FORD POLICY ON BLUE EAGLE STILL AWAITED

AN ANTOINETTE, Mich., Sept. 1.—An announcement of Henry Ford's attitude toward President Roosevelt's national recovery program was expected today as the motor manufacturer and largest single industrialist without the blue eagle prepared for a council with the executives of his many enterprises.

There was no inkling of what Ford intended to do in the face of the efforts of NRA officials to bring him within the automobile code.

Some friends of the motor magnate expected him to go way beyond the provisions of the code but others thought he would refuse flatly to sign it.

Walter Lee, claiming he was here to stay several months, walked into local grocery, bought $10 worth of groceries, ordered them sent to an apartment house, gave a check on a construction company of Fort Worth, got $3 difference in cash—and walked out.

But before he walked out, he made himself known, asked the merchant and clerks to call him "Walter," for he wanted to feel at home and among friends.

He rented an apartment all right, but never came back. The groceries were delivered, but no one was at home. The bank telephoned and the check was bogus.

Yes, certainly, some Weatherford people saw Walter. He either came directly to Weatherford from Mineral Wells, or went directly from here there, we don't know which.

GROCERS HAVE UNIQUE SURPRISE FOR CHILDREN

Sunday School Lesson

PICTURES OF SILVER
By BEULAH K. HICKS

I Sam. 16:4-13, Psalm 78:70-72
 David—a name that truly exemplifies true greatness; a name that brings back heroic stories loved by children and grown-ups alike.
 Samuel, now old, knew that God had rejected Saul and had chosen one of Jesse's sons to be his successor.
 During the visit we see Samuel as he views the stalwart sons of Jesse with their kingly appearance. But Samuel seemed puzzled and the Lord spoke to him, "Look not on his countenance or on the height of his stature; for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance but the Lord looketh on the heart."
 So the young son David, a shepherd boy of ruddy, beautiful countenance, was sent for. Coming in from the hills where he had learned to tune his soul to the infinite presence of God, who had prepared him in mind and body to be of the line from which our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, was to descend from, he portrayed a beauty and earnestness which Samuel recognized at once. Rising, he anointed him as selected of God to succeed Saul.
 "But the Lord looketh on the heart," might be David's motto as he lives his eventful life. Always God was his first thought and he relied upon him fully for strength. His quietness, gentleness and the beauty of his songs had the power to soothe Saul in his fits of madness after God had withdrawn his power from him.
 It was in God that he trusted as he went out to meet the giant with his sling and pebbles; when Saul persecuted and tried often to kill him.
 David and Jonathan, the great friendship, is the subject of many of his poems.
 David as a king was great; close to God and loved of God, yet he committed two great sins, adultery and murder.

 Again he remembered that the Lord looketh on the heart and repented in great sorrow and tribulation, fully acknowledging his sin to the Lord.
 "David was a man after God's own heart, not because he never did wrong, but because when he fell down he got up again. He got up faced toward God and not away from him, faced away from the evil which had thrown him down and not towards a further advance in wrong doing," are the words of a noted minister.
 God was with him and forgave him and loved him.
 How many problems, personal, political, social and religious could be solved if we would arm ourselves with the simple armor of our Lord and go forth to meet the giants, letting the Holy Spirit guide us in all things.
 He chose David also his servant and took him from the sheep folds. From following the ewes great with young he brought him to feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance.
 So he fed them according to the integrity of his heart; and guided them by the skillfulness of his hands.—Psalm 78:70-72.

British Praise Roosevelt For Unusual Courage

By United Press
 LONDON, Aug. 30.— British opinion of Franklin D. Roosevelt, after the first six months of his presidency, is sympathetic and kindly, though tinged with doubt to the ultimate success of his planned economy.

Conservative economists here on denouncing him as reckless; socialist insist that any attempt at governmental planning within the capitalist system is fore-doomed to failure; but all criticism here is mingled with admiration for Roosevelt's courage in shouldering responsibility, taking risks and being.

Popular interest in his policy is immense and, although emotional views have prevailed over expert judgments, the alleged passivity of the British government is being justly compared with the intense activity of the Roosevelt administration.

Not only opponents of the MacDonald cabinet, but a number of its influential followers in the House of Commons, have been displaying marked impatience with the British government and demanding increased activity.

Not only in parliament, but in the press and on the street, abundant evidence is to be found that British sentiment favors collaboration with Roosevelt. Even though an important section of British industry and agriculture prefers an ingrown policy of economic isolation, the pressure of the Dominions, notably Canada and Australia, is strongly pulling Britain towards measures in harmony with the United States.

