BY A FEDERAL GRANT

HASKELL FLINGS BACK ROOSEVELT'S CHARGE OF IMPROPER CONDUCT.

PRESIDENT'S APPOINTEE

Gave Charter to Prairie Oil Co. and Bill of Rights Prevented Governor From Molesting It.

As was predicted in the special dispatch to the Times from Washington yesterday, President Roosevelt in his reply to Bryan concerning the charges against Governor Haskell, based his indictment of Haskell upon the records in the Prairie Oil company suits.

Governor Haskell last night after reading the charges made by President Roosevelt, said:

"I say that the president knows that my statement is true, and I regret that he tries to brush it aside without doing me candid justice. Were I to adopt the character of language so commonly used by the president I would spell it with fewer letters than 'falsehood.' Mr. President, I hope to speak in Ohio soon. May I hope to divide time with some partisan of yours or Prince William's, who defends your actions in this instance?"

"President Roosevelt comes to Oklahoma and finds a substitute for his Ohio failure in the case of the State against the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, which he complains I compelled to be dismissed. Yes, we all know that the Prairie company is a Standard offspring, and don't forget that the president claims to have known this also, and I charge that the political allies, Hearst and Roosevelt, both know that I acted properly.

"First, the Prairie Oil and Gas Company got its franchise in our State, not from me, but from Roosevelt's secretary of the interior long before statehood began, and had its main line built and operating, and in our statehood bill was compelled to declare that our new State when organized must respect all such vested rights and existing franchises.

"That was all I did, and the federal courts stood ready to call me down if I violated the Roosevelt-Territorial franchises.

"Now, Mr. President, why did your secretary of the interior grant what you know to be a Standard Oil pipe line franchise in our then helpless territory and fasten it on our new State by provisions of the statehood bill? Will Mr. Hearst or the president please answer?"

"I will also remind the president that the company tried to enlarge its rights so as to include a gas as well as an oil privilege, which I defeated, and even last April, Mr. President, your secretary of the interior tried to help the Standard Oil gas privilege against my protest by actually granting them a franchise to lay an interstate gas line also. I notified the secretary that since statehood your days of giving valuable franchises in our State had passed and that I would resist laying the line. Only after that you yielded and canceled your unlawful act.

"I again assert that my act in that case was not only required by what federal authority had bound us to do, but that the public interest of our own people based on conditions growing out of your original special favors to the Standard Oil company in granting that franchise required me to pursue that policy in the case that you have seen fit to criticize."

Roosevelt's Reply to W. J. Bryan.

President Roosevelt, in his reply to William J. Bryan, says: "The White House, Washington, Sept. 23.—Dear Sir: In your telegram you speak of so much of the charges against Governor Haskell as dealt with his relations, while in Ohio, with the Standard Oil company. You omit the charge as to his relations with the Standard Oil interests, as shown by his actions while governor of Oklahoma this very summer, this action being in part taken while he was at Denver, where, as you state, he was by your wish, made chairman of the committee which drafted the platform upon which you are standing.

"In my statement I purposely made no specific allusion to the Ohio matter and shall at this time make none, in spite of its significance and in spite of the further fact that Governor Haskell's close relations with the Standard Oil interests while he was in Ohio was a matter of common notoriety.

"Prairie Oil and Gas Case.

"In Oklahoma it is a matter of court record. By this court record it appears that the attorney general of the State, elected by the people obtained an injunction to prevent the Prairie Oil and Gas Company from building a pipe line, and that Gov. Haskell found this out while he was at Denver, as appears by the representations for the dissolution of the injunction made in his name on behalf of the State before a court of superior jurisdiction to that which issued the injunction.

"In this the governor states that the acting governor, in his absence, had asked that the hearing be postponed until he, the governor, might return and have an opportunity to investigate the controversy. The governor set forth in his petition that he is the sole authority to determine such matters, and that the attorney general and the judge of the lower court had no right in the case and that the action of the judge of the lower court represented an encroachment by the judiciary. The attorney general opposed the dissolution of the injunction, stating that the Prairie Oil and Gas Company was a foreign corporation which has not accepted the provisions of the constitution applicable to such corporations and that without authority of law it was employing a great force of men and teams to dig up, across and into various highways of the State for the purpose of laying its line.

"The governor prevailed, the injunction was suspended and the pipe line was permitted to continue its work; to use the words of the attorney general, 'without any color of law.' And I call your attention to the fact that the question is not whether or not the judge erred, or whether the injunction was proper. The point is that the governor.

DOLLARS ARE NEEDED

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE NEEDS SINCEWES FOR LEGITIMATE EXPENSES.

