SEVEN ARE DROWNED IN SOUTH TEXAS FLOODS

Motorcade Will Make a Tour For The Passion Play

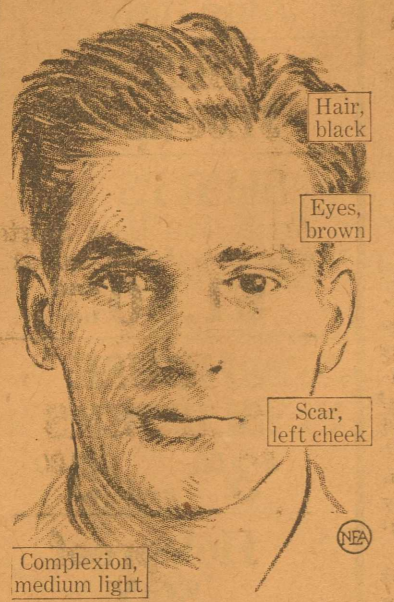

The general committee for the Passion Play met last night at the Chamber of Commerce, and formulated last minute plans to push the ticket sale "over the top."

On Saturday, an advertising caravan will visit all of the surrounding towns. This caravan will be headed by a car equipped with a public address system, playing records used by the choruses in the play, making announcements as to dates, prices and other information in regard to the play. This car will also carry large and beautiful posters advertising the play.

There will be some five or six carloads of business men, ministers, and ladies with tickets representing local church organizations making this tour.

This trip will start about 9 and will be back in Ranger about 7:30 Saturday evening.

Mahan, Canadian-born, has a long criminal record, specializing in bank holdups. He narrowly escaped capture in Butte, Mont., fleeing from a stolen car, leaving $15,000 in ransom bills behind. ### Hunting Dogs Are Mistaken For Mad Dogs In Ranger

One or two "mad dog" scares in Ranger resulted from dogs returning from fox and wolf hunts, it was pointed out by their owners today, and the dogs were merely returning home after a hard chase and were suspected of being mad. So far none of the dogs has been killed, however.

It was pointed out that often when the owners are on a fox or wolf hunt they do not have time to wait for all the dogs to return, and come back to town knowing that the dogs will return. When the dogs come into town, tired and with their tongues hanging out from exhaustion, they are mistaken for mad dogs.

The majority of the hunting dogs have been vaccinated, it was stated by some of the dog owners today, and there is no danger of them going mad. If left alone they will return to their homes and will not molest anyone.

NRA EXTENSION PASSES HOUSE IN LAST TEST

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The NRA extension resolution, preserving the Blue Eagle skeleton until April, was passed in senate form by the house today, completing congressional action on the matter.

The bill in its final form extends the NRA until April 1, 1936, strips the president of code-imposing powers, but permits voluntary non-enforceable agreement among business groups confined only to minimum wages and hours, child labor and collective bargaining.

The senate amendment, accepted by the house on orders of Roosevelt, prohibits trade practice agreements in violation of anti-trust laws.

Passage came within 48 hours of the time the NRA act would otherwise automatically die.

The skeleton NRA will be able to collect data on code and labor standards. Its personnel is expected to be cut from 5,400 to less than 2,000.

Three Ranger Men Win All Places In Baird Calf Roping

Three Ranger men went to Baird this week and won first, second and third places in a rodeo there. The three were Sig Faircloth, who won first place; Felton Herrington, who won second, and Forest Herrington, who won third place.

Faircloth's time was 19 4-5 seconds, that of Felton Herrington was 24 4-5 seconds, while the third place time was 27 seconds. A total of 23 calf ropers took part in the contest.

The three from Ranger took their horses to Baird in the same trailer, got there in time for the calf roping, made the fastest time in the event over a two-year period and then returned to Ranger with the prize money.

Parachute Jumper Has Narrow Escape

DALLAS.—Capt. Leon McKinnon, aviator, gave spectators at Love Field an unexpected thrill when he made a parachute jump recently.

McKinnon jumped out of the plane at 3,000 feet but delayed pulling the rip cord until he was about 1,000 feet above the ground. His parachute opened with a noise like a pistol shot.

He descended to the ground very rapidly and not until he had landed did the crowd learn that the sudden opening of the parachute had ripped a five-foot tear in its fabric.

