Mrs. J. M. Bozeman

Mrs. Nancy Amanda Bozeman, 66 years of age, passed away Monday, March 15, at her home in Amarillo. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at the First Baptist Church here by Rev. M. E. Wells pastor. Interment was made in Rowe Cemetery.

Mrs. Bozeman was born Feb. 28, 1871, in East Texas. She was married Nov. 23, 1887, to J. M. Bozeman. To this union 8 children were born, 5 of whom still survive. They are J. W. Bozeman of Hedley, Mrs. S. L. Barksley of Antlers, Okla., Mrs. P. J. Sisson and Mrs. J. R. Woods of Amarillo and Mrs. W. R. Kaykendall of Harrison, Ark. She is also survived by her husband J. M. Bozeman, 19 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren.

She was converted in 1894 and joined the Lella Lake Baptist Church, in which she still held membership at the time of her death. She and her husband lived in Lella Lake many years, and lived in Hedley several months in 1936. They moved from Hedley to East Texas last fall, then moved to Amarillo, where Mrs. Bozeman passed away.

The Informer extends deepest sympathies to the bereaved ones.

A number of Hedley men took ten tractors out to the J. H. Cooper farm one day last week and listed Mr. Cooper's land for him as a neighborly act. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are visiting in Sunset and Dallas for a much needed rest.

We had a fairly good attendance at both morning and evening services last Sunday, despite the cold weather. We appreciate the interest shown by those who came. We are looking to next Sunday, to a large attendance, and good services. Hear in mind that Sunday week will be Easter Sunday, and we hope to have special services. Also keep in mind that it is just a month until our Revival meeting. Arrange all affairs, and pray for a great Revival.

We enjoyed interesting studies in the book, By the Waters of Bethesda, the past week. It has been a very profitable study to all who took a part.

May we not have you present next Sunday to hear the message we have prepared for you?

Car Owners Should Help

The Highway Planning Survey is now collecting important information from car owners of Donley County. Each car owner should pay his 1937 registration fee at the office of the County Tax Collector will be handed a post card questionnaire upon which to note a few essential facts. These cards are self addressed and require no postage. Vehicle owners should fill them in and mail them at once. The information collected in this manner will be used by the Highway Department in designating the secondary system which is to be established soon. Information from car owners should be available to the Highway Department as soon as possible, and the cooperation of all car owners is vitally necessary.

The Curse of Progress

Just Informal

A dumb little girl and her chum were discussing the boy friend of the former.

"The only thing I don't like about him," said her friend, "is that he's too rough."

"He isn't rough," replied the young man's sweetie. "He's just informal."

Sounds Like It

"How long does the train stop here?" the old lady asked of the guard.

"Stop here?" answered the functionary. "Oh, four minutes. From two to two-to-two."

"I wonder," mused the old lady, "if that man thinks he is the whistle?"—Exchange.

Tragedy of Marriage

"Emotion tests of both sexes show that men have more egotistical emotion and less love in their personality make-up than women," says William Moulton Marston, psychologist, discussing marriage in Good Housekeeping.

"Loss of a career may mean little to the average woman if her love nature is satisfactorily adjusted," he goes on, "but rarely will love take the place of success in a man's life even though the winning of a woman's praise may be the purpose underlying his search for fame. It is one of the tragedies of this artificial division of sexes that men waste their time seeking triumphs to please women, while women care far more for the men themselves than for their triumphs."

do this now

Before you go to bed rub Penetro on your chest and throat, then apply hot cloth. Relief quickly follows because Penetro is stronger, contains 113% to 227% more medication than any other nationally sold cold salve.

And because Penetro has a base of mutton suet, it conserves and concentrates body heat to enable this stronger medication to help nature break up congestion. The aromatic vapors of Penetro also help to relieve stuffiness and soothe the inflamed area.

Students Have Holiday

The students of Hedley schools had the privilege of having a holiday Friday, Mar. 12, while the teachers attended the educational conference designed for clarity in education, at Canyon. This was a program for all education minded people.

