Interests Threatened, Britain Protests

If your memory is good enough to reach back three years, you can get a pretty fair idea why Mussolini is going ahead in Ethiopia in defiance of the League of Nations.

Three years ago the Japanese set out to help themselves to Manchuria. Like Ethiopia, Manchuria was a potentially rich land held by an extremely weak people.

It is instructive to note what happened thereafter. The American government launched a series of sharp protest. The seizure of Manchuria (afterward renamed Manchoukuo) was in violation of sundry treaties.

Where, in those far-off days, were those English statesmen who have been talking so loudly of late about the need of collective resistance to unprovoked acts of aggression?

The thing to remember is that the Japanese adventure in Manchuria was almost an exact parallel to the Italian adventure in Ethiopia.

The answer to that one is easy. Japan's act was not a threat to the interests of the British empire; Italy's is.

All this is worth keeping in mind. If the present situation grows more serious, European publicists will presently tell us that it is our sacred duty to aid the league.

Notre Dame Comes From Behind to Win

OHIO STADIUM, COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Crushed by Ohio State's line and riddled by its bulleting backs, the Irish of Notre Dame today staged the most glorious and heart-stopping rally in the history of football to beat the Buckeyes 18 to 13.

With less than 60 seconds to go, Bill Shakespeare faded back to Ohio State's 35-yard line and, with the ball poised, swept the field in search of a possible receiver.

Case of Farm and Home Savings Loan Association vs. Mrs. Elma Craig has been dismissed by 91st District Court because of settlement of parties, an order in district clerk's office showed Saturday.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, today.

The Golden Text is: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me" (Psalms 51:10).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints" (Revelation 15:3).

