Baptist Homecoming

The First Baptist Church held its annual homecoming at the church last Sunday. A large crowd of members and former members attended, and enjoyed meeting old friends and renewing acquaintances.

The regular Sunday School and church services were held in the morning, with an intermission for shaking hands and greeting visitors. At 12 o'clock a bountiful dinner was served in the church basement, which all enjoyed very much.

In the afternoon those present enjoyed old time singing and numerous special numbers. A short talk was made by each visiting old time member.

A tribute was paid to the members who have passed away by R. V. Truman Caldwell, and the enjoyable reunion came to a close with a talk by J. Claude Wells, Memphis Democrat editor.

Out of town visitors included Messrs. and Mesdames Delbert Kinsey of Amarillo, G. O. Heath, Herbert Heath and L. E. Thompson of Okla. J. O. Wells and Geo. Thompson of Memphis, Lon Berry and J. C. Casson of Wellington, O. A. Heath of Cleveland, W. M. Crain of Goodnight, John Cooper of McLean and O. W. Gannedy of Panchard, Mesdames Myrtle Boston of Shamrock, Maggie Deal and Ruby Bromley of Okla., John Auflin, G. S. Ballard and C. L. Kinsey of Amarillo and Murry Evans of Talia.

Let us set your gifts back for you. We are glad to oblige you at Hooker's.

Middleton-McQueen

Miss Ruth McQueen of Memphis and Winifred Middleton of Lakeview were united in marriage at Lakeview on Thanksgiving Day. The couple left immediately after the ceremony for a visit to Vernon.

Mrs. Middleton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. McQueen of Hedley. She was a member of the 1935 graduating class of Hedley high school. She has been employed for some time in the Hays Cafe at Memphis.

The groom is the son of Mrs. J. H. Middleton of Lakeview, and is a graduate of the high school there.

The couple will make their home in Lakeview, where the groom owns and operates a grocery store.

The Informer joins the many friends of the young couple in extending congratulations and best wishes.

WIFADASOS CLUB

Since place for the next meeting was omitted from the printed report this notice is sent in to advise those who were not present that we meet with the Card girls Dec. 18, with the customary Christmas tree. Also remember some bit of handwork is to be exhibited. All come, let's have a pleasant social hour.

The ladies of The First Baptist Church will have an apron sale at Thompson Hardware, Saturday, Dec. 8.

Five weaning pigs for sale, Mrs. Inez Myers.

Buy your Xmas gifts and toys early on the "Budget plan." Come in and ask Hooker's about it.

Kendall-Friddle

On Thanksgiving morning at the First Methodist Church in Plainview, Presiding Elder Oarladine Broken officiating, Rev. Rex Kenoall and Miss Franz Friddle united in marriage. Immediately after the ceremony, the bridal couple were tendered a reception at the home of friends and then went to Vega, where the conference sent Rex for the coming year.

On account of having the parsonage remodeled which would take a week, they were given a vacation until next Sunday. They came by and spent a couple of days in the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kenoall, and left Sunday for Dallas and other points to visit the bride's parents at Celeste.

Rex is one of our home boys, was reared in Hedley, graduated from high school here and is a most worthy young man. He spent 4 years at McMurry College, and 2 years at S. M. U. and this is his second regular appointment from the Northwest Texas Conference having served two years at Leaders.

Miss Friddle is a graduate of McMurry and taught for two years in Leaders high school, a charming and talented young lady, fully qualified for the duties and responsibilities of life.

The Informer joins the host of friends of this young couple in wishing them a happy and prosperous year in the ministerial work at their new home at Vega.

W. M. SOCIETY

Circles 1 and 2 met with Mrs. Masterson Monday at 6:30. A very enjoyable evening was spent. It was voted that both circles be united. There was an election of officers as follows:

Pres. Mrs. Masterson
 Vice pres., Mrs. Biggs
 Cor. sec., Mrs. Kendall
 Rec. sec., Mrs. Jones
 Local trees, Mrs. Watkins
 Supt. of study, Mrs. Howlin
 Supt. of World Outlook, Mrs. Cherry
 Supt. of social relation, Mrs. Biggs
 Supt. of supplies, Mrs. Kempson
 Supt. of literature and publicity, Wynona Kye

The circle will meet with Misses Ola and Edna Curd Dec. 5 at 6:30.