Some of the outstanding speakers were Herman Glass, Supt. of schools, Bonham; Floyd Golden, Dean of Eastern New Mexico Junior College, Portales; Roy Bedichek, chief, Bureau of Public School Interests, Extension Division, University of Texas; Dr. Harold O. Hand, Professor of education, Leland Stanford University; W. A. Stigler, co-director of the State Department of Education; and I. B. Carruth, president of the Northwest Texas Conference for Education.

The Amarillo Philharmonic Orchestra, one of the outstanding musical organizations of its kind in the state, played a forty five minute concert at the opening of the conference Friday evening.

Teachers from the district south as far as Plainview, north to the state line, east to Childress and west to the state line attended this splendid meeting. This conference was an affiliated unit of the State Teachers' Conference.

Wish someone would take the wind out of Ules Holland's sails. Seen together: Jo Wells and Theresa Bain.

It was said that Winfred McPherson has taken up cooking. Why the sudden domestic touch? Pardon for mentioning Fred Wells but lately I've been seeing girls combing his hair. Is it lastness Fred, or just a subtle line you're employing?

Wonder why Aline Abernathy was wearing such a matronly hair style Friday? Is she getting disgusted with the boys?

Why do Sybil Holland and Aline Abernathy fuss so much lately? A rumor is spread that they both like the same boy. (Poor boy!)

Willis Toomas, Fred Wells and Jackie Ranson enjoy going to the library the third period. Wonder why?

IMPOUNDING 22 TRILLION GALLONS

Public Works Administration Tells What It Means to Have That Much Water "Under Lock and Key" by Colorful Comparisons.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

FOR some weeks there lay on the desks of several hundred editors throughout the land an immortal document. This living, breathing contribution to the nation's higher brackets of prose was the work of those prolific gentlemen, the members of the PWA "press section," in the throes of inspiration. If not whimsy.

The mimeographed handout, dealing with the incredible volume of water which the PWA apparently has gathered together here and there about the country, was delivered to editors early in January, but was not to be released for publication until February 1.

Events of the weeks leading up to the publication date leave the observer a little uncertain as to whether the PWA, with its customary genius, was able to reach into the future and draw a few neat analogies, or is merely trying to scare the pants off us.

Ducking for Pennsylvania.

At any rate, in view of what has been happening in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, the PWA's little article is at once lucid and ominous.

"The greatest water impoundment program in the world's history is being carried out in the United States through the Federal Public Works Administration. All the water held at one time in dams and reservoirs completed or under construction with PWA assistance would:

"Cover the state of Pennsylvania with two feet of water, with enough left over over for a few good sized lakes.

"Supply New York city for 62 years with sufficient water for its requirements for washing, drinking and industrial use.

"Reduce the world's ocean level a quarter of an inch.

"Flood the state of Delaware with a 44 foot stage, 14 feet deeper than the recent Johnstown flood.

"Float 1,078,431 vessels the size of the British ship Queen Mary."

PWA Really Has Story.

The recent spectacles of city folks and farmers arriving and departing from second story windows via rowboats even takes some of the steam out of the PWA article's intended piece of resistance—the fact that, because a new dam has created a large lake, there is now a yacht club flourishing in the heart of the desert.

Of course all of this is just good, clean fun. The PWA really had quite a story to tell, and because gether. The people cannot reach the highest standard of well-being unless there is the wisest use of land and water. . . Flood control, low-water control, navigation, power, water supply, sanitation, and erosion are integral parts of the picture."

Essentials of Existence.

The soil conservation, resettlement, and rural electrification administrations, in a joint report, prefaced a discussion to the proper treatment of inland waters by declaring:

"Air, sunlight, soil and water are the four factors absolutely essential for Man's existence. . . Without water, Man, animals and plants cannot live, and the soil could not produce food, clothing, and shelter. . . Broadly speaking, air and sunshine are beyond the influence of Man, but the benefits of land and water can be affected by the manner in which he uses them."

With the great need, particularly in western sections where lack of water and droughts had paralyzing effects on the national economy, PWA undertook direct action to conserve water until the total of this Fort Peck dam in the Missouri river in Montana, Bonneville, Grand Coulee, and other great American reservoirs.

Reasons for Impoundment.

Fort Peck lake will be smaller than Lake Mead at Boulder dam, but it will have a storage capacity of 19,412,000 acre feet, which is almost five times as large as the Assuan. Fort Peck lake will be 180 miles long, have a maximum clear width of 16 miles, and a shore line of 1,600 miles.

