The English III class had an interesting experiment of comparing their ability to paint word pictures upon the imaginations of the class members, then present the print in order that the class might compare the mental and the real. Not many of us are Zane Greys, yet.

In American history the Civil War was stopped while the members of the class discussed it.

Did you know that George Washington was not the first President and that one President slept through his entire term? We learn new things every day in civics.

Pologons are twenty four sides. That's geometry!!

Seniors have you found out why Macbeth gave so many soliloquies? If you haven't just keep on studying it from cover to cover.

Oh yes, to be a successful business man you must know how to make a trial balance and close the debits and credits.

I heard that the commercial law students have learned that crime doesn't pay.

Basketball

Wednesday night, Jan. 20, the long looked for event took place. The Clarendon boys and girls basketball teams returned our visit. Good sportsmanship and school spirit were demonstrated even though the Hedley girls were defeated by a score of 17 to 26. The Hedley boys gained a glorious victory by a score of 19 to 13.

Sing Song

The Hedley School assembled for a special chapel, Wednesday, Jan. 20. General assembly sang "The Eyes of Texas" and "Polly Wolly Doodle." The first grade sang a peppy little song. Then the second grade gave "Goodbye and Travel on the Bus." The elementary grades rendered their version of "Oh Susanna!" The high school girls' chorus sang "Night Dove" from "Tales of Hoff."

man. Next the boys and girls' chorus combined their melodious voices to sing "A Spanish Cavalier" and "Solomon Levi."

To get the boys and girls in a proper fighting spirit we sang "Hedley Will Shine Tonight."

Future Homemakers Club

The Hedley Chapter of the Future Homemakers of Texas was granted 29 memberships in the state organization.

Now, each club member has completed a year book with programs centered around the theme "Be an All Round Girl."

Yes, our club has pep and the right kind.

Honor Roll in Physical Ed

Captains of the five groups in the physical education class for girls reported honor roll students for the first semester as follows:

Theresa Bain 51 points
Sybil Holland 50 points
Honorable mention Katherine Read Inell Biffie, Oleta Jones.

Students had to have at least fifty points to make the honor roll. Points could be earned by throwing baskets, playing outdoor games, taking exercises, walking, giving interesting health talks, making health posters, etc.

We want to thank Opal and Loyse Wood for the nice shower of American, Cosmopolitan, Delinator, and Gollier magazines that they gave to the library.

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

OF COURSE you've seen Sid Silvers, and laughed at him, in many a movie; now you're going to hear him on the air with Al Jolson, whom you've also seen in pictures, but not recently.

Silvers is something new under the sun. He writes the very funny lines he speaks; that is, he makes them up, but he doesn't put them down on paper. He just says them. Somebody else takes them down. And if he gets a very funny idea during the final filming of a scene, in it goes and the scene is done over again. But what havoc that will create if he forgets himself and does it on the air, since radio scripts have to be written and re-written, and then approved.

Now it's Claudette Colbert and her husband who are going to adopt a baby from that famous orphanage in Chicago. Irene Dunne and her husband were the latest couple to do it—and Irene, worse luck, had such a bad cold during the first few days of the little girl's presence in her new home that she couldn't go near the infant. Meanwhile Claudette has been given the lead in the screen version of "Tovarich," the successful stage play; she should be grand in it.

Claire Luce, who was Fred Astaire's first dancing partner after his sister deserted him for matrimony, is in Hollywood, with yearnings to become a motion picture actress. On the stage she got along beautifully with the nimble Fred, but she's not making tests for RKO, so apparently she isn't being considered for his partner on the screen. Practically everyone else has been, apparently!

The blonde Miss Luce has a lifetime on the stage behind her—that is, she has her lifetime, as she started at the age of four. She was one of the six or eight chorus girls in the musical show in which Miriam Hopkins and various other celebrities were also chorus girls—and what tales they all tell about each other in private!

It looks as if James Cagney would break out again—not in a fight with a motion picture company this time, but in a new venture. He is talking of reviving the theater in small towns, so you may see him in person before long.

It is said that Robert Montgomery and Pat O'Brien may appear with him, as well as his brother Bill. Meanwhile his first picture for Grand National, is completed at last.

How do you like the idea of a picture with Robert Taylor, Spencer Tracy and James Stewart in it? The picture will be "Three Comrades," and the author is the man who wrote "Journey's End," so the story ought to be good. Once upon a time studio executives would have screamed at the idea of putting three such players in one picture, but nowadays the big companies plan to give us as much for our money as they can.