Come early and get your first pick of gifts at Hooker's.

B. W. M. U.

The W. M. U. of the Baptist Church met at the pastors home Monday. We had a Royal service program, subject "Sheaves with rejoicing." Those having part in the program were Mesdames Blankenship, Simmons, Soles, Bain, Moffitt and Alewine with Mrs. Caldwell as leader.

Refreshments were served to eight members and little Miss Anita Bain, a guest.

All of our meetings have been well attended. Next Tuesday, Dec. 6, we meet at the church in an all day meeting of prayer for foreign missions. Come Reporter

Rev. I. E. Biggs and family have moved here from Bevin to make their home, Rev. Biggs being the new pastor of the Methodist church. Hedley folks are glad to welcome them.

False Teeth
 False teeth may be measured and sold by mail as readily as in a dentist's chair, according to a court ruling, says a recent news item in the Chicago Daily Tribune. The United States Dental Company of Chicago reports that its business both in the United States and outside is growing very rapidly; that its quick, easy, economical way of fitting and constructing dentures from finest materials, with expert craftsmanship, at very low prices, is an achievement of this age. Thousands of grateful letters in its files from satisfied customers all over the country testify to this. This is a distinctly worthy service to people who work in the fields, mountains, or other places where it is inconvenient for them to find local dentists to make good teeth for them at low prices. Future Homemakers Area Meet

Saturday Nov 19 marked a big day for Canyon and the Future Homemakers of Texas. Approximately 600 ambitious young school girls gathered together for the purpose of meeting new friends, to elect new officers for this year's convention and to symbolize themselves as one in the art of future homemaking.

Miss Bergner, Geraldine Riley, Peggy Doherty and Juanita Harrison of Hedley attended the meeting. There were 61 schools out of 81 counties of this district that were represented.

Talia was in charge of the program, The Magic Key of Personality. Interesting talks, poems, songs and roll call of the chapters were heard on the morning program.

A very appetizing luncheon was served in the college Home Economic Department. After lunch the girls visited the buffalo grounds, the boys' cottages, the swimming pool and Cousins Hall.

The afternoon session met about 1:15. Dr. Hill, president of the college, made a talk on "Personality is your trade mark,
do you use it?" Songs, poems, talks and a short play entitled
"Pledges" was presented. A business session was held. Pampa invited the girls to the next area meeting which will be held in March. White Deer will be in charge of the program. A song and a president was selected for this area.

A tea was given to the girls at the Home Management cottage.
The girls were showed all about the cottage from the basement to the upstairs bedrooms.

The girls also visited Randall Hall and the museum. They visited the Oasis, a drug store near the campus, then started for home about 5, after a very enjoyable day.

Assembly

On Wednesday afternoon November 23 the Freshman class had charge of the general assembly hour. Since it was the Thanksgiving season, Thanksgiving was the theme of the program.

The program was: Welcome,
Bobbie Lou Lamberson
Song, America the Beautiful,
assembly.

Devotional, Rev. Patterson
A Thanksgiving Day Movie.
The characters were:
Grandmother, Camilla Doherty
Child, Luella Phelan
John Alden, Billy Bridges

So real were these young set-tors in their costumes and characterizations, that the child
we wished "that they had longer stayed" but maybe some other day we will have another picture show.

The sponsor, Mrs. Owen, and class express their sincere appreciation to their parents who helped by providing such realistic costumes which made the program a success, and to Miss Cleek, who played for them to sing and dance.

Fate of Jews In Holy Land

20th Century Holy War Rocks the 'Cradle of Religion'

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

At its extremities the ancient land of Palestine is 160 miles long and 70 miles wide. That an area so small should have nurtured three of the world's greatest religions is an historical and geographic phenomenon.

Thus we know that almost a thousand years before Christ the Hebrew tribes of Palestine recognized a national god, the wrathful Jehovah. We know even better how the Christ child was born in Bethlehem several centuries later, marking the start of modern Christianity. Less familiar is the story of Mohammedism, which from an inauspicious start in the Holy Land has spread until it is now embraced by a tenth of the world's population.

