Mrs. Nellie Kilgore

Funeral services for Mrs. Nellie Kilgore, who passed away in a Memphis hospital Wednesday, Dec 7, were held Thursday at the First Methodist Church here. The services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Mason, assisted by Rev. M. E. Wells and Rev. O. W. Carter.

Interment was made in the Clarendon cemetery.

Mrs. Nellie Sledge Kilgore was born near Plano, Dec. 1, 1888. She was married to Robert I. Kilgore of Wylie, June 16, 1901. To this union were born 8 boys and one girl. Two are now living: Miss Irma Deane Kilgore of Mesquite and Robert Jr. who is in the U. S. Navy. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. J. J. Curtis of Hedley, two brothers, O. W. Sledge of Rhome and G. W. Sledge of Ft. Worth, also a number of nieces and nephews. Two devoted nieces and nephews of Berger waited upon her during her long illness.

She was a devout member of the Baptist church at Hattiesburg at the time of her death. She suffered a great deal during her illness but bore it with Christian fortitude, singing hymns and quoting Scripture. She was loved by all who knew her. Her relatives extend thanks for the many kindnesses shown to her during her illness and death.

Curse of Progress

Much Smoke Little Fire

The community dinner was over at last and the patient guests who had listened to the long address of the principal speaker breathed a deep sigh of relief.
"The speaker was all right," the toastmaster's wife whispered, "but it seems to me that he didn't put enough fire into his speech."
"I feel the opposite way," answered the toastmaster. "In my opinion he didn't put enough of his speech into the fire."—B'nai B'rith Magazine.

THE HOOT

Senior Program

The Senior class presented an assembly program Dec 9 in the high school auditorium.

Their program was supposedly presented on station OWLS on the NBC Network. First they presented Professor Quiz, who was Vin Riggs. She asked such surprising questions as "Jerry, who is Onnie D?" She also wanted a deflation of wind, which well learned Virginia Watt said was air in a hurry. Joni Merle Pickett was asked who Shakespeare was, and cute little she said, "An English headache." Mary Kains was questioned as to who had the smallest hat, and she replied, "The one with the smallest head." Several more interesting questions as well as answers were discussed.

After Professor Quiz had finished her program, a few skits of the play, Here Comes Charlie, were presented and enjoyed.

Basketball

Last Tuesday night Dec 5 the Hedley boys ganged up into 8 cars and went to Groom for a rough and tough basketball game. The game was so close for about the first 5 minutes of the game. After deciding that they were tired of fooling around, Groom charged in under the goal raising the score as well as their noses. Robert decided that Groom couldn't out do him, so he made a surprising long shot. The score continued to climb until the final scores were 19 to 17 in favor of Groom. Romeo, better known as Ralph, was high point man with 7 points. Robert led a nose second with 6 and Doc, last but not least with 4. The boys gave a stern determination to in Groom's ears back when they came here after Christmas.

Songs were sung by the group.

FARM TOPICS

KEYS MUST BE FREE OF DISEASE

ers Warned on Control Blackhead Trouble.

The Laboratory of Animal Pathology and Hygiene, University of Illinois—WVU Service, reports that turkey growers should not profit when they sell their turkeys this fall may on the measures that have been taken to control the disease as blackhead.

The disease bearing the technical name of infectious enterohepatitis is a cause of great concern in the turkey raising industry. Recent researches demonstrate a complete course of the disease and successful means of control. The malady had forced abandonment of turkey raising in parts of the country.

Disinfectant treatment has not been found for blackhead, but attention has been successful in all possible sources of infection kept away from the flock. Growers who keep their turkeys on clean, uncontaminated ground on which chickens have never run. Some growers recommend transferring incubator-hatched poultlets immediately to a clean brooder house for about six weeks. The brooder house connected with four separate yards in such a manner that grazing yards can be rotated. The yards are about 8 feet by 20 feet and are left in one yard about six weeks before being moved to the next.

About six weeks, they are referred to a rearing ground and in a similar fashion, but with lots covering about one or two acres.

Another good method of preventing blackhead is to rear incubator-hatched birds in brooder houses on hardware cloth floors until the poultlets are about half grown when they can be turned onto rearing grounds. Some growers prefer to keep the turkeys in confinement on hardware cloth until they are ready for market.

It pays to feed in such a way as to eliminate fecal contamination as much as possible. Feeding and watering equipment for this purpose may be purchased or made at home.

An adequate ration and plenty of fresh, clean water is needed at all times. It is best to quarantine new birds for three weeks before they are added to the flock.

