An Appreciation

Our little town and all the country for miles around mourn today as one at the passing away of Dr. J. W. Webb. For months his condition has been serious. The family moved to Arlington in hope that the change would help, but messages and letters sent back told that his heart and interest were still with the ones here whom he had served as physician, counsellor and sympathetic friend for nearly twenty years. In the end he chose this his last resting place.

Born in 1862, Dr. Webb was not an old man as years are numbered, but his untiring zeal, keen sensitiveness to the suffering of his patients, long hours without rest took their toll of his strength. His patient kindness with parents and children has carved his memory upon the hearts of hundreds and will ever abide with them as one of their priceless treasures.

His funeral was held Saturday afternoon in the Hedley Methodist Church. The pastor, Rev. B. J. Osborn, assisted by a former pastor, Rev. A. V. Hendricks, and the Baptist pastor Rev. M. E. Wells officiated. Those attending the casket included the active pallbearers and the honorary escort from the Masonic Order, his wife and children, Theresa, James, Mrs. Lamberson, Vernon, Max, Joyce and Gloria, a number of relatives, visiting physicians and a great host of friends.

Flowers in mass were heaped about the casket rail. All these were mere outward expression of the esteem in which this good doctor and his dear family were held.

As the procession passed to view his face for the last time on this earth, strong men wept and women and children sobbed for this man who had sacrificed the best years of his life in ministering to them.

Gentle hands laid his body to rest in the Rowe cemetery, with the impressive Masonic ceremony and under a bank of beautiful flowers, fitting emblem of that glad new Easter morning when the resurrection will be a glad reality.

Dear loved ones and friends lift up your eyes and behold the great Physician, the sympathizing Jesus, who says "I have compassion" and "because I live ye shall live also." Take comfort in the great heritage left you and "carry on" with lives of service to others, for "Let not your heart be troubled," He says.

My Father's house has many mansions, bright and fair; I go before you to prepare a place, I will return to take you with me there. And since that hour the awful foe is charmed, And life and death are glorified and fair, Whither He went we know, the way we know And with firm steps press on to meet Him there."

District Commander of American Legion Visits Hedley

At the last Legion meeting Lou Roberts of Berger, Commander of the 18th District met with the local post and installed the new officers. Other visitors were Dan Kennedy, Chief de Guerre of the 40 & 8 from Pampa, Charlie Maisei of the Kerley Grossman Post of Pampa, and B. C. Antrobus, Commander of the Legion Post at Clarendon.

New officers installed were C. L. Johnson, Commander, H. L. Whitfield, First Vice Commander, J. M. Lynn, Second Vice Commander, J. C. Doherty, Adjutant, F. L. Dishman, Service Officer, W. E. Stroud, Finance Officer, E. E. Hooker, Historian, Herman Kirkpatrick, Sergeant at Arms, and F. O. Boherty Chaplain.

The local post is getting ever big in their drive for new members and soon expect to exceed their quota. Their program for the year includes several worthwhile things for the good of the town and community.

Hooker's are still offering you bargains in fast color prints.

Revival

Bad weather last week delayed the Baptist meeting to some extent, but interest is still growing and those who attend are enjoying some great services. Both preaching and singing are inspiring, and if you are not attending these services you are missing a blessing.

NOTICE

Dawn, an Easter Cantata, is to be given Sunday morning, April 17, at the First Baptist Church, at 11 a. m. by the Ladies' Chorus group of Hedley.

Tasty Baked Potatoes.—After baked potatoes are "done," gently crush the potato open and then return it to the oven to dry out for a few minutes.

Small Towels for Children.—Small size bath towels which are light in weight but firmly woven are easier for children handle and are easier to launder.

Frying Fish Filets.—Try dipping fish filets in yellow corn meal, in milk and again in corn meal. Then fry them in deep fat until they are well browned.

Add Acid to Milk.—To help prevent curdling when acid and milk are combined, add the acid to the milk rather than the milk to the acid.

Sauce for Cold Meats.—An interesting sauce with cold meat, ham or pork calls for adding whipped cream and horseradish to tart, unsweetened apple sauce.

Sewing on Snaps.—When sewing snaps on a garment sew them on by means of buttonhole stitches and they will not pull out like plain over and over stitches.