But if this is phenomenal, it is even more shocking to realize that the cradle of religion, the traditional home of peaceful prophets and philosophers, is now in the midst of a modern "holy war" in which the hosts of half-forgotten traditions have come home to roost.

Down through the centuries, Hebrews, Christians and Arabs found their freedom threatened and destroyed by successive waves of invaders. It is recalled that in 1100, C., upon their return from Egypt, the Israelites held sway over Palestine and retained that power almost unbroken until the Roman invasion of 63 B. C. Though Jews have since been dispersed throughout the world, they have not forgotten their "promised land" and the hope that some day they might return.

Britain the Liberator

Christianity came next and prospered temporarily despite the despotic Roman rule. Then, from Arabia to the south, came a new wave of religion known as Mohammedism. Its followers swept into Palestine, threw over the Roman regime and became masters of the Holy Land. But in the Seventh century even the Arabs were overcome by Ottoman Turks and until the World War Palestine remained under Turkish domination.

Today Palestine happens to be one of Great Britain's numerous problems. The modern background of this problem dates back to 1915 when the British were scurrying around for allies. To help defeat Turkey they enlisted Arabic support and in 1917 marched triumphantly into Jerusalem. In return Sir Henry MacMahon, British high commissioner for Egypt, had promised the sheriff of Mecca that Arabs would be given their independence.

But Great Britain forgot this promise under the pressure of war. Crafty Lord Balfour saw the value of Jewish monetary support. With Dr. Chaim Weizmann, leader of the Zionist movement, he won the British cabinet over to a plan whereby Palestine would be installed as a national home for Jews once the war was finished. The famous Balfour declaration of November, 1917, was followed by a League of Nations mandate giving Great Britain control over the Holy Land.

Arabs Cite Their Claim

But how about the Arabs? For 13 centuries their ancestors have tilled Palestine soil. They fought in the World War against Turkey under promise of freedom if the allies won. Since the war their national population of 325,000 has remained substantially unchanged, while a huge influx of persecuted Jews from European nations has swelled Hebrew population from 75,000 to 375,000.

Arabic resentment has grown since 1918 and has now turned to terrorist methods of opposition.

Under Great Britain's original partition plan Jews are confined largely to the western and northern parts of Palestine. But although Arabs get the larger portion, they also receive the less fertile land. Moreover they protest that Jewish immigration and development must cease or Arabs will sooner or later, completely under Hebrew control.

A broken down telephone line with its steel pole bent over, between Nablus and Jerusalem, is evidence of the violence and sabotage featuring Palestine Arab-Jewish warfare.

Based on 20 years' experience since the World War, this year may be well founded. Enthusiastic Jewry, happy over its long-fought national home, has invested countless thousands of dollars in the Holy Land, building modern cities like Tel Aviv which has mushroomed from 50,000 to 150,000 population since 1931.

Zionists Seek Farmers

Arabs might also base their fears on the Jew's native aggressiveness in commerce and industry. Even the Zionists themselves bear this trait, because they want Palestine Hebrews to become farmers, not city tradesmen. But they also count heavily on Jewish investment from other nations in developing Palestine's world trade, which will consist largely of citrus exports.

If Great Britain could promise that her Jewish protector would not eventually control the Holy Land, Arabs might be partially pacified and might stop their policy of terrorism which has taken about 1,500 lives since July 5. But world events have given the Arabs strength during recent months. Since the treaty of Munich, where Great Britain capitulated to Jew-hating Germany and Italy, Arabs have carried on a ruthless campaign of warfare in which they receive the nodding assent of dictatorial nations. Moreover they are encouraged by—and envious of—the freedom granted Arabs in Egypt, Iraq and Syria. A mighty surge of nationalistic feeling now prevails throughout the Moslem world.

