REAL ESTATE VALUES
In this city do not "walk backward. There are not a dozen pieces of property in this city today that can be bought as cheaply as one year ago. In fact, there are not many pieces of property that could be purchased for the same price asked for them six months ago. Do you want to get in on the "rise"? If so, consult with us. We have a long list of choice city property to select from. BEAN & STONE.

ANY MAN
Who can see ahead a few years—even dimly—can make a real estate investment of a few hundred dollars the basis of a snug competency. The investment should be made wisely, under honest advice, and, of course, should not be delayed. We have listed with us a nice lot of choice city property, including the Jalonic estate. Let us persuade you that now is the time to buy. BEAN & STONE.

GETS ANOTHER TRIAL

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS TODAY REVERSED THE A. J. (DREW) SANDERS VERDICT.

ANOTHER TRIAL ORDERED

Sanders Was Well Known Here and Case Was One of Most Celebrated Ever Tried in This Section.

Mr. L. H. Mathis received today a telegram from Austin, stating that the A. J. (Drew) Sanders case had this day been reversed by the court of criminal appeals at Austin, and sent back for another trial.

This has been one of the most celebrated cases ever tried in this section of the State.

It will perhaps be recalled by our readers that early on the morning of August 20, 1906, the body of Miss Pearl Baxter was found by members of her family in a sorghum patch a short distance back of the Baxter homestead, situated about a mile west of Archer City. An empty bottle, having contained carbolic acid, was found on the ground near her hand and her lips and mouth showed she had died from the burn of the acid. A. J. (Drew) Sanders was shortly afterwards arrested, charged with her murder. At the time of his arrest Sanders was managing a farm or small ranch belonging to T. C. Thatcher, about a mile southeast of Archer City, but was fairly well known in Wichita Falls, having been a partner for a year or more with John Young in conducting the "Coney Island" restaurant here.

He was indicted for the murder of Miss Baxter by the grand jury of Archer county about October 1st, 1906, and upon a change of venue the case was transferred to Clay county. The trial of the case was commenced at Henrietta on November 19th, 1906, and lasted until the night of Nov. 28th, when the jury convicted Sanders and assessed his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for life.

Hon. Dayton Moses, district attorney of this State, and Hon. P. A. Martin of Graham, were employed to assist District Attorney Henry Allen in prosecuting Sanders. Hon. L. H. Mathis of this city conducted the defense of Sanders. Judge Carrigan did not conduct the trial of the case, but Judge J. W. Patterson of the Decatur district tried the case.

When the motion for a new trial had been overruled by Judge Patterson, an appeal was taken to the court of criminal appeals and on Jan. 23rd, 1907, (nearly seventeen months ago), Mr. Mathis argued the case on appeal before the appellate court at Dallas, and not until today has the case been decided. Sanders has been in confinement for a little over twenty-two months and lately his health has failed very perceptibly.

Mr. Mathis claims that very important testimony favorable to Sanders, has been discovered since the trial and has no doubt of Sanders' acquittal on another trial. An application for bond will be made in a few days, and Mr. Mathis thinks bond will be easily procured and Sanders will soon be at liberty.

"Lovers' Dance" Closes Today.
Lawton, Ok., June 23.—In order that she may choose a suitable helpmate herself, Lillian, the 16-year-old daughter of Abner Hozahue, a prominent member of the Apache prisoners of war, is tonight giving her "coming out" party, which will close at sunrise tomorrow morning with the "lovers' dance." Many hundred visiting Indians are taking an active part in the celebration of the "debut" into Indian society of the beautiful young redskin.

The Apaches, like all other Indians of the southwest country, are fast taking up the modes and ways of living of their white brothers, but in their "lovers' dance," the most weird and oldest customs, those used prior to old Geronimo's capture in 1886, are followed to the letter.

FORESTER AND SCHOOL TEACHER WERE MURDERED.
By Associated Press.
Manila, P. I., June 24.—A telegram received here today from Island Negroes tells of the murder of Government Forester Everett and T. R. Wakely, a school teacher, and four Filipinos by Hill tribesmen. No details of the murders were received.

FATALITIES IN TEHERAN NOT SO GREAT AS REPORTED.

By Associated Press.
London, Eng., June 24.—Private dispatches received here from Teheran say that only a small number of persons were killed during the fighting in that city yesterday and that the firing was confined to the neighborhood of the national assembly. The Shah was apparently master of the situation at Teheran.

Boy Falls From Wagon and Breaks His Arm.

Special to the Times.
Thornberry, Tex., June 24.—While riding to town on a wagon yesterday with Elbert Reed, Earl Stephenson, the little nephew of Joseph Stephenson, living at Thornberry, fell from the wagon, breaking his right forearm. The fracture was set within a short time after the accident and the young man is getting along nicely.

Claude Huddleston, the young man who suffered the loss of both of his limbs by falling under a flat car Sunday night, died yesterday afternoon and was buried here today. His relatives in Eastland were notified of his death and gave instructions to have the body interred here.

NO LICENSE FOR BARBERS

Special to the Times.
Austin, Tex., June 24.—The court of criminal appeals today declared unconstitutional the act of the Thirtieth legislature which regulates barbers. S. W. P. Jackson, a Dallas barber, was fined for failure to obtain license, but the court revoked his fine.

GOES TO PRISON PROTESTING THAT HE IS NOT WOLF.

By Associated Press.
Fort Worth, Tex., June 24.—Joe Wolf, the alleged murderer and highwayman, captured in Reno, Nev., recently, who declares his name is Hall, despite the marks of identification, was today taken to the Huntsville penitentiary by State Agent Brown. Wolf, while chained, protested against going and pleaded with passers-by to phone to a lawyer for help. He said he was being kidnapped.

Club Women Meet.

By Associated Press.
Boston, Mass., June 24.—The General Federation of Women's Clubs was called to order today, Mrs. Sarah Decker presiding. Reports of officers and committees consumed the forenoon session.

To the Baptist Sunday School.
Owing to the fact that the Wichita Falls and Northwestern could not furnish us with a train the picnic which was to have been held tomorrow (Thursday) has been postponed until next week.

E. W. MORRIS, Sup't.

The eleven-month old child of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Brown, living near Charlie, died early this morning. No particulars concerning the funeral could be learned.

ANTI-CAMPBELL FORCES ORGANIZE

Special to the Times.
Dallas, Tex., June 24.—The formal organization of the anti-Campbell forces will be perfected here tonight, when a large number of citizens will meet at the Williams rally at the city hall. Both Bailey and anti-Bailey men are included in the movement.

All new at Majestic tonight.

GROVER CLEVELAND IS DEAD

Death Came Like a Thunderbolt This Morning—Mrs. Cleveland at His Bedside—Funeral Friday.

EVENTS IN THE LIFE OF GROVER CLEVELAND.

