OIL PRICES TO BE PROBED BY JAMES ALLRED

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Attorney General James V. Allred of Texas said here today he intended to investigate crude oil discriminations in Texas which, he asserted, have resulted in loss to the West Texas oil fields of approximately $320,000,000.

Allred said the loss to the West Texas fields was a result of the opening of the East Texas oil field, with price decreases as high as 40 per cent.

He said he intended to propose to Industrial Administration Hugh Johnson that the oil industry code contain a provision preventing oil price discrimination in Texas, and placing oil prices on a parity with the proviso that prices may differ where there is a fair differential in transportation costs.

AUSTIN, July 25.—Investigation of prices paid for oil in West Texas has been under way quietly for some time, First Assistant Attorney General Elbert Hooper said here today following Attorney General Allred's announcement at Washington.

The gathering of the data has been in the hands of Assistant Attorney General Ralph Yarbrough.

Floods Damage Roads and Crops Over East Texas

Americans Held In Spanish Jail

The jailing of five Americans at Palma, on the island of Majorca, on the charge of assaulting a civil guard, has led the state department to bring pressure to bear upon the Spanish government for their release. Two of the five held without bail are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood (shown above) of Springfield, Mass.

BARROW GANG LINKED WITH RECENT KILLING

WICHITA, Kans., July 25.—Department of Justice agents at Kansas City today telephoned local authorities that a trio believed to be the Barrow gang passed through Junction City, Kansas, apparently headed for Wichita.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 25.—The notorious Barrow brothers gang, sought in northwest Iowa today, was tentatively linked with the massacre of federal officers and a prisoner at the Kansas City union station several weeks ago.

Ballistic tests to ascertain whether guns left behind yesterday at Dexter, Ia., by three retreating members of the Texas outlaws and confiscated by authorities were those used in the sensational Kansas City shooting were being made today.

O. C. Dewey, department of justice agent, announced he believed the Barrow brothers were participants in the massacre.

Meanwhile a heavy guard was thrown along the northern borders of Iowa today in belief that members of the gang who shot their way through a posse yesterday were headed for Minnesota or North Dakota.

Kidnap Case to Go to Jury Soon

KANSAS CITY, July 25.—The fate of Walter H. McGee, confessed leader of the gang that kidnaped Mary McElroy, will rest in the hands of 12 men, six of them fathers, and 10 of them married.

Upon completion of the jury today the state in its opening statement formally announced the death penalty would be asked for the kidnaper of the girl who is the daughter of City Manager McElroy.

Rooms and Board Needed for Ranger College Students

Many college students from out of town are daily inquiring of H. S. Von Roeder, dean of the Ranger Junior college, about suitable places to get room and board, rooms, light housekeeping rooms and houses for the coming term.

Those who have anyone of these to offer incoming students or families are urged to notify Mr. Von Roeder at once so he may direct them accordingly. A number of boys and girls are also asked for places where they might work for part or all of their tuition or for room and board. The citizens of Ranger are requested to cooperate with the school authorities in placing prospective students and in making it possible for them to attend the Ranger Junior college with as little expense as possible.

Mr. Von Roeder is out soliciting students for the college and he reports that prospects are bright for another record enrollment in the college as a much larger enrollment from outside of Ranger is expected this year than ever before.

Automobile Men To Hold Meeting At Gholson Hotel

G. E. Robinson today announced that another meeting of automobile men, gasoline dealers and all connected with the automobile business, would be held in the Gholson Hotel tonight at 8:00 o'clock.

Completion of the code under the industrial recovery act will take up the major portion of the time, after a report by C. B. Pruet on the meeting held recently at San Antonio, to which he was a delegate.

A similar meeting was held in Breckenridge last night, at which more than 100 were present. Mr. Robinson stated today that none of the code recommendations would be sent in until all towns in this district had been heard from and at present every town was organized with the exception of Strawn.

Italian Armada of Planes Takes Off

NEW YORK, July 25.—General Italo Balbo, Italy's air minister, today led his fleet of 24 war planes out of New York, homeward bound after the most spectacular mass flight in history.

The first of the planes rose from the waters at 10 a. m. E. D. T., followed in rapid succession by the remainder of the squadron, and headed due north for Shediac, New Brunswick, the first port of call on the return voyage to Italy.

Grain Prices Rise On Chicago Board

CHICAGO, July 25.—Grain prices shook off the heavy burden of forced liquidation which has hung over the market since the terrific collapse of last week and closed higher today.

Even corn, which clung all day to the minimum price allowed by board of trade directors, showed life today and advanced 3-4 to 1-8 cents above the bottom. Wheat was up 1-4 to 1-8 cents.

SIGN OF RECOVERY

Soon you will see this badge, in red and blue, reproduced in shop windows, on factories, on the labels of goods, on letterheads. It means that the proprietors of the factory or shop displaying the sign or the makers of goods bearing it, are co-operating with the National Recovery Administration by adopting the working conditions which the administration believes necessary for recovery. The President himself has urged that organizations displaying this label be patronized rather than others which have refused to co-operate.

FORT WORTH, July 25.—Police today sought an 18-year-old negro youth as a suspect in the slaying of A. S. Michael 33, of Fort Worth, and his companion, Miss Geneva Centrell, 19, of Oklahoma.

Footprints at the scene where the bodies were found yesterday on a north side street indicated the slayer limped. Negro acquaintances of the negro sought said the youth limped and that he placed only the heel of his right foot on the ground.

Meanwhile, funeral services for Michael were held today at the home of his sister, Mrs. Floyd Ellis, of Cleburne. He will be buried in Rice, Texas.

American Government Acts To Stamp Out Racketeering in U. S.

By C. C. NICOLET
United Press Staff Correspondent (Copyright 1933, by United Press)
The power of the United States government, and that power alone can end the rule of the racketeers over the chief cities of America.

Under the "New Deal" of the Roosevelt Administration, this fact has been recognized for the first time. Haphazard income tax prosecutions and occasional federal interference along other lines have made slight progress in the fight to protect American business men or workers from extortionists. The United Press, in its survey of racket conditions, has disclosed a strong preponderance of opinion among responsible officials that federal aid is vital.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Grain trade leaders threatened with government control, today proposed to the agriculture adjustment administration, a series of reforms that they will seek to write into their board of trade rules in an effort to prevent future speculative runaways.