Britain has already limited Hebrew migration to 1,000 a month in the face of wholesale Jewish expulsion from all central European countries. Within the past two years she has sent two investigating commissions to the Holy Land, both of them returning without a solution. Since the Munich treaty, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has been anxious to settle this Palestine problem, partially as appeasement for Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Such an allegedly "weak kneed" policy has heaped bitter American scorn on Prime Minister Chamberlain, not only from Jewish leaders but prominent statesmen and churchmen. Sorely pressed British have retaliated that the United States is welcome to her Palestine mandate if she can do a better job with a hopeless problem.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Body's Vital Need for Vitamin C; Names Most Significant Sources of This Substance

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

OF ALL the vitamins that should be included in the diet every day, none, perhaps, is more important, nor more frequently provided inadequately, than vitamin C.

There are, I believe, two reasons for this. First, unlike some of the other vitamins, vitamin C is not stored by the body, so that it is impossible to build up a reserve supply.

In order to maintain top health, it therefore must be furnished in the diet every day. Second, the C vitamin is more easily destroyed than some of the others, for it is oxidized upon exposure to the air, and is usually partially destroyed in cooking. That accounts for the well-known rule that it is usually desirable to include in the daily diet some raw foods, such as cabbage or citrus fruits. The rule may be waived, however, when tomato juice or cranberry sauce are included in the menu. For careful experiments have determined that, because of their high acid content, these two foods retain their vitamin C to a remarkable degree, when commercially canned or when cooked quickly in the home.

until today we know that the substance which prevents the disease is vitamin C.

May Retard Growth in Children

It has also been noted that many cases of latent scurvy can be found among children and adults in all walks of life. It has been determined, for example, that many children who are restless, irritable, or retarded in growth are in reality suffering from a deficiency of vitamin C.

When deprived of this vitamin, experimental animals develop swollen, tender joints, sore jaws and spongy, bleeding gums, while the teeth become loosened and assume irregular positions. Hemorrhages may occur almost anywhere in the body, due to capillary weakness, and are particularly common in the kidneys, intestines, bone marrow, under the skin, in the muscles and adrenal glands. Indeed, one of the most interesting of all the discoveries concerning vitamin C was made with guinea pigs. It was observed that in a healthy animal, the adrenal glands are rich in vitamin C, while in a scurvy animal, they contain practically none.

Pyorrhea and Vitamin C

Many investigators have discovered that a deficiency of vitamin C causes profound changes, not only in the gums, but also in the enamel and dentine of the teeth. It has been suggested that pyorrhea may be associated directly with a vitamin C deficiency.

Certainly, there is enough convincing evidence, as a result of work with both children and adults, to indicate the importance of an adequate supply of vitamin C in maintaining healthy teeth.

Sources of This Body Regulator

Vitamin C is produced by plants during their growth. It is found in juicy stems, bulbs, roots, tubers and fruits.

Outstanding among the fruits are the citrus family, including oranges, lemons and grapefruit; tomatoes and cranberries. Raw cabbage is a good source as is watercress.

So important is vitamin C that one or more generous portions of a vitamin C-rich food should be consumed daily, preferably at every meal.

Orange and tomato juice have been used interchangeably for quite some time as a convenient and easily available source of vitamin C. In recent years, some experiments performed at a leading university have given a high ranking to cranberries on this score, so that they, too, may be ranked as a significant source of vitamin C.

These brilliant little red berries come into market in the fall—the very time when it is important to eat generously of fruits to fortify the body against fall and winter ills. Their tart flavor helps to stimulate appetite and their fruit acids promote intestinal tone.

Neither the maturity nor variety of the fruit appears to have any influence on the vitamin content, and even when cooked, as whole fruit sauce, they retain from 75 to 80 per cent of the original vitamin C content of the fruit. Cranberries are also a fair source of vitamin A which is not impaired by cooking, and they contain iodine, iron, copper and manganese.

Because they are such a versatile fruit, cranberries can be utilized throughout the menu and at any meal. Thus orange and tomato juice may be varied at breakfast by serving a cranberry conserve, jelly or sauce, or a cranberry juice cocktail. For lunch or dinner, this same fruit may be served as an appetizer; with the meat course; or used to make a variety of attractive desserts.

If vitamin C-containing foods are included generously in the daily diet, the homemaker may well feel that she has provided her family with an important form of health insurance.

