ALLRED THIRD GOVERNOR TO WIN IN THE FIRST DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

DALLAS, Tex., July 27.—Gov. James V. Allred held a lead of 35,333 votes over his opponents in the first democratic primary Saturday in the Texas Election Bureau tabulation made at 1:30 p. m. Monday of 889,135 votes from 248 counties, 131 complete.

For State Railroad Commissioner, E. O. Thompson, commission chairman, still lacked 15,562 votes of having a majority over his four opponents. The race was closest between Carl Hardin of Stephenville, with 136,428 and Frank Morris, of Dallas, with 136,585 for second place.

DALLAS, July 27.—Youthful James V. Allred, the third Texas governor to gain such a victory since the double primary was adopted in 1918, apparently held the Democratic renomination today, without necessity of a runoff.

The governor, who described the result of Saturday's Democratic primary as "too good to be true," held a lead of more than 33,000 votes over his four opponents. Texas Election Bureau accounted for 877,746 votes out of a possible 1,000,000.

On the basis of previous elections the bureau's predicted the remaining uncounted votes would not upset Allred's lead and force a runoff with Tom Hunter, his closest foe.

Pat N. Neff won a similar victory in 1922 against three opponents and Dan Moody repeated the feat in 1928 with three opponents. The same tabulation revealed that Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, lacked 15,524 votes of a majority over his four opponents and likely would go into a runoff August 22 with either Carl Hardin of Stephenville or Farnak Morris of Dallas. Thompson had 378,834 votes, compared to 135,170 for Morris and 134,700 for Hardin.

Because of the close vote the Election Bureau expected to continue tabulating until the 100,000 votes estimated to be outstanding have been counted.

U. S. Senator Morris Sheppard also conquered a field of five opponents without the necessity of a runoff, amassing a total of 478,523 votes.

Congressman Sam Rayburn of Bonham apparently won renomination without a runoff.

Rep. Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene, who has represented the 17th district for 18 years, apparently faced a runoff against County Judge Clyde Garrett of Eastland, as returns from all 12 counties of the district showed Garrett with 22,453 votes and Blanton 17,975. Fred O. Jaye of DeLeon, third man in the race, had only 6,402. Five of the counties reporting were complete.

Congressman Maury Maverick of San Antonio faced a runoff with Lamar Seeligson.

State Comptroller George J. H. Sheppard had a clear majority with 430,147 votes compared to 153,773 for S. H. Terrell of Waco, and 81,632 for Walter Covington of Austin.

William H. McDonald, former district clerk at Eastland, defeated John H. Hawkins, chief clerk in the land office, for land commissioner, with 408,676 votes compared to 309,851 for Hawkins.

A runoff was in prospect between J. E. McDonald, whose total was 250,211, and George B. Terrell of Alto, who lead with 281,164 votes for agricultural commissioner. Cliff Day had 104,813 and Kal Segrist of Dallas 88,700.

L. A. Woods, superintendent of public instruction, won renomination easily.

Congressmen renominated without a runoff included George Mahon of the 19th district and Chas. L. South of Coleman, 21st district.

Rep. Fritz Lanham of Fort Worth faced a runoff in the 12th district against Julien C. Hyer of Fort Worth. Lanham had 9,889 votes compared to 7,288 for Hyer.

Digging's Tough for Mrs. Landon

The good earth, baked by drouth weather, was obstinate when Mrs. Alf M. Landon tried to break ground for the new Delta Gamma sorority house at Washburn College, Topeka. But the governor's wife, former president of the chapter, was equally stubborn. Shoving her fragile slipper against the spade, she finally turned the earth, then said, "That's the hardest dirt I've ever seen."

Cowboy Returns From Donkey Trip To Philadelphia

HOUSTON, Tex.—Col. A. L. (Yelping) Yowell, broke but purposeful cowboy straddled a donkey some three months ago in Dallas and rode to the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia.

The 2,000-mile trip took 90 days of Yowell's time, but the cowboy and "General Democracy" the burro had plenty of it to spare. And the Texan had $10 when he arrived in the convention city.