It was only a miracle, experts said, that saved McKinnon from death.

Nuisance Tax Is Approved by House Committee Today

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The house ways and means committee approved today a $502,000,000 nuisance and excise tax extension which congress must pass by July 1 to prevent a treasury revenue loss of more than $1,500,000 daily.

The bill which will be shot through the house at the first opportunity continues such levies as those on admissions, chewing gum, automobiles, the three-cent postage rate and import taxes which otherwise expire this month.

As predicted, the measure failed to carry any proposal for "share-the-wealth" taxes. If such a proposal is made it will be embodied in another tax bill later this session, which is being considered to cover at least administrative changes in present tax laws and protect foreign officials of payment of United States income taxes.

The middle-aged married man and the blond school teacher were victims of a fire that swept a cabin at the Alamo Plaza tourist apartments late yesterday.

Pathos, Romance Ride Flood's Crest

Air Crash Probe Reveals Violation Of Regulations

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Violation of five air commerce regulations will be charged against operators of the air liner in which Senator Bronson Cutting and four others were killed, Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper announced today.

Bad weather was the direct cause of the TWA Sky Chief in fog and darkness near Macon, Mo., on May 6, Roper said, in revealing official findings of an investigating board.

Inaccurate forecasts from both the United States weather bureau and the company, failure of dispatchers at Albuquerque and Kansas City to control the plane, and failure of radio communication were listed as contributory causes.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP
 Deuteronomy 8:11-20; II Corinthians 9:6-8

Moses—just the name draws a great picture of a strong man who could go upon a mountain and talk with God; a man to whom divinity would deliver the law written on tablets of stone. Yet we see him as he breaks the tablets when his people go back into sin and he again ascends the mountain to talk with God.

Moses, the great law-giver, lets anger rob him of a long sought reward. He knew that his punishment would be to look over into the promised land which they had sought for 40 years, but not to go over into the land.

Deuteronomy is a book of three beautiful addresses given by Moses more especially for the people born in the wilderness and who had not seen the great events of law-giving. In these addresses he is not only a leader and a law-giver but becomes a great prophet also.

He reminds them of God's mercy in dealing with them in the past. He pictures the glory of the promised land in its wealth of food, homes, possessions and mineral wealth but points out that obedience to God is required if they would inherit this land.

Moses explained the laws concerning religion, administration of justice and social and private rights in minute detail with added explanation which completed the Mosaic system.

This lesson of Christian Stewardship is taken from his second address. After the beautiful picture of the promised land he warns them in solemn words of majestic strength:

"Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day."

Then the danger of amassing wealth is dwelt upon. Moses did not tell them not to strive for great possessions but to remember God and his dealings with them in bringing them to this land.

But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God: for it is he that gives thee power to get wealth, that he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day (18th verse).

Can any man trust in his own brain and hands and say, "My power and the might of mine hands hath gotten me this wealth?"

God gives him his brain. God can take away his arms, his eyes or his feet. His very breath is dependent upon God who deals so mercifully with all.

The tithing belongs to God. The Christian steward must vision Christ who repeated in Matt. 4:4 the words of Moses in Deut. 8:3:

"It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

With such a vision a Christian steward can not question but only study diligently God's word that he may have a deeper understanding of service in love. He will give of his money, time and talents cheerfully, gladly seeking and finding himself.

National Jamboree

Scouts who have paid their registration fee for the National Jamboree to be held in Washington Aug. 21 to 31 inclusive, are as follows: Raymond Pipkin, Henry Juffman, Morris Ballew, Alvin Highers, LeRoy Bishop, Walter N. Smiley, T. R. Hunter, James Shackelford, Wallace Reed, Merlin Achor, A. T. Shults Jr., Fred Abney Jr., Mark Abney, Jack Wilkes, C. E. May Jr., John Higgs, George Taylor, Stanley C. Kirk, Trigg Morgan, Robert Sims, Charles Brown Jr., Crowel Werner, Dean Phelps, Carey K. West Jr., Aaron Grant, James Ratliff, and John H. Spangler. Scoutmaster O. E. Winnebrenner, Troop No. 8, in Brownwood, will be scoutmaster of the Jamboree Troop. J. R. Banes, scoutmaster of Troop No. 18, Breckenridge, will be first assistant, and Warren Taliaferro, scoutmaster of Troop No. 15, Lampasas, will be second assistant.

ways to grow in grace. He will not sow his seed sparingly as we learn in II Cor. 9: But seed will be scattered plentifully and a great harvest reaped.

