Accident Near Clarendon Baptist Revival Meeting

Friday Takes Three Lives

One of the saddest tragedies that has ever happened to our community occurred Friday the 6th when the car in which J. M. Boseman and his two grandsons, James H. Boseman and James Williams, collided with the south bound passenger train a few miles west of Clarendon near the Harvey tilting station. James Boseman died on the way to the hospital at Clarendon and James Williams was killed instantly. J. M. Boseman was carried to the hospital in an unconscious condition from which he never rallied. Funeral services for the two young men were held at the First Baptist Church in Hedley at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. Melvin Wise of Abilene, Rev. M. E. Wells, Rev. V. A. Hansard and Rev. W. Hickman all took part in the service. A very large crowd attended and the floral offerings were beautiful. Pallbearers were young men near the age of the deceased, as follows: Don Hickey, E. Stewart, James Lowrey, Calvin Reed, Lonnie Hugh Pierce, John Nash, Pete Darnell, Kenneth Langford, Glen Anderson, Curtis Mullins, Glenn Richerson and Herschel Heath. Flower bearers: Melba Cooper, June Kirkpatrick, Obancey Ruth Key, Edith Conner, and Mrs. J. W. Lyons and Miss Lyons of Quitaque.

James Henry Boseman was born Sept. 10, 1917, at Lella Lake and died Aug. 7, 1937. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boseman of Pampa, 2 brothers and 5 sisters, Horace, Pauline, Gladys, Carl, Gertrude, Francis and Thelma, and his grandfather, J. H. Nanny, of Ft. Worth. He was 19 years, 10 months and 28 days of age. The family moved from Lella Lake to Hedley where they lived until a few months ago when they moved to Pampa where they were living at the time of his death. As far as the writer knows, he was an honest, upright young man who stayed at home and worked for his father in the station and shop of which his father was owner.

James Murrice Williams was born in Jones county, Texas, May 8, 1910. He died also a tragic death Aug. 7, 1937. He was 27 years, 2 months and 28 days of age at the time of his going. He leaves to mourn their loss one brother, Hester Williams of Briggs and other relatives. He professed faith in Christ about 3 years ago and was baptized into the fellowship of the Church of Christ. He was living in Pampa at the time of his death. The writer did not have the privilege of knowing this young man.

Two double funerals have been held in Hedley in the past few years, thus doubly reminding us that death is on our trail. And a few hours following the funeral of these dear young men the grandfather passed away in the Adair Hospital in Clarendon, where he was taken after the horrible accident. His funeral was held also in the First Baptist Church of Hedley at 4 o'clock Monday, conducted by Rev. J. Perry King of Clarendon and Rev. M. E. Wells.

James Michael Boseman was born Oct. 24, 1866, in Clark county, Ark. Died Aug. 8, at 9 p. m. He was married Nov. 18, 1887 to Miss Nancy Amanda Scallorn. To this union 6 children were born, 5 girls and 1 boy, 5 of whom survive. He was convert-

The annual revival at the First Baptist Church will begin Sunday, Aug. 15. Rev. H. R. Whatley of Haskell will preach for the revival. Bro. Whatley preached here last year, and is sure to again have some inspirational and helpful messages. Ed Gibbs of Dallas will be in charge of the song services.

All night services will be held out of doors, on the lot next to the church, unless bad weather prevents, in which case the services will be held in the building.

Everyone has an invitation to attend.

Buy your school supplies early at Hooker's.

Nazarene Revival

The Nazarene revival is still underway and the pastor, Rev. W. Hickman is delivering some able sermons. There has been several conversions and they are having good singing and music. Come out and hear these good services, starting each evening at 7:50. You are welcome.

ed and joined the Baptist church at the age of 28. He leaves to mourn his going his children, as follows: Mrs. S. L. Barksley Springdale, Ark., Mrs. Grace Seisson and Mrs. John R. Woods Amarillo. Walter Boseman, Pampa, and Mrs. W. R. Kuykendall Harrison, Ark. Two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. B. F. Carder, Mrs. B. J. Roderick and W. M. Boseman, Amarillo, and J. M. Boseman, California. All were present at his funeral except the latter. Also 17 grandchildren, 3 great grandchildren and a host of nieces and nephews.

Mr. Boseman lived in Hedley about 6 years, then moved to Lella Lake where he lived about 20 years, later moving back to Hedley where he lived until the passing of his companion a few months ago. He was a blacksmith by trade and a splendid workman. He lived a rather reserved life, attending to his own affairs, never bothering other people. He had many friends to his credit who mourn his passing. His pallbearers were friends from Lella Lake, whose names we did not get. Flower bearers were Misses Opal and Goldie Dickson and Inez Harrison. The floral offerings bespeak for him the esteem in which he was held. The three bodies were laid to rest in the Rowe Cemetery, to await the resurrection morning. Mrs. O. R. Culwell

The Measuring Cup.—Grease the measuring cup before measuring sirup or molasses and the ingredients will not stick to the cup.