Fresh Orange Juice.—It is best to squeeze the orange juice just before breakfast rather than the night before so that the air won't have a chance to attack the vitamin in the juice and also change the flavor.

Does your laxative make you SICK in the STOMACH?

The first thing you want when you're constipated is a good thorough cleaning out. That's why you buy a laxative. But who said you had to take a rough bitter dose that makes you sick in the stomach? Taking a laxative can be just as pleasant as eating a piece of delicious chocolate—provided you take Ex-Lax. It gets thorough results—but smoothly, easily, without throwing your intestinal system out of whack, without causing nausea, stomach pains or weakness.

For over 30 years, Ex-Lax has been America's favorite family laxative. Now it is Scientifically Improved. It's actually better than ever! It TASTES BETTER, ACTS BETTER—and is MORE GENTLE than ever. Equally good for children and grown-ups. 10¢ and 25¢ boxes at your drugist.

feature in this issue, "What You Eat and Why," by C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, radio speaker, author and lecturer fa-

"from soil to serving, from table

One of these articles will appear each week, and we know housewives and mothers will look forward to them for the accurate worthwhile information they contain on foods and their relation to health. This is not a recipe column. Mr. Goudiss has designed it to serve as a link between laboratory and layman in the food field interpreting modern scientific knowledge in the language of the home maker, giving her the elemental facts regarding new discoveries and the part played by food in building and maintaining health.

Every woman wants to know what foods will benefit her family and why, and that is just the informa-

This meet was to have been held April 7, 8 and 9 but the blizzard postponed it until a later date.

Seniors Are Entertained

The Seniors were entertained Wednesday evening, April 6, by the Baptist ladies. The ladies had the church basement decorated in green and white crepe paper and boxes of spring flowers.

Because the storm prevented the ladies carrying out their planned program, the guests were entertained by the round table, poetry corner and songs.
We especially appreciated Rev.
Allen's fine poem entitled There Sits the Eagle, which was dedicated to the Seniors of 1938.

After Rev. Allen had spoken on the subject, The Highway of Life, to the Seniors in the evening service, everyone was invited to the basement. Plates, on which were fancy cheese and wishes, angel food cake and orangeade. The hostesses were Mesdames A. T. Simmons, W. C.
Payne, Hobart Moffitt and Bill Scales. Those who were fortune-ate enough to get through the gate were Mrs. Lela B. Owen, Miss Beryl Hixson, Ione Wall,
Edith Snyers, Jo Wells, Craig
Johnson, Clay Plunk, Forrest
Adamson, T. J. Hansard, Jackie
Ranson, Mr. Alewine Rev. Allen,
Rev. Lloyd and Rev. Wells.

NOTICE

Dawn, an Easter Cantata, is to be given Sunday morning, April 17, at the First Baptist Church at 11 a. m. by the Ladies' Chorus group of Hedley.

Attention Married Men

Married men, how should you deal with a mother in law who changes taps on the shower and you almost scald yourself to death? Or one who throws away your tooth paste and leaves shaving cream in its place?

Did the 'little bittle wife inspire her dreat big brooful husband, or like most wives give him a pain in the neck? Or was it the ruthless mother in law who inspired her "dear son in law?"

Come to see the answer of this puzzle on April 29, 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium.

Assembly

Chapel was held Thursday in the high school auditorium. Several songs were sung by the student body, led by Mrs. Owen, and accompanied by Mrs. Watkins; after which Clarendon Jr.
College presented a short program with Miss Theresa Bain in charge. Mrs. Austin played two piano solos and Miss McDonald gave a short talk on Clarendon Jr. College.

The students enjoyed the program and hope they will be with us again soon.

After the program the declaimers gave their declamations.

Bro. Allen, who has a meeting in progress at the Baptist church gave a very interesting talk to the student body Wednesday, April 6. His subject was What is Man, illustrating this point by referring to man's thoughts, actions and associates. Bro. Lloyd led the singing accompanied by Mrs. Watkins at the piano.

Not only did the blizzard freeze up the flowers and fruit, but it also prevented students' activities at school; hence we have little news this week.

Insufficient Liver

By JAMES W. BARTON
Syndicate.—WNU Service.

