Justice Agents Say Urschel Kidnaping Solved

"BUY NOW" IS BEING URGED BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—President Roosevelt today took a guiding hand in his national recovery administration's effort to swing three key industries, oil, coal and steel, into line under codes regulating competition, wages and working hours.

Codes for these giants of American business have been delayed by protracted disputes within their own ranks and controversies with the NRA. Pending a final solution of its problem, the oil industry has been authorized to operate under a modified form of the re-employment agreement. The others are still outside the fold of the blue eagle.

President Roosevelt today discussed code problems with Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Hugh S. Johnson regarding the coal industry. Pinchot informed the president prompt action was necessary on a coal code.

While Johnson concentrated on the big industries, he relied on consumers and local campaign committees to exert increasing pressure on stores and other employers to sign the blanket code and to live up to its terms.

"Buy! Buy now!" he urged again in a nationwide address from a St. Louis mass meeting, declaring employers can pay higher wages only as their business increases.

National Guards Have Good Record At Annual Camp

A letter from Corp. Corry Colburn of Co. I, 142nd Infantry, Texas National Guards, which is now in camp at Palacios, tells of the activities of the Ranger unit since it landed a week ago. The company will return to Ranger next Sunday.

The letter, received by the Times, states that the company landed at the camp Aug. 5 at 5:45 a. m., and detained in mud and water but that camp activities were being carried on according to schedule.

Sgt. Jack Roach, Lt. Joe Kraemer, Sgt. Lawson Acuff, Sgt. W. O. Angus and Sgt. Earl Heflin won the regimental rifle match and Sgt. Jack Roach was selected as a member of the regimental team which will fire for the Camp Hulien trophy.

Sgt. Bill Angus won the welterweight wrestling championship of the 142nd infantry and Jack Porter won the featherweight boxing championship of the regiment. They will meet the winners of the 141st infantry for the finals and the camp championships.

The Ranger unit has maintained a 1,000 per cent average in the playground ball schedule.

The regiment has been instructed in chemical warfare, tear gas being used in the instructions and the company was highly complimented on all inspections, including ordnance, the letter states.

Mrs. Graham has received many reservations of Texans who will travel to the fair for Texas Day aboard several special trains which will depart from various Texas points beginning Aug. 20.

Johnson Moves So Fast His Assistants Lose Track of Him

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The national recovery administration is growing so rapidly and moving so swiftly that General Hugh S. Johnson is hard pressed to keep up with everything that is going on.

He tries to do it and some subordinates have suggested he attempts to master too much detail. He holds regular 9 a. m. staff meetings for a general exchange of information.

Despite all efforts at close liaison, wires sometimes are crossed due to speed and the large number of persons involved. Days after one branch of NRA had issued a circular for setting up an elaborate system of local drive organizations headed by civilian "generals," "colonels" and "majors," Johnson heard about it and was amazed.

When his chief counsel issued an interpretation defining professional persons, Johnson who had indicated a contrary interpretation, said the next it was a "slip."

When he announced that employers who could not fully comply with the blanket code might use the Blue Eagle with a white bar across its breast, one of the chief lieutenants told inquirers it was the first he had heard of it.

Johnson and his staff amaze Washington by the hours they work under high pressure. Johnson moves from one meeting to another. He hops into airplanes for spectacular dashes as to Detroit to bring back the automobile code, to Pennsylvania to deal with the coal strike and to Hyde Park to dramatize the general strike on his main goal—to get re-employment and the buying started as quickly as possible. Incidental difficulties are recognized. But he answers the over-critical with the observation that "some eggs are bound to be broken in making this omelette."

"Destroyed" Cotton Is Still Growing

The government requires total destruction of the crop, or of the pledged portion, before approval of certificate will be granted.

Financial Condition of Texas Is Outlined After a Lengthy Study

By United Press
AUSTIN.—The following statement, concerning the financial condition of Texas, was made by Rep. George C. Hester of Williamson county, who has been engaged for several months in an intensive study of the economic situation:

"There is much confusion about the State's prospective financial condition for the next two years. News items to the effect that the state has about one-half enough revenues to run on next year are little short of ridiculous. It comes primarily from a misunderstanding of the Comptroller's methods in making out his estimates; and as a consequence, a misinterpretation of their meaning. In calculating the state's needs for next year, the Comptroller adds to next year's appropriations the entire deficit, which has been accumulating over the past several years. Upon the aggregate of these sums the year's revenue needs are calculated. Hence the erroneous assumption is drawn that the revenues for the year must be sufficient to discharge all the deficit in one year and put the state on cash basis.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR THREE FIRE VICTIMS ARE CONDUCTED AT EASTLAND

Funeral services for James Tichenor, his wife and infant son, fatally burned when their home was destroyed by fire at Eastland early Sunday morning, were conducted at the grave in Eastland cemetery this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Judge V. T. Seaberry of Eastland made a talk. Hamner Undertaking company had charge of the body.