The proposals were said to have the approval of the administration. The reforms included:

1. The removal of the government restriction on grain price fluctuations with substitute limits of five cents a bushel for wheat, four cents for corn and three cents for oats.
2. Provision for future permanent limitations of daily price fluctuations.
3. Limitation of open lines of speculative commitments.
4. Permanent elimination of indemnity trading.

CHARGE MAJOR OIL COMPANIES ESCAPE CODE

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, charged at the oil code hearing today that under the proposed code for the industry large oil companies would be enabled, through the "lease and agency" system to escape the minimum wage and maximum hours provisions.

Baker represented the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil association at the hearing, which industrial recovery administration officials hope may be concluded today so that code proceedings may be speeded up.

Baker asserted the system whereby big oil companies leased independent stations is being used to "dry up" crude oil outlets. He said an investigation by the Pennsylvania association revealed independent operators have been reduced sharply in number since 1911.

Eastland County Homeowners To Save $38,500 Tax

AUSTIN, July 25.—Homeowners of Eastland county will be saved $38,500 in state taxes during 1934 by operation of the homestead exemption amendment to the state constitution.

A preliminary estimate of assessments in the county, made to Comptroller George H. Sheppard, shows an estimate of $22,500,000 assessments for county taxes, and $17,500,000 for state taxes. The saving will be the entire prospective 77-cent state tax rate on the difference, covering the resident homesteads exempted from state taxation.

NUMBER MAY REACH 10,000 BEFORE NIGHT

"It Will Be Done" Is Slogan of Employers' Telegrams Promising Support.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Pledges of allegiance approaching war-time fervor poured in on the government today as Americans answered President Roosevelt's call for a united and immediate offensive to conquer the enemy of depression.

"It will be done" was the slogan of thousands of messages in response to President Roosevelt's appeal to employers to sign an agreement giving fair and uniform wages for all and spreading employment by shortening working hours.

The president barely had finished speaking last night before the wires to Washington were jammed with messages pledging support of large and small business men.

An official of one telegraph company estimated the number of messages for Mr. Roosevelt would reach 10,000 by early this morning. His company held three times the usual number of employees to handle the stream of responses.

He said he could recall no such response to a presidential appeal since Woodrow Wilson, in 1917, summoned the nation to a different kind of war.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
 LOVE DEFRAUDS NOT: Owe no man any thing, but to love one another. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not covet. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Romans 13: 8, 9.

SPEAKING OF THE $20,000,000 BOND ISSUE PROPOSAL

Federal Administrator Harry Hopkins has given repeated warnings that unless Texas and all other states fail to do a co-operative part in providing relief funds for the needy not another dollar of the appropriations made by the congress will be given Texas or any other commonwealth which fails to meet the requirement of the administration. All this has led to a concerted movement to carry the Aug. 26 election in favor of the $20,000,000 state bonds to provide funds for unemployment relief in co-operation with the federal government.

An important conference was held in the city of Austin. Twenty-two populous cities and towns sent representatives. They spoke for 40 per cent of the population of Texas. They adopted resolutions calling on people to vote for the bonds. They adopted a resolution calling for the creation of a steering committee to conduct a most aggressive campaign in support of the proposal. A committee will be selected by Col. Lawrence Westbrook, director of the Texas rehabilitation and relief committee, Mayor C. B. Quinn of San Antonio, and Judge Frost Woodhull.

Former Gov. James E. Ferguson, representing the state administration, made a vigorous appeal for all concerned to go the limit in the organization work in order to bring victory at the polls on Aug. 26.

Speaking of the army of the idle, it was stated that Texas has 1,270,000 persons needing help at the present time, that winter follows in the wake of summer and that preparedness is ever necessary on the part of those who would cooperate with the federal government or rather the Roosevelt administration, in the relief work which has assumed huge proportions in many sections of the country since the crash of 1929.

Federal Administrator Harry Hopkins did not stammer or stutter when he gave his warning. If Texans expect to share in the federal relief funds, then they must do something in the way of providing state funds to help the cause along.

The ballot will be the thing on Aug. 26. There are many important amendments awaiting the action of the electorate. There should be a tremendous outpouring of voters. They are the masters. They pay the taxes. They carry the burdens of the cost of government. They carry the burden of providing for relief for those who are unable to furnish their own relief in this very trying period of Texas and American history.

"OVER SPECULATION SENDS STOCKS AND STAPLES DOWN"

There has been a constant reminder on this page to give heed to the "tickings of the ticker" daily and do some tall thinking before one buys. This carried by the Associated Press wires July 20 tells the story of the ticker for a day: "Stocks and staples tumbled Wednesday in one of the worst relapses of the 1933 bull market and overloaded traders rushed for the heavy profits that had been accumulating in the past three months." Cotton tumbled $2.50 a bale. Speculation flops sent wheat down. Corn and oats developed more steadily. Cottonseed oil was weak. There was a fair demand for wool. One bright spot in the Wall Street picture "was the bond market."

Washington sent out word that the big bull operators in the Street had been given a hint that it would be wise for them to take a mid-summer vacation. Yes, watch the ticker. Watch it daily. Study the quotations. Watch the fluctuations, speaking of American staples and their price levels.