ROOSEVELT IS REFUTED

Chairman Mack Promptly Brands Falsehood—About Money Said to Have Been Received.

W. J. Bryan to Theodore Roosevelt. "The democratic candidate, Mr. J. W. Kern, joined with me in requesting the democratic national committee to fix a maximum of $10,000 for individual contributions, and to publish before the election all contributions above $100 and the committee acted favorably on this request. The republican candidate and the republican national committee proposed no publication before the election, but publication after the election.

"I submit that our committee has given the better evidence of its freedom from connection with or obligation to the prelatery interests. Our committee has not knowingly received a dollar from an official of any corporation known as a trust and it will not receive any money from such. If any money is contributed by such persons without the knowledge of the committee it will be returned as soon as the fact is discovered."

Chairman Mack to President Roosevelt.

"If you are correctly quoted, no doubt you have in mind the publication in the New York American recently that I, as chairman of the democratic national committee, could have $300,000 from former Chairman Taggart, which was said to be left over from the 1904 campaign. "This, at that time, was emphatically denied when brought to my attention. I desire to say to you now that there is not a word of truth in this statement.

Not a Cent From Taggart.

"I have not received one cent from Chairman Taggart or anyone else connected with the last campaign; neither has anyone connected with the democratic national committee.

"I am writing you this direct, as I desire to correct what seems to be an erroneous impression in your mind." "80 Per Cent Raised by Newspapers. Chairman Mack said a day or two ago that the Democratic national committee was receiving 80 per cent of its funds to conduct the campaign from newspapers, and that only two newspapers had turned in sums of over $5,000. Mr. Mack said that the Standard Oil Company had never even made an attempt to contribute to the fund.

"The campaign is now at fever heat. Taft is on his speech making trip to the West. Roosevelt has attacked the democratic party and Mr. Bryan, and Taft has disappeared from the spotlight, while the entire attention of the country is centered on the president and the commoner.

"In his attack Roosevelt sought to reflect upon the motives of Mr. Bryan. The latter replied in characteristic style and now the fight is on which will probably determine the result of the election. No matter which way the issue turns, it appears that Mr. Bryan will come out of the conflict with credit and additional prestige.

"In the meantime the national committee is needing funds. The enemy is in retreat in a dozen States where they had felt victory certain at the outset of the campaign. The sinews of war are needed to make the rout complete. Loyal democrats everywhere are responding to the call. Send in your dollar today.

Progress on the Big Ditch.

The commission sent by President Roosevelt to see about the big job at Panama is back all clogged up with statistics.

The report is now out and is, on the whole, very encouraging. The diggers have truck a pace of thirty million cubic yards per year.

There are about forty-four thousand people working for Uncle Sam now on the Isthmus, and about six thousand of them are Americans.

We have spent over one hundred and seventy million dollars thus far upon the project and we are handing it out now at the rate of over nine thousand dollars per working hour.

Elopement—Obituary.

L. B. Trumbull, editor of the Bernardino News, adopted an extraordinary method recently of announcing the elopement of his daughter, Florence, with Frederick W. Compton,

The editor denounced the elopement under the heading of "Obituary," edged by turned rule, and began by saying:

"No, congratulations are not in order. They never are on funeral occasions."

"It is a case of a daughter lost; not of a son-in-law gained."

Continuing, Mr. Trumbull, who is 70 years old, expressed his disgust in four sections, the last paragraph reading as follows:

"There was absolutely no excuse for all this wretched business, save that, after his gross misconduct, the girl was not allowed to go out with the fellow—at night. No more democratic people live than her parents, who, if the love were mutual, sought only in a husband for their daughter a white man, clean of body, clean of mind, of cleanly habits and with some small modicum of brains—not a mere mop of hair—under a hat. This one does not come up to even these modest requirements."

"All the above we stand ready to maintain, in or out of court, on the street, anywhere, at any time, in any form and 'May God defend the right.'"

Orchard and Garden.

Farm and Ranch. Plant turnips for turnip greens and turnips.

Select fruit trees with an eye to the future.

Do you raise your own vegetables? If not, why not?

Potato beetles may be destroyed with Paris green.

Glutted markets hurt the prices of fruit more than anything else.

When grapes show indications of mildew they should not be packed.

Celery demands a deep rich sandy soil. Clay soils and rust go "hand in hand."

Fall transplanting is a much more delicate task than the same work in spring.

A winter garden should be had by every farmer in the warmer parts of the Southwest.

When trees bend and break with their loads, it shows the want of the operation of trimmings.

It will soon be time for pecans, and reports from some localities state that the crop will be very light.