Water impoundments within the United States, requiring the assistance of the public works administration, have taken place for five principal reasons: Water for human consumption, flood control, navigation, irrigation, and power. PWA has allotted $195,636,700 in federal grants, and $11,168,990 in non-federal grants, making a total of $206,805,690. There have been 12 non-federal loans totaling $22,145,700. This has made work-creating construction estimated to cost $595,005,779.

PWA funds have not been solely responsible for all of these accomplishments. An allotment of $51,000,000 to TVA, for instance, set up that organization and started Norris and Wheeler dams, but it required other funds to complete them.

Likewise, PWA allotted $38,000,000 to the mammoth Boulder dam which was already under way. The reservoir behind the dam, known as Lake Mead, has a storage capacity of 30,500,000 acre feet. The PWA allotment enabled the bureau of reclamation, Department of the Interior to complete the dam project. The entire Boulder dam project is estimated to cost $120,260,000. PWA has also made an initial allotment of $15,000,000 to the Grand Coulee dam, located on the Columbia river in Washington; a project estimated to cost in the neighborhood of $175,000,000.

Everything to Gain.

It is possible only to estimate the amount of water impounded by non-federal projects, but should they all be taken into consideration, total water impoundments by PWA would run far in excess of 22 trillion gallons of water.

Scientists, engineers, industrialists and sportsmen declare the United States has everything to gain by its tremendous water impoundments.

Sportsmen set forth the advantages by pointing to the increased opportunities for boating, swimming and fishing which may take place in the man-made lakes throughout the nation. It will be possible to float large-sized yachts on the waters of Grand Coulee, Bonneville, Boulder dam's Lake Mead, Fort Peck, or any of the larger non-federal "lakes." There are already more than a hundred privately owned boats on Lake Mead, one of which carries more than 40 passengers. Persons in that arid area had never seen a lake until man made Lake Mead.

Engineers point out that such dams as Fort Peck, Tygart dam near Grafton, West Virginia, the 14 reservoirs of the Muskingum district in Ohio, will aid in controlling floods and insuring navigation all the year around for potential river ports which have been hitherto landlocked.

May Help Wells.

Scientists approve huge water impoundment because it will be extremely beneficial toward checking the rapid decline of America's underground water supply. The recently retired Major William Bowie, chief of the division of geodesy, coast and geodetic survey, who also estimated the change in the ocean level, cited Fort Peck as an example. When the 19,412,000 acre feet of water is held there, the natural seepage into the ground may go far toward restoring artesian well supplies. A recent survey made by engineers of South Dakota revealed that the head of artesian wells was sinking at a rate of two to twenty feet annually.

the taxpayers shell out I forget how many hundreds of millions of dollars to make it all possible, it is a story worth reading.

The United States now has completed or under way PWA projects which will impound about 22 trillion (22,000,000,000,000) gallons of water for irrigation, power, navigation, flood control, domestic, and industrial purposes. All of these many projects have been either started, continued, or completed with public works administration federal or nonfederal allotments.

Water use and control was recognized as a major field for PWA effort at the inception of the agency. Great areas of the country have been handicapped by inadequate water supply.

The Mississippi valley committee of the national resources committee, described the situation in this way:

"Land, water, and people go to

MYSTERIES THE WORLD HAS NEVER SOLVED

KASPAR HAUSER

Who Was He?
By MADOC OWENS

A MYSTERIOUS personage was found leaning against a wall in the Bavarian city of Nuremberg in May, 1823. He was a youth of about eighteen, apparently an aristocrat. Blinded by the morning sun, he held his hands over his eyes. The police told him to move on, but he could not walk.

They prodded him. He staggered and fell. Questioning him as to his identity, they found that he could not talk, so they carried him bodily to prison. It was evident that he was not an idiot. His face and demeanor bespoke inherent intelligence. Yet his inability to walk or talk was unfeigned. He was not deaf and his vocal organs were capable of reproducing any spoken word by repetition.