Born at Caldwell, New Jersey, March 18, 1837.
Went to Buffalo in 1855, became chief clerk in law office and was admitted to the bar in 1859.
Was assistant district attorney of Erie county, New York, from 1863 to 1866, and was sheriff of same county from 1870 to 1873.
After term of office expired he practiced law and in 1881 was elected mayor Buffalo. His veto of extravagant appropriations directed attention to him and led to his nomination and election as governor of New York in 1882.
In 1884 he was elected president of the United States, over James G. Blaine by a majority of 37 electoral votes, but was defeated by Benjamin Harrison.
He then returned to the practice of law, locating in New York, but again in 1892 was re-elected over Harrison.
In 1896, on account of the declaration of the democratic platform, Mr. Cleveland withheld his support from the ticket and the platform.
He took up his residence, after his second retirement from the White House, at Princeton, New Jersey, where his death occurred this morning.

who had been watching his illness. Last night Dr. Bryant was called to attend Mr. Cleveland, but the patient afterwards stated that there was no occasion for alarm and that he was getting along nicely.
Mrs. Cleveland was the only member of the family at home when her husband's death occurred, the children being at their summer home at Tamworth, New Hampshire.

Statement of Physicians.

By Associated Press.
Princeton, N. J., June 24.—The following statement, signed by Drs. Bryant, Lockwood and Carnochen, concerning Mr. Cleveland's death, was given to the Associated Press:
"Mr. Cleveland for many years suffered from repeated attacks of the gastro intestinal organs. He also had a long standing organic disease of the heart and kidneys. Heart failure, complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and oedema were the immediate causes of his death."

Roosevelt Sends Message of Sympathy.

By Associated Press.
Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 24.—President Roosevelt will not attend the Yale-Harvard boat race at New London tomorrow, owing to the death of former President Cleveland.
The president has sent a message of condolence to Mrs. Cleveland and has expressed his intention of attending the funeral.

Capitol Flags Lowered to Half Mast.

Washington, D. C., June 24.—Secretary Cortelyou who is the senior cabinet officer in Washington at present.

GROVER CLEVELAND AS PRESIDENT IN 1888.

President Grover Stephen Cleveland died suddenly at his home here at 8:40 o'clock this morning.
Mr. Cleveland died in his bed on the second story front room.

Mrs. Cleveland and three physicians were at his bedside when the death messenger came.

It is believed that the terrific heat of the last few days contributed in a great degree to the death of Mr. Cleveland.

The scene in the bedroom immediately before and after the death of the distinguished patient cannot be recorded, as the physicians refuse to refer to the subject.

The passing of Mr. Cleveland was not immediately announced, but was delayed until the official statement was made by the physicians who had been in attendance upon him.

While he had been seriously ill from time to time, it is announced that his death came like a thunderbolt to those had notice sent him from Oyster Bay, instructing him to have all executive departments place the national flag at half mast.

It is probable that they will remain thus for a period of thirty days.

Children Receive News of Death.

By Associated Press.
Tamworth, N. H., June 24.—Mrs. Perrine, the mother of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, received the news of the former president's death by long distance telephone today. It is believed that Mrs. Perrine and the children will leave for Princeton immediately.

Funeral Will Be Private.

Princeton, N. J., June 24.—The funeral of former President Grover Cleveland will be held Friday, June 26, at Westland, Mr. Cleveland's residence on Bayard Lane, Princeton, and will be strictly private.

VICE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE IS BETTER.

Special to the Times.
Cleveland, Ohio, June 24.—Early today the physicians in attendance upon James Sherman, who is lying ill at the Lakeside Hospital, reported the temperature of the patient at 100.35. Mr. Sherman fell into a sound sleep at 6 o'clock and when he awoke was reported as much improved.

ESTRANGED HUSBAND KILLS TWO PERSONS.

By Associated Press.
Springfield, Mo., June 24.—William Mulholland, a laborer, who had been estranged from his wife, last night entered the hotel where she was staying with her sister, Mrs. Sappington, and fired five shots, killing Mr. Sappington and seriously wounding Mrs. Sappington. Mrs. Mulholland escaped injury. Mulholland fled.

The Wichita Falls Gun Club has received an invitation from the Clarendon Gun Club to participate in the shoot at that place on July 3rd, and many of the members will attend.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN TRUNK

Houston, Tex., June 24.—A trunk was found floating in the bayou here today, which contained the body of a nude white woman, with marks on the body indicating that she had been choked to death. It was known that the trunk was yesterday sent to Harrisburg, where two men presented checks for it. The police followed the clues and later arrested C. R. Meadows of Fort Worth, charging him with wife murder. It is rumored that he has confessed.

GOVERNOR CAMPBELL SPEAKS AT QUANAH.

Before a large audience at Quanah yesterday Governor Campbell discussed the laws enacted by the last legislature in response to the platform demands. He defended the democratic party and its platform, discussed the tax laws at great length, and in the conclusion of his discussion of this subject asked all those who endorsed the new tax system and recognized that it was in the interest of the masses of the people to hold up their hands, and it appeared that every hand in the audience was raised.

Gov. Campbell discussed the anti-trust laws, and his statement that the law making it possible for the attorney general's department to go outside of the State, to Chicago, St. Louis, New York and other cities, to obtain evidence, had resulted in a fine of $1,600,000 and a judgment of ouster against that giant trust and criminal, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, was received with great enthusiasm. The governor's discussion of the anti-trust laws and of his policy for the future was along the same lines as his speech at Terrell.

The speech as a whole was well received. Enthusiastic applause followed his statement that if the people paid more taxes this year than they did last the commissioners courts were solely to be blamed for not reducing the tax rate under the automatic tax law.

In this connection Governor Campbell stated, in response to an inquiry from the audience, that if a man paid more tax in 1907 upon the same valuation than he did in 1906, it was because the commissioners court had failed to reduce the tax rate as provided for by law for increase in values, and that the taking of one cent from any individual or corporation more than was necessary for the administration of the government, honestly, and economically administered, was a crime.

CAN'T PAY POLL TAX FOR ANOTHER

Austin, Tex., June 24.—That section of the Terrell election law which prohibits the loaning of money to pay poll taxes, was today declared unconstitutional by the court of criminal appeals. The court had previously held this clause unconstitutional. This section is the most important of the entire act.

ANOTHER ROBBERY

L. F. MOORE OF GOREE OVERPOWERED BY THREE MEN AND HIS SAVINGS TAKEN.

THREE ARE UNDER ARREST

Attempt Made to Drive Victim From City But He Stays and Sticks to His Story.

The reputation of Wichita Falls as the harbor of a nest of robbers, pimps and gamblers has been sustained. After a week or so of comparative quiet, following a satiate condition resulting from a succession of robberies, the maw of the gang was again empty and with hungry appetites they set out to find prey.

A young man who gives his name as L. F. Moore and who says he came here a few days ago with a well filled purse from Goree, in Knox county, in search of work, was an easy victim, if his story is to be credited, and his money is now gone and he is penniless.

Late yesterday afternoon Moore, breathless from a long run, reached the city hall and reported to Officers Gwin and Randolph that three men had thrown him down at a secluded spot back of the Denver roundhouse and while one of them held him to the ground his two companions went through his pockets and took about $140 in cash, what remained of his earnings after listening to the "street noises" after his arrival here a few days ago.