Bankers here have not ceased to resent Washington's unexpected abandonment of the gold standard in April.

Unbiased commentators here understand, and the fair-minded section of the press has tried to make clear to its readers, that Roosevelt is not primarily concerned with lowering the value of the dollar in relation to the pound, and does not want the dollar to be worth less goods. It is realized that his objective would best be gained if other countries pursued a policy of deflation in concurrence with that of the United States.

Schoolteachers to Get No Benefits From NRA Plan
By United Press
 KANSAS CITY, Mo.— Thousands of southwestern teachers return to classrooms next month to face slashed salaries, uncertain paydays and diminution of employment in their profession. Other workers sing praises of the Blue Eagle.

Employment generally is increasing, average earnings are rising and working hours are being extended. But not for teachers in Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, a United Press reporter showed.

Over-ridden school districts, municipalities and states in many instances this year will pay the low salaries and employ fewer teachers than at any time since World War. They don't have money to do otherwise.

Those affected range from the small one-room country school that has been abandoned to the college professor whose courses are being eliminated for economy's sake. And those who retained their positions, in most cases, took salary cuts for the second or third consecutive year.

The teachers are looking with fearful eyes toward Washington and the NRA. But school boards and state officials, with empty purses and bonded debts are deriding if N. R. A. Administrator Hugh Johnson can conjure their salaries out of the air.

N. R. A. officials advised the American Council on Education that it had not yet formulated a policy in regard to participation in educational institutions in the recovery program.

Missouri and Nebraska educators are organizing to see that their states include schools in benefits accruing from relief programs and returning national prosperity. Other Southwestern states plan to do likewise.

Instances of rural teachers receiving as little as $35 a month, college professors reduced to $10 a month, are on record. The wages of state universities and colleges have been reduced 30 percent in many cases.

Grade and high school teachers in most cities will work for from 25 to 50 percent less than salaries two years ago.

Last year, in Oklahoma and in other states, teachers' salary grants were discounted 5 to 10 percent by banks which cashed them, as the warrants were non-negotiable and had to be held for collections.

The average of rural teachers' salaries in Nebraska for the school year 1933-34 is $467.40, the state department of education estimates. City and village teachers will average $9.46. These compare to $762 and $1,238 two years ago. A thousand less teachers will be employed in the state.

The University of Kansas at Lawrence and the University of Wichita have reduced teaching staffs and salaries.
 Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma, wielding arbitrary power conferred upon him by the last legislature, abolished whole departments in state schools and all salaries were drastically cut.

Teachers in the University of Texas and other state schools receive a 25 per cent salary reduction Sept. 1. Most Texas grade school teachers are behind in salaries due to shortage of school funds and all work for salaries far below 1930-31 levels. Texas private colleges are in the same predicament as the state schools.

Public school teachers in Dallas face salary reductions of from 7 to 16 per cent, depending on the amount they draw. El Paso teachers were cut 5 per cent and in that city, 184 fewer were employed than last year. Other Texas cities reported similar conditions.

Missouri plans consolidation of hundreds of smaller districts dotted with one- and two-room schools, so fewer teachers can teach more children.

Kansas City, Mo., reduced teachers' salaries 25 per cent. Kansas City, Kan., ordered a 15 per cent cut on top of a 10 per cent reduction, placing the neighboring cities on a parity.

The story is the same all over the southwest, with a few isolated exceptions where wealthy school districts are able to pay good salaries with warrants which may be cashed immediately for full face value.

CCC Aids State In Forest Roads

By United Press
 HARRISBURG, Pa.—Construction of roads through Pennsylvania's States Forests is one of the major tasks being performed by the 18,000 young men enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps in the state, according to forestry officials.

"These roads and trails are needed to facilitate movement of equipment in time of fire," a report said. "They also are used extensively for getting forest products to market, as well as by hunters, fishermen and campers who seek recreation in the wooded areas. Another important job of the forest workers is building telephone lines—essential for quick reporting of fires."

"Numerous recreational areas, such as tourist camps and parks, also are being developed and improved."

"Thousands of acres of woodlands are being thinned out to improve the kind and quality of the timber. The deadly blister rust, a fungous disease that threatens the white pine stands of the state, is being controlled over extensive areas."

"It should be understood," the report said, "that the youths are not loafing in their tents when they should be working. Neither are they wandering around aimlessly in the woods."

VALUE JUMPS 2,000 TIMES

By United Press
 PARIS.—Old records have been unearthed to show that since the Middle Ages—when Paris was second greatest city in the world—real estate here has increased in value 2,000 times. The same lot which records show sold at the rate of 652 francs for two acres in 1290 recently was sold for 1,297,000 francs.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE FOOL: The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. Corrupt are they, and have done abominable iniquity: God looked down from heaven to see if there were any that did understand.—Psalm 53: 1, 2.

