BOTH PROPOSITIONS

PROHIBITION AND LOCAL OPTION WILL BE SUBMITTED AT PRIMARIES ON JULY 25th.

CONTEST WAS SPIRITED

Prohis Secure Adoption of Petition for State-wide Prohibition by a Vote of 20 to 6.

Special to the Times. Dallas, Tex., June 9.—At its meeting held in this city yesterday the Democratic State Executive Committee ordered that the following propositions be submitted to the voters in the primary election to be held on July 25th.

Prohibition Ticket.

For the submission by the Thirty-first Legislature of this State of a constitutional amendment to the people for their adoption or rejection providing within the State of Texas the manufacture, sale, gift, exchange and in any manner the shipment of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors and medicated beverages of containing intoxication, except for medicinal and sacramental purposes.

Local Option Ticket.

For the submission of local option and other legislative enactments for the restriction of the laws so as to prevent the manufacture or sale of intoxicating beverages in local option districts.

Against the foregoing.

For the submission of a constitutional amendment to the people for their adoption or rejection providing within the State of Texas the manufacture, sale, gift, exchange and in any manner the shipment of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors and medicated beverages of containing intoxication, except for medicinal and sacramental purposes.

Against the foregoing.

Both sides in the prohibition fight were well represented and made a lively but good humored fight from start to finish. The formal submission of the State-wide petition was by Senator P. Strong, chairman of the committee on that side, and the local option petition was presented to the committee by John L. Wortham, chairman on the other side. The first was said to have something over 44,000 signatures and the latter was claimed to have appended more than 50,000 with about 5,000 others on the way.

Confusing Voters Charged.

The State-wide people flatly contend that the committee had no option in the matter of granting their petition. They said they had complied in every respect with the law and that all left to the committee to do was to grant or reject it, as the law provided must be done. Furthermore, they opposed the petition presented by the other side, attacking it on the ground that it was illegal in that it did not call for the submission of the proposition to the people and asserting further that it could be of no good purpose and was designed to confuse the voters.

Contentions were combated in various ways.

The contentions were combated in various ways. The local optionists made the first proposition that the committee had no option, and quoted extracts from various laws in support of their view. As for their own proposition, they declared that it was legal in every respect, that it fulfilled the exigencies of the situation and that if submitted it could in no way confuse the voters. Turning to the constitutionality of the law itself, then proceeding to attack its constitutionality, Judge and in particular contended that it was contrary to the organic law of this State in that some of its provisions were opposed to the guarantees made in the State bill of rights.

"Saloon or No Saloon."

The discussion seemed almost interminable, but it was ended here by an oral passage at arms between the contenders, a notable one being the one between Senator Edwards and Senator Looney. Committee member Edwards of Tyler, who announced during the course of the afternoon that he proposed to vote in favor of the submission of State-wide prohibition, although he intended to vote against the issue when he went to the polls, added interest to the proceedings when he offered a resolution calling for the submission of the question of "saloon or no saloon." He argued that the committee had a perfect right to present this issue without the support of a petition signed by ten percent of the qualified voters in the party. Edwards' resolution was voted down, however.

The prohibitionists remained firm and finally secured the adoption of their petition by a vote of 20 yeas to 6 noes. Then, after a spirited fight against it, the local option petition was granted by a vote of 15 yeas to 11 noes. In explanation of this last vote it should be stated that many of the local optionists voted against their own petition, having finally taken a position which was well expressed in the words of Mr. Gregg:

"In the first place, I am thoroughly convinced that this whole proceeding is illegal. In the second place, I don't want to enroll this State in another campaign."

The meeting was rather slimly attended, only sixteen of the thirty-one members being in attendance. However, these sixteen held ten proxies, so business was transacted with regularity, a proxy being a well established rule to permit the use of proxies.

LOUISIANA FACTIONS ALLOWED TO SPLIT VOTE.

By Associated Press. Chicago, Ill., June 9.—It has been agreed by the members of the republican national committee to seat both delegations from Louisiana, allowing each delegate half a vote.

MEN SMOKE THROUGH SERMON ON LAWN

New York, June 8.—Governor Fort of New Jersey was the principal speaker at a smoking service held on the lawn of the Hyde Park Reformed church at East Orange, N. J., last night. More than 500 men, most of whom availed themselves of the permission to smoke during the service, attended. The pastor of the church, Rev. F. B. Pulliam, in announcing further gatherings of like character, said that the services were not held in a striving for sensationalism, but in the belief that "common sense and religion can go hand in hand."

The services were held on the lawn instead of in the church to promote comfort during the warm weather. Men would smoke if they were not in church, he said, "and there is no reason that, being on the lawn of the church, they should not smoke if they like."

Many automobile parties attended the services. Governor Fort, speaking on the subject, "The Real Meaning of Life in View of Eternity," urged his hearers to do everything in their power to develop not only their own characters, but the characters of others.

One of the biggest real estate deals for some months to take place in Fort Worth was announced Monday by Temple & Modlin, who made the trade. The transfer consists of two pieces of property with an aggregate value of about $17,000.

Two hundred feet at Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street, owned by Major K. M. Van Zandt, and a hundred feet adjoining owned by J. N. Clements, was purchased by Guy L. Waggoner, who anticipates the erection of a very fine residence—Fort Worth Telegram.

IN RACE TO THE FINISH.

Speaker Cannon Says He Will Be Candidate Until They Stop Voting. Chicago, Ill., June 9.—Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, arrived in Chicago today from his home at Danville, Ill., and declared himself a candidate for president of the United States "until they stop voting or elect some one else."

REUNION HAS OPENED

GREAT CROWD IN BIRMINGHAM HIPPODROME AT OPENING OF U. C. V. REUNION.

VETERANS IN GRAY CHEER

While Chorus of 2,000 Children Sing the Songs of the Southland—Scene Will Long be Remembered.