SOME months ago in discussing the importance of the liver it was pointed out that a congress of physicians from all over the world was meeting at Vichy, the European health resort, and would spend three days on the one subject, "The Insufficient Liver." The congress met, and 1,600 physicians were in attendance. A part of the program is reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The various tests to learn how well the liver was doing its work were discussed and how the insufficient liver could interfere with the condition of the blood, and this in turn could cause certain skin eruptions and irritations.

Thus a liver that is not doing its work properly was shown to be the direct cause of pruritis (itching), urticaria (hives), eczema, and that other common skin ailment—impetigo. In impetigo there are little blisters on the skin which will fill with pus, break down and leave yellowish scabs. There is no redness about these scabs and they "look as if they were stuck on the skin with gum."

It was pointed out that these skin ailments can, in turn, give rise to serious liver disturbances. In such diseases as bronze diabetes, the skin and liver changes go hand in hand.

Other Disturbances.

Another body disturbance due to an "insufficient" liver is oedema, or swelling, this swelling being due to the liver not removing certain poisons from the blood.

Another disturbance caused by the insufficient liver is in the nervous system. It upsets the proper balance and many of the changes in the disposition and actions of our friends and acquaintances may be due to the fact that they are "liverish."

Altogether, abstracts of 130 papers on this one subject—the insufficient liver—were presented during the three-day session.

Thus as we think of the liver—the king of the organs—and of all the different kinds of work it has to do—store sugar, make bile, filter the blood, help to supply materials for the blood—we are not surprised that it does not always work properly.

It fails to work properly in most cases because we eat too much at one time of fat and starch foods, and take little or no exercise to stimulate the circulation of the blood through the liver.

High Blood Pressure.

There was a time when an operation—usually the removal of the appendix—was a favorite, if not the favorite, topic of conversation among middle-aged men and women. Today, if it is not about the heart—angina, coronary thrombosis, leaking valves—it is about the blood pressure.

What is blood pressure? Blood pressure is the pressure made against the walls of the blood vessels as it circulates throughout the body. The physician measures this pressure against a column of mercury—just as we read the pressure of the atmosphere on the barometer.

Now the average individual has learned that if this pressure of the blood is too great against the blood vessel wall it may break through the wall and cause bleeding—hemorrhage—which bleeding will cause damage in the brain, heart or elsewhere according to where the lesion occurs.

The average individual also thinks that it is because the walls of the blood vessels have lost their elastic tissue—hardening of the arteries—that the pressure becomes so high, and this is often true. However, if the individual is excited or upset at the time of, or because of, the examination, or has just eaten a heavy meal, his blood pressure may be up as high as 20 to 30 points. A little quiet reassuring chat by the physician will often bring the pressure down to normal within a few minutes. Sometimes, of course, the pressure has to be taken a number of times; in the morning before breakfast is a favorable time.

Even when the blood pressure is "always" high, if the individual goes about his regular affairs or duties in life with ordinary care—no heavy work, light meals even if more meals are eaten, acquiring calmness or poise—he may never have the slightest symptom of high-blood pressure and live just as long as if his blood pressure had been normal.

Dr. David Riesman, Philadelphia, in Annals of Internal Medicine, makes this statement: "An individual can live to eighty or even one hundred years with high systolic (blood being forced against vessel walls) blood pressure."

STAR DUST

Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

JUDY GARLAND, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's wonder girl, will be starred in "The Wizard of Oz" and that is just the first of many fairy-tale pictures that you may expect to see in the next year.

Ever since "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" started its record-breaking runs, motion-picture producers have been wondering if a fairy tale with human actors wouldn't be a good bet. All the companies are looking for fairy tales, and as fast as they find them, all the younger stars from Shirley Temple to Deanna Durbin will be put to work in them.

Considering what has happened to other operatic songbirds in pictures, sudden stardom and then a complete loss of interest by the studios, Helen Jepson is very happy that she plays a fairly small part in "The Goldwyn Follies." She thinks that her career in pictures will probably last a long time if she doesn't want to be the whole show. She would like a chance to see some of the scenes that were cut out of "The Follies" though. There was one where she really looked like herself, no wig, no special make-up, and her favorite dress. There was another where Bobby Clark dropped her kerplunk on the floor.

Reports of "Merrily We Live" in which Brian Aherne co-stars with Constance Bennett were so good that the Hal Roach studio immediately wired to New York where he was vacationing and urged him to return at once. His new picture is to be "There Goes My Heart" and when he left a lot of young New York actresses said that the title expressed just what they felt.

