Retail sales of 730 independent stores in Texas reporting to the Department of Commerce in cooperation with the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas, showed an increase of 30 per cent in dollar volume for June of 1936 as compared with the same month for 1935, according to preliminary estimates. This report, which covers the larger independent stores, represents 21 kinds of business, 8 of which, due to an insufficient number of reports, are contained in miscellaneous or in group totals.

Without adjustment either for the number of working days or for seasonal influences, June sales were about 2 per cent higher than in May.

All of the kinds of business represented except grocery stores not handling meats, which recorded practically no change, showed increases for June of this year over June a year ago. The greatest gains were those of 69 per cent shown by lumber and building materials dealers, 60 per cent by furniture stores, and 50 per cent by the total furniture and household appliance group.

Between May and June of this year women's specialty shop sales dropped about 11 per cent, total grocery sales declined 4.5 per cent, department store sales declined about 4 per cent, and family clothing store sales declined 3 per cent. The rest of the lines recorded increases, the greatest gain being registered by filling stations, whose June sales were 20 per cent higher than in May.

Of the firms reporting for June, 550 or 75.4 per cent reported increases over June 1935; 160, 21.9 per cent, showed declines, and 20, 2.7 per cent registered a change of less than 1 per cent.

Why War, When There's Work To Be Done?

One of the most revealing sidelights on the civil war in Spain was dug up by an American newspaper correspondent...

The peasant said bluntly that he was on neither side. He only hoped that both sides would get the fighting over with and go home so that he could go ahead with his job...

This peasant probably was a woefully undereducated person with no understanding of the great issues of the day and whichever dictatorship finally succeeds in fastening itself on Spain probably will shoot him one of these days...

He has had brothers on every battlefield in all history and they all got the worst of it when the drums began to beat. The stolid Belgian who farmed La Have Sainte on the plain by Waterloo...

And although it may be heresy to suggest it, these people are probably quite right.

Human civilization is a strange growth, and we do not entirely understand how it got started or how it does manage, in spite of obstacles, to keep progressing...

Civilization, that is, does not rest on a base of armies and navies; it rests on the backs of the men who work with their hands, in field or in shop...

They move without glory and without battle flags, poets do not immortalize them and the history books omit their names. But for unnumbered generations they have one on, tempering the earth to man's habitation...

The far-called armies melt away, and the winds carry off the crash of their battles. The plain man at the bottom is eternal, and he has the world and all its hopes in his keeping.

And if, with all of this, he wearily asks the fighting men to get the heck out of the way so that he can go on with his job—is he asking too much?

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

The Transfiguration of Our Lord: Our Divine Savior, about a year before his death, being in Galilee at the time, took with Him St. Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, Sts. James and John and retired with them to a mountain. Tradition assures us that this was Mount Thabor, which is exceedingly high and beautiful, and at the time of Christ was covered with trees and shrubs, and was very fruitful.

bles speaking to their Master. The three apostles were delighted and frightened by this glorious vision, and St. Peter cried out to Christ, "Lord, it is good for us to be here. Let us make three tabernacles: one for Thee, one for Moses, and one for Elias." Whilst St. Peter was speaking there came of a sudden, a bright shining cloud from Heaven, an emblem of the presence of God's majesty and glory, and from out of this cloud a voice was heard to say, "This is my beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased; hear ye Him." The apostles, upon hearing this voice, were seized with a sudden fear, and fell upon the ground; but Jesus, going to them, touched them and bade them to arise. They immediately did so, and saw only Jesus standing in his ordinary state. This vision happened at night, we are told, and the following morning as they went down the mountain, Jesus bade them not to tell anyone what they had seen till He should be risen from the dead.

A large crowd of sorrowing friends and relatives gathered at the cemetery at Lingleville Wednesday afternoon to pay their last tributes of love and respect to the memory of Franklin Davis Hogg, who had passed away on July 25, 1936, at his home just north of Desdemona. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Jim Bays, pastor of the Baptist church, of which the deceased had been a member since 1881. Beautiful and numerous floral offerings covered the grave. The following is a brief sketch of this pioneer:—Franklin Davis Hogg was born July 11, 1861, near Sumnerville, Georgia, married Miss Carlita Waters July 27th, 1879. They came to Texas in 1883, settling near Lingleville, and in 1908 moved to Eastland county a few miles north of Desdemona to a large farm that he bought. In the fall of 1919 he moved to Dawson county, living near Lamesa, and stayed for nine years, coming back to his home in 1928. One of his sons, Wilmer Hogg, had stayed at the home place and he and his wife cared for his father, who was feeble for a long time before his death. The widow who gets about in a wheeled chair, will continue to live there with Wilmer and his wife. There were 11 children born to Mr. and Mrs. Hogg, one son dying in infancy and one daughter, Mrs. Ola Deatheridge dying at the age of 52 years. The 9 children who survive their father are John Hogg, Noah Hogg, Dewey Hogg, and Mrs. Cordie Shipman, all of Lamesa, Mrs. Mary Etta Cheek, of Winters, Mrs. Myrtle Rogers, Elida New Mexico, Mrs. Loetha King, west of Desdemona, Clyde Hogg and Wilmer Hogg, north of Desdemona. To all of the sorrowing relatives sincere sympathy is extended on account of the death of this pioneer settler who died as he had lived, a true Christian member of the Baptist church.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 Miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

PHYSICIAN WARNS DANGERS LIE IN TACTLESS SICK ROOM VISITS AND JOKES TO CHEER PATIENTS

CHICAGO — Hearty visitors who enter the sickroom with booming, well-intentioned references to the morgue or operating room actually may become a contributing factor to a patient's death, according to Dr. George B. Lake, editor of Clinical Medicine and Surgery.