"And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work" (II Cor. 8:9).

How the hearts of pastors, God's shepherds today, must yearn that Christians would grasp the great truth of Christian stewardship. Their people are depending upon the straws of the world for happiness when only it can be found in quietness of spirit, yielding their life into the hands of the God, being led by the Holy Spirit into beautiful green pastures of service. It is there that a new song will be put into their hearts and they will Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come into his courts (Psalm 96:8).

Golden Text: It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful (I Cor. 4:2).

Ticket Sales For Passion Play Are Growing Daily

The ticket committee for the group sponsoring the Great European Passion Play under the direction of Chairman Clyde H. Lewis is daily gathering momentum.

The reserved seats for this European production which is a stage production and not a motion picture, are on sale at the headquarters located in the Chamber of Commerce, telephone reservations are being taken and the headquarters phone number is 31.

According to the advance representative for these famed and devout players, the methods used by the Christus while upon the cross portraying death, was a closely guarded secret.

For years no one on the outside knew, yet all were puzzled how this leading character portrayed could endure 15 minutes of most strenuous physical taxation, yet without visible means of support and without the movement of a chest muscle for breathing.

The secret of the endurance of the cross is that the Christus character lives a life that is comparable to that of a conscientious athlete who is preparing for a contest with great honors at stake. Regular hours, carefully selected foods and rigid exercise make for the stature that this role requires.

To the far east, it was necessary to go to get the method of invisible breathing. To the Yogi, a race steeped in fakery and magic, went a representative of the company to get from them the secret of their accomplishments, among which are perfect portrayals of death.

The greatest and most efficient scholars of breathing are the Kogi, and from them it was learned that after a strenuous and difficult course of training, the chest muscles can be developed so that the onlooker chest movement is absent. This is done by a deep breathing method yet it requires very little air. This same feature is used in the far easterners trick of "being buried alive."

According to the ticket chairman, orders for this once in a lifetime opportunity, that of witnessing this famed play, are coming from all the surrounding communities.

Another inspirational message was brought to the large congregation at the Central Baptist church Thursday night, when Rev. Sid Martin spoke on the subject of Christian influence.

He pointed out that the Christian influence should not only be manifested at the church on Sunday, but should prevail throughout the entire week in everything that a real Christian does.

Real additions to the church were received at the evening service.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Singleton of Dublin were week-end visitors in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Singleton.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Katharine Strykhurst, beautiful, 20, falls in love with Michael Heathere who owns a riding academy. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother is snobbish.

Michael becomes engaged to Sally Moon, local coquette, due to Sally's scheming. In spite of this, Michael asks Katharine to marry him and, impulsively, she agrees. The marriage takes place in an obscure little town. Katharine and Michael each go to their own homes. Almost immediately Michael learns he has inherited a fortune and title. He goes to New York to see the lawyer in charge and is injured in a traffic accident.

Sally, unaware of Michael's marriage to Katharine, locates him in a hospital, and takes charge of the situation. Katharine, believing Michael has deserted her, is heartbroken. She wants to go away, but her stepmother opposes the plan. Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXXII
 Violet Merser had nerved herself for the interview. It was not one she faced with pleasure, but Katharine's worn face and the tragic expression in her dark eyes the day before had decided her.

Mr. Strykhurst's secretary said she would see if her employer was busy. Violet, looking about her with recognition, was surprised to find everything so unchanged. Seventeen years since she herself had been 20, and ensconced behind that desk (or at least, one very like it), feeling important and thrillingly adult.

Victor Strykhurst's hair had not been white then; it had been black—ebony black with a deep, rich wave in it. She had been exceedingly young and inexperienced. Small wonder she had fallen in love with him.

And in love she had fallen, head over heels. There had been no reservations in the affection she had poured out upon him, this motherless girl who had been poor and restricted and unhappy. He had been flatteringly kind to her—merely that, at first. Later there had been little attentions, presents, the extraordinary homage of certain veiled looks.