"Arsene Lupin Returns" is a delightful and gripping jewel-thief mystery, played with great skill by Melvyn Douglas, Warren William, and Virginia Bruce. William's part, though not as large as the others, is a memorable one, for he plays a G-man who so relishes seeing his picture in the papers that he isn't worth much to his department, which cherishes a notion that secret service should have something secret about it.

After all these weeks of triumph, Fanny Brice just got around to explaining where she got the idea of Baby Snooks. It seems that when Fanny was a little girl she longed to play Topsy in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and no one would give her a chance. Baby Snooks is her idea of a white Topsy.

When Robert Taylor isn't actually before the microphone during the "Good News" program, he is sitting just off-stage talking to Barbara Stanwick. Since she has become a regular visitor to the broadcasts, two chairs are placed in this spot every week.

Robert Taylor

Barbara Stanwick

ODDS AND ENDS—Unlike most actors, Bob Burns doesn't spend his spare time going to pictures to see what his competitors are doing. He saw only three pictures last year, all sad ones, and he hasn't seen any yet this year. . . . Pretty Things for Easter

THESE three dresses are up high on the list of fashion's favorites, and you can easily make them at home by using our simple, easy-to-follow patterns, each accompanied by a complete and detailed sew chart. Start right now, for even if there's a shiver in the air at this moment, Easter is not very far off! And you'll want to be ready!

Dress With Lifted Waistline.

This is a very, very popular fashion because it makes you look so slim and graceful, what with the waistline high in front, and soft gathers above it, the gently flaring skirt. Made up in a prett print or silk crepe, it will be lovely for Easter and for all Spring. Be sure to wear a bunch of flowers at the neckline.

A Jumper Frock for Girls.

This is one of the sweetest and most becoming styles ever invented for girls of school age, just about the time they begin to shoot up so fast that you can almost see them grow! Make the jumper of linen, gingham or percale, and why not make two or three blouses to go with it? One of linen, one of dimity, and one of organdie.

Everybody Likes Dirndl Frock.

The square neckline, the full rippling skirt and tight little waist, are so flattering to slim figures! Here's a charming dirndl with just the right air of quaintness and freshness about it. Choose a gay flowered print, or a cheerful plain color, pale or bright. But be sure, whether you make it up in silk or cotton, to choose a crisp fabric so that the skirt will flare as it should.

The Patterns.

1481 is designed for sizes 14 to 42 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 (34) requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material.

1996 is designed for 6 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 1/4 yards of 39-inch material for the jumper; 1 1/2 yards for the blouse. Also 2 1/2 yards of bias facing for neck and armholes of jumper.

1480 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 (32) requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material, plus 1 1/4 yards of ribbon for belt and 3 1/4 yards of braid or ribbon for trimming.

"YOU BET WE'RE ENJOYIN' OUR 'MAKIN'S' SMOKES—NOW!"

"JUST GOT A MESSAGE from up the line," says telegrapher Jim Redmond (center). "They're all shut in by a big fall of snow. But they don't care. The boys say they've got plenty of Prince Albert 'makin's' tobacco—and they're sure tickled with it. They didn't know tobacco could be so mild, yet so full-bodied and rich tasin'."

COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick at L. C. ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken and bull-headed father, Lee, from a band of lawless rustlers headed by Sperm Howard, decides to save him by eloping with young Lou Howard, Sperm's son, and comes to the town of Tail Holt to meet him. While in Yell Sanger's store, a crook-nosed stranger enters, sizes up the situation, and when a drunken cowboy, Jim Pender, rides in and starts shooting, protects Ruth, while Lou Howard hides. Disgusted with Lou's cowardice, Ruth calls off the elopement, and sends the stranger for her father at the gambling house across the street. There the stranger, calling himself Jeff Gray, meets Morgan Norris, a killer, Curly Connor, Kansas, Mile High, Sid Hunt, and other rustlers, and Sperm Howard. Lee Chiswick enters, with his foreman, Dan Brand, and tells Sperm Howard of his orders to shoot rustlers at eight. Jeff Gray returns to Ruth and coldly reassures her of her father's safety. At supper, Ruth introduces Jeff to her father and Brand, and in Sanger's store later she speaks cordially to Curly Connor. Coming out of the store, they are greeted by sudden gunplay. Lee is wounded, and Jeff Gray appears with a smoking revolver. Two days later, Ruth tells her father of her projected elopement and her disillusionment.