The soles of his feet were convex, like those of an infant who has never walked. Every sound seemed to terrify him, as did the sight of the commonest objects. On hearing a bell ring he burst into paroxysms of weeping and the music of a street band caused him to swoon. Given a substantial meal, he turned from it with abhorrence and fell into convulsions. All that could tempt his appetite was hard bread and water. Someone sent him some toys to play with, but they caused him to cry with terror, until he caught sight of a wooden horse, which he snatched up with glee, clasping it in his arms and kissing it tenderly.

Letter Is Only Clue.

He was an enigma to the authorities. The only clue as to his identity was a letter found upon his person and purporting to have been written by a Bavarian laborer. It stated that the bearer had been found at the writer's door 16 years before, and inclosed was a note by the youth's mother. According to this communication his name was Kaspar; he had been born April 30, 1812; his father was a captain in the Sixth Chevalier regiment, at Nuremberg, and his mother was a poor girl unable to support him. There were grave suspicions that these letters had been written as a blind, inasmuch as the youth showed many evidences of aristocratic lineage.

He Begins to Remember.

In Nuremberg dwelt a kindly savant, Prof. G. F. Daumer, who became interested in the mysterious youth, and took him to his home, hoping to develop his retarded mentality. With surprising rapidity Kaspar thereupon learned not only to walk and talk, but to read and write. Within a few months he was able to relate so much of his strange history as he could remember. According to his story he had been confined all his life in a dark cell, penetrated only by a man whose shadow alone he could see and who came daily to wash him, dress him and bring him his sustenance, always bread and water. His only friend had been a wooden horse, and his jailer, although never speaking a word to him, had for some mysterious reason, expended a year's effort in silently teaching him to write the name "Kaspar Hauser."

Finally, one night his keeper had entered his cell, blindfolded him, placed in his hand the letter later found upon his person, taken him to Nuremberg, and left him leaning against the city wall. That was all he knew of his strange history.

Professor Daumer's house soon became the mecca for thousands of persons who flocked there to see the mystery youth and hear his strange story. One day, within less than five months from the time when Kaspar was found leaning against the city wall, Professor Daumer was terrified to hear his interesting protegee utter terrified cries for help, and, rushing into the room he found Kaspar writhing upon the floor. Blood gushed from a wound in his forehead, and when revived the lad said that a man with a blackened face had stolen into the room, stabbed him and fled.

Hunt for Assailant.

The police scoured the country for the assailant, without avail. About this time the case attracted the attention of the very wealthy Lord Stanhope, of England, who adopted Kaspar and sent him secretly to Ansbach that he might be hidden safely from his enemies and be educated by the celebrated Professor Fuhrmann. After a few years, his education having been completed, Lord Stanhope arrived in Ansbach to take his ward back to England, where, it was planned, he should enjoy a life of ease, compensating him for the hideous persecutions of which he had been victim.

Received Mysterious Note.

On the day before that set for this happy departure for England, a stranger handed Kaspar a note requesting him to appear at a certain place and learn the secret of his origin. Without confiding the circumstances to Lord Stanhope, the young man proceeded to the place appointed. Soon afterward he terrified his guardian by staggering into his apartment with blood dripping from a knife wound in his side. Gasping the words, "Palace—Uzen Monument—purse!" he fell to the floor, dead. Acting upon this clue, Lord Stanhope hastened to the Uzen Monument in the palace grounds and there found a purse of violet-colored silk, containing a slip of paper on which had been scrawled:

"Kaspar Hauser, born April 10, 1812. Murdered December 14, 1833. Know by this that I come from the Bavarian frontier on the river. These are the initials of my name: M. L. B."

A price of 5,000 florins was placed upon the head of Kaspar's assassin by Lord Stanhope, and for years the police strove to solve the mystery. But their efforts were futile.

Kaspar Hauser remains to this day, perhaps the most baffling enigma that ever vexed the mind of man.

BLAVATSKY

The Mystic

A CLOUD of incense smoke arising from the Syrian desert on a night in 1870 assumed the shape of an old man with a long, white beard. "I am Hiero, one of the priests of a great temple erected to the gods that stood upon this spot," quoth the grim specter. "This monument was the altar. Behold!"

