SENATE PASSES NRA EXTENSION RESOLUTION

All Committeemen For Passion Play Will Meet Tonight

A meeting of the executive committee for the Passion Play, the general committee and at least one representative from each of the organizations now selling tickets, has been called for tonight. It was pointed out today by the executive committee that it was urgent that every committeeman attend the meeting, because the last-minute details must be taken care of and a concerted drive to sell tickets to keep the enterprise from being a financial failure must be started immediately.

Arrested With Ransom Money

Their venture into major crime cut short after a week of flight, Harmon M. Waley and his wife, Margaret, above, confessed members of the gang which kidnaped George Weyerhaeuser Jr., in Tacoma, Wash., gave information that led to finding of nearly half the $200,000 ransom money paid by the father for his return.

The prosecution was concluded with reading of letters which passed between Laska and Albert Bates, now serving life for the abduction of Charles Urschel.

Sharp Attacks On NRA and AAA May Feature Meeting

O'Reilly, a friend and member of the crusading pastor's congregation, and then fleeing to Louisiana, whence he was returned to Orange. O'Reilly had disarmed and warned the minister the day before the fatal shooting in an Orange street.

FIBUSTER BY LONG BROKEN IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—White House pressure applied a few hours after the senate broke Huey Long's 15 1/2-hour filibuster, and passed the NRA extension resolution, today forced acceptance by house leaders of senate amendments. The revised measure was expected to be brought up in the house tomorrow for concurrence in the senate changes. It would then go to the white house. Unless further difficulties develop, passage should be obtained to insure continuance of the skeleton NRA which otherwise expires Sunday. House leaders went to the white house today, four hours after the senate passed the NRA extension at 6:14 a. m. Some of them were indignant at an anti-trust amendment inserted in the bill by the senate. After the conference with Mr. Roosevelt, however, it was announced the fight to eliminate the provision would not be made.

Rev. Sid Martin Speaks On 'Home' At Revival Meet

One of the greatest sermons of the series brought by Rev. Sid Martin to the present revival at the Central Baptist church, was delivered last night when he spoke on the subject of "Homes." He stated that the home was the oldest institution known, being even older than the church, and was also one of the most important or it could not have survived so long. He said that he had talked to educators, jailors, penitentiary wardens and many others on the subject and all agreed that the breakdown of the home was responsible, in the majority of cases, for many adverse conditions.

LIFE TERM FOR KIDNAPERS IS PART OF 'DEAL'

TACOMA, Wash., June 13.—Harmon and Margaret Waley, confessed kidnapers of nine-year-old George Weyerhaeuser, will escape the possibility of a death penalty through a "deal" with federal authorities, it was reported today. The report, not confirmed, said the Waleys would be prosecuted only under the Lindbergh law in return for information about Walter Mahan, their accomplice, now being hunted. Less drastic than the Washington state law, which permits the jury to fix death for the commission of kidnaping, the federal law provides that for the death penalty only where the victim has been harmed but permits a life sentence for cases like the Weyerhaeuser case, where the boy was returned uninjured. His captors took special pains not to harm him.

Southwest Bad Man Captured At Hollis, Okla.

HOLLIS, Okla., June 13.—Julius Bohannon, wanted in connection with a Texas bank robbery and killing of two Oklahoma officers was taken to Granite today for safe keeping. Sheriff S. D. Anderson, who arrested the man, said he obtained a full statement from him about the robbery at Naples, Texas, and the killing, which took place near Idabel. A woman who said she was Bohannon's wife remained in the jail here. Officers said she told them she did not know her husband had anything to do with the bank robbery until they mentioned it to her, though she did say she knew of the killing.

AIR CLIPPER LANDS SAFELY IN HONOLULU

HONOLULU, T. H., June 13.—Pan-American Airways' giant black and silver clipper ship landed on Pearl harbor at 8:58 a. m., P.S.T., today after a triumphal flight from Alameda, Calif., to Honolulu. Capt. Edwin Music, skipper of the trail-blazing flying boat, and his crew of five men became the only aviators in history to fly the 2,410 miles of expanse of water between the California coast and the Hawaiian Islands more than once. Defying rain and forecasts of cyclonic conditions over the Pacific, the clipper soared from the East San Francisco bay terminal at 3 p. m. yesterday, cutting 42 minutes from its record of 18 hours, 39 minutes for the flight.

