Hail to the Symbol of a Foolish Era!

The return of a prodigal son is always a touching sight. Even when the prodigal has been reduced, not to the husks that the swine did eat, but to the daintier fare of swank European hotels, it moves the heart to see him drawing up his chair once more at the parental table. And so everybody must have been deeply moved to see Jimmy Walker return to New York.

New York gave him a welcome, of course. Whistles blew, people leaned out of windows, crowds cheered—there was nothing missing except a get-together on the steps of the city hall, and a last lingering remnant of good taste forbade that.

It would be foolish to say that New York has gained anything by dapper Jimmy's return; but it would be equally foolish for the good people of the country to grow indignant over the fact that he did get a welcome.

After all, this man Walker is a useful sort of person. That is, he is a symbol of the things that were wrong with us back in the gay days of the boom, and if he can only keep moving about in our midst he may save us from the folly of going back to those days.

For Walker, after all, was nothing more or less than the incarnation of the good-time Charley. He was triple-distilled Broadway, with its virtues as well as its faults. He was decorative and likable, and there was only one thing wrong with him: he was the last man on earth who ought to have been put in charge of the destinies of the nation's greatest city.

Being mayor of New York is one of the most tremendous jobs that any politician on earth can have. From the point of view of money spent and people affected, it is a bigger job than the premiership of many an independent nation.

In any half-way intelligent social order, the electorate would take a moderate amount of pains to fill it with a man who at least had a sense of social responsibility.

But New York, back in the boom days, picked a Jimmy Walker—and liked him. It turned its government over to a wisecracker and a playboy, and gloried in it.

Nobody saw anything especially wrong with it—until, of course, the depression came and the stupidity of such a move was revealed too obviously for anyone to miss.

That tells the story. That is, it shows how far the boom era carried us from a sensible approach to the problems of self-government. We speak of the damage which the depression has caused, and it is very real and terrible; but it was the pre-depression era which let us in for it, and our collective folly of that era is epitomized by the fact that Walker was mayor of New York.

So it's a good thing that he's back. If we work our way up to another boom, Jimmy Walker will be an excellent object lesson to have around.

War-Wounded Blindly Call For the Past

The world has treated itself to quite a few spectacles of human goofiness during the last few years, but few of them have been quite as striking as the demonstration put on in Vienna the other day by 7000 war veterans.

These veterans gathered to cheer the name of Archduke Otto, pretender to the Austrian throne. Most of them were wounded veterans; some were on crutches, some were armless, some were blind. But all of them got together to whoop it up for restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy in Austria, and the spectacle is pretty puzzling.

Austria today is as much a casualty of the war as any of the maimed, disfigured ex-soldiers who paraded in Vienna. The nation has been fighting off slow death for 17 years, while being aided by copious blood transfusion from the League of Nations. And it is hard to see how the country can blame anyone but its former rulers for its predicament.

The Hapsburgs in pre-war Vienna ruled a vast domain that was bound to fly apart. The empire had a sound enough economic basis, but politically it was a powder magazine full of flying sparks.

The pride and stubbornness of the monarchy stood in the way of the adjustments that would have to be made to prevent an explosion; and when the explosion finally came, wrecking most of Europe and leaving Austria as hopelessly crippled as the most horribly mangled of ex-soldiers, a large part of the responsibility went properly to the Hapsburgs.

That being the case, you would suppose that the last thing the service men of Austria would want would be a restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty. This, above everything else, would seem to be the one thing that would stir them to a frenzy of resistance.

But instead they pack the streets of Vienna and cheer lustily—the crippled, the war-ruined, the blind, the pathetic specters of defeat—for the Hapsburg who wants to reascend their throne.

The simple fact is that mankind is still groggy from the blows of war. A large part of it, like this bloc of Austrian ex-soldiers, realizes only that its present situation is unendurable. It is still too stunned to work out a new plan of salvation; it can only look back to the old-war days and strive blindly to revive that which is dead.

DESDEMONA

Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Nance attended the session of the Central Texas Methodist Conference at Brownwood from Wednesday until Sunday night. Rev. Nance was given the appointment to the church at Carbon for the coming year. He had served that church several years ago and during the time a splendid new church was built there. Rev. Nance and his family have lived here the past year and have made hosts of friends who regret to see them leave but congratulate him on getting an appointment to a larger church. The Home Makers Class of the First Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. H. N. Balderee on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 5, for their class social. Devotional was led by Mrs. C. E. Jones. Prayer

WITH customary reserve, Pacific Coast League baseball writers tell me that Joe Di Maggio is the best ball player ever developed out there. "Ofhand, I would say that there is only one finer ball player alive, and his name is Charley Gehringer," says Tommy Laird, sports editor of the San Francisco News.