Such measures will not only hold blackhead infection to a minimum, but in addition will largely eliminate trouble from other internal as well as external parasites.

Orchard Cover Crop Is Such as Winter Vetch

An orchard cover crop is one such as winter vetch or rye which lives over winter and starts growth very early in the spring. Cover crops make some growth in the fall and even in the winter, and may be of great value in sections where low temperatures occur and the ground is free from snow for much of the winter.

The seeding of cover crops is usually done in the summer or early fall to secure a fairly good growth before winter, according to T. J. Talbert, Missouri College of Agriculture. The crop is then turned under early in the spring and the land given clean cultivation. Then an interval of about four to six weeks occurs in most sections, during which the soil is bare or free of a cover crop, after which the soil is usually seeded to another crop.

It is true that the growing cover crops may compete with the fruit trees for soil moisture and nutrients during the late summer and early fall. But this effect is usually offset because it tends to slow up the check the growth of the fruit trees and cause them to harden their tissues for winter conditions. Annual cover crops are not as well as deep-rooted and so may not influence deep-rooted tree fruits.

Time to Plant Trees

Planting trees in the fall is seldom a success unless there is an early snowfall, advises P. A. Anderson, extension forester, University of Minnesota, St. Paul. The best time for planting is in the spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground. All-planted trees usually do not get started sufficiently and often cannot survive the winter. Fruit trees must be protected from mice and rabbits, also. If planting is delayed all spring, the problem of winter protection is eliminated, and in such cases the trees make equally good growth.

Star Dust

- ★ Good-Will Jalopy
- ★ Costly Separation
- ★ Picturing Lincoln

By Virginia Vale

DID "Josephine, the Tattooed Jalopy," happen to come your way on her return journey from Hollywood to Hartford, Conn.?

If she didn't, you ought to hear her story. It is really the story of two young men, Frank and Jack Pinney of Hartford, who paid $13.95 for the ancient car (born in 1928) and set out for Hollywood. They took along some white paint, and started the movie center by requesting movie stars and celebrities to grasp a paint brush and autograph Josephine.

They were a sensation. Josephine was soon covered with names, and the owners refused an offer of $2,000 for her, it's said. And the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year representatives were delighted with them; they've become unofficial good-will ambassadors for the industry.

They ran into one difficulty; people whose autographs didn't mean much were all too obliging about scrawling their names on Josephine. The Pinneys let them do it, and, since Josephine's space was limited and they had to go in for big names only, they'd wipe off the undesirable with a bit of turpentine and then tackle somebody who meant something to them. Of course, they may thus have obliterated signatures of people, now unknown, who will be stars before the car is a year older, but that couldn't be helped.

Don't ever say that Samuel Goldwyn isn't kind hearted. By sending Jon Hall off to England to do "The Thief of Bagdad" he tore the bridegroom from his bride, Frances Langford.

Frances Langford

But he's going to pay for a five-minute transatlantic phone call for them each week that they are separated! You will recall when Jon and Frances eloped to Prescott, Ariz., last June, Jon's mind was a bit hazy as to his birthplace, he giving it as New York City, instead of Fresno, Calif., on the license application, necessitating a remarriage later to ease their minds as to the legality of their marriage.

Evidently the next cycle in the movies will be based on the life and times of Abraham Lincoln. The success of the play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," in New York started it. Now three producers have announced that they will do Lincoln pictures. Goldwyn will star Gary Cooper as the Great Emancipator, Twentieth Century-Fox will cast Henry Fonda in the role, in "Lawyer in the West."

There's something about the radio serial, "Pepper Young's Family," that brings luck to those who have anything to do with it.

Originally it was called "Red Davis," and in its second year a young actor who wasn't getting along too well was engaged to play the role of "Red." His name was Burgess Meredith. Broadway producers and Hollywood executives heard of the program, listened to it—and first thing he knew, he was a success on the stage. Then he began to do a picture occasionally; remember him in "Winterset," his first big one?

Later, Martha Scott was engaged to play bits in the serial. And Martha landed in a stage play, "Our Town," which was one of the year's biggest hits of last season, and is still playing.

If Toscanini is your favorite orchestra conductor you can be sure of hearing concerts with him leading the orchestra weekly through December 3; from January 7 through February 25 he will alternate with guest conductors.

When Bill Janney (who plays the title role in "Howie Wing—the Adventures of a Young Aviator") began portraying the daring Howie he hardly knew what made a plane stay in the air. But flying got him; he has been spending his spare time taking flying lessons from Ralph Smith, a pilot on the last Byrd Antarctic expedition.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Johnnie, the Call Boy of "Johnnie Presents," is learning the Morse code from one of the radio engineers. . . That New York elevator boy who was engaged for "Come With the Wind" spent four months in Hollywood waiting for it to begin, and now has returned to his job in the elevator; he'd rather wait there, he says.