Testimony Heard In Damage Suit Over a Collision

"I told you to put your lights on," an irate girl told her driver companion after a crash on the Eastland-Ranger highway last September, R. E. Toland, employe of the Eastland county sanitary department, and witness of the accident, quoted in a personal damage suit Wednesday in 88th district court. Hearing on the case in which H. S. Needham asks $8,269 for his son, Paul Weldon, because of an alleged accident with Tom Bruce of Callahan county and Paul Tomlin of Eastland county was begun Wednesday, but continued to July 2 after testimony of Toland was taken. The plaintiff alleges that Bruce and Tomlin were negligent while driving without lights on the Eastland-Ranger highway on Sept. 22, 1934, when the accident occurred. Toland testified he was driving on the Ranger highway, was nearing a curve between Olden and Ranger, the Needham car was going approximately 25 miles per hour and was on the right side; the Bruce car was on the wrong side and crashed into Needham's car, turning it toward Eastland. Judging from the impact, Toland testified for Needham, the Bruce-Tomlin car was going approximately 45 miles per hour, and was without lights. The Needhams were driving toward Ranger and Bruce and Tomlin from that city, Toland testified. Officers who came to the accident scene later found a whiskey bottle, Toland testified. According to the petition of the plaintiff, Weldon Needham, as a result of the collision, suffered broken ribs and other injuries which will make him permanently disabled. The plaintiff alleges scalding water from the radiator burned his son. Representing the plaintiff is Frank Sparks of Eastland and L. H. Flewelling of Ranger. Judge R. L. Rust represents the defendants.

Varied Program Is Presented at Lions Club Meeting Here

Lewis, division claim agent of the Texas & Pacific Railway company, was presented as the principal speaker of the day, and gave an interesting outline of the history of roading in the Southwest. He told about the progress that has been made by the western railroads, especially those in the Southwest, and said that this vast section of the United States can attribute much of its growth and expansion to the railroads. B. A. Tunnell and M. M. Dutton, agents of the two local railroads, were present and made short talks on subjects pertaining to Railroad Week.

Title one of the act expires Sunday. It established office of transportation co-ordinator and forbade the railroads in effecting economies to reduce employment below the May, 1933, level. Extension of time for signing applications for tax-exemption certificates under the Bankhead act was announced Thursday by O. W. Ewing, assistant in cotton adjustment. No date limit was announced. Time for producers to sign at community meetings has expired and the county agent's office remains the only place where it may be done, Ewing stated. "Second notices are being mailed urging this be attended to as soon as possible in order not to delay payment under contracts."

Hundreds of cars were stalled in flooded streets. No deaths or property damage was reported.

We Honor the Finest in Men and Machines

In the last decade New York City has held two of those hysterical, ear-sattering receptions which set a high-water mark for the outburst of popular enthusiasm.

One was to celebrate the return of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh after his great flight to Paris.

The other, held just the other day, marked the arrival in New York harbor of the French ocean liner Normandie.

By contrasting the two events which were able to summon forth this melange of screaming whistles, swirling storms of ticker tape and cheering of massed thousands of people, you can get a pretty fair line on the kind of things which really touch off our enthusiasm these days.

In its greeting to the Normandie New York was paying the homage that we all feel to a great mechanical triumph.

This is an age of machinery, as some thousands of solemn commentators (including this one) have frequently remarked. It is a machine age, that is, not merely because it has a great many intricate and ingenious machines, but because it lives through them and by them.

So it is only natural that the Normandie's arrival should provoke a storm of cheers and a deep intensity of interest. A great ship of this kind sums up the mechanical age as well as any contrivance ever built.

So much for the Normandie. Now for the other demonstration—the one held some eight years ago in honor of Col. Lindbergh.