To top off the adventure, Yowell got a free ride home for both himself and the "General."

On the eastern trip, the burro jogged along at a 20-mile-a-day clip. The travelers stopped overnight in towns enroute, where the Colonel sold photographs of himself and the donkey.

"We got a just fine going up," Yowell said. "Everybody treated us just fine. We made night personal appearances at theaters and stopped at the best hotels along the route."

After the Democratic convention, Yowell stored the burro and visited New York City, where he met Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight boxing champion.

"When I was ready to come back, the trip looked mighty long," Yowell grinned. "I inquired about train rates back for us, but they were too high. I thought about the boats, but always before I have been afraid of them."

"Finally I went to a steamship company's office. They told me the rate, and it was more than I had. The man in charge asked me who I was, and I told him."

"Why, that's all right," he said, "We will carry you both free."

A few days later, Yowell and "General Democracy" arrived from Philadelphia aboard the freighter Wichita Falls.

The cowboy insisted the decision not to ride the burro from Philadelphia was in "fairness" to the animal.

Yowell climbed astride the burro when the vessel docked here and rode to the home of his son, A. K. Yowell, to rest for a few days.

The voyager said he would leave Dallas soon to visit the Texas Centennial Exposition. The trip will be made in his son's automobile, with "General Democracy" on a trailer.

Poultry and Egg Shipments Reach Seasonal Lows

AUSTIN, Tex.—Shipments of poultry and eggs from Texas to interstate points are approaching their seasonal low, it was pointed out in the latest report on this trade of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. During June 76 cars were shipped out of the State, against 74 during the corresponding month last year. Of these shipments 32 cars were poultry, and 44 eggs. In the current year, and 42 cars were poultry and 32 eggs a year ago.

Receipts from other states in June, 736 (74.6 per cent) re-June totaled 17 cars, of which 14 (port) declined; and 27 (2.8 per cent) had less than one per cent change in sales volume.

GARRETT HOLDS LEAD IN RACE FOR CONGRESS

County Judge Clyde L. Garrett's lead in the 17th district was maintained by Monday morning reports.

Incomplete reports from counties comprising the district showed Judge Garrett polled 23,864 votes, Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene 19,103 votes and Fred O. Jays of De Leon, running on a Townsend platform, 6,792 votes.

June Shipments Of Livestock Are Slightly Lower

AUSTIN, Tex.—Total shipments of Texas live stock to Fort Worth stockyards and interstate points declined during June in comparison with the like month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. The drop in forwardings was restricted to cattle and sheep, while hog shipments almost trebled. It was stated.

Reports from about 1,500 Texas shipping stations show total forwardings of 4,280 cars, against 4,501 cars in June last year, a decline of 5 per cent, the Bureau's report said. Cattle alone totaled 2,707 cars, a decline of 16 per cent from a year ago; and sheep 493 cars, a drop of nearly 16 per cent. Hog shipments during the month were 200 per cent greater than a year ago, and prices showed an upward tendency throughout the month which has continued into July.

"This falling off in shipments of Texas cattle is in marked contrast to the sharp increase in cattle marketings in the country at large," it was pointed out. "According to the Federal Department of Agriculture, receipts of cattle in seven leading markets were 44 per cent larger than in June, 1935, and 13 per cent larger than the five year average. Inspected slaughter was greater than for any previous June on record."

"These huge receipts, largely of distressed animals from drouth stricken regions, depressed prices sharply. Fortunately for Texas cattlemen, range and feed conditions in this State are such that live stock need not be dumped on the market under present depressed price conditions. There is every indication that cattle prices will strengthen materially when the forced selling now under way is completed."

Business In June Is Well Above That of June 1935

Retail sales in the Gulf Southwest as reflected by reports from 987 independent stores in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, reporting to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce in cooperation with the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas, according to preliminary estimates, increased 29.5 per cent in dollar volume for June, 1936, as compared with June, 1935. This report which covers the larger independent stores represents 22 kinds of business, 9 of which, due to an insufficient number of reports, are included in miscellaneous or group totals.

