Negro Got 'Right With God' Before His Execution

DALLAS, Aug. 18.—A negro's heart that once thumped with painful knowledge of guilt was stilled for ever today as the state exacted its penalty for a confessed murder.

R. T. Bennett, 25-year-old Dallas negro, walked to the electric chair at Huntsville with a light heart today because he had gotten "right with God." He squared his conscience last July 11 when he rose from his seat to announce to a startled court room crowd here he wanted to confess to two murders and end "a thumping" in his breast that had bothered him since his first victim had died.

The young negro's death closed one of Dallas' most lurid criminal careers. The two murders, promiscuous robberies, jewel thefts, prowlings and terrorisms lay in his wake. He had served three years at Huntsville previously on a theft charge and had been at liberty only a year before his last apprehension.

Arrested for the ambush slaying of Policeman Sam G. Lanford here June 30, Bennett broke under grilling to confess shooting the officer when chased on an early morning round of prowling. Later he confessed the strangling of Mrs. Leona Smiley Buchanan, pretty theatrical company employe, in her apartment Dec. 5, 1932.

When Mrs. Buchanan's body was found two red dice weighting down a poorly scrawled note was the principal clue to her slayer's identity. "So you don't love me anymore?" were the taunting words scribbled on the cheap paper.

That note was a clever ruse, officers believed, to throw them off the slayer's trail. Such cunning, they later declared, befitted the Booker T. Washington high school graduate whose treachery kept him outside the grasp of the law. By day he worked in positions of trust and was looked upon by charity workers in the negro district as a potential leader of his race.

No Information Of 2 Eastland Girls In 5 Days

A search throughout Fort Worth the past two or three days has failed to reveal the whereabouts or information of Dorthia Dell Bush, 11, and Ruby Rae Graham, 12, Eastland girls who disappeared in that city Sunday night.

The girls had gone to Fort Worth for the week-end with an aunt of the Graham girl, and Sunday night the uncle and aunt placed the girls on the train for the return trip to Eastland. Since that time they have not been seen nor heard of, and the conductor in charge of the train is reported to have told all inquirers about them that the girls had not been on his train so far as he knew.

The merchants of Ranger today contributed to a fund for the first bale of cotton to be brought to the local gin, the committee soliciting the funds securing enough to have a little left to donate the producer of the second bale. Objections To Some Phases Are Entered

One Word Changed to Make It Effective Under the Texas Laws

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, reporting on this week's burst of activity in the national recovery program, said today that substantial and decisive progress had been made in the basic industries of oil, steel and coal.

Johnson said he expected to take the oil code to President Roosevelt for promulgation sometime this afternoon.

Four groups of the oil industry had presented objections to the code before 10 a. m., the deadline. The protestations were from Wirt Franklin, representing the industry's "committee of 54." Franklin wanted price fixing applied both to crude oil and the refined products.

Two Suspected Of Theft Held By the Officers

Deputy Sheriff Steele Hill took two Eastland boys into custody Thursday afternoon on suspicion of theft. Mr. Hill met the boys on the road to Ranger near Olden, decided they might have something that did not belong to them and followed them into Ranger, where he stopped them and asked to examine the car. He found a new metal Chevrolet casing covering and casing in the trunk back of the car. He brought the boys and property back to Eastland. As yet no owner has been found for the property.

Sheriff Virge Foster and Deputy Loss Woods placed in custody two Olden boys Friday morning until investigation could be made in regard to a car found in their possession. The car, which is said to belong to a man residing in the west part of Stephens County, was stolen from the streets of Eastland about a week ago. The man found the car near Olden Friday morning and immediately notified the officers who took possession of the car and brought the boys into Eastland.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S THOUGHTS: I know the thought that I think toward you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil . . . And ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart.— Jeremiah 29: 11, 13.

AN EVEN SPREAD OVER TEXAS

The hardest three weeks work on record has just been finished by engineers of the Texas highway commission. A schedule of all the road projects in all the counties, apportioning on practically a $4 per capita basis of population the emergency federal highway money, has been whipped into shape and laid before the federal public roads bureau for review and approval.