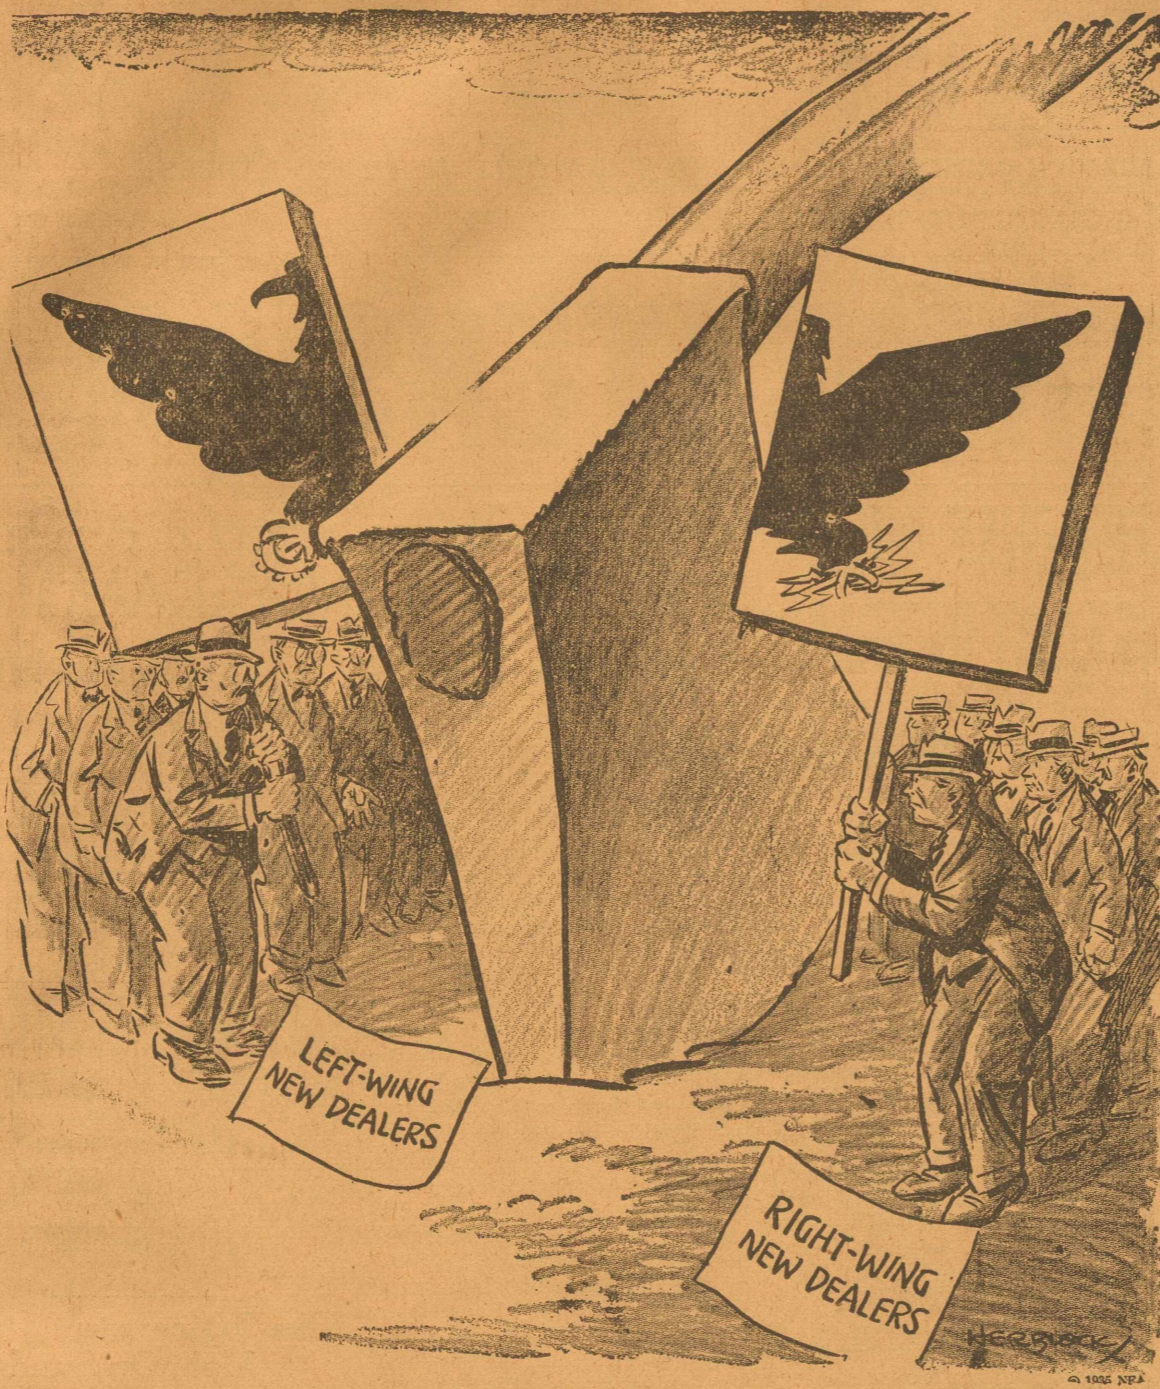

That, too, was part of our mechanical age, inasmuch as the airplane itself is one of the most characteristic bits of machinery of this generation. But the celebration honored the man, not the machine.

And when you contrast that feat with the one represented by the liner Normandie you can draw a little moral for yourself.

Two things are able to touch off our enthusiasm these days; fine machines—and fine men. Everything considered, we seem to be able to produce about as many of one as the other.

Customers take a just pride in buying from growing institutions. Newspaper advertising makes a growing business.

Early History and Development Of Passion Play As Outlined By The Author of the English Play

The long wooden stage was open on all sides, the house formed the background and a balcony was attached to the house. The balcony was there to represent heaven, and three crosses erected just under it so that the souls of the three were to die might mount easily and logically. Along the sides of the stage were various houses, required for the production. Indications and symbolism had to take the place of the reality. A cask standing on end represented the mountain Christ stood upon when the Devil tempted him. Thunder was imitated by the report of a gun. In order to show that the Devil had entered into him Judas held a blackbird in front of his mouth and fluttered its wings. The suicide of Judas was an execution in which Satan was the hangman. He dragged Judas at the end of a rope, an animal concealed in front of his clothing. Satan tears open the garment, the bird flies away, the intestines fall out and Satan and Judas slide the rope into Hell. The entrance of Hell was pictured by a wide open mouth of a monster, and souls captured and released during the play passed through this mouth. A painted picture, representing the soul was hung from the mouth of each of the two thieves who died upon the cross. The angel takes the soul of the penitent thief. The Devil snatches the soul of the impenitent one. The actors remained on the stage during the entire performance. They sat upon barriers of their respective divisions and were permitted to leave their places only to recite their lines. As each finished speaking, he returned to his place. All costumes were of the period of the living players. History was utterly ignored in that respect. The costumes were magnificent and costly, and silks, velvet, jewels and fine carpets decorated the Passion Plays of the time. They gave in this highest development, a true picture of German city life. Serious and lively humor were developed, but as time went on and the seventeenth century went along, the plays fell more and more into the hands of the lower orders. The ecclesiastical authorities forbade their presentation, usually on the grounds of disgraceful and irreverent farce. The Reformation was unfriendly to the Passion Plays. They were relegated finally to small out-of-the-way villages and towns. Public interest in the Passion Play did not return until the last decade of the nineteenth century.