By Associated Press. Birmingham, Ala., June 9.—A grand and enthusiastic, before 5,000 people on the lower floor, and at least 2,000 in the galleries of the Birmingham Hippodrome, the eighteenth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans was called to order at 10 o'clock today by Major General George Harrison, commanding the Alabama division of the Confederate Veterans.

The invocation was delivered by Rev. William Jones, chaplain general. A children's chorus followed, two hundred children being accompanied by the reunion band, rendering Southern airs, while the veterans cheered.

General Harrison, on the stage, was surrounded by Generals Cabell of Texas, Evans of Georgia, Tyler and other prominent officers and representatives of the local Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Daughters of the Confederacy, and the local citizens' committee and band and children's chorus.

The scene presented a picture long to be remembered by those who witnessed it. The program included, in addition to General Harrison's address, an address of welcome by Guy Comer in behalf of the State and by Mayor Ward of Birmingham, a welcome in behalf of the Veterans by Brigadier General Bush, an address in behalf of the Sons of Veterans by Gen. Rufus Rhodes, an address on behalf of the Alabama Daughters of the Confederacy by Mrs. Charles Brown and the reading of the address of General Stephen D. Lee, an address turning over the Hippodrome to General Cabell by the chairman of the local executive committee and a response by General Cabell. The addresses were interspersed with music.

Subsidiary Organizations Hold Conventions.

The annual reunion of the Sons of Confederate Veterans will begin at the Gaiety theatre today. General Apperson of Memphis presiding.

The ninth annual convention of the Confederate Southern Memorial Association began today at the city hall and the Surgeons of the Confederate Army began their convention in the commercial club rooms.

Tennessee has the largest delegation here save perhaps Alabama. General Evans of Georgia, General Gordon of Tennessee and General Cabell of Texas are mentioned for commander in chief. Atlanta, Memphis and Chattanooga are working for the next reunion.

At their regular meeting tonight the Wichita Falls Lodge of Elks will initiate a number of candidates from Seymour.

James Boyd in Missouri made a hit at Majestic last night.

BAILEY'S ILLNESS; ALARMING RUMORS.

New York, June 8.—In the corridors of the Waldorf Astoria tonight those friends who should be acquainted with the condition of Senator Joseph W. Bailey were downcast. They were without advice from the Bailey apartments and vague reports were in circulation, some even going so far as to intimate that the senator's illness was of a serious nature.

That the senator's illness has assumed a more serious aspect, however, seems to be the general belief, and this is lent to the various reports circulating by the fact that no one can get from the Bailey apartments any word of comfort. Messages are accepted for the Bailey family, but no response can be elicited. Instructions also have been issued that telephonic connection with the Bailey apartments be discontinued, and, as the local operator inadvertently admitted, "We cannot ring the senator's apartments. The bell might disturb him." An interview with the senator was denied with the statement that no visitor on any matter whatsoever would be received.

TEARS IN EVERY EYE

ADDRESS PREPARED BY LATE GEN. STEPHEN D. LEE READ AT U. C. V. REUNION.

WORDS SEEM PROPHETIC

"Do They Love Us Still in Dixie, Our Comrades on Other Shores Will Ask," the Closing Words.

By Associated Press. Birmingham, Ala., June 9.—At the reunion of the United Confederate Veterans in this city this morning an address prepared by General Stephen D. Lee, commander in chief of the organization, whose death occurred a few days ago, was read.

Following the death of General Lee, the closing words of the address seem prophetic and the eyes of every auditor in the vast assemblage brimmed with tears when the concluding sentence was read.

The address in full follows:

It is now fourteen years since the Confederate Veterans enjoyed the hospitality of this noble city. We remember gratefully the courtesy of our former unopposed welcome, but today we are ready to believe that Birmingham can surpass itself. Then there was with us the incomparable Gordon, soldier, statesman and orator, who, along with the valorous Longstreet and the gallant Wheeler, were Alabama's Paladins in the armies of the Confederacy. It was from Alabama that Yancy's voice, like a silver trumpet, called the South to arms, with an eloquence more potent than Clan Alpine's fiery cross. Alabama was the cradle of the Confederacy. Here was installed the provisional government of the new nation, and here by illustrious chief took the oath of office which no man but himself should ever take. At I from Alabama came the great admiral who flouted the stars and bars upon every sea, and single-handed swept the nation's commerce from the waves.

Since the war I have heard many of orators to Confederate Veterans. Our orators have been rich in arguments to demonstrate the correctness of states' rights views, and the soundness of the interpretation of the Constitution held by Southern statesmen. They have displayed the firm historic basis of our political faith. They have spoken in comforting words of unexpected beneficent results of the war, of the preservation of the rights of the States in the Union, of the discipline of adversity which prepared us to meet the terrible race problem with unflinching courage, indefatigable patience and united strength. They have taught us that the Lost Cause was not wholly lost, that the best fruits of the great conflict came to the South, when the master was freed from the slave, and the old icebergs of sectional hate were set adrift in the warm gulf stream of a new national patriotism.

Nevertheless it has not seemed the whole truth to me that the Confederate soldier went into battle to vindicate a constitutional argument. He went to war because he loved his people, because his country was invaded, because his heart was throbbing for his hearthstone. Here was the land which gave him birth. Here was the church spire where he had learned it was not all of life to live, or all of death to die. No hostile foot had ever trod this sacred ground except over his dead body. It was the prospect of invasion that made the border States with bleeding hearts try to cast their lot with the Confederacy. He who could have expected a Lee to do battle against Virginia, or a Hampton to draw his sword against South Carolina, has never learned the language of the human heart. Nothing but the most devoted love of country could have sustained the Confederate soldier in his unequal and terrible struggle.

Neither do I consider it necessary to find a reward for the Confederate soldier in unexpected good results of the great conflict. The reward of noble actions lies in the capacity to do them. The Confederate soldier who fought with unflinching courage has the reward of being a brave man. He who loved his country, has the reward of being a true patriot. He who faced the cannon's mouth for those he loved dearer than life had the reward of being a hero. He who was faithful unto death had the reward of a stainless

IF YOU TRY A WANT AD

Not as the last resort, but as the first means of getting what you want, you will save yourself much trouble and unnecessary worry.