Moore gave a description of the men to the officers and stated that he could identify them at sight. He accompanied the officers to the Mulberry Row district and at a resort kept by Lizzie Harris, a man was found whom Moore claimed was one of the men who helped to rob him. This man's name is said to be H. W. White, and when arrested $55 in money, fifteen pairs of dice, some of which had never been used, and several decks of cards were found in his possession.

At Legals' saloon Moore also pointed out another man whom he claimed was one of those who robbed him. The name of this man is said to be P. R. Rodgers and $60 in cash was found on his person.

Ed Wagoner was also arrested in connection with the robbery. Complaints charging robbery were filed against all three of the men arrested and they will be given a preliminary hearing before Justice Brothers this afternoon.

Following the arrest of the three men, Moore says that he was approached by another man who represented himself as an officer and who threatened his arrest if he didn't get out of town on the first train. The police are now searching for this man.

It is reported that one of the men arrested claims that his two companions won Moore's money—which he claimed to have been only $40—in a crap game. Moore stoutly denies this and says that he never gambled in his life.

He says that one of the men now under arrest, whom he had fallen in with, told him yesterday afternoon that he would help him find a job. The man took him to one party who offered him $20 per month, but the compensation was not satisfactory and the offer was declined. Moore says he then walked down the railroad track with his new friend and that near the roundhouse they were joined by two others, strangers to Moore.

The party then wandered in the direction of the lake and at the edge of the water there was a boat in which the three men attempted to induce Moore to embark, telling him that he was in danger of arrest, and that they would take him across the lake, where the officers could not find him.

Moore refused to get into the boat, so he claims, and upon his refusal to do so, was thrown down and robbed in the manner described.

CHARLES JEFFERSON, SON OF FAMOUS ACTOR, DEAD.

By Associated Press.
New York, June 24.—After an illness of several weeks, Charles R. Jefferson, former theatrical manager and the eldest son of Joseph Jefferson, died in St. Luke's hospital from a complication of stomach troubles. He was 57 years old and is survived by a wife and four daughters.

Is Like the Man From Missouri.

Editor Times:—
It strikes your correspondent that the subject under discussion is, "Does the government require more sidewalks than we have to insure general free delivery?" and not "Can we not lead the wayfarer man to believe just any old thing in order to get down more sidewalks?" We heartily wish that there was not a house in Wichita Falls without a sidewalk (and blessed be the man that keeps right behind property owners without cement walks). We also wish for trolley cars and some other things that it is quite possible to live without until we do get them; but until it is proven to the citizens here that we are not lawfully entitled to free delivery the chronic kickers and the untamed grumblers will still be in evidence.

It is certainly an unheard of state of affairs, and like the man from Missouri—we will have to be shown. We are loth to lay this evil at the door of our dear Uncle Samuel. We do not even dare to approach the nearest mail box with a letter to mail for fear of pressing an unseen button that might fling our letter back at us, while an unseen phonograph would shout, "Nay, nay, Pauline, you have not a sidewalk; therefore, take your old letter and walk on to the postoffice with it."

WHEN FOOD WAS SCARCE.

Prices That Ruled in Paris During the Siege of 1870.

The following interesting statement of the prices that were paid for food during the siege of 1870 is taken verbatim out of the Journal of a French officer stationed in Paris at the time:

"Toward the middle of October we had to make up our mind to sacrifice the animals of the zoological garden. The elephants and many other beasts were bought by M. Debos, the owner of the English meat shop in Av. Friedland. The meat of the elephants was sold from $10 to $12 a kilogram (two pounds), the trunk commanding the highest price, $16 a kilogram. The trunk and feet were both declared delicious by all gourmands. In the same shop a pair of young wolves were sold for $2.50 per pound. The meat was soft and without taste. The biggest price was paid for a young live lamb that had been swiped by a 'franchiseur' from the enemy. One hundred dollars was paid for it.

"Here is an exact price list of some victuals toward the end of the siege:

|--------------------------------|--------|
| Two pounds of horseflesh..... | $5.00 |
| One ham..... | 15.00 |
| A whole cat..... | 3.00 |
| A rabbit..... | 10.00 |
| One turkey..... | 20.00 |
| One egg..... | 1.00 |
| A rat..... | .50 |
| A pigeon..... | 1.00 |
| One pound of butter..... | 6.00 |
| A pound of beans..... | 1.50 |
| A peck of carrots..... | 2.00 |
| One cabbage head..... | 2.00 |
| One stick of celery..... | .50 |
| Wood to burn (100 pounds)..... | 2.00 |

"Even the rich had to live on the meagerest diet and to take into their menu things that till then only the trapper in the virgin forests was supposed to eat. I leave it to you to imagine what kind of meals were served in the small restaurants and boarding houses.

"Moreover, everybody had to submit to the strictest orders. People stood in file before the butcher and baker shops to wait for their turns. Each household was furnished with a card from the municipality authorizing the bearer to buy a certain amount of meat and bread. The cook, the housewife, the young girl, the little child (men never go shopping in France), were posted for hours before the shops in rain and snow, with wet feet, shivering with cold. The unfortunate ones endured without a murmur these hardships. Women throughout the time of the siege were setting an example of courage and self abnegation not always followed by men.

"It was a sad and touching spectacle, these long files of women, nearly all dressed in black, grouped before the doors of the dealers, watched by the national guard, with whom they at first were laughing and chatting, till the sufferings from the cold had silenced the laugh and sometimes brought forth the tears.

"But in spite of all precautions the stores one by one were exhausted, the provisions, put in too late before the siege, were used up, and, while the babies, deprived of milk, died in great numbers or, fed on sweet wine and bread, pined slowly away, the big people tried to find new resources to prolong their lives."

A MODERN MACAULAY.

Wonderful Memory of an Old Time Missouri Lawyer.

One of the most picturesque of the early lawyers of Missouri was Billy Campbell, who came from Virginia in 1829 and opened an office in St. Charles. He was a man of great ability, a classic scholar, an orator and a political writer of unusual power. But he was indolent, careless about collecting and spending money and so lazy that physical exertion of any kind was positively painful to him. He had a most remarkable memory, as proved by the following incident: Campbell, who was a Whig, represented his district in the state senate several years. On one occasion he was lying on a bench in the senate chamber, apparently sleeping, when the Democratic members came in to hold a caucus. They attempted to arouse him, but he appeared so soundly asleep that they decided to let him alone. The next day a complete report of the proceedings of the caucus, including a verbatim copy of the resolutions adopted, was published in the St. Louis Republican. A row followed, and the secretary was charged with having been bribed to report the proceedings of the caucus. After the excitement died down somewhat Campbell admitted that he had been awake all the time and that he had done the reportorial work entirely from memory.—Kansas City Star.

BIBLE AS HISTORY.

Its Reading is Necessary to Enlightenment.

Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D., of Chicago at the Interantional Sunday School convention in session at Louisville on last Friday evening said:

As history the Bible is unique. In it we trace the material universe back to its origin in God. In it we learn the origin of sin and crime and civilization.