Functions of Vitamin C

The full importance of including an adequate supply of vitamin C-rich foods in the diet can only be fully appreciated when the amazing functions of this anti-scurvitic vitamin are fully understood.

Long years before the first vitamin had been discovered, and when the science of nutrition was still in its infancy, English physicians observed that the use of orange juice would help to cure children of a serious disease characterized by a sallow, pale complexion, flabby muscles, and a painful inflammation of the membrane surrounding the bones of the legs. And as early as 1795 it was also discovered that British sailors could be prevented from developing the painful and serious disease of scurvy if they were given a regular ration of lemon juice which had been evaporated to a syrup. It was because lemon, then called lime, juice was invariably prescribed for the navy that British sailors came to be known as "limies," a term which is still in use today.

Scurvy a Controllable Disease

Scurvy was thus prevented or cured in both children and adults, long before scientists learned that precious vitamin C is the controlling factor in this disease. And shortly after the turn of the century a systematic study was begun by scientists in both Europe and America to discover all the foods that possessed the almost magical power to prevent and cure this former scourge of mankind.

In the course of many painstaking investigations and brilliant discoveries, we have gradually increased our knowledge of scurvy

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, putting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. Italy Looks to African Libya As 'Sponge' for Growing Race

TRIPOLI, LIBYA—In the future, provided Italy's colonization program is carried out as planned, Africa and not the Western Hemisphere will furnish homes and livelihood for Italy's growing population. By the end of this month 1,800 Italian families, totalling 20,000 individuals, will have arrived from their mother country across the Mediterranean to settle on farms prepared for them by the government. A few years hence, provided there is no set-back in plans for the complete colonization of Libya, this number may swell to the hundreds of thousands of land-owning farmers, populating Italy's overseas empire.

Libya, only a night's journey across the Mediterranean from Italian ports, is being developed with equal thoroughness. But because this North African colony already possesses the essential features of civilization, her work embraces a far broader program than that so far applied to Ethiopia.

Since 1936 when a policy was originated which contemplated the rapid population of Libya with considerable numbers of peasants, vast areas of state lands have been converted. Soil has been tested and prepared for crops it will best produce. Public health and sanitation programs have been launched. In addition to works which as the agrarian colonization of Libya taken into account the present of her new colonies. The distinctly regional flavor of Libya's towns and cities has been preserved. The ancient mosques at Koufra, Murzuk, and Sidi Rafa, hitherto in danger of dissolution by time itself, have been preserved for future generations of Moslem worshippers and without any sacrifice of their intrinsic beauty.

Tripoli, with a population of 100,000, has been almost entirely altered within the past few years. Densely populated quarters such as the Garden City, the worker's district and the Cripple's Quarter have developed rapidly.

Libya's ancient ruins, too, are receiving the same careful attention as are her cities. Today the tourist can see marvelous buildings and mosaics built by the Romans at Lepis Magna, Sabratha, Cyrene Ptolemais and Apxollonis. The splendid Roman theater at Sabratha has been reconstructed and is now the scene of classical drama performed before audiences numbering into the thousands throughout the tourist season. At Cyrene the excavations have restored to scholars many documents and relics of the early Roman era.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnny Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way she tells her father that she has been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endle. Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implications and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during August. He goes home to help Sentry is arrested and booked for murder. Dan Fisher explains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girl's purse, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days in August. Brace calls, and backs up Barbara in her denial that Sentry could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time between the slaying and their seeing Sentry on the road. Phil, showing the police over the house, finds his strong box open and his gun, which only his father knew of, gone. Meanwhile, the police find the stolen money burned in the furnace. Mrs. Sentry sees her husband, who swears his innocence, and tells her he had known of the robbery and murder the night before, but failed to call the police, and came home at 12:30. Mary quarrels with Neil Ray, and runs away with Jimmy Endle to the Caribbean. Linda Dane, friend of Barbara and Phil, tries to comfort Phil. Falkran, noted criminal lawyer, is inspired by hope but not admiration. Dan Fisher, whom Barbara has been meeting at her grandmother's, tries to use influence to keep the family out of the papers, and everyone shields Barbara, on the verge of a breakdown.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

One day when Brace was to meet Barbara at her grandmother's for tea, and arrived before the girl, the old woman spoke to him of Barbara's condition, said stoutly: "I wish someone would marry her and take her away from here! She can't stand much more. She hasn't the strength to go through all this. She shouldn't have to do it!"