Fruit trees call for fresh air and sunshine. For this, it is necessary to have wide spaces between the trees.

Save all the ashes made this winter for use in the orchard next spring. Don't expose them to the weather.

Some people are so happy-go-lucky that they do not put up enough vegetables and fruit for home use, much less to sell.

When the markets are glutted a home-canner will pay. In the winter there will be no congestion and people like pure products.

If trees must be gone over several times, pick only the ripe fruit, leaving the others, the later ones will be much better in size and quality.

The average peach orchard commences bearing about the third year. Until then the space between the rows can be made into a garden or even grain or cotton.

When two or more women get together one of the things you don't hear is silence.

A Decision ... Of Fate.

(Original.)

"It is useless for you to press me, Kenneth; I cannot be your wife."

"Why not?"

"Mother, I cannot leave her alone. Old age is coming upon her; she would suffer untold misery."

"She can live with us."

"Kenneth, do you know what would be in store for us—for you—under such circumstances?"

"What?"

"You don't know women. Mother has been head of her house all her life. She would regulate us."

"I don't mind who keeps house."

"I do—that is, if I have one of my own. I prefer to keep it myself. But there are other considerations. Mother requires a very high temperature. You, I know, like a cool house. When you came home to a hot one you would throw open all the doors and windows. Mother would retire to her room and stay there all the evening. She would wish to have me with her. I would remain with you. She would call me. I would say: 'No, mother, you have had me with you all day. My husband needs me now.' To which she would reply: 'I shall not live the night through. Good-bye. I die of cruelty.' Then you would say: 'Go to her. Tomorrow we shall be free.' I would go, but we would not be free tomorrow or the next day or the next."

"You mean that in time she would be free; we would do the dying."

"No; we would drag out a miserable existence."

"The picture interests me. Go on."

"Then occasionally we would have a little misunderstanding."

"Never."

"Yes, we would. All married people do. Mother would be aware of it. She would take my part and would treat you like a criminal. That would make you furious and we would be forever making up. Then she would be continuously discovering that you had no respect for the hardships I was enduring. She would consider you a model of selfishness and treat as such."

"Any more of it?"

"Yes; you would soon lose your equality and treat her harshly. That would stab me to the quick and would only irritate her the more against you."

"Go on."

"Occasionally we would wish to go out to a theater or to visit our friends. Mother would make such a fuss about being left alone that we would have to give up such pleasures. Then you might wish to go on a journey and take me with you. I couldn't leave mother. Then you would begin to curse and to swear and wish her at the bottom of a bottomless pit or in the hottest of a fiery furnace. It would be terrible."

There was a long pause. Presently he said, but with a faint heart:

"I love you so well, sweetheart, that I would rather stand all this than give you up."

She wavered and at last said:

"Let fate decide for us. Do you see those two volumes in the library in red morocco? Well, tomorrow morning when you come downstairs there will be a 'Yes' in one volume and a 'No' in the other. Choose one. We will abide by the result of your choice."

For the rest of the day he thought hard. That night when all were in bed he slipped downstairs in his stocking feet and went to the library. He opened volume one and found a "Yes," then volume two and found also a "Yes." Rubbing out both, he wrote a "No" for each, put them in and stole upstairs to bed.

The next morning when he heard her leave her room he left his, and they went downstairs together. He went to the library, hesitated long between the two volumes, lifted his eyes as if in silent prayer, then took out volume two, opened it, read the word "No" and sank limp in a chair. Then, with a moan, he rushed from the house.

There were complications for a few days.

Then he wrote "Mother" on a slip of paper and "Kenneth" on another, placing one in each of the red morocco volumes. The next morning she was to draw as he had drawn. He did not slip downstairs that night to make both "Kenneth." Indeed, he feared that if "Kenneth" were drawn it would mean both "Kenneth" and "Mother," a combination he especially wished to avoid. But as the clock struck the midnight hour there was a silken tread on the stairs. A white figure descended and, going to the library, took out the slip on which "Mother" was written and wrote "Kenneth" in its stead.

"Fate has decided in your favor, Kenneth," she said after drawing, and he held her in his arms. "But if all does not turn out as well as you expect you mustn't blame me."

There was an interval of ten years.

"Will the old fiend live forever?"

"Now, Kenneth, I will not hear you call poor mother an old fiend. I told you when you persisted just what you had to expect. You were willing to leave it to fate."

"But I wanted to steal a march on fate."

"Not on fate—on me."

"But I didn't in the end."

"No. When a man practices such miserable devices on a woman he usually gets the worst of it."