If you would study the history of literature, you must know your Bible, for hundreds of thousands of volumes in our great libraries were written because the Bible exists. Theology, which is the science of God, the greatest science in the world, is unintelligible without the Bible; and archaeology, that fascinating science, which with its pick and shovel has unearthed the buried treasures of Egypt and Assyria, is inexplicable without the Bible.

The poet's corner cannot be appreciated without a knowledge of the Bible. It will be conceded by all lovers of poetry that among the greatest English speaking poets, are Shakespeare, Tennyson, Longfellow, and Browning, and a knowledge of the Bible is absolutely essential to the understanding of any one of them. They teem with Biblical allusions. Milton and much of Byron are sealed books to the man ignorant of the Bible. Indeed, if you would write poetry, you cannot become great if you ignore the great thoughts of God, infinity, eternity, life, love and immortality which the Bible contains. Take out of English literature the classic books that demand a knowledge of the Bible for their proper appreciation and you have blotted the sun out of the literary sky.

Would you study the history of art in sculpture and painting, you must be acquainted with the Bible, for the best paintings of the old masters and the finest statuary were inspired for the most part by scenes and ideals drawn from the Bible. You must remain ignorant of the genius of Raphael and Michael Angelo if you refuse to know the Bible, for the scenes and characters they depicted with brush and chisel were biblical. The paintings of Dore, Tissot and Sargent, modern master artists, cannot be understood without a knowledge of the Bible.

The great musicians, whose masterpieces have thrilled the souls of millions, cannot be interpreted and appreciated without a knowledge of the Bible. Handel's oratorios of the "Messiah," "Esther," "Saul," "Joshua," "Jephtha," and "Israel in Egypt," all of them masterpieces of musical composition, cannot be understood without a knowledge of the Bible. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," both the work of musical geniuses, are enigmas without biblical knowledge.

If you would know the history of education, from the little country school house to the great university, you cannot ignore the Bible, for these schools and universities were founded by men who read their Bibles and drank from its pages the love of knowledge as well as of virtue and religion. The Pilgrims and Puritans of New England built first the church and then the school house. Next came the college and the universities. The great universities of the Old World were founded and fostered by men whom the Bible inspired with the love of learning and made self-sacrificing enough to provide for the higher education of future generations.

The Bible in the hand and heart of the missionary has revolutionized the educational system of China and Japan, while it has transformed cannibal tribes into civilized communities. Charles Darham frankly confessed that it had done for the Terra del Fuegians what he thought was impossible. The study of great modern movements which have emancipated the human mind and given to millions civil and religious liberty compels us to take into account the Bible as the mightiest factor in bringing about these results.

KERN MIGHT ACCEPT.

Unable to Say if He Would Accept Vice Presidential Nomination.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 22.—John W. Kern, who was endorsed for the vice presidential nomination by the State democratic convention and whom it has been reported would not permit his name to be used in that connection, is quoted as follows:

"I don't want to be a candidate for any office, and I believe there is no reason why I should say anything beyond that. I don't apprehend any emergency will arise whereby I shall be called upon to make a more definite statement. Jersey Farm Creamery is Always Good

There is a reason why Jersey Farm Creamery Butter is always good. It is made from the milk of one herd of Jersey cows; it is churned daily by experienced dairymen; it is iced at the creamery and reaches us in perfect condition the night after being churned in the morning. We receive it three times each week. A trial will convince you of its superiority.

SIDEWALKS AND FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

Brownwood people, having no free delivery, are going to build sidewalks in the effort to secure what is coming to them. Like Brownwood, Denton was entitled on the receipts, to free delivery for nearly ten years before it was obtained, and it was not until the folks had built three or four miles of concrete walks did the inspector finally come across with the desired recommendation. At that, there are in Texas today towns whose sidewalks are worse than Denton's ever were, which, in fact, never had any sidewalks and yet have had free mail delivery for these many years. Unless the town has a political pull at work somewhere it seems to be the policy of the post-office department to keep free mail delivery from them just as long as it is possible.—Denton Record and Chronicle.

And speaking of pulls—it remains to be explained how Denton happened to have free mail delivery recommended with only three or four miles of cement sidewalks. While Wichita Falls, with its large postal receipts, had to wait until over twenty miles of cement walks were laid before the postoffice department recognized that the town was on the map. Of course, our tardy recognition had its compensations, for while Denton has only three carriers, Wichita Falls has four, and it can be stated with some degree of certainty that as soon as a few additional stretches of walks are built, this number will be increased to five and possibly six carriers.

The Times confesses to an utter lack of knowledge as to Uncle Sam's exact requirements in the sidewalk line, but one has only to read the communications which have appeared in the past few issues of this paper to suspect that several citizens not now served by mail carriers propose to get a direct ruling on the question in controversy.

RELATION OF GOOD ROADS AND BUSINESS.

Nearly every road coming into the city is reported to be in bad shape since the recent rains and floods, and in many places they are almost impassable for loaded wagons.

Such conditions at this season of the year cause a great inconvenience to the farmers, and will inevitably result in much produce which would naturally be brought here going to market at other points if the roads are not kept in better repair.

Every farmer and every merchant in Wichita County should be and is directly interested in the better roads question and the time has passed in Wichita County when a winding, unworked lane will come up to the needs and demands of the people.

Of course, it is realized that the damage done to the roads and bridges will require the expenditure of thousands of dollars and some time to repair, but we mistake the sentiment of the progressive citizenship of Wichita County if they are not ready to approve extraordinary measures on part of the county commissioners to meet the situation.

Clarence Ousley, editor of the Fort Worth Record, has written an open letter giving his reasons for supporting R. V. Davidson for attorney general in 1904 and why he is not supporting him for the same office in 1908. In this letter he makes the assertion that he was in Davidson's confidence and that he (Davidson) told him in 1904 that the railroad attorneys were supporting him for attorney general, and were raising some money for his campaign. Ousley then goes on to say that he urged Davidson to make it plain to these railroad attorneys that he recognized no obligation beyond a sense of friendly and personal appreciation, and Davidson replied: "Well, they know I will enforce the law, but they know I will not set the woods afire." Knowing his position in this matter in 1904, Mr. Ousley, the editor of an influential newspaper, supported Davidson with all the ability at his command. The question naturally arises, which of the two deserves to be condemned? As a friend to the people, and as an honest, upright newspaper man, it was the duty of Ousley to have withdrawn his support from Davidson at that time; but as he did not do so, his testimony of Davidson's perfidy must be given only such weight as it is entitled to under the circumstances. In fact, by making this exposure at this late date, Editor Ousley has placed himself on the same level as the Gruets. All he says may be true, but the public will demand that he furnish some corroborative testimony. Commenting on Mr. Ousley's exposure of Davidson, the Houston Post says: "Let Davidson deny if he will. The men who know Clarence Ousley and R. V. Davidson will not long halt in appraising their statement, for men who know Ousley know he tells the truth under all circumstances, and they will believe him." Yet it seems Mr. Ousley, according to his own statement, aided Davidson in deceiving the people of Texas in 1904 by keeping Davidson's secret, when had he made known at that time (1904) Davidson's alleged position toward railroad attorneys, he could not have been elected attorney general of Texas. Mr. Ousley does himself no credit at this late day in giving to the public secrets confided to him in 1904.