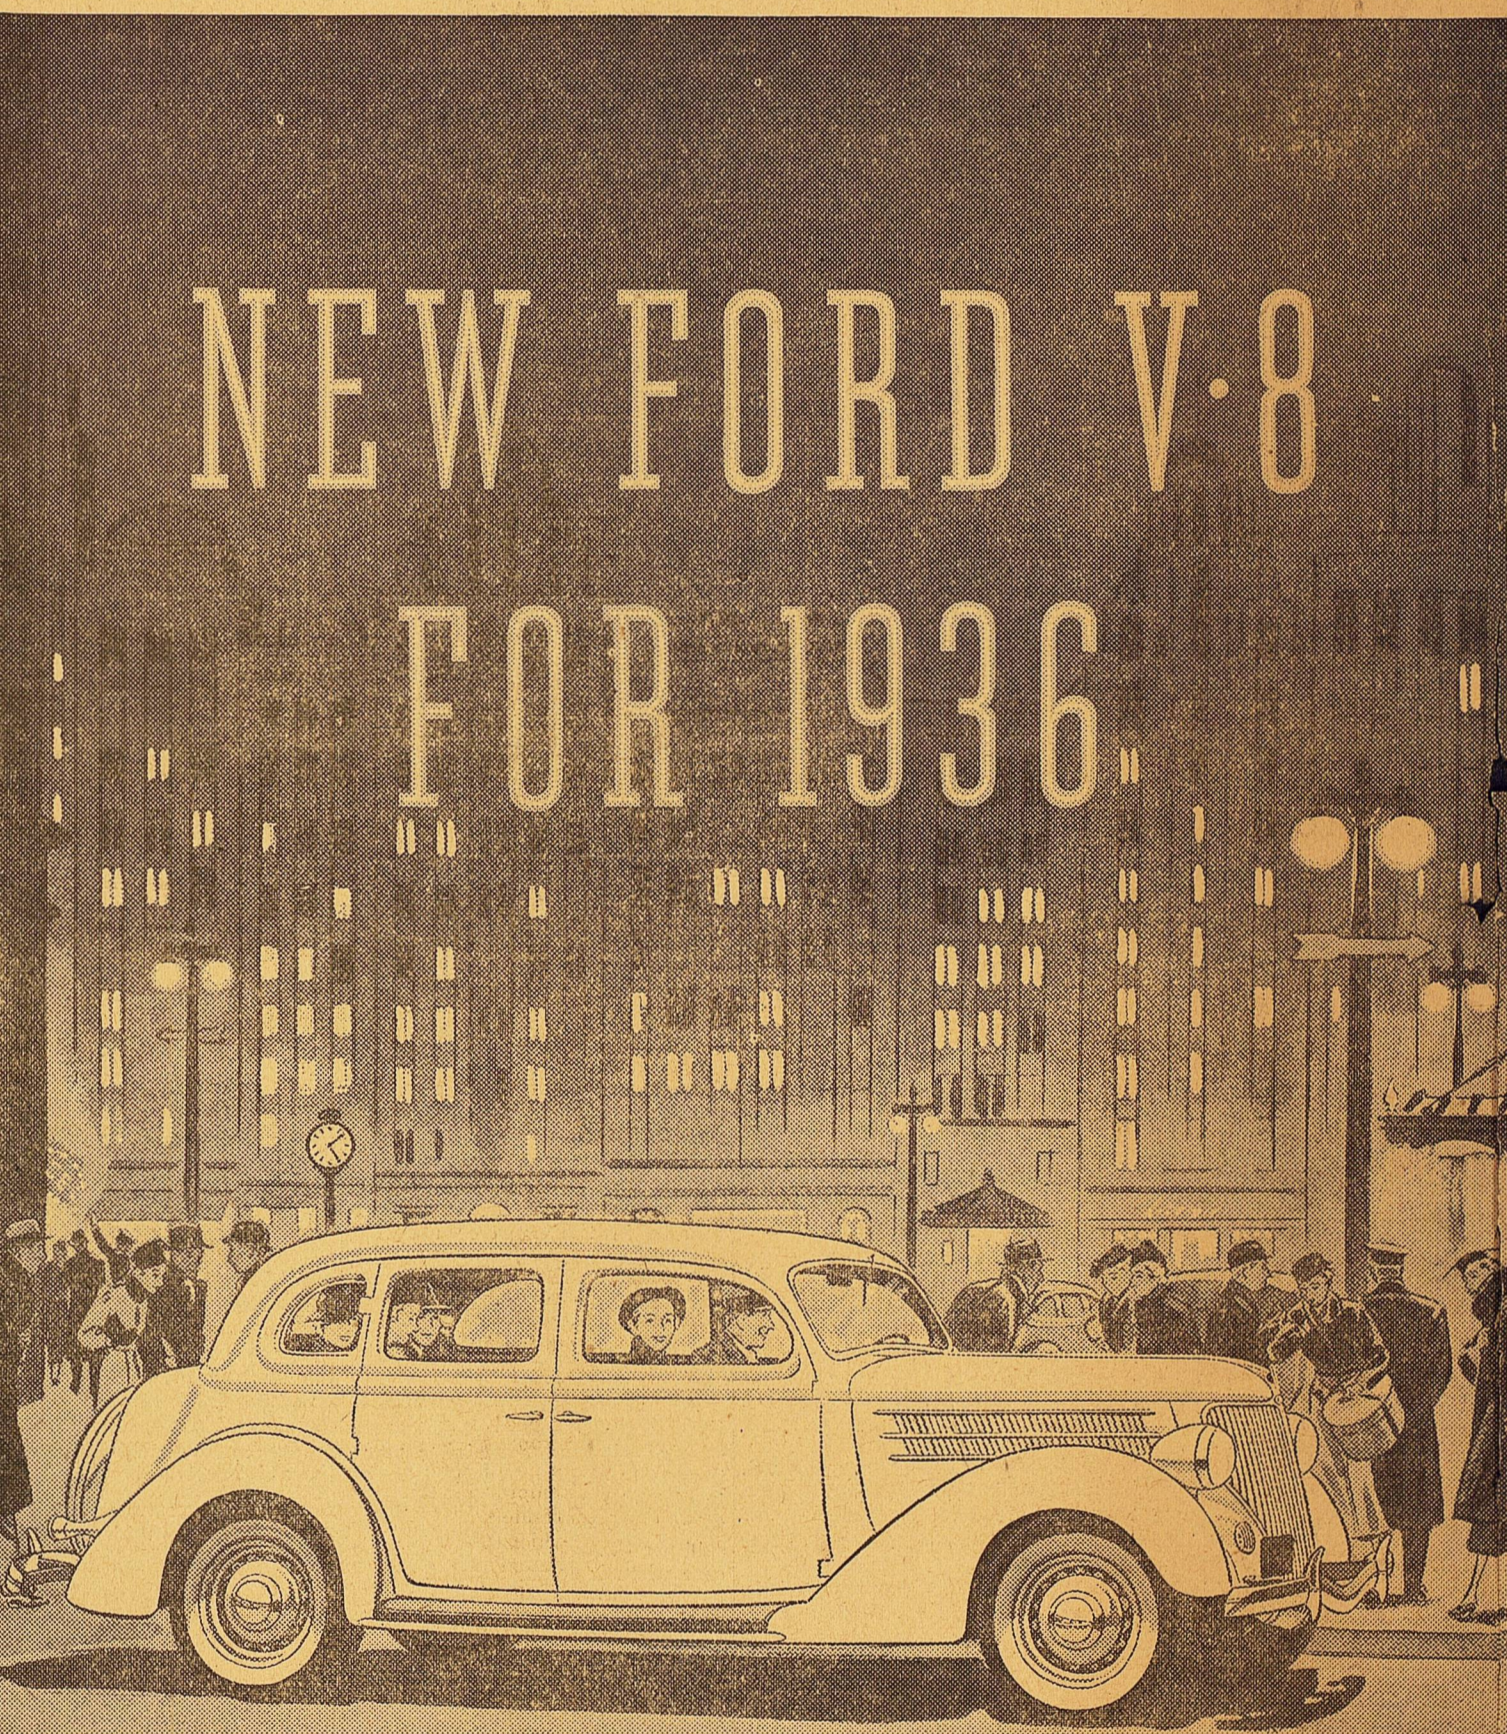

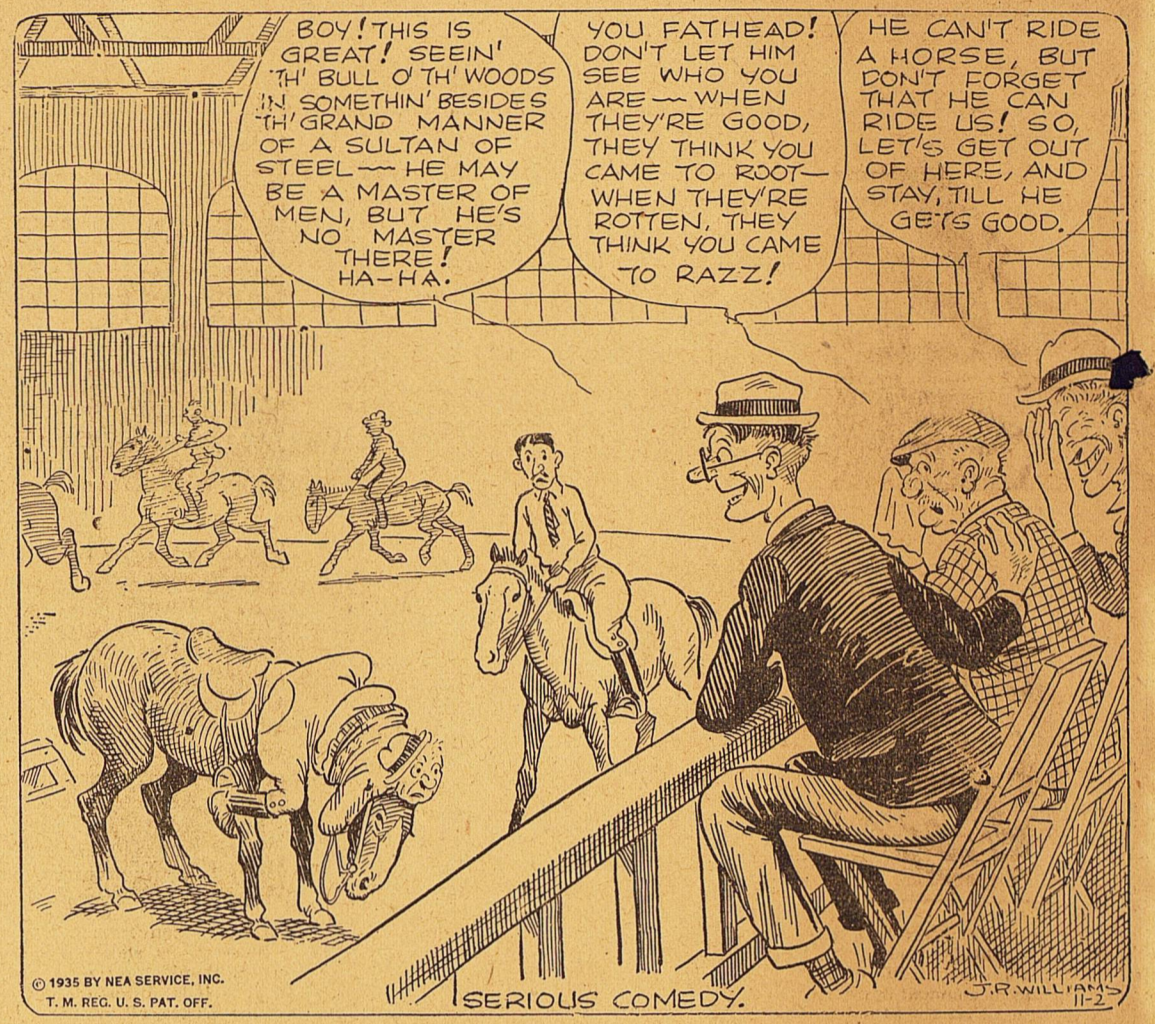

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil" (page 571).

The Bulldogs started an offensive that accounted for two of the three first downs made in the game, with Ainsworth slipping through the center of the line for five yards, Walsh picking up four and Cox making three to make the first of the two first downs.

The Bulldogs played in their old-time style, and though the offense did not show to very good advantage, the goal line stand displayed cheered the fans throughout the game as it showed a fighting spirit that has been missing from the team so long.

Cisco covered the ball on their 30 yard line, Stansbury attempted a center run. McCannies went around right end and advanced to Cisco's 35 yard line. Stansbury to Burnam, who lateraled to Beasley preceded the play when Stansbury's next pass was intercepted by R. Taylor.

The feather night club she runs, SANDY HARRIS who produces Bobby and Jean, and MR. and MRS. LEWIS, who sell some bonds for Lewis, who buys a car. LARRY GLENN, federal agent, is tracing the bond robber, who learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby. The bonds were stolen. Larry believes the car Lewis bought is connected with the robbery.

CHAPTER XXIX

IT was dusk by the time Larry Glenn and the other two federal men reached Maplehurst. They drove at once to the bank where Mr. Dunn was waiting for them. Larry shook hands, introduced his men, and went to work at once. In a few minutes he had every scrap of information about the robbery that Mr. Dunn could give him. He took an envelope from his pocket and drew out a few postcard-size photographs. He selected two and handed them to Mr. Dunn.

"Recognize either of them?" he asked. Mr. Dunn looked down at a surly face in the conventional profile and sideview shots of a penitentiary reformatory gallery photograph. He gave a start of surprise as he looked at the black type beneath it—"Red Jackson"—and studied the picture with care.