A TIMES WANT AD BRINGS RESULTS

The Proper Adjective.
 At the close of a revival service in Philadelphia the minister of the church went down the aisle, according to his custom, to greet the strangers in the congregation. "I don't think you are a member of our church," said he to one as he warmly shook his hand. "No, sir," replied the stranger. "Well, you will not think me unduly curious if I ask to what denomination you belong?" asked the minister. "I suppose," responded the other, "I'm really what you might call a submerged Presbyterian." "A submerged Presbyterian?" exclaimed the minister. "I should be glad if you would explain." "Well, I was brought up a Presbyterian, my wife is a Methodist, my eldest daughter is a Baptist, my son is the organist at a Unitarian church, my second daughter sings in an Episcopal choir, and my youngest goes to a Congregational Sunday school." "But," said the minister, aghast, "you contribute doubtless to some church?" "Yes; I contribute to all of them," was the answer. "That's what submerges me."

Crows and Strings.
 It was proved centuries ago that a crow can count up to three and no more. I met a farmer once who said that his corn crop had not failed in twenty years owing to his habit of plowing his field. He explained that a crow will enter an angle formed by two strings stretched on poles. I illustrated this to some friends several years ago by sowing a small field corn for fodder, planting it by a

...one end to the other. Within the angles formed by the string not a blade of the young crop was touched, but close without them, at each end, the whole crop was demolished. A crow is a very wise bird, and this is an effective and cheap way of circumventing him.—New York Press.

Sign Language on the Curb.
 Any one would imagine all the curb brokers in Broad street were mutes. They use the sign language down there now to convey quotations and sales to their office boys and clerks who sit in the windows of the offices to catch the quotations. As a matter of fact, some of the brokers use the deaf and dumb alphabet, others use a distinct signaling code of their own, known only to the one single house and its representative. Even this, however, has to be changed now and then. The brokers possess a nimble wit, and they soon learn the secret signs of their competitors.—New York Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE HOUSEHOLD ICE CREAM

(By Emma E. Price, Supervisor of Domestic Science, San Antonio Schools.)

In the making of ice cream a little careful preparation of the materials and utensils used will do much to decrease the labor and will also improve the quality of the product. If eggs are used they should be fresh, the custard containing them should be cooked over hot water and strained before boiling so as to give a smooth velvety consistency; a little flour may be used instead of depending wholly upon eggs for thickening and a better flavor will be given.

Milk and cream should be heated in a double boiler, never directly over the fire. If in doubt about the purity of these articles they should be pasteurized. The scalding of the cream gives a finer grain as it prevents excessive swelling. Where a very small portion of cream is used it should not be heated, as it will be more in evidence if added after the milk is scalded. If whipped, the cream will be more apparent.

Flavoring must be added when the mixture is cold, being very volatile, it evaporates in a hot mixture; chocolate is an exception to this rule. Melt it over hot water, then add to it a little of the hot mixture, stir until it is very smooth, then add to it the whole quantity. Care is needed to prevent streaks. When fruit is used it must be crushed, rubbed through a sieve and sweetened if need be, then added to the cream when it has been frozen to a mush. Philadelphia ice cream should be used for a fountain where fruit is added.

Coloring in ice cream should be used very sparingly and only in delicate tints, a faint orange, delicate pink or a very pale green are permissible.

The usual allowance of sugar is one cup of sugar to each quart of liquid. The amount of flavoring needed will depend on the strength of the extract used. More flavoring is required in mixtures that are to be frozen than in those served warm or only cool.

Effect of Ices On Digestion.
 The process of digestion requires a certain warmth. If the temperature is lowered by the eating of very cold foods, the process is retarded and serious consequences may follow. For this reason ices are not advisable as desserts. They should at all times be eaten very slowly so as to avoid a rapid chilling of the stomach.

Freezing Mixture.
 For freezing the cream use one part coarse salt and three parts finely crushed ice. The cream freezes because its heat goes to the melting of the ice, salt makes the melting more for water. If fine salt and large pieces of ice are used the freezing process will be very slow. Freezing can only go on as the ice melts, therefore do not drain off the water from the freezer. In pouring it off, be careful not to tilt the bucket much at first, for fear of getting water in the cream.

When the ice is ready stop the opening in the freezer with a cork or paper. Put the freezer can in place, adjust the dasher and pour in the cream, having the can not more than three-fourths full, a scream expands as it freezes. Put on the lid and fasten the crank. Then put in the freezing mixture either in alternate layers of ice and salt or mix them together before putting them in. Turn the crank occasionally so as to have the packing solid. The ice and salt should come within an inch of the cream in the can. Increase by turning the crank until the cream seems thick, then turn more rapidly. About twenty minutes is needed for freezing. If turned too rapidly the grain will not be fine. When very stiff, wipe the lid carefully to remove the salt and open the can, take out the dasher and pack the cream firmly with a wooden opta-masher or a large spoon, replace the lid, stopping the opening with clean paper. Drain off the water and repack with ice and salt, cover all closed with a blanket and let it stand for at least an hour. A longer time is to be preferred. When ready to serve remove the can and wipe carefully with a clean cloth wrung out of cold water. Invert the can on the platter and the cream will slip out in a few moments. Have platter and serving plates cold.

Ice Cream Without a Freezer.
 A small quantity of cream may be frozen in a baking powder tin. Place it in a small bucket of salt and ice and turn it slowly, remove the lid occasionally and scrape the cream from the sides, stirring it well.

Moulding Ice Cream.
 Scald the moulds. When cool cover closely and pack in salt and ice till very cold, wipe carefully, then take it to the freezer and fill, packing firmly. When the mould is full cover with a piece of heavy muslin, one side of which has been spread with butter, place the unbuttered side next to the cream, put on the lid and bind a strip of muslin that has been dipped in melted butter about where it meets the mould, pack immediately in a mixture of one-half ice and one-half salt. Let it stand at least two hours, if to be

Twenty-Four Years

We have passed the 24th milestone in our existence as a Bank in Wichita Falls. This Bank having been organized May 15, 1884.