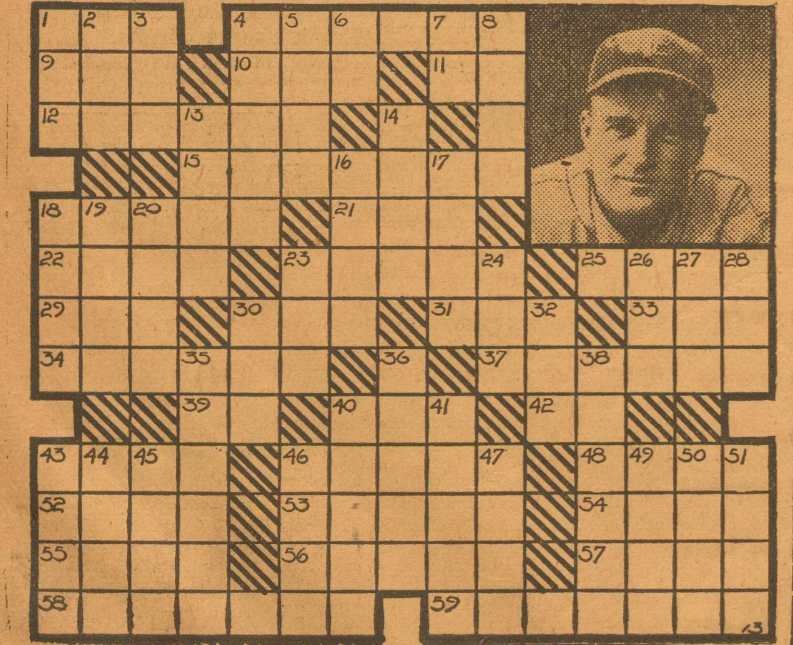

The Passion Play as will be presented in Ranger with members of the Freiburg cast, is probably the finest example of the Passion Play which has passed through all the stages of change and expansion, and which now after more than 800 years, for the first time will be produced the American version of both the Oberammergau and Freiburg Passion Plays. The presentation in Ranger will BEGIN HERE TODAY Katharine Strykhurst, beautiful, 20, falls in love with Michael Heathroe who owns a riding academy. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother is snobbish. Michael becomes engaged to Sally Moon, local coquette, due to Sally's scheming. In spite of this, Michael asks Katharine to marry him and, impulsively, she agrees. The marriage takes place in an obscure little town. Katharine and Michael each go to their own homes. Almost immediately Michael learns he has inherited a fortune and title. He goes to New York to see the lawyer in charge and is injured in a traffic accident. Sally, unaware of Michael's marriage to Katharine, locates him in a hospital and takes charge of the situation.

Violet had advised her to wait and see what happened. This Katharine had done. And nothing had happened... not a thing to reassure her. Not one message had come through from the man whose hand she had taken that day in a sleepy Connecticut town. Her ring she had given to him. She had not a shadow of proof. Not, she reminded herself hotly and proudly, that she wanted any. Oh, but it had been a wanton joke to play on her! She who had kept herself so cool and remote all these years at last had given her heart to the hawk's. She writhed at the thought. Violet watched her through the days with a growing anxiety. There was a savage pity in the eyes she turned to the fair-haired girl. Long ago Violet, too, had suffered just such a hurt and it had embittered her earlier years. It was a grievous shame, thought the older woman.

in their group of acquaintances. "I'm afraid to trust anyone," Katharine said in a tone of bitterness that startled her hearer. "Leave it to me," Violet said. Evelyn Vincent was going to New Mexico to stay with some friends who kept an informal sort of inn there. She had suggested weeks before that Katharine accompany her. At the time the plan had seemed far away and nebulous to the girl. Now it seemed a God-given way out of her difficulties. She could bring her painting things, Evelyn said. The colors and shapes of things on the desert were truly divine. Bertine vetoed the plan at once. Katharine, sick with fury and despair, turned to her father. "Bertine doesn't want you to go off God-knows-where with this woman," he fumed. "We've never heard of her." Something in the white haggardness of the girl's face stirred him. He said suddenly, "You're not ill, are you?" "No. No." She clasped and unclasped her hands. "But I feel I need and want a change. Miss Vincent is a friend of the Merse's."

Now Go On With The Story CHAPTER XXXI No woman in all the world had ever been so grievously humiliated. Katharine Strykhurst was certain of that. An older—indeed, a wiser and less sensitive woman—would have taken affairs into her own hands. This brooding girl knew nothing to do but wait. She had no weapons with which to battle the problem that faced her. All she knew was that a gay, handsome, reckless youth had bidden her come and she had gone. Like the merest will-o'-th-wisp, she had followed him to marry him, only to be cast aside. This much she knew. Michael Heathroe had married her and then had gone away. The newspapers a day or two later had announced the news of his inheritance. Katharine had waited every day for a sign of him. None had come. Later she had heard, through some casual gossip, the story of his accident. "Now," she said to herself, with a fast-beating heart, "now at last he will send for me." But there was only silence. Silence and the growing conviction of a fearful wrong done. She had confided in Violet Merse in the flush of her first anger.

There was such a thing as an unblemished Katharine mused dully one sunny afternoon. "Of course, I wondered when you'd think of that," said Violet, consolingly. She had not dared to mention the word herself. "But the publicity!" Katharine, groaning, buried her face in her hands. To think that her defeat, her folly should be dragged into the open for all the world to see! Violet suggested that these things were often handled discreetly so that no least word was printed in the newspapers. She had known once of such a case. The girl, listening, lifted a haggard face. "Why don't you go to New Mexico, as Evelyn asked you to?" Violet asked reasonably. "Put the thing into the hands of some lawyer who can be trusted and go away and think no more of it." It was, however, more easily said than done. Violet Strykhurst herself, Katharine reminded her friend, was a lawyer. To whom could they go? No one, assuredly, Next spring! At the thought of the hours, days and nights to be lived through, her spirit fainted, and she groaned. A dark, slim, alert figure appeared in the darkness of the rosbud.