Edward Barton, father-in-law of Tichenor and an occupant of the house was severely but not critically burned and will recover. Barton's wife, also an occupant of the Tichenor home, was not injured.

The W. A. Teatsorth home on the south and that of Claude Crossley on the north of the Tichenor home and each separated from it only by a narrow driveway, were badly damaged, but the occupants escaped uninjured.

Tichenor and his wife had entertained a few friends Saturday night who did not leave until a late hour, when their guests left the Tichenors and Mr. and Mrs. Barton, mother and father of Mrs. Tichenor, who recently came from Oklahoma to make their home in Eastland, retired. At 4:30 a. m. neighbors were awakened by the heat from the fire and discovered the Tichenor home in flames. Mr. and Mrs. Barton escaped through a back entrance. Tichenor, neighbors said, jumped through a north window. He was badly burned about the body and was clad only partially in his night clothes. He appeared to be dazed. He was rushed to a hospital where he died about four hours later.

Neighbors, attracted by the fire, saw the baby standing in its crib near a window crying, but the fire was spreading so rapidly and the heat from the three burning buildings was so intense that it was impossible to get to it. Firemen found the remains of the child on the springs of the bed on which it had slept.

Mrs. Tichenor, so far as could be learned never got outside the burning building. Her remains were found huddled in a heap in a corner of the bath room adjoining the room in which the baby slept. It is believed that she was attempting to get to the baby and lost her bearings in the smoke filled house.

Fire Chief Mac Hennessee, who with his men responded quickly to the alarm, said that at the time the firemen arrived on the scene it was impossible for them, even with the protection of water pouring on the burning building, to have entered the house.

Tichenor, a geologist for the Arab Gasoline corporation, was well known in this section. He formerly lived at Cisco, where he was at one time a prosperous oil operator and geologist. He is survived by a son, James Tichenor, of Nowata, Oklahoma, and a daughter, Mrs. Forest Cole also of Nowata, children by a former marriage.

The scene of the tragedy was visited by thousands of people during the day Sunday.

RACKET WAR LAUNCHED BY GOVERNMENT

By United Press
NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The government's war against racketeers began to take form today at the first hearing of the senate racket committee, which received suggestions of control of firearms, formation of an American Scotland Yard and a law reviving the whipping post for young criminals.

Universal fingerprinting also was proposed by Edward Mulrooney, famous for his work as New York police commissioner and now head of the state beer board, who had advanced the idea that young criminals should be lashed.

"Cut your prison term for major crimes to 20 years or more and substitute 20 or 30 lashes for young criminals at the time of admission to prison and repeat it every six months," he suggested.

"The hardened young criminal is convinced the law of the land is the dollar. He thinks that with money he can commit any crime and evade any punishment."

Willows to Remain Open Until After Wednesday Night

The Lions swimming pool committee today voted a few more days of fun for the children and adults of Ranger and the surrounding communities when they decided to keep the pool open through Wednesday, at least, and possibly longer. The decision was made after a checkup of the attendance Saturday and Sunday was made.

It has been announced that the patronage at the pool did not justify keeping it open longer and that unless an increase in the attendance was seen which might justify keeping the pool open, it would be closed after Sunday night. A good crowd of youngsters was present yesterday, which encouraged the committee to try to keep the pool operating for a few more days at least. If the patronage is continued the pool may remain open after Wednesday.

Another thing that influenced the committee was the fact that the water had just recently been changed and it had been kept in a sanitary condition throughout the summer and was now in the best of condition. As this eliminated the necessity of draining and filling the pool again soon it was decided to try to keep it operating as long as the patronage made it possible.

WTCC To Let Its Stand on the Bond Issue Known

By United Press
ABILENE, Texas.—Directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce soon will declare that regional body's stand on the proposed state-wide relief bond issue of $20,000,000, to be voted upon Aug. 26.

Ballots to determine the chamber's sentiment have been mailed to all directors, numbering nearly 200.