The greatest increase was shown for Texas where reported sales for 730 stores were 30 per cent above June a year ago. The sales of 203 Oklahoma merchants showed a 24 per cent increase and 54 in New Mexico recorded a gain of about 28 per cent.

When adjusted for the number of working days, June sales for the three states showed a decrease of about 1 per cent from May, 1936. There was one more working day in June than in May. Without adjustment either for the number of working days or for seasonal influences, June sales were 3 per cent greater.

All of the kinds of business represented registered gains from last year. The greatest increases were shown by lumber and building materials dealers, with a 63 per cent gain, and furniture stores, with about 53 per cent increase in sales over June a year ago. Of the 987 firms reporting for June, 736 (74.6 per cent) reported declines; and 27 (2.8 per cent) had less than one per cent change in sales volume.

It was estimated that so far there have been more than 19,000 casualties throughout Spain, including 3,000 in Barcelona and more than 1,000 here.

Britain May Discover That It Pays To Pay

It may seem all right to run out on your debts if you are neevr going to need any more favors from your creditor. But if you find yourself getting into a spot where the fellow you owe is the only man in the world who can help you, your wisest course is to lay a little something on the line for him with all speed, so he will permit you to run up another bill.

A realization of this simple truth seems to be dawning on some of the leaders of thought in Great Britain. The result is that the American war debt, dead as the dodo all these years, is in a fair way to be revived and paid, at least in part.

The reason for this surprising change is not a pricking of Britain's commercial conscience, but a bad case of fright.

The European situation is full of terrors. Britain recently found, to her humiliation, that the lesser breeds without the law just aren't afraid of her any more. A desperate flurry of rearmament is taking place as a result.

J. L. Garvin, editor of the London Observer, and England's most respected and influential publicist, announced the other day that England's only hope is to haul the American debt out of the bag and settle it. His argument is worth looking at.

He begins by pointing out that England must rearm swiftly and extensively. Her very existence depends on it. Army, navy, and air force need vast expansion and they need it at once. England, however, is short of skilled labor in some trades, and even shorter of certain specialized kinds of machinery. The necessary rebuilding cannot be done at home within the time available.

So says Mr. Garvin—settle the debt, and do it at once, so that America's vast manufacturing resources can be tapped. During the war, American munitions were indispensable to British success; they are no less indispensable today. Get the debt paid, and they would become available.

"The United States, whose potentiality of aircraft production is equal to that of all the rest of the world put together, could supply us with a thousand first-line planes, or more," says Mr. Garvin, "with light auxiliary vessels and their armament as required by the navy under the new conditions; with much of the equipment for the regular army and the territorials; with the gauges and machine tools which home industry alone cannot supply in sufficient quantity at the necessary speed."

England made one miscalculation about that debt. She assumed that the world was going to remain at peace and that John Bull would need no more help from Uncle Sam—in which case, of course, gypping Uncle Sam would be just a pleasant little game.

It hasn't worked out that way. So we may yet see that debt settled—Mr. Garvin has an uncanny way of forecasting British policy—and find ourselves, too, once more tied by strong commercial ties to the fortunes of the British empire.

Sound Trucks Dot Arkansas Front As Primary Is Near

BY LOUIS MILLINER

United Press Staff Correspondent
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 27, (UP) — Sound trucks echo over Arkansas today as nine men battle for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Approximately 1,500 speeches will have been made through the mobile amplifiers before the Democratic primary Aug. 11. Nearly all contenders for state and national offices are using one or two trucks to carry their names, platforms and promises before voters. Three of the state's highest officials, Lieut. Gov. Lee Cazort, Attorney General Carl E. Bailey and Secretary of State Ed F. Mc-Donald, seek to succeed Gov. J. M. Futrell who is retiring after serving two terms. An attempt to draft him for another term was unsuccessful.