"Oh, Dr. John! Where did you come from?" He gave her a smile and a keen glance.

"I thought I'd run in. Had to see a patient up the Post Road a mile or two."

She had not seen him in weeks. "You look a bit seedy."

She roused herself. John was far too keen-eyed for her pleasure. The first thing she knew she would be blurring out the whole wretched story to him.

"Oh, I'm fine, thanks." "You look it," he offered dryly. She leaned against the stone balustrade of the terrace, and he glanced at her with something like hunger in his eyes. Her sleepless nights, her lack of appetite had put a fine edge on her strong young beauty. She had a transparent smudge under her eyelids where they fluttered down to hide her look of sick despair.

"Zoe's back," Katharine said in the silence that followed. "Oh, is she?" "She's splendid now," she went on, trying to make conversation. "She got through a bad time. She'll never have that particular hell to live through again," said the doctor cheerfully, knocking his pipe against the wall.

What fools women are, thought Katharine drearily. Was it true that "love is of man's life a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence?"

She wanted to ask John about this. He was so calm and temperate and sure about things. But she didn't dare. One kind word would set her off. She'd felt so superior when Zoe was going through her difficulties. Kind, of course, but superior all the same. And John would be horribly disappointed in her if he knew what a crashing fool she had been!

So the moment passed and Katharine kept silent, and half a mile away in an ugly house with millioned windows a dark-haired girl paraded before the mirror and slyly hid away a plain gold wedding band.

Up in the hills near a shabby, shingled house a young man wandered in the kitchen garden where chickens pecked at dry grass and horses thrust their noses inquiringly over a gate. The young man felt lost and lorn and all at sea. He rubbed the back of his head thoughtfully as though trying to remember something he could not quite take in.

Fate was weaving a net intricately about all of them. The girl with the crystal earrings was only a puppet, although she fancied herself a great actress in the drama. The physician who watched the fair-haired girl with troubled eyes was conscious of a shadow lying between them. He had had a declaration on his lips for weeks; he did not date to utter it now.

This was only an intermission in the drama. If you had listened closely you might have heard the tuning up of instruments for the third act, life being stranger and more cruel and beautiful oftentimes than the theater.

Mrs. Harwell, Miss Moorman Give Brilliant Twilight Musical

One of the most brilliant and beautifully given entertainments for lovers of good music was presented in a twilight musical in the attractive colonial room, Gholson hotel, last evening at 7:15 o'clock when Mrs. M. R. Newnam presented two piano artists, Mrs. Walter Harwell and Miss Mildred Moorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cull Moorman.

The colonial room was gaily decked with masses of summer blossoms, accenting a colorful and smartly fashioned floral design. The two pianists, together with their instructor, Mrs. Newnam, were gowned in dinner length frocks of harmonizing colors.

The following program received rounds of applause, thoroughly deserved and well merited:

Two Pianos—Solfeggitto (Bach), Sonata in G (Beethoven), Mildred Moorman and Mrs. Newnam. Cathedral Chimes (Wagness), Bach Invention No. 8 (Bach), Fur Elise (Beethoven), Mrs. Harwell. Sonata in C Major (Mozart), Bach Inventions (Bach), Prelude (Heller), Mildred Moorman.

Jan Garber to Be At Lake Cisco For Dance June 24th

JAN GARBER

It's a grand feeling to be able to follow the dictates of one's own convictions and then have them bear fruit. That's exactly what happened to Jan Garber, "The Idol of the Airlanes," who brings his internationally famous orchestra to Lake Cisco, "Where West Texas Dances," on June 24, through arrangements made by Lloyd Hughes with the Music Corporation of America.

For Garber, who first gained renown for his "hokum," which he originated, and which consisted of interspersing comedy antics, and clowning while the band played, completely changed the style of his presentations in accord with the changing trend of music lovers.