A few directors have publicly expressed opposition to the relief proposal. Fear that the bond issue would saddle the state under a $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 debt, requiring a large income tax or perhaps a sales tax to clear, has been the chief argument of their opposition.

N. Mexico Copies Texas Road Plan

By United Press
AUSTIN.—A sister state has turned once again to Texas for the model of an official force.

New Mexico has patterned its highway patrol after the state highway patrol of Texas. Texas' complete set of rules and regulations have been adopted by New Mexico, L. G. Phares, chief of the Texas patrol, said after returning here from a conference in Santa Fe.

Capt. Homer Garrison of the Texas patrol was sent to Santa Fe to aid in a school of instruction for the 10 New Mexico patrolmen who will comprise the first unit of the state's new official group.

Chief Phares and his wife were made honorary members of the New Mexico patrol during their visit.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 14.—The department of Justice believes it has solved the kidnaping of Charles Urschel and the Union station massacre with the arrest of Harvey Bailey, Attorney General Cummings announced today.

Part of the Urschel ransom money was found on Bailey, Cummings said in a statement released here.

Cummings revealed airplanes, many special agents and automobiles were used in the spectacular capture of the suspect.

DALLAS, Aug. 14.—Confessions have been obtained from three of the persons taken in custody, federal authorities said. A large sum of ransom money paid by the Urschel family had been found in Bailey's possession, the agents said, but declined to reveal the amount.

GANG LEADER IS ARRESTED OFFICERS SAY

Some Ransom Money Found When Harvey Bailey Is Placed in Custody.

By United Press
DALLAS, Aug. 14.—The farmhouse where Charles Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, was held prisoner for $200,000 ransom was disclosed here today by department of justice agents following the arrest of Harvey Bailey, notorious Kansas gunman and escaped convict.

Fingerprints on chairs and silverware found in the house, four miles northwest of Paradise, Texas, where Bailey was captured while asleep, bore out Urschel's description of the house where he was held, over which, he said, airplanes flew twice daily.

Bailey was wanted also in connection with the Union station massacre at Kansas City, June 19, and the Lansing, Kan., prison break on Memorial Day.

Gus Jones, San Antonio, special department of justice agent, led four companion agents and four Dallas and Fort Worth officers who swooped down on the farmhouse Saturday morning and captured Bailey while he slept on a cot in the back yard.

A machine gun pushed against Bailey's mouth awakened him. Bailey, sleeping on an arsenal including a machine gun, a high-powered rifle and two automatic pistols, surrendered without a struggle. Four others arrested with Bailey were believed held today, although officers removed them from the county jail here. The farmer at whose home the convict was captured, his wife, daughter and son-in-law, were brought here with Bailey, presumably for questioning.

It was understood a guard was being maintained at the farm hide-out in an effort to capture other criminals. From unofficial sources, it was learned the master mind of the supposed gang frequenting that area would appear at the rendezvous today.

KINGDOM IS WITHIN: Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for behold, the kingdom of God is within you.—Luke 17: 21.

THEY TOOK THE $40,000

A gang of New York thugs has $40,000 and the Ed and Dan O'Connells have their nephew, John, 24. He had been gone three weeks, stolen by kidnapers from in front of his father's home. He was returned unharmed, and now the O'Connells do not want to tell the district attorney what happened to him, nor how he was returned.

Uncle Sam is starting a drive against kidnapers, with death the ultimate sentence for each man in the gang. A good start was made in Kansas City the other day. Body-snatcher McGee receiving the death penalty. Let Uncle Sam turn loose his man-hunters, with a shoot to kill order. A dead kidnaper is a good kidnaper.

What will the New York gang do with its $40,000? Split it 10 ways, or six, buy liquor from bootleggers, gamble, live riotously? Maybe some of its members will be caught as they splurge their new-gained riches. But if not, soon they will be broke, and another kidnaping will follow to provide more funds for paying the fiddler. Another O'Connell will be held captive, another Urschel, another Factor. But the national war will go relentlessly on. There will be sacrifices to the cause. There always have been.

MORRIS SHEPPARD'S CALOPE CAMPAIGN

Observers with their ear to the ground are watching Morris Sheppard's opening shot. They thought a veteran senator had taken an unnecessary burden upon himself when he accepted their chairmanship of the dry convention in Austin. He handled it gracefully. He made his speech, a repetition of his annual Jan. 16th eulogy of the 18th amendment, and left for home. Now he is going about with a band-wagon and will stump the state from border to border. What he says will be interesting. He knows he is casting the shape of the next campaign for the senatorship, and the astute are expecting the political master from Texarkana to build his fences well.