Chicken Stealing in China Stealing chickens is regarded as a major criminal offense in China. There are many instances on record in Chinese courts in which the "hen-raiders" have drawn harsher sentences than embezzlers and robbers.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THERE comes a letter from a reader ordering both of the sewing books offered below. She says, "I have to smile when people tell me it does not pay to sew. Recently I had a regular spree of doing over the living room. I spent $10.35 for materials. The sewing machine and I did the rest. Here is what the ten thirty-five bought. New slipcovers for the davenport and two chairs, chintz curtains for three windows, a new ottoman and a lamp shade. The slipcover for the davenport alone would have cost fifteen dollars if made outside."

It now seems that there is a need for more color in the newly decorated living room. The curtains are very gay, but the new slipcovers rather neutral. Why not repeat some of the curtain colors with bright cushions? A clever girl I know saves the good parts of old silk dresses and blouses and buys remnants of bright silks and ribbons for this purpose. Her pillows are always most professional looking. If contrasting pieces are joined, she uses covered cords in the seams and little frills around the edges to repeat the strongest tones in the room. In this way many different kinds of material may be brought into harmony. I have sketched for you here some of the smart tricks that help to give cushions a well-tailored look.

NOTE: You also may have smart slipcovers, curtains and dozens of things you have been wanting. Mrs. Spears' books have helped thousands of women. She tells you quickly with pictures the things it would take years to learn by old-fashioned methods. Her sewing sketches clear away all uncertainties both for the beginner and the experienced sewer. Every page is packed with new ideas—all illustrated. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery. Books are 25 cents each. Order both books and get fascinating quilt leaflet free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

George May Not See Practical Way to Saw

"George, go find me a clothes prop," ordered the good wife, busy with her washing. The husband found one he thought suitable, but it had no fork at the top for holding the line, so he asked his neighbor, a Scot, to lend him a step-ladder.

"I want to get to the top of the prop to cut a 'V' in it," he said. His friend eyed him disdainfully. "Ye are the kind o' mon that gets some folks a name for being daft," he grumbled. "What do ye want a step-ladder for to cut a 'V' in the prop? Haven't ye the sense to lean it against the side o' the house an' cut it wi' a saw out o' the bedroom window?"

CONSTIPATED? Don't Let Gas, Nerve Pressure Keep You Miserable

When you are constipated two things happen. FIRST: Accumulated waste swells the bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. This nerve pressure causes headache, a dull, lary feeling, bilious spots, loss of appetite, and dizziness. SECOND: Fully digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bloating on your stomach, acid indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes gasp for breath. Then you can't eat. You can't sleep. Your stomach is sour. You feel tired out, grouchy, and miserable. Adolarka gives you the DOUBLE ACTION you need. This efficient carminative cathartic relieves that awful GAS almost at once. It usually clears the bowels in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight relief.

Professor Brace continued his testimony under the questioning of Mr. Flood:

"What time was it when you came out of the tunnel?"

"Quarter past twelve."

"And what happened then?"

"A car passed us, then slowed down."

"Did you observe the number?"

"Yes, Miss Sentry said—"

"Never mind what she said. What was the number?"

Mrs. Sentry thought: They take so long to say such a simple thing. Why doesn't he just say, "I saw Mr. Sentry leave his office and drive home?"

But question and answer went rattling on.

"What did you do?"

"Followed the car to the Sentry home."

"Where did you last see it?"

"It turned into the Sentry drive."

"What did you do?"

"Miss Sentry and I stayed in my car, in front of the house."

"Hear anything?"

"Steps on the gravel from the garage toward the house."

"See anything?"

"I saw the light from the hall as the door opened."

"Anything else?"

"After about five minutes an upstairs light was turned on. About ten minutes later it was turned off again."

"What then?"

"Miss Sentry went into the house."

"At what time?"

"One o'clock, or a little before."

"Have you since seen that car?"

"Yes."

"With that number?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"In the Sentry garage."

"Did you at any time that night see who was in the car?"

"Yes, a man."

"Did you know him?"

"No, not then."

"Did you see his face?"

"Yes, when he first passed us. I had to put on the brakes to avoid hitting him, and a street lamp was shining on his face."

"Do you now know who he was?"

"He was Mr. Sentry."

Mr. Flood turned to Mr. Falkran. "Your witness, sir," he said.