"Just so. I had the game in my own hands, but I was too stupid to play it."

"How?"

"I should have made both slips to read 'Mother.'"

"It wouldn't have done any good. Susan had instructions to see in the morning that they were both 'Kenneth.'"

The Old Trade.

"Hi!" ejaculated the governor as he perused the card of the newly arrived prisoner. "I see you are a commercial traveler?"

The man assented.

"That presents something of a difficulty. You know, my man, everybody here has got to work. Now, what trade will you take up? You can be a mat-maker, a tailor or a shoemaker. Perhaps you'd like to make brushes or baskets?"

"Excuse me, sir," interrupted the prisoner, "but I think I'd much rather stick to my old trade."

"Well," said the grave and reverend seignior, "we always like prisoners to work at their own trades when possible. But—"

"Oh, that's simple!" interrupted the prisoner eagerly. "I should like the chance of going round selling on commission the things the other fellows make."—London Scraps.

Get the Best of Carlyle.

The Rev. Thomas Alexander, a Presbyterian minister, long resident in Chelsea and well known as a brother Scot, was most anxious to know Carlyle, but had no opportunity of getting an introduction to him. One day in the King's road he saw Carlyle coming in his direction and took advantage of the opportunity by going up to the stage and saying, "Thomas Carlyle, I believe?" Carlyle's reply was, "Tom Alexander, I know." They became good friends, and later Mr. Alexander wrote to Carlyle for a subscription toward a school building fund, and Carlyle wrote back a refusal in doggerel, whereupon Mr. Alexander replied that if he did not send him £5 he would sell his poetry to a collector or publish it. The £5 was at once forthcoming.

The average woman is no enemy to comfort, but there is little comfort to be gotten out of the shoes that most women buy. They don't even pretend to be comfortable till you have "broken them in," and after that they are soon worn out. It is different with "Dorothy Dodd" Shoes. They are comfortable from the very first hour because they are made on lasts which exactly reproduce the human foot.

Pat Hilburn Sues That Order in the Sum of $25,000.

Bonham Favorite.
Engineer Pat Hilburn, who is on the T. and P. passenger run between Texarkana and Whitesboro, and a former Bonham resident, has, through his attorney, entered suit against the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in the sum of $25,000.

Mr. Hilburn states in his petition that he was expelled from this body last January. That he had been a member in good standing for a number of years. He further alleges that the cause of his being expelled from that body was because he had stated that he would not join in a strike if one were ordered, as he did not think there was any just cause for a strike.

There was no strike, but his statement, so he alleges, displeased a number of the members of his local lodge, and he was accordingly tried before that body and expelled.

The suit is brought against Wilcox division No. 946, the local lodge at Texarkana.

The charge upon which Mr. Hilburn was tried, so the Brotherhood claims, was that his declaration that he would not strike constituted "conduct unbecoming a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers."

The plaintiff demands $25,000 actual and exemplary damages.

BAILEY TALKS OF HEARST.

Junior Senator Says He is Glad Sibley Letter Was Given Publicity.

Gainesville, Tex., Sept. 21.—The News correspondent asked Senator Bailey this morning what reply, if any, he desired to make to what Mr. Hearst said about him in his Memphis speech Saturday night, and Senator Bailey dictated the following:

"Assuming that the Sibley letter which Mr. Hearst read is genuine and that I am the 'Senator B.' to whom it refers, I am very glad that it has been given to the public, because it completely refutes a charge which my enemies have been making against me in this State for the last two years. They have been claiming that I am the attorney for the Standard Oil Company, and insinuating that I have been friendly to it in matters of legislation.

"This letter distinctly shows that I am not their attorney, and it also distinctly shows that my position could not be changed to suit the interest of the Standard Oil Company. The letter, which is claimed to have been written by Mr. Sibley, suggests that he might arrange for Mr. Archbold to meet me, and Mr. Archbold's reply, as read by Mr. Hearst, says that he would like to talk to me.

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Sibley never made to me the remotest suggestion of a conference with Mr. Archbold, and I never spoke to Mr. Archbold in my life about matters pending in congress or in any other legislative body. Even my worst enemies can hardly insist that I had talked with Archbold, because the congressional record shows that I did not agree with the Standard Oil view of any question, and to insist that I conferred with Archbold and that he was powerless to alter my opinion, as Mr. Sibley admits himself to have been, would not give much comfort to my enemies."

Childress needs a board of trade as much as any town in Texas just now. If it is profitable for Wichita Falls to spend $400 a month on a similar organization it ought to pay Childress to spend a few dollars in the same manner. Every business man admits the organization should be started and it only lacks a leader to make the matter go through.—Childress Post.