Sauce for Meats.—For a snappy and delicious sauce to serve with meats, mix one cup apple sauce, 1/2 cup horseradish and one cup whipped cream.

Washing Spinach.—When washing spinach, place a generous pinch of salt in the water to make the sand sink to the bottom.

Washing Cretonne Covers.—When washing cretonne covers or curtains, add two or three aspirin tablets to the water; the colours will not run and will retain their brightness.

Removing Water Spots.—Equal amounts of turpentine and linseed oil mixed together will remove the white spots from furniture, caused by water.

Shade for Ferns.—House ferns need a light well-drained soil and plenty of water. They thrive better in partial shade.

Burnt Saucepans.—If the bottom of a saucepan is burnt, sprinkle salt over it and leave for an hour or two. Then add a little water, rub well, and when washed out the marks will have gone. WNU Service.

Clergyman's Reception Needn't Bore Anybody

DEAR Mrs. Post: I am one of the committee in charge of giving a reception for our new clergyman and his wife. It has been suggested by one of the women that we have a musical program first, after which the newcomers will receive and then everyone go downstairs to the large Sunday-school room to have refreshments. I personally think such an arrangement might prove drawn out and awkward but I don't know what better plan to suggest.

Answer: I think the combination of a welcoming reception and a musical program requiring everyone to sit in silence is exactly what you describe as awkward. If I were managing it, I would have the entire reception in the Sunday-school room, which you say is ample, where one or two members on the committee would receive with the clergyman and his wife and introduce parishioners to them. Several stringed instruments playing softly as a background for conversation would be delightful. This arrangement could not prove tiring since after people have spoken to those receiving they would stand around in groups talking to one another and be served with refreshments. As newcomers arrive the first-comers—if they grow tired—would be free to leave.

Fiancee Dies; What to Do With Ring?

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you tell me what is the proper thing to do about an engagement ring after a girl was engaged and her fiancé died and she becomes engaged to another man? This is exactly what has happened to me and my first fiancé's mother is telling everyone what a terrible person I am because I won't return her son's ring to her. I loved him dearly, and the fact that I now love another in no way belittles my love for either one, so far as I can see. They are the principals in two separate phases of my life. Why must I return the only thing my first fiancé gave me and which I am sure he would have wished me to keep always?

Answer: If the ring is one he bought for you, it is certainly yours for always. But if the ring was once his mother's—possibly her own engagement ring—if it has any other family history about which she has a real sentiment, then I think you should send it back—but not otherwise.

Introduce Her Tactfully.

DEAR Mrs. Post: My son has given a ring to his fiancée, although as yet there has been no engagement announced and will not be for several months because her parents are not returning from abroad until then. My husband and I are to celebrate our wedding anniversary soon and would like at this occasion to introduce her to our many friends, but we don't want to in any way "steal the show" from her parents. Can you explain how we can introduce her and yet give no impression of a betrothal?

When to Stop Eating.

DEAR Mrs. Post: An acquaintance of mine thinks it improper to continue eating while being served with any part of her meal, and every time the waitress approaches, whether it is with water or coffee or no matter what, she stops eating entirely and does not eat again until the waitress has left her place. Isn't this silly?

Answer: You eat exactly the same except when actually helping yourself. As you take your portion from the dish and put it on your plate, you stop chewing for that moment, but this does not mean that your mouth need be empty.

The Society Pages.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is it bad form to send the bride's picture to the newspapers for publication with an account of the wedding, if she is not well known in prominent social groups? Are these society pages devoted exclusively to the brides who are daughters of prominent families?

Answer: It is not a question of bad form but of how much interest the society editor feels the account will have to his readers.

How to Eat Jelly.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Please tell us the proper way to eat jelly or jam?

Answer: A small amount of jelly is put on a piece of meat, already speared with a fork, and eaten. Jelly or jam on bread and butter is spread on the bread with a butter knife and eaten in the fingers.

Fashion Is in Mood for All-White

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

describable charm and the square-inclined neckline and the majestic sweep of the skirt so expertly styled so as to slenderize at the same time that it achieves a full hemline, are all details that glorify. The sophisticated simplicity of this gown and the elegance of the all-silk satin is its big appeal.

An interesting feature about present party dresses is that their silhouettes go to such extremes. Some are sheathlike to the knees with flaring hemlines and slenderized fitted waistlines, while others are that bouffant it requires yards and yards of material to make them. For the airy-fairy types that are so entrancing and so beloved this season, the fringed and billowy tulle and nets are the logical answer.

Beautifully draped in classic lines is the dress pictured to the left. It required yards and yards of white silk chiffon for its fashioning. The girdled straps of narrow ribbon reflect Greek influence.