It is time those of our citizens who took the position that it would be to the best interests of Wichita Falls to have the open saloon rather than vote them out and have a local option law, that, in their judgment, could not be enforced, to reflect for a moment and see to what extent the proprietors of some liquor and beer joints are complying with the boasted Baskin-McGregor liquor law. The Times believes, candidly, that if this law was enforced, as it should be in Wichita Falls, at least half a dozen proprietors of liquor and beer joints in this city would be forced to give up their licenses and get out of business. They allow their places to be used as a rendezvous for tin-horn gamblers, foot-pads, hold-up men and pimps, who make it their business, apparently, to watch for a victim, and as soon as they think he is drunk enough, take him from the place where he has spent and in all probability made a display of his money to some secluded spot (generally in the Mulberry Row vicinity, which could more properly be termed Wichita Falls' Hell's Half Acre), and there relieve him of his wad. Sometimes they accomplish their dirty work without inflicting serious injury to their victims, but often they are left on the ground in an unconscious condition, until some one happens along and finds them. The Times understands well that, by the suppression of certain vices the city would lose a considerable amount of revenue, but it does not believe that it is right for the city to gain thrills from such a source. In taking this stand it recognizes full well that its position is in direct opposition to some very influential citizens, but believes the time for a general cleaning-up of Wichita Falls is at hand. The saloon man, who is conducting his business according to law can offer no objection to the weeding out of those in the business who are not conducting their places as provided by the Baskin-McGregor liquor law. It will be a protection to them, and the Times believes that many saloon men in this city will join heartily in the movement (should one be inaugurated), to suppress crime as outlined above.

AN ISLAND OF QUIET.
Yet Going Downtown in Madeira is an Exciting Event.
Madeira is populated, yet is one of the quietest as well as one of the most beautiful places in the world. Although the roads are paved with round beach stones, there is nothing to remind one of the fact, because, as David G. Fairchild, agricultural explorer of the department of agriculture, explains in the National Geographic Magazine, there are no horses or jolting wheels.
All vehicles in Madeira are on runners. If you go calling it is in a bullock sledge with canopy top and comfortable seats. If you move a bank safe or a steam boiler it is carried on a "stone boat," or sledge of poles, and you may have to get forty oxen to pull it. If you are in a villa on the hillside and want to get downtown you take a running car and slide down over the cobblestones.
Two strong men, each holding a guide rope, pull your car over a bag of wool to grease the runners and then give you a running shove and jump each on a runner behind as the car shoots down at a breakneck pace over the cobblestones.
The men yell, hens and dogs scamper, foot passengers cling close to the wall of the narrow street, the runners get hot and fill the air with odor of burning wood as you shoot round sharp corners, down the busy thoroughfare, past gorgeous mansions of flowering creepers which hang over the walls of the private villas that border your road.
But, oh, the change when you get to the bottom! You are obliged either to walk or take a carro, drawn by slow moving bullocks, squeaking and slipping over the stones.

MAKING A WILL.

If You Draw Up Your Own, Stick to the Most Simple Terms.

"If the people," said a lawyer, "who for whatever reason prefer to draw wills without resorting to legal advice would keep just one thing in mind a lot of trouble would be saved. It is nothing save insistence on simplicity. Simplicity is the main thing to make a will effective, and apparently it is the one thing that the will makers forget about. High sounding words and half remembered law phrases come to their minds, and into the documents these verbal extravagances go. There appears to be a popular impression that for example, to say 'I give and bequeath' is a stronger way of saying 'I give.' Again, take the matter of directions. Here a desire to be explicit frequently results in contradictions, and the longer a sentence in a will is the more likelihood there is of its being open to misinterpretation.

"No will should be drawn without at least a couple of drafts having been made of it, each one being gone over carefully with the idea of simplifying and clarifying it. Give the time to it that the importance of the action demands. Know what you want to do and study out the best way of expressing yourself. Don't put off making a will. I'm superstitious enough to consider that tempting fate. And when a will is drawn remember that it has no legal binding unless the signature is witnessed by two persons, who must themselves witness the document in the presence of the testator and each other."—New York Press.

A BROKEN CUP.

The Way a Queen Saved an Old Servant From Dismissal.

A charming story is told of the former queen regent of Holland, the mother of Queen Wilhelmina. The old king had bought a fine service of Sevres porcelain for the use of the royal family, and he gave orders that any servant who should break any piece of it should be punished by being instantly dismissed. One day a man who had been many years in the royal household confessed to the young queen that he had broken one of these Sevres cups. Queen Emma spoke comfortingly to him and suggested that he should mend the cup. That, said the man, would be useless, for the king would surely notice the cracks. Nevertheless the queen told him to mend the cup as neatly as possible and to be sure to give it to her that afternoon at tea time, when the king would be present. Tea time came, and the queen, after drinking from the mended cup, suddenly rose and let it fall to the floor. It was smashed to atoms.

"Think of me as one of the most awkward of your majesty's servants," she said humbly. "I have broken one of your precious Sevres cups. You must dismiss me at once. I don't deserve to be retained in your service." The arbitrary old king was highly amused at her demure manner and considered the matter a good joke. He never knew the true story of the broken cup.

Why Farmers Should Keep a Bank Account

Their bank deposit book affords them a complete record of their cash receipts, while the stubs of their check books are a perfect record of expenses and payments. Paying a laborer, a store account or any other bill with a bank check is much safer than with money; because you avoid the risk of handling the actual cash, and the endorsed check returned by the bank is the best kind of a receipt.

Farmers, try the experiment for one year of keeping a bank account and see if it does not pay you. A large number of the best farmers have accounts with us now we want

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

There are many women who prefer to make their own toilet articles rather than to buy them. They are skillful in the mixing of ingredients and arrive at very good results.

To them the following recipe for talcum powder, which is commended as harmless, and to be made at home, should be welcome.

Put four ounces of talcum powder in a glass jar and pour over it eight ounces of distilled vinegar. Let it stand for two weeks, shaking it daily; then filter it through coarse brown paper and wash the powder in distilled water. Filter it again until no taste of the vinegar remains.

Mix the powder, together with fifteen grammes of spermaceti, finely comminuted and three grains of carmine with sufficient violet water to make a paste. Put in open mouthed jars and cover with linen to protect it from dust while it dries.

Avoid Shower Baths on Head.

One of the reasons now given for the cause of a man's hair falling out so steadily in summer is the constant use of a daily shower bath.

The majority of men are given over to this practice. Even if they do not have a set-up shower bath over the tub they have a tube attached to the faucet with a shower nozzle. They use this over the head two or three times a day.

The specialists say that this causes the hair to deteriorate. It produces falling hair and dandruff.