"I'm not absolutely certain," he said at last. "It looks somewhat like him. I didn't get a very good look at him, though, but close up. You see, we were all herded up against the wall, and—" "I see," said Larry. "How about the other one?" Mr. Dunn looked at a picture of a perky, black-haired little man with rat-like eyes. "Without hesitation he nodded decisively. "That's the man who held the gun on us while the other one got the cash," he said, "he handed the pictures back. Larry pocketed them. "Who knew about this tear gas installation?" he asked suddenly. Mr. Dunn looked up in some surprise.

LARRY made some remark to reassure him, and then said

LEADER

NO one had seen which direction the car had come from. It had been parked facing the north, but no one, seemingly, had noticed it before it reached the bank. Its route out of town, as traced from the testimony of a dozen excited citizens, was plainer. The bandits had driven north a block and a half, had turned to the left past the railroad station, had crossed the river by the north bridge, and then had swung up along the national pike in a general northwesterly direction.

This, however, was not so much help as it might have been. For as they collated their telephone reports from outlying towns, they found no one who had seen any trace of the car in any of the municipalities lying along the national pike. The car might have passed them by a careful selection of detours; the gangsters might have headed straight for some nearby hideout (it's far from likely); or they might simply have passed through those towns without having been noticed.

"I've a hunch they used an armored car," said Larry. "McCannies' evidence points that way, although of course it's far from conclusive; but on top of that we have good reason to suspect that they've got a wounded man with them. Unless he's a great deal more blood than we have any reason to suppose, they won't have had to get him to a doctor within a few hours, since he apparently was not seriously wounded. On the other hand, they won't be able to travel on indefinitely. They'll have to get him to a doctor before so very long."

Women Fight to Bar Beer From the CCC

By United Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The W. C. T. U., getting back into stride again, now that beer and liquor can be had legally in most states, deplored the sale of beer in CCC camps and at government posts at the state convention here.

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, vice-president of the national organization, said she had written President Roosevelt but that he had passed the question on to the director of camps.

"I asked the president of Uncle Sam, who is supposed to protect the lives, health and morals of the CCC boys, permitted beer to be sold in the camps," Mrs. Colvin said.

A New York camp commander, Mrs. Colvin said, explained he considered it better that the boys get good beer at the camp than had beer some place else.

The Rosebud of Success.
What is success? We often wonder if true success is ever in this world truly attained.

The factors which enter into the making of true success are so varied that we ponder the not well defined subject over and over in our minds. What is its true meaning?

Success, as defined by some authorities, "is the reaching of some favorable end." True success comes when we best correlate our sincere efforts to meet the commands of the supreme and matchless. Its meaning may be, therefore, compounded as inward and outward.

We can at least say, that in the hills of somewhere is the rosebud of success. Mounted on some lonely peak is the bush which bares this blossom fair. The path that leads to this somewhere spot is rough, rugged and pebbled worn by the spring that water the seekers below.

Just one scent of this fragrant rose plunges seekers into its depth—they must all like the fishes of the sea swim the upward course. Some will begin the task to pluck, but falter and fall back to the valley below. Some may swim to some lonely ravine and down in the depths to distress and woe. Some will climb and climb and climb—they ponder and plunder the peak of the hill and waste their lives in riotous skill.

The one who is to reach this success which is sublime, must hold, must suffice, must swim, and must climb.

It's not for honor or glory or fame, nor that we should seek a great name. But honest efforts our whole duty perform is the broadness of the bud where success is born.

Seek fair seekers with courage and faith; not all will welcome and open the gate.

CHARACTER

Our character is what we really want it to be. If we wish to be a good citizen of our country, not only in dreams but in reality, we must have courage which means we must be strong enough and brave enough to control what we think, say, and do. We must have strength and courage to be truthful—to be able to tell the truth without fear, being honest in all our dealings and thoughts, for unless we are honest we cannot have self respect upon which hope is established and hope is power for improvement.

We must have wisdom and knowledge enough to act wisely in school, at home, in our playing, working or talking, and be able to choose good and escape bad. We must respect everyone who has more wisdom than we, and have reverence for that which is good, and know where and how to obey. We must be able to know ourselves, our fellow man, and the world about us so as to make use of useful knowledge and welcome it at home, in school and elsewhere.