He dissented gently. "People can't shirk such things. Barbara's sister did, I know; but she will always regret it. We have to accept our burdens, our responsibilities. Face them squarely."

She said grimly: "Maybe! No doubt you are a level-headed young man, but I suspect you're too level-headed for your own good!"

He smiled tolerantly. "I'm sorry," he said. "But—dear as Barbara has come to be to me—I can't advise her to dodge or to evade."

"Dear to you, is she?"

"Very!"

"Then marry her," the old woman counseled. "Sweep her off her feet. Marry her and take care of her."

He said gravely: "I hope to, some day. But if I asked her now, she might come to me just to escape. I want her to come to me because she wants me."

"Fiddledsticks! If you want her, take her, on any terms at all."

He shook his head. "I shall have to be a witness at the trial, you know," he confessed. "The District Attorney has warned me to be ready. Barbara need not know, yet; but if we were married, and then I testified, she would blame me, never forgive me."

"Get out of the reach of a subpoena while you can."

"I can't do that. I've given my word!"

"Phil! If you've the courage of a—"

But Barbara arrived, putting a period to their words; and after that Mrs. Sentry did not attempt him again.

She found Dan Fisher more to her taste. Between these two something strong and binding had developed. He came to her often, even when Barbara was not there. Once he came dispirited, and she saw this and demanded, "What are you so down in the mouth about?"

away. But that blew up. Two ways. It turned out that Loran was in Maine. I've talked with his guide. He has a camp on a lake up there. Flies up, flies his own plane. He was there."

He added: "And just to make sure, I checked on him for the night she was killed. We know what time she went to Mr. Sentry's office. Mr. Loran boarded a New York train about the same time, went right to bed. The porter saw him in his pajamas a little after eleven; and the porter's sure Loran didn't get off the train after that."

She demanded, "Why couldn't Miss Wines have been in Maine too?"

"Guide says, No."

"Maybe he's lying."

"Didn't seem like a liar."

"Maybe she was near there. Maybe he flew over to where she was."

He hesitated, and she said sharply, "Speak up, man!"

"Miss Wines wasn't in Maine," he said reluctantly. "They've found where Miss Wines was. She was at a hotel in New Jersey."

The old woman's fingers twitched, her eyes closed, then opened again, shrewd and keen. She said in a low tone: "You're not looking at me. I suppose Arthur was with her?"

He nodded. He said miserably: "But it's Barbara that gets me! She'll have to go through it all, the trial, everything. She may even have to testify! I wish I could—marry her, get her out of this."

"In love with her, are you?"

"Yes!"

"Why Couldn't Miss Wines Have Been in Maine Too?"

"Yes!"

She demanded, "Then why don't you?"

Dan looked at her quickly, and he colored, and then he chuckled. "You're a girl after my own heart!" he declared. "I'd do it in a minute—if she'd have me—but I can't!"

"Why not?"

"Money," he confessed. "And—this is the only job I've got. If I could land a promise of a job somewhere else—But these are tough times in the newspaper game."

"I'll finance you."

He grinned, shook his head. "Easy come, easy go," he reminded her. "I've never been able to hold on to money unless I earned it myself." He added: "But I'd like to find some way to keep her out of this. Keep her out of the trial, anyway. Why don't you take her away yourself, to Europe or somewhere?"

ing she interrupted their discussion to say:

"Phil, tell me truly, do you think father killed her?"

He was shocked into silence for a moment; countered then, "Gosh, Barb, what do you take me for?"

"Do you?" she insisted.

"No, of course not."

"I read all the newspapers," she said. "If he didn't, how could all the things they say be true?"

He said: "But you haven't read father's side of it, Barb. Wait till he tells his story."

"What is his story, Phil?"

"Why, he doesn't know anything about it at all."

She looked away from him. "Phil, shall we all have to testify?"

