Vagabond Americans Know How to Loaf

Now that the Republicans and the Democrats have temporarily had their fill of viewing with alarm and pointing with pride, the ordinary citizen can relax a little and start thinking about where he is going on his vacation.

And, until he has attended to that little matter, the rival politicians might just as well hold their breath. July and August are bad months in which to try to make an impression on the American people. They're too busy traveling about and having a look at their country.

There never was a land in which the vacation habit was as strong as in this one. Perhaps that is partly because Americans have a tradition of restless movement—a legacy from the early days, when men were forever moving westward in pursuit of the receding frontier.

But there is more to it than that. At heart, for all his tremendous energy and his capacity for hard work, the American is a loafer and a vagabond—a trait which will ultimately be his salvation.

Solemn thinkers write learnedly about the Age of Leisure which is about to dawn on our resistless heads, and wonder if the ordinary man will be able to use his leisure wisely. Their very choice of words gives them away.

"Wisely"—the ordinary American may be no mental giant, but he does have the sense to know that, if he gets a good time out of his leisure, he is doing all right. The wisdom of the ages could no more for him.

What happens during the vacation season? The American has an unlimited choice of pleasant places to go to, and the means of getting to them is almost invariably delightful.

He can tour through New England, sprawl on the beaches of the Great Lakes, look into the great parks of the West, climb any of 200 assorted mountains, camp in the Great Smokies or the Rockies, fish in the wilderness, or dance in the ballroom of an ocean beach hotel.

He can harass his tender loins in the saddle at a dude ranch or invite his soul on the veranda of a farmhouse in the Berkshires. And as he does these things, he gets a kick out of life which shows that no one ever needs to tell him a thing about the way to use leisure time.

Through depression and boom one tendency is increasingly evident these days; a tendency to take less and less of a man's life for his job, and to leave more and more of it for him to use as he chooses.

As this trend increases, the American's instinct for loafing and vagabondage will become one of his most valuable possessions.

He has a continent for his playground, he has unrivaled means of getting about in it, and he knows how to use both to the best advantage. If you doubt it, watch him during the next couple of months.

In California two college students were kept awake 54 1/2 hours. It must have been difficult pulling them thru the class periods.

It's a bit early yet to decide whether the Boston Bees are workers or drones.

'DROPPING THE PILOT'

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. As evidence of good faith inquirers must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. What Spanish-Americans were members of the Texas constitutional convention of March, 1836? T. L. L., San Angelo.

A. The best known in Texas history was Lorenzo de Zavala, who was well known on both continents. The others were Jose Antonio Navarro and Francisco Ruiz. De Zavala had been a deputy of the first Mexican National Congress, President of the Congress of 1824, Senator, Governor of the State of Mexico, Secretary of the Treasury of Mexico, Mexican minister of Paris in 1833 and a friend of Santa Anna.

Q. What were Richard Ellis' qualifications for presiding officer of the Texas constitutional convention? E. D., Nixon.

A. Although it has been stated that he was a poor presiding officer and failed to keep order in the convention he had been a member of the Alabama Constitutional Convention in 1819. He was a lawyer and for four years was a member of the Alabama Supreme Court.

Q. What is the largest food crop produced in Texas? F. F. D., Kilgore.

A. Sweet potatoes, the crop running from 4,000,000 to 8,000,000 bushels annually.

Q. Where is McAnally's Bend and for whom was it named? A. D. T., San Angelo.

A. It is a fertile bend of the Colorado River in San Saba county and is especially noted for its pecans; named for R. McAnally, one of the five first settlers of that section.

Crayon Projects in Texas History It is easy to teach children history with penciled outline pictures of historical subjects and colored crayons. History taught in this way is never forgotten and a taste is created for more information. "Centennial Projects, Texas Under Six Flags," contains 36 pages of outlines on with cover showing the Texas Capitol under six flags, each in its correct colors. This beautiful project book mailed post-paid for 25 cents. Send all orders to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Will H. Mayes, 2610 Salado Street, Austin, Texas I enclose 25 cents in coins, securely wrapped, for a copy of "Texas Under Six Flags."