Other gubernatorial contenders include State Sen. John C. Ashley, State Sen. Arthur Johnson, Judge R. A. Cook, Judge Marcus Bone, former Gov. Tom J. Terral, and former Comptroller Howard Reed. Denman Opposes Robinson
Sen. Joseph T. Robinson faces a stiff fight for renomination in the candidacy of W. F. Denman, former law partner of the late Senator Huey P. Long.

Robinson, who received strong endorsement from President Roosevelt here last month, says he expects to win by a "very large majority" over his combined opposition, which also includes J. Rosner Venable, Little Rock attorney, and Cleveland Holland, Fort Smith attorney.

The large number of entrants in the governor's race has resulted in a campaign of issues — mostly minor ones—rather than a battle of personalities. A majority of platforms have planks calling for "lower taxes, better government and open schools."

Tax Amendment Considered

Most candidates favor the administration - supported Nyberg constitutional amendment to be voted on in November. The proposal, suggested by State Rep. Leo Nyberg, if adopted, would prevent the General Assembly from levying new taxes except with the permission of the electorate. Governor Futrell has been stumping the state in behalf of the amendment.

As the Democrats choose Arkansas' state and national officials, Republicans will go to the polls to ratify a full slate selected by the Republican state central committee to provide formal opposition. Osro Cobb, Little Rock attorney, is the G.O.P. choice for governor, while G. C. Ledbetter, Hamburg attorney, will seek Robinson's Senate post.

VASE THROWER IS DISILLUSIONED

STUTTGART, Ark. — Jeanne McCluskey disagrees with movies showing vases breaking over people's heads. She entered her home by herself one night, found a burglar, and "threw one of mother's prize vases at him," as she fled. Next morning her parents returned home and found the vase unbroken.

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

St. Pantaleon was physician to the Emperor Galerius Maximianus and a Christian, but, deceived by often hearing the false maxims of the world applauded, was unhappily seduced into an apostasy. Through the efforts of a zealous Christian called Hermolaus, his conscience was awakened to a sense of his guilt, and once more he was brought back into the folds of the Church. The penitent ardently wished to expiate his crime by martyrdom; and to prepare himself for this, he distributed all of his possessions to the poor when the persecution of Diocletian broke out in Nicomedia in 303. Not long after this he was apprehended, and after suffering many tortures, finally was condemned to lose his head. His relics were taken to Constantinople, and kept there with great honor.

So Much for Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HELENA DERRICK, youthful head of the women's sports department of Helvig's store, goes on a week-end party at Crest Mountain Lodge. There she meets handsome PETER HENDERSON. It is a case of love at first sight between them. Peter asks Helena to marry him, and the ceremony takes place.

Later the crowd goes swimming. Peter makes a reckless dive and is seriously injured. Lingered between life and death, he asks Helena to summon him. A year later, Helena learns that she is sole heir to a large fortune, including the Henderson department store. She meets beautiful LEAH FRAZIER who had expected to marry Peter and realizes Leah is an enemy. Peter's uncle, Roger Barnes, manager of the store, is also hostile.

Helena decides to take over management of the store. JOHN LASSITER, banker, and Courtney are her allies. Leah Frazier tells Helena that unless she leaves town Leah and her friends will boycott the store.

This makes Helena more determined to win her fight. HARVEY JAMESON, in charge of the hardware department, agrees with Helena that the employees are with her. John Lassiter invites Helena to attend the Sunshine Club ball.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER X

AS John Lassiter had insisted, the annual Sunshine Club ball was the biggest party of the year. The whole town took part, but the whole was staged by what were known as "the older families"—ably and excitedly assisted by a goodly number of families who hoped one day to be included in that category.

Helena had promised John Lassiter that she would go to the dance with him, but as the date drew near she began to wonder as to the advisability of it. "I notice that Leah Frazier and her mother are patronesses," she told Lassiter. "Don't you think it would be better if I stayed away?" Lassiter frowned. "I honestly believe that the Fraziers and their friends have been able to impress you with their importance." He put his hands on her shoulders and turned her around to face him. "Look here . . . for a whole month I've been planning on having with me the belle of the ball. I won't be cheated out of the triumph!"