Twenty-four years ago Wichita Falls was a frontier town, with one railroad outlet via Ft. Worth. No farmers in the surrounding country, with practically no rural districts and surrounded by sheep and cattle ranches on all sides, and people looked upon the town as only a temporary stopping place.

The organizers of this Bank were among the first to foresee the future development of this country and today Wichita Falls is a bustling City of 10,000 people, with railroad outlets in seven different directions, rapidly forging to the front as the commercial metropolis of this section.

During this time we have grown from a beginning to a large and successful business.

We have endeavored to keep abreast of the times, providing for ourselves every modern advance and up-to-date system to facilitate our work, providing for our depositors every safeguard known for their protection and security.

We have given freely to every deserving enterprise contributed to every enterprise that would tend to improve or bring trade to our City.

We enjoy the confidence of the people of the community, and take this opportunity to thank our customers whose patronage has helped to make last year the largest and best in our history.

WE ARE HERE TO STAY.

kept a long time it would be well to re-pack at least once during the time. Remove by dipping the mould in a pan of cold water, wipe-dry and invert on a cold platter. Small brick moulds, with the cream in two colors, are very easy to manipulate and are attractive for many occasions. For these the first layer should be of the color desired on top when served.

Philadelphia Cream.

One quart thin cream or two-thirds cream and one-third milk, one cup of sugar. Scald the cream, add the sugar, stir until dissolved; cool, add any desired flavor and freeze.

For vanilla cream use one tablespoonful of vanilla extract; chocolate cream, add four squares of unsweetened chocolate according to directions above. This takes a cream very highly flavored with chocolate. Less may be used if desired. For strawberry cream crush two boxes of berries through a sieve, add one-half cup sugar. For peach ice cream use one and one-half cups of strained peach pulp slightly sweetened.

Plain Ice Cream.

Two cups milk, two cups cream or three cups of milk and one cup of cream, two eggs or three eggs. If only one cup of cream is used, one cup of sugar, two tablespoons flour. Mix the flour into a smooth paste with a very little of the cold milk, scald the remainder of the milk in a double boiler, add to it the flour paste and cook for ten minutes, stirring very frequently. Stir the eggs and sugar together, add to the milk and cook until the egg thickens, strain, cool, add any desired flavoring and the cream and freeze.

French Ice Cream.

Two cups milk, two cups cream, one cup sugar, six egg yolks, one teaspoon vanilla. Scald the milk, then add it gradually to the eggs and sugar which have been beaten together, return to the double boiler and cook until the egg thickens (do not let the water in the lower part of kettle boil), strain. Beat until partly cool. When cool flavor and freeze.

Nearly all the fields were dry enough today for the binders and from now on the farmers will work almost night and day until the wheat and oat crops are harvested. Several threshing outfits will start Monday.

Didn't Give Him a Chance.

"Say, ma," piped up little Johnny after the minister had finished his call and taken his departure, "when Mr. Meeker was here every time you stopped talkin' a minute he would start in to say somethin' an' git as fur every time as 'I dare say,' an' then you would start goin' ag'in an' talk a lot more, an' that is the way it kept on right along, an' the only thing he said all the time he was here was 'I dare say,' 'I dare say,' every few minutes."

"Well, what of it? I am not to blame for Mr. Meeker's paucity of ideas, am I?" demanded Johnny's mother, somewhat impatiently. "I dunno 'bout that," said Johnny doubtfully, as if not exactly sure what was meant by paucity of ideas, "but anyhow, ma, you orter give him a chance. When he started in with 'I dare say,' why didn't you keep quiet just once, ma, an' let him go ahead an' say what he was goin' to an' have it over with?"—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A Chapel on a Bridge.

At St. Ives, the little old Huntingdonshire town in which Oliver Cromwell lived for several years, there is a bridge spanning the lazily flowing Ouse, and on this bridge is a quaint building which at one time did duty as a chapel. The structure has been in existence for something like 500 years and was, according to local historians, originally employed as a beacon light-house. After that it was turned for a time into a hostel and eventually became an ordinary dwelling house. Some of the rooms in this curious building are below the level of the water in the river.

His Sorrow.

"You know that box of cigars you gave me on my birthday, dear?" said a man to his wife.

"Yes."

"Well, I took them down to the office, and some one stole them."

"I'm awfully sorry."

"So am I—for the thief!" was the cruel remark.

An Outsider.

Suitor—Your daughter, sir—well, er—that is—she told me to come to you—she says you—Pater—Quite so—I understand. Let's see, are you Mr. Bronson or Mr. Wibbles? Suitor—Why, I'm Mr. Hotchkiss.—Cleveland Leader.

Her Odd Way.

Giles—My wife is a queer woman. Miles—Indeed? Giles—Yes. Why, when she has occasion to drive a tack she uses a hammer instead of a hairbrush.—Chicago News.

Sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembering happier things.—Tennyson.

Cerebral Embolism.

Cerebral embolism, or the occlusion or plugging of an artery in the brain, causes sudden death. Growths or vegetations form on the valves of the heart. While attached they are harmless, but the instant one, large or small, becomes loosened and enters the rapid arterial current a very perilous condition obtains. The embolus, or plug, enters a vessel that becomes narrower and narrower and at last it is arrested and occludes or plugs the artery, thereby cutting off the blood supply. The force of the blood current back of the embolus keeps it at the seat of arrest. In brain cases the middle cerebral artery, at the base of the brain, is affected. Once lodged unconsciousness follows and soon death. Some of the symptoms resemble those of a true cerebral hemorrhage or apoplexy.—New York Herald.

A Quaint English Ceremony.