"OUTOUR WAY"

By Williams

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CLAIRE FOSDICK sets out on a summer evening to drive to the mountain house inherited from her eccentric uncle, LYMAN FOSDICK. Claire's parents are dead and she has learned that most of the fortune she thought was secure is gone. She owes money to her father's friend, NICK BAUM. Nick wants to marry her, but Claire cannot quite bring herself to say "yes."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

WHEN Claire regained her senses she was lying on the ground with a coat for a pillow. A young man was bending over her, an anxious frown on his face. For a minute she stared confusedly, then a smile of recognition touched her lips.

"Pat Magan?"
He grinned. "Sure, the very same. And what do you think you're trying to do to yourself, anyway?"
"How is she, Pat?" asked another young man coming out of the darkness.
"Guess she was just knocked out for a minute," Pat told him. Then, with a wave of his hand at the newcomer, "Claire, this is my side-kick, Bob Steele, a mining engineer, with a good job—believe it or not. He's spending his vacation in the Rockies."

Claire smiled and held out her hand rather shakily. "How about my car, Mr. Steele?"
He shook his head. "Pretty badly damaged. Front axle busted and a lot of minor casualties. Someone had closed the road with that log."

Claire turned startled eyes on Pat. "Closed the road? You mean he log was put there?"
"Sure. Probably repairing or something. But Bob and I are on the loose, and we'll be tickled to death to trundle you any place you want to go. Feel able to make a cover to our car?" He helped her over her feet. After a minute she was able to walk unaided, and at last to their car to wait until they could move the wreck out of the road.

When finally they came back he had decided to tell them why he was going to the house in the mountains.

CLAIRE pointed out the road and then told them about her quest, even to the part about the mysterious hidden jewel.

For a minute neither of the young men answered. Then Bob Steele said slowly, "We had planned to spend most of our vacation in the city, Miss Fosdick, but if Pat's willing I'd like to help you look over the house in the mountains. Maybe some of my technical knowledge would come in handy."

"Count me in, too, Claire," Pat agreed.
The rest of the trip was spent in making plans. Claire told them about her eccentric Uncle Lyman, his fondness for jewels, and how he had given the fantastic name to his house in the mountains.

"And you mean to tell me that no name ever waltzed him up the church aisle and snatched his name and fortune?" asked Pat incredulously. "As a bachelor with enough to drift around the world buying jewels!"

"Susie Spratt was his housekeeper for years and she never spoke of any woman. No. He never married," Claire answered.

When they came to the end of the trip both young men agreed that Lyman Fosdick had indeed named his house well. In the uncertain light of a half moon the building loomed gloomily against the dark background of the mountain. Of imposing height, it was a perfect example of the flamboyant mansions of an earlier period—narrow railed porches, and many bulging bay windows. At the right side of the second story rose a round cupola which seemed to melt into the shadow of a huge pine tree with twin tops that grew close to that side of the house. In fact the gloomy aspect of the place was largely due to this mighty giant of the forest.

"It's really two trees grown together, and a marvelous specimen, as you will see by daylight," Claire said, pointing toward the tree.
"But it must cut off lots of light from the house," remarked Bob Steele.

CLAIRE nodded. "Yes, it's the house of long shadows, you papers wagged about her round face that still retained traces of a one-time babyish beauty.

"Claire!" She threw her arms about the girl and kissed her. "Have you had your supper? Eh, stir up the kitchen fire quick. Claire'll want something hot after her drive."

Footsteps sounded outside and Eb went to open the door. He admitted the strangers with a sour look. After Claire had presented the newcomers and explained again about the accident, she dispatched the Spratts kitchenward to prepare supper. Then she looked rather curiously at the young men. Bob Steele was handsomer than she had thought, while Pat Magan was—well, still just Pat.