He had known the game so well. And she—well, she had not even the first inkling of the rules. His wife, he had told her, was ill, had been an invalid for years. Divorce was out of the question. Proud, loving, fierce in her loyalties, stormily innocent, she had believed all this. It had taken a day at a seaside resort whether he had summoned her, ostensibly on a business errand, to open her eyes. She had seen him then for what he really was—a rich man greedy for all life's sensations, loving not her but the new experience she promised. Horror-struck, she had shrunk from him. She had been too essentially honest to face the inevitable difficulties of the affair in the days that followed, had been a frightful one. Temptation, time and again, had almost overwhelmed her. She had loved him so terribly.

In the end her strength had been superior to his. She had gone away, left his employ. She had thought, for a long time, that she hated all men.

She thought of this as she waited for the trim young woman in the exquisitely cut dark frock to return. Was Victor having his usual hour of dalliance with this girl, she wondered. She rejected the thought because the girl looked cool and hard and certain of herself. Besides Victor now was definitely "an older man." The male charm and strength she had so admired in him were no longer so powerful.

"Mr. Strykhurst will see you now." The secretary looked Violet over appraisingly, calculating to an inch the definitely modish costume of summer silk, charming but expensive. Violet smiled and went into the inner office.

He had risen to greet her; and there was just a trace of apprehension in his suave manner. Violet went straight to the point. "It's about Katharine."

His brows drew together in a frown. "My daughter? Ah, yes, you know her. I forgot." Violet suppressed the smile that rose to her lips. He never forgot anything. Lawyer-like, the facts that one day might be useful to him were always pigeonholed somewhere in his memory.

"She's anxious to go on a trip with a friend of ours, Miss Vincent. She'd have a chance to paint. Evelyn Vincent is a splendid woman—she thinks Katharine has talent that should be encouraged."

She chose her words with the greatest caution. Not for worlds would she have him suspect the secret that ate at Katharine's very soul. He shook his head, obdurate. "My wife and I talked it over last night. Mrs. Strykhurst is very much opposed to it. Later we may run over to Europe with her. She can look in on the galleries."

Violet suppressed a shudder at the thought of the unhappy girl trailing the two smug, middle-gate people, wrapped in her own black thoughts. "I rather hoped you would say 'yes.'"

His keen eyes raked her handsome, expressive face. "You considered this important enough to come down town to see me about?" She shrugged her shoulders. "I was in the neighborhood . . . just thought I'd drop in."

"Katharine is a difficult child," Victor Strykhurst mused, putting the tips of his beautifully manicured hands together and regarding them. "She seems to have made friends with you. Her stepmother and I am sometimes baffled by her . . ."

Violet felt almost an impulse of pity. Perhaps he wasn't as smug and sure of himself as he seemed. "I thought you had a chink in that selfish armor. She tried another . . ."

"I know you want to do what's best for her," she began. "We do feel she might blossom out in a different atmosphere. My husband thinks she is very good. Have you seen her flower sketches?" By the darkening of his face she knew she had touched some raw spot.

"She never speaks to us of her ambitions," he said jealously. "I must confess I think it extremely odd of her to confide in perfect strangers." He smiled, as if terminating the interview. "I'm sorry but I'm afraid we must let the New Mexican idea ride just now. She must stay at home."

The memory of Katharine's despairing voice steadied Violet and strengthened her for what she had to say. "Very well, then. If you won't, you won't. I warn you, though, it may be unpleasant . . ." "What do you mean?" He had risen, as had she. They faced each other across an expanse of gleaming mahogany. "I mean," said Violet easily, "that I've often been tempted to tell your daughter about our association. I've never quite got to the point." "You wouldn't dare!" His eyes flashed. "Ah, wouldn't I?" She snapped open a petit-point compact and looked at herself in its mirror. "You'd be a fool then."

"Perhaps I am." "I don't know what my daughter's life means to you." "I'm fond of her," Violet said slowly. "By every right, I ought to hate her. Once I did—just the thought of her, I mean; when I was young and reckless and wanted everything my way. You told me once you would have risked a divorce—everything, if it weren't for the child."

"What do you want me to do?" He was staring at her now with a new respect. Victor was a bit of a bully, she reminded herself, keeping her sense of triumph carefully hidden behind a mask of indifference. He always admired people who stood up to him.