Mr. Hearst may be all that his enemies charge him with, but the fact remains that even if he does resort to questionable methods to obtain that which he goes after, the public is indebted to him for unearthing and exposing the dishonorable means employed by the Standard Oil trust in securing favorable legislation and evading the laws of different States by the liberal use of money in bribing high officials. The Foraker exposure hits the republicans hard, and if he can prove what he charges against Governor Haskell of Oklahoma, who is a democrat, that party will discard him at once. So far, Haskell has denied, most emphatically, that he was ever in any capacity connected with the Standard Oil company or any of its agents, or at any time ever received a cent of money from or through their agents for any service performed by him. It is now up to Mr. Hearst to prove his charge, or, in this one instance, at least, to publicly acknowledge that he has done a great injury to the man whom the people of Oklahoma have so highly honored, and whom the National democratic campaign committee had sufficient confidence in to make him its treasurer. On the other hand, Senator Foraker of Ohio, by calling in his speaking dates for the National republican ticket, publicly acknowledges that the charge that he accepted bribe money from the oil trust is substantially true.

nor was alert to take out of the hands of the attorney general what the attorney general felt was his sworn duty to prevent an alleged instance of the breaking of the laws by the particular great corporation.

"As far as I have seen, Governor Haskell has not even attempted anything which can be called a defense of this action of his. It thus appears that his action was as inexcusable as it was wanton, except on the theory that in defiance of the attorney general of the State and at all hazards he intended, for some reasons of his own, to protect the interests of a great corporation against the law. It has been suggested on his behalf that, after all, he did not favor the Standard Oil company, but merely the Prairie Oil and Gas Company. This claim is disposed of by the testimony of the Standard Oil company itself, taken in the latter part of 1907, in the suit now pending before the United States court at St. Louis against the Standard Oil company. In this testimony, the Standard Oil company, upon being required by the government to put in a list of all companies in which it held stock, or in which its subsidiary companies held stock, reported, among the others, the Prairie Oil company, total capital $10,000,000, of which the National Transit company's proportion was $9,999,500, and furthermore it appears that the National Transit Company had a capital stock of $25,455,200, of which the Standard Oil company owned $25,451,650. In other words, this Prairie Oil and Gas company was owned, all except $500, by the National Transit company, and this National Transit company was owned, all except about $3,550, by the Standard Oil company.

Compares Bryan and Taft.
"Now, contrast your action in this case of Governor Haskell with that of Mr. Taft's action as regards Senator Foraker, as set forth in his letter of July 29, 1907. It was a matter of common notoriety about Senator Foraker, as it has long been a matter of common notoriety about Governor Haskell, that he was the defender and supporter of certain great corporate interests and therefore hostile to the policies on which the administration stood. There was no such convincing proof against Senator Foraker at that time, however, as there was against Governor Haskell, when, as you say, he was, with your approval, made treasurer of your campaign committee."

Here's A Pretty Sure Coffee Test

Some morning when you are a little out of sorts, lack appetite and feel off color, notice whether the coffee odor in the kitchen smells good to you.

Then, when you get to the table, see if it tastes good—flavor is the main thing in coffee. If you leave any coffee in your cup you can depend upon it that either your coffee was not made right or that it was not up to standard grade, probably the latter.

Coffee should be and is a great appetite producer. Our REVERE Brand is, because its flavor is first carefully arranged for by a most careful blend, and then it is properly developed by careful roasting.

State Fair Attractions.
Dallas, Tex., Sept. 23.—For the entertainment of its patrons at the twenty-third annual meet of the Texas State Fair, October 17 to November 1, the management will have the finest free attractions in history. This is based on the list of features given below, as well as the amount of money that is being expended.

Although busy with the preparation for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of Philadelphia, Bandmaster Phinney, who will bring his great band here, spends a portion of the time each week in New York, directing the rehearsals of the eight grand opera stars that will give condensed acts from popular operas of each of the sixteen days of the carnival. He is being ably assisted in this rehearsal work by Mme. Dora D. Fillipe, who comes to Dallas as prima donna of this octette of singers.

Miss Annie Laurie McCorkle, a well-known Dallas singer, who has been studying in New York for the past two years, has been engaged by Mme. De Fillipe. Mme. Fillipe writes that Miss McCorkle is a very charming young woman of refined and prepossessing appearance, possessing a voice of beautiful quality, which she uses with good taste and musical feeling. This young Texas singer has received the highest of praise from the press and the people of this State, and the announcement that she will sing at the Fair has been received with enthusiasm.