"I'm sure glad to see you again, Claire," he was saying. "Golly, you're looking wonderful!"
"You haven't forgotten you've kissed the Blarney Stone have you, Pat?" laughed Claire.

"Pat always gets a little groggy when he's excited about something, Miss Fosdick," Bob Steele explained.

The girl turned away with a laugh. "I'm Claire to you, too, Bob. And now while we're waiting, let's go into the library. That was the room Uncle Lyman loved best. Everything has been kept just as it was when he was alive."

She led the way down the hall, and opened a door. "Ha, there might be a clew or two right here!" exclaimed Pat. Then he added, "Say, I don't think your man cares much for us, Claire."

Claire smiled. "Oh, Eb's all right. He's that way with Susie and Dan, too."

"Who's Dan?" asked Pat.
"Dan Dallas, the extra man Eb hired to work here. What are you staring at, Pat?"

"I was wondering why that stone block with the broken arrow carved on it wasn't the same color as the rest of this gingerbread stuff on this fireplace. It's lighter."

"It's been there as long as I can remember," Claire told them.
Susie, fully dressed now, but still wearing her crown of curl-papers, bustled in carrying a big tray. "Ham and eggs, rolls and coffee, Claire," she announced as she drew a small table up before the fireplace. "Want Eb should lay a fire in here? My, you'll freeze with that window open that way. Land sakes, Dan!" Her voice sounded surprised. "What ever do you want?"

In the doorway stood a man about 40 years old, carrying a black mongrel dog. The man's forehead bore a wide scar that twisted one eyebrow into a perpetual droop, but the eyes that looked out from under it were usually keen and piercing.
"Trigger's dead, Susie," the man said, looking at her steadily. "I just found him out in those aspens back to the doghouse."

"Dead?" cried Claire. "Why, barked when we came in?"
"He's been shot. See?" The man parted the shaggy hair about the dog's eyes and pointed to bullet hole.

"But—what who would do a thing?" Claire exclaimed. "Why didn't we hear the shot?"

Malaria Control Shown at Dallas

AUSTIN.—A prominent position in the space of the Federal Building allotted to the United States Public Health Service at the Texas Centennial Exposition is occupied by a twin exhibit arranged by the Texas State Department of Health. The exhibit was made possible through materials furnished by the Public Health Service and is creating much comment and interest.

Two tables, four by six feet each, depict a typical village before and after malaria control. The exhibit shows common malaria mosquito breeding places, including swampy areas, slow, sluggish streams with grassy banks, ox bows or oxbows, poor drainage along roadsides and highways, unscreened houses, leaky water tanks and open rain barrels, and other trash and containers which might collect and hold water long enough for mosquito breeding.

The second table represents the same village after extensive malaria control work has accomplished the correction of many hazards and complete elimination of others. Streams through the towns have been cleaned and straightened, rip-rapped or permanently lined. Swamps have been drained by underground drainage or surface ditches, and in one case a dam constructed to raise the water level and convert the swamp into a lake. Houses are screened properly and all containers which would invite mosquito breeding, such as tin cans, fire barrels and water tanks, have been corrected or removed.

Improvement of the village after malaria control was instituted over its former condition is readily apparent, both from an engineering and an economic standpoint. With the elimination of mosquitoes and halting of the spread of malaria, better economic conditions among the population follow as a natural consequence.

Miss Mavis Murray Prominent in Activities at Camp Waldemar
KERRVILLE, Texas, July 3.—Miss Mavis Murray, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Murray, 912 Strawn road, Ranger, will have an important role in the historical pageant, which will be given at Camp Waldemar for Girls on July 4 with a cast of 225.
Miss Murray is one of a group of Spanish soldiers, who claimed Texas for the Spanish crown. This pageant is the most colorful and dramatic that has ever been staged at Camp Waldemar, which is noted for its beautiful pageants. Hundreds of parents and friends have made reservations for the day's entertainment which includes a horse show, a barbecue and the pageant in the evening.