On the last day of each October the city solicitor of London, with an assistant, attends upon the royal remembrancer, when by proclamation "the tenants and occupiers of a piece of waste ground called the moors, in the county of Salop," are commanded to "come forth and do your service upon pain and peril that shall fall thereon." The solicitor chops in halves two fagots, one with a hatchet and the other with a billhook. Afterward comes the summons to the tenants, etc., of "a certain tenement with a forge" in the Strand, and the payment of six horse-shoes, with sixty-one shoe nails, by the solicitor. This forge has long ceased to be, and the same shoes and nails are used year after year, the shoes being at least two centuries old.

Wanted a Bargain.

One day a small Cincinnati boy came to a halt before a sign over a desk in the office of the express company. It gave the rate for money orders, and after studying it for a few minutes he walked up to the cashier and said boldly:

"I want a money order."

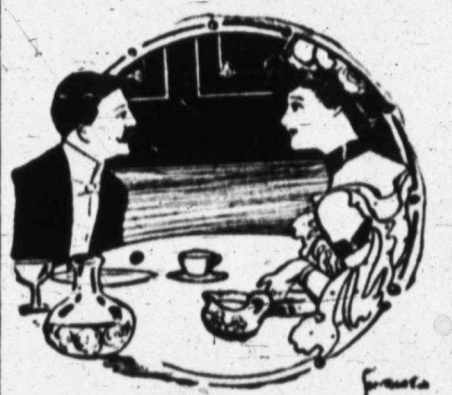

"How large a one, my boy?" the clerk inquired benignantly.

"Well, let's see," pondered the little fellow. "The rate for a ten dollar order is 8 cents, isn't it?"

"Yes; that's right."

"Well, I want a drum and pair of roller skates and a new straw hat and some candy. Ten dollars will be enough."

Then he fished through his pockets and triumphantly placed a nickel and three coppers before the astonished clerk. It took ten minutes to convince the youngster that nothing less than $10.08 could buy a money order for $10.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A number of cases of typhoid fever exist in Wichita Falls and new cases are being reported almost daily. Pools of stagnant water, the rank growth of weeds and other conditions resulting from the floods are said by the medical men to be very favorable for the fever to become an epidemic. Flies and mosquitoes, too, are very numerous, and combined with the hot, sultry weather, add more danger to the situation. Now is the time to begin to fight the fever, and under the intelligent supervision of the city and county authorities, the citizens should unite in a clean-up crusade and should emasculate some unsanitary conditions which now exist. The Times is not seeking to cause undue alarm, but believes, whether there is any immediate danger of an epidemic of typhoid fever or not, that a clean-up now will remove the causes of a possible epidemic later on, and, in any event, the town will have much better appearance and be much more attractive after the weeds are cut and malarious and reeking pools and other places cleaned out and thoroughly disinfected.

Flavoring Tobacco.

Nearly all tobaccos are doctored in various ways in order to suit the tastes of different consumers. Each manufacturer—even in Havana—has his own secret methods, handed down from father to son, which are regarded as perfectly legitimate and necessary in the preparation of the soothing weed. Salt-peter is added to the tobacco to make it burn well, licorice, honey, molasses and maple sugar to give sweetness to it for the special benefit of chewers and ruin to make it keep well and preserve its properties. Nearly every plant which will afford a perfume is used in the preparation of what are known as "fancy" tobaccos. But it is not true, as some suppose, that opium and deleterious drugs are employed, save in a few brands of imported Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes. Among the flavors used are coffee, tea, valerian, lemon, orange, geranium, sassafras, thyme, anise, nut and cinnamon. Gum and glycerin are occasionally employed to bind the tobacco particles so that they shall not crumble into dust. The various ingredients are made into a kind of sauce, into which the tobacco leaves are dipped or with which they are sprinkled.—London Answers.

The Armenians.

The history of Armenia is not cheerful reading. With the exception of occasional brief periods, the Armenians have been almost continually under some foreign rule. Assyrians, Babylonians, Medes, Persians, Macedonians, Romans, Partians, Saracens, Mongols and Turks have each in turn dominated the country, and of all these successive foreign yokes the present one, that of the Turks, has been the longest and the heaviest. The highest activities of the Armenian people today are not to be found in Armenia proper, but rather in the marts of prominent cities the world over. This is especially noticeable in Constantinople, Smyrna and other cities of the Levant, where the marked aptitude of the Armenian in business enables him practically to dominate the commercial situation. One example is the oriental rug trade, which is practically controlled by Armenians not only in the east itself, but also in many western countries.—Argonaut.

Hoyle.

Hoyle was not really the inventor of whist, although often so stated to be, but he was the first who introduced scientific whist to the public. A recent authority says that very little is known of Hoyle's personal history except that he was a barrister by profession and held the post of registrar of the prerogative in Ireland. He was born in 1767 and died in Cavendish square in 1807 at the advanced age of ninety-seven years. He received the sum of £1,000 from his publisher for his treatise on whist, which ran through five editions in one year and was extensively pirated. Hoyle is said to have given lessons in whist at a guinea a lesson. One of his great points was the calculation of probabilities at various stages of the rubber. This at first was deemed so important in guiding players that a famous mathematician used to frequent the coffee houses (the old substitute for the modern clubs) and give his opinion on the state of the odds at any stage in a game of whist in return for a small fee from the players.—Glasgow Times.

Crossing the Ocean.

The following bits of conversation may be heard several thousand times each day:

"I think those people down in the steerage have a much better time than we do. But don't they look just like so many animals?"

"Don't those clouds over there look just like land?"

"Somebody said we aren't far from an iceberg, but I don't know whether it's so or not. You hear so many false reports on shipboard."

"Have you met the captain yet? I hope you didn't ask him any foolish questions, poor man!"

"No; I haven't seen a whale yet, but there were lots of porpoises around the ship today."

"Who is that man? I haven't seen him before. He must have come on board during the night." (Always funny.)

"Did the postman bring you anything this morning?" (Sure of a howl.)

"Is this your first trip to Europe? My, but you have a treat in store!"—Princeton Tiger.

As Arranged For Older Children.