As tenor of this octette of stars, Signor Desiderio Pazzetti, who comes from the famous school of La Scala at Milan, Italy, has been engaged. His vocalizations in the scenes from "Faust," "Lucia," and other operas to be given, will be a source of inspiration to musical students, and a pleasure to those who enjoy the art of good singing in the highest form. Signor Pazzetti is well known on the grand-opera stage in Italy. He came to America with Pietro Mascagni, composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana," and is considered by that composer as one of the great singers of the times.

P. C. Funaro, considered to be the greatest euphonium soloist in the world will appear in these music hall programs. When a year or so ago Duss disbanded his organization, Signor Funaro was made an offer and at once connected himself with Sousa's concert band on its European tour. Concert goers are promised hearing one of the most powerful performers on that melodious instrument—the euphonium—that they have ever had the pleasure of listening to. For clearness of tone, range and vision it is doubtful if his equal exists.

Open air vaudeville, free to amusement lovers at the Fair, will also be a great attraction. In Amusement Park the management has contracted with the Parker Amusement Company for several marvelous free attractions headed by the great "Velaire" in his new act known as "Beyond the Limit." If the comments of the Northern press are to be taken into consideration this act is aptly named. "Velaire" mounts a wheel at the apex of the lofty incline, then plunges down a slender aerial pathway with such tremendous force that the wheel and rider are shot into space sixty feet above the earth, the wheel drops into a net suspended below, while Velaire leaps far out and somersaults through the air, diving into a shallow tank sixty-five feet from the base of the incline. It is a great act and is well worth seeing more than once.

The management has also arranged with the same organization for a clever meal of musical comedy and vaudeville. The people employed in this production are all from the Keith and Proctor circuits, with exception of the Tetsuaki group of Imperial Japanese, who come direct from Japan. The Japs put on a twenty-minute sketch entitled "Fair Japan," which promises great entertainment to fair visitors.

In Music Hall will be presented a novelty monologue entitled "Fun in a Ballroom," by G. O. McGarvey, America's leading impersonator. McGarvey brings with him to the fair a superb collection of empire and direttore gowns, and promises an entertainment not only amusing, but refined, and devoid of all horseplay whatever. Possessing a contralto voice of two and one-half octaves, he is able to carry out the grand dame effect in a manner superior to anything on the American stage. He will reopen on the Keith and Proctor circuit immediately after the fair.

ABOUT COFFEE

Some palates crave the strongest Rio, while others the oily richness of straight Mocha and Java alone will satisfy, and many others, without doubt the greatest number of people who drink ONE PARTICULAR KIND OF COFFEE, will have no other than VIENNA BLEND COFFEE. 35c per pound, or 3 pounds for $1.00. Put up in air-tight tins only. This is not as sharp as Rio nor as heavily rich as all Mocha and Java. It is between the two. That's the secret of its popularity. Its Golden Brown Color and fragrance bespeaks the superior quality of the Coffees used in blending it. The great quantity sold naturally hints that many have faith in its goodness, doesn't it? You will, too, once you try it.

A NOVEL POLITICAL DUEL THROUGH PHONOGRAPHS

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 21.—Oratory consisting of extracts from campaign speeches on various national issues by William Howard Taft and William Jennings Bryan, uncanned in phonographs instrumental selections and topical songs, also of the "canned" variety, were the weapons employed in a day-light duel fought in Spokane. The participants were Frank L. Graham, who learned the first lesson in democracy back in Missouri and Kansas late in the '90s, and George W. Leonard, formerly of upper New York, where he served an apprenticeship in the republic, ranking Roosevelt's regime as a "government" afterwards becoming a full-fledged utility man in Illinois and Iowa.

The affair, probably the most unique and novel in the history of politics in the Northwest, was pulled off in the residence district on the north side of town recently and was witnessed by several hundred persons, attracted to the scene when the machines started to grind out the candidates' comments upon the questions of the hour.

There was no official referee, no seconds nor bottle-holders at the outset, but as the personal views of the standard-bearers slid out of the horns and hit the atmosphere, the lines of partisanship were quickly drawn and it required only a count of noses to take the straw ballot.

The forces were almost evenly divided, and though no decision was reached, the followers of Bryan declare their man got under the Chicagoan's fifth rib on the railroad and trust questions, while the Taft man claim the honors because of their leader's direct appeal to the farmers and his plea for postal savings banks as governmental institutions.

Bryan also scored with his remarks on the popular election of senators. The new plan was tested in Washington at the direct primary election, Sept. 8, and proved satisfactory. Taft avowed matters when he pictured in words the conditions which necessitated certain reforms advocated by the president, speaking also of the functions of the next government.