At last he persuaded her. In her little apartment Helena dressed for the party in one of the simplest evening dresses she had been able to find at Henderson's. She discovered that she was looking forward to the Sunshine Club affair.

The dance was to be held on a huge open-air platform built especially for the occasion. When Lassiter and Helena parked near the pavilion she heard the rhythmic strains of a popular tune drifting down to them. Beyond the car, countless lanterns flickered through the trees. The two sat there a moment, not moving, not thinking of leaving the car. Softly Helena began to hum. "You're more beautiful than usual tonight, Helena," Lassiter said softly.

She smiled up at him imperiously. "It's the summer night haze," she told him. "Affects the vision. . . . Shall we start?"

The pavilion was well covered with dancers, most of them young, all of them enjoying themselves immensely. Beyond them, almost at once, Helena saw a row of older men and women seated in wicker chairs along the edge of the platform. Mrs. Frazier was there, splendid-looking in a white gown and a short black fur evening coat.

"Annoy" asked John Lassiter, and Helena drifted off in his arms. They danced well together. Too well to spoil it with conversation. They had danced three times through before Helena encountered the suddenly resentful eyes of Leah Frazier.

The Frazier girl was in white, like her mother, but her gown was daring. In her faultless hair she wore a tiny gardenia. "She's truly beautiful," Helena thought. She saw Leah's arm drop from her partner's shoulder, saw her gather up the folds of the white skirt and leave the dance floor.

WHAT happened then, Helena would never forget as long as she lived. Leah spoke briefly to her mother. To Helena it seemed as if there was an almost instant exodus from that row of wicker chairs.

"I—I'll have to leave," Helena whispered to Lassiter. She felt that every pair of eyes there must be on her. Lassiter did not see what was wrong at once. Then, at the far end of the pavilion, he glimpsed the Fraziers and their friends leaving.

"I'll meet you at the car," Helena said quickly. "You—you can tell them that I'm leaving. . . that I won't spoil their party." Lassiter held to her wrist. "Helena, you can't—"

"Please let me go! People are staring at us. . . ." She wrenched her hand free, hurried from the dance floor. Blindly she stumbled through the darkness to Lassiter's car.

A moment later he joined her. "Forgive me," he said. "Of course you wouldn't want to stay, under the circumstances." His face was white with rage. "Damn them," he said slowly and evenly.

Helena put her hand on his arm. "You mustn't be angry with them," she told him. "You mustn't get mixed up in this. You're in the bank. You've got to do business in this town." Lassiter turned to her, took both her hands in his. "I never dreamed they'd do such a thing, Helena. I'd never have brought you if I—"

"Of course not, John. I know that."

Wordless then, he drove her through the quiet town and back to her apartment. There he said, "You don't feel like talking tonight. But I've something more to say, Helena. Won't you have dinner with me tomorrow night? We'll go to some quiet place."

"All right. . . ." She faced him, tried to smile. "It was nice of you tonight to . . . to try."

NEXT morning, in Courtney's office, she told the lawyer: "All I want is to make a success of the store."

"You're doing that," the attorney told her enthusiastically. "Your credit policy hasn't hurt business, and it's brought in payments we never believed we'd get. And the bonus system for employees is working out fine."

When Helena reached her office the telephone was ringing insistently. Taking it up, she heard Lassiter's voice. "Helena, I'm darned sorry, but I simply can't make it for dinner tonight."

"Why, that's all right," she told him.

His answering laugh was weak. "I—I want to tell you where I'm going," he said. "You might hear of it and misunderstand. I have to go to the Fraziers for dinner. You see the last time they asked me I had something to interfere. I simply didn't dare turn them down this time."

"No. . . ." agreed Helena dully. "No, you couldn't do that. Not after last night."

"Helena! Last night has nothing to do with it. You do understand how it is, don't you?" She told him that she did, and Lassiter promised to telephone again soon. But at 6, long after the store was quiet, Helena broke. Her head in her arms upon the desk, she burst into tears.