Two caravans had met in the desert. One had contained the alleged performer of this miracle, the first modern woman to gain world-wide fame in the role of the Great Unknown. Like the master of the mediums, this sphinx boasted of a childhood replete with abnormal occurrences. She was born in southern Russia, amid the piled-up coffins of victims of the awful cholera epidemic of 1831, and, while they were baptizing her in the Greek church, she snatched a lighted taper from the altar and set fire to the flowing robes of the priest. Early in her childhood it was claimed that while asleep she could give correct answers to questions asked by persons who would take her hand. Thus would she reveal the hiding places of lost property and 'twas said impart other medicinal information.

Daughter of Nobleman.

This uncanny child was Helena Petrovna Hahn, daughter of Gen. Alexis Hahn, a noble German who once settled in southern Russia. When she was seven her mother died and she was sent to live with her grandfather, the governor of Saratow. But after she took up her abode in his palace her governess discovered that she was possessed of the devil. She went into trances, scaring the old governor into gooseflesh.

At the age of seventeen Helena married General Count Blavatsky, a gouty Russian of seventy, from whom she separated after a brief period of domestic unhappiness. Next she attempted to penetrate the forbidden boundaries of Tibet, but was turned back by the fanatical natives. After wandering in India and elsewhere in the Orient, she returned to Russia, where, at the gloomy and gruesome chateau of a certain prince, she frightened the nocturnal guests with weird demonstrations of table-tipping, spirit rappings, thought readings, levitation and the opposite phenomenon-making light articles heavy.

Returning again to the Orient, she visited Egypt and Syria, and finally came to America, where she was exploited as a spirit medium under the alleged control of "John King," a dead pirate, and much as Gagliostro had founded his Egyptian free masonry for the regeneration of mankind, so Madame Blavatsky, in 1875, established the famous Theosophical society.

Mysterious Brotherhood.

She now declared herself to be a disciple of a mysterious brotherhood of mahatmas, whom she had met in Tibet and who had the power of causing apparitions of their bodies to appear where their bodies were not. Visitors to her sanctum were amazed to receive mysterious letters dropped before them as from the ceiling, and to hear alleged communications from the Tibetan mahatmas. It was said to be a common occurrence for a visitor to ask her a question and the same day have the postman hand him a letter under a foreign postmark bearing a direct reply to that question.

Blavatsky died May 8, 1891.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adlerika the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adlerika rids you of gas and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels the REAL cleansing with Adlerika. Get rid of GAS. Adlerika does not grip—it is not habit forming. At all Leading Druggists.

Health-Wrecking Functional PAINS

Severe functional pains of menstruation, cramping spells and jangled nerves soon rob a woman of her natural, youthful freshness. PAIN lines in a woman's face too often grow into AGE lines.

Thousands of women have found it helpful to take Cardul. They say it seemed to ease their pains, and they noticed an increase in their appetites and finally a strengthened resistance to the discomfort of monthly periods.

Try Cardul. Of course if it doesn't help you, see your doctor.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright S. S. Van Dine WNU Service

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, famous detective, and John F. X. Markham, district attorney for New York county are dining in Vance's apartment when Vance receives an anonymous telephone message informing him of a "disturbing psychological tension at Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment" advising that he read up on radio-active sodium, consult a passage in the Aeneid and counseling that "Equanimity is essential." Professor Garden is famous in chemical research. The message, decoded by Vance, reminds him that Professor Garden's son Floyd Garden and niece Louise Hamble, an elderly follower of horse racing, are addicted to horse-racing. Vance says that "Equanimity" is a horse running next day in the Rivermont handicap. Vance is convinced that the message was sent by Dr. Siefert, the Gardens' family physician. He arranges to have lunch next day at the Gardens' penthouse. Vance is greeted by Floyd Garden and meets Louise Hamble, an elderly follower of horse racing. Floyd expresses concern over Swift's queer actions. Mrs. Garden, supposedly ill, comes downstairs and places a $100 bet on a horse. (Gathered around an elaborate loud speaker service, listening to the racing are Cecil Kroon, Midge Weatherly and Zalia Graem, who bet varying amounts on the race. There is tension under the surface gaiety. Zalia and Swift are not on speaking terms. Kroon leaves to keep an appointment before the race starts. Miss Beeton, a nurse, and Vance bet on "Azure Star." Swift recklessly bets $10,000 on "Equanimity" and goes to the roof garden to hear the results. Floyd follows Swift, remaining away several minutes. Zalia Graem answers a phone call in the den. Soon after the announcement that "Azure Star" wins, the guests hear a shot. Vance finds Swift dead, shot dead, shot through the head with a revolver nearby. He says Swift has been murdered. After calling the police, he finds the door of a vault ajar. Kroon returns and is sharply questioned by Vance, who finds he had not left the building. Vance orders Miss Beeton to guard the stairway and prevent Mrs. Garden and Zalia from viewing Swift's body. Floyd Garden admits the revolver belongs to his father. Further questioning by Vance reveals that the revolver had been found recently by Zalia in the presence of the other guests. Floyd hints that Swift bet so recklessly because of Zalia.