"Di Maggio is likely to kill an opposing infielder at any time," asserts Gene Coughlin, of the Los Angeles Post-Record.

"Di Maggio has the strongest and most accurate arm since Long Bob Meusel," testifies Bob Cronin, of the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News.

"Di Maggio never makes a mistake on the bases," says Rudy Hickey, of the Sacramento Bee. "You've seldom seen a more accomplished flycatcher," reports Cliff Harrison, of the Seattle Star.

"Di Maggio plays ball with grim intensity," asserts Billy Stepp, of the Portland News-Telegram.

Joe Has a Lot to Live Up to in 1936

WITH advance notices like that, Di Maggio, who reports to the St. Petersburg camp of the New York Yankees next spring, has a lot to live up to.

The Pacific Coast League has turned out some pretty good ones, Ivy Olson, Roger Peckinpaugh, Charley Hollocher, Dave Bancroft, the Waners, Curt Davis, Veau Gregg, Franklin Demaree, Stanley Hack, Jack Graney, Bob Meusel, Willie Kamm, Earl Averill, Gussie Suhr, Tony Lazzari, Chic Gandil, Swede Risberg, and Claude Williams, to mention a few.

Di Maggio, who plays right field, is a right-hand hitter, standing six feet one, and weighing 195 pounds. There is tremendous power in his compact swing. He takes a fairly tight grip with his strong hands. He stands firmly in the box, and his batting stride is short. He swats all kinds of pitching. He was the hardest of all coast leaguers to fool, and murdered a change of pace.

Baseball Is Serious Art to Dead Pan Joe

DI MAGGIO is so serious that they call him Dead Pan Joe. He is pictured as a ball player without nerves. He likes to play ball.

Di Maggio hits the ball where it is pitched, and socks it to all fields. He hit around .400 in 1935.

The Yankee recruit covers quite a lot of ground. He is not exactly a gazelle, because of his size, but he's not slow either.

Di Maggio, who is 21, injured a knee a year ago and again during the last season, but his getting in practically every game played by the San Francisco Seals is something in the way of proof that the joint is not of the tricky variety.

The Yankees paid plenty for Di Maggio in 1934, and left him on the coast for seasoning.

The Yankees certainly can use Di Maggio, rounding out their Italian triumvirate of Crosetti, Lazzari, and Di Maggio.

A couple of other San Francisco kids, Lazzari and Mark Koenig, restored the breath of life to the Yanks in 1926.

Perhaps this one will rid Joe McCarthy and his men of their second place complex.

Armistice Day. Mrs. J. M. Reid and brother, Bun Haynes, of Anson, visited Mrs. Henry Gentry and family Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Stover drove to De Leon Sunday to attend the funeral of their friend, Mr. White, who died Friday.