In addition to finding time to rehearse for the pageant, Miss Murray helps to edit the War Whoop, the weekly newspaper, has passed advanced tests in canoeing and in the last swimming meet helped the Comanche Tribe win the water polo match.

Comings and Goings

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Faircloth and baby daughter visited this week in Weatherford, at the home of Mrs. Faircloth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Judd. Before the two weeks vacation expires the Faircloths will visit in Stamford and other West Texas cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Baker have as their house guest Mrs. Davis of Wichita Falls.

Mrs. J. M. Rush of 4638 Nakoma Drive, Dallas, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Ida Snively, 303 South Austin street.

Misses Kay and Margaret Smith, who recently moved to Ranger with their parents, are entertaining as their guest Miss Mary Ruth Bolen of Hohertz camp.

Miss Olene Ward has returned home after spending the past two weeks visiting the Texas Centennial in Dallas.

Misses Margaret Watt and Dorothy Henry, tap dancers popular in social circles, have been out of town during the month past. Instead of spending their visit in the usual way when one visits they were quite busy with a dance routine. Miss Watt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Watt, spent her days in Brownwood studying under Mrs. Lon Smith, while Miss Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henry, was in Waco, a dance pupil of Miss Elmer Wheatley.

NOTICE
There was glad news all over Ranger last week! Did you hear of it? Little Bettie Jones is well. After a long spell of sickness and her family doctor was to see her every day for some time, doing everything he could for her, and administering all the medical skill possible, and today she is well, for Mrs. Jones had her prescriptions filled at ROSS PHARMACY, and to her surprise, when she paid the bill, at the LOW COST of the prescriptions during little Betties sickness, she exclaimed in glee, "I will have enough money left to buy little Betty some toys to make her glad."

Why don't you be wise like Mrs. Jones, and have your prescriptions filled at ROSS Pharmacy? They are yours!

Lone Star Gas and Tee Pee Winners In Games Thursday

Lone Star Gas continued its winning streak at Municipal Field Thursday night, making it five in a row when they downed the Lone Star Gasoline team by a score of 8 to 3. The loss by the Gasoline team pushed them further down the percentage column, with six teams ahead of them.

In the final game of the evening TeePee won from High School by a score of 9 to 7 to earn their first victory. The loss by High School gave them undisputed possession of the cellar position in the league, being the only team that has not won a game. TeePee's win took them out of a tie with High School for bottom position and moved them ahead of Killingsworth, Cox, now in next to last position.

Revival Meeting At First Christian Church to Start

Next Sunday, July 5, there will be the starting of a revival meeting at the First Christian church that will continue for two weeks. Rev. Paul Campbell of Weatherford will do the preaching.

Rev. Campbell held the meeting for this church last year and announces that the meeting will begin where it stopped off last year. He is a very splendid preacher, a good singer, an artist "of no mean reputation," and a fine fellow in a social way. While this meeting will be a continuation of the meeting last year. Brother Campbell will have a new set of sermons and pictures, and the pictures will be given for personal work and nothing else.

Brother Campbell is pastor of First Christian church in Weatherford, where he has preached for the past seven or eight years and has had very extensive experience singing for some of the leading evangelists in the country. He is well equipped for his chosen profession and is very popular wherever he goes. He is social and a splendid organizer, and yet he does not depend upon this qualification for success in his work. He preaches the distinctive doctrines of the Bible and yet he never preaches these things in a way to offend any one.
It is the desire of the pastor and membership of the church that all churches, their pastors and members attend these services as much as suits their convenience. All the singers of the city are urged to be present and take part in the services.
Hal Hunter will have charge of the choir, and he is one of the best choir directors in the country.
Every effort will be made to make the building comfortable, as there are ceiling fans in the church and the windows can be adjusted so as to give good ventilations. Make your plans to be present as much as possible. Perhaps no preacher ever preached in Ranger who went away with more friends than brother Campbell. Start in with the services Sunday and go right through until close.

Brother Campbell will not be here until Monday but the pastor will preach at both Sunday services and it is his request that every member of the church be in these services.