Graham and Leonard, who are recent arrivals in Spokane, met in the Spokane theatre several weeks ago, when J. G. Phelps Stokes, of New York, talked two hours on "The Adaptability and Reasonableness of Socialism." They occupied adjoining seats and struck up an acquaintance, learning they occupied apartments nearly opposite each other. They were in the audience in Masonic temple a week later, when Eugene W. Chaffin, of Chicago, prohibition candidate for the presidency, announced he would have an old-fashioned house-cleaning in the city of Washington in the event of the establishment of the national water wagon route.

They also heard Eugene V. Debs in the state armory the night of Sept. 17. That was the beginning of the trouble. Every time Debs upper-cut the republican party Graham blistered his palms by energetic hand clapping, and when the Terre Haute man swung right and left on the democrats, Leonard rose in his chair and cheered till he was almost black in the face. The climax was reached when the chief of the Red Special hooked both candidates and figuratively bumped their heads together.

Hot words passed and the two men hurled, unparliamentary language at each other until they reached the street, where they were literally swept off their feet by the surging throng waiting to get a near view of Debs.

Graham laid in a half a dozen records by Bryan the following day, and, seeing Leonard in his room, he poked the horn of the phonograph far out of the open window and turned loose the boss democrat's views on the labor question. Leonard took down his E-flat cornet and blew "Everybody Works but Father." Graham retaliated with Bryan's argument for publicity on campaign contributions, and his erstwhile friend over the way whistled "Every Little Bit, Added to What You've Got, Makes Just a Little Bit More."

This seemingly angered Graham and he adjourned the session by slamming down the window and drawing the curtains. With this Leonard slipped down the back stairs into a store, where he bought a phonograph and a supply of Taft records and songs.

The stuff was carted to his rooms the same afternoon. It did not escape the eagle eye of Graham who scenting an argument, he lost no time in hunting up more Bryan cylinders.

While on the way to the store, Graham met Leonard, packing home an extra horn and a bundle of discs.

"I'm getting even, old boy," Leonard said, in a tone bordering on the melodramatic.

"That's a challenge I accept: phonographs as weapons," was Graham's quick reply.

"When?"

"Now?"

"Nothing barred?"

"Snits me."

Challenged and challenger parted without further parleying and 10 minutes later Leonard began hostilities with a series of bugle calls which was followed by the opening bars of "Somebody's Waiting for You." Graham came back with "I've Got My Fingers Crossed: You Can't Touch Me," switching quickly to "Just Before the Battle, Mother."

Leonard's first lunge the preliminary fiddling was on Taft's position upon the rights and progress of the negro, in which the judge says he stands squarely upon the party plank declaring in favor of justice to all men, without regard to race or color.

Graham sent over a hof'one. It was the chorus of a coon song, beginning "Somebody Lied."

Leonard's thrust also was a song number, entitled "Who? Me?"

"You Ain't the Man I Thought You Was," were the words sung out full and strong by Graham's machine.

Then Leonard slipped in a cylinder marked "I'm Old But I'm Awfully Tough."

This bit of repartee was heartily enjoyed by the crowd which had gathered in the street, and the two combatants went at it hammer and jongs.

When the wheels in Graham's machine resumed their whirring, the voice of the sage of Lincoln was heard with all its sarcasm at the expense of the defenders of the protective tariff. After reviewing events leading to the raising of the tariff, following the war and declaring that his party demands reduction, as the "infant industries" are not only able to stand upon their feet, but also walk all over everybody's feet, Bryan continued.

This tariff plank of the Denver convention not only demands —

But the voice never finished the sentence, as Leonard started full with a "Merry Ha Ha" song, which scored. He followed this up with Taft's declaration, that the democratic policy prevents the restoration of prosperity, adding:

"Such a course as taking the tariff off on all articles coming into competition with the so-called trusts would not only destroy the trusts, but all of their smaller competitors."

Graham's rejoinder was the chorus of Murray K. Hill's droll song, "Oh, Glory!" in which the Bryanites joined with vigor.

Leonard's cylinder was well into the judge's review of the progress of the peoples of our foreign dependencies when the din ceased, and before another interruption came Leonard's phonograph had spouted out these words:

"It would be cowardly to lay down the burden of bringing education and happiness to the millions of these people until our purpose is achieved."

"Imperialism!" cried an excited man, as Graham reached for a new record, adding: "Let's hear what Bill Bryan says about that."

Short, though full of meat, were the sentences that issued from the Graham horn, Bryan's voice declaring that the republican party has never yet dared to admit its imperialistic purposes, "and yet," it continued, "it is administering a colonial policy upon a theory utterly opposed to that of self-government."