Garden shrugged carelessly, as if the matter was neither important nor unusual.

"Probably," he suggested, "the painter didn't shut the door tightly when he went out this morning. It has a spring lock."

"And the key?"

"The key is a mere matter of form. It hangs conveniently on a small nail at the side of the door."

"Accordingly," mused Vance, "the vault is readily accessible to anyone in the household who cares to enter it."

Vance went to the door. "Miss Beeton," he called, "will you be good enough to run upstairs and see if the key to the vault door is in its place?"

A few moments later the nurse returned and informed Vance that the key was where it was always kept.

Vance thanked her and, closing the den door, turned again to Garden.

"There's one more rather important matter that you can clear up for me—it may have a definite bearing on the situation. Can the garden be entered from the fire exit opening on the roof?"

"Yes, by George!" The other sat up with alacrity. "There's a gate in the east fence of the garden, just beside the privet hedge, which leads upon the terrace on which the fire exit of the building opens. When we had the fence built we were required to put this gate in because of the fire laws. But it's rarely used, except on hot summer nights. Still, if anyone came up the main stairs to the roof and went out the emergency fire door, he could easily enter our garden by coming through that gate in the fence."

"Don't you keep the gate locked?"

Vance was studying the tip of his cigarette with close attention.

"The fire regulations don't permit that. We merely have an old-fashioned barn-door lift-latch on it."

We could hear the sharp ringing of the entrance bell, and a door opening somewhere. Vance stepped out into the hall. A moment later the butler admitted District Attorney Markham and Sergeant Heath, accompanied by Snitkin and Hennessey.

"Well, what's the trouble, Vance?" Markham demanded brusquely. "I phoned Heath, as you requested, and brought him up with me."

"It's a bad business," Vance returned. "Same like I told you. I'm afraid you're in for some difficulties. It's no ordinary crime. Everything I've been able to learn so far contradicts everything else." He looked past Markham and nodded pleasantly to Heath. "Sorry to make you all this trouble, Sergeant."

"That's all right, Mr. Vance," Heath held out his hand in solemn good-nature. "Glad I was in when the chief called. What's it all about, and where do we go from here?"

Mrs. Garden came bustling energetically down the hallway.

"Are you the district attorney?" she asked, eyeing Markham ferrency. Without waiting for an answer, she went on: "This whole thing is an outrage. My poor nephew shot himself and this gentleman here"—she looked at Vance with supreme contempt—"is trying to make a scandal out of it." Her eyes swept over Heath and the two detectives. "And I suppose you're the police. There's no reason whatever for your being here."

Markham looked steadfastly at the woman and seemed to take in the situation immediately.

"Madam, if things are as you say," he promised in a pacifying, yet grave, tone, "you need have no fear of any scandal."

"I'll leave the matter entirely in your hands, sir," the woman returned with calm dignity. She turned and walked back up the hall.

"A most tryin' and complicated state of affairs, Markham," Vance took the matter up again. "I admit the chap upstairs appears to have killed himself. But that, I think, is what everyone is supposed to believe. Tableau superficially correct. Stage direction and decor fairly good. But the whole far from perfect. I observed several discrepancies."

Garden, who had been standing in the doorway to the den, came forward, and Vance introduced him to Markham and Heath. Then Vance turned to the sergeant.

"I think you'd better have either Snitkin or Hennessey remain down here and see that no one leaves the apartment for a little while." He addressed Garden. "I hope you don't mind."

"Not at all," Garden replied complacently. "I'll join the others in the drawing-room. I feel the need of a highball, anyway." He included us all in a curt bow and moved up the hall.