Have you been missing "Minnie Mouse" from the screen? If you have, don't worry—she'll return. You see, her voice—that is, the young woman who plays "Minnie's" voice—got married and went off on a honeymoon.

Being the voice for one of Walt Disney's popular characters is a pretty good job—and it means a contract for the actual owner of the voice, too, because the public is so familiar with the sounds that Mickey and his co-players make.

Maybe some day we'll see that Disney feature-length picture that has been talked about for so long, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Ever since he finished "The Gay Desperado" Nino Martini has been traveling around, giving concerts, and flying east each Wednesday for his broadcast—so imagine how thankful he is that the opera season has started in New York, keeping him home for the winter . . . B. F. Schulberg, the movie producer, finally admitted that he and Sylvia Sydney will probably marry when his marital affairs are straightened out . . . He and Mrs. Schulberg have been living apart for some time . . . Richard Dix is taking out a patent for a thornless rose which he has developed at his ranch . . . Robbery Young will appear with Claudette Colbert in "She Met Him in Paris," which may console him for losing out on "Love on the Run," the Crawford-Gable-Tone picture . . . Now they say it is Gladys George who will play the role of the mother in "Stella Dallas." © Western Newspaper Union.

SEE NEW PEACE FOR AMERICAS

First Inter-American Neutrality Pact Signed at Buenos Aires; Value of Peace Propaganda and Women's Work Emphasized.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

THE Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Peace met in Buenos Aires last month for expressed purpose of laying the foundations of a permanent peace on the two American continents. From the reports of the agreements consummated in the closing sessions of the smooth-working conference it appears that these foundations have been laid.

The conference cannot be looked upon in any light other than that of a complete success for President Roosevelt, for its outcome has revealed the attainment of the purpose for which he suggested it be held.

These are the cornerstones which it has set in place for the banishment of war from the Western Hemisphere—a convention of collective security; a protocol banning intervention; an unfriendly act that would bond together all of the American republics in common defense against a country guilty of intervention; a convention requiring common and joint neutral attitude on the part of all the American countries in the event of hostilities between any two of them, and a declaration of solidarity.

This latter declaration will have the effect of a pronouncement by the nations of this hemisphere that an act tending to affect the peace of any of them will affect all, and set in motion consultations provided for in the collective security convention. The word "convention" as it has been used in reporting the activities of the conference assumes the meaning given it in international law—that of a treaty or agreement establishing practices for a group of several signatory nations under specific conditions, such as war.

Pact Unanimously Adopted. It was the first time in history that the American nations had ever agreed on a treaty which would end war or combat the threat of war by linking the nations of this hemisphere in a joint neutrality program. It was adopted unanimously, a fact which is indeed indicative of the harmony prevalent throughout the entire conference.

In addition to the four cornerstones, the conference produced at least two other suggested features which are destined to play an important part in the determined effort to maintain peace. These two things are an inter-American peace propaganda program of heroic proportions via the radio and moving pictures, and a general movement to afford women full rights of citizenship in the nations which sent delegations.

Other resolutions dealt mainly with standardization and exchange in education and art with a view to strengthening through spiritual and intellectual channels the ties which bind the American nations.

The neutrality convention emerged as a distinct tribute to the statesmanship of the United States delegation. The draft from the committee in charge was actually presented to the assembly as a joint resolution by the 23 signatory nations and not just as a United States project. It had been the most difficult of all the conventions to jam through committee.

The emergent pact was described as "a convention to co-ordinate, ex-according to Cordell Hull, secretary of state of the United States and this country's guiding spirit at the meeting, were ironed out entirely to his satisfaction and without jeopardizing the effectiveness of the convention. The pact provides that the League members shall maintain their full rights and obligations under the Covenant of the League. Further, they shall not be required to give the Inter-American neutrality program precedence over possible application of sanctions imposed by the League of Nations.

mittee on the organization of peace, headed by Felix Nieto del Rio of Chile, submitted a resolution—which was passed—that the formation of an American League of Nations be discussed in 1938 in the eighth Pan-American Conference at Lima, Peru.