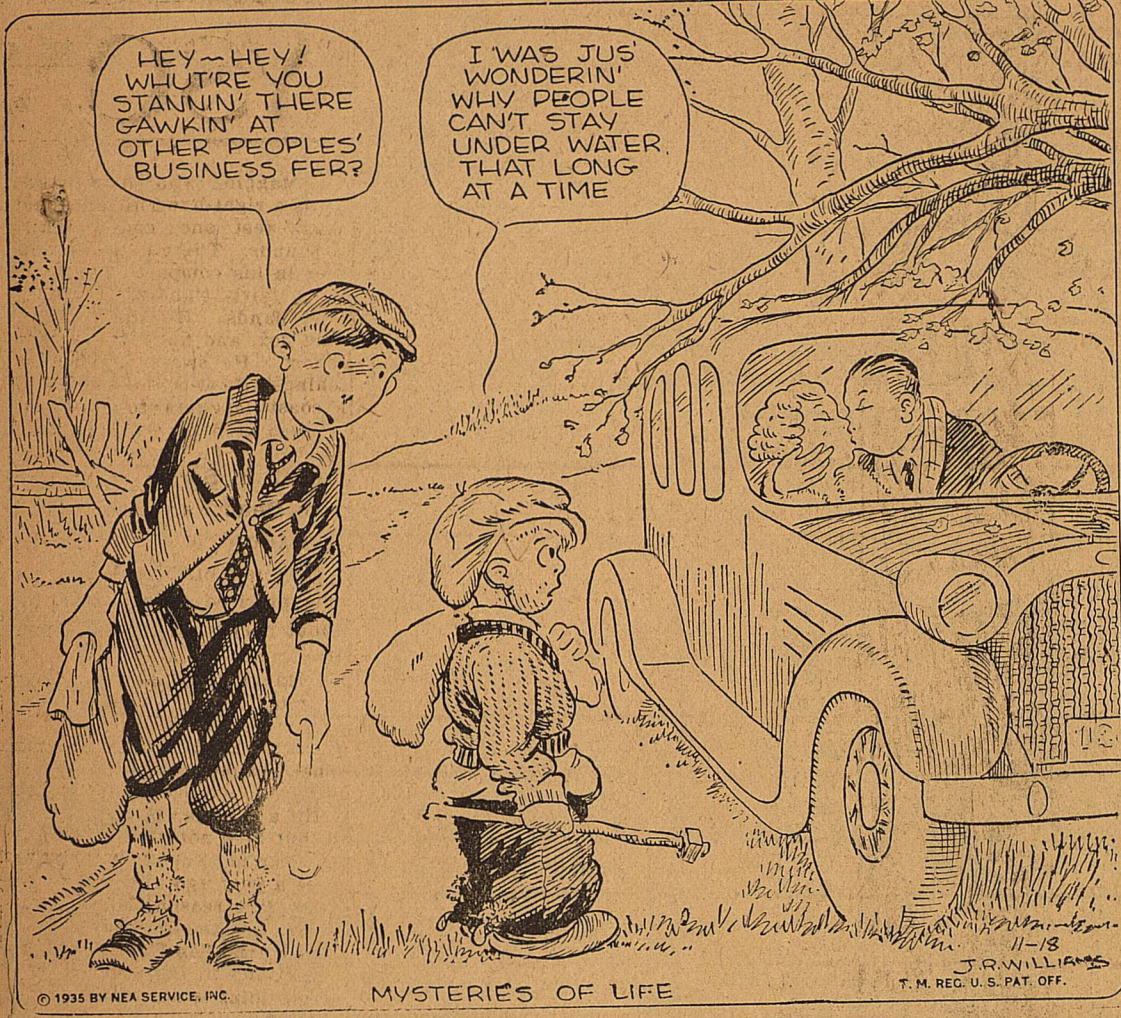

Mrs. Mattie Henry drove to De Leon Sunday afternoon.

Careful scrutiny of the results of that army stratospheric flight fails to uncover any mention of food prices.

TIME
Horace Mann once said, "You may as well borrow a person's money as his time." How we spend our time is a determining factor in any man's accomplishments.

Proper proportionment of our time is the thing that should be emphasized. Truly it can be said that a man is best fit who has properly proportioned his time to best meet his spiritual, mental and physical needs. We are all aware that we may forsake all others of these for the sake of any one of these and become unbalanced in our thinking, acting and doing.

There is one thing, sure, that we do know, and that is that a bit of clean, wholesome constructive thinking scattered all through the course of our time is elevating and uplifting.

We say that the actions of any nation's people is governed almost, if not exclusively, by their thinking.

We feel that the teacher's upmost purpose in teaching at the present time is to inspire and direct the child to think properly and not learn so many numbers and pages.

In being an efficient director we feel that we have influenced the child to think. Thus, spending time in thinking is the only way in which our many problems can be solved.

"An empty brain is a devil's workshop" is just as true and to cause this empty capacity to be filled is the duty of instructors and directors. It's a big job, but if we are not willing to work let's not hire out.