Meanwhile Aug. 26th comes nearer. The beer campaigners and the anti-beer folks will get going soon. The 20-million-dollar campaign is under way. Education is the program leading to the ballot box. The total vote will be the answer. Political fortunes will be made and unmade.

ON THE TRAIL OF HOT OIL SELLERS

Atty. Gen. Homer Cummings and his assistants are on the trail of the promoters of fake oil schemes in Texas. Cummings has launched a drive against the gang. An assistant to the attorney general is said to have gathered evidence against 60 persons "whom he expected to bring to trial at the September term of the United States court at Dallas." He is said to have revealed that most of the illegal activities of the promoters had been carried on in connection with alleged development in the East Texas fields. Fly-by-night operators had rich pickings for a long time in the Texas oil fields—and elsewhere. Now the pickings are said to be scant. If the rainbows continue to appear in the sky a new crop of suckers may be born again. It is some job to undertake to protect the pocketbook of the American sucker.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

J. W. HANSON, editor of the New Smyrna (Florida) Daily News, says:

"The trouble with the spasmodic advertiser is that he believes that it reaches farther than it actually does. He often has the notion that three or four good ads a year are going to stamp upon the mind of every buyer the fact that he has goods of good quality and at right prices in a way that that impression will never wear off.

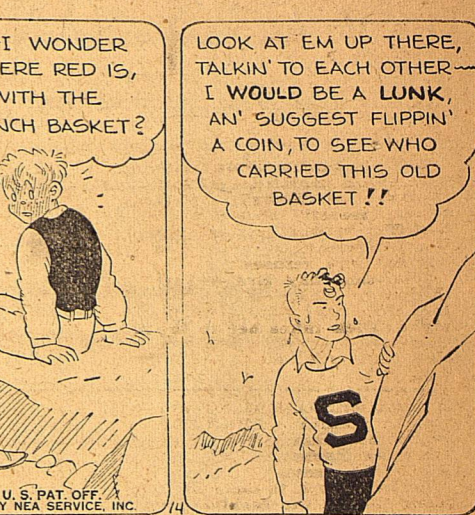

"But human minds are not that way; they are easy to divert from one thing to another by an honest and attractive appeal through the medium of newspaper advertising, unless the impression has been made over a period of many years.

"Advertising affects the mind of a buyer in much the same manner as a stream of water on a rock. If the rock had the sense to know, it would realize it the first time a drop of water fell upon it, but it takes millions of years to drop an impression in the rock that will last.

"Spasmodic advertising only moistens the rock; constant advertising from day to day and from year to year wears an impression that lives as long as the impression in the rock."

Rain Produces Double Crops

By United Press BAKERSFIELD, Calif.—Farmers in the Carmisa district near here today had two crops of wheat growing in their fields, one ready to harvest and the other about half grown. The unusual situation was caused by a rainstorm last June. Wheat farms in the district are dependent entirely on rain for irrigation. There was none early last spring. The farmers gave up hope of raising a crop. Then, in June, it rained. The first crop, almost dead, was given new life and it prospered. From the bottom of the stalks additional shoots were sent out, which, in turn, grew and produced regular heads of grain. The situation, being studied by the United States department of agriculture, was pronounced the most unusual on record. The farmers, meantime, were overjoyed at the double crop. Even at low prices, the freak occurrence will mean thousands of dollars to them, they said.

EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, secretly marries DICK RADER, a construction engineer. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses.