Came another marked change in the attitude of dance lovers, and Garber began to create another type of entertainment which is based on a slow, smooth-flowing, albeit, unique tempo. With his latest manner of entertainment again meeting with universal approval, it is only natural that he should be acclaimed "The Idol of the Airlanes." Garber has not, however, given up his art of "hokum," which bewilders his audiences, coming as it does for the most part spontaneously.

Garber brings with him for his engagement at Lake Cisco, his talented bevy of radio stars, including Ewe Bennett, the "Nebraska Corn Husker," Lew Palmer, Fritz Heilbrun, and Rudy Rudisill, who were featured with him for two years over NBC.

The Trianon ballroom in Chicago has featured Jan Garber and his orchestra for two seasons and would like to keep him. The Catalina Island casino featured the diminutive clowning baton waver for two seasons and would also like to keep him, but Jan is not his own boss and it's easier for the music to be brought to the people than vice versa. In Chicago, "The Idol of the Airlanes" was a regular daily feature over WGN, as well as a weekly feature over NBC, thrilling the millions of radio listeners with his scintillating rhythm.

Due to the great number of dance patrons wanting to dance to Jan Garber and his famous Ewe Foamers, there will be only a limited number of tickets sold for this attraction, and those who desire to be assured of a ticket can purchase them at Swahy's Pharmacy, where the tickets are now on sale.

A high point in the program came with the awarding of pins closing a successful year's work for the class personnel.

Ring Ceremony Read At Home of Mrs. Jimmie Rex

The home of Mrs. Jimmie Rex, Marston apartments, was prettily decorated in roses and larkspur, Wednesday afternoon for the wedding uniting in marriage Miss Marjorie Rhodes and J. H. Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton, and brother of the house hostess, Mrs. Rex.

Judge J. N. McFatter officiated. At 5 o'clock a smartly appointed dinner was served. The tables' high light was centered about the lovely three-tiered cake embossed in pastel colors.

Those forming the wedding party members and dinner guests were: Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton and daughter, Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rex and children, and Judge and Mrs. J. N. McFatter.

The couple are to make their home at Freer, Texas, where the bridegroom is employed.

Juvenile Meeting Friday Morning

Mrs. Carrie E. Henry asks all juvenile members to meet at the I. O. O. F. hall Friday morning at 10 o'clock for the celebration to be given in their honor. This day has been set aside by the supreme office as Juvenile Day and will be widely observed throughout all camps.

If the weather is inclement the entertainment will be held at the hall, otherwise the children will go in a group from the hall to the new city park.

Mrs. Henry, who serves as district deputy, presided at the Royal Neighbor meeting held at the hall last night. Refreshments were served at the close of the program to a number of members and guests.

most important rehearsal for those taking part in the Passion Play chorus, at the Methodist church to-night at 7 o'clock.

According to Miss Wier, there are eight choruses to be rehearsed and it is very necessary that every person taking part be present.

Cattle Shipments From Texas Show Several Changes

AUSTIN, Tex.—Although shipments of Texas cattle and calves to Kansas and Oklahoma during April declined drastically, a substantial increase occurred in forwardings to other points, notably to California, Arizona, Illinois and Iowa, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director and statistician of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

There also was a sharp increase in shipments of cattle and calves to Fort Worth in comparison with a year ago.

"April is the peak month for livestock shipments, especially cattle and calves, from Texas to out-of-state points," Dr. Buechel said. "The bulk of these shipments are destined for the Flint Hills of Kansas and Osage country of Oklahoma, where the cattle are pastured through the summer and marketed in the fall. Pasturage is leased at so much per head for the summer, the cost varying from season to season in accordance with supply and demand conditions. A recent report of the United States Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates states that lease prices range from 25 to 50 per cent high-

And Don't Listen To Gossiping Neighbors!

Mrs. H. H. Long of Clarinda, Iowa, writes: "Kruschen was recommended to me by my doctor. Weight when starting was 216. Weight now after 3 jars is 208. Doctor says I'm doing fine."

When Kruschen Salts is prescribed by reputable physicians to safely take off fat and greatly improve health—why listen to gossipers who don't want you to be slender? Envious!

Have a mind of your own—get a jar of Kruschen to-day (lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle). Take a half teaspoonful in a cup of hot water every morning—tastes fine with juice of half lemon added. If you don't lose 12 lbs. and feel years younger—money back. Oil City Pharmacy sells lots of it.