A CODE OF ETHICS FOR BEER

There will be no delay in beginning the sale of beer in Texas, Sept. 15. Places still open at midnight, Sept 14, may then begin to serve beer to their patrons with what may pass in beer circles as a clear conscience. Beer is already sold more or less openly in the state, and that is bad for public morals and law enforcement. Such tactics, if persisted in after beer becomes legal, may hurt the beer business. It would be an excellent idea if the beer industry, as soon as the initial rush of opening up breweries and getting established on a more or less permanent basis is finished, would give some thought to law enforcement.

The legislature has already enacted regulatory provisions, which probably will have to be modified later on. But the sale of beer in this state, as well as in all other states that do not prohibit its sale, can be easily abused. If beer is made a public nuisance, the inevitable reaction will set in. In the flush of victory wets should not forget that brewers were held responsible for the existence of thousands of disreputable resorts in this country before national prohibition was adopted. The brewers opened saloons everywhere, or provided financial backing, so their own brands of beer could be sold in these places. The conditions thus created became intolerable. The lower class of beer saloons, which were much more numerous than saloons of the better class, were breeding places for crime and immorality.

There are to be no saloons, known by that name, under the new dispensation anywhere in the United States. Nevertheless, it will be necessary for the makers of beer, and perhaps a little later for the distillers of alcoholic liquors, as well as the thousands of persons engaged in the distribution of beer and liquor, to maintain a higher standard of ethics than was known in pre-prohibition days. The American people have already sealed the fate of the 18th Amendment, and, in effect, have voted for the return of all alcoholic liquors. But by that vote, the American people have not sanctioned a return of conditions that prevailed under the saloon regime.

OIL AND GASOLINE PRICES

Texas, using about one million gallons of tax-covered gasoline daily, uses only a third of the refined output of the state's oil production. But for that third, the price of gasoline is raised a cent a gallon, as was done this week. Texas pays an additional $10,000 per day reward for the higher price of the oil.

That means that the one-cent increase in the price of gasoline out of Texas oil returns to the gasoline people $30,000 per day.

According to Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson's formula, the buyers of oil should be paying $1.30 per barrel for crude, before being justified in charging 13 cents plus tax (5½ cents) for gasoline.

Reversing that formula, if they are paying 80 cents for crude oil, the justifiable price under it for gasoline would be 13½ cents per gallon.

But, during the months when refiners were buying Texas crude oil at 10, 25 and 30 cents, who can remember any gasoline that was selling at 6 or 9 cents? What is a fair price for gasoline? and do the people who pay for the gasoline have a share in determining that price?

Some countries remain "on gold," many are "off gold," and a few neither on nor off. This is no place to guess why this happened, for nowadays guesses are subject to sudden and somewhat drastic changes. But our opinion—and it's no guess—is that most of us are not worrying about Gold Standard; we are wondering where we are going to get any kind of money to buy those things needed to keep us living.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

That competition often makes more business.
Stores that advertise are extremely competitive.
There is no competition between advertised goods and non-advertised goods, because nobody knows about non-advertised goods and there is no demand for them.
The competition is between different advertised goods because a demand has been created for them.
Business concerns should link up their business to good advertising.
There is something particularly pleasing about good advertising.
There is a distinctive character to advertised goods.
Advertising shows that the dealer and manufacturer have faith in their products and stand ready to back up their faith.

Dead Turtle's Head Strangled Chicken

By United Press
HALLS, Tenn.—Mrs. John Hollway vouches for the following story:
Recently she killed a large turtle near a pond in the rear of her home. The head of the turtle, its mouth open, was thrown into the chicken yard. One of her hens began pecking at it.
The turtle head grabbed the chicken in a deathlike grip and strangled the chicken. Mrs. Hollway claims.
BIG IRON ORE SHIPMENT

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

THE VISIBLE PORTION OF THE MOON HAS BEEN MORE THOROUGHLY EXPLORED BY MAN THAN MANY PORTIONS OF THE EARTH!

ABOUT 30,000 CHIMNEY SWIFTS HAVE BEEN TAGGED, IN AN EFFORT TO FIND OUT WHERE THEY SPEND THEIR WINTERS!