To the right a most exquisite silk chiffon evening ensemble is shown. The girlish simplicity of this dainty gown and cape commends this costume to the young debutante. This lovely creation naively informs you that not all the honors are going to all-white for in this instance the chiffon is in the new exquisite desert dawn tint, which is a delicate pink shade that is too lovely for words. The gown has a halter neck which is most becoming to the wearer. The cape is grace itself. By the way, you really should have a cape of chiffon or of net or of some type of silk sheer to wear with lingerie dresses, for the transparent cape is one of fashion's pet vanities this summer.

RIBBONS TAKE ON ADDED IMPORTANCE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Ribbons have not been so important for a long time as they now are. They are used for sashes, for girdles, shoulder straps that are part of the design of the dress, for bandings and for entire jackets and toques.

Many of the better styled frocks and tailored suits have their edges finished with grosgrain ribbon bindings. The new idea of these bindings is carried out both in monotone and in contrasting effects. Beige finished with black or brown ribbon bindings is a favorite theme, also black bound with white grosgrain.

Perky velvet ribbon bows trim print frocks while many dress fronts are fastened with narrow tied ribbons. Ribbon trims on hats are widely advocated and there is considerable use of broad belting ribbon to artfully band high crowns.

Use of All Kinds of Lace

Revived for Summer Wear

The use of all kinds of lace has been revived for summer wear.

Helene Yrlande uses pure white lace for a fitted deshabille which has enormously full, puffed sleeves to the elbow. The low cut front décolleté is filled with doubled bands of chiffon in pale yellow and pale green.

These two colors are repeated in the chiffon sash which is twisted about the bodice Grecian fashion, and tied in back with the floating chiffon streamers hanging in back and forming a suggestion of a train.

Use Pink Chiffon Roses to Trim Evening Jacket

Pale pink roses of shaded chiffon are applied cleverly as trimming on an evening jacket of sheer, white chiffon in the new Schiaparelli collection. The same type roses are used as a back shoulder yoke on a blue satin evening cape.

Pale yellow and green chiffon is used effectively to make sprays of mimosa applied on a white organdie evening gown.

NET OVER PRINT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Broad brimmed hats which fashion has decreed for summer wear combine well with this type of afternoon dress which is of black cable net worn over an underslip of gay print on dark background. It is made with puff sleeves and sailor collar. Catalin costume jewelry including a bow clip-brooch and bangle bracelets in the new "pepper and salt" design by Schiaparelli add chic to this costume. The hat is of black bako with a large white poppy.

Sane Reducing of Weight

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

"IF THE amount of food taken is greater than necessary to provide fuel for the energy that is used or expended, the excess food is really the source of the accumulation of fat in the body; if the amount taken equals the amount required for the energy needs of the body, the weight remains stationary; if the amount is less than required to provide for the energy used, the stored up fat is drawn upon and loss of weight follows."

"Stated in the simplest language, it follows that the diet or food treatment of overweight consists in using less nourishment than is needed to maintain body weight."

The above are simple statements and known to most overweights, but as they come from Prof. Sanford Blum in his book "Practical Dietics in Health and Disease," they carry the weight of one of our greatest authorities on food and diet.

There can be no cast iron rules on reducing weight, that is rules that will fit every case, nevertheless the main idea that food must be reduced is the ideal or motto that should be adopted by every overweight who is in earnest about getting rid of his surplus fat.

Naturally, it is at once realized that a big framed individual doing hard work outdoors is going to need more food than an undersized one who works sitting down indoors.

When to Reduce Diet.

Likewise it is more sensible to reduce the diet of an individual who regularly overeats than that of one who is a small eater, because there is a limit beyond which it is unsafe to further reduce the food intake. It seems simple enough to outline a diet containing a definite number of calories or heat units, which being less than is being eaten at present, should, therefore, reduce the weight in proportion. Unfortunately no one knows just what will happen to certain foodstuffs in every individual because each body handles foodstuffs in its own individual way. It is not then the amount eaten but the amount the body uses that is important.

Principles of Treatment.

Dr. Blum tells us that certain general principles are noteworthy in the treatment of obesity (overweight).

1. Overweight may be combated by reducing the amount of food below the level required to maintain body weight.
2. Certain kinds of food have greater calorie (heat or fuel) value than others. Alcohol, fats, carbohydrates—starch foods such as potatoes, bread, sugar—are "fattening" foods. They have high caloric values and in laying out the diet for overweight the quantities of such foods should be limited or reduced in amount.
3. Some kinds of food have small caloric values. Such foods are green vegetables, fibrous vegetables—celery, cabbage, cauliflower—fruits, lean meats. They may be taken in larger quantities by overweights.
4. Some varieties of food, while not directly apt to put on weight, stimulate the digestive glands and increase the appetite. Such foods include highly seasoned, spiced, and preserved foods. They should be avoided entirely by overweights.
5. Some foods are indigestible and should, therefore, be avoided.