We should be good sports at all times, joyous over victory, but never angry over defeat.

We must love God, our parents, our home, our neighbors, our country and be loyal to all of these—good health is an obligation we owe them; we owe them the best that is in us. The teaching of Christianity, truth, honor, and a right ambition fits us for a helper in the world's advancement.

Theodore Roosevelt said, "Persons educated in intellect and educated in morals and religion will become a menace to our nation." If our homes have begun the work of building a good character, our schools and our association with the world, will help us to go forward to success.

Long life, freedom from scoring, and more effective braking are advantages claimed for cast iron. The outer surface of the drum is machined in deep grooves that form five ribs, to promote cooling.

The lower priced Standard models have been completely redesigned in chassis and bodies. Last year the Standards differed materially both in appearance and in construction from the Masters; this year, the two lines are identical in all major features of styling, engineering, and performance. The chief difference being only a matter of wheelbase.

Outstanding among the many new features of both Master and Standard models for 1936 are perfected hydraulic brakes; improved engines having higher compression ratio (6 to 1), balanced carburetor, full length water jacketing and other changes resulting in better cooling and improved gasoline and oil economy; and chromolene rust-prevention of fenders and running boards.

Front doors of all models of both lines are now hinged at the front. The solid steel turret top, exclusive last year with Master models, has been adopted this year for the Standard line also. Spoke-type pressed steel wheels, instead of wire wheels, are used on all Standard models.

Body interiors of Master models show marked advances in comfort and style. An important innovation is found in the design of the front seating arrangement of the Master coach and town-sedan. Instead of the usual divided and hinged front seat of the two-door models, a single seat cushion extends the full width of the car, permitting three passengers to ride comfortably. The seat-back is divided, the right side section being hinged to fold forward over the seat cushion to open a passage-way to the rear compartment.

Chevrolet's Standard models for 1936, besides incorporating features that appear for the first time on the Masters, take their place in the line as entirely new models, with new box girder chassis frame, more powerful engine, longer wheelbase and larger bodies. The line of body types has been increased to seven by the addition of three models—the four-door sport sedan with built-in trunk, the two-door town sedan with built-in trunk, and the cabriolet.

In changing to perfected hydraulic brakes on both chassis models, Chevrolet has adopted the hydraulic principle of brake actuation to its own design of brake mechanism within the brake drum. 1936 Model Chevrolets Now on Display Are Creating Much Local Interest

New Master de luxe and Standard Chevrolets for 1936, embodying marked advances in styling, engineering and performance. Completeness in equipment, in appointments, and in convenience is stressed in the company's 1936 announcement.

The Master de luxe, offered with either knee action or conventional springing, has been styled in its more important appearance elements, notably by the adoption of a higher and narrower grille of distinctively original design, in combination with a new treatment of the hood louvers, new style headlamps mounted on the sides of the radiator shell, and new interior trim.