These generally constitute the most-needed highway work in the counties, and the improvements to designated highways within cities. The bare list of projects is a voluminous document. The engineering work of selecting them, completing construction plans and integrating the whole schedule to needs of the communities, needs of the highway system, and to projects capable of being started quickly was a vast and intricate job.

All this is now in finished form, and late this month bids will be taken on much of the work in scores of counties.

Highway Engineer Gibb Gilchrist, his office staff and division engineers worked day and night for nearly a month on this huge job. Results of their labors will be to shove the program into smooth and rapid functioning in high gear. It will mean payrolls distributed in the counties quickly, and thousands of men this winter given what they need—work rather than charity.

CHUG-HOLES AND CITY STREETS

Everyone who has driven over Texas highways has encountered gaps in paving, rough spots and chug-hole paving in the smaller towns and in the cities.

For the first time, federal and state authorities who spend money for building the highway system have been given authority to extend the work into the towns and cities.

One-fourth the federal emergency budget is to be applied to such work within city, town and village limits. Though the reason for it was to provide jobs where the jobless were congregated, the results are just what should have been obtained on the merits of the road program long ago. Obviously there are more users of a highway inside a city than outside, and the need for paving is greater. Cities and towns have had to consider their own needs before those of through traffic.

Probably this begins a permanent policy that hereafter paved roads will not stop at the gates of a town or city, but will be made a complete through projects.

JOBHOLDERS' SELFISH RIGHT

Hart McCormick, district clerk at San Antonio, and lobbyist for county and district clerks, is sending letters to all these county officials in Texas, asking them to enlist courthouse political cliques to beat the county home rule amendment, pending for a vote Aug. 26.

McCormick tells these officials the amendment "is the most dangerous ever submitted to the people."

It is gratifying that his efforts should have been repudiated wholly by both the county clerk and the district clerk of Travis county.

McCormick has made a misstatement of the effect of this amendment. His message is from a self-interested public job-holder to other self-interested, privileged job-holders. The voters no doubt will consider, not the interest of a group of county office-holders, but the interest of the taxpayers, in voting on this amendment. McCormick's campaign to preserve his own job is prima facie proof the people should adopt this far-reaching economy measure.

FIVE THOUSAND FARMERS CHEER THE NAME OF ROOSEVELT

President Franklin D. Roosevelt is the idol of Texas cotton growers. Five thousand farmers of Limestone county gave a big barbecue. All the speakers advised the tillers of the soil to follow the national agriculture program in the future as in the recent cotton reduction campaign.

According to a Mexia correspondent, "farmers shouted every time the name of President Roosevelt was mentioned and boasted that only 35 farmers in Limestone county failed to sign the cotton reduction contract." Well, here is the milk in the coccoanut: "Limestone county cotton growers will get about $760,000 in cash for cotton reduction of 70,000 bales."

What will happen next year when planting time comes when a drastic reduction of acreage without a bonus will be the proposal submitted to the 2,000,000 cotton growers of the South? Will they reduce or will they ask for another bonus—this after the planting has been an accomplished fact.

At the present time this world seems to be an uneasy and suspicious one.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 PARIS.—No idea is of enduring originality when it is copied a hundred times. But a costume which is the result of a fashion evolution becomes a principle in design. Once this fashion principle is established then the couturier, working with his clients, makes the changes and adjustments which give the personal equation, emphasizing the individuality of each client.
 Architecture is influencing fashion right now, carrying out predictions made by certain Paris dressmaking houses several years ago. Heim, for instance, said three years ago that, "It is the idea to create womens' clothes architecturally. The necessary cut of a coat, for example, must be treated as a trimming, not the trimming as a cut."
 Today, the modern movement in building exists all over the world. The same holds true of clothes. But in architecture, as in fashion, the danger lies in trying to outdo another, to overbid for originality — which usually winds up by being something very gingerbreadish.
 Trimming is gaining in importance, but it has to be subtly used or you can ruin a perfectly good outfit. It cannot have that look of having been "put on" but must merge with the material, line and design in such a way that you cannot consider the one without including the other.