Miss Mary was the possessor of a diminutive and immature specimen of the Ovis aires, a wool bearing and ruminant quadruped, whose flesh is highly esteemed by persons to whose gustatory organs its flavor is agreeable.

The shaggy and agglomerated filaments constituting in their collective capacity its natural outer covering, integument or garment presented to the vision a surface absolutely etiolated and albid and rivaling in immaculateness the lustrous mantle of crystallized vapor that commonly characterizes the winter landscape.

And to whatsoever locality, contiguous or remote, whither Mary's vagrant fancy, the call of duty or, perchance, the parental mandate impelled her, when not otherwise engaged, to betake herself, this juvenescent representative of the genus Ovis aires, with a fidelity remarkable in one so immature and inexperienced, could be counted upon with absolute and entire certainty to accompany her.—Chicago Tribune.

Fortune For Forgers.

The last person to suffer death for forgery in London was a Thomas Maynard, who was executed on Dec. 31, 1829. It was not, however, until 1832 that the death penalty for the crime was replaced by transportation, though even then an exception was made in the case of forging or altering a will. This exception was not removed from the statute book until 1837. In the days of good Queen Bess a forger of deeds was very severely dealt with. He had to stand in the pillory; his ears were cut off, his nose slit, and he was branded with hot irons. If he survived these ordeals he was doomed to imprisonment for the rest of his days, and everything he possessed in the world was forfeited to the crown. Surely death would have been far more merciful.

Waifs Who Became Famous.

The list of waifs who have become famous, says the Delimitator, is a long one. It includes Sir Henry Stanley, Queen Catherine the Good, Alexander Hamilton, Rosa Bonheur, Edgar Allan Poe, Rachel, Leonardo da Vinci and dates back as far as Moses. All these were homeless children—children who if left to their fate would undoubtedly have drifted into evil ways. Instead they have lived to add glory to their names and have contributed to the knowledge of the world at large through the fruits of their genius.

Smartness.

Do not be "smart." Whenever you see any of your mates showing signs of "smartness" in his work, his talk or his play take him by the hand, or both hands, or by the back of the neck. If necessary, and lovingly, playfully, but firmly, lead him to a knowledge of higher and more interesting things. In these words of Mr. Kipling is presented the gospel of real life, of common sense and of universal experience.—New York Outlook.

Disease and Remedies.

It is almost a truism among physicians that the intractability of a disease may be measured by the number of "infallible" remedies for it which from time to time have been recommended.—London Times.

Sociologist Defined.

"Uncle Henry, what is a sociologist?" "A sociologist, my boy, is a person who can inspect a garbage can and find enough material in it for a long lecture on the needs of society."—Chicago Tribune.

What Will Be Done This Week.

With the approach of the meeting of the republican national convention at Chicago, politics will have a place well in the foreground in this week's news events. The republican national committee will continue to hear the arguments of the contesting delegations in Chicago during the week and by Saturday the majority of the delegates who will participate in the national gathering will be well on their way to the convention city.

During the week five conventions to select delegates to the democratic national convention at Denver will be held. The Montana State convention will be held in Bozeman on Wednesday and on the same day the New Mexico Territorial convention will meet in Roswell. Thursday Virginia democrats will meet in State convention at Roanoke and Kentuckians will gather for a similar purpose at Lexington. The Utah democrats will meet at Salt Lake City Friday.

A meeting in New York preliminary to forming a national currency association under the terms of the new Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency law, the departure of the battleships Alabama and Maine from San Francisco on their cruise to Hampton Roads, the torpedoing of the monitor Florida, developments in the Persian situation and the meeting of King Edward and Emperor Nicholas are on the week's program of news events.

On Tuesday will begin the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans at Birmingham, Alabama.

American Ambassador Tower at Berlin will present his letters of recall from that post to Emperor William on Monday. His successor, David Jayne Hill, will present his credentials to the German government later in the month.

Governor Magoon of Cuba expects to sail for Colon on Saturday to act as referee in the arbitration of the Panama claims against the United States.

Sacrificed for the benefit of naval construction, the monitor Florida, shot two weeks ago with the heaviest naval guns, will on Saturday, June 13th, be punctured beneath her water line by the most powerful American Whitehead torpedo. The torpedo is to be sent into the Florida that it may be definitely known whether a water-tight hullhead, especially constructed with a filler, designed with all the most modern ideas of construction, can be depended upon to save a ship from this dangerous method of attack.

The local ball team has about closed arrangements with Frederick, Okla., for a series of games at that place, beginning on next Monday.

This is one of the rules of the postoffice department in force in all cities which have free mail delivery. The change may result in some letters being returned to the senders or the recipient having to pay the additional postage of one cent at the start, but a few mistakes of this kind will soon remind those mailing letters of the new rule.

honor. What other course could a Southerner have taken?

Behind him were the great traditions of his English race--there were Hastings and Cressy and Agincourt, there were Naseby, Blenheim and Quebec, there were King's Mountain and Valley Forge. In his veins flowed the blood of a thousand years of chivalry. He could face the lines of fire, but not the shame of standing back.

All merit comes from facing the unequal.

All glory comes from daring to begin.

Fame loves the State.

That reckless of the sequel,

Fights long and well, whether it los or win.

"If it might be imagined," said Seneca, "that the Almighty should take off his thought from the care of his whole work, what more glorious spectacle could he reflect upon than a valiant man struggling with adverse fortune?"

Not long ago I read from an English review these words:

"When all is done that man could do and all is done in vain, the human heart goes out to the weaker side, to the soldier who fought on ragged and starving to the bitter end, to the leaders who would never admit that hope was lost, and to the noble women of the South who gave their bravest and their best without a murmur."

States are not great, except as men shall make them.

Men are not great, except they do and dare.