"In conjunction with the diet or food treatment of overweight other measures may be employed; for example purgation (Epsom salts and other purgatives), massage (a method used for athletes and movie stars), increased amount of exercise, and hot, steam, Turkish, electric light, and other kinds of baths. But in general, the best results will be obtained by sticking closely to the food regulations outlined above. People do not become fat from what they do not eat."

Mind Affects Body.

WHEN the old physician looks back at his earlier days in medicine and remembers how the stethoscope to help examine the heart and lungs was about all the "outside" help he could obtain, and now sees how the laboratory physicians can give so much help, he may wonder if medicine is not becoming a "mechanical" science. There is now the X-ray; examination of blood, urine, stomach contents; the electrocardiograph and fluoroscope for heart examinations; the functional tests on gall bladder and kidneys, and other methods of laboratory help.

Yet as he thinks further he realizes that while all these mechanical devices are of great help where real or organic trouble exists, they are not of much help when the patient believes himself to be very sick and yet no organic ailment is present.

The lesson for us all in these days is to try to acquire a philosophy of life, by religion or otherwise, that will help us to attain poise or calmness of mind.

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Browning Biscuits.—Biscuits can be given rich brown tops by brushing the tops with a pastry brush dipped in milk before placing them in the oven.

Cooking Cabbage.—Cabbage should be cooked only until tender when tested with a fork. Too much cooking results in changed color and an indigestible product.

Disagreeable Odor.—The smell of new paint has a very bad effect on some people. To minimize it, fill a pail of water and sprinkle in it some hay and one or two onions, freshly sliced. Stand this in a room newly painted, and much of the smell will be neutralized.

When Drawers Stick.—Black lead or black lead pencil rubbed on the edges of a drawer which has become swollen from heat will enable it to be opened and shut quite easily.

Turnips Au Gratin.—For this tasty dish half-cook turnips in boiling salted water, then cut into fairly thin slices and drain well. Arrange in layers in a buttered fireproof dish, and cover each layer of turnip with grated cheese, a seasoning of pepper, and some little dabs of butter. The last layers should consist of breadcrumbs sprinkled with grated cheese and dotted with butter. Bake in a moderate oven until well browned.

Meat Pinwheels.—Biscuit dough, left-over meat chopped with onion, carrot and parsley. Spiced tomato gravy. Make your favorite biscuit dough and roll out fairly thick. Spread the meat mixture over the surface, leaving an inch margin of dough uncovered. Then roll up dough and meat together, and slice off pinwheels. Grease a shallow pan and lay in the pinwheels. Bake in moderately hot oven until done, about 30 minutes.

Storing Brown Sugar.—Brown sugar will not become lumpy if stored in an airtight jar.

Heating the Oven.—Open the oven door for a minute soon after the gas has been lit and you will find that the oven will get hot much quicker. By doing so you let out the moisture that always collects when the oven is not in use.

To Clean the Piano.—Use the suction cleaner to remove dust from the inside of the piano, and clean the keys with a soft cloth moistened with methylated spirit. Polish with a chamois leather.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

Oliver was sitting up now. "I oughtn't to have come, I tell you. Bill and I've been thrown out of the hotel, we haven't been able to pay our room rent for three weeks and we're both down to carfare and we've been trying to find somebody who'd tide us over, just a loan, things are bound to break better for us soon, and—there it is. Forget it, Rachel. I'll be all right in a minute or two."

"But you said you were hungry, Oliver, that you hadn't eaten for a long time."

"Did I say that? I'm a fool! When did I say it?"

"Just before you fainted. Is it true, are you hungry?"

"Not any hungrier than usual. I had coffee this morning, and a roll, the maid on our floor sneaked them off somebody else's tray. She's a good old scout."

Rachel looked about her distractedly. "There's almost nothing in the house to eat, but I can phone to that little restaurant across the street and get them to send something."

"No, don't think of it. I'm all right. If I could have a little more hot milk—"

"Of course." She hurried again to the kitchen, heated more milk, made a couple of slices of toast.

"Now," she said, when she came back, "I want you to eat all of this, it's not much. And, Oliver, look here, I've felt all along that I owed you something—a commission—for taking me to Vinco and getting me started there and now's certainly the time for me to pay it, and I'm going to."

"You don't owe me anything. I won't take anything from you."

"Don't be ridiculous. I do owe you something. And I'm going to pay it." She went into her bedroom and took out all of the money in her bag except a little silver.

"Now," she said, coming back and folding the bills flat, "you're to take this and find Bill and get yourself a room and some breakfast in the morning—"

Oliver had expertly flipped the corners of the bills. "There's $50 here! You don't owe me anything. I can't possibly take this. You know I can't." But he made no move to return it.