A shower bath should never be allowed to fall on the hair. It is quite easy to slip on an oil-skin cap.

When Out on the Water.

As this is the season for outings at the shore or on the water, it is also the season of sunburn.

The first touch of sunburn is not to be laughed at. It is a painful thing. After a while, when the face has become inured to the effect of sun and water, the skin will not rebel in such an inconvenient manner.

The man or woman who goes out for a day on the water should not be above protecting the skin from the action of the sun. A good cream should be rubbed into the skin of the face and hands, if the latter are exposed, and a pure rice or talcum powder dusted over this.

It is a good plan to take along some powder in a pocket and when the face begins to burn put it on. Plain flour is as preventive and as healing as powder.

Since May 15, it is reported, nearly 23,000 freight cars have come off the idle list. The rest of them will probably get busy when Texas is ready to move this year's onion crop.—Washington Post.

The announcement that Seab Wright is scheduled to make speeches in Texas is already making the Texans quake with apprehension, while they grab a firmer hold on their bottles.—Augusta Herald.

A Texas couple waded through ten miles of mud in order to get married. A number of millionaires in this country seem perfectly willing to wade through a great deal more mud than that to get unmarried, however.—Washington Herald.

Texas is bragging about fifty-pound watermelons. We call fifty-pound melons culls in Georgia.—Atlanta Georgian and News.

Probably that's why neither State ships these fairy tales to Boston. One can't spare 'em and the other's ashamed.—Boston Globe.

The Angora goat, sired in South Africa, named for Togo, the Jap, and now resident in the State of Texas, comparatively wasted his wool on a pair of nomination trousers. He should have made a play for some international peace conference.—Atlanta Journal.

Citizens of Texas have presented Mr. Taft with a pair of trousers made of goat's wool. This, however, cannot be taken as an offer of the freedom of the State. If a visit from the secretary was desired they would have provided him with a six-shooter.—Scranton Tribune.

ARTHUR REED & COMPANY

The Early Years of Grover Cleveland

His Birth In Caldwell, N. J., His School Days, His Legal Career, His Rise to the Governorship of New York and His Defeat of James G. Blaine For the Presidency In 1884.

GROVER CLEVELAND'S BIRTHPLACE, CALDWELL, N. J.

WHEN the pastor of the Presbyterian church in the little town of Caldwell, N. J., in 1837 bestowed upon one of his babies the name of the Rev. Stephen Grover, a predecessor in the same pulpit, he probably entertained not the remotest dream that the boy would grow up to discard his first name and become known in world history as Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States and for the remainder of his life "the most distinguished private citizen in the world."

The Rev. Stephen F. Cleveland and his wife, who was Ann Neal, daughter of a Baltimore merchant, had a large family of children. Three years after Grover was born the family migrated, as preachers' families are wont to do, to Fayetteville, N. Y., and later at Clinton, N. Y. The father died when Grover was in his sixteenth year. The family home was then and until the widow Cleveland died in 1882 at Holland Patent, N. Y.

Grover Cleveland attended academics at Fayetteville and Clinton. He had an early ambition to go through Princeton college, but lacked the funds. He became clerk and later assistant teacher in the New York Institution For the Blind, New York city.

Fanny Crosby, the celebrated blind hymn writer, was a teacher in the same school. She and Grover became warm friends. In her reminiscences Miss Crosby writes:

"He seemed a very gentle but intensely ambitious boy. Among other very pleasant characteristics which I noticed in him as a careful, hard-working, but not brilliant, lawyer. He had no pyrotechnic or ornamental side. He simply attended to business. Though the Republican state ticket carried Buffalo by more than 1,000 votes, Cleveland was elected mayor by a majority of 3,529. Early in his term he became known as "the veto mayor."

He vetoed many extravagant appropriation bills and saved his city at least $1,000,000. The state of New York soon heard much of this veto mayor. He had been in office less than a year when the Democrats nominated him for governor. New York had not elected a Democratic governor since before the civil war. The Republicans nominated Charles J. Folger, secretary of the treasury in President Arthur's cabinet. Mr. Folger was regarded as a particularly strong candidate, yet Cleveland was elected governor by a plurality of 102,854 over Folger and by a clear majority of 151,742 over all the candidates. Just after he voted on election day he wrote to his brother, the Rev. William Cleveland:

"If mother were alive, I should be writing to her, and I feel as if it were a time for me to write to some one who will believe what I write. I will tell you first of all others the policy I intend to adopt, and that is to make the matter a business engagement between the people and myself, in which the obligation on my side is to perform the duties assigned me with an eye single to the interests of my employers. I shall have no idea of reelection or of any high political preferment in my head, but be very thankful and happy if I serve one term as the people's governor. Do you know that if mother were alive I should feel so much

The First Presidency of Grover Cleveland

His Inauguration In March, 1885, His Marriage to Miss Frances Folsom, His Removals For "Offensive Partisanship," His "Tariff For Revenue Only" Plan and Two Presidential Campaigns.

ACCOMPANIED by his brother and sister, Grover Cleveland slipped quietly into Washington March 2, 1885, and on the 4th was inaugurated as president of the United States, succeeding Chester Alan Arthur. Twenty-eight years had passed since a Democrat had taken the oath of office as president. Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, the president's younger sister, was mistress of the White House and therefore "first lady of the land" during the first fifteen months of the administration. During this period rumors as to a White House bride flew fast and thick, the president having sent elaborate bouquets to Miss "Frankie" Folsom on the occasion of the young woman's graduation from Welles college. Frances Folsom was the daughter of a former law partner of Mr. Cleveland in Buffalo. After her graduation she traveled in Europe. On June 2, 1886, shortly after her return to America, she was married to the president in the White House.

MRS. CLEVELAND IN 1886.

Unusual obstacles beset the presidential pathway of Cleveland from the moment of his inauguration. Shut out from executive favor for practically a generation, the Democratic politicians were avid for removal. The president sought to adhere to a policy opposed to removal from office of competent officials except as to heads of divisions and other important officeholders, but the Jacksonian cry "To the victors belong the spoils" became so insistent that the president was induced to modify his policy to the extent of removals for "offensive partisanship," a phrase coined by him which speedily became famous. In the light of history it must be admitted that "offensive partisanship" in federal offices were exceedingly numerous in those days. Republican postmasters were slaughtered by wholesale.

In a storehouse connected with the war department were many crates of battleflags captured from southern armies. At the suggestion of the adjutant general Mr. Cleveland ordered that the flags be returned to the states from whose regiments they had been captured. Certain Grand Army posts became so indignant that they passed resolutions strongly censuring the president, with insinuations against him because he had employed a substitute instead of going into the army during the war. This incident, which took place in 1887, was intensified in its acrimony from the G. A. R. side because the president had vetoed civil war pension bills in hundreds of individual cases wherein he believed the applicant was not entitled to a pension. He had become known as "the veto president," as he had been the veto mayor and the veto governor. So harsh was the clamor evoked by the battleflag order that the president issued a frank statement rescinding it, explaining that he had acted without looking up the legal aspect of the case and that in his opinion any direction as to the final disposition of the captured flags should originate with congress. Since then many flags have been returned.

