The announcement that Senator Stanford will be a candidate for president on the people's party ticket must be appalling news to the highly sensitive members of that organization who go into spasms over the power that money has for evil in politics. Stanford is reputed to be worth $20,000,000 and is a heavy stockholder in rail roads and other corporations.—Dallas News

One reason why the sheep is more valuable as an enricher of the soil upon which it feeds than the cow, is that while the cow consumes about six times as much food as the sheep, the six sheep would only take away in their fleeces a little less than 2 pounds of nitrogen and less than 10 ounces of mineral matter, while the cow, if she gave 4000 pounds of milk, would take away 26 pounds of mineral fertilizer, largely phosphate of lime, nitrogen and forty per cent as much mineral as the six sheep. The six sheep are supposed to weigh about the same number of pounds and eat about as much food as the cow, but they will eat many plants that the cow does not eat.

An editor died and slowly wended his way to where he supposed a warm reception awaited him. The devil saw him and said, "for many years thou hast borne the blame for many errors the printers made in the paper. The paper has gone alas for $2 per year, and the $2 has often failed to come in. The printers have deviled the Saturday night for wages when thou hadst not one cent to thy name. Men have taken the paper never paying for it, and cursed thee for not getting out a better. Thou hast been called a deadbeat by the passenger conductor when thou hast showed thy annual pass to envious gaze. All these thou hast borne in silence. Thou mayst not come in here." And he fired him away. Heaven is his home, and besides, if we had let him come in here he would be continually dunning his delirious subscribers—h—l is full of them, and thus create discord in my kingdom.—Western Call

The County Clerk of Uvalde Found Dead in the Jail.

A special from Uvalde of August 29th says: R. J. Spencer, county clerk, died under peculiar circumstances last night. He had some trouble with a negro in the jail yesterday afternoon, and was hit on the head with a jug. He did not appear to be badly hurt, and seemed all right several hours after the occurrence. This morning upon opening the jail the jailer found Spencer dead on the floor, apparently having died several hours before. The question which is undecided is, whether death was caused from the blow. Spencer was buried this afternoon, his remains being taken to Leona Chapel a few miles below town, for interment.

Rooted to the Spot. I heard a story the other day about the former assistant rector of one of the largest Episcopal churches in the city. The gentleman in question is now the President of a college so far away that he cannot mind it I relate the incident. He was a jolly good fellow when he lived in a boarding house here, and in his off hours was accustomed to join with the other good fellows of the house at a friendly game of whist or a smoke.

One evening when he was out at service two of the wags of the neighborhood remembered that it was an invariable habit upon returning home to doff his roundabout vest and clerical coat, put on an old smoking jacket and encase his feet in a pair of morocco slippers, which latter always occupied the same position on his bedroom floor preparatory to his coming. Accordingly, they firmly nailed these slippers to the floor, and waited results in the next room.

Presently the dominie returned. They heard him moving about; they heard the thud of his shoes as they were taken off and thrown down, and then all was silent. They peered cautiously in, and there beheld the young clergyman standing in his slippers, his face white as a sheet, and a look of horror upon it, his eyes staring straight ahead. The sight was too much for them, but they managed to suppress their laughter and ask in a tone of amazement what the matter was.

"Matter," he gasped, "there is matter enough, boys, I'm paralyzed, and can't move hand or foot. For mercy's sake help me." The man did actually, such is the force of imagination, believe he was paralyzed for a moment or two, but he finally set 'em up in a manner appropriate to his calling, by buying cigars for the crowd.—Weekly Life

Sorting and Cleaning Wool.