"I feel I owe it to you," said Rachel, "and anyway you need it. I wouldn't have it on my conscience to send you out of here broke and nowhere to go. And as for saying you can't take that little bit of money from me, that's rot. Why can't you?"

Oliver still held the bills in his hand. He looked at her miserably, almost with tears. "You're so kind!" he said. "You're so lovely, Rachel. And I'm nothing at all. But I love you. That's why I can't take any money from you." Before she could answer he went on quickly: "Don't say anything. There's nothing you can say. I'm ashamed to be such a louse, I'm ashamed that I came here and—made you all this trouble. I'm going now. You'll forgive me, won't you, beautiful, dear Rachel?" He rose unsteadily to his feet and picked up his hat.

"I'll forgive you if you take the money," said Rachel, shaken and distressed. She caught the bills from his hand, pushed them into his pocket. "There, forget about it, go along and find Bill, unless—are you really strong enough to go out alone, Oliver? Do you know where Bill is?"

He flung his arms around her and held her against him, kissing her cheek and forehead and eyes. "I'll never forget this as long as I live," he whispered. "There's nobody in the world but you who would be so wonderful! And as swiftly as he had embraced her he released her and went to the door and was gone."

Rachel stood perfectly still listening to his step on the stairs. Even in her confusion it occurred to her that he was oddly vigorous for a man who had just come out of a hunger faint. He had made, it seemed, a quick recovery. Almost too quick. And hadn't there been something histrionic in the whole episode?

CHAPTER VII

She went to the morning conference in a mood of reckless determination, for she was still angry and disturbed about the scene with Oliver.

She came into Vinco's agency before the hour, but Curt Elton was already there and the two of them went together to the chromium, plate-glass and black lacquer arrangement which was Vinco's private office and the pride of his life. "You still want to do this?" Curt asked, as they knocked.

She nodded. She didn't dare let him see how much she wanted it.

Terriss had not come but Vinco was waiting and gloomy.

"I don't know why Terriss is so late," he said, looking anxiously at a ghostly clock which was nothing but a glass face and black enamel hands and numerals, with no visible works.

"It's only two minutes past nine-thirty," said Curt; "yes, and there he is," for there was a knock at the door.

Terriss was the most commonplace man Rachel had ever seen, there was nothing about him that could be remembered. Not until later did she realize that complete inconspicuousness is the best disguise in the world.

Curt moved over beside her as they all sat down again. "I suppose you know something about this matter," Terriss said to Rachel, "but I'll explain more fully. My client is a wealthy business man. His wife is almost twenty years younger than himself and I gather he has always relieved her of responsibility, shielded her from everything hard and disagreeable. They have, by the way, one son, a boy about seventeen, his parents think him brilliant and promising, but he's not very strong so they've never sent him away to school, he's had tutors and gone to private schools."

"There has been petty thieving going on in my client's apartment for some months; he has checked up everyone and everything as far as he can without saying anything to his wife, he doesn't want to alarm her or make her nervous. He has and I can sew," said Rachel doubtfully.

"I think all this is nonsense. Miss Vincent isn't the type, you can see yourself, Terriss, she's too good-looking and too well educated, your client's wife would smell a rat," objected Vinco.

"Miss Vincent, please take off your hat," said Terriss. He took his spectacles from his pocket. "Smooth your hair back, wipe off your lipstick and put on my glasses. Now, in a uniform and cap you'd be just a nice healthy-looking girl, with your eyes obscured. You'd have to leave the enamel off your nails. I'd never have gone this far if I hadn't seen that she'd look all right. As for education, that doesn't matter, she won't have to pull any Latin or Greek."

"I don't know any," said Rachel.

"The thing now is to sell Miss Vincent to my client. He's difficult in some ways, but a very fine man, Miss Vincent. I've gone over your record here, Miss Vincent, I know that your father's dead, your mother's abroad for the winter and you're living with Miss Matthews, who's employed by an advertising agency. Can you direct me to some known and reliable person who will vouch for you to me and to my client? Someone who's known you from childhood and knows your family?"

Rachel hesitated. "It's a little difficult," she said. "There's Mr. Hobart Grable, my mother's lawyer, but he probably wouldn't approve my doing this and he might alarm my mother."

Mr. Terriss listened with satisfaction. "If Hobart Grable's your mother's lawyer you've already vouched for yourself, Miss Vincent. I know Mr. Grable."

Vinco broke in fustily: "Let's get down to cases, let's get down to cases. When will Miss Vincent see your client, when will she know whether or not he likes her? I want to get her appointments arranged, I want—"

"And another thing, Louis," said Curt Elton, "this may be a very short job for Miss Vincent. I think she ought to be sure you're going to take her back on your staff."