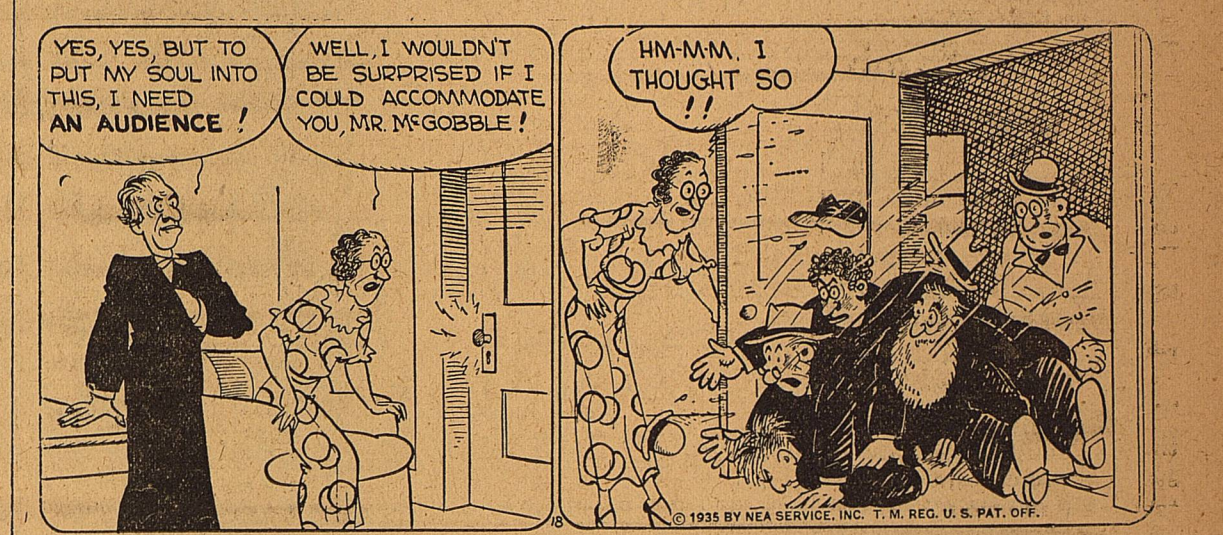

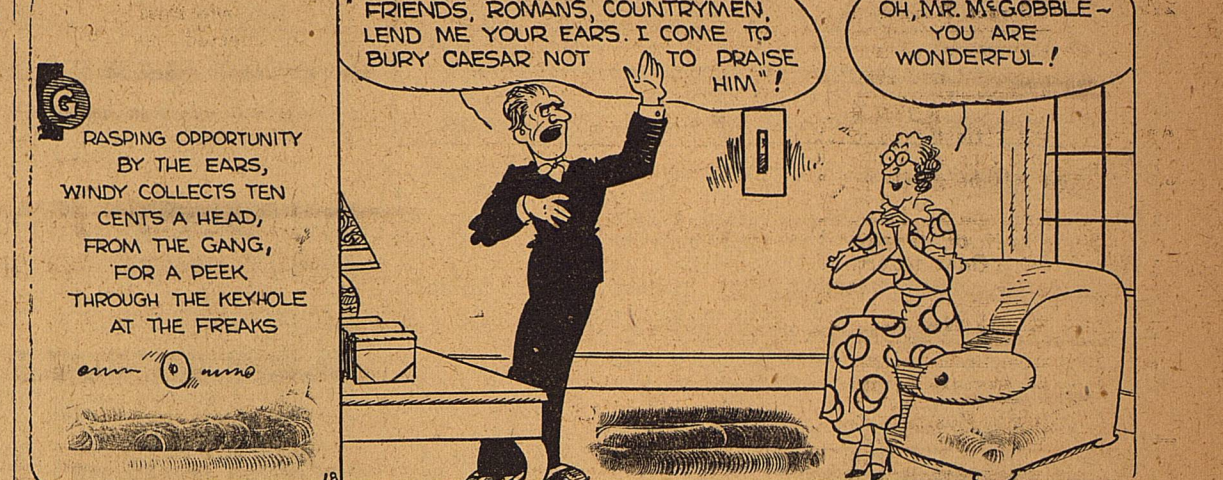

LITERARY SOCIETY NEWS
Our next program will be presented on Wednesday night, Nov. 27. This will be the night before Thanksgiving. Our program will not be representative of the time as much as we desired and we do not brand it as a Thanksgiving program. We hope to have a plan of the program in the "Oak Leaflet" next week.

We extend a welcome for the rendition of any special numbers by the outsiders in the community at any time.

TO PATRONS
We have a number of tardies each day. We as teachers would appreciate it if it is at all possible to see that their children are at school on time.

THE BEST IN LIFE
Sometimes we are caused to wonder just what is the best in life, or do we become so busy with the cares of every day that we lose sight of the best that life affords? Wordsworth says "That portion of a good man's life is his little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and love." And Sir Humphrey Dairy tells us that "life is not made up of great sacrificing of duties, but of the little things, in which smiles and kindness and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart, and secures comfort."

THE GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGINS HERE TODAY
JEAN DUNN didn't know how to answer when BOBBY WALLACE asks her to marry him at the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to a Mr. and Mrs. Lewis. Bobby sells some bonds for Lewis, who buys a car.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent is trailing WINGY LEWIS, bank robber. He learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby. Bobby believes the car Lewis bought is untraced. Bobby undertakes to find out.