President Cleveland in his message to congress in December, 1887, enunciated his celebrated proposition of "tariff for revenue only." This was the most notable incident of his first term in office. The message, submitted on the eve of the presidential nomination of 1888, amazed the nation by its bold stand against the so-called protective tariff. Mr. Cleveland was known to be in a willing mood for renomination. His fearlessness in thus daring to alienate that large wing of the Democracy which believed in a high tariff for the support of American industries was greeted by the British press with profound admiration. Eminent political economists in the United States declared this message to be one of the ablest of presidential papers. The president's stand for reductions in the tariff on a "revenue only" basis was the subject of much discussion pro and con for many years following.

Mr. Cleveland received the Democratic nomination for president in 1888, but was defeated in the election by Benjamin Harrison of Indiana. Many Democrats attributed his defeat to his tariff message of 1887. After Mr. Harrison's election and the consequent trade of criticism from members of the president's own party Mr. Cleveland sent for the speaker of the house of representatives, John G. Carlisle, a Democrat, and said to him, "If every other man in the country abandons this issue, I shall stick to it."

Accordingly in the last message of his term he "stuck to" his stand on the tariff problem, urging congress in 1889 to enact laws in line with his suggestions of the winter before.

Cleveland retired to private life March 4, 1890, and settled in New York city for the practice of the law. He was not particularly active in politics after his retirement.

In the meantime history was making. Harrison and high tariff were in the saddle. The McKinley act of 1890, increasing the tariff on wool, tin plate and other products, was followed by high prices for the poor man's necessities of life. Events rapidly were shaping themselves toward a vindication of Grover Cleveland. The ex-president attended to his law work, and the people did the rest. With the political class, as of old, mostly in opposition, the Independent Democratic voters forced the selection of Cleveland delegates to the national Democratic convention of 1892, held in June. "Four more years of Grover" was the campaign cry. Though the New York delegation opposed him, Mr. Cleveland was nominated for the presidency the third time in succession on the first ballot. President Harrison again was his Republican opponent. Cleveland was elected, receiving 277 electoral votes against 145 for Harrison and 22 for General Weaver, Populist.

The Second Presidency of Grover Cleveland

His Fight For the Gold Standard, His Bond Issues, His Defiance of Great Britain Over the Venezuela Boundary, His Support of Palmer and Buckner and His Home Life In Princeton.

AFTER an intermission of four years in private life Grover Cleveland returned to Washington and was inaugurated president of the United States on March 4, 1893, for the second time. The Cleveland of 1893 was very different from the Cleveland of 1885. When he began his first term he was altogether new to Washington and to national politics. He was practically an untried man in the wider field of statesmanship and was just completing his forty-eighth year. In 1893, at the very mature age of fifty-six, Mr. Cleveland had enjoyed a distinction unique in American history—that of being elected president, renominated and defeated and again renominated and elected. He had served one full term, with all the experience in national and international politics which that service entailed.

In another and more popularly interesting sense the second advent of Cleveland was different. He was now a thorough family man. The Cleverlands had a baby, little Ruth, born in New York Oct. 3, 1891. Her death a few years after her parents' retirement to Princeton, N. J.; was a matter of general regret. Mrs. Cleveland during the second term further endeared herself to the American people.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND DUCK HUNTING AT PRINCETON.

President Cleveland in 1894 enhanced his immediate unpopularity by sending government troops to Chicago to prevent the obstruction of the mails during the great railway strike, against the protest of Governor Altgeld of Illinois, who declared that he was able to cope with the situation without aid from the federal government. This was one of the most sensational acts of Cleveland's career. In 1895 he sent to the senate a message relating to British claims in Venezuela which bristled with bulldog determination to insist upon the upholding of the Monroe doctrine even at the cost of war between the United States and England. Great Britain had refused to submit to arbitration a certain boundary dispute with Venezuela. President Cleveland advised the appointment of a commission to determine for itself the boundary line between the two countries with a view to enforce an acceptance of this line by Great Britain. The Monroe doctrine having been accepted from the moment of its promulgation by Secretary of State John Quincy Adams as a part and parcel of sacred American policy, the entire nation stood by the president in his plucky stand. Congress also stood by him. England drew in her horns and accepted the situation gracefully. Grover Cleveland for the time was a great popular hero. However, his defeat for renomination in 1896, had he desired the honor, was a foregone conclusion. Tariff as an issue was tumbled into that condition which years before Mr. Cleveland had described as "innocuous desuetude." The free coinage of silver was demanded by the Democratic majority. Mr. Cleveland supported the Palmer and Buckner "gold Democratic" ticket. When he handed over the governmental reins to President William McKinley, March 4, 1897, he stepped out of office forever. Mr. Cleveland settled for himself the problem as to what to do with an extra session of congress and pushed through the repeal of the Sherman act of 1890, under which the government was required to purchase large quantities of silver bullion. The Democracy at large was amazed and enraged at this action, though a very considerable portion of it stood with the president on the issue.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND AND HIS SON RICHARD.

To maintain the gold reserve President Cleveland from time to time made large issues of government bonds. The placing of some of these bonds with New York bankers aroused a cyclone of adverse criticism. Mr. Cleveland, of course, was in the exact storm center. Several years after his retirement Mr. Cleveland wrote a statement explaining the bond sales, defending his own course and declaring that he regarded these executive acts with the greatest satisfaction.

During and after his presidential terms the Cleveland fishing and duck hunting expeditions supplied much material to the press. In 1903 Mr. Cleveland was introduced in St. Louis as "the most distinguished private citizen in the world." By that time his political opponents in both of the great parties, generally speaking, had come to look upon him as a historical figure, and by the vast majority of Americans the venerable ex-president was regarded as a true patriot, an honest public servant and an able chief executive.

was a disposition to help others whenever possible. Knowing that it was a great favor to me to have my poems copied neatly and legibly, he offered to perform that service for me, and I several times availed myself of his aid.

One day the principal of the school upbraided the blind woman for using the clerk's time in that way. Grover told Miss Crosby that she had a perfect right to employ him in that capacity, inasmuch as her poems were used in the school and also helped to make the institution better known. He advised her to give the principal some "plain prose" the next time he should re-appear her. When the official remonstrated a second time, Miss Crosby stood for her rights and won the battle.

When Cleveland was about eighteen years old, he paid a visit to an uncle living in Buffalo. The uncle invited the boy to remain and help him in compiling the "American Herd Book." Grover assisted in several editions of this work, studied law and was admitted to the bar at the age of twenty-two. His first official position was that of assistant district attorney, which he held for three years, during the civil war. Two of his brothers were in the army. Grover was helping to support his mother and sisters. His salary was small. When he was drafted to military service, he hired a substitute and remained at work. Later he was a candidate for the district attorneyship, but was defeated. Then he attended down to law practice. In 1870 he was induced to run for sheriff and was elected, serving for three years.