It must not be imagined that the neutrality conventions are hide-bound agreements. They are too flexible and bear too many reservations for that. Rather, they are an initial move toward a co-ordinated Pan-American program which guarantees at least immediate consultation with a view to promotion of peace, probably followed by combined action, in the case of hostilities.

Reservations Limit Effectiveness. A reservation insisted upon by Argentina makes the effectiveness of any embargoes which might be de-

A resolution introduced by the Uruguayan delegation, condemning the use of poison gas, liquid fire and bacteria in warfare.

A recommendation by the United States that tariff barriers be lowered to give all American nations equal trade opportunities.

A proposal that non-members of the League of Nations, which signed the 1933 anti-war pact prepared by Argentine Foreign Minister Carlos Saavedra Lamas, and the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, co-operate with the League in efforts to prevent and end wars.

A recommendation that all Pan-American countries put in practice the inter-American tourist passport suggested in 1935, and establish commercial boards of arbitration.

LOW ARE YOU TODAY TODAY

Dr. James W. Barton TALKS ABOUT

Counting the Calories

SOME readers may be inclined to question the correctness of insurance figures as to the effect of overweight and underweight on health, but when we realize the competition there is for life insurance business you may rest assured that if fat individuals over forty years and thin individuals under thirty years of age were as safe to insure as those of normal weight they would be accepted by the insurance companies without question.

But the fact stands out in the figures of all the insurance companies that these two classes (over forty and fat, and under thirty and thin) are not as good risks as those of normal weight.

Naturally when an overweight applies for life insurance and is told that he will be accepted but that his premiums will be as high as a man five to ten years older because of his overweight, it makes him do some thinking. He is told that if he will reduce his weight to normal limits he will have his premiums reduced accordingly.

With the thought that his overweight means that he is five to ten years older in body than he is in years, that he is more likely to be attacked by ailments and is a poor risk should surgical operation be necessary, he may decide to get rid of his fat in "quick" time.

He obtains a card or booklet showing the food values in calories of the various foods and to his astonishment learns that for his height and build he should be eating food to the value of 3,000 calories a day, and he has been eating regularly food to the value of 5,000 calories.

What Study Teaches Him. As he studies the values of foods measured from the amount that equals 100 calories he may decide that if a piece of cheese an inch wide, an inch high, and an inch thick is equal to 100 calories, and it takes 20 stalks of asparagus or 30 radishes, or 30 stalks of celery to equal 100 calories, he'll do without the cheese and eat more asparagus, celery and cauliflower. Now this is not unwise because green vegetables have the same effect on the body or in the body as cheese.

As the overweight studies the list further he finds that a small piece of meat, three inches by two inches by one-half inch thick—less than an ordinary serving—represents 100 calories, that a piece of fish the same size but a little thicker equals 100 calories and that a large egg also equals 100 calories he figures that these foods are too "rich" in food value for his blood and he'll leave meat, eggs and fish alone.

When he turns to another common food, bread, he is astonished to find that an ordinary sized slice of bread equals 100 calories as does also a single roll, and that an ordinary muffin equals more than 100 calories. Similarly one single potato of ordinary size equals 100 calories and one to three lumps of sugar, according to size, equal 100 calories.

Mind Over Matter. There was a time when a physician was interested only in what he discovered when he made his examination—murmurs in the heart, rales (rattling noises in the lungs), creaking in joints, sugar or albumen in urine and other findings. The patient was asked a few general questions. The patient's home life or surroundings, the way he reacted or responded to trouble or difficulties, the calmness or upsetment of his mind were not considered a vital part of the cause or treatment of his condition.

Today practically every physician recognizes the power of mind over matter, and there is no greater faith healer anywhere than the competent beloved family physician.

Thus we find that psychology—the science of the mind and the emotions—is not only being used in psychiatry—treating the diseases of the mind, but psychology is being used to treat and to prevent diseases of the body; this is called psychotherapy.

It has been known for some time that mental suggestions—psychotherapy—can actually correct troubles in the body and prevent real or organic ailments from developing. It has more recently become known through Professor Cannon of Harvard and Dr. Geo. Crile, Cleveland, that organic disease can actually be developed in the body by wrong or incorrect thinking.

Thinking inwardly, having a phobia—fear toward an ailment or ailments—can so affect the workings of the body processes that actual disease occurs.

Rubbing your eyes grinds invisible particles of dust and dirt right into the delicate tissues, making the irritation just that much worse. Ask for Murine at your drug store.