These men fell bleeding and with broken swords before the altar of their country. Their reward was the imperishable knightship of their service. I imagine that the Knights of the Holy Grail never sought other reward than just to serve. The Confederate soldier was the flower of noble and heroic courage. Duty laid her kiss upon his brow, and Love of Country folded him in her arms. He enriched the world in honor. He added to the spiritual riches of mankind. The memory of his deeds is the treasure of his people, incorruptible, undefiled and that fadeeth not away. No noble action is ever lost, no brave deed shall ever pass away. They are written upon the everlasting pages of the Universe, they are inscribed upon the heart of God. The mountains and hills shall be made low, and there shall be no more sea, but nothing of moral worth shall perish. Upon the coral of such lives as these, God's islands lift

"Their fronded palms in air."

But if religion were superstition, and faith were folly, if death ends all and by night awaits the world, these men lived the only life fit to be lived.

To those who keep alive in loyal hearts the memory of the Confederate dead, I would say, these men chose the noblest part. This is the best life offers any man, to strive for the highest, the greatest, the bravest he knows. Is it not better to achieve these things, even at the cost of life itself, than to purchase length of days by mean and sordid living, by cowardice or craft, by surrender of the fine ideals of manhood in base compliance to dishonor? In the hearts of every man the Everlasting has made answer. If the cause was lost the men were not. Looking beyond the little span of human life, into the white light of eternity, what better could we have wished for the Confederate soldier than to have played his part as he did? He has left heroic memories that chasten and purify the hearts of all who have come after him. He has lifted life above the low level of the commonplace into the realm of precious and immutable things, into the great spiritual realities which abide above all change, beyond the reach of years.

The story of the dying Sidney, who gave his glass of water to a wounded soldier, saying: "Thy necessity is greater than mine," is one of the fine memories of the English race. I would that the pen of Milton or Gibbon were mine that I might place beside it the story of Pat Cleburne at Franklin as he drew off his boots to place them on the bleeding feet of a comrade and then rode on to lead the fatal charge. He fell upon the breastworks, saying, "I'm killed, boys; but fight it out."

Far out on the crest of the battle

Up, up toward death--

"To die for one's country is sweet,"

he remembered.

And then, out of breath

Met the shock and the pain and terror

Unflinching and knew

In one instant's unbearable brightness It was true. It was true.

Of him it might also have been written:

With hearts that beat a charge, he fell Forward, as fits a man,

But the high soul burns on to light men's feet

Where death for noble ends makes dying sweet.

The old masterful type of the Southern statesman passed away with slavery. Whatever may be said of that institution, it trained men for leadership and government. The constant presence of the bondman wrought in the master a love of freedom and a sense of honor that will never be surpassed. Wonderful men those old Southerners were. Great in counsel, great in battle, but greater than all in the integrity which felt dishonor like a wound. They would have fallen upon the sordid plunderers which in later times infested public life like Elijah upon the prophets of Baal. I cherish the hope that our Southern blood will produce the type again; that with renewed prosperity we will again introduce into public life a class of men able and willing to devote themselves with pure and unwavering fidelity to the public service, and free from the all-absorbing struggle for bread, which has been the portion of Southern men for so many years. May it be the lot of our children to perform the duty of freemen in a republic, with as willing hearts as ours, but at no such fearful cost.

The reason why I have this hope that the old time Southerner shall live once more is because the Southern boys and girls love and cherish the deeds of their ancestors. They do not forget. The ideals of the fathers are real to the sons. The homage these young men pay to our old Confederates is sweet to our declining years, but sweetest of all because it bespeaks a love for the dreams which we cherished and a willingness to die for them if need be.

The story is told of Bertrand du Guesclin, the national hero of France, that just before his death he succeeded in the reduction of a fortress. The commander refused to surrender to any but du Guesclin himself. So the body of the great leader was laid upon his bier, and the stern defender gave his fortress keys into the hands of the dead. There have been brave soldiers and pure statesmen since the days of the Sixties; brave soldiers, too, as none better than Alabama knows; but the keys of our Southern hearts were laid long ago in the hands of Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis.

These two great souls before they passed from us gave us the same counsel. They advised us to accept loyally the results of the war, and to devote ourselves to the rebuilding of our wasted country. That counsel was accepted. The Confederate soldier has given to the government at Washington the same faithful support which he gave to the government at Richmond. His patriotism has expanded its boundaries without losing its quality. He yields to no man in his love of the whole country and his devotion to her cause. In the war with Spain, he gave proof that his sword was not asleep. It is all his country wherever the flag floats, which his ancestors filled with stars. That he has rebuilt the prosperity of the South; that he has restored the commercial majesty of this glorious land; this great city is witness. The brain of a Confederate soldier conceived it, and the hands of Confederate soldiers have been busy in its work. They served their country in peace as in war. They point their children to the busy, happy prosperous land, beautiful as the dawn, strong in developing resources, rich in promise of all that makes a state, and say, "Behold our greatest victory."

"They loved their land

With love far brought

From out the stories past, and used

Within Present, but transferred Through future time by power of thought."

We old soldiers are sitting in the twilight of life waiting for the evening angel; waiting for the shining angel

"With things

Like chevrons on his wings."

We are the stragglers in the great march. The victory is already won, and our comrades expect our coming to share the glory of their triumph. In the little time left us before we report to our Great Commander, let us acquit ourselves like men. When the pale sergeant comes, we shall listen for voices in the upper air, saying, "Welcome, Comrade. Do they love us still in Dixie?"

Riding an Ostrich.

"I don't believe the stories told about the natives in Africa and Australia riding ostriches," said a Californian who gives riding lessons in a New York riding academy. "and I saw this pretty well tried on one occasion in my state. A cowboy who had vanquished every pony he ever undertook to break in was induced to try an ostrich. After an hour's hard work he succeeded in mounting the bird, which at first tried to shake and roll him off, but these tactics of course had no effect upon the cowboy. Then in spite of all the man could do the ostrich succeeded in getting its head around and seizing the rider by the calf of one leg. Finally the man, after much frantic kicking got his leg free. He then doubled his feet under him, and the ostrich reached over his wings and got a good fast hold on the man's back, throwing him heavily to the ground and trampling on him. It took three of us to chase the infuriated ostrich away, and we accomplished it barely in time to save the man's life. That's why I don't believe the native Australians can ride ostriches."--New York Press.