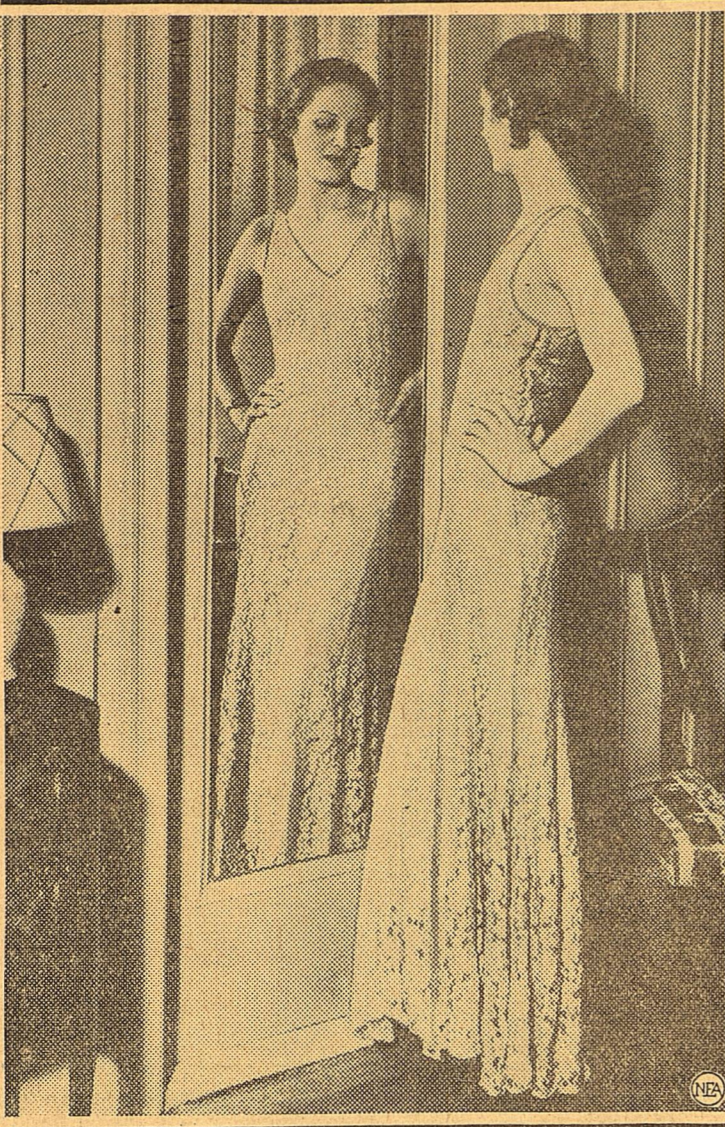

The same day Eve learns that she is to go to New York for the store and must leave that night. Dick takes her to the station but throughout the week in New York she has no word from him. The days here are busy. She meets THERON REECE who is much attracted by her and she visits IRENE PRENTISS, a former schoolmate who is playing the stock market and advises Eve to do the same.

On her return to Lake City Dick takes Eve to the fashionable Hotel Miramar where he has engaged a suite.

At the office MARYA VLAD, fashion artist, and ARLENE SMITH, stenographer, are eager to hear of Eve's trip. There is a new copy writer, MONA ALLEN, who threatens to become a trouble-maker.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

EVE and Dick stayed at the Hotel Miramar for a week. They usually dined in the marine dining room overlooking the lake. Eve enjoyed the formality of their surroundings and each evening wore a different costume. She had a flair for clothes and was aware that, though many of the women about her were gowned more expensively, few wore smarter costumes. And because she was happy her eyes glowed and smiles curved her lips. When she looked at Dick, correct in his severe evening clothes, she was proud of him.

Eve wore the gown of pale gold lace that she had worn on her visit to the night club.

"Dick," she began enthusiastically the fourth night of their stay at the Miramar, "I've an idea!"

"You're full of ideas," teased Dick. "What is it now?"

"Let's always dress for dinner. There's no reason why people who have fortunes should monopolize all the niceties of life. It's fun to change into evening clothes for dinner. Don't you think so?"

"M-m," answered Dick. "Then we'll do it always! Oh, Dick, I'm so glad you see things as I do. You're a perfect dear to agree with me all the time! I'd hate to have just an ordinary husband. You will let me plan everything the way I want it, won't you, dear?"

"M-m," answered Dick.

After dinner he suggested going out to watch the skating. They put on warm wraps and trudged through the snow over the deserted bridge path to the lake.

"Reminds me of the lake at home," said Dick. "I'd like to be out on the ice now. Haven't skated for 10 years. My old skates got too short and I never seemed to have money to buy new ones."

"Oh, Dick," Eve interrupted. "I've just had a grand idea for the lead for my column tomorrow! I can scarcely wait to write it. See the red and white outfit that girl is wearing? It gave me the idea. Here she comes now. Why, as I live and breathe, it's Gladys Rippl! Dick, let's leave. If we want to keep our marriage a secret we can't afford to be meeting people we know."

Eve turned back toward the hotel and Dick followed reluctantly. He would have enjoyed skating in the moonlight on the frozen edge of the lake.

He took Eve's arm to keep her from slipping on the icy walk. "Eve, sweetheart," he said, "I don't like keeping our marriage a secret. As far as I'm concerned there are few to whom it matters, but you, dear, have so many friends in the city that it is bound to cause complications."

"I'm thinking of my position," she said. "We'll announce it later." With this Dick had to be content.