ARE YOU ONLY A THREE-QUARTER WIFE?

THERE are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport.

Men, because they are men, can never understand a three-quarter wife — a wife who is all love and kindness three weeks in a month and a hell cat the rest of the time. No matter how your back aches — no matter how loudly your nerves scream — don't take it out on your husband.

For three generations a woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

WHEN MARRIAGE IS A CASE OF OCTOBER AND JUNE

Jimmy, wild with jealousy and anger, left home; Lee asked his wife for a divorce, and Sarah collapsed under the shock and has not recovered health or spirits since.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS
SARAH BROWN, a handsome, successful woman of forty, was married seven years ago to Lee Brown, a fascinating, ardent young fellow of twenty-seven. At that time Lee seemed old for his age, developed and responsible, and Sarah was a radiant creature of no age at all. She had been widowed for little more than a year, several men wanted her, and it was a foregone conclusion that before she re-married she would have her choice.

Jimmy, the son of her first marriage, was fourteen when she married Lee; the next year another boy was born, and for several years the Brown marriage, with the young stepfather as much a chum as a parent to the older boy, and the young-seeming mother rejoicing in a new baby, seemed ideal.

Then a strange twist came into it. Jimmy fell in love with a music teacher five years older than he. Madeleine was twenty-four then, and only kindly and amused at the passion of a young boy still in his Sophomore year. But she did come to the Brown house to play with little David, chat with Sarah, and incidentally — as it developed later, lose her heart to Lee. Lee, still in his early thirties, was just about the right age for Madeleine; Jimmy, wild with jealousy and anger, left home; Lee asked his wife for a divorce, and Sarah collapsed under the shock, and has not recovered health or spirits since.

This was a year ago. Losing husband and older son in one terrible week Sarah took her smaller boy and went away for a while, presently agreeing to a divorce. Her life, she felt, was ended; and heart-broken she retired to the small California town from which she had originally come, and took upon herself the old duties of librarian, given up twenty-two years earlier, when she first had married.

Now comes another development. Free to marry Madeleine, Lee discovers that he doesn't really love her. She has another admirer who, according to Lee, "can give her much more the sort of life she really wants."

He wants to come back to Sarah, or rather he wants her to come back to him. Sarah sends me his letter.

"I look back on our years of happiness together, Sally," Lee writes, "and the fun we had with the kids, and the books you used to read me while I was designing the bridge, and damn it, that was the real thing, and all this bunk about falling in love is just rot. Give me another chance. I'll write Jimmy, I'll get hold of him, and we'll start all over. I've been a fool —"

And so on, and so on — pages of it. Sarah adds her own despairing letter to this letter.

"I'm forty-eight now," she writes, "and he's not yet thirty-five. These last years have shown up the difference in our ages cruelly; I'm past my prime, Lee hasn't even reached his yet. I'm nervous, too; things worry me that didn't worry me ten years ago; it's a time in my life when I feel terribly the loss of youth and charm and confidence and happiness. I feel that I never can quite recover from the shock of the past months."

"And beside that, there's pride. This girl and Lee didn't stop short of finalities in their love affair; they never told me; they let me find it out through my son's despair. Now that they've changed their minds am I meekly to forgive and forget, to strain myself to readjustment, to return home and begin ordering meals and playing bridge again?"

"On the other hand, what is my life here? This is an apple town; prosperous, pretty and duller than death. All my friends are in the city, my house, with the china and books and tables and chairs that have said home for twenty years. It's rented now, but if Lee and I start over again I'll not rent it again, but move back."

"And if I do, what guarantee will I ever have that he won't repeat the whole thing in a year or two? He is charming, he is handsome, and he can't help being popular. I feel such a dull, elderly creature now, beside him, although when we were married I was quite sure that years didn't matter."

"I'm so depressed, anxious, puzzled, despairing over the whole matter that I don't know what to think. The blow of Jimmy's misery, followed by the terrible discovery that it was Lee to whom she had given her affections seemed to do something final and fatal to me. Lee seems all penitence and devotion now; how long will this mood last? If I could be sure of him I think I'd be very happy. Not being sure of him is there any happiness in it for me at all? I'm certainly unhappy enough now."