SERGEANT ALVIN C. YORK
 The outstanding hero of the World War, has said:
 "It is truly to be deplored that there are those Americans who find no more intelligent reason to offer for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, than that it should increase the revenue of the U. S. A., patently ignoring recognition of the incalculable harm, misery, and the economic ruin and havoc it will release in countless homes, but more particularly in the lives of boys and girls of our great country."
 "That the brewers and alcoholics welcome repeal, is not in the least hard to understand; but that those controlling the destiny of our people should be sponsoring a thing as manifestly evil as alcohol, historically a wrecker of homes and of happiness, and breeder of violence too numerous to catalogue, is indeed incomprehensible, if not woefully tragic."

 The third annual home-coming for former citizen of Desdemona was held Saturday at the community tabernacle and proved quite a success in every way. A. B. Henslee, who was elected vice president last year took the lead in making plans for the occasion, as N. D. Gallagher, president, was out of town most of the time. Mr. Henslee was ably assisted by T. J. Nabors, W. E. Barron and others. Quite a nice parade of horseback riders, and decorated cars and floats opened the program of the day. After the parade the crowd gathered at the tabernacle and joined in singing "America" and Rev. J. L. Howell then offered the opening prayer. W. E. Barron then gave the welcome address and as master of ceremonies, he introduced Rev. David Irvin of Fort Worth, who was just concluding a revival meeting at the Methodist church, and also the minister who was just beginning a revival at the Christian church. Both of them made short talks appropriate to the occasion.
 An address on the N. R. A., its purpose and workings, was given by H. C. (Andy) Anderson of Ranger. Throughout the day there was music rendered by the Abernathy String band and the Anderson String band and songs led by Dave Lewis.
 During the noon hour, the basket lunches were spread and all enjoyed the many good eats that had been brought. Soon after 1 o'clock Mr. Barron introduced Ernest Walter Wilson, who spoke as the representative of the United Force for Prohibition. He spoke 40 minutes after which W. E. Martin spoke 40 minutes as representative of the Texas Liberal Legion. Both speakers were from Abilene and many points were brought out on both sides of the prohibition question. One feature of the afternoon was the introduction of "Uncle Tom" Henry who is 80 years old and settled in this county in 1872, the longest that any one in the audience had lived here, although Mrs. S. K. Shuler said she came in 1871, but had been living in Stephenville a number of years. At night there was a singing contest in which several singing classes took part but Desdemona won the prize, a dozen song books. The officers elected for the coming year were: A. B. Henslee, president; Tom J. Nabers, vice president; W. E. Barron, secretary and treasurer.

The date for the home-coming was set again for the second Saturday in August.
 Dr. P. M. Kuykendall of Ranger was among the large number who attended the home-coming celebration.
 Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Alameda were here Friday, buying roosters from W. C. Bedford.
 D. C. Davis of Tahoka was here Friday looking after his property and on Saturday he attended the home-coming.
 Gerry Grice of Stephenville and family were here for the reunion Saturday.
 Millard Rushing and son, from near San Angelo came Friday and remained over until Saturday afternoon.
 Mrs. S. E. Browning had the following children with her Saturday: Charlie Browning and family of Jake Hamon, Dewey Browning and wife and Mrs. W. R. Dunlap and two daughters of Breckenridge.
 Mrs. Mattie Elrod of Ranger was among the number of welcome visitors Saturday.

PICTURES OF SILVER
By BEULAH K. HICKS
I Sam. 3:1-10; 12:1-4

It was in the town of Shiloh, where the tabernacle was set up after the conquest of Canaan, that a 12-year-old Samuel, a child asked of God by Hannah, a praying mother, lay sleeping on his thin mattress in the temple guarding the treasures of the altar. It was nearly morning for "the lamp of God was not yet gone out." This lamp was the sacred seven-branched golden candlestick which was placed in the Holy Place of the sanctuary. Enough oil was placed in it to last through the night; the lamps being filled and relit the next day.

This child, so well trained and happy, was sleeping soundly. A voice disturbed his slumber, calling, "Samuel, Samuel." Quickly he rose and ran to Eli, who was now old and almost blind. Eli answered, "I called not; lie down again." This happened the second and the third time. Eli, knowing God through great experiences knew that God was calling Samuel to give him a great message. He told Samuel to recognize the next call with words recognizing Jehovah.