JUDAH TAKEN CAPTIVE Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: II Kings 25:1-12
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 3.
BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance
THE Babylonian captivity is a tragic chapter in Jewish annals that occupies an important place in history. Here we are concerned chiefly with the religious and social lessons to be derived from it.
Like all great catastrophes, it is to be studied not in its immediate causes, but in the events and circumstances that led to it and that made it almost inevitable when the final crash came.
The beginning of the downfall of Judah was in the divided nation. Palestine is not large. It would have required all the strength of that small territory incorporated under one strong rule to have established any measure of effective resistance to the warring empires of the ancient world.
The little land lay between these empires, occupying something of the same position that Belgium occupied in the World War. The strong kingdom that David established, and that Solomon brought to heights of greater glory, weakened in the dissensions and rebellions that followed Solomon's death.
WHEN Solomon died and Rehoboam came to the throne, there was a strong demand that the burdens of the people should be lightened. Rehoboam took counsel from two classes of people, the young men who advised him to rule with a strong hand and the older men who advised him to correct the injustices of which the people complained.
Rehoboam's weakness and his heedless course in following the advice of the young men led to a rebellion in which the Kingdom of David and Solomon was rent in twain, and two kingdoms, the southern Kingdom of Judah and the northern Kingdom of Israel, took their place with parallel columns of rulers.
In the history of the Kingdom of Judah we have the story of the good King Josiah. But the history of kings and kingdoms is the record of how weak, perverse, and incompetent monarchs have come from strong and righteous predecessors. The northern Kingdom of Israel had already fallen before Assyria and now Judah, in a time of difficulty and danger, was under the rule of the weak King Zedekiah. The power of Babylon was dominant.
THERE might have been reasonable hope for a measure of autonomy on the part of Judah, in much the same way that Palestine later had a measure of autonomy under Roman rule, but that hope disappeared when Zedekiah rebelled.
The rebellion immediately brought serious consequences. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came with a great army and besieged Jerusalem.
Jerusalem suffered the fate that great capitals have always suffered in the hands of invading foes. The temple and palace were destroyed, and every great house in the city was laid low with fire. The people who were left were carried off to Babylon, with only the poorest left to be vine-dressers and husbandmen.
The highest teachings and the spiritual recovery of Israel are associated with this captivity. It is these teachings that future lessons will emphasize.

SECRETARY APPROVES 1935 PEANUT DIVERSION PROGRAM

Based on the result of an investigation including a public hearing held on Sept. 11, Secretary Wallace has approved a diversion program for the 1935 peanut crop, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced today.
The investigation showed that the current average farm price of peanuts is 3.25 cents per pound and is less than the fair exchange value as defined in the agricultural Adjustment Act, and that the diversion of a portion of the 1935 crop from the normal channels of trade would tend to maintain the current average price for the 1935 crop.
The secretary also found on the basis of the investigation that it is a necessary and desirable, in addition to the diversion program, to provide for a program of acreage adjustment in order to establish and to maintain a balance between the production and consumption of peanuts during 1935 and succeeding years which will tend to give growers the fair exchange value for their crop. Details are now being prepared for a production control program for 1936 to 1939 similar to the 1935 production adjustment program.
Under the diversion plan announced today, contracting peanut growers may receive payments on peanuts grown by them in 1935 which they sell direct to any oil miller who executed an agreement to divert such peanuts from normal channels into the manufacture of oil. Payments will also be made to any oil miller for similar diversion of peanuts other than those purchased under such agreement with growers. This plan is a part of the program for adjusting peanut production and is designed to balance the supply of the peanuts from cleaning and shelling to the effective demand. Similar diversion payments were made in connection with the 1934 peanut crop.
This proposal provides for payments on farmers' stock peanuts of the 1935 crop diverted into oil during the period Oct. 14 to Nov. 15 of this year. The diversion may be made either by contracting growers themselves or by oil millers.
Where the grower makes the diversion the diversion payment will be made directly to him. Only those growers who grew peanuts under the 1935 production adjustment contract are eligible to receive these diversion payments, and only on their own 1935 peanut crop. Peanuts diverted by growers under this plan must be sold by them to oil millers during the period Oct. 14 to Nov. 15 under agreement on Agricultural Adjustment Administration Form PN-27, and may be crushed any time prior to June 30, 1936.
Oil millers may receive payments for the diversion of any farmers' stock peanuts which they purchase from the 1935 crop except those which are diverted by contracting growers themselves.
That is, any peanuts not sold under agreement on Form PN-27 may be diverted by millers, whether grown by contract signers or by non-signers. Peanuts diverted by millers must be purchased and crushed during the period Oct. 14 to Nov. 15. Any oil miller, however, who wishes to purchase peanuts during the period for crushing all or a part at a later date may apply on Agricultural Adjustment Administration Form PN-23