It seems strange to me, in considering this situation, that a woman can grow to be almost fifty years of age and still retain so childish a delusion as to the proportion of life that we may normally expect to be "happy." That weak and unthinking word "unhappy" rings through the letters of hundreds and hundreds of apparently sensible women, who don't seem to realize that all human states of happiness are transient, that the joy of a love affair, a honeymoon, young motherhood, the delight of children's companionship, the excitement of travel, the satisfaction of a professional triumph — all are PASSING things. We all have our great moments, our hours of complacency and self-satisfaction, and we all pay for them with other hours of bitter loss and change and disappointment.

What does Sarah think this life is, one long party? She was an adored only daughter, she inherited a nice little fortune, she had beauty and charm and fifteen years of a happy first marriage; she had a second girlhood of popularity in her widowhood, she made another good marriage, and in each marriage knew the joy of bearing a son.

Had she married an older admirer in 1928 things still might have gone along serenely enough. But she chose a young husband, hardy out of boyhood; at forty Sarah felt young and beautiful enough to carry off this always perilous situation.

Now, because the son has grown up and fallen in love, because the handsome husband's charms have attracted another woman as they did her, and because she has reached that time of life when a woman — and a man, too, for that matter — must replace the natural charms of the body with those higher attributes that belong to the mind and soul, Sarah is whining. For almost half a century everything has come her way; she has had more living and loving, more flattery and laughter, more kisses and congratulations and frocks and excitements, more happy trips in smart motor cars, and more theater seats and festive meals than ninety-nine out of every hundred women in the entire world, but that's all forgotten now. She describes herself as depressed, anxious, puzzled and despairing.

It seems to me, since she still obviously loves the graceless and impressionable Lee, that she ought to go back to him, and rebuild her life carefully with as little dependence upon him as she can. He may fail her again, of course.

But if she can recapture some of the confidence in herself that was hers a few years ago, if she can make his home happy, develop the relationship between him and his son, show him that she is still a personality, and that no action of his can wreck her life, then that is the way out.

No woman is successful when she puts her happiness into the hands of another person, fluctuating between ecstasy and despair just as that person chooses to decree.

Forget Lee for a while, Sarah. Think of yourself, of whatever will interest you, amuse you, make you attractive to everyone who knows you, not just to Lee. Read books, especially devote yourself to the small boy, and — above all — let bygones be bygones, and the tide will begin to come back, and Lee discover that a fascinating, cultured, sweet-mannered woman of fifty has a charm of her own.

One of the incomprehensible things about women is that, having won a man's heart by one course of conduct — by companionship, affection, independence, spirit — upon marrying him they immediately go feminine, and become nervous, sensitive, jealous, unable to take a step without help from "Precious," and resenting every instant Precious must be out of sight. There would be fewer marital smashes if wives retained some of the qualities they possess as sweet hearts.

"BE IT RESOLVED: That I will make use of the Electric Servant in 1937."

One of the best New Year's Resolutions -a really MODERN Kitchen!

The West Texas Utilities Company long ago resolved that it would bring the West Texas housewife the maximum in service at a minimum cost. This vow has been kept to the letter. As proof, it reminds you that the average housewife today enjoys thrice the comforts of electric service known less than a score of years ago.

Yes, this policy of giving the housewife her money's worth, which has reduced the net average rate per kilowatt hour from as much as 20 cents to 5 cents, today makes electric service the cheapest commodity in the average home.

The modern home is equipped with many appliances that use but relatively few watts of electric energy per hour. Electric refrigerators, electric ranges and electric water heaters operate on an incentive rate (discount) schedule that amounts to much less than 5 cents a kilowatt hour. There are 1,000 watts in a kilowatt—1,000 watts of energy for one house for 5 cents.

The new electrified home should be the model West Texas American home under these conditions. There is nothing prohibitive about the cost of operating any electric appliance. They have become staple products, recognized as standard for comfortable, modern homes—as much a fixture as the rug on your floor.

Modern housewives will pass a resolution today to modernize their homes in 1937, using the Electric Servant to eliminate drudgery and to stimulate the happiness that electricity served up to you has made possible in this great area.

You can secure your modern Electric Kitchen step by step. As you add each major electric appliance—refrigerator, range and water heater—you automatically receive the benefits of low incentive (discount) rates.

CHAPTER I

There were two reasons why the terrible and, in many ways, incredible Garden murder case—which took place in the early spring following the spectacular Casino murder case—was so designated. In the first place, the scene of this tragedy was the penthouse home of Professor Ephraim Garden, the great experimental chemist of Stuyvesant university; and secondly, the exact situs criminis was the beautiful private roof-garden over the apartment itself.