"I want you to let Katharine go west with Miss Vincent, have her try at painting. It's a sort of school they have there. Open air stuff. She'll thrive on it. She's been looking badly anyhow. I think she could stand a change."

He hesitated for the space of half a minute. Then he nodded. It was like him to give in gracefully, once he had decided the affair was out of his hands. Almost urbane was his voice and manner when he spoke again.

"Well, you may be right about it. Yes. Parents often are too close to their children to see the best for them. Thank you, Violet. I'll win my wife over. She's always over-anxious about Katharine. She feels the responsibility keenly—another woman's child, after all."

He carried it off well. Not a hint of the resentment he must have felt. (To Be Continued)

Hero Falls With Rise of Popular Doubt

While Washington and the east were tuning their ears to the sounds issuing from Springfield, Ill., during one of the most significant political conferences in recent years, a shrewd Republican leader in the middlewest was being interviewed about the chances he thought his party might have for regaining contro of the national administration in 1936.

And one of the most significant statements he made was this: "A great national figure or popular hero begins to slide when doubts about him rise in people's minds. When people are certain he hasn't made good, he's sunk. Those who once applauded him are apt to turn completely around."

Of course, this student of mass psychology was referring to the United States and more particularly to the presidency, not aore that of Franklin D. Roosevelt, but of those who preceded him and will follow him.

Look back upon the administrations of great presidents of the United States and you will find circumstances that caused just such public loss of confidence that ended in the downfall of these men.

Washington alone might be considered an exception, for even the martyred Lincoln would have faced a growing suspicion and discontent in north as well as south, had he been spared from the assassin's bullet.

President Roosevelt came into power on a tide of doubt and lost confidence in the previous administration, and now it is his problem to prevent the same feeling from again pervading the public mind.

The broadest smile of which he is capable, the most optimistic statements he could make would turn to sheer mockery in the face of growing public discontent.

This is the problem that has encouraged his political opponents since the recent U. S. Supreme Court decision nullifying NRA, for t has revealed to them the weakness that might very easily lead to the toboggan.

For this same reason, the above mentioned political seer was more optimistic over the Republican chances of victory in 1936, than he has been at any time since 1932.

ON TEXAS FARMS

"Knee deep in June" is okeh for the poet but apparently not for the dairyman if he is knee deep in Sudan grass gone to seed.

According to Extension Dairyman E. R. Eudaly, the value of Sudan grass is reduced about half if it is allowed to form seed.

He says it should be cut for hay just as it heads. If it is being grazed, but not kept down, mow half of it and two weeks later the other half. That way grazing will not be interfered with.

Mow the permanent pasture too. Twice a year mowing will kill the weeds Eudaly says. Cut high the first time—three or four inches off the ground—and low the next time to get the suckers and new branches.

Plant now for trench silo filling. Three tons per cow is what will be needed. Cane or grain sorghum can be planted on the oat stubble if there is enough moisture.

Cows need dry feed too, Eudaly says. And roughages are cheaper than grain. So plan for one ton of hay or bunched feed for each cow.

The government's drought relief cattle buying removed about one million dairy cows from Texas farms, according to Eudaly. Remaining milkers should now be tested to be sure they are "worth their board and keep."

SULPHUR SPRINGS—Farmers of Hopkins county are seeding their pasture land with bur clover, dallis grass, and lespedeza this spring. County Agricultural Agent S. L. Neal recommends that the three kinds of seed be mixed together and fed at the rate of two pounds of the mixture to every 100 pounds of feed. This method serves a two-fold purpose, in that the seed is not injured and is left in fertile places, and the stock does not bother the plant the first year. Other farmers in this county are mixing the seeds with barnyard manure and putting it out in the pasture.

BRENHAM—Eight inches of rain in two days last month in Washington county convinced many of the value of terracing, according to C. Hohn, county agricultural agent. "Many of those who were skeptical about the ability of terraces found the greater part of their soil pushed out into the road and pastures, while those who had terraced their land found the terraces full of dirt which otherwise would have been lost," he states.

ARCHER CITY—Z. T. Burkett, dairyman living near Archer City, states that he is glad that he terraced 30 acres of land last fall. The land was seeded to oats for grazing purposes only. A freeze in February killed all the oats. He replanted the land in spring oats and his dairy cows have fed off the pasture since the oats were big enough for pasturing. Burkett says that it looks like he is going to be forced to cut the oats the cows have been unable to eat, according to a report of the Archer county agricultural agent.