During the days that followed he held his friendship back from her. At times he was choleric, at times sullen and distant. Ruth was sorry, because she was aware of his desire for a reconciliation. She guessed that her attention to his wants and her apparent humility were a reproach to him. Since she had a sense of humor, she chuckled over the situation.

"I'm a deceitful little scamp," she told her brother Frank, who had heard the story from Dan Brand. "I'm not half as humble as I was at first. Here I go around as if butter wouldn't melt in my mouth whenever Father is about, and really I'm beginning to think it's sort of fun."

"Hmp!" Frank snorted. "I can tell you someone who won't think it's fun if I meet him." Ruth's bright eyes snapped. "Don't you dare touch Lou Howard, Frank Chiswick. If you do—"

She left her threat in the air, feeling it stronger not completed.

Ruth was riding circle above the rimrock. She had come out with her brothers and the other vaqueros to round up the yearlings for the Broderick order.

She had combed the ridge above and was coming down an arroyo thick with prickly pear. Her brother Bob had been with her, but he had bolted down a neighboring draw after a small bunch of high-tailing stuff. For the time she could take it easy. Blue Chip had done his full share and was entitled to a breathing space.

Ruth pulled up abruptly. In front of her a pebble had rolled down a steep bank to the path. From the little rock her eyes traveled up the incline down which it had come. Stones sometimes start downhill from force of gravity; more often they need an impetus to set them in motion.

Above the top of a bisnago she saw a Stetson hat, beneath this a brown, sardonic face.

"Buenos dias, senorita," a cool voice drawled.

The girl stared at the owner of that voice, the man who had called himself Jeff Gray.

"What are you doing here?" she asked, and answered her own question: "You are lying in wait to kill my father."

He slithered down the scarred slope, to face a little revolver that had somehow jumped to her hand.

"We'll talk about that," he said, a smile on his face.

To Ruth it was a hateful smile, one that mocked confidently the picture of feminine ferocity she made.

"We'll talk about nothing," she cried, anger aflame in her eyes. "You light out of here, you dirty killer, or I'll call my brothers."

"Why would I want to kill Lee Chiswick when I had never seen him before?" he asked, paying no attention at all to the weapon in her hand.

"For money," she told him contemptuously. "His enemies sent for you to do the murder they were afraid to do themselves."

He shook his head. "I'm a stranger here. I don't know Howard or any of his crowd. Besides, that gang doesn't need an outsider to do its bushwhacking. They have plenty of bull-rattlers right in their midst."

"Why are you arguing about it?" she burst out stormily. "Didn't I see you shoot him? Didn't you run close to try to finish the job?"

"No," he replied quietly. "What d'you mean, no?"

"I mean you didn't see either one of those things. You just think you saw them."

"You talk like a fool. A dozen men saw you. Smoke was coming out of your gun while you were running forward."

about." She pushed his argument aside impatiently with a wave of the hand. "All is, you're a liar as well as an assassin. I warn you to get out of this country. I'm going to have you hunted down like the wolf you are."

"Use yore brains, girl," he urged. "Four men were standing within ten feet of yore father. If I had shot him, would I run up and give them all a crack at me?"

"The answer is, you did. Three of them were friends of Sperm Howard. Maybe you expected them to help you." A wave of fury boiled up in her. "I'm not going to discuss anything with the villain hired to murder my father. If you don't get out of here I'll—I'll—"

Still his smile did not go out of commission. "What will you do?" he asked politely.

"Get out of my way," she ordered, and gave Blue Chip a touch of the spur.

The horse went up in the air. Gray caught the bridle, perhaps to quiet the animal, perhaps because he could not get out of the way.

Ruth never knew how it happened. The revolver in her hand went off. Instantly she knew the man had been hit. He dropped the rein and staggered back. Blue Chip plunged down the arroyo.

The rider of the horse dragged it to a halt and turned. She had dropped the gun during the wild dash down the draw and she dismounted to recover it. Pulling herself to the saddle again, Ruth rode back to the spot of the encounter. Her heart was beating wildly. She had shot a man. Perhaps she had killed him.