Jean agrees to a secret engagement with Sandy. The bank of which her father is president is robbed, and Larry starts a search for the robbers.

Jean goes to see Sandy who has been injured. He and the Lewises are staying at a farmhouse. She soon finds herself a prisoner. The whole party leaves the farm.

Meanwhile Larry has discovered Jean is with the robbers. He and his men reach the house where the gang is staying.

WHEN the guard brought Jean Dunn back to the house, she felt as if some queer paralysis of the spirit had descended on her, making it impossible for her either to think or to feel any longer.

She knew the worst, now. She was in the hands of the Red Jackson gang—the most notorious, dangerous and vicious gang of maulers on the continent—she, Jean Dunn, who had thought it a wickedly exciting race to poke her nose inside the Golden Feather night club! She was in their power, and the man she had promised to marry was one of the gang, and there was no possible chance that she could ever get away.

She stumbled along, until at last they came out of the woods into the clearing. The old house loomed up, a dark, insanely-designed shadow against the star-flecked sky. The few lights in its rooms gleaming dimly through the night. Beyond it the surface of the lake was a black pool, lit here and there by a touch of reflected light.

The man conducted her straight to the house and marched her up the steps and into the hall. He stood there with her, his gun under his arm, and waited. A door opened somewhere, and Red Jackson came toward them.

He looked at the guard coldly. "What're you doin' in here?" he asked. "I thought you were supposed to be a lookout, up the road. What's the idea coming in here?" The man hastily gestured toward Jean.

"Honest, chief, I had to come in," he said. "She was takin' it on the lam up through the woods, and I figured—"

Gala Party Celebrates Fourth Birthday of Little Honoree

Saturday afternoon proved a happy occasion for little Miss Jo Ann Thompson, when her mother, Mrs. Joe Thompson, entertained at their home, Cypress street, with a gala party celebrating her fourth birthday.

A pretty color scheme of white and pink was carried out in appointments and dainty table arrangement featuring a lovely birthday cake with wee pink candles. From the chandelier rippled streamers of the two colors brought to their resting place by fluffy bows attractively marking the four corners of the board.

During the play hour which introduced games, popcorn and candy was served. Brightly colored balloons were given as favors, and as the party neared its climax the children gathered in the dining room and were served delicious punch and slices of the birthday cake.

Party guests were: Harold and Marie Green, Jo Ann Jenkins, Patsy Williams, Stanley and Rodney Stephens, Eastland, Gerry Bob Joel Jones, Eastland, and little Richard Thompson. Mrs. Thompson was assisted in entertaining by the following mothers, whose children shared with the honoree the gay hour: Mes. E. R. Green, Eugene Jenkins, Ross Williams, Joe Stevens, Francis Jones, and Mrs. F. M. Thompson, grandmother of the honor guest, and Miss Oma Lee Gibbs.

Postponed
The Young school Parent-Teacher association meeting formerly announced for Tuesday afternoon Nov. 19 has been postponed until the same hour and day of next week.

Party Planned for Winners in S. S. Class Contest
Members of the Ruth class of Central Baptist church, are to be entertained with a party in the home of Mrs. M. G. Martin, 437 South Rusk street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The party honors the winning side who scored the largest numbers of high points in a class contest just drawn to a close.

The hostess asks that members of the class be present.

Saturday Afternoon Studio Party
The chill of a winter afternoon was forgotten Saturday, when Miss Anice Locke again opened her studio to members of the Staccato Music club for a business meeting after which a happy time was had learning new songs, and later playing games.

Refreshments were served the following: Mary Irene Wilson, Mary, Dorothy and Ella Joy Ferris, Margaret Jo McCleskey, Dorothy Lee Brimberry, Billie Lawson, Geneva Williams, Billie Fry, and Mes. J. N. Smith, Harvey Basham and Barney Smith of Eastland, and sponsor, Miss Locke.

Mmes. Ohr and Emfinger Give Club Program
Child Study club No. 2 met in the home of Mrs. J. B. Houghton, Cherry street, for their last meeting with Mrs. T. L. Dupree, hostess.

Mrs. Carl Heinlin served as business director in the absence of the president, Mrs. Saule Perlstein, whose absence was forced by the illness of her little daughter. Mrs. Odell Cole took charge of the program and presented Mrs. Max Ohr, who spoke on "The Child's Home," and Mrs. W. B. Emfinger followed with an interesting talk on "The Well Managed Home."