The wool comes into the mill dirty, greasy, burry, sometimes washed by the farmer, but generally just as it is sheared from the sheep, a filthy and unwholesome thing, giving little sign of the beautiful white and flossy substance into which it is soon converted. It must first be sorted, each fleece containing from six to eight qualities of sorts, which the careful manufacturer separates, devoting each quality to the purpose for which it is best suited. No skill in carding, spinning, weaving or finishing can possibly produce a soft or fine piece of goods from a coarse, hard fiber. When a woollen thread is to be spun to the length of 15,360 yards to the pound, or, in the case of a worsted thread, to twice that number of yards to the pound, everything depends upon care in the selection of the fleece and in the sorting. These sorts are impregnated with a greasy substance called the yolk or suint, caused by the animal secretions and perspiration of the skin, a compound of potash and animal fat, which must be completely eradicated. The elimination of the yolk, dirt, and foreign substances, common to all wools, results in a shrinkage of from 50 to 70 per cent.

Our ancestors scoured their wool in tubs, much as our wives and daughter scour our clothes to-day. In the hand-washing of wool, a tub was filled with the suds, in which one or two men with long poles stirred the wool until clean, when they lifted it upon a traveling-apron, which carried it between a pair of rollers which squeezed out the water.

The same principle is applied in the automatic scouring now in vogue. Great forks or rakes seize the wool as it is carried by rollers from a feeding-apron into the iron tanks, and by alternating motions of their teeth give it a thorough scouring. Thus cleaned, the wool is delivered by rollers to the drying machines, where hot air and great fans are now utilized to extract all the moisture without tearing the fiber.—The Popular Science Monthly.

Letters received by the Latin-American Department of the Exposition indicate that Mexican women will take a prominent place at the World's Fair. The country has long been celebrated for the variety of needle-work made by drawing threads from linen, which is known as Mexican work. Although now so fashionable in newer portions of the world, the making of it is an ancient art in Old Mexico, and exquisite specimens of the lace-like work are to be found in the antique altarcloths of the ruined missions. The women do as intricate and beautiful embroidery in silver and gold, for the gorgeous sombrero, without which no Mexican horseman is perfectly equipped. Toluca women make by hand a peculiar kind of durable and pretty lace.

No side shows are to be permitted within the Exposition grounds. The Directory has decided that the entrance fee shall entitle the visitor to see everything within the inclosure. There will be, however, several theatres built and kept running, at which the finest talent in the world, it is expected, will appear, and visitors who choose to attend the performances will have to pay an admission fee. Such sights as "A Street in Cairo" will be free, but natives of oriental countries in a few cases will be allowed to charge a small fee to special performances of a theatrical nature.

A Woman's Woman.

What we mean is this: Men and women usually admire in one another the opposite qualities from those most congenial to their own sex. But the ideal human being is an all-rounder, combining masculine strength and energy and feminine tenderness and in sight. Where we find in women only the qualities complementary to men, without the others, we call them men's women; when they are all-round human beings, we call them women's women. A woman's woman can give you strength and counsel, and has a wider range of thought and sympathy than a man's woman. There are many women's women who are highly valued by men, but these are men who care for more than complementary qualities in a woman, and are "superior." The ordinary and average man prefers the complementary woman, especially if young and skitish, to the all-round one. And I will go so far as to say that some of these complementary women do make delightful wives and admirable mothers of little children, though they are apt to fall into difficulties when their children grow up.—London Spectator.

Entered at the Postoffice at Sonora, second-class matter. MIKE MURPHY, Proprietor. SONORA, TEXAS. - September 5, 1901.

The New Orleans papers are in high glee because, as they take it, the Texas railway commission has incidentally and unwittingly discriminated against Galveston and in favor of that city.

On Tuesday last our sanctum received a pleasant visit from Mr. Mike Murphy, the young and talented editor of the Devil's River News, published at Sonora, a suburb of Kerrville.

S. G. Taylor, the bright and popular young attorney of Sonora, Texas, who so ably aided the defense in the J. Q. Adam's Habeas Corpus trial, made the Standard a very pleasant visit Wednesday.

The above refers to our Sam. If he is popular amongst his new made friends, it is no more than we expected, it also speaks well of his ability.

San Angelo Standard. John W. Hagerlund, the Sonora merchant, was in the city several days this week on business.