Mrs. Sentry looked breathlessly at Mr. Falkran, fearing on the one hand that he would allow this deadly evidence to go unchallenged; on the other that his questions would involve Barbara. Yet even at that cost he must do something. For here was the peg upon which the State's whole case must hang.

But Falkran said, "No questions!"

And instantly, like a clap of doom: "The State rests," said Mr. Flood.

During the brief recess, Mrs. Sentry, too shaken to move, stayed in her seat. She was not suffering; but she was so tired! Professor Brace had left the court room without having looked toward them, and she whispered to her son:

"Go catch him, Phil. Tell him we know he had to do it. Tell him we understand, that we don't blame him!"

Phil nodded, hurried out. Then Falkran came to her, and behind the mask of a smile which he wore for the world to see, he said, "Mrs. Sentry, I expect you were surprised I did not cross-examine; but the hour is late, and I wish to call one witness before adjournment today, so that I can leave the jury with something to think about tonight."

She said in low tone: "I see. But isn't that the key of the State's whole case? Proving he was down there that night?"

He said reassuringly: "Be easy. Trust me. We will give them a better key."

And a moment later they rose while the Court and jury resumed their places; and then Mr. Falkran, briefly, made his opening. Circumstantial evidence, he said in calm, assured tones, was only to be trusted when the evidence in question was capable of but one explanation, of but one interpretation. The evidence submitted by the State was elaborate, detailed, well presented, well selected.

"But you will see," he said, "how the truth which we propose to reveal to you fits into this pattern without a misfit anywhere."

And he called the dead girl's father to the stand.

Falkran dealt with the old man gently, questioning his confidence with simple questions; but at length he led Mr. Wines to examine that collection of photographs which had previously been submitted to the New Jersey hotel clerk.

"I wish you would pick out all the photographs of your daughter which you find there," he directed.

The old man, after a little, selected two.

Falkran picked up from the clerk's desk those previously identified by the New Jersey hotel man as portraits of Miss Wines. "What about these?" he asked.

"They ain't her."

"Sure?"

"I'd ought to be, I sh'd think. Sure I'm sure."

"Not your daughter?"

"No."

Falkran smiled contentedly. "Now, Mr. Wines," he asked, in a new tone, "did your daughter write to you from Boston?"

"Yes, certain!"

"How often?"

"Most generally every Sunday."

"Did she write you while she worked for the firm of Sentry and Lorán?"

"Yes, she did."

"How often?"

"Once, anyway."

"Have you that letter?"

District Attorney Flood rose hurriedly, approached the bench. Falkran joined him there. They spoke in low tones. The old man on the stand took a letter from his pocket and held it in his hands, waiting.

After a moment Falkran turned and took it from him and handed it to the Judge. The Judge read it, spoke to Flood. Falkran smiled and with

"See anything?"

"I saw the light from the hall as the door opened."

"Anything else?"

"After about five minutes an upstairs light was turned on. About ten minutes later it was turned off again."

warned the spectators that if there was further disturbance the court would be cleared.

Mr. Sentry's testimony follows. Questions by Mr. Falkran:

Q. You are Arthur Sentry? A. I am.

Q. Of Sentry and Lorán? A. Yes.

Q. Wholesale dealer in produce, fruit, vegetables? A. Yes.

Q. You have a partner? A. Yes, Mr. Lorán.

Q. He is in court? A. No.

Q. Have you seen him in court during this trial? A. On the first day, yes.

Q. Did you found the business? A. No, it was founded by my grandfather.

Q. And continued by whom? A. By my father, and then by me.

Q. Did you take Mr. Lorán into partnership? A. Yes.

Q. Under what circumstances? A. We were friends, just out of college. We wished to be associated. His father bought him an interest in the business.

Q. Yes, she did."

"Did you at any time that night see who was in the car?"

"Yes, a man."

"Did you know him?"

"No, not then."

Q. Had that incident anything to do with your carrying a revolver? A. Yes.

Q. What was the occasion? A. I occasionally went to my office in the late evening. The streets are often solitary. I wanted to protect myself.

Q. Did you carry this revolver in your pocket? A. No, it was too big. I kept it in the dash locker in my car.

Q. And you had no permit? A. No.

Q. Asked for none? A. No.

Q. Why not? A. I was unwilling to admit that I was nervous.

Q. Did you buy this revolver? A. No.

Q. Where did you get it? A. My son had it, in a metal lock box in his room. He was away at college. I forced open the box with a screwdriver.