Leonard's retort was a song, the chorus of which announces that "Mother Hasn't Spoke to Father Since."

At this point a score of phonographs and self-taught pianists and horn-blowers in the neighborhood joined in the melee and a clash was threatened. Then one machine louder than the rest broke in with the "Red, White and Blue," and some one started "You're a Grand Old Flag." The words and air were taken up by the crowd and the novel duel was at an end.

DIRECTOIRE AT FREDERICK.

Ladies Object to Display of the Sheath Gown in Merchant's Window.

Frederick, Ok., Sept. 21.—"Perfectly scandalous! A shame and a disgrace to the town! That horrible, horrible man! How could he do it? Shame on him! May the Lord have mercy on him!"

This is a fair interpretation of the thoughts, and of some of the expressions of a committee of church women who marched in a body to the show window of a local merchant, where had been placed on spectacular exhibition a sheath gown, garbed in the attractive form of a wax figure and presented a female demand that it be removed to the basement.

"Sorry, ladies, that I cannot comply with your request; the sheath gown has been placed in the window to stay," coolly replied the merchant.

The committee collapsed, then regained its composure and made another demand. It was as coolly refused, and the committee departed.

Every Non-Progressive Merchant Becomes Your Competitor When You Cease to Advertise

WHEN a merchant "slows up" in his advertising, and concludes to "save a little money" in that direction, then the merchant who never had the courage and foresight to advertise adequately BECOMES A REAL COMPETITOR. Even the merchant who never advertises at all reaps a certain amount of profit from the "slowing up" process of the live store. Not many merchants, of course, who have at any time set the pace for progressive advertising, will be content to take a backward plunge into the company of the non-progressives, of the LITTLE MERCHANTS, the easily satisfied ones, the un-awakes! But that is just what the "live one" does when he imagines that his advertising is costing too much, and that its curtailment means saving. If business conditions ever suggest retrenchment in advertising, the wise merchant knows that this should be interpreted as a signal for "full speed ahead," for redoubled efforts to WIN the business that does not come so easily as usual. :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

THE MASONS TO OFFICIATE.

Cornerstone of New City Hall to be Laid on October 2nd.

At a meeting of the committee on arrangements at the Masonic Hall this morning a program for the laying of the cornerstone of Wichita Falls' new city hall was mapped out and the various committees appointed.

Friday, October 2nd, has been settled upon as the day for the laying of the cornerstone, and the ceremonies will be conducted by W. Lee Moore, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Texas, A. F. & A. M., assisted by the local lodge.

Invitations have been authorized sent to all the Masonic lodges within a radius of fifty miles of Wichita Falls, urging the members with their families to come to Wichita Falls on that day, with a promise that the local lodge will provide for their comfort and entertainment during their visit to this city.

Immediately after the cornerstone laying, a free excursion to Lake Wichita will be tendered the Masons and their ladies, where a fish fry is scheduled to take place. On returning from the lake, refreshments will be served at the Masonic Hall.

It is expected that all the railroads entering this city will give reduced rates for this occasion and a big crowd is expected.

New York, Sept. 22.—The Giants' defeat yesterday caused the loss of "Blinky," Donovan's right eye.

"Blinky" who is well known on the Great White Way, stood with a thousand others in front of a bulletin board watching the Giants-Pirates' score. He was so sure that Mike Donlin would lift a home run in the ninth and tie the score that he cried:

"Bet my right eye Mike'll hit a homer."

"Take you," called a voice near by. He was Dave Lion. When the crowd scattered as the bulletins marked Donlin's out the bettors ran for the Metropole.

"That was a good joke," said Lion. "You had the crowd going."

"Joke nothing," said Donovan. "I am no welcher. I pay my bet."

Saying which he gouged out his right eye and laid it on the bar, while Lion

No Servant-Girl Problem.

"We have no servant-girl problem out in my country, for the reason that there are no servant girls," said Mr. Thomas M. Dorchester of British Columbia.

"The only thing left for us to do is to hire Chinese and Japanese as domestics. It is difficult to get a Chinese servant nowadays, as the government has put a tax of $500 on all of that race who settle in our section. At the same time I would not give one Chinaman for a dozen Japs, and that is the reason I pay my Chinese cook $35 a month when I could get Jap for something less.

"In California, where I used to live, it is the same way. The people greatly prefer the Chinese, but the exclusion act has made them scarce and necessity forces the employment of the Japanese, who are not nearly so reliable or agreeable."—Baltimore American.