E. H. Over, of South Concho, bought 1250 head of stock sheep from T. B. Howard, of Brown county. Terms private.

The first lot of scoured wool from the country, last Thursday, it was part of the A. J. Williams' clip of Sherwood.

The drifting flocks that have been wont to revel down in the Devil's River region will have to seek newer and fresher pastures and other shelter from the wintry blasts this year.

The wool scouring mill is doing good work and will be a profitable investment. Anyone interested in the growth of San Angelo as a wool market should not fail to give this excellent enterprise his encouragement and support.

Capt. W. H. Bolger, our handsome and agreeable young hardware merchant, left on a business and pleasure visit to New York last night, via the Mallory Line of Seamers.

John Perry, Crockett's good-looking sheriff has purchased 3507 steers ones and twos, from Mapes & Cross, of Concho county, at $7.50 and $11.50.

About two years ago Wilson, Tankersley & Williams, proprietors of one of the largest and most successful cattle ranches in Texas—the 7 D ranch in Tom Green and Irion counties—shipped a herd of two year-old steers to Montana.

J. T. Wilson, Sonora's contractor and builder, returned from a trip to Ozona, Wednesday.

J. K. York struck town last Saturday and circulated dodgers announcing that he would open a writing school in the school house Monday.

The contest was stripped to the waist, and each was armed with two sharp knives, the blades being about eight inches long.

Amid breathless silence the combatants slowly approached the center of the ring. There they stood for a minute or more, each eyeing the other.

Slowly the circling began again, and the glittering eyes alone showed that the walk meant death. Soon the same leap was repeated, this time by Nunechi, who seemed to fly through the air.

A New Bank.

The application for a charter was filed on the 20th inst. with the Comptroller of Currency, and the well known private banking house of Veck, Sterrett & Co. is to reorganize under the National Banking law with an authorized capital of $200,000.

HAND TO HAND WITH KNIVES.

An Indian dispute settled by the death of both parties to it. William Weston, a ranchman living twenty miles north of Delimito, T. P., brings a story of a most horrible duel which was fought with knives by two Indians near his ranch.

The Indians were named Sewapi and Nunechi. They had been restrained from fighting several times by their friends, but on meeting at a horse race the quarrel was renewed, and it was finally arranged that they should end the matter by a duel with knives.

Song by Audience. Roll call. "Thrown on the world," Mr. J. Taylor. "Evangeline," Miss Bessie Fraugh.

Always locate in a progressive community and grow up with the country. Come to Sonora and Sutton county, the cream of the West.

A bank in Sonora could do a world of business.

The best inland town in the state wants a bank. Come to Sonora.

Some enterprising citizen could make big money by putting in a public scale in Sonora.

Day by day Sonora becomes more prominent as a thriving go-ahead town and the trading center of the Stockman's Paradise.

Join the Texas wool growers association. It only costs $2.50 to join and $2.50 per year dues.

If you want a farm we can suit you. The Schleicher county divide 14 miles from Sonora, the metropolis of the Stockman's Paradise, is the finest large body of agricultural land in Texas.

Sonora is the metropolis of the Devil's River country.

Geo. Sibby, of New Orleans, cell builder for the Paddy Jail Co., of St. Louis is in Sonora attending to the iron work of the Sutton county jail.

HOW A NEGRO GET A HOLIDAY.

A favorite name of the Virginia which is Sally—due to the fact, probably, that one Sallie Clave achieved great fame in this region years ago through her informal nits.

Amid breathless silence the combatants slowly approached the center of the ring. There they stood for a minute or more, each eyeing the other.

HOW FISHHOOKS ARE MADE.

Points of Interest to Anglers on the Manufacture of Their Weapons. The making of fishhooks is not merely a trade in itself; anglers consider that it is properly speaking an art.

Amid breathless silence the combatants slowly approached the center of the ring. There they stood for a minute or more, each eyeing the other.

Word & Jones shipped their lambs wool to Chas Habes, San Angelo, last week.

STOCKMAN'S PARADISE.
A Good Town That Has Grown
Up in Two Years.