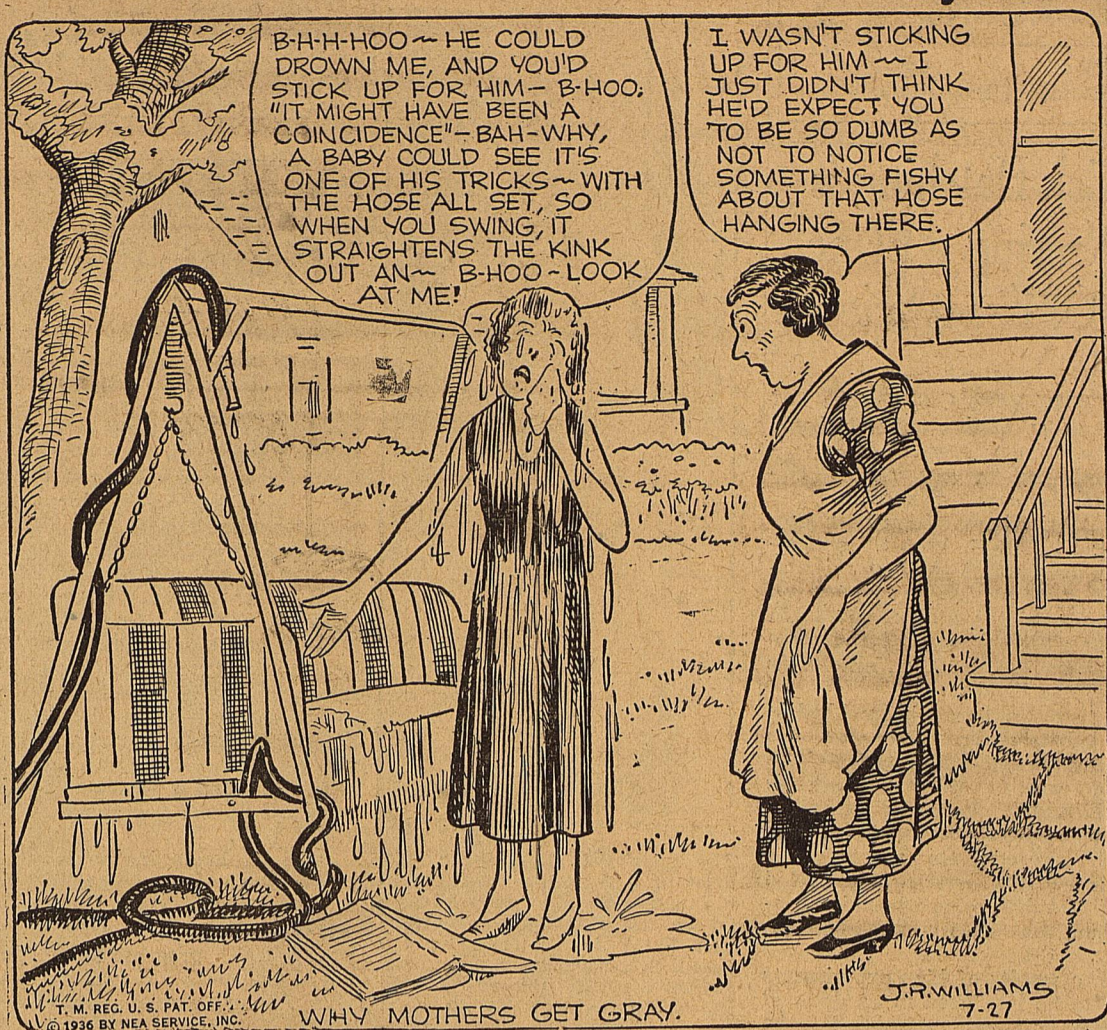

Finally the tears stopped, but she did not raise her head. She felt too weary, too utterly alone to open her eyes upon the world. . . . There was a tentative rap at the door, and through the frosted glass she saw the outline of a man. Hurriedly she powdered, tried to rearrange her hair. Then, "Come in," she called.