Terriss was suave and quick. "I don't consider that Miss Vincent has ever left Mr. Vinco's staff, this work is in the nature of a leave of absence and I can't begin to tell you, Vinco, how greatly I appreciate your finding Miss Vincent for me. I felt when I called you up you were the one man in New York who could help me."

Under this blandishment Vinco beamed. "Of course Miss Vincent's not leaving me permanently. I wouldn't think of letting her do that, what do you think I am?"

"I think you're awfully good," said Rachel, gratefully. "Nothing's settled anyway, Mr. Terriss' client may not like me."

"There you are," said Vinco. "Now everything's fixed except this errand of yours and the sooner you see him the better."

"We'll go over to his office right now if it suits you, Miss Vincent."

"If it suits Mr. Vinco to let me, you mean," said Rachel.

"Go along, go along, and let me know what happens."

The meeting broke up at this and Curt turned to Rachel. "You took just the right line with both of them. I'm going to wait here to find out what happens."

On the way with Terriss, Rachel felt the reality of her adventure and began to wonder how much Peter Cayne knew, whether or not his wife had told him about her first child and if he knew her name.

"There's one thing I'd like to ask," said Rachel. "Your client—can you suggest any way for me to—make the right impression on him?"

"Be yourself and natural, that's all. Anything phony's bound to seem phony, that's my motto. I noticed you didn't talk much there at Vinco's which is all to the good."

"And why don't you use one of your regular employees instead of breaking in on me like this?" grumbled Vinco.

"My client has seen my regular employees and refused to have any of them."

"He might refuse me then," said Rachel. She wondered why Cayne had not once been mentioned by name.

"May I ask you a few questions, Miss Vincent?"

"Of course."

"I'll explain first about my client's servants. There's a couple, the woman's the cook and the man's the butler, and he also valets for my client, they've been there a long time, my client has perfect trust in them. Then there's a chauffeur who lives outside, he's been there a long time, too. The lady, my client's wife, has never had a personal maid, I mean regular, there's been a sort of seamstress and maid coming in several times a week. But now this woman's taken a full-time place somewhere and my client thought it would be possible to put a woman in the house to look over the situation and trace this thieving and not have his wife disturbed by knowing about it."

"But I thought they wanted a housemaid or a waitress—I don't believe—I don't know if I could do a personal maid's work!" exclaimed Rachel. "It would mean hairdressing—and manicures—and probably massage—"

"I thought of that and asked my client, but he says his wife goes regularly to one of the big beauty establishments and he knows she wouldn't change, she enjoys the place and is used to it. But you'd have to keep her clothes in order and wait on her and be generally useful, maybe help out the butler and cook, answer the phone, perhaps look after the boy now and then, that would give you the run of the house and a way to get close to everybody in it."

"I could keep her clothes in order had, on one pretext or other, new and very intricate locks put on all the outside doors, thinking that some of the apartment house servants may have a passkey. He's had burglar alarms installed so that outside entry is practically impossible. He has had the private lives of his servants looked into and found nothing suspicious. He's up against it. At my suggestion he's finally consented to let me plant an operator in the household."

"And why don't you use one of your regular employees instead of breaking in on me like this?" grumbled Vinco.

"My client has seen my regular employees and refused to have any of them."

"He might refuse me then," said Rachel. She wondered why Cayne had not once been mentioned by name.

"I could keep her clothes in order

Let the other people do the talking, only listen to what they say."

They reached a high business building and took the elevator to the twentieth floor and Rachel saw that Terriss was watching her closely. "Are you nervous?" he asked, as they walked down the long hall.

"Of course," she said. "It's too exciting for words. I can't believe I'm actually doing this."

"You're all right," he said. "Here we are."

He opened a door marked "Planner's Engineering Co." and gave his name to the boy in the anteroom and a few moments later they were following this boy down an inner hallway to a door at the end. A loud impatient voice told them to come in and as they entered Rachel saw, rising from behind a great flat desk, an impressive man with a crest of white hair, his manner authority and decision personified.

"So this is the young lady," he said. Then disregarding Terriss and looking at Rachel, "What is your name, please?"

Terriss did not permit himself to be disregarded. "This is Miss Vincent, Mr. Cayne."

This was the crucial moment and Rachel held herself rigid with fear, but Mr. Cayne gave no sign of any recognition of the name. Nevertheless, Rachel could not speak, but she managed to bow naturally.

"Sit down," he ordered. "Sit down, Terriss, I suppose," turning to Rachel, "you know what I'm looking for?"

Now she must speak. She pulled herself together. "Mr. Terriss has told me something about it. Not in detail."