After another interval of private citizenship, assiduously devoted to his profession, this bachelor lawyer of forty-four years was nominated for mayor of Buffalo on the Democratic ticket in 1881. He had become known safer. I have always thought that her prayers had much to do with my success. I shall expect you to help me in that way.

Governor Cleveland was precisely like Mayor Cleveland. He was a business governor. It was said of him that he ran the state as he would have run a railroad, mastering the details of the business so that he could run it well. The same writer declares that "he not only preached economy, but he made the state officials practice it. He vetoed bills until the legislators were wild with rage, and he forced through civil service reform."

Grover Cleveland was cordially disliked by the politicians in his party. But his reputation among the people as a plain, practicable, businesslike executive had grown so wide that in the summer of 1884, before the expiration of his gubernatorial term, there was an insistent call for him to accept that "high political preferment" which in the letter to his brother he had declared was not in his head. The great mass of the Democracy throughout the country believed that Cleveland was honest and that nothing could turn him aside from a course which he believed to be right. He was nominated for president at the Chicago convention of 1884, his Republican opponent being James G. Blaine. Mr. Cleveland received a small plurality of the popular vote and an electoral majority of thirty-seven. For the first time since 1856 the Democratic party had carried the presidential election. A man who two years before was unknown beyond his own city and county, a painstaking, laborious lawyer, a ponderous, heavy set "old bachelor," had entered the lists and swept to defeat "the plumed knight" of twenty years' national renown.

On Some Occasions You Could Afford to Pay

One Dollar a Word for Want Advertising

WANT ADVERTISING SPACE is about the lowest priced thing of value you can buy in this city. This phase of the matter probably never occurred to you.

But think it over. Suppose that the rate for want advertising in The Times were one dollar a word! A prohibitive rate, you say? Perhaps, for some classes of business.

But if you were compelled to sell real estate, a dollar a word for an ad. would still be a profit-returning rate for you if it found the best market for your property. It would be a cheap rate for a Situation Wanted ad. if it found twice as good a job for you as you have ever had. It would be a profitable way to secure a tenant for vacant property.

In fact, perhaps half of the want ads. would pay the advertisers at a dollar a word—and a great many of them would be paid for at that rate if this newspaper charged that rate. But it don't. One cent per word for first insertion, and one half cent per word for each subsequent insertion is our rate charged for Want Ads.

The purpose of this comparison is not to announce any advance in the want advertising rates—but to bring to your mind the fact that want adv. space, as now sold, is a genuine bargain

PRESIDENT HARRINGTON IS EXONERATED BY DIRECTORS.

Marlin, Tex., June 23.—At 10 o'clock tonight the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical college, after exhaustive investigation and long deliberation, returned a decision completely exonerating Dr. H. H. Harrington, president of the institution, and retaining him at the head of the school.

The final decision of the board does not refer to other members of the faculty who have been mentioned prominently in this investigation. A member of the board said tonight that the cases of some faculty members might be taken up later.

The statement of the board expressed the opinion that the school can be conducted next year with entire success with Dr. Harrington at the head, and the co-operation of the press, patrons and alumni are earnestly asked for.

The two basic points in the finding are, first, that Dr. Harrington is innocent of the charges, and, second, that even if he were guilty, it would be a bad precedent to establish in acceding to the demands of a revolting student body. As to the charges of financial irregularities, the board promises an early investigation of accounts.

Late this afternoon it was reported that the board was hopelessly divided as to the findings. This opinion spread abroad after the board had been in session intermittently since 6 p. m. Monday. It was 10 o'clock before the statement was given out and the news of Dr. Harrington's exoneration spread rapidly over town and he had many visitors at the Arlington, congratulating him upon the decision.

Telegraph and telephone wires carried the news to outside friends of the president and he received many expressions of satisfaction. Among those who called upon the president here and congratulated him were seven local members of the alumni of the college.

Miss Kellerman, champion lady swimmer of the world, will be at Majestic tonight.

Files and Disease.

Editor Times.—

I have noticed in two copies of your paper remarks about typhoid fever being prevalent in this town. So I feel called upon to say that flies carry all kinds of filth and germs in the hairs on their legs. If you will put a fly under a magnifying glass, you can see the hairs, as big as a hog's bristles, and they are hollow at the end, so that the filth can ooze up as they pass over soft filth and ooze out as they pass over people and food. Get rid of flies, and we will be healthier, and it will stop the spread of typhoid fever as well.

It matters not how well screened your house is, nor how often you fan them out, they will come in. The crawl over the most repulsive, nauseating matter, getting their legs saturated with unspeakable filth and germs, and then fly into our screened homes of cleanliness, crawl over our delicate babies and dainty viands, leaving all germ-infected. And if our physical conditions are in a condition to receive the disease, we are taken sick. How many people have been sick and wondered where they caught the disease, not thinking to blame the fly?

There is a way to exterminate flies. An easier way and less expensive than screening a whole house, buying fly paper and paying doctor's and drug bills. It is a well known fact that flies breed in stables. To thoroughly screen a small portion of the lot, and scrupulously clean the stable every morning, throwing all filth from the horses and cows into the screened place is the cheapest and easiest way to get entirely rid of flies.

For just one horse and one cow, a good frame 8x10, well and thoroughly screened, would be sufficient. After all is well rotted and dry, they will not breed in it, and it can be cleaned out, carted off, or scattered in the yard or garden for fertilizer.

If the city council would pass an ordinance requiring a fly-proof, screened frame for each stable, Wichita Falls would soon be rid of the dangerous pest and set an example to the civilized world as being the first city to enact laws to exterminate so great a menace to health and nuisance—the fly.

Generous Mrs. Crewe. A gambling story is told of Charles James Fox that rather reflects on his honor. He was one of the ardent admirers of Mrs. Crewe, a noted beauty of her day, and it is related that a gentleman lost a considerable sum to this lady at play and, being obliged to leave town suddenly, gave Mr. Fox the money to pay her, begging him to apologize to her for his not having paid the debt of honor in person. Fox lost every shilling of it before morning. Mrs. Crewe often met the supposed debtor afterward and, surprised that he never noticed the circumstances, at length delicately hinted the matter to him.

"Bless me!" said he. "I paid the money to Mr. Fox three months ago." "Oh, did you, sir?" said Mrs. Crewe good naturedly. "Then probably he paid me, and I forgot it."

Bees Do Not Make Honey

Did you ever stop to think that the bee does not change the flavor or chemical composition of honey? He simply gathers what he finds, and if he finds nothing but sorghum molasses that is what he stores in his comb. But he always stores the best to be had, as he is the finest judge of sweets in the world. Uvalde County, Texas, is world-famed for the excellent flavor of its Cat-Claw Honey and the first crop this season is of that famous variety. We were fortunate in securing a big shipment of this crop, as it is doubtful if there will be another as good this season. The color and flavor leave nothing to be desired and the comb is solid packed to the bottom of the can. We have both comb and extracted in 6, 12 and 60 lb. cans. Let us have your orders early while this shipment lasts.