Harvey Jameson stood in the doorway. "I noticed the light," he said, "and I thought maybe I could persuade you to knock off and see a movie with me. If you haven't eaten, we can grab a bite on the way." Having spoken, he seemed afraid that he might have presumed too much.

Helena slammed shut the drawer of her desk, faced that friendly smile. "I'd like to!" she said.

Sanctions Against Satan Face League In Strange Mandate Case

By United Press

CANBERRA.—The League of Nations, which failed completely in its application of sanctions against Italy, soon will be called upon to pass on the application of sanctions against Satan.

The case has been submitted to the League Council and the League's Mandate Commission by the commonwealth government, which exercises a League mandate over New Guinea.

According to the report, Australia was obliged to send an official investigator to look into a strange case of Satanism that created a difficult situation on the mandated territory. At the village of Bunki, New Guinea, about a year ago, a native named Marafi spread the rumor among all villagers and the surrounding population that Satan had visited him and given him supernatural powers.

He insisted that Satan had taken him into the earth, where the dead told him that Satan would not allow them to return to earth until he, Marafi, had induced the villagers to believe that Satan was the supreme being.

Marafi, according to the official report to the League, put his alleged supernatural satanic powers to rofit, by insisting that natives of all the surrounding villages make presents to him. He held seances on dark nights, and boasted he could fly like a bird. He collected tributes in many villages. As a result of Marafi's evil influence on the villagers, food gardens were neglected and communities suffered. Then, Australia, as the mandatory power under the control of the League, was obliged to send district officers, who applied local sanctions by placing Marafi and other offenders who had helped him under arrest, and then by taking the case into court which finally permitted re-establishment of order and prosperity in Bunki and surrounding villages.

Under the procedure of the League, which was charged under the Versailles Treaty with administration of mandates over uncivilized inhabitants in such a manner that the inhabitants eventually might become civilized and capable of self-government, the report first will be passed upon by the League's Mandate Commission.

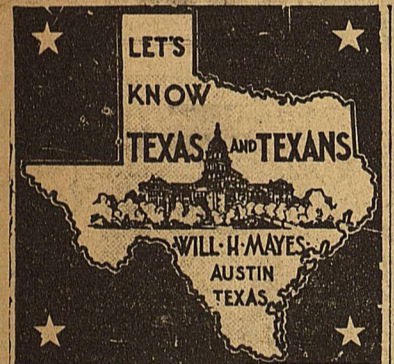

If the latter decides that the sanctions employed by Australia as the mandatory power to put an end to the Satanic disorders of New Guinea were justified, the re-

Rains Expected To Put An End To Dust Bowl Storms

By United Press

AMARILLO, Tex.—Dust storms like those which plagued the Texas Panhandle in 1935, have "family" tendencies and are not likely to continue indefinitely, government weather experts believe.

Forty years ago the Great Plain was a swirling "dust bowl," said J. B. Kincer, chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau's climate and crop division, in a recent report. His report indicated that the dry period, which originated in 1930 and reached a climax last year, will be followed by a period of "comparatively heavy rain fall."

Records show that three nationwide droughts have occurred in the last 70 years. First "family" of droughts was in 1885-95, which was followed by abundant rains. In 1901, a two-year drought began. Since then, normal or near normal rainfall has been recorded in most places.

"While a study of weather records has not disclosed a law to justify a forecast of future droughts, it does give a historical background which warns that droughts in the future may be expected," Kincer reported. "Records show that droughts of 40 years ago prevailed over the 'dust bowl'."

No permanent change in climate is expected, he said, but the country is passing through one of its long dry cycles.

Chick Hatching Is Nearing a Plane Of Exact Science

WASHINGTON.—Savings of millions of dollars annually will accrue to poultrymen if experimental work by government scientists develops as expected.

The experiments have been conducted by H. G. Barott, agricultural department poultry technologist, over a period of 15 years and are said to have resulted in finding the optimum of favorable conditions under which eggs should be hatched.