Again the call came and "the Lord came and stood" in the sanctuary filling it with the glorious white light of Deity.

Samuel, who knew much of God, answered, "Speak for thy servant heareth."

A wonderful vision and experience and message for a child; one that he would never forget and had much to do in shaping his life, making him a wise judge until he was an old man. All his life he listened to Jehovah and doubtless kept the saying, "Speak, for thy servant heareth."

The closing picture found in I Sam. 12:1-4 portrays Samuel as an old man; dignified through years of service as a prophet; who could bring direct messages from God to the people; as a teacher and an understanding judge; making him truly a father of the people.

Samuel stood before his people, who had again forgotten much of God's mercy toward them and were demanding a king; hurt and grieved in his heart. His own sons were wicked and unjust judges.

Samuel's farewell address is beautiful in its straightforwardness; asking if any knew aught against him; promising to make anything good that had been wrong.

But they could only answer, "Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken aught of any man's hand."

Thus God granted them the desire of their hearts—a king.

In studying the life of Samuel we see the influence of his mother, Hannah, who asked him of God and then gave him back to God. God was a reality in his life from the very beginning and as he grew older, he grew nearer, always listening with an open heart and mind for the messages of Jehovah.

Why do we not have greater Christians among our young people today? First, there are too few mothers who really pray, teach and consecrate their children to Jehovah. Samuel ran to help Eli who was old and helpless. Our young people today in all the pomp of our modern age too often regard the old and experienced as "fogey."

Are the people of our great and glorious nation today demanding a king? That remains to be proved. A proof that has been handed down throughout the centuries, that people who forget the teachings of God are humbled. Happy are the people who take as their motto, "Serve the Lord with all your heart."

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TODAY

EVER BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, marries DICK RADER, a construction superintendent. They keep their marriage secret. Dick opposes Eve's continued employment but she is determined to go on working.

On her wedding night Eve is sent to New York to meet FREDIA CARTER, dress buyer. There Eve meets THERON REECE, who is much attracted by her. She visits IRENE PRENTISS, former schoolmate, who is playing the stock market.

A week later Eve returns to Lake City to find a new copy writer, MONA ALLEN, at the office. Mona is a trouble-maker. Eve and Dick take an apartment in an old-fashioned house. Weary from working overtime at the office, Eve arrives there one evening to find a note telling her Dick has gone to a meeting. There is a knock at the door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

THE knock on the door was repeated. "Who's there?" Eve called firmly, her voice concealing her nervousness.

"Mrs. Brooks," a cheery voice responded.

Eve opened the door to allow her to enter. "We are having a little bridge party in Miss McElhinney's room," Mrs. Brooks explained. "We'd like to have you join us. There are just three of us—Miss McElhinney, Miss Leeds and myself."

Eve had seen the two school-teachers who had rooms on the floor above—fluffy little Dorothy McElhinney who left a trail of spicy perfume behind her in the hall and Abigail Leeds, precise and intellectual looking, who seemed always laden with books and papers.

It would serve Dick right, Eve told herself, if he found her absent when he returned. And, though she was tired, she thought the evening with her new neighbors might prove entertaining and make her feel less lonely than if she stayed in her own apartment.

"Just give me 10 minutes," she smiled, "and I'll be with you."

The effect of the bright frock she chose and the carefully applied make-up tended to lift her spirits and already she felt less weary as she made her way up the long flight of stairs to Miss McElhinney's open door.

The three women sat about a marble topped table with cards spread out before them. Mrs. Brooks hastened to introduce Eve. "Sit down," urged Miss McElhinney. "We were just playing 'cray bridge' while we waited for you. I'm so glad you came up. We thought you might prefer a little game with us to spending the evening alone."

Eve graciously took her place. But she was disturbed. What did Miss McElhinney mean? Was there malice there? How did that girl know Dick was to be absent all evening? Had he told her? This rekindled her resentment against Dick and her attention wandered from the game.

"Your turn, Mrs. Rader," snapped the young teacher as Eve permitted her eyes to wander over the room.

"Forgive me," she asked. "I was just admiring the furnishings."