EACH morning he drove to "the job" before 7:30. Eve, in her smart black business clothes, boarded an eight o'clock trolley. She never glanced at the morning Times until she reached the older district of the city where the streets were lined with stores and office buildings. Instead she looked at the beautiful homes along the boulevard over which she rode. Eve wondered about the people who lived in these houses and was sure she could never be contented until she had such a home. The apartment at the hotel would do, however, she told herself, until she and Dick could afford a home like one of those.

Her promotion at the office had not brought with it the satisfaction Eve had expected. She had not realized how much Alice Marshall had smoothed her way and made things easy for her.

Eve was particularly annoyed by Barnes' habitual tardiness in deciding how much space was to be devoted to each advertisement. This delay often made it necessary for her to prepare her copy at a speed making careful work impossible. Inevitably there came a day when she was obliged to remain an hour over time.

True, Barnes and Arlene were also detained, but that did not lessen Eve's resentment. She knew that if Barnes had been prompt the work easily could have been completed by 5:30, the store's closing hour.

Eve was anxious not to give Dick any cause to resent her work. She suspected that secretly he cherished an ideal of a home-keeping wife who would be watching for him at the window when he came each evening. Dick's work kept him outdoors much of the time and he always arrived with a healthy appetite. Eve seldom was ready for dinner before seven. This evening it was nearly eight, but Dick did not complain.

Saturday night came and the hotel held its weekly dinner dance. Eve wore the gown of pale gold lace that she had worn on her visit to the night club in New York with Theron Reece.

As she turned from the mirror she called to Dick: "I'm so happy, dear! I think this is the most adorable place to live. And I love dressing for dinner."

"It would be nice if we could stay on here," Dick agreed. "But I suppose since tomorrow is Sunday we can drive around and try to locate a place to settle in."

SOMETHING froze in Eve. She asked, ever so quietly, what Dick's plans were.

"We'll have to find a place within my income," he told her. "But we have two incomes!"

"We're not counting on anything you may earn," Dick announced with finality. "Your money is yours to do with as you please. If I were you I'd bank that money. You may do as you like, however, I'll never question you about it. But I am going to support our homes on my income and I will endeavor to add to our savings each payday."

Eve was not in the most pleasant frame of mind as they descended to the dining room. She had been enjoying the luxury of the past week and saw no reason why she and Dick should not combine their incomes and continue this mode of living which, she felt, would leave them free from the petty cares of the average young married couple.

"Dick," she began after the waiter took their order, "I don't want to argue but it seems only fair to remind you that we agreed marriage is a fifty-fifty proposition. So I want to pay my share."

"Successful marriage is always a fifty-fifty proposition," Dick agreed. "But that doesn't necessarily apply to finances the way you mean. I should say it is important for each always to meet the other half way. What I mean is, turn for turn and fair play."

Eve recalled Dick's noncommittal, "M-m," each time she had thought she had scored a victory. She took her cue and said, "Let's have a marriage free from quarrels, too, Dick. Each of us will always think of the other's side of the question, won't we?"

"That's the only kind of a marriage I will have," he answered with emphasis.

Eve was determined to enjoy the present and let the future take care of itself. No need to hurry in locating another apartment. She would meet that unpleasant contingency when it arrived.

So she smiled brightly and said, "In the meantime on with the dance."

THEY danced between courses. It was not until after they had finished dinner that Eve saw Theron Reece.

He had just entered the dining room with a vivacious looking girl. The couple lost no time in getting on the dance floor. Reece's glance swept the restaurant and he saw Eve at once. She looked away but the crowd was not large and before the dance was concluded she was forced to return Reece's nod of recognition. Evidently he was determined to continue their acquaintance. A shadow of apprehension clouded Eve's sky. She hoped Reece had not noticed her wedding ring.

"Let's go now, Dick," she said when they returned to their table. He agreed without asking any questions.

But Reece was not to be disposed of so readily. He approached, bowing, and said, "Good evening, Miss Bayless."

Eve felt a sudden panic but managed to introduce the men without disclosing the fact that Dick was her husband. Before Reece could begin conversation she arose for another dance with Dick.

After all, she reasoned, it was not strange that Reece should be there. Much business was conducted between Lake City and Cincinnati and Reece, a salesman, lived in the latter place. The marine dining room of the Hotel Miramar was an attractive restaurant and it was natural for him to dine there. But Eve felt she wanted to leave the Miramar before her joy was spoiled.

So she said to Dick, "I think, darling, it might be fun to look for an apartment tomorrow. We will get up early and not lose any time."