"Mr. Cayne," said Terriss, "Miss Vincent qualifies with me for a chance at this job. She assures me she can do the routine work of a lady's maid and we can have some extra instruction given her so that Mrs. Cayne will not suspicion anything. You don't want Mrs. Cayne to know why Miss Vincent is there? You want her to feel that Miss Vincent is a servant just like the others—"

"I haven't said that I'd engaged Miss Vincent yet. But that's right, whoever comes in there must be like the other servants and Mrs. Cayne mustn't be bothered. She isn't very well, she's high-strung and imaginative and besides she's—she's like an impulsive child, she couldn't hide her feelings, she'd be certain to give the show away without intending it." His voice softened into indulgence as he spoke of his wife.

"Would you like to talk to Miss Vincent alone?" asked Terriss. "I'll wait outside."

"That's a good idea. I won't be long." He nodded Terriss out and Rachel was left facing him. "Now, young lady, let's get down to brass tacks. You can do a lady's maid's work, can you? Where did you learn it?"

"At home, taking care of my own clothes. I understand that this position doesn't require expert beauty-shop work."

"That's right." He looked Rachel over from head to feet. "I don't know, I don't know, I've seen all the women on Terriss' regular staff and they're terrible, Elinor wouldn't stand any of 'em for a split second. Now you're a lady, anybody can see that. Maybe you're too much of a lady, too pretty. You'd have to tone that down, but Terriss says you could. This isn't going to be easy, you know. Whoever's the thief he's smart, too damned smart. It must be one of the servants, but they've all been with me, why, they're like friends. It's unbelievable!"

Rachel, remembering Terriss' warning to let other people talk, sat silent through all this, listening and watchful. "I wonder why he seems lonely," she thought. "He's grand. I like him."

Electric Siren Protects Trucks From Hijackers; Mechanism Sounds an Alarm

To baffle "pirates" of the highway, trucks laden with precious merchandise are being equipped with a secret combination alarm which stops the engine abruptly and sounds a piercing siren when cargo or cab is attacked, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The electric timing mechanism is always in operation, even when the truck is parked in a garage, and any attempt, even by the driver, to start the engine, enter the cab, tamper with doors or with the alarm system itself, will set off the alarm unless the secret combination is worked properly. This combination is trusted only to the driver and can be changed only by the manufacturer.

When a truckman starts out with his valuable load, he must first turn a key in a lock in front of the cab door. Then he must enter the cab and within a given number of seconds press a certain combination of six electric buttons concealed in a steel box on the instrument board. This done, he can start the motor and proceed. If he fails to work the combination within the allotted period, the timer will sound the alarm and it cannot be stopped immediately. The driver can shut it off after a period of time by proper manipulations.

If hijackers open the cab door or the door to the cargo, or attempt to cut wires of the alarm, the siren will sound and continue for four to six hours to utter a shriek audible for several miles. It is operated by a powerful storage battery mounted under the truck. All wiring is incased in steel pipe, the siren and battery being inclosed in hardened, drillproof steel cases with special baffles. No two trucks have the same combination. The human element is minimized, for the alarm is automatic and needs no motion of the driver to actuate it.

By VIRGINIA VALE

EVERYTHING goes in cycles in motion pictures, and just now the Russian cycle threatens to monopolize the screen. No less than three of the most fascinating screen sirens are currently holding forth in the midst of Russian magnificence.

There is Marlene Dietrich with Robert Donat in "Without Armor" for instance, Miss Dietrich and Robert Donat make a thrilling romantic pair. Another of the Russian cycle is "The Emperor's Candlesticks" in which Luise Rainer and William Powell appear as rival spies of Russia and Poland. Last, but by no means least, particularly for music lovers, is "Two Who Dared," with Anna Sten, who has been too long absent from our screens.

At last George Raft is out of seclusion and he is so relieved. For months he has had to go without a haircut for his role in "Souls at Sea" and to his eternal discomfiture his shoulder-length hair was daily waved with a curling iron. He didn't dare face the mugs who are his best friends looking like that. The day the picture was finished he celebrated with a very tight haircut and smeared on the vaseline lavishly.

Ever since a court forced Mae West to break down and admit that she really was married twenty-six years ago to one Frank Wallace, she has been in seclusion. Couldn't stand having people stare at her intently looking for wrinkles, while they counted on their fingers—eighteen and twenty-six make forty-four.

In those odd moments when they are not discussing Mae West's age, Hollywoodians are raving over the beautiful newcomer, Zorina, who is under contract to Sam Goldwyn. She is an enchanting young woman about nineteen years old. Born in Norway, not far from the Arctic Circle, she went to school in Berlin, joined the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe company when she was visiting in Mexico City, and because of her two years association with this troupe now has a slight Russian accent.