It was both a peculiar and implausible affair, and one so cleverly planned that only by the merest accident—or perhaps, I should say a fortuitous intervention—was it discovered at all.

The Garden murder case involved a curious and anomalous mixture of passion, avarice, ambition and horse-racing. There was an admixture of hate, also; but this potent and blinding element was, I imagine, an understandable outgrowth of the other factors.

The beginning of the case came on the night of April 13. It was one of those mild evenings that we often experience in early spring following a spell of harsh dampness, when all the remaining traces of winter finally capitulate to the inevitable seasonal changes. There was a mellow softness in the air, a sudden perfume from the burgeoning life of nature—the kind of atmosphere that makes one lackadaisical, and wistful and, at the same time, stimulates one's imagination.

I mention this seemingly irrelevant fact because I have good reason to believe these meteorological conditions had much to do with the starting events that were to break forth, in all their horror, before another 24 hours had passed.

And I believe that the season, with all its subtle innuendoes, was the real explanation of the change that came over Vance himself during his investigation of the crime. Up to that time I had never considered Vance a man of any deep personal emotion, except in so far as children and animals and his intimate masculine friendships were concerned. He had always impressed me as a man so highly mentalized, so cynical and impersonal in his attitude toward life, that an irrational human weakness like romance would be alien to his nature. But in the course of his deft inquiry into the murders in Professor Garden's penthouse, I saw, for the first time, another and softer side of his character. Vance was never a happy man in the conventional sense; but after the Garden murder case there were evidences of an even deeper loneliness in his sensitive nature.

As I have said, the case opened—so far as Vance was concerned—with it on the night of April 13. John F-X. Markham, then district attorney of New York county, had dined with Vance at his apartment in East Thirty-eighth street. The dinner had been excellent—as all of Vance's dinners were—and at ten o'clock the three of us were sitting in the comfortable library.

Vance and Markham had been discussing crime waves in a desultory manner. There had been a mild disagreement, Vance discounting the theory that crime waves are calculable, and holding that crime is entirely personal and therefore incompatible with generalizations or laws.

It was in the midst of this discussion that Currie, Vance's old English butler and majordomo, appeared at the library door. I noticed that he seemed nervous and ill at ease as he waited for Vance to finish speaking; and I think Vance, too, sensed something unusual in the man's attitude, for he stopped speaking rather abruptly and turned.

"What is it, Currie? Have you seen a ghost, are there burglars in the house?"

"I have just had a telephone call, sir," the old man answered, endeavoring to restrain the excitement in his voice.

"Not bad news from abroad?" Vance asked sympathetically.

"Oh, no, sir; it wasn't anything for me. There was a gentleman on the phone—"

Vance lifted his eyebrows and smiled faintly.

"A gentleman, Currie?"

"He spoke like a gentleman, sir. He was certainly no ordinary person. He had a cultured voice, sir, and—"

"Since your instinct has gone so far," Vance interrupted, "perhaps you can tell me the gentleman's age?"

"I should say he was middle-aged or perhaps a little beyond," Currie ventured. "His voice sounded mature and dignified and judicial."

"Excellent!" Vance crushed out his cigarette. "And what was the object of this dignified, middle-aged gentleman's call? Did he ask to speak to me or give you his name?"

A worried look came into Currie's eyes as he shook his head.

"No, sir. That's the strange part of it. He said he did not wish to speak to you personally, and he would not tell me his name. But he asked me to give you a message. He was very precise about it and made me write it down word for word and then repeat it. And the moment I had done so he hung up the receiver." Currie stepped forward. "Here's the message, sir."

Vance took it and nodded a dismissal. Then he adjusted his monocle and held the slip of paper under the light of the table lamp. Markham and I both watched him closely, for the incident was unusual, to say the least. After a hasty reading of the paper he gazed off into space, and a clouded look came into his eyes. He read the message again, with more care, and sank back into his chair.

Markham snorted. "That may make sense to you."

"My word!" he murmured. "Most extraordinary. It's quite intelligible, however, don't you know. But I'm dashed if I can see the connection . . ."

Markham was annoyed. "Is it a secret?" he asked testily. "Or are you merely in one of your Delphic-oracle moods?"

Vance glanced toward him contemptuously.