"Not mother," Phil replied. "Probably not any of us." He added: "Mother can testify if she wants to, though. She probably will if he wants her to."

"I won't!"

"Well, if he wants us to—"

"I won't!" she repeated tensely, eyes still averted. "No matter who wants me to. I won't! I'll—cut out my tongue first."

Her voice shook, and he said: "Whoa, Barb! You're scared. He suggested at last, "You haven't been to see Mr. Sentry?"

"No."

"He asks often for you," Falkran told her. "I shall be glad to tell him I have seen you so hale and well."

She eyed him shrewdly. "You want me to go see him?"

"I know it would—help him," he admitted.

"Then I will," she promised, in a curiously submissive tone. "The first fine day."

"Splendid!" he said, beaming. "If you do, Mrs. Sentry, I guarantee everything else."

Old Mrs. Sentry tried to carry out her promise to see her son. "But I shall want to be with Arthur alone," she said, then added: "Yet I'd like for you—for all of you—to ride down with me, wait for me outside. My courage is good, but I'm not as strong as I used to be."

They waited for a fair day, but that winter in Boston was a bitter one. Not till the first week of February, on the eve of the approaching trial, did the season serve. Then came a day when spring seemed just around the corner, and the sun shone warm. Old Eli brought the ancient limousine. Barbara and the nurse helped Mrs. Sentry dress; Phil and Barbara steadied her to the elevator and down into the car. She sat between Barbara and Mrs. Sentry, Phil on the small tip-up seat in front of them. They drove through scant mid-afternoon traffic to the jail; and the old woman's cheeks shone bright and bright, she flushed and hot, and Barbara saw a pulse pound in her thin throat.

But she could not, when the time came, go in. As the car stopped, she collapsed suddenly, not falling, not even toppling sidewise, but just shrinking down into herself so that she was small. Even their untrained eyes saw that she was ill; that this was not faint-heartedness. In a sudden terror, uncertain what to do, Phil and Barbara stammered and fumbled; but Mrs. Sentry said steadily:

"We'll have to take her home. It was too much for her."

They all stayed in town that night with her; for the doctor had forewarned them. Once the old woman spoke, in a surprisingly strong voice. She said:

"Tell Arthur I loved him." And she added, with no irony in her tones, "And tell Mr. Falkran I hope he can use—this—just as well."

Her death, toward dawn, made headlines. "Sentry's Mother Stricken at Jail," said the morning paper. "Mrs. Sentry Dead on Eve of Trial," said the afternoon editions. Her funeral occurred on Saturday, two days before the trial was to begin. The brief and premature warm spell had ended in a blizzard that clogged traffic. They followed her to the cemetery between banked walls of snow.

Boys and Girls of 4-H Clubs Protect Animals and Birds of Rural Districts

Few persons realize the important contributions the members of the 4-H clubs are making to the cause of conservation, writes Albert Stoll, Jr., in the Detroit News. These clubs, operating throughout the nation and composed principally of rural boys and girls with the motto, Head, Heart, Hand and Health, have been in a particularly fortunate position to become intimately acquainted with their native plant and animal life and realize just what these resources mean to their communities.

In many instances the groups are responsible for reforestation projects and the conservation of farm woodlots. They have encouraged, through protection and refuges, the maintenance of a crop of fur-bearing animals in the communities. Through winter feeding operations ever tells me anything, and I have to know what's going on." And she cried desperately: "Phil, I won't tell! They can't make me, can they?"

He evaded answering. "Say, you're doing a great job on grandmother, Barb," he said. "You surely take a load off mother and me. Of course, we miss you at home, but someone has to be with her. Is she all right? Is there anything she wants?"

And the shot at random was successful. "Yes, there is," Barbara remembered. "She told me to tell you, she wants to see Mr. Falkran!"

Phil seized on this. "Sure!" he cried. "I'll get in touch with him; we'll take him in to see her this afternoon. Right away."

And the enterprise at once engaged them. Barbara went in town to make her grandmother ready; and when at half-past two Phil appeared with the lawyer, the old woman received him in state, sitting very erect in her great chair. But at once sent Phil and Barbara out of the room, and when they were alone she asked Falkran questions, watched him, studied him.