Rudy Vallee spends many of his evenings nowadays at a night club in New York where his friend Jackie Osterman is making a comeback after a long stretch of hard luck. Vallee is a great story teller, and one of his favorites concerns Jack Benny. Vallee wholeheartedly admires the drastic way in which Jack Benny treated a hostile vaudeville audience years ago. Benny came out on one side of the stage merrily saying "Hello folks" only to face a bunch of tough-looking ruffians who glowered at him. Continuing right on across the stage, he exited from the stage saying "Good-by folks" and walked right on out of the theater never to return.

Martha Raye made the hit of her life and smashed all box-office records making personal appearances at the Paramount theater in New York recently. The audience simply could not get enough of her. They surged down to the footlights when her act was over, shot questions at her, begged her to sing one more song, and then just stood and yelled when her voice threatened to give out.

Frankie Masters, NBC star and band maestro says "It pays to work your way through college." Frankie started out to earn his way through the commerce school at the University of Indiana by strumming his banjo in the band. Soon the band became more profitable than commerce and he had engagements at hotels and leading night clubs in Chicago and other big cities. Frankie is starred with Eddie Guest on the "It Can Be Done" program.

Household Helps

Do you know the proper thing to say when you sit on a wad of chewing gum?

If your suit is washable, here is the correct command—if you want to get rid of the chewing gum and not your garment:

"Bring me an egg white, some soap and some lukewarm water. Then stand back and watch me soften the gum with the egg white—so! And finally wash it completely away with the soapy water."

If your suit isn't washable, the fabric-saving element is carbon tetrachloride, which will remove all traces of stain.

The authority for these points of chewing gum etiquette is a new booklet called "Handy Helps for Homemakers," which has been prepared by a group of home economics authorities. This booklet is a convenient, compact handbook of practical remedies for the most common household problems. It is divided into four sections: laundering (which includes not only stain-removal formulae, but also detailed advice on the proper way to wash various fabrics); home lighting; heating; and cooking.

The writers of the "Handy Helps for Homemakers" booklet have confined the chapter on "Cooking" to an informative discussion of meat-selection rules, suggestions for improving actual cooking technique and a summary of the merits and problems of home canning.

A copy of the "Handy Helps for Homemakers" book can be secured by sending 5 cents to cover postage and handling to Miss Boyd, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

Baptist Encampment

We're all back safe and sound (except for a few bug bites) from the Baptist Encampment at Miami. Hedley's representatives were Joe Wells, Inell Biffle, Theresa Bain, Fred Wells, Ralph Alwine, Winfred McPherson, Gene and Stephen Milner, Rev. and Mrs. M. E. Wells, Mary Hope and Ola Ruth Wells. Utes Holand of Amarillo spent a few days in the Hedley camp.

The day's schedule began with the rising bell at 6:00. Then came the early morning devotionals. Next were the various conferences. The Sunday School Conferences were directed by Bro. Hopkins from Dallas. B. T. U was directed by Rev. Mason from Memphis. Prof. Poole from Baylor University had charge of the Denominational hour. The first part of the week Dr. J. Howard Williams of the First Baptist Church of Amarillo gave the sermons. The latter part of the week Rev. Lem Hodges, also of Amarillo, was camp pastor. Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Huber from Stratford were in charge of the music. The fun hour each evening was directed by Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Huff from Wayland College at Plainview. Folks, ask someone who went to tell you about that ghost story.

In spite of the fact that we had to eat our own cooking for a week and that it came a flood and a sandstorm, everyone seemed to enjoy himself immensely.

We wish to thank each and everyone of you who helped make it possible for us to attend the Encampment.

Here's hoping more Hedley people will be able to attend next year.

We are back from the revival meeting at Meadow, where we had a great meeting. Because we have been out of our pulpit for the two past Sundays, we shall preach Sunday morning and discontinue for the evening service to attend the revival at the Baptist Church which begins Sunday.

Let us pray and cooperate with this revival that it may be a great success. Bro. Whatley is an old friend of ours, we having been copastors in the same town at one time. He is a good preacher and we love him.

Be on time for the Church School Sunday morning.

B. J. Osborn, Pastor

O. E. S.

Monday evening, Aug. 9, the local O. E. S. of Hedley celebrated in memory of the founder of the order, Robt. Morris, with a lawn social at the home of Mrs. Masterson. Members of the Chapter and friends met at 8 p. m., and while a number that we expected failed to put in an appearance, we had a very pleasant time. After a sumptuous repast of fried chicken, salad, ice cream and cake some time was spent in games. All had a pleasant time if appearances count.

The following availed themselves of this opportunity to get better acquainted: Messrs. and Mesdames E. H. Watt, Zeb Mitchell, E. M. Glass, and Ralph Mereman, Mesdames Newman, Land, Everett, Cannon, Dunean and Masterson, Mrs. McCants and daughter, Mrs. Ruth Kempson and Louisa and Mrs. Byrdie Watt and daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Heltsclaw moved to Amarillo Monday. Best wishes of Hedley friends go with them.