"We'd better go up to the roof now, Markham," said Vance.

"CHAPTER VI

"But see here, Vance," Markham leaned forward protestingly. "No amount of mere psychological analysis can make a crime out of a situation as seemingly obvious as this one. I must have more definite reasons than you have given me before I would be justified in discarding the theory of suicide."

"Oh, I dare say," nodded Vance. "But I have more tangible evidence that the johnnie did not eliminate himself from this life."

"Well, let's have it," Markham fidgeted impatiently in his chair.

"Imprimis, my dear Justinian, a bullet wound in the temple would undoubtedly cause more blood than you see on the brow of the deceased. There are, as you notice, only a few partly coagulated drops, whereas the vessels of the brain cannot be punctured without a considerable flow of blood. And there is no blood either on his clothes or on the tiles beneath his chair. Meantime that the blood has been, perhaps, spilled elsewhere before I arrived on the scene—which was, let us say, within thirty seconds after we heard the shot."

"A far-fetched theory," muttered Markham. "All wounds don't bleed the same."

Vance ignored the district attorney's objection.

"And please take a good look at the poor fellow. His legs are stretched forward at an awkward angle. The trousers are twisted out of place and look most uncomfortable. His coat, though buttoned, is riding his shoulder, so that his collar is at least three inches above his exquisite mauve shirt. No man could endure to have his clothes so outrageously askew, even on the point of suicide—he would have straightened them out almost unconsciously. The corpus delicti shows every indication of having been dragged to the chair and placed in it."

Markham's eyes were surveying the limp figure of Swift as Vance talked.

"Even that argument is not entirely convincing," he said dogmatically, though his tone was a bit modified: "especially in view of the fact that he still wears the ear-phone."

"Ah, exactly!" Vance took him up quickly. "That's another item to which I would call your attention. The murderer went a bit too far—there was a trifle too much thoroughness in the setting of the stage. Had Swift shot himself in that chair, I believe his first impulsive movement would have been to remove the head-phone, as it very easily could have interfered with his purpose. And it certainly would have been of no use to him after he had heard the report of the race. Furthermore, I seriously doubt if he would have come upstairs to listen to the race with his mind made up in advance that he was going to commit suicide in case his horse didn't come in. And, as I have explained to you, the revolver is one belonging to Professor Garden and was always kept in the desk in the study. Consequently, if Swift had decided, after the race had been run, to shoot himself, he would hardly have gone into the study, procured the gun, then come back to his chair on the roof and put the head-phone on again before ending his life. Undoubtedly he would have shot himself right there in the study—at the desk from which he had obtained the revolver."

Vance moved forward a little as if for emphasis.

"Another point about that head-phone—the point that gave me the first hint of murder—is the fact that the receiver at present is over Swift's right ear. Earlier today I saw Swift put the head-phone on for a minute, and he was careful to place the receiver over his left ear—the customary way. But now the head-phone is on in reversed position, and therefore unnatural. I'm certain, Markham, that head-phone was placed on Swift after he was dead."

A Practical Choice.

The Lady on the Left says, "I'm practical. I choose patterns that I can cut twice; then I have a gingham gown to set me off in my kitchen and an afternoon dress in which to entertain the Maggie-Jiggs club. The all-of-a-piece yoke and sleeves make me look years younger, the shirred pockets give the decorative note every dress needs, and I can run it up in an afternoon."

Three-Purpose Pattern.

The Girl in the Oval has a far-away look in her eyes. She says it's because she wears glamorous blouses like this one. She cuts her pattern three times—no less—and evolves a blouse in eggshell for her velvet skirt; one in velveteen for her tweeds, and the third in metallic cloth for after-five activities. "The skirt with its simple well directed lines is equally well suited to tweeds for sport, velvet for dress and wool for business," says Madam.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1832 (above left) comes in sizes 32 to 44. Size 34 requires 4 1/4 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1263 (above center) is designed in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 4 1/4 yards of 39 inch material for the dress and 2 1/4 yards for the jacket—to line it requires 2 1/4 yards of 15 inch material.

Pattern 1958 (above right) is available in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 46 bust). Size 16 requires 2 1/2 yards for the blouse in 39 inch material and 2 yards of 54 inch material for the skirt.