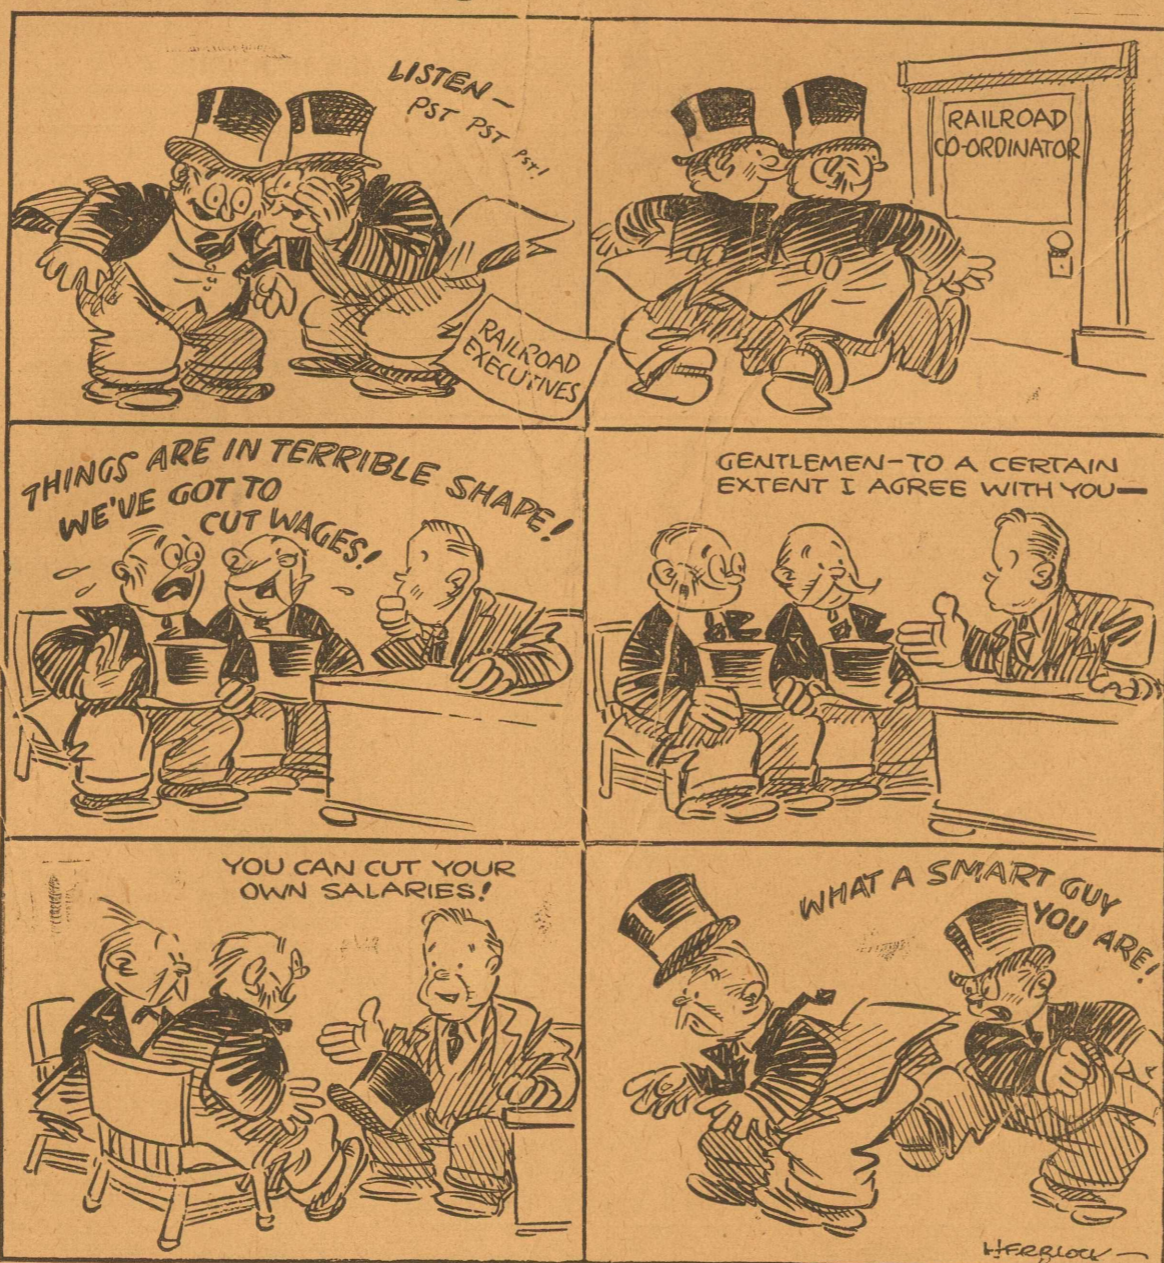

This nation had one sucker gambling carnival which crashed in 1929. It is not in need of another wild sucker gamble in the street called Wall. Davy Crockett was right. This was his advice to the men and women of his period: "Be sure you are right and then go ahead." A change of words in the phrasing is permissible: "Be sure you are safe and then go ahead."

SPEAKING OF FOOD PRICES THE COUNTRY OVER

Retail food prices in 51 American cities were three and a third per cent higher June 15 but still three and a third per cent lower than a year ago. All this for the yowlers or critics who are clamoring against "the high cost of living."

The actual fact of over production and poor distribution seems to be a bewildering business for Members of Congress who have gotten themselves thoroughly tangled up in their endeavor to explain to the folks at home just why there should be nation wide unemployment and distress, to say nothing about millions of our citizens near actual starvation. While the way out becomes more and more involved as the professors present them with new ideas and plans, they seem to have lost their bearings and are wandering in circles.

The Terrible Plight of the Railroad Executives

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

It takes better business to build a city. Better business and prosperity go hand in hand. A city will grow as its business concerns grow. A city is known by the reputation of its retail concerns. One live business will bring some business to a city. Many live concerns will bring much business to a city. When all the business concerns of a city are alive and on the job, when they work together to hold their present trade, attract new trade and extend their trade territory, the increase in business for the home city will be surprising.

The stronger their appeal of price, quality, variety and service, the better will be the results obtained.

Today is the day of keen business competition, a time when the automobile has cut down distance and time to such an extent that people will be attracted to a live city in ever increasing numbers.

Cities that are awake are reaching out into new fields and securing business they never had a chance at before.

Business world having is worth going after. If it is not gone after by your city, some other city will get it!

"ASH CANS" WILL RACE

It wasn't always so. In the beginning I tried his brand, and I got him to try mine. Well, he liked mine...but not for the same reason that I say "Luckies Please". He said Luckies taste fine and they're ever so mild. But I'm a woman and I pride myself on my sense of daintiness—for, my cigarette does touch my lips and it's personal, intimate thing with me. WASHINGTON.—The question of patronage is an irritating one here, not only to republicans, but also to loyal democrats who are waiting for Postmaster General Farley to shake the plum tree.