Mike Murphy, a Devil's River journalist, was at the Maverick last week, where, found by an Express reporter, he volunteered some information about the Stygian country. "The principal industry of the Devil's River," said he, "is stock. It is the largest sheep raising and wool growing portion of the State. Cattle are fat and always do well, and it is fast coming to the front as a horse country. Farmers are not wanted, but those who follow that business have splendid crops and are generally successful. All who have seen the country are enthusiastic as to the future and proclaim it the Stockman's Paradise and finest stock-raising portion of America. Until three years ago it was thought to be a dry country and at that time there were only four ranches in Sutton county."

"The town of Sonora was started two years ago last July. The county was organized last November and Sonora elected as the county seat. The first assessment of the county has been received at Austin and amounts to $1,000,000. Sonora has grown rapidly and has at present a population between 700 and 900. A $25,000 courthouse and a jail costing $12,000 are now being built. A $10,000 system of waterworks supplies the town with water for domestic and fire purposes. Sonora has two large mercantile houses, one with a $30,000 stock and the other carrying $45,000 worth of merchandise. The latter has done a business this year of $125,000.

"The people are intelligent, thrifty and enterprising. The principal religious denominations are well represented and the school is conceded to be one of the best in West Texas, and is under the management of an excellent corps of teachers. "The remarkable part of all this is that the town is 45 miles from running water, which in itself is a guarantee that the country is all that is claimed. An inexhaustible supply of water is obtained at a depth of from 140 to 300 feet, and is pumped into large tanks and reservoirs by windmills, horsepower and steam engines. "Mesquite grass and buffalo clover are the principal feeds, with the fallow weed, wild lettuce, parsley and pea vines, which sheep delight to eat. "And then we have the famous soto plant for winter feed. Soto-fed mutton are equal to corn-fed and receive the same classification on the Chicago market. There are still good openings for business men and a bank could do a large and profitable business in Sonora, the trading center of the stockman's paradise."—San Antonio Express.

Mike Murphy, editor and proprietor of the DEVIL'S RIVER NEWS published at Sonora, Tex., paid the News a fraternal visit this week. Mr. M. is not only making a good paper of the DEVIL'S RIVER NEWS, but is also making money out of it, which shows that his readers know when they have a "good thing."—Kerrville News.

The Nesbit House, on the north side of court house square is one of the nicest places in San Angelo for yourself and family to stop at while in that city. The rooms are clean and comfortably furnished. The table always supplied with the best of the market goods and you wonder how the proprietress, Mrs. L. A. Nesbit, can make ends meet when she charges only $1 a day.

OLD TAYLOR WHISKEY
Fitzpatrick and Lyell's, San Angelo.
Charles Schreiner, of Kerrville, presents his card in this issue and notifies you that he is in the wool commission, banking, general merchandise and ranch supply business. Mr. Schreiner is well known and comment is unnecessary.
C. G. Cooper has secured a fine well of water at the Taylor box in Crockett county. Up to this time it has been deemed impossible to obtain water at that point.—Enterprise.
Sam Binkles, under Hotel San Angelo, is sole agent for "Old Forester" case whiskey.
The fall clip will be of fine, bright, long staple, free from scab. The reduction in the price of Cooper Dip, has induced ranchmen to use it exclusively, and the result is better wool and healthy sheep in the Stockman's Paradise.
Go to SAM RINKLES' Moss Rosaloon, under Hotel San Angelo, for the imported Brandeis, imported Claret, California Orange wine, fine liquors and cigars.
In this issue will be seen the ad of Morris & Birtrong, dealers in wines, liquors and cigars. PESSIMISM.

As the sound of the sea breaking on a rocky coast
At midnight, when the winds are up and the clouds fly
Terrible, rushing headlong on atwart the sky
Far as the eye can track them, a wild, tumultuous host.

So comes to me the sound of the surge of existence
In the deep hours of the night of my soul's sorrow;
I see with wan eyes the clouds rushing on,
and no morrow.