He was climbing the rubble slope to the bank where she had first seen him, and he was making bad going of it. One leg dragged.

She stopped in the bottom of the trough below him.

"It's your own fault for snatching at my bridle," she told him.

He said, with cool effrontery, "You did almost as bad a job as I did at Tail Holt."

"The gun went off."

"My leg is telling me that. Did you come back to finish what you began?"

"I carry it for rattlesnakes. I didn't mean to—"

"Not for wolves?" he inquired pleasantly.

"Are you hurt—badly?"

He saw she was frightened. The bark of the revolver had for the time driven away anger.

"I reckon I'll make out," he answered.

"Is your horse back there in the brush?"

"You can tell yore father it's even steven now," he drawled.

She swung down from Blue Chip and climbed the bank. "I'll help you get up," she told him in a small voice.

"Good of you, Miss Chiswick, to help a hired killer."

He accepted her aid. After a struggle, during which the wounded leg collapsed under him once or twice, they reached the top of the bank.

Gray whistled. Out of the brush trotted a long-barreled roan.

"Where are you going? Who will look after your leg?" Ruth asked.

"I'm wondering about that," he said.

"You can't go back to Tail Holt, unless you are Sperm Howard's man."

"Ta—"

rock not far from here," she explained. "Old Pat Sorley is staying there now. He is close-mouthed, and he will do as I ask. And he's a pretty good doctor too. You can hole up there for a week and not be seen by anybody except Pat. After today our riders will be out of the rimrock. I'll take you there. We'd better hurry, so that I can get back before I'm missed."

He pulled himself to the saddle. "You're heaping coals of fire on my red head," Gray said sardonically. "Let's get going, girl."

Ruth went back to Blue Chip, mounted, and put the horse at the easiest part of the slope. The cowboy clawed its way up like a cat, the muscles of its legs standing out like heavy ropes.

"We don't want to meet anybody," the girl said. "Better swing off to the right."

"You're the caporal of this outfit," he told her.

She led the way into the chaparral, guiding Blue Chip through the mesquite and the cholla with an admirable economy of motion.

They crossed the mesa and dropped down into a gulch which took them through the broken rimrock to a point where they looked down on a wide valley below. Ruth turned to the left, picking a way among the boulders and working up again into the rimrock along a cow trail. This dipped sharply, at a fault in the ledge, to a small park containing four or five acres. This was so completely hidden that nobody could have suspected its existence from the contour of the country.

A corral of thorny ocotillo lay at their feet. Close to it was a barn built of sahuaro poles and mud. The cabin nestled against a rock wall that bounded the far side of the park.

The girl and the man wound down into the little mountain valley and crossed to the cabin. Someone stood in the doorway and watched their approach.

Pat Sorley was a little old man with a wrinkled face like a map of Ireland. At sight of Ruth he twisted it to a grin. They were the best of friends. His hands were in his pockets and there was a clay pipe in his mouth.

Ruth waved at him. He took one hand from a pocket and the pipe from his mouth.

"It's glad I am to see you, Miss Ruth," he said.

"I've brought someone to stay with you, Pat," the girl told him. She turned to the guest, a touch of cool insolence in her voice. "You said your name is—"

"Still Jeff Gray," the man said in his soft, mocking drawl. He understood that Ruth Chiswick was going to make it clear to the line-rider he was no friend.

"Mr. Gray has been hurt," she said. "I want you to patch him up and keep him hidden here until he can travel."

"Hidden who from?" Pat asked. "From my father and my brothers and any of our riders."

"And what for would I be doing that?" Pat asked bluntly.

"Out of Christian charity," Gray murmured ironically. "I'm supposed to have taken a crack with a six-gun at Lee Chiswick in Tail Holt the other day."

Pat bristled. "You've got a nerve telling me that." He turned to the young woman. "I'll be listenin' to anything you've got to tell me, Miss Ruth."

"He's wounded," she answered. "Let's take care of him and do the explaining afterward, Pat."

"There's sense in that." Pat did not know how much or how little of what this fellow had said was true, but he did not intend to be the victim of his derision. "Better get that brindle thatch down and let's see what's ailing you," he said crustily.