Open revolt against the failure of Roosevelt, Farley & Co., to pass the biscuits resulted in the formation of a special committee of house democrats headed by Representative McClintic of Oklahoma to get action.

People with long memories have not forgotten that the Harding administration made a clean sweep when the Ohio gang marched on Washington 12 years ago.

Now these same gentlemen are rising to remark patriotically that the sanctity of republican jobs shall be held inviolate.

Smith supporters in New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut are being given scant notice at the patronage pie-counter, and democratic congressmen who lined up with "AI" feel that they are being deliberately left to warm their heels in Jim Farley's waiting room.

Echoes of the Schmelling-Sharkey fight are being heard in the throne room of the federal radio commission, where complaint is entered against brazen deceptions practiced by certain radio broadcasting stations when they simulated round-by-round reports from the ringside at Madison Square Garden.

Several of the stations used clicking telegraph instruments as props, and turned on phonograph discs of yelling crowds to make the reports realistic.

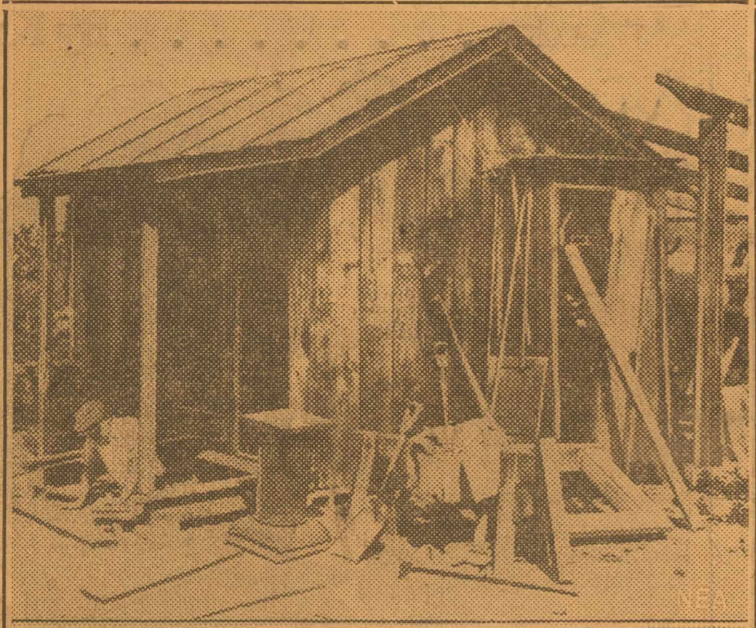

The economy axe was dropped among employes of the radio commission, five at headquarters and five in the "field." Reduced appropriations for the fiscal year 1934 is the stated reason for what the commission itself describes as "separations."

The broadcasters, who fattened their own private pocketbooks with dollars cleaned from radio advertising, didn't contribute even a plugged nickel to the million bucks. Uncle Sam, the big sap, has been paying the freight, and hasn't had the sense to levy a substantial tax on the millions of dollars which the radio monopolists have been reaping.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, a total of $780,587 was appropriated, and this amount was slashed, so that during the fiscal year from July 1 to June 30, 1934, the commission will have to struggle along somehow with only $640,000.

In three years' time the federal government will have spent a total

Family Endangered Rescuing Swimmer

SYLVESTER, Texas.—It took three girls, a boy and a man to rescue 6-year-old Dent Bailio when he stepped into a deep hole while wading.

A sister, Gladys, 12, went to his rescue and was herself near drowning when another sister, Verlie, 19, saved her. But Dent, another sister, Lois, 17, and a brother, Leslie, 16, swimming nearby, joined in the rescue. G. N. Bailio, the father, appeared in time to direct the search.

Dane to Circle U. S. in a Tiny Canoe

STAMFORD, Conn.—Harold Thor Jensen, native of Denmark, but something of a world citizen because of his travels, now is en route on a trip by canoe from Montreal around Cape Horn to Vancouver.

Jensen stopped here recently to have his canoe repaired and to rest. He is without friends, but depends upon what he can pick up in various ports, and on the generosity of comrades of the sea for enough to provide food.

Jensen started from Montreal in December, accompanied by another man. His companion became incapacitated through rheumatism, however, and after taking him back to Montreal, Jensen resumed his trip at Boston.

Vote of Southern States on Liquor Alarms the Drys

By W. WINSTON COPELAND United Press Staff Correspondent FORT WORTH.—The sweeping of the first three southern states—Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee—into the prohibition repeal ranks has excited both factions in the state headquarters here for repeal and for legalization of 3.2 beer in Texas.

While many drys shake their heads defiantly and roll up their sleeves for a harder drive to save Texas for the dry cause, the wets are jubilant.

In Arkansas, Alabama and Tennessee the wets see a forerunner of what Texas will do on Aug. 25. It is the "handwriting on the wall" to the drys, they believe. It is the breaking over of traditionally dry Dixie.

Most of the drys do not see it that way, but some of the leaders guardedly concede Texas will vote for repeal. They believe, however, it will be a short-lived victory and that all America will eventually swing back to the dry cause and again erase liquor.

Since the Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee victories, sharp criticism of President Roosevelt and his administration has exuded from some dry quarters, from leaders who gave him strong campaign support.

The battle over repeal and legalization of beer has been hotter here perhaps than in any other part of Texas. Consequently leaders on both sides did not hesitate to express their views on the three southern states which voted wet.

"With the government spending $150,000,000 for relief to cotton growers, what can you expect?" said Dr. J. Frank Norris, plain-spoken Baptist minister.

"The victory is empty. The liquor crowd will bring back the saloon and then be wiped off again—for good. If there was a campaign in Arkansas and Alabama I didn't hear about it. Texas drys will do better."

J. W. (Happy) Shelton, county chairman of the Texas Liberal legion, however, predicted a four-to-one or five-to-one victory in Texas.

"The 18th amendment is doomed," he said. "We knew we would have our hardest fight in Arkansas, Alabama and Tennessee."