Q. So you were nervous about robbers and decided to carry a gun? A. Yes.

Q. Dider you a nervous man? A. I have a lively imagination, a lot of imaginary fears.

Q. Do they affect your actions? A. I sometimes do shameful things, make bad mistakes, through fear.

Tells of "Eid" Q. Did your office take an extra help last summer? A. Yes.

Q. Stenographers? A. Yes.

Q. Any stenographers with whom you came in contact? A. Yes.

Q. How many? A. One.

Q. What was her name? A. Miss Wines.

Q. A good stenographer? A. Fair.

Q. Pretty? A. Attractive, yes.

Q. Who was she? A. I don't know.

Q. Ever see her outside of office hours while she worked for you? A. No.

Q. Did you see her at all afterward? A. Yes.

Q. After she worked for you? A. Yes.

Q. How often? A. Twice.

"And What Happened Then?" Asked Mr. Flood.

the letter in his hand turned back to the witness.

"Who wrote this letter?" he asked.

"She did."

"Your daughter?"

"Yes."

Falkran said to the Court: "I offer the letter." It was marked. He read it aloud, standing in front of the jury box, facing them.

The letter was for the most part without significance. The dead girl had written happily of her work, hoped that even though it was only temporary it might lead to something permanent. But one paragraph Mr. Falkran read slowly and impressively, in his fine trained tones, with a maximum effect, with his eyes upon the jury. He read:

"I don't like Mr. Sentry! He's cross if you make the least mistake. But Mr. Lorán is nice, awfully jolly. He asked me to go to dinner with him tonight. He said there wasn't any harm in it, but of course I didn't go."

A stir ran through the court. Falkran waited a moment for silence, "Your witness," he told Flood.

The District Attorney declined to cross-examine. Falkran nodded, and he said: "It is near the hour, Your Honor. Mr. Sentry is to be our next witness. I suggest a recess till tomorrow morning."

Court adjourned.

CHAPTER VIII

Dan Fisher's assignment at the trial was not to cover the actual testimony—that was recorded by reporters working in relay, using those swift abbreviations meaningless to anyone but themselves which with a good newspaper man take the place of shorthand—but to write the morning paper story. Mr. Sentry was on the stand all Saturday forenoon; and Dan wrote for the Sunday paper:

Arthur Sentry, on trial for his life and charged with the murder of Agnes Wines, on the witness stand yesterday admitted that he fired the shot which killed Miss Wines.

He testified that the shot was fired by accident, in the dark, when he surprised an attempt to rob the safe in his office.

He admitted leaving the dead girl's body where it fell. He admitted taking the money from the safe and burning it in the furnace at home. He admitted throwing the dead woman into the river behind his garage where it was subsequently found by the police.

He denied any misconduct with Miss Wines. He testified that it was another woman who spent two nights with him in a New Jersey hotel last August.

Mr. Sentry's testimony created a sensation. The court officers had difficulty in keeping order until Judge Stanton been dead ten years.

Q. Your mother? A. She is dead.

Q. When did she die? A. Two weeks ago.

Q. Under what circumstances? A. She was old and feeble. She tried to come to see me in jail and the effort killed her.

Q. You have children? A. Three.

Q. How old? A. The oldest is twenty-six, the second twenty-two, the youngest twenty.

Q. Married? A. The oldest is.

Q. And the oldest is a son or a daughter? A. The oldest is a daughter, the second is a son, the youngest a daughter.

Q. Are they in court? A. My son is.

Q. And Mrs. Sentry is in court? A. Yes.

Q. You are devoted to her? A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever wronged her? A. Yes.

The court officers at this point had difficulty in restoring order.

Q. Did you ever have a permit to carry a revolver? A. No.

Q. Did you ever carry such a permit? A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask for one? A. Yes.

Q. Bought ammunition for it? A. Yes.

Q. Where? A. At Forbush's sporting-goods store.

Good People Gone

Another good man has finished this life. To his fathers is gathered, to be with his wife.

We knew this fine couple many a year. And no act of folly ever came to our ear. We know so little of that heavenly state. Having never been through the beautiful gate;

But this we know, the saints are at rest. Whether asleep or awake their lot is blest as fellow citizens they are missed indeed, For they stood for the right and censured the green.

The church they so loved an important task faces, I'll find the ones to put in their places.

To those nearest and dearest, your hopes are so bright. Just follow their lead, walk in the light. Walk in their footsteps, step in their own. And I'm sure they will lead you right to the throne.

Mrs. J. S. Hall

Edward McLaughlin shot a chicken hawk east of town Wednesday which was unusually large. The bird measured 4 feet and 4 inches from wing tip to wing tip.

A few nice Rhode Island Red roosters and pullets for sale.