Mars as Prophet.

Study of Mars proves that planet to occupy earthwise in some sort the post of prophet, for in addition to the side lights it throws upon our past it is by way of foretelling our future. It enables us to no mean extent to foresee what eventually will overtake the earth in process of time, inasmuch as from a scrutiny of Mars coming events cast not their shadows, but their light, before.

It is the planet's size that fits it thus for the role of seer. Its smaller bulk has caused it to age quicker than our earth, and in consequence it has long since passed through that stage of its planetary career which the earth at present is experiencing and has advanced to a further one, to which in time the earth itself must come if it be not overwhelmed beforehand by other catastrophe. In detail of course no two planets of different initial mass repeat each other's evolutionary history, but in a general way they severally follow something of the same road.--Percival Lowell in Century.

Why the Tables Are Green.

"Billiards is one of the oldest games I know of," said a sporting man. "It is older even than croquet, which was played by French kings a great many hundred years ago. But, while billiards is so old, I'll bet none of the devotees of the ivory and the cue can tell me why a billiard table covering is green. Well, the answer is simple enough. Billiards is merely a corruption of the good old English game of bowls, which was played on a beautifully green lawn. On rainy and winter days, however, your English sportsman couldn't enjoy his bowls, so some clever Johnny conceived the scheme of playing bowls indoors on his imitation green lawn. It was too much of a cinch, however, playing this game with the hand in such close quarters, so the cue was introduced to put skill at a premium. That's why billiard tables are green."--Philadelphia Record.

Diving For Fish.

A unique method of fishing is employed by natives along the Panlung river. Two dugout boats are employed about thirty feet long, with two men with long poles, one in the bow, the other at the stern pointing the boat along. They stretch a long rope made of bamboo and plaited grass about a hundred yards long and weighted about every ten yards with big stones. This they let down into the water, and the fish are frightened toward the bank. The divers then jump in three at a time, remaining down about twenty seconds. They carry gaffs about eighteen inches long and fishhooks with cords attached. When they strike a fish they let go the gaff, and the fish is hauled up in the boat. A big fire is lighted on the river bank, and the men warm themselves before it when not diving.--Rangoon Gazette.

There's a Hare In the Moon.

Equally famous with the man in the moon and the woman in the moon is the hare in the moon, says Garrett P. Serviss in his "Astronomy With the Naked Eye." The original is a Buddhist legend. The god Sakkria, disguised as a Brahman, pretended to be starving and went to the animals for help. The monkey got him a bunch of mangoes; the coot picked up a fisherman's neglected string for him; the fox stole him a pot of milk. At last the god approached the hare. "I have nothing but grass," said the hare, "and you can't eat that." "But your flesh is good," suggested the pretended Brahman. The hare assented. "Then," said the Brahman, "I'll kindle a fire at the foot of this rock, and you jump off into it. That'll save me the trouble of killing you." The hare assented again, but as he leaped from the rock the god caught him in his arms and then drew his figure in the moon as a perpetual reminder of the excellence of self sacrifice.

TWO STATE RANGERS SENT TO LONGVIEW

Austin, Tex., June 8.—The governor today received a telegram from the county judge of Gregg county conveying the information that two negroes had been shot at Longview and that at the time of sending the message the life of another was being threatened. The trouble arose over a dispute concerning a yearling.

Advised of the situation, Adjutant General Phelps immediately dispatched two rangers to Longview. The rangers left at 4 o'clock this afternoon and will reach Longview after midnight.

Longview, Tex., June 8.—Most exciting incidents since the two bank robberies here occurred today when two negroes were shot down in the public square and streets at 11 a. m. Jake Furry received a bullet through his jaw, and Ike Furry was shot three times. Ike Furry was supposed to be dead and was left in the lower part of the jail on a stretcher, from which he escaped and climbed the nine-foot jail yard fence before the county physician arrived to dress his wounds. He has not been captured. The negro was heard of five miles south of here, where he was reported to have entered a negro's house and secured a new double barreled shotgun and a large number of ball shells. A posse is after him and serious trouble is feared.

Trouble Began Last Saturday.
The trouble dates back to last Saturday when West Hope, Ike Killingsworth and J. H. Culver, all white men, were driving a bunch of cattle to the stock pens, when a yearling insisted on accompanying them and the stockmen agreed to let it go to the stock pens, only a mile further and then cut it out. Stopping at Ike Furry's to get a drink of water, the negro accused the stockmen of stealing his yearling. One of the stockmen knocked Furry down with a bottle. Furry and his brother secured a gun and the one with a weapon was only prevented from firing by one of the stockmen riding him down with his horse. The sheriff went out to arrest the Furrys and found them barricaded, but with assurance of protection they surrendered and were jailed.

Jump From Court House Window.
Today when they were in the court house arranging for bond, trouble started between Charles Ford and the stockmen, causing a great confusion. The negroes jumped out of the window, but were chased by officers.

Ike was captured in the center of the business section, but showed fight and pretended to pull a gun, when Deputy Sam Page shot him.

The chase for the other negro was through alleys and over gardens. Finally he was captured while attempting to enter the residence of City Attorney M. L. Cunningham, frightening Mrs. Cunningham and the cook. He was stopped by former Sheriff Sam Thrasher, who was unarmed. The negro came out into the street and when Sheriff Little rode up he attempted to draw a pistol and was about to succeed when J. H. Culver rode up and shot him.

All of the stockmen are highly respected and bond was given immediately.

It is understood that State rangers have been ordered here, but they will have nothing to do, as no further trouble is expected.

Those who use the classified or want columns of the Times are the best judges of the results obtained. One customer yesterday, who had inserted a "if" ad, ordered it out after only one insertion, saying that he had one house to rent and not a dozen, indicating that he had received that many responses. There are other evidences that go to convince the Times that no column in the paper is more generally read. If you have anything to dispose of worth having, or want to buy or rent something, let the people know it through the Times.