The Rev. W. H. Coleman, president of the Fort Worth ministerial alliance and a recognized state dry leader, blamed the "old worn-out cry of party loyalty" for the southern wet victory.

"We are not discouraged," he said. "We will never surrender to the fiendish liquor traffic, its political corruption, its pauperizing character-blighting, crime-producing reign of debauchery."

Walter P. Luck, district commander of the Crusaders, wet organization, predicted a two-to-one Texas victory.

"There is no question the 18th amendment is doomed," he said. "It is only a matter of how soon we can get election machinery in other states in motion for elections."

Mrs. J. T. Bloodworth, district president of the W. C. T. U., said the fight is not lost, either in Texas or the nation.

"Texans think for themselves too much and have too much individuality to vote wet because of party mandates. A misled public, influenced to believe that repeal would cure economic ills, brought about the wet victory in Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee. We still have a fighting chance in the states yet to vote."

Scraping Ships Exceeded Building During Past Year

WASHINGTON.—Nations of the world scrapped two vessels for every new one launched in 1932, according to an announcement from the commerce department.

While more than a million and a quarter tons of merchant ships under all flags were decommissioned during that year, only 726,591 gross tons in new ships were built, the report said.

Great Britain, who depends on a merchant marine for her existence, scrapped 96 vessels.

Texas Largest Factory Farm Offered For Sale

By MERRILL E. COMPTON United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS.—The "factory farm," modeled along the lines of a motor car factory, is apparently destined to become a thing of the past.

Announcement of a receiver's sale Aug. 1, of 7,000 to 8,000 acres of the Hickman Price farm in West Texas, near Amarillo, is perhaps the closing chapter in one of the most pretentious ventures of this kind.

Price, former newspaper executive and California film company official, was the leading proponent of the "factory" farm plan in Texas.

Three other middle western farming projects established during the past decade shared prominence. Each now has been scaled down to average farm size. Their motorized equipment is stored away.

In Kansas, the nearest thing to rival Price's 22,000-acre farm which produced in 1931 a half million bushels of wheat, was the wheat farming company of Hays. Last week the Kansas supreme court issued a formal order closing the business, cancelled its charter under a state code forbidding farming associations from operating at a profit.

James Jennek, whose thousands of acres of wheat near Alliance, Neb., earned him the title, "wheat king of Nebraska," has scaled down his operations. Today his motorized farming machinery rusts in storage.

Gus and Henry Hitch, whose 8,500 acres of wheat ranked first in acreage in Oklahoma, no longer are big scale operators. Adverse weather struck them. Their machinery is in storage.

Twelve months ago Price summoned his creditors to Kress, headquarters of his farm, advised them he was ready to surrender his property.

A receiver was appointed. Part of the land was leased. Price stayed through the fall months supervising planting.

Now, with creditors forcing sale of part of the property, it is likely his gigantic project will be scaled down.

Price saw super-farming taking hold in the United States because of three principles:

- 1. The use of cheap power. 2. The utilization of large areas ultimately erasing fence lines. 3. The use of expert management.

With a flair for Hollywood trumpeting he came to Texas to enlarge upon the farm which had been his grandfather's. That was in 1928.

By 1931 he was known as the world's largest wheat farmer. Motor trucks roared over highways carrying wheat to market; oil for tractors back to farm headquarters. Twenty-five combines and eight wind-rowing machines ran day and night in the harvest season. Fifty tractors were used, five motorcycle messengers carried orders, 100 motor trucks, 250 men, a 15-acre garden and bunk houses mounted on truck bodies rolled along behind the army of laborers.

Price had four farms, one of 4,480 acres, the others had 7,080, 8,640 and 9,600 acres and the closest were seven miles apart—the farthest 120 miles apart. Thus, he said, weather conditions which would affect one would not bother the other.

The combination of circumstances which hit him in 1932 were climaxed by a poor market for wheat. Debtors in July, last year, made claims for nearly $200,000, much of it for machinery and supplies. It is the unwillingness of some creditors now to "ride" out the storm which is forcing the sale Aug. 1.

Holy Year Will Honor St. Peter

VATICAN CITY.—Holy Year will be commemorated in a special way in the basilica of St. Peter by the completion of a mosaic inscription recalling the life and sayings of St. Peter, which was begun in 1867, but never finished.

The inscription consisting of Greek and Latin texts from the gospels relative to St. Peter, runs around the inside of St. Peter's cathedral under the cornice.

In 1867, on the occasion of the centenary of St. Peter, the inscription was placed under the cornice of the apse and in part of the cross-shaped aisles.

The band of mosaic carrying the inscriptions is nearly seven feet wide, and runs around the church for 2,400 feet. There are some 1,900 square feet still to cover, and about 16 tons of enamel will be used.

The work will be carried out by the Vatican School of Mosaic Work by the end of Holy Year.

HAPPY LANDINGS AGAINST the black night a ten-mile finger of light sweeps the clouds in tireless circles. Out of the darkness you hear the drone of an invisible plane. The motors roar louder. They fade to a faint hum... then silence. The night mail has passed. Far above in the cockpit a muffled figure peers ahead, picking up beacon after beacon. Over treacherous mountains and forests and cliff-like cities they lead him safely to a "happy landing." The advertisements in this paper are beacons erected by manufacturers and merchants to aid you in making "happy landings" with your buying dollars. Through the confusion and obscurity of unbranded, unsponsored merchandise they mark a straight path to known values, honest service and safe investment. To be at all successful, the manufacturer and the merchant must advertise. To remain unknown is to be passed by. Peculiarly—the reflex of advertising is that it compels truth. The advertiser who deliberately misrepresents is like the aviator who "bales out" without a parachute.

Federal Aid For Texas May Stop If Bond Issue Fails

AUSTIN.—The "big stick" of the federal government has passed like a wand over Texas politics, leaving converts to a $20,000,000 state bond issue for relief in its trail.

From the federal relief faucet has trickled nearly $1,500,000 a month into Texas for the care of 1,272,000 jobless, hungry persons.

Federal Administrator Harry Hopkins has promised to turn off the tap unless Texas moves to help itself.