"Forgive me, Markham. My mind automatically went off on a train of thought. Sorry—really." He held the paper again under the light. "This is the message that Currie so meticulously took down: 'There is a most disturbing psychological tension of Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment, which resists diagnosis. Read up on radioactive sodium. See Book XI of the Aeneid, line 875. Equanimity is essential. . . . Curious—eh, what?'"

"It sounds a little crazy to me," Markham grunted. "Are you troubled much with cranks?"

"Oh, this is no crank," Vance assured him. "It's puzzlin', I admit; but it's quite lucid."

Markham sniffed skeptically.

"What, in the name of Heaven, have a professor and sodium and the Aeneid to do with one another?" Vance was frowning as he reached into the humidifier for one of his beloved cigarettes with a deliberation which indicated a mental tension. Slowly he lighted the cigarette. After a deep inhalation he answered.

"Ephraim Garden, of whom you surely must have heard from time to time, is one of the best-known men in chemical research in this country. Just now, I believe, he's professor of chemistry at Stuyvesant university—that could be verified in Who's Who. But it doesn't matter. His latest researches have been directed along the lines of radioactive sodium. An amazing discovery, Markham. Made by Doctor Ernest O. Lawrence, of the University of California, and two of his colleagues there, Doctors Henderson and McMillan. This new radioactive sodium has opened up new fields of research in cancer therapy—indeed, it may prove some day to be the long-sought-for cure for cancer. The new gamma radiation of this sodium is more penetrating than any ever before obtained. On the other hand, radium and radioactive substances can be very dangerous if diffused into the normal tissues of the body and through the blood stream.

"That is all very fascinating," Markham commented, sarcastically. "But what has it to do with you, or with trouble in the Garden home? And what could it possibly have to do with the Aeneid? They didn't have radioactive sodium in the time of Aeneas."

"Markham, old dear, I'm no Chaldean. I haven't the grogiest notion wherein the situation concerns either me or Aeneas, except that I happen to know the Garden family slightly. But I've a vague feeling about that particular book of the Aeneid. As I recall, it contains one of the greatest descriptions of a battle in all ancient literature. But let's see . . ."

Vance rose quickly and went to the section of his book-shelves devoted to the classics, and, after a few moments' search, took down a small red volume and began to rifle the pages. He ran his eye swiftly down a page near the end of the volume and after a minute's perusal came back to his chair with the book, nodding his head comprehensively, as if in answer to some question he had inwardly asked himself.

"The passage referred to, Markham," he said after a moment, "is not exactly what I had in mind. But it may be even more significant. It's the famous onomatopoeic Quadrupedumque putrem cursu quatit ungula campum—meanin', more or less literally: 'And in their galloping course the horsehoof shakes the crumblin' plain.'"

Markham took the cigar from his mouth and looked at Vance with undisguised annoyance.

"You're merely working up a mystery. You'll be telling me next that the Trojans had something to do with this professor of chemistry and his radioactive sodium."

"No, oh, no," Vance was in an unusually serious mood. "Not the Trojans. But the galloping horses perhaps."

Markham snorted. "That may make sense to you."

"Not altogether," returned Vance, critically contemplating the end of his cigarette. "There is, nevertheless, the vague outline of a pattern here. You see, young Floyd Garden, the professor's only offspring, and his cousin a puny chap named Woodie Swift—he's quite an intimate member of the Garden household, I believe—a prevalent disease, by the way, Markham. They're both interested in sports in general—probably the normal reaction to their professorial and ecclesiastical forebears: young Swift's father, who has now gone to his Maker, was a D.D. of sorts. I used to see both young Johnnies at Kinkaid's Casino occasionally. But the galloping horses are their passion now. And they're the nucleus of a group of young aristocrats who spend their afternoons mainly in the futile attempt to guess which horses are going to come in first at the various tracks."

Glamorous Is the New Lingerie

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FOR the fair sex nothing so strikes the right note as beautiful lingerie. Seeing lovely "undies," and coveting, is akin to that feeling one has in a garden of flowers, to add another and yet another to one's bouquet plucked from among nature's loveliest. Just so does the eternal feminine in us keep longing for one more and one more of the delectably colorful lace-trimmed silken nighties, slips, pantie sets, negligees, cunning bed-jackets and others such as designers are this season placing before the enraptured eyes of beauty-seeking womankind.