As the program closed the hostess passed a plate of pumpkin pie with coffee to Mes. J. E. Ogg, Max Ohr, W. B. Emfinger, Dick Williams, Carl Heinlin, M. G. Martin, T. J. Powell, Z. B. Morgan, W. W. Webb, Odell Cole and J. B. Houghton.

Royal Neighbor Juvenile To Plan Thanksgiving Program
Royal Neighbor Juveniles met at the hall Saturday afternoon and enjoyed an interesting program under the leadership of Mrs. Carrie E. Henry and Mrs. Gladys Butcher.

Saturday afternoon of this week will be entirely devoted to the making of complete plans for Thanksgiving and the box to be sent to the home.

All members are urged to attend in order that the plans may be unanimously approved.

Jones-Mills Wedding Solemnized Saturday
The marriage of Miss Marie Jones and Mr. Omos Mills was solemnized Saturday evening, Nov. 16, at Breckenridge. Rev. Pond, pastor of the First Baptist church, read the marriage vows, using the beautiful ring ceremony to unite the couple.

Mrs. Mills is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jones of this city. She is a young lady of sweet and modest manner and is a graduate of Ranger High School in 1932. As a bride she was lovely in a rust swaggar suit with brown accessories.

Pecans Can Be Means of Spreading Several Diseases

AUSTIN, Tex.—Pecans, the favorite nut of thousands of people, may be a source of the spread of disease, according to E. C. Koeth, Director, Bureau of Food and Drugs. The pecan itself is not to blame, but the manner in which it is shelled and later handled is the cause for this warning.

The shelled pecan industry has assumed large proportions in the last few years and the shellers in other states have attacked the Texas product on the ground that the shelled nuts are not handled in a sanitary manner. The large packing houses that have the nuts shelled in their own packing plants maintain a satisfactory standard of sanitation. The evil of the shelled pecan industry is where pecans are taken into individual homes where no supervision is possible.

Many Mexicans, Negroes and a few whites do this work at home, with at times the neighbors coming in to help them out. It is possible for the communicable diseases to spread by shelled pecans, and for that reason it will be to the public's advantage to ask where the pecans were shelled and under what conditions. The food inspectors of the State Department of Health have investigated the home shelling of pecans for hire and report that many homes where this work is done are most unsanitary.

All persons engaged in shelling pecans should have a health certificate the same as any other food handler. The purchaser should demand that the pecans they buy shall have been shelled by such a person and handled in a sanitary manner and under supervision to lessen the chances for the spread of tuberculosis, colds, dysentery, typhoid, and other diseases.

SAXOPHONES MAY NOT BE IMPORTED BY THE MEXICAN STATE OF TOBACCO! ALL JAZZ MUSIC IS BARRED.

ONLY once in history have there been five living ex-presidents of the United States. This unusual number was a result largely of the fact that no president elected between 1836 and 1860 served more than four years.

Hillsboro Junior College Will Have Big Homecoming

HILLSBORO, Tex.—Over 1,000 ex-students of the Hillsboro Junior College are expected to attend the Homecoming here November 22nd when the North Texas Agricultural College eleven of Arlington and the Hillsboro Junior College team meet in Hillsboro in a night game. As there are a number of students from this section who have attended the Hillsboro school and are attending now, it is expected that they will be on hand for the game.

A parade will be held at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon and all ex-students are invited to be in it. Merchants of towns where these former students or present students in the college reside are invited to enter floats and decorated cars.

Prior to the game there will be a short program at the field.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 2c.

Weighty Problem

This photograph from an unusual angle, taken at Seattle, makes it plain that exhibition work is not keeping James J. Braddock's weight down. Note the rolls of fat around the heavyweight champion's middle.

Perpetual Puzzles!

These puzzles we have married are disturbingly feminine. They sit across the table from us and smile riddles. They treat us like spoiled children, and yet like kings. They ferret out our secret poker games—and collect! They devastate our reasoned actions by a caprice... and we love it.

How do these wives of ours manage to keep so young, so attractive, so full of life? Well for one thing, they have learned that the advertising pages are their willing servants. Here they read of an appliance that turns mornings of drudgery into hours of leisure. There is a cosmetic blended to fit the skin like a glove. Or a new recipe to tempt your appetite.

Right now, your wife is busy with fall buying. And she lets the advertisements shoulder part of the task. They bring her good news about fall gowns and gloves, blankets, perhaps a fire screen, new slippers for you, a sweater for Junior... She reads the advertisements carefully and they save her time, trouble, worry—and money.