Respite shall bring from grief's ever gnawing persistence.
For what is lost is lost, and I never shall find it;
Cruel and unreturning are the cold and unshaken dead.

My grief is mine own, and unheeding
Still beats the storm, the wind ever driving and the waves roar.

Thou, sitting here beside me, listening on the sail shore,
Seem'st to hear voices come to thee out of the night.

Do not thou see night in the storm and the swift clouds' flight?
Is it eyes or a form thou shalt see, alas! no more?

It shall never come back to thee. 'Tis a wrath storm born,
Tossed up from the tumbling waters broken
on the shore;

The voices thou hearest are the wind and waves' roar,
Speaking to thee alone, who mournest of love forlorn.

And thou, who beatest thy breast and stridest along Meaning thy fate and lifting thy hands to the skies,
Crying Woe's met and suspirous deep drawn sighs.

What madman thinkst thou the weak shall help from the strong?

And thou, with upturned eyes and arms on thy breast still crossed
As thou standest in patience that hopes in the pitiless storm.

Will the holy sign thou makest make the dead heart warm
Or all thy prayers bring back to thee what thou lostest?

Only black night and winds in an ever storm
racket sky,
And the sound of the pounding of billows on the shore;

On through the night that dreary and monotonous
one,
As on in the night to the night the night goes by!

The Care of Brushes.

It is very common to find people who are dainty in all their surroundings and who consider themselves thoroughly neat, who yet are careless about drying their toilet brushes. To wet a brush and have it shut up in a close box insures its being moldy and rank in a short time. All toilet brushes that are used for the hands, mouth or teeth should be thoroughly rinsed and hung up where they will dry in a draft immediately after they are used. It is a good plan to rinse them and hang them in strong sunlight.

There are little racks which hang on the wall to hold the nail and the tooth brushes, and which serve the purpose of drying them better than any other contrivance which we have. If they are dried in an ordinary mug the water drips down and discolors the tip of an ivory handle. Above all things, the tooth brush should be kept scrupulously clean, and it cannot be done unless it is kept thoroughly dried after being used and occasionally exposed to the purifying effects of the sunlight. —New York Tribune.

Sold the Ticket.

An enterprising member of a popular cycling club in Rochester recently held a raffle of a valuable wheel. The tickets were two dollars each, and among the purchasers was a clerk in an up town store. The clerk was not present when the drawing occurred, but his ticket proved the winning number. Several hours later an acquaintance dropped into the store and casually asked the clerk what he would take for his ticket. He named three dollars as the price and the bargain was promptly completed. "That ticket is the winner," said the purchaser gleefully, holding up the card-board. "I know it," was the response, "and I've just been down after the wheel." —Rochester Democrat.

A Married Look.

Mrs. Grumps—Your friend, Mr. Baldpate, did not mention his wife the whole evening.

Mr. Grumps—Wife! He's an old bachelor.

"Well, I declare! I took it for granted he was married."

"Why?"

"Oh, I don't know. He has a sort of a married look somehow."

"He used to live out west, and once he was tressed for three days and three nights by a grizzly." —New York Weekly.

Free Ice Water.

The proprietor of an open air oyster stand in South street supplies free ice water to all who desire to drink it. The paid stands upon one end of the counter, and a card attached to it is plainly marked, "Ice water for all, welcome all." There is a convenient dipper in the pail, and one has only to help himself. There are two men at work at this stand, and it has an air of prosperity. —New York Sun.

A Long Sentence of Six Letters.

Here is a sentence of thirty-two words which some ingenious person has constructed of the six letters found in the word "maiden." "Ida, a maiden, a mean man named Ned Dean, and Me dia, a mad dame, made me mend a die and dine and mind a mine in a din den in Maine." —Philadelphia Ledger.

Difference in Pies.

Hostess—Te hel I beg pardon, Mr. Downest, but really the New England custom of having pie for breakfast seems very funny.