"I'm glad you like the room," said Mrs. Brooks. "Just before Miss McElhinney came here I discarded the bed and worked out an idea of my own. I bought a good spring and had legs put on it. Then I bought a mattress and some chintz and fixed up that studio couch. It makes the room look more like a living room and it's ever so comfortable."

Eve felt she was a stupid bridge partner, but she did not care.

SHE returned home soon after midnight, thinking she would find Dick there before her. Indeed, she had lingered a little upstairs to give him plenty of time to return. Perhaps it would do him good to come home and find her away.

But Dick was not there. The place seemed dismal in spite of the bright new paint and pretty furnishings. Eve stood at the sink and looked with dismay at the stack of unwashed dishes. She took an apron from a hook behind the kitchen screen and was about to put it on. Then she hung it away again. She would leave the dishes until morning. She would get up early and wash them. She was sleepy, tired and cross, and decided to go to bed.

She had not enjoyed the bridge game and was aggrieved that "I Dick could find pleasure in an evening spent away from her. If he was beginning so early in their marriage to find diversion elsewhere, what could it mean except that he was tiring of his home?"

Eve found, however, that she was too tired and nervous to go to sleep. She tossed restlessly from side to side for an hour or more. She was worried now about Dick. Perhaps something had happened to him. She felt sure that a lodge meeting would be over before midnight. The last time she looked at her alarm clock it was a quarter after one. Then, presently, she slept.

She awoke to the sound of the brisk stropping of Chan's old-fashioned razor. She had argued with him about the time consumed by this task but he merely laughed, his eyes twinkling. Well, she would buy him a new razor. Christmas would serve as an excuse. Bixby's had advertised a tricky new safety razor with gold trimmings. She wasn't going to have that ugly leather strop hanging in her bathroom.

After a little the fragrance of coffee drifted in from the kitchen. Eve remembered the unwashed dishes and reluctantly got out of bed. For the first time since her marriage she almost wished that she had given up her work at Bixby's as Dick had asked her to do. It would be pleasant to stay at home today.

She found Dick cheerful but hurried. He did not wait to eat breakfast. "Have to scram," he said, hastily draining a cup of coffee. "I'm late. I'll grab a sandwich somewhere if I can find time for it after the work is under way." Then he kissed her absentmindedly and was gone.

HE had made no explanation of his absence the night before and her pride had prevented her from questioning him. Hurt and indignant, Eve made some toast and poured a cup of the now lukewarm coffee. But she could not eat. Swiftly she cleared the table and washed last night's dishes, but in spite of her haste she was a half hour late in reaching the office.

"Oh, Miss Bayless!" Mona Allen called to her as she entered. "Mr. Barnes has been looking everywhere for you."

Eve ignored this thrust. Arlene, emerging from Barnes' office a few minutes later, handed Eve some proofs to correct. Fastened to them with a paper clip was a hastily penciled note from Arlene. "Get these out of the way as quickly as possible," it read. "His highness is wild about something."

Later Eve and Arlene speculated on the cause of Barnes' display of temper—a thing most unusual for him.

"I think Mr. Bixby's been taking a hand in running the office again," Arlene confided. "I know he thinks expenses in our department are higher than they need to be and higher than the volume of this year's Christmas selling warrants. Wonder what the outcome will be! Barnes was on the point of resigning last year and he only agreed to stay on condition that Mr. Bixby promised a hands-off policy toward the advertising office. Sometimes I think Mr. Bixby wouldn't care much if Barnes did resign. He might get a new manager who would work for less and wouldn't object to his suggestions."

All this was food for thought for Eve and she renewed her efforts to make good in a conspicuous way. If Earle Barnes resigned or if he were forced to quit, perhaps Mr. Bixby would put her in charge of the department. While she had, from the first, hoped that eventually she would receive this promotion, she had not expected that it might come about so soon. But why not, she argued with herself. Several of the specialty shops in Lake City had women advertising managers.

Eve did not tell Dick about this possibility. She suspected that he would not like it. Oh, he would be proud of her ability, of

SHE hurried through her work that day, determined to get home on time. She longed for Dick's arms around her. Longed for that odd, silent barrier that suddenly came between them to her way.