Persons who winked when the legislature placed the bond issue on the Aug. 26 ballot, believing destitution would be over by the time voters went to the polls, now are joining hands with Westbrook and Ferguson.

The federal government's "big stick" was not, however, waved over Texas with a threatening gesture.

The only logical conclusion Relief Administrator Hopkins could draw from this state's refusal to pass the bond issue would be that counties and cities believed themselves capable of caring for the relief burden, and that federal funds no longer were necessary.

"We're not pessimistic, just realistic," declared vigorous Colonel Westbrook in commenting on the necessity of passing the relief bond issue. "We are conscious of an acute problem that will become more acute if we fail to pass the bond issue."

John Citizen may desire to know why the state should be saddled with a bond issue when Texas is to be given $24,500,000 federal highway aid for unemployment relief, and $200,000,000 for public works to provide jobs.

Relief Director Westbrook will reply the drought has magnified the needs of struggling families, that the picture of destitution in Texas may grow darker with the approach of winter.

It is even hinted in Austin that failure to approve the bond issue will affect adversely the federal government's distribution of public works and highway funds; that if Texas fails to manifest an interest in the relief of its destitute, the federal government will not.

English Setter Had Tonsil Operation

COS COB, Conn.—"Jep," a six-year-old English setter, is in an enviable position in dog circles here, for he has a medical operation to his credit.

When C. Carlton Killey, "Jep's" owner, noticed the dog seemed to have contracted rheumatism he took him to a veterinary.

A case of bad tonsils, was the diagnosis, and so "Jep" went on the operating table and under ether.

With the tonsils out "Jep" is recovering and the lameness is disappearing.

C. C. MEMBERS CAN'T SMOKE

FLORENCE, Colo.—Members of the civilians conservation corps working in Colorado have been refused permission to smoke while on duty. The reason for that rule, according to Ranger Henry A. Payson, in charge of a group working in San Isabel preserve here, is not based on a desire to deprive them of the pleasure, but to prevent forest fires. The men are allowed to smoke at meal time. The corps is being trained in methods of fighting forest fires.

BARGAIN BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ELINOR STAFFORD falls in love with BARRETT COLVIN. She is 20 and he is 35. LIDA STAFFORD, Elinor's jealous, scheming mother, breaks up the romance by convincing Barrett that Elinor is a heartless flirt. Miss Elinor's aunt, wealthy MISS ELIA SEXTON, dies she leaves her fortune to Barrett. Then drunken VANCE CARTER shoots BENTWELL STAFFORD, Elinor's father. Barrett tells Elinor that if she will marry him and live as a guest in his home for a year he will give her the entire SEXTON fortune to divide among her relatives, the rightful inheritors. Knowing the money may save her father's life, Elinor agrees.
The marriage takes place. Barrett, still believing the lies Lida had told him, finds himself more in love with Elinor than ever. The doctor orders a change of climate for her father and Elinor goes to Aiken with him.
Years before Barrett abided his half-sister, MARCIA RADNOR, when a youthful romance ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. He has promised Marcia never to reveal the boy's story. Lida Stafford learns about the boy's existence and concludes he is Barrett's son.
Barrett makes an unannounced trip to Aiken. He finds BOB TELFARE there and suspects Elinor of carrying on a flirtation with Bob. In an angry scene he tells her that he knows all about her affairs. Later he apologizes.
That night Bentwell Stafford dies.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVIII

BARRETT arose with a jerk and took the stairs two at a time. The nurse was waiting for him in the upper hall. She whispered, "Perhaps you can help Mrs. Colvin. We're worried about her. They were so devoted."
He opened Elinor's door without waiting to hear more, stepped into the room and closed the door after himself. A small night light was burning by the bed. Elinor lay there dry-eyed and too quiet. He crossed the room swiftly to lean above her.
"Child!" he whispered.
"I haven't anyone now," she said clearly.
"You have me as long as you want me. So long as there is anything I can do for you," he assured her.
He sat down on the edge of the bed and took one of her small hands between his. It was cold, twitching. He laid a hand on her bare shoulder and noticed that it was as cold as her hand. She looked questioningly at him.
"You're cold, Elinor."
"Am I?"
He rubbed her hands, suddenly raised her and held her in his arms. For a moment she was rigid. Then she relaxed and he heard the first deep sob that shook her.
"Darling!" he whispered. "Darling!"
A half hour later Miss Hemmingway entered the room after Barrett's "Come!" answered her knock. He was sitting in a deep chair before the fire he had started. Elinor, wrapped in blankets, was in his arms. She had been crying. Miss Hemmingway saw with relief. That reaction was normal and reassuring. The girl had seemed too unnaturally contained.
"I brought another sleeping powder for Mrs. Colvin."
"Good!" said Barrett. Elinor sat up, drank it and then lay back. Miss Hemmingway saw the man's arms tighten as she closed the door.
"Am I tiring you?" Elinor asked.
"Dearest, you could not tire me this way."
HE stroked her hair with a hand that had grown unsteady, bent his head until his cheek touched her cheek that was hot from tears.
"Elinor!"
"Yes?"
"I want to ask you to give me another trial. Let me show you that I'm not so changeable as you think. I won't bother you in any way, I promise. Do you believe me?"
"Yes?"
"What I want most from life now is to take care of you. Nothing else matters to me."
Her hand moved and for a second he felt that it pressed his hand faintly. He touched her soft hair with his lips, stared blindly at the leaping fire.
"I want a chance to make you care for me without feeling ashamed."
"I'm sorry I said that, Barrett. I know it's my fault that you can't care steadily."
"But you'll find I can!" he promised. Why, he asked himself, had he expected the impossible from her? There were no women who did not, in some way, let men down. Marcia had and so had her fiery, sullen mother. Elinor's mother had been brutally frank in her revelations of the failings of her sex. Miss Elia had felt that no form of spying was beneath her. They were obviously all alike, yet sometimes a man found one woman who compelled his love and thus a compromise. He had found Elinor. Doubtless Bob Telfare had held her as he did now but he told himself he must not think of that.
He moved gently so that he could look down at her face, pressed against his shoulder. She was so white, so pitifully white, "If I could kiss you," he thought, "and know you kissed no one else!"
She whispered softly, "You must be tired."
"No!"
"You're very good to me," she said in a drugged tone that is the result of pain and shock.
"I love you," he told her.
THE small French clock struck two sharp notes. Elinor slept and then woke with a cry to sob anew. He soothed her, felt her relax, and trembled, knowing that his touch could comfort her. At four he put her into bed without waking her. Then, lowering the night light, he settled in a small chair that stood near. The fire died; the room turned black.
It seemed to him, waiting there for any need that she could have of him, that he had never been so close to a human soul as he was to her and without the faintest physical touch. Perhaps, he reasoned it was because for the first time he was thinking only of another.
When she woke he was sleeping and the first dim morning sunlight was printed on the floor. As she looked at him Barrett opened his eyes and stared at her wonderingly for a short space and then remembered.
He rose from the chair with a stiffened jerk and, hand on her shoulder, looked down at her.
"Elinor," he said, "I want you to know that I'll do everything I can to help you."
He thought of those mornings after his father's death when he, waking, wondered first what troubled him and then remembered with aching suddenness.
"Elinor!"
Her eyes brimmed. He dropped to the edge of the bed and drew her into his arms.
"We'll get through this, dearest," he promised. "She was clinging to him. He felt a sweep of dizziness, a surge of blood that made his ears ring."
"You sat here—all night?" she asked in a whisper. He closed his eyes. Her hand moving on his arm!
"Where else would I be?" he answered as steadily as he could, "so long as I thought you might need anything I could give you?" He held her away a moment, looking down on her. "You know I love you," he added, "but not how much."
A GAIN he held her close and knew that she was crying. "Remember what I said. It need not bother you," he heard himself assure her, his voice a little roughened.
"I love you," she said hesitatingly. "But I loved you before and it did nothing—but hurt me."
"I'll make you very certain that it won't hurt you from now on," he promised. "I'll give you all the time you want for the test. And now I want you to get up, dress and get out of the house into the sunshine with me. Will you, dear?"
"Yes," she answered. She had drawn away from him. "I do love you," she said, "but give me time. I'm afraid! I'm afraid of love!"
Then she kissed him.
Refreshed by a cold tub, Barrett dressed. He felt a contentment he had not known for weeks. Of course he was deeply sympathetic with Elinor in her suffering but he had the knowledge that throughout the ordeal he had kept his head. He would give her time and with time perhaps as much trust would come between them as there could be between a man and woman.
He breakfasted, wandered out of the house and a short half hour later she joined him. She looked worn and spent. He wrapped her in rugs and tucked her into a deck chair on the terrace, her back toward the bushes, gloomy here.
Her hand sought his and rested there.
"Mother is coming by plane," he heard her say. Barrett's brows drew close. For some reason beyond his dislike for her he dreaded Lida Stafford's coming.

Dutch Co. to Seek Treasure Ship

By United Press
PARIS.—Forthcoming efforts by a Dutch syndicate to raise the British flagship "La Lutine," entombed 134 years in North Sea shallows off the island of Ter Schelling, have revived French interest in its treasure, reputedly $6,000,000 in gold ingots.
In 1867 the French made a futile and costly attempt to raise the sand-buried ship, and in that abortive venture $2,000,000 in small savings of thousands of Frenchmen were lost. Subsequently British and German struggled valiantly over the ship's tomb, lured by the gold sealed in her bulkheads.
It was in October, 1799, when the flagship was carrying 1,200,000 pounds from the Bank of England to failing Hamburg banks, that "La Lutine" went down in a memorable storm. Only one of the crew was washed ashore lived.
For five decades the topmasts of the frigate were visible at low tide thus marking her grave. But when the French and later the British sought to raise the treasure, tedious dragging operations in heavy seas were required to locate the wreck.
The costs of the Dutch expedition have been defrayed by popular subscriptions, as were the French and German efforts; the British attempt, on the other hand, was undertaken by the navy. Technically the Dutch project revolves around an immense submersible steel cone, 60 feet in diameter at the base, an invention of Dr. Becker, and constructed with great secrecy at Amsterdam.
The plan in general provides for the lowering of this cone immediately over or beside the wreck, which already has been located by magnetic means. The cone will contain a number of divers, electric drills, searchlights, and other underwater apparatus. An outlet, in principle to which modern submarines are equipped, will permit divers to leave and enter at will.
If divers determine that buoys cannot be swung under the frigate to raise her to the surface, they will strive to blast away the shifting sands to the treasure.

