BROUGHT A BRASS BAND

Stirred Up the Old Town With Tuneful Strains and Left, Leaving Us Glad They Had Come.

Just to show their Wichita Falls neighbors that they are not a bit behind them in push, progress and enterprise, more than three hundred citizens of Archer City and Archer county came into Wichita Falls this morning on the excursion over the new Wichita Falls and Southern railroad. and spent several enjoyable hours

The excursionists arrived at about 10 o'clock and their arrival was announced by the resounding brass of the Archer City band, which accompanied the excursion. The Archer City band is one of the best organizations the State, and when they struck up the tuneful, stirring strains of Dixie all Wichita knew that something out of the ordinary was coming off.

There were fully three hundred passengers on the excursion and if ac commodations could have been provided for more, all Archer county would have come up. All of which goes to show that the Archerites don't running of the first passenger train over the new road into Archer City. the chairman of the railroad committee handed to President Kemp a check for $12,000 as payment in full of the bonus subscribed by Archer City to aid the building of the road.

The coming of the railroad has stirred up a new enthusiasm in that section and its effects are already being felt in that country: The people there take pride in the fact that they now have a railroad and they don't mind showing it. The citizens of Wichita Falls should be glad, as we know they are, to have closer connections with Archer City.

How to Diversify Safely and Profitably.

For more than twenty-five years Farm and Ranch has taught and showed the way toward diversification of crops in this entire region of the Southwest. In season and out of season (if possible) our pages have teemed with facts and arguments to show the unwisdom of the one-crop system, This place was raised against the onecrop idea of which so many of our people were possessed, when there was no one else to help in the campaign. Of recent years some others have come up and have stood on Farm and Ranch's platform, and have said in voices more or less clear, "Diversify." These have marked the success of the idea. The organization of the Farmers' Congress of Texas was a great concession to the wisdom of the policy for which Farm and Ranch had declared for these many

We are especially pleased to note the fact that the Texas Division of the Farmers' Union will now probably all, especially the coal we offer, and take some vigorous measures to encourage the production of those crops more of it received as heat than what that make for the independence of the farmer.

> Can they not go one step further and inaugurate a movement that will enable their membership, many of whom are tenants, to own homes of their own in the near future? This is fundamental.

> Home ownership must come before diversification. Our readers have all along known of our earnestness in pressing the matter of home-ownership upon the attention of the people of Texas and the Southwest. We have had a reason for doing so. That reason was, and is-Independence of the Farmer.

"The Man With the Hoe" will never grow these life-sustaining crops for his own use that our land so abundantly supplies unless he owns the land he tills. The renter cannot feed himself. He eats from the hand of the landlord.

We may resolve against the "mortgage system," against the "greed of the money lender," against the "landlord system," and declare in favor of diversification until the heavens fall, but these evils will not down for your outcry. These troubles all hang together and are a part and parcel of a pernicious system for which we are no more responsible than were our dead forefathers.-Farm and Ranch.

Then, again, every time you repeat the story of your misfortunes, your troubles, your trials, your failures, you etch the dark picture a little deeper in your own mind, make a little more real to you what you ought to erase forever. What cannot help us, what can only hinder, should be forgotten, discarded once for all.

Many people hang onto their old troubles; they cling to their sorrows and misfortunes, and their failures, their past sufferings, until they become a terrible drag, a clog, a fearful handicap to their progress.

The only thing to do with a bad happiness or sap your strength.

It is a good time to resolve that whatever has happened to you in the past, which has caused your unhappiness, which has disgraced you, which has made you think less of yourself, at once. The business has increased and made others think less of you, you to such an extent that two operators will drop it, you will not drag it through the door of the new year, that you will lock it out with the old year; that you will clean house, that you will to this city. only take with you the things which can brighten, cheer and help you.

Early Financial Legislation.

Washington Herald.

Senator Culberson has succeeded in frawing, from Mr. Aldrich, chairman the senate finance committee, a most encouraging statement as to the prospect of early financial legislation. Mr. Culberson urged the desirability of speedy action, and was disposed to be critical of the leisurely manner in which the finance committee was going about its work. Mr. Aldrich replied that the committee on finance was engaged in an inquiry into the operations the beasury and of the hanks during the late financial crisis, and that-

"The committee hopes to be able to report to the senate the facts of every nature bearing upon the financial crisis. The committee hopes to be able to report legislation which in its opinion will be helpful whenever these crises shall occur in the future, because experience in this and all other countries shows that periods of financial stringency do constantly recur at greater or less intervals.

"We may be able to do something to ameliorate conditions, and the committee on finance proposes to devote themselves to that task. I hope-and I believe I can assure the senate—that very early after the senate reassembles following the holiday recess, the committee will be ready to report a bill which, in their judgment, will relieve the situation and take care of similar situations in the future.

An administration organ asserts that the legislation Senator Aldrich has in mind is "a simple measure providing for the emergency currency to be issued by National banks, and so heavily taxed as to insure its issuance only in periods of considerable financial stringency and its retirement as soon as such periods have passed. ' A measure of this sort will fall far short of what the country might reasonably expect of congress, but its provisions are such as will meet with the least resistance in both senate and house, inasmuch as they do not alter the main features of our present currency system. IPit is good politics to accomplish as little as possible in the way of legislation at the session prior to a presidential election, then it is good politics to keep currency legislation down to the bare necessities of temporary relief. But is it not dominant party would strengthen its position if it were able to go before the country with a complete solution of our financial troubles? What has become of the boasted inherent capacity of the republican party to grapple with difficult problems of statesmanship that its leaders should propose to put off any real reform of the currency to some more convenient day?

We are wholly in sympalty with Mr. Culberson's view that the figancial sic uation calls for speedy action by congress if the remedy lies within its field of action. Mr. Aldrich, indeed, intimates that his proposed measure will relieve the existing situation. Notwithstanding the steady improvement that has taken place in monetary conditions all over the country, there is still pressing need of relief. Treasury funds are fied up in the banks, many of which have not resumed cash payments, at least not on a normal basis. Senator Tillman says there is little currency to be had in portions of the gonth havond clearing house certificates-a fact which easily expiains why the people of that region are sighing for greenbacks. In view of the actual conditions throughout the country there is good reason for asking why congress could not have passed so simple a bill as Senator Aldrich favors before the holiday recess. It is to be hoped effective action will not be long delayed after the reassembling of congress.

Almost anything can be sold by advertising. Down in Florida a man is getting rich by advertising five altigators. He sells them to merchants who put them in show windows to at tract attention. The day will come when farmers will advertise special products of their farms. One Wisconsin farmer has become famous in spite of his name by advertising Jones' Farm Sausages. They are good sausages, but it was only when he let their goodness be known through spending money in advertising to send four pounds by prepaid express for $1.90 that he built up a big business.
