THE MAGIC OF MUSIC

Power of the Melody of the Voice Over Man and Beast.

SINGERS WHO SAVED LIVES.

The Way Lablache, the Basso, Conquered a Bear and a Burglar-Grisi's Control of a Madman With a Razor. A Musical Wife's Presence of Mind.

That music really has charms to soothe the savage beast is proved by the many times that the power of song has been the means of saving life. On one occasion when Luigi Lablache, the great opera basso, was aimlessly strolling through a French fair he was surprised by a sudden stampede of thesightseers, who rushed by him in a great panic, crying that one of the great bears had escaped from the menagerie. So surprised that he scarcely realized his danger, the singer stood his ground and almost immediately found himself face to face with the maddened beast, which halted for a moment before making its final rush. In that moment Lablache began to sing one of his favorite airs in a voice so deep and terrifying that the bear slunk away, thoroughly cowed.

It was this same singer who, when confined to his bed by a broken leg. was surprised by his landlady, who burst into his room, crying that a robber was in the house and was about to kill her husband unless he revealed the hiding place of their money and plate. Lablache, unable because of his injury to give other assistance, began to sing an aria in such thunderous tones as to terrify the robber, who fled.

Mme. Giulia Grisi was once traveling from the south of France to Paris in company with several companions of her own sex, when their privacy was intruded upon by a man who entered their apartment at a wayside station. Before long he began to act so oddly as to make the women apprehensive and at last terrified them by drawing a razor, which he began to flourish, at the same time demanding that he be permitted to sever their heads. The women realized that they had a madman in the carriage with them and also that they were without protection until the next stop of the train. In consequence they became hysterical-all save Grisi, who with great coolness suddenly began to sing in a soft voice that gradually assumed volume as she gained the attention of the man, whose threatening attitude gave way to rapt attention as the son; advanced. Song after song did Gris! sing, and not another movement did transpired afterward that he had escaped from a lunatic asylum.

the fire was soon extinguished. Another well known opera star while traveling with some friends in Mexico was surprised by a company of half breed bandits, at whose approach the escort fled, leaving their charges to the mercy of the robbers. The attitude of the latter on finding that their captives and his captors were so delighted that they demanded more. For a time he gratified them, but at last suggested that he should sing for the freedom of hour he and his companion were free. Kneissel, the notorious Bavarian brigand, once planned to rob a house in the neighborhood of Munich and, if necessary to secure the money and to her plane and began to sing. The brigand listened for awhile and was en the point of forcing an entrance into the room when the song ceased and a man's voice struck up a rollicking air, to be followed in a few mounexpectedly and had brought with Fort Worth and Denver railways. him a friend. The Wall Street sufferers need not look about for somebody to blame for their troubles. They themselves are to blame.-Houston Post.

It will be remembered that the defeat of William R. Hearst for governor of New York is attributed more to the fact that President Roosevelt sent Secretary of War Root to New York to denounce Hearst in his name as a scoundrel of the worst type. In the face of these facts the following Washington special to the Cincinnati Enquirer is very interesting reading, and we reproduce it for what it is worth:

NEW YORK PUBLISHER ADVOCAT-ES INCORPORATION OF LA-

SAME BASIS AS CAPITAL

Employers Should Deal With Employees Only Through Union.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 25.—An argument in favor of the incorporation of labor unions so that they shall be upon the same plane before the law as are combinations of capital, was advocated by Don C. Seitz of the New York World, in an address on "The Adjustment of Labor Problems and the Policy of Incorporating Unions,' at the conference on trusts and combinations in Chicago last night.

"A responsible corporation, well managed and financially strong, is a benefit to the community," said Mr. Seitz. "A labor union, incorporated, conservative, industrious and whose main object it shall be to see that its members are competent that they shall always be employed and that they shall do their work well, is an equal benefit to the community. A labor organization that is predatory, the prey of politicians and a victim of designing agitators and imported agitators, is a nuisance and ought to be displaced. Incorporation would bring this about and the Civic Federation can perform no greater task than urging such a movement to completion.

"Capital is an organization per se, necessarily so, and labor overcame much that was cruel and unjust and fought its way to fairer conditions through the organization of unions. But it seems to me that success has spoiled both labor and capital, and changed what was planned to be beneficial and beneficent into extortion and oppression, and it is time for the country to assert the old rules of a truly democratic community of equal rights and equal freedom for every dollar and every man.

"For the labor organization as a business institution, I have entire respect, but it seems to me that the unions are letters of Mr. Gompers and other leaders or heads of labor organizations as sent to various labor conventions, they sound to me like utterances of petty princes defying the community at large, and snapping their fingers at the laws and the constitution with its guarantee of equal rights, and demanding privileges that are denied others, because they represent "organized" labor. They frankly array themselves the law is reaching out and taking against the community. Ladies' Cloaks

In this department you will find the very newest, both in style and material, and the prices are within range of the most economical buyer. Your coat should be 50 inches long. We have them in black, tan, castor and the new leather shades. A look through our cloak department will convince you that our store is the place to buy your suit or cloak.

The men and boys have been very carefully looked after in our selection of fall and winter clothing. We have the snapplest patterns made by one of America's foremost clothing manufacturers. Any suit that you select will be made to fit you free of charge. Men's and boy's black all wool suits, $8.00 to $25.00. Children's clothing at strikingly low prices.

All our lady customers are going to be better pleased in ladies footwear this season than previously. We have a larger stock consequently more styles to choose from. The style, wearing qualities and low prices of our ladies' Shoe Department the most popular one in town. See our Selby shoes at $4.00.

Some very beautiful patterns in Prunella cloth, Broad cloth and worsteds, as well as woolen goods are here waiting for your inspection. Our ladies' dress goods department has long since been the main distributing point for dress goods in our city. We have a careful buyer for this department who knows his business. There are too many different goods and too many different prices to tire you by quoting them. There are new goods arriving every day. It is to your interest to see them.

Our Shoe Department, like it is every season, is way ahead of every shoe department in town. One reason for this is because we buy from high class manufaccause we buy from high class manufac-turers that know how to make good shoes. Our stock consists of Hanan, Crossette, Abbott and Star Brand shoes for men; Sel-by, Lewis and Star Brand for Ladies and Children—the kind that are made in St. Louis by Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co. Every time we sell you a pair of shoes we know you are coming back to us for your shoes for all time to come, because they will please you every time.

A couple of Wichita Falls real estate men are wearing beauty spots on their countenances as the result, it is said, of an automobile collision at Electra several days ago. Five sturdy Kansas farmers who came down to attend the lot drawing at Electra are said to be the other parties to the collision and are reported to have sustained facial alterations quite as bad, if not worse, than the local men.