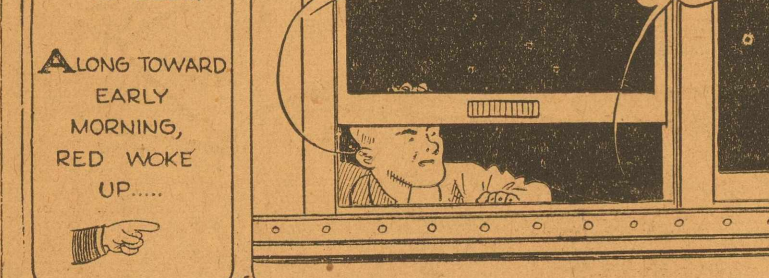

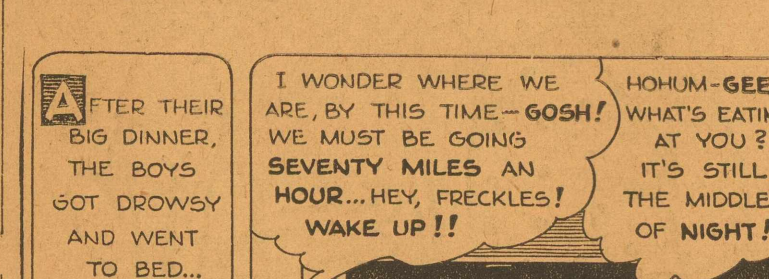

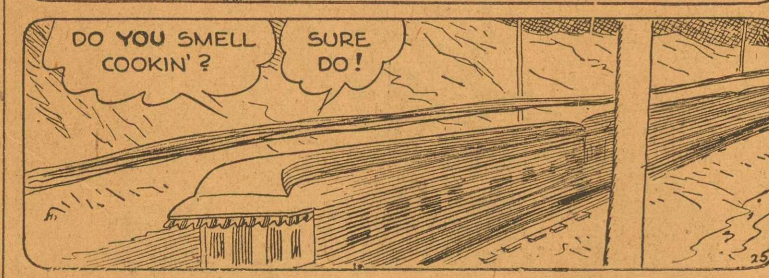

Shipping Shows Big Gains at Port Arthur Seaport

By United Press
PORT ARTHUR, Texas.—The volume of cargoes in Sabine district shipping activities gained by nearly two million gross tons in the first six and a half months of 1933 as compared with the corresponding period of 1932, customs records show.
Every port in the district, which includes Port Arthur as the port of entry, Beaumont, Orange and Lake Charles, showed gains. Port Arthur leads the district with 78 per cent of all cargo movements.
Gross tonnage of district ports to date this year totaled 14,943,029 as compared to 13,042,816 up to June 15, 1932. Port Arthur exports so far this year total 9,855,300 gross tons, exceeding exports for the same period of 1932 by 1,113,756 tons.
Measured in monetary terms, however, cargo movements showed a slight decline under the valuation of imports and exports in 1932, due in main to wide fluctuations of the dollar valuation in foreign exchange since the United States abandoned the gold standard has caused considerable confusion in local shipping circles handling foreign cargo.
Nevertheless, Port Arthur maintained her first place position in exports with a total cargo evaluation of $9,378,135. The value of district cargo movements so far this year is $16,724,218.
Heavy shipping volume for the period so far this year indicates, customs officials here say, that 1933 will eclipse any year in total tonnage handled since 1930.
Record breaking ship movements are attributed by marine men to improvement in the domestic oil situation and to increased foreign demand.
Bulk of shipments from Port Arthur and other Sabine district ports is oil and petroleum products. Although large consignments of general cargo are moved through the district every month, petroleum and its products constitute 82 per cent of the export trade.
Shipments from both the Texas company and the Gulf Refining company, whose oil marine terminals here are the two largest in the United States, totaled 34,549,627 bulk barrels to date this year, the largest total since 1931.
A greater number of ships have docked in the district this year than since 1929 when foreign and domestic commerce was at its zenith. Customs records show 1,735 American and foreign vessels have entered port since Jan. 1. Of this number 952 docked in Port Arthur and 513 at Beaumont. The remainder docked at other ports of the district and at channel terminals, including the Atlantic Refining company, Sun Oil company, and Pure Oil company docks near here.
Port Arthur has been registered as the home port of two new vessels within the past 30 days, the first new registrations since 1929. The Lykes Bros. Rinsley company's Hanover and the Sabine Transportation company's Ilderim will in the future bear the name Port Arthur on their sterns.

drafting laws to give the government more direct power over racketeers.
The entire staff of the department of justice bureau of investigation is at the disposal of Colonel Hutchinson and the senate committee. In New York alone 80 investigators are available; in the nation as a whole the number runs to nearly 400.
Colonel Hutchinson's job will be completed when he arranges his "grand jury" case. There is no opportunity, now, for him and his investigators to prosecute; they may only present evidence and leave it to the senate to find the means of making use of that evidence to fight the racketeers.
One of the prime recommendations of the senators will be a law regulating the interstate shipments of fire-arms. This has long been a favorite goal of Senator Copeland.
While the committee evidence is being prepared, the department of justice under Attorney General Hugh S. Cummings already has stepped into the racket situation with both feet. Joseph B. Keenan of Cleveland, has been made a special assistant attorney general in charge of anti-racketeering activities.
One of the first steps taken after Keenan's appointment was to open an inquiry into the New York dock racket, with special Assistant Attorney General John H. Amen in charge. Waterfront racketeers are reputed to collect $25,000,000 yearly from shippers and dock operators.
The department of justice has been active in investigating the O'Connell kidnaping case in Albany, N. Y., but there its hands are tied by the limitations of federal laws. The United States has real power only when the victim of a kidnaping is taken across a state line. Then the "Lindbergh law" comes into play.
The best opportunity the government has of assuming a really important position in the racket war, most legal observers believe, comes under the national industrial recovery act. Once an industry adopts a code of conduct approved by the president, any violation of the code becomes a violation of federal law for the period of the national emergency. Some minor industries—for example, the federation of kosher butchers of New York—have already adopted tentative codes with anti-racketeering clauses.
Similar clauses in other codes would give the department of justice almost unlimited power to prosecute racketeers, according to legal observers.
Rush in Texas For 3.2 Beer Licenses
AUSTIN.—Beginning of a new fiscal year has sent scores of applicants into the internal revenue office here for new annual federal licenses for the sale of 3.2 beer in dry Texas.
Federal licenses valid for one year were granted 100 persons in two days. Nearly three times that number of licenses were issued on a part-year basis to permit sale during hot summer months.

Uncle Sam's Cops Will Fight Bears

WASHINGTON. — Bears of Yosemite valley as well as Bruins of other government reserves have run afoul of the law.

Orders to "arrest that bear" have been given by the national park service as the annual summer "crime wave" is reported under way. Disorderly conduct among the bears generally consists of forays into screened porches, cabins, camps and other places in search of food.

The sentence is banishment. Thieving bears are put into specially constructed "patrol wagons," marked with a "club of paint, and released at the lower end of the park.

Repeaters are numerous, park officials said, some of the bears apparently enjoying the ride in the "wagon."

Diamonds For Drill Found After 10 Years

DENVER, Colo. — Eight diamonds have been recovered from the bed of the Black Canyon at the site of the Boulder dam and sent to the Denver bureau of the United States reclamation service.

The diamonds were black carbon ones used 10 years ago on the boring bit of a drill which the government engineers lost while testing foundation rock for the dam.

When the bedrock was exposed in the river channel, workmen found the old drill and the stones were sent to Denver to be reset into another bit and used again. The diamonds were valued at $2,400.