She could not resist one guarded glance toward Reece's table as Dick guided her toward the door. There was something sinister in Reece's dark eyes as his glance met and locked with hers.

Financial Condition

This represents accumulated deficits over several years, plus nearly $3,000,000 in claims which the legislature voted, which had also accumulated over several years. To assume that this entire indebtedness must be paid in one year is absurd. If $10,000,000 of new revenues were levied to liquidate it in one year, it would mean that the same revenues would create a treasury surplus of $10,000,000 the second year. What an inducement this would be for squandering.

The significant thing about the report is the fact that it shows the revenues for next year to be $1,175,244.42 more than enough to pay the state's operating expenses for that year. In other words, present revenues are sufficient to operate on. The only problem is paying off the long accumulated deficit. Here again the better business conditions, the possible beer tax, of which it gets one-half, and delinquent collections, are all to be added. It is entirely probable that the income will be sufficient to pay off at least one-half the indebtedness in addition to current operations during the single year. The remainder should be carried over. For the second year of the biennium the state will get another 3 or 4 million dollars from the tangible Assets tax on pipe lines. Due to the fact that assessments were already made, this tax will not go into effect until next year. Of course if the state ad valorem tax is abolished the state will lose the revenue, since the tax is based on the ad valorem rate.

In other words, it looks as if the state can about pay out the next two years, with perhaps a small part of the deficit to carry over.

RACKETEERING SEEN IN THRASHER BLAST

Racketeering methods, new to Ohio, for control of the wheat thrashing business, were blamed for the explosion which wrecked this thrashing machine near Bethesda. A group of farmers is shown surveying the damage. Louis Heskett, owner of the machine, estimated his loss at $4000. Thousands of bushels of wheat and oats may be lost because of the destruction of the machine in late harvest time.

It must be remembered that the state today is operating on the boom time budget of the past several years, which accounts for the constantly growing deficit at this time. The progress of reduced expenditures enacted by the last legislature does not become effective until Sept. 1, after which time the income will more than take care of operating expenses. If the bond issue carries, it should not be necessary to issue more than one-half of them now. Some minor revenues of some two millions annually would easily take care of the interest and maturities on them.

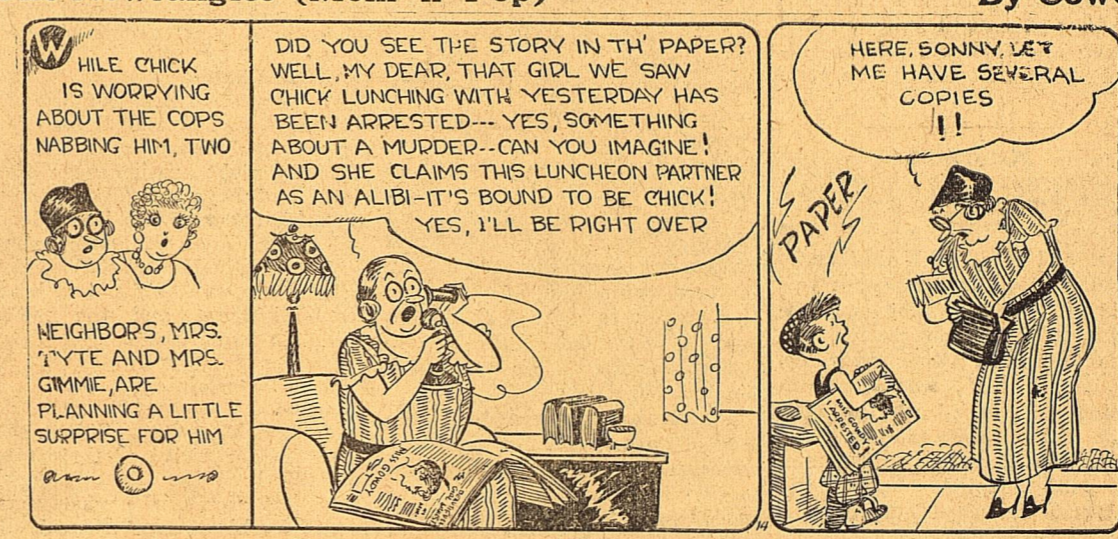

As wages always trail far behind living costs in periods of rise, the next two years will be a most trying time for families of small and average incomes. Living costs have already increased from 20 to 30 per cent. Most so-called wage increases, have in fact, amounted to little more than shorter working hours. Because a man works shorter hours does not mean that his family can live on any less. To levy an additional and unneeded tax burden upon the consumer at this time, and thus to further increase living costs, would be little less than a legislative crime against the average family."