Gray eased himself gingerly out of the saddle. "Got a pill in one leg." He hobbled into the cabin.

"Go ahead and fix him up," Ruth said. "I'll tie the horses back among the rocks."

"What is this fellow?" Pat asked. "Some kind of outlaw on the dodge?"

Ruth shook her head. "I don't know." She ignored the presence of Gray in her answer as completely as Pat had in his question. "We'll talk about that later."

She turned away with the horses. Ungraciously Pat set to work doctoring the wound. The bullet had passed through the thigh close to the surface and missed the artery.

"Ought to heal up nice," Sorley grunted.

Turning to Ruth, Sorley said, "I don't know where he got this wound or anything about him, be gory, but what I say, is that if he's the bird shot at the old man at Tail Holt I'll see him in Jericho before I'll let him stay here. He can put that in his pipe and smoke it, be-dad."

Ruth nodded. "I know how you feel, Pat, because that's the way I feel myself."

"What's to keep this buckaroo, soon as his leg gets a little better, from going up to the ranch some night and taking another crack at your dad?"

"That's what I'm afraid of," she admitted.

Jeff Gray sat on a homemade chair with his wounded leg resting on another. He volunteered no assurances of good behavior.

"Looky here, Miss Ruth," Pat urged, "we'd ought to tell Lee or one of the boys he is here, especially if you are sure he's the fellow you think he is."

"I know," Ruth's face wore a troubled frown. "Only . . . I shot him."

Pat dropped his pipe to the floor. It shattered into fifty bits. "The devil you say! Beggin' your pardon, Miss."

"I don't know how it happened. Blue Chip was jumping around, and he got in the way. I didn't mean to do it."

An innocent bystander hit through an unfortunate accident," Gray suggested.

"What was the fellow doing around here?" Pat asked accusingly.

"I was on my way to the L. C.," explained Gray. "Wanted to have a little talk with Chiswick."

"Wanted to shoot him, you villain."

"I'm one of these victims of circumstantial evidence," the crook-nosed man drawled. "Someone takes a crack at Chiswick, and I'm unanimously elected as the guy."

"We saw you do it—half a dozen of us," Ruth cried.

"Just what did you see?" the accused man asked.

"After you had shot you ran forward to finish Father, and the other men there fired at you and drove you away. What's the use of denying it?" she cried hotly.

"Not much use, is there?" he said evenly. "If I told my story you wouldn't believe it."

"No, I wouldn't. It would be all lies . . . But tell it."

"Much obliged, Miss Chiswick. I reckon I'll keep it under my own hat."

"What story could you tell? Father was wounded. We saw the smoke coming from your gun as you ran forward."

"That's correct."

"So you must have been the man."

Very Smart New Fashions

A HOUSE dress with long slender lines, a dress and apron for little girls, and a popular bolero frock for slim young figures! You will certainly want one of these, and more likely will want all three. With each pattern, you receive a complete and detailed sew chart specially planned to help beginners, so that the making will be easy, and save you money besides.

Popular Bolero Frock.

Make it up of silk crepe or a pretty print, and see how expensive, how flattering, it looks! The short bolero and wide shoulders make the slim lines of the frock even more graceful. Notice how cleverly the dress is shirred into the front panel at the waistline. This is one of the prettiest afternoon dresses you could choose for this spring.

Dress and Apron for Tots.

Your little girl will be so proud of having this heart-shaped apron to put on over her best dress when she plays house! And the puffed, square-necked dress is adorable. You can make the two of them in no time. For the dress, choose dimity or organdy for dress-up; gingham or percale for every day. Dimity or lawn for the apron.

This is such a becoming, comfortable, good-looking dress to work in, round the house. The lines are so straight and unhampering, and pleats in the short sleeves give plenty of room for stretching and reaching. It takes inches off the figure, too. Make it up in seersucker, gingham, linen or percale printed in small designs.

The Patterns.

1478 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 6 1/2 yards of 39-inch material. 1468 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6,

8 years. Size 4 requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material for the dress, with 6 yards of narrow ribbon to trim and 1 yard wider ribbon for the belt. Size 4 requires 3/4 yard of 35-inch material for the apron, and 2 1/2 yards of ruffling. 1476 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 5 yards of 35-inch material without nap.