BEAVER CREEK—Buttons made from walnuts add distinctiveness to a dress. That is the opinion of Mrs. Ray Ackerman, wardrobe co-operator of Beaver Creek Home Demonstration club in Wichita county. She saw the walnut through the middle, removes the meat, adds a coat of shellac and has a one-inch walnut button. Mrs. Ackerman has already received an order for one dozen of these buttons at 10 cents each.

DICKENS—"Cut the glove on a true bias of the material to insure a smooth fit," Mrs. W. A. Harris, Espuela Home Demonstration club member of Dickens county said in giving a demonstration last month. She went on to say that when gloves have been cut, first stitch the lines on the back of the hand, then sew in the thumb and inside finger pieces to back and front before sewing the side seam. The cuffs may be gauntlet or closed or any other preferred style.

SINTON—By using white wrapping paper given to her by the groceryman, a piece of scrap lumber for another shelf, and an old broom handle for another clothes rod, Miss Anita King, clothing demonstrator for the Miscelastick Home Demonstration club in San Patricio county, has remodeled her clothes closet. The only cash expenditure was 30 cents for paint and for the shelves, rods and the floor, which were given two coats of paint. Miss King's closet is 6 by 3 by 7 feet. Forty-two yards of the white wrapping paper were used plus home-made flour paste. The result is a neater closet, more rod space to hang her clothes, and a shoe shelf.

A difficult role in the film, "John," the dignified brother of "Tony," is portrayed by Reginald

Texas Steer Horn Selling Becomes Quite a Racket

MINEOLA, Texas.—If you haven't heard of the "horn racket," listen and you shall hear.

The horns of Texas longhorn cattle, dressed and polished, are among the most popular souvenirs visitors like to carry away as tokens of their visits to Texas. Furthermore, the horns are becoming more and more scarce each year, because Texas longhorn cattle are practically extinct.

Many years ago, L. D. Bertillion of Mineola, then a silver prospector, discovered a cave near the Rio Grande in West Texas where a herd of longhorns, unable to find the exit, had died.

The horns provided a rich harvest for Bertillion, who gave up prospecting, developed a method of dressing and polishing the horns and became the "horn king" of Texas, as the cave supply seemed inexhaustible.

In Spain, Italy and Portugal, where it seems, the cattle also are equipped with long horns, certain individuals saw a nice profit in shipping horns from their cattle over to Texas.

Since the Europeans could acquire, dress, polish and ship the horns to Texas for less than a dollar a pair, and sell them as high as $15 a pair, with plenty of takers, it seemed like a "racket" well worth horning in on. They did.

Now Bertillion is afraid that Texas centennial visitors next year will buy Spanish, Portuguese or Italian longhorns, instead of the grade A, bona fide antlers of the proud Texas prairie cattle. Bertillion says what worries him most is the fact that foreign cattle have such diseases as anthrax, rinderpest, and others of which Texas cattle are free.

Queen Mary, the papers say, is 68. It's hard to believe that her hat's only that old.

Too Busy?

Too busy to go to church Sunday? Some day the angel of death will tap your shoulder. You cannot put him off.

Why not cultivate the spiritual side of your nature?

The old commandment: "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work; but the seventh day is a Sabbath" was intended for you. Cold-blooded economists tell us that men who rest on Sunday do the most work.

There is a seat for you in this church. Come Sunday.

Remember the Sabbath to keep it holy. In it thou shalt not do any work.

"I SUFFERED WITH CONSTIPATION* FOR SIXTEEN YEARS"
Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief to Mr. McNeil

We quote from his unsolicited letter: "I suffered with constipation* for 16 years. Finally, I started using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in connection with other nourishing foods.

"I consider myself a well man at this time, not having had an attack for over two years. I am sure ALL-BRAN helped wonderfully by overcoming constipation." — Mr. L. M. McNeil, Lockwood, W. Va.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" to aid elimination. Also vitamin B and iron.

This "bulk" resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables, so it is more effective. Isn't this food safer than risking patent medicines? Two tablespoons of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. If seriously constipated, use with each meal. See your doctor, if you do not get relief.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