Business Thrives On Bald Heads In Philadelphia

By United-Press PHILADELPHIA.—The art of coaxing shiny pates to sprout hair is one of Philadelphia's major businesses.
Sensitive bald-headed men walk furtively into hair-growing salons and spend $1,000,000 yearly in this city, according to a survey, either to prevent baldness, to grow new hair, or to buy a wig.
Sixteen establishments advertise experts who will more or less guarantee a rebirth of Hirsute glory. Pessimistically, 18 places do a thriving business in supplying artificial pompadours.
There are 41 kinds of mixtures which range in odor from lilac to burning rubber. Thousands of bald pates are submitted to rubbers, massagers, brushers, thumpers, kneaders, vibrators, bakers and steamers.
Every 12 months, 500 bald-headed men pay an average of $85 for courses averaging 20 treatments.
Wise businessmen realize that bald-headed men are human, and extremely sensitive. Almost without exception the hair-raising establishments are located in large office buildings, where the timid can pretend their business is with an adjacent insurance or brokerage office.
Only in one of the sanctuaries for the hairless will the bald-headed man, or the potentially shorn, find sympathy, understanding and hope. There he finds his brethren. Pleasant, professional appearing young men encourage him and attractive young ladies massage his cranium, and make no flip remarks.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE NEA Service Staff Writer
CHILDREN of assorted sizes offer mothers lots of problems. One is when they come home from school at different hours for their noon meal. You can't be constantly cooking, yet each must have hot appetizing, nourishing, easily-digested food. One answer is chowder and custard-like desserts.
There's a lot to be said for the chowder made with milk. It contains a large amount of nourishment, is easily digested and is not rich or heavy enough to produce the loggy feeling that frequently makes afternoon work so trying.
Chowder Is Guide to Dessert. Serve with the soup toast sticks, croutons or toasted crackers to supply bulk, radishes and celery for crispness.
The composition of the chowder is an important factor in determining the type of salad and dessert. If grated cheese is stirred into the hot soup just before serving the food value is increased. Eggs also increase its food value. If the chowder must stand for some time between servings, it's a good idea to add an egg to each individual portion as it is served.
Corn and Tomato Chowder
Two cups diced potatoes, 1 can corn, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 onion, 4 tablespoons diced salt pork, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 1/2 cups milk.
 Fry fat slowly from salt pork and add sliced onion. Cook slowly until tender but not brown. Add potatoes, corn, tomatoes, pepper, sugar and parsley and 4 cups boiling water. Simmer until potatoes

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Stewed dried apricots, cereal, cream, bread crumbs, pancakes, honey, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Corn and tomato chowder, toast sticks, head lettuce with French dressing, date pecan pie, milk, tea.
DINNER: Boiled corned beef with cabbage and potatoes, baked squash, orange and onion salad, pineapple upside-down cake, milk, coffee.

Date Pecan Pie
One and one-third cups sweetened condensed milk, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup pitted dates, 1-2 cup pecan nut meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 unbaked eight-inch pie shell.
Chop dates. Beat eggs separately, beating yolks until thick and lemon colored. Combine milk, dates, nuts, vanilla, salt and egg yolks. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into unbaked pie shell and put into a hot oven (425 degrees F) for ten minutes. Reduce heat to 300 degrees F and bake half an hour longer. Cool thoroughly before serving.
If you want to serve this pie to quite small children you can use a graham cracker crust. Zwieback can be rolled and used just as you do crackers, too. These crusts are considered more desirable for small children than the usual pie crust.

Making Up a shopping list

The hall needs a new rug. More towels are needed for the bathroom, and the kitchen floor could certainly stand a coat of paint. The children need shoes. The car will soon need tires. Well, we buy a hundred new things every year.

Scattered throughout the United States are manufacturers who make the very things we need. Their products are on sale in certain stores within easy reach. Certain of these products, and certain of these stores, are especially fitted to take care of our special need. But which products and which stores? Which can we afford, and which do we think is best? We must look to advertising for advice.

Advertising is the straight line between supply and demand. It saves time spent in haphazard shopping. It leads you directly to your goal. By reading the advertisements, we can determine in advance where the best values are to be found. With the aid of advertising, shopping becomes a simple and pleasant business, and budget figures bring more smiles than frowns.