But she was not to be surprised when she stepped into an explanation of the night before. When she mentioned that she had been invited to Miss McElhinney's for a game of bridge he asked her to go as usual as possible. "He had a nice time at the meeting he reported to me," she said, "and I'm glad you went."

Aside from that he was even more considerate than usual, suggesting that they should meet down town after work that evening, have dinner and perhaps go somewhere to dance or see a movie. And on this occasion he was so devoted, so like the Dick he had been before and immediately after their marriage, that Eve was ashamed of her suspicions.

Next evening he called up shortly before the store closed to tell Eve he would not be home for dinner and that she should wait up for him as he might be rather late. Immediately Eve's suspicions were aroused anew. His explanation for this absence was that all the executives in charge of the construction job on which he was engaged were having dinner together to be followed by a conference concerning their work.

She went home, locked the door, and after making herself a cup of tea and a sandwich, turned off the lights in the living room, shut herself up in the bedroom and tried to read herself to sleep.

It was nearly one o'clock before Dick came home. Eve, who was wide awake, closed her eyes and pretended that she was asleep, though she scorned herself for pretense and was furious at Dick for making the pretense seem necessary. What was their marriage coming to, she asked herself over and over again.

course; but he would not approve of her going into anything which was certain to take so much of her time and interest. Nevertheless she resolved that after the holidays, whether Dick approved the step or not, she would begin to attend night school again and review the course she had taken in advertising. She wondered, too, what salary Mr. Bixby would be likely to pay her. Not so much—not nearly so much as Barnes was getting—but considerably more than she now received. And, characteristically, Eve began to plan what she would do with this added money.

ONCE EACH DAY

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

Meet President Gladys . . .

So begins one of the most fascinating articles I have read on Gladys Whitley Henderson, new national president of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional fraternity for women in journalism.

And even when you've read the brief and catchy story of how and when she came to be and what she's done with life so far you still haven't met President Gladys.

You have to travel big trains out of Dallas and change to funny little creeping trains in Missouri.

You have to inhale smoke and smear smoot around on your face.

You have to eat expensive meals on diners and grab a sandwich at the next little stop to fill in.

You have to toss about in a Pullman and listen to the endless grind of wheels throughout a night.

You have to laugh at people and see them laugh at you . . .

And then you can look at her blond hair and into her laughing blue eyes and feel that you've met President Gladys.

After eight days of hobnobbing with her, I think I've met her.

I've known hundreds of girls for years and known them less intimately. But there is truly only one Gladys.

It seems she is the daughter of a Wolf City, Texas, newspaper editor, who was also the son of an editor. Hence, an early introduction to type lice and grease and ink.

Her career begins so: Two years in Trinity University, two years on the Waxahachie Light . . . shift! Two years in the University of Texas, serving as university correspondent for some six or more Texas newspapers.

Here her life becomes a mass of honorary societies and officers. Mortar board, Sigma Delta Chi scholarship pin for girls, president of XI chapter of Theta Sig and representative to national convention.

Whereupon she was elected national fraternity secretary, at the following convention she was shifted to national organizer, and now . . . Meet President Gladys.

Within her hand she holds the literary careers of some 4,000 girls, 39 active chapters, and 21 alumnae chapters.

Character sketch: modern, slender, blond, striking, friendly, and clever.

She became married some two years ago to R. D. Henderson, for 13 years director of the textbook division of the State Department of Education and now Texas agent for the John C. Winston Book company.

If you ever turn your efforts to column writing and attempt to introduce one of the most fascinating and interesting characters you have ever known in a few brief paragraphs,

You'll know how I feel when I say,

Meet President Gladys.

An Appeal For Help For Students

By H. S. VON ROEDER
Dean, Ranger Junior College
Because of the effects of the depression, this year more students than ever seem to be in need of help to enable them to attend college.

CARRIES ALL-BRAN ON EVERY VOYAGE

Seaman Finds This Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Here is an unsolicited letter from Mr. Darragh:

"I have been going to sea for the past fourteen years. Every trip, I underwent severe headaches, nervousness, and sleeplessness. Tried all sorts of remedies, and received only temporary relief.