Rockingham House, Gen. Washington's Headquarters, Has Been Restored

Rockingham, the rambling 10-room Colonial house, where General George Washington received word of the treaty of Paris that concluded Revolutionary war hostilities, has been restored to its original appearance after scores of years in disrepair. Ten thousand dollars in state and federal funds went into the project, notes a Rocky Hill (N. J.) correspondent in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Under the sponsorship of the WPA and the Historical Sites Commission of New Jersey, this eighteenth-century landmark, located a half-mile from Rocky Hill community and four miles from Princeton, has come into its own. The building has been completely renovated while a two-acre plot on which it stands has been landscaped to enhance the natural beauty of the spot.

Altering many historic relics of the Rockingham house, the highest point of the range is 8,750 feet high.

was here that he conducted all of his correspondence with Governor Clinton concerning the evacuation of New York city by British troops.

On the long, double-decked veranda of the structure Washington delivered his farewell address to a handful of troops retained at what was then his headquarters. Rotted flooring has been replaced in the porch and several new pillars have been put in to bolster the sagging framework.

Washington last stayed at Rockingham in the ebbing days of the war, from August 24 until November 10, 1783. On November 2, 1783, he composed his farewell speech in the "blue room," delivered it first from the veranda and later at West Point where the army was finally dismissed.

Worley Asks Re-election

Eugene Worley of Shamrock this week makes his announcement in The Informer as a candidate for reelection to the position of representative from this, the 122nd district, subject to the action of the voters in the Democratic primary July 23

Worley, an energetic young man of decided convictions, has ably represented his district at Austin, already gaining considerable eminence in the state law making body. He is chairman of one committee and a member of the important agricultural and labor committee of the house of representatives.

By reason of these positions of leadership, Worley has been able to perform noteworthy service to this district. By the same token, his retention as representative—it is reasonable to assume—will result in further beneficial legislation for the region he represents.

He has played an important part in creating the Panhandle Water Conservation authority, a measure upon which he is the roughly "sold," also as a member of the agriculture committee.
Worley was in a position and did act in the passage of state wide soil conservation measures. An other achievement of value to agricultural interests was his support of cotton classing legislation designed to enable the farmer to get true value for his cotton and not be compelled to sell at a loss.

Worley's positive attitude on educational measures is seen in support of projects which have resulted in the highest per capita expenditure in the state's history with the lowest state advalorem tax.

He has sought, and if reelected pledges continued effort toward providing ample revenue for old-age assistance, now taking care of over 100,000 needy citizens of the state. In doing this, as well as other instances, Worley declares he is only striving to carry out the will of the people as expressed at the polls.

Upon this pledge and his past record in the Texas House of Representatives, where he has a ready fulfilled early predictions of his friends for a promising career, Eugene Worley asks re-election for another term.

Mr and Mrs Darrell Stine of Pampa visited in the B. M. Davis

NOTICE

To those who are indebted to the late Dr. J. W. Webb: Please see P. L. Dishman or Zeb Mitchell at the Hedley Drug Co., as Mrs. Webb wants these accounts verified. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

G. R. Hunsucker spent last Thursday night in the J. W. Mc-Pherson home when his school bus stalled in the snow. All the pupils on the bus were safely delivered to their homes.

Out of town physicians who attended the funeral of Dr. J. W.
Webb Saturday included Dr.
Puekett of Amarillo, Dr. Jenkins of Clarendon and Drs. Goodall, Odom, Hyder and Clarke of Memphis.

Quite a number of other out of town friends and relatives attended the services.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs.
Walter Johnson is very ill in a Memphis hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Couch of Altus, Okla., spent the week end in the G. E. Johnson home.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere gratitude to our many friends who were so sympathetic and helpful in the death of our beloved husband and father.
Your kindness will ever be remembered.
Mrs. J. W. Webb and children

Ralph Satterfield and Mrs.
Sau left Wednesday for their home at Knoxville, Tenn., after a visit in the home of their uncle,
G. E. Johnson. Mrs. Kermit
Johnson and little son Merle, returned home with them for a visit.

Do you know that a large reciprocals insurance company that has a good many policies and bonds at and near Hedley went into the hands of receivers last week. If your policy is not by an Old Line Stock Company it might be advantageous to you to have your policies checked by the C. L. Johnson Insurance Agency.