Code violators may also be enjoined either by competitors or prosecuting attorneys.

Persons and firms are exempted from state anti-trust prosecution if they follow approved codes.

Public works contracts are limited to those who use materials and supplies furnished in accordance with code fair practice regulations.

The act is made effective until June 16, 1935, unless the national emergency has been declared ended earlier by Congressional resolution.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY, N.E.A. Service Writer

HEAT pouring down from the relentless sun does something to our appetites, and special foods are needed to tempt us. The nourishing drink that makes a complete meal when served with sandwiches in variety solves many a difficult meal problem satisfactorily and appetizingly.

Chocolate is a universal favorite for cold beverages but there are many other flavors that are available. Fruit juice, spices, vanilla, almond, pistachio, caramel, maple—in fact, anything you may fancy can be combined with milk to make a refreshing and nourishing drink. The syrup from preserves and jam as well as jelly adds more flavors to the list.

Milk alone or milk and egg is used with the chosen syrup. Of course powdered, condensed and evaporated milks can be used with as good results as if fresh milk were used. Keep in mind that the drink made with condensed milk.

Remember, too, that the drink made without egg is not as rich in food value as the one made with egg.

It's a good idea to keep a few cans of evaporated milk in the refrigerator all the time. Fruit juices combine splendidly with the undiluted milk to make healthful and delicious food drinks.

those delightful outing, swim and breakfast parties, Tuesday, at Olden lake.

The group will meet on the steps of the Methodist church, a little before 6 a. m., where cars will be found to take the girls on their trip.

Each one going is asked by Mrs. Cecil W. Webb, their guardian, to provide a breakfast basket, and cooking utensils.

Breakfast will be cooked over a big camp fire after the swim.

Family Dinner Party
Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Freytag had as their guests for an informal family dinner at 7 o'clock Saturday evening at their attractive home, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taylor and the Taylors' daughters and their husbands, who are their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McManus of Iowa City, Ia., and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd H. McEwen of Columbus, O.

Regret was expressed that the Taylors' third daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Phillips, could not be present, as they have returned to Duncan, Okla.

Free Reading Month a Success
This month of August, the free reading month in the public library of Eastland for the youth of school age of the city, opened on the first Wednesday in August, library day, with 100 children on hand to select their books, use the reading room, and carry their books away.

The children's patronage has increased with each of the seven library days that have progressed so far in this month.

The majority of tastes has registered in the selection of books of biography, of travel lore and adventure stories.

Note as made that no love stories were called for. The attractive reading room of the library, has been filled those seven days, with eager young folk, many whom read a bow through at a sitting, and then applied for a fresh one to carry home to read.

The children select their own books from the shelves, and the librarian, Miss Cecelia Haas, has found them orderly, quiet and well behaved.

About 40 new faces have been noted, the balance of book seekers being those in the habit of patronizing the library.

Dressler and Beery In 'Tugboat Annie' At Arcadia Today

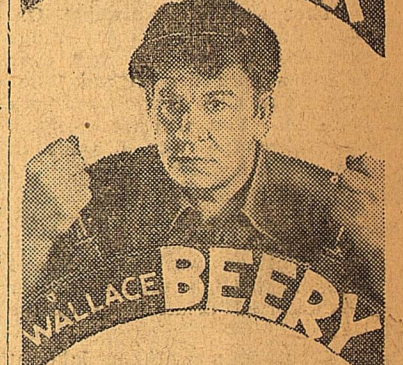

With Marie Dressler as Annie, redoubtable feminine skipper of Pudget Sound, and Wallace Beery as the irresponsible but irresistible Captain Terry, "Tugboat Annie," much heralded filmization of Norman Reilly Raine's Saturday Evening Post stories, opens today at the Arcadia Theatre. The picture marks the first co-starring appearance of Miss Dressler and Beery since the memorable "Min and Bill."

Directed by Mervyn LeRoy, who directed "Gold Diggers of 1933," "Little Caesar" and other hits, the new picture tells a vivid story of Northwestern waterfronts with the two central figures cast in imitable roles. Laughs, thrills, tears and tense drama all have their share in the narrative.

Miss Dressler plays the aggressive feminine tugboat captain whose husband, Beery, is a shiftless drunkard. Throughout various entertaining episodes they are seen in hilarious quarrels and difficulties. Then their son grows up and