For years, Barott has worked in his extensive laboratory at the Beltsville, Md., experimental farm with "calorimeters" in which he could measure exact air conditions—the amount of humidity, gaseous air contents and temperatures—so that over a long period he could determine what air conditions were best suited to hatching.

The results of his experiments are to be published in a detailed technical report, scheduled to be off the presses in about two months.

Roughly, however, his experiments have shown that the ideal hatching conditions are: Temperature, 100 degrees; humidity, 60 per cent; and gaseous makeup of the surrounding air, one-half of one per cent carbon dioxide and 21 per cent oxygen.

Barott experimented with temperatures ranging all the way from 90 degrees to well above 100 degrees; with humidity ranging from 8 to 87 per cent; and with gaseous makeups ranging from less than one-half of one per cent carbon dioxide and 15 per cent oxygen to 10 per cent carbon dioxide and 50 per cent oxygen.

He worked with 1090 eggs for each of his experiments. Highest percentage of chicks he obtained from a single group was 95, but this was exceptional. He considered 80 chicks out of 100 eggs good, and thought such a percentage would justify his long years of work.

has been developed by Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Tucker, of Long Beach, at their mountain retreat near here.

The task began nine years ago when the Tuckers found three pairs of humming birds in their canyon.

By tying red ribbons around the stalks of flowers and then arranging to keep the latter filled with a syrup of sugar and water, Mr. Tucker steadily increased the patronage of the hummers. In one summer alone he used half a ton of sugar for this mixture.

Dental Health Program Planned

AUSTIN, Tex.—Mouth care is an integral part of the nation wide public health program and the dentists of America are keenly aware that strong teeth of the citizens of tomorrow are dependent upon health education of today, Dr. Edward Taylor, director of the dental health division of the State Department of Health said recently upon his return from San Francisco where he was among ten thousand dentists from "Canada, Mexico, and the United States attending the annual meeting of the American Dental Association.

Dr. Taylor heads a division of the Texas Health Department that was established in March and he has formulated a program to be launched at the beginning of the school year.

"We are beginning our work in Texas at an opportune time," Dr. Taylor said, "for there is universal recognition just now that no public health program is well balanced that does not include dentistry. Strong emphasis was placed by the association president, Dr. George W. Winters, on dental education in his address and it was urged that more attention be paid to dentistry for children, a field which has been neglected in the past."

Plans for a dental health program in Texas contemplate work in the public schools and free examination of the mouths of school children.

"It will be our aim," Dr. Taylor said, "to give every school child in Texas a reasonable knowledge of the part a healthy mouth plays in the growth, advancement, and general health of the individual. We will encourage early correction of whatever mouth defects

Rains Reduce the Value of Crops In Gonzales County

GONZALES, Tex.—Gonzales county crops are only 60 per cent of normal because of recent rains and damaging floods, according to county agent J. L. Moore. Range conditions, however, are 100 per cent normal, he said.

Rains caused cotton to shed badly, but at the same time put grazing lands in first class condition. The crops most affected are cotton and corn. He said conditions were made favorable for boll weevils and leaf worms.

"Cotton is three weeks late and good cotton is spotted due to early flea damage and later to excessive moisture," Moore said. "Corn is good on upland farms, but approximately 15,000 acres was destroyed by the recent overflow."

He added that more than 35,000 acres of cotton was damaged by recent high water. Precipitation for the first 19 days of July totaled 19.71 inches.

"There is plenty of moisture for planting late feed crops," he said, "and many farmers are doing this on land where their corn and cotton crops were destroyed by the flood."

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

"The white flags mark the sailing course . . . and those two little poles over there? They mean good fishing.

"Probably somebody fished and fished all over the lake with no luck at all until he hit that spot. Maybe he got several good strikes just about there. Must have calculated in his mind just where the spot was and, next time he came out, brought those poles with him and drove them down, so he'd have something to tie his boat to."

Advertisements mean to an experienced shopper exactly what those two poles mean to an experienced fisherman—"good fishing." Advertisements are markers of the best buys—they save "fishing all over the lake."