Mr. Downest—Ah, madam, if you could taste New England piss you'd want them three times a day. —Good News.

THE DANGEROUS OLEANDER.

The Buds and Leaves of the Popular Plant Are Not Healthful Things to Eat.

"I wonder if it is a mere matter of fancy, or does that tree affect my health?" queried a very delicate looking woman who had bought some large bushes of exquisite pink and white blossoms from a tall and wide spreading oleander which stood in a large tub in her room. "Sometimes I feel perfectly certain that the odor of the blossoms hurts me—makes my eyes burn and causes an irritation in my throat. I am more satisfied about the latter, however, and am going to have the plant taken out of my room, although it is one of which, for several reasons, I am very fond."

"I think you are wise in doing so," replied her friend. "I am certain that continuous breathing of the atmosphere laden with the odor of that tree is capable of producing the most serious consequences. I have not the slightest doubts that the deaths of at least two friends of mine are traceable to this cause, and I know of several cases where throat affections have been caused and aggravated by living in the same room with large plants of this sort. In one instance there was at first a cold, then a sore throat, then a cough, then a pneumonia, and finally death. The symptoms and death, with very marked disturbance of the heart's action toward the last."

"The dispensaries and other authorities tell us that the oleander contains a principle which is an active heart poison. It seems remarkable that no investigation of its actual effect on human life has been made. In some countries it is in general use as the principal ingredient of a compound for destroying rats, mice and many sorts of insects. An arduous bout cut from a number of trees on a gentleman's lawn was thrown into a pond where cattle went to drink, and several valuable animals died from drinking there."

"A gentleman one day rode his horse up to the porch of a house where he desired to call, tied the animal to one of the rails and went indoors. Returning after a few moments' stay, he found the horse in a state of violent agitation, trembling and scarcely able to stand. A few moments later he fell, and died almost instantly. Investigation revealed the fact that he had reached over the rail and eaten several large branches from an oleander which stood on the porch. Members of the family who chanced to be aware of the death of the cattle from drinking the poisoned water and also of other corroborative evidence, had no hesitation in declaring that the oleander shoots that the horse had eaten were the cause of his death."

"In view of these facts, it seems quite important that some qualified individual should investigate the subject and give to the public the results. A lady of some experience and considerable medical knowledge gives it as her opinion that enlargement of the glands of the throat, and various forms of heart disease, are either produced or aggravated by inhaling air charged with the odors of this plant. Especially is this likely to occur in winter, when plants are kept in living rooms in a high temperature, or where the air is charged with moisture. Certain it is that with my observation and experience of its effects I would have it removed without delay, beautiful as it is." —New York Ledger.

Shaving with Rapidity.

A barber who can shave five men in an hour is doing quick work, and a young Pittsburger who has the fortune or misfortune, as you may choose, to possess a stiff black beard, thought he was seeking the impossible when he asked a barber to shave him in five minutes in order that he might catch a train. But the barber thus challenged, with the added incentive of a double fee if he did the work in the allotted time, settled down to his best gait, and succeeded in shaving his man, without a single cut, but clean, smooth and complete, in some seconds less than five minutes. More than this, the barber brushed his customer's hair and put in all the little extras of bay rum and the rest, handed him his hat and remarked the heat of the day before the five minutes had elapsed. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Texas Prodigy.

Mr. G. D. Hoffman, of Woodland, Tex., has a calf-sheep. Exactly half of the calf is covered with wool running along the back bone and on the under side half way. Half of the tail is wool, and the two right feet are like a sheep's. The hide feels like a sheep on one side, the other like a calf, eyes are blue. You may pull the wool off its side and get wool from a sheep and you may get a calf from a sheep and you may get a sheep from a calf. The side which the wool is appears a great deal lighter in color than the other. Its mother is a very large cow, while the freak is tolerably diminutive. —Cor. St. Louis Republic.

A correspondent gives the following incident as one that actually occurred in a local business house:

Customer came sniling to cashier's desk—Will you please cash this check for me?

Cashier—Yes, if you can be identified.