"So hearing about Kellogg's ALL-BRAN thought I would get a box, which I did. That was six months ago, haven't been without it at home, and when I go to sea a box of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is always with me."

Tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things for common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

How much pleasanter this is than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Junior College and will attend here if they can just get some assistance in the way of work for their room and board or other jobs whereby they can make part or all of their tuition and other college expenses. We are urging the citizenship and especially the business men of Ranger to respond to the cry for help and give jobs to prospective students. It is pathetic to see people who are in need of work to make their daily living expenses, but it is equally pathetic to see so many fine young people just out of high school who are ambitious and anxious to do something worth while but who can't find work and haven't the means to continue their education.

Let us get behind this movement and help the student, help Ranger Junior College, and help Ranger. The Ranger school board at its last meeting appointed a committee to work jointly with a committee of the Chamber of Commerce in asking the business men of this city to give help wherever possible to students seeking employment. If the business men of Ranger would only realize the urgent need of such help and the returns to be derived from giving it, they would not hesitate to find some way of using these young people. Consider the great advantages and possibilities of Ranger Junior College to this section. It offers two years of standard first class college work at a great financial saving to the patrons and at the same time brings in more business and more people to this section. The average expenditures per student per year in the larger colleges has been figured at somewhat above $500; the average expenditures per student in Ranger Junior College probably is below $300. Now figure the savings to the 131 students enrolled in Ranger Junior College during the past year and then figure the savings or assets to Ranger and this section. The former would be $26,000 savings to the patrons (the difference be-

The Lone Star club of the Twilight League defeated the re-vamped Barbers by a score of 24 to 3 at Willows field to join the list of teams heading the percentage column.

The teams started off like they were evenly matched, the score being tied 2-2 at the end of the second inning, but the Lone Star batters went rampant in the third, making seven hits and 10 runs, every player on the team with the exception of Bob King scoring one run and Gene Yonker accounting for two markers. Their seven hits were sandwiched in with two errors and a base on balls, that helped in the scoring. Again in the first of the seventh the Lone Star went on a batting spree and ran in six more runs, after taking six in the three innings preceding.

The Barbers scored twice in the second on two hits and once in the third without accounting for a hit, making their runs on two errors. Lemma, who played in left field three innings and at third four for the Barbers, led in the Barbers' attack, getting three hits in three trips to the plate to get as many safeties as the rest of the team combined.

Again we urge you all to patronize and support Ranger Junior College and to give every possible aid to those who wish to attend here. Those who have or know of any place where students may work for room and board or get part time employment, are asked to notify H. S. Von Roeder, dean of Ranger Junior College, phone 251W.

society of the Methodist church. Several new faces were noted in the little group that greeted their director, Mrs. Fred Drago, at the regular meeting of the club Wednesday morning, in Booster classroom.

The general assembly was opened with the hymn, "Bring Them In," and a responsive Scripture reading led by Wendell Hunter.

The primary then adjourned with Mrs. Drago to their room, and continued the making of three scrap-books, which, with all the work of the department now in hand will be sent when completed to the Indian mission school in Oklahoma.

Miss Maurine Davenport supervised the junior session, which enjoyed the second installment of the story Miss Davenport is so ably telling, "The American Indian."

During the telling, the girls hemmed embroidered wash cloths and the boys made airplanes in their woodcraft class.

Young P.-T. A. President Holds Executive Meeting

With only a few more play days remaining to dot the calendar for school children after a happy and care-free summer vacation, already parent-teacher associations are beginning to turn their attention to the opening of school scheduled for Sept. 11.

One of the most worth-while and busily spent hours marking club gatherings this week brought an assembly of members representing Young ward school when the president of the Parent-Teacher association held an executive meeting at her Young street home, Thursday morning.

The session opened with the appointment of standing committees for the year.

Mrs. J. M. Crain, state publicity chairman, who acted as judge along with other capable judges, passed on the scrap-book as winner of first place among Ranger schools. For this compliment and marked distinction the book will be on display at the state meeting to be held at Sherman in November.

ber. There are 19 districts forming the one in which Ranger is listed, making the honor only more mentionable.