Ex-Senior Banquet

The annual ex-senior banquet was given Saturday evening at the Hedley high school auditorium with the largest number present in the history of the organization. Leon Reeves, president and Hazel Stewart, secretary had charge of the business meeting during which Earl Tollett was elected president, Ansel Adamsen, vice pres and Zella Grigsby, and for the new year. During the meeting Oleta Moreman made talk on the finances of the ex-seniors and at the suggestion of R. F. Newman a donation was given to the amount of $7.30.

The beautifully decorated and lighted banquet room represented the Owl night club honoring the ex-senior ball boys. As the guests assembled Mrs. Lois Hooker and Betty Hooker played the master of ceremonies, Ivan Jones called the house to order, Ruth Richardson gave the invocation, Leon Reeves gave a very humorous welcome address to which Myrtle Kutch responded with a charming wit. Ivan Jones was excellent in introducing the numbers on the program. These taking parts were Mrs. Ina Harris, Wendolyn and Marguerite Harris of Rotan, Ruth Richardson, Wutt Caldwell, Oleta Moreman, Hazel Biffe, Hazel Stewart, Lois Wall, Theresa Bain, Jo Wells, Sarah Edwards, Lois Rains, Vera Hall, Chas. Rains, Ivan Jones, Ed Shaw, Don Pickett, Leon Reeves, R. F. Newman and James Webb. The program consisted of piano selections, solos, reading, quartets, pep songs and playlets.

The Owl club supper was prepared by Mrs. Gertrude Todd and consisted of delicious cream chicken, dressing, pineapple jelly salad, cranberry sauce, candied potatoes, hot rolls, spice cake with whip cream and coffee. The girls of the senior class wore their attractive green and white pep squad uniforms with aprons and caps in new designs served the supper. They were Geraldine Kiley, Mary Rains Bridges, Eddie Mae Hand, Virginia Watt, Jonimerie Pickett and Seretha Gunn.

The bonneting was very efficiently done by Hugh Crawford better known as Butch. He was dressed with a bright red satin shirt, boots, moggle cap and carried a billy club. He made the guests conform to his standard of conventionality.

The head waiter Don Pickett, very distinguished with handle bar mustache, graciously attended to all the wants of numerous complainants with all the pomp and dignity befitting that of a professional Maître d' Hotel.

The climax of the program was a twelve round boxing event which proved to be highly entertaining. It was announced by Don Pickett, the sports announcer of the Owl club Jiggs, a well known referee from Berger showed fairness and sportsmanship regarding the fights. Tarp widely known as athletic promoter had imported two strong contenders K. D. Chocolate (Speck), who fought in the main bout and Stormy Davis (Birdy) who fought in the preliminaries. Pones a big fight promoter, had McKnight Special (Blondy) who fought in the preliminaries and Blackie Thompson (Curt) who fought in the main bout. Both fights caused much merriment and dissension among the guests.

The guests departed after expressing a delightful evening and complimenting Leon Reeves and his committee for making the banquet such a success.

Grady Noy and family of Amarillo visited the Rev. M. E. Wells home Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bridges Entertain

A most enjoyable evening was spent in the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bridges when they were host and hostess to some of their friends with a turkey dinner Thanksgiving evening. After all had arrived the doors into the dining room were thrown open and the guests were invited in to partake of a most delicious dinner, served buffet style. The long table was most attractive with its center piece symbolic of Thanksgiving and loaded with an abundance of appetizing dishes. The Thanksgiving motif was further carried on in the place cards and the center pieces of the smaller tables, where the guests were seated for dinner. Autumn flowers were used throughout the house. The hostess was assisted in serving by her daughter, Miss Mary Rains Bridges, and her friend, Misses Geraldine Riley and Virginia Watt, also little Miss Sarah Ann Rains. After dinner various games were played by the present.

Those enjoying the evening were Messrs and Mesdames Ed Kinslow, Roy Jewell, Hobart Moffitt, Alva Simmons and Chas. Rains. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Nolle Simmons and son and Mr. Hudson of Clarendon and Miss Parry of Groom.