ANY OBJECT ON the side of the moon next to us can be seen with a powerful telescope, provided that the object is 100 feet or more in diameter. This leaves many smaller details to be guessed at, but there are hundreds of thousands of square miles of the earth's surface that have never been seen by human eyes.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS
We dropped around by the post-office the other day. It's an interesting place to drop.
"Good morning, Sophronie," we called to the girl in the next car, "and how are you this morning?"
She spared us one brief glance, a nod, and hurried back to the letter in hand. "Happy right now," quoth she.
No need to ask . . . 'twas from a man.
There was a cross between a boy and man . . . it's hard to tell about these freight passengers. Upon him were overalls, beside him a small bundle of clothes, in his hand a letter.
He frowned and grinned by turns . . . we hung around a bit to watch his reaction to the news-from-home. There was indecision in his walk as he left the office.
Not much doubt about it . . . mama had written.
Followed a business man . . . turning over a packet of mail for the firm, barely escaping collision with a center-post. Aha, a little gleam of interest . . . a personal letter.
Expectation, haste, a quick frown . . .
Nothing to it . . . just a dun.
Don't know who the girl was. But it was a long envelope with an official return stamped in the upper left-hand corner . . . we couldn't help seeing it.
And the girl was a little disappointed. Maybe it wasn't just what she expected. She registered a drooping mouth, sad eyes.
We're only guessing . . . it must have been the return of the contest entry . . . and no go.
And so people come and people go . . . and nothing ever misses the postoffice.

INHABITANTS DESERT SAINT HELENA

By United Press
PARIS.—Returning travelers report that Saint Helena, the island where Napoleon died in exile, is being deserted. Only 80 European residents are left. Life is so monotonous there that when the bi-monthly boats arrive, the women rush for the liners to spend hours with the hairdressers and talking with passengers. A silent-film theatre is operated on Saturday night in an effort to relieve the monotony.

Goes on Trial in Campus Murder

Football Players Are Reviewed By Coach S. J. Petty

Coach S. J. Petty met his prospects from which to develop a football team for the Eastland high school Thursday afternoon. Some 30 or 40 boys responded to the call and spent some two hours discussing football with the coach and hearing his plans for this season.
The first practice session was called for 8:30 o'clock this morning, but due to the fact that shoes that had been ordered several days back had failed to arrive, the practice could not be carried out as scheduled. Coach Petty utilized the time in lecturing his charges on the fundamentals of football.

Crime experts meeting in New York suggested that hardened young convicts be lashed regularly at the whipping post. Well, that's one way of keeping 'em in stripes.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

LET'S BEGIN HERE TODAY... EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARL EARNES, advertising manager of Bibby's department store, marries DICK RADER, a construction superintendent temporarily working in Lake City. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses. SAM HOLEBRIDGE, an advertising man employed by another store, becomes infatuated with ARLENE SMITH, stenographer at Bibby's, but she fancies herself in love with GEORGE BISS. BISS has been nipped by MONA ALLEN, blond copy writer. Eve begins playing the stock market without Dick's knowledge. She becomes worried because he does not explain several mysterious absences from home evenings. The theater on which he has been working is opened to the public and they attend the first performance. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII THROUGH Bibby's store had been featuring new spring apparel since mid-winter, the approach of Easter brought new merchandise and new activity to almost every department. Even in the housewares, rugs and draperies a special effort was put forth to interest prospective Easter brides. And although this meant added work in the advertising office Eve, Arlene and Marya enjoyed it. Even Mona showed some enthusiasm when a consignment of especially smart new hats arrived. One of a kind hats bearing the magic names of famous designers on their lining bands. One morning a dozen of these hats were sent to the advertising office so that Marya might select several to sketch. Eve looked them over. She smothered an exclamation and hurried to the mirror to try on a tiny black and white sailor. Marya cried out, 'It's lovely on you, Eve! Oh, that should make a grand sketch!' Eve tilted the hat this way and that to find exactly the most becoming angle. Then she turned for Arlene to approve the result. The hat was close-fitting and made of black straw. Its brim, entirely covered with tiny white violets, was set on to give the effect of a halo about the face. 'What a love of a hat!' Arlene exclaimed. 'And it's perfect on you, Eve. Just perfect!' 'I do like it,' agreed Eve. 'It would be nice with that black wool crepe suit I had laid away for Easter.' She replaced the hat carefully in its tissue paper wrappings and returned it to its bandbox. The buzzer on Eve's desk sounded and she arose to answer Mr. Barnes' summons. They were in conference over the next day's layouts for a full hour and when Eve returned she found that the other girls had gone to lunch. SHE slipped down to the main floor fountain and ordered a lettuce sandwich and a cup of tea. 'Dick would think a lunch like this one perfectly terrible!' she told herself. 'But I don't care. What I save on lunches I can invest.' The little hat with the white vio-