Customer—Oh, ah—yes—well—how do I do that?

Cashier—Bring some one who knows you.

Customer—Oh, yes; there is my lms band; he knows me. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Fallities and Gray Hair.

Whatever tends to paralyze the nerves in the outer membrane of the hair follicle will tend to prevent the flow of secretions and the consequent deposit of pigment. When these minute nerves of the follicle cease to act the person necessarily dons "the silver livery of advanced age," and when the hair resumes its color in any degree, as it sometimes does, it is the result of an improvement of the follicles or the nerves and capillaries controlling the secretions, or both. —New York Times.

The Missing Information.

First Lady—Well, Emma, what is it you are looking for so anxiously in your cookery book?

Second Lady (newly married)—Ach, our silly cook is stopping out so late, and my husband says he would like to eat some radishes—but I cannot find in the whole book any directions how to cook them! —Crescentian Anzeiger.

Clever Diamond Smuggling.

Talking about smuggling reminds me of a trick I saw resorted to by a passenger on one of the big steamers a couple of years ago," said a loquacious commercial traveler. "You know there is a duty on diamonds, and one of the passengers had three large stones, worth several thousand dollars, which he had purchased in London. The problem of how to evade paying the duty on the stones worried him considerably, but at last he evolved a plan, and a few days before the steamer arrived in New York he proceeded to execute it."

"The chief officer had a little Skye terrier, and the passenger after considerable deliberation decided to send the dog. As soon as the smuggler gained possession of the animal he fed him up and gave him nothing to eat until just before we were to go ashore. He then procured some fat meat from the cook, and cutting off a piece a little larger than a walnut made a hole in it into which he placed one of the diamonds."

"A dog will generally bolt a piece of fat without chewing it, and of course a diamond will go down with it. The hungry dog swallowed the meat, as his owner expected he would, and in a short time the three diamonds were safely stowed away in his interior. The diamond smuggler had no difficulty in evading the vigilance of the custom house officials, and was soon on his way up town leading the dog by a string."

"I met him again a few days afterward and asked him how he recovered the stones. 'Easily enough,' he replied. 'As soon as I got home I shot the dog and found the diamonds after a short search. Of course I was sorry for the dog, but dogs are cheap and the tariff on stones is high, and I never allow sympathy to interfere with business.' —Jeweler's Weekly.

Did Not Want to Tell All.

It was an evening school in Providence, R. I. There was a class of restless, dirty newboys and bootblacks on the front seat trying to see how little they could study and how much they could annoy the teacher. Finally the teacher called up the class and put them through the catechism of the United States history.

"Who discovered America?"

Nobody seemed to know and the teacher, a long suffering student from the university, lost his patience. Shouting the book with a bang, he dismissed the class with these sarcastic remarks:

"Well, when one of you boys gets to the point where he needs to have some one vote for him as governor or president, he will be ashamed to think he doesn't know who discovered America."

One of the wickedest looking of the boys raised his grimy paw.

"Well, Tom, what is it?"

"I know who discovered America."

"Why didn't you tell, then?" asked the teacher sharply.

"Cos I didn't want to tell all I know," said Tom, while the class cut off into a roar.

The teacher called on the advanced class in spelling, and there was a smile on his face the rest of the evening. —Boston Herald.

A Sculptor's Late Start in Life.

Hiram Powers was the eighth of nine children, and he was a very small boy when his father died, and he had to go to work for the family. He had been born in Vermont, but his parents had moved out to Ohio in his young poor people have of roaming hither and you after better luck.

It was in Ohio that the father died, and in Ohio that Hiram fought his youthful battle. For seven years he had charge of the wax figures in a Cincinnati museum, and it was while there that he felt an impulse toward his future art, and tried his prentice hand at modeling in clay.

But it was not until he was thirty years old that he was at liberty to strike out for himself, and he was thirty-two before he had money enough to go to Italy. Yet he was to be the sculptor of the "Greek Slave"—Youth's Companion.