Even so, the esthetic viewpoint is but half the story, for there is a practical side to the question that those skilled in the art of dress keep ever in mind, namely, a costume to be fashion-correct and of comely appearance must build from the foundation up. Wherefore, it is as important to have a wardrobe of lingerie as of outer apparel. Which is why creators of modern lingerie are devoting so much of time and talent, thought and study to the fashioning of under garments that because of their perfection of lines and subtle fit, act as "first-aid" toward the charm and style-rightness of one's costume.

The nightgowns this season are nothing if not glamorous. Rich fabrics and colors, beautiful finishes and elaborate lace trimmings mark them with distinction. Mostly they are satin, but you do see some of crepe and silk nixon and georgette.

Slips, too, are reflecting the interest in the daintier garments and gone are the utterly tailored effects. They are carefully fitted of course and even when they are not elaborately lace-trimmed as so many are, they still have details of lace and net trimmings, of tiny edgings of val lace to appeal to the well-groomed lady.

There are all manner of negligees and hostess gowns. The satin ones, lavish with lace, are easily the most popular this season. Bed jackets of all shapes and types are more fascinating than ever. Some are made in cape design and tie loosely in front. The model shown in the center inset is of all-over lace with wide satin border front. In a way this charming little cape-bed-jacket might be classed with the so called lingerie accessories which Paris designers are advocating this season. Such, for instance, is the "bib" to be worn over night dresses. It is a grand gift item for a convalescent or invalid. It's a frilly lace front piece to slip on at a moment's notice over the "nightie." The one pictured in the upper inset is done in circular ruffles of lace with ribbon ties about the throat. It is said that it is becoming quite a fad to make your own lingerie accessories.

Describing the lovely gowns pictured, the one to the left is of shell-pink satin with deep applied yoke of Alencou lace in the new light ecru shade which is so good this season. The lovely skirt edge, with its lace slit up the front, features the new trend toward fine details. Soft yellow is used for the interesting nightdress on the seated figure with its diagonal neckline and one-side shoulder strap. The lace motifs applied are carried out also in the matching slip and panties which form the perfect ensemble.

CHANTILLY DRESS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Nothing is so flattering, so "new" for dressing up in the afternoon and going on for the evening date as the simple, painstakingly tailored dress of black Chantilly. This dress has the street-length skirt which is so much more popular this year than the cocktail dresses of other seasons. It is especially youthful in design, but is as good for the young matron as for the college girl. Note the little flared pockets which add to the tailored effect.

SILKS FOR SPRING STRESS HIGH COLOR

Edward Molyneux, style authority, predicts a riot of color for spring. In monotones as in prints, color is the watchword.

A wide range of blue tones is being accented in spring silks. Misty blues and strong purple-blues are new, and the middle tones of blue also register. Purple is newly accented.

The capucine range is an important one, highlighting glowing yellow-orange and pumpkin tones. Henna and horsechestnut rank high, with the former striking a new note for evening. A hint of ashes-of-roses overlays the copper range as it is interpreted for resort and spring 1937. Brownish gold is another important tone to watch.

Beige and other neutral tones are expected to prove important, as a contrast to the vivid color ranges.

The red range ranks high. Cherry red, cerise, ashes-of-roses, mauve pink and pale mauve red are leading tones.

A wide range of green tones includes bright yellow green, turquoise green, reseda green and strong hues.

Ten New Hosiery Shades Offered for Next Spring

Ten new hosiery shades for next spring are shown in the advance hosiery color card just released by the Textile Color Card association to its members.

The ten colors are: Glamour, a sparkling golden tone; carib, a coppery hue with a rosy glow; cubatan, a new "leather" type of tan; Dalmatia, a radiant copper; plaza beige, a warm light beige; swanky, a subtle medium beige; swanky, a dark beige; noonday, a subdued greyish beige; avenue, a medium neutral beige, and moonbank, a medium gray of taupe cast.

One of the Best Things in Life Is Moral Victory

To demand victory without an antagonist is to demand something with no meaning . . . If you take all the evil out of the world you will remove the possibility of the best thing in life. That does not mean that evil is good. What one means by calling a thing good is that the spirit rests permanently content with it for its own sake.

Evil is precisely that with which no spirit can rest content; and yet it is the condition, not the accidental but the essential condition, of what is in and for itself the best thing in life, namely, moral victory.—Archbishop Temple.