"Few people except experienced physicians know how to talk to an acutely sick man," he said, writing in the Radiologic Review. "Lugubrious anecdotes all too frequently contribute to an unfavorable outcome."

The patient who worries, or is afraid, always has an uphill fight to recovery, the physician said.

"This fear or worry need not be with regard to physical condition. A man may be distressed because he is not carrying enough life insurance; because his rent is overdue.

"A woman may be violently perturbed because she has discovered a few gray hairs or 'crow's feet'; because she fears she is losing her husband's love. Both men and women have died because they feared the loss of friends or social position or had a feeling of remorse for past mistakes.

Such fears and worries, he said, "are not immaterial and foolish and they deserve the earnest attention and study of the physicians who aspire to achieve high and lasting success."

Deeply hidden mental or physical reactions frequently result from acts which the individual recognizes as opposed to his own or the community's code of morals, the physician said.

Emotional instability caused by faulty heredity or dysgenic matings often is an important factor in causing and perpetuating distressing symptoms, Dr. Lake said.

Most of these persons, he said, are "chronics" who for years have been going from one physician to another with but little relief. Some have been inadequately prescribed for, others have been dismissed brusquely and told nothing was wrong.

"In the latter case it is unscientific and untrue to declare that nothing ails the patient. If he were not ill he would not have sought medical advice. His psyche is as much a part of his organism as is his thorax or abdomen and, until it has been painstakingly examined, the study of the case is incomplete," the physician said.

Fears Must Be Minimized
The emotionally unstable person frequently finds himself unable or unwilling to face the true cause of his distress, he said. The man who "cannot tell a lie" has no place in the medical profession, according to Dr. Lake. "Many a man has recovered from pneumonia or gastric ulcer, because his medical attendant had the good sense to assure him that he suffered from bronchitis or gastritis, when a knowledge of the true nature of his disease would have excited so strong a fear as to break down his powers of resistance."

Dr. Lake said such treatment was not to be taken as a general recommendation. Patients, he said, should be individualized.

Bishop Is Enthroned At a Beauty Shop

LONDON — When Dr. Neville Lovett was enthroned Bishop of Salisbury he donned his robes in a beauty parlor.

In doing this, he conformed to ancient tradition. In 1220, Bishop Poore, the first bishop of New Sarum, assumed his vestments on this spot, the site of which is now occupied by a woman's hairdressing shop.

Business was suspended at the shop while Dr. Lovett donned his robes before the ceremony.

Blind People of Texas Will Be Able to Hear Novels By New State Library System

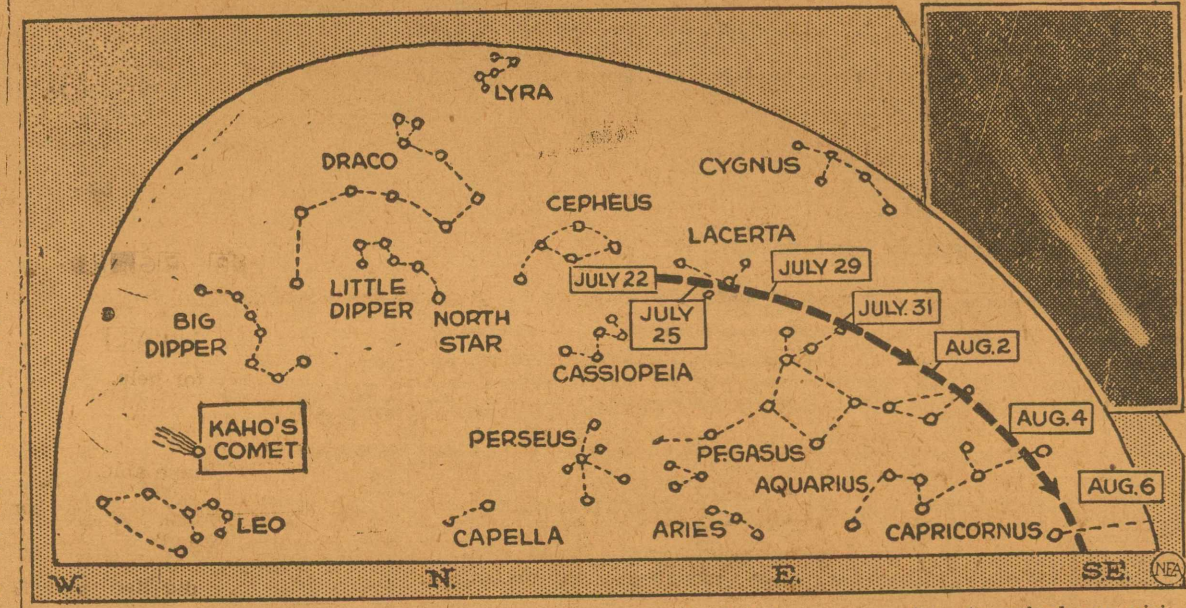

AUSTIN—Life will be happier for many blind people of Texas through the benefaction of Mrs. Edith Sweeney Giles of Houston. She has donated the transportation that will bring 233 talking book machines to the state to be added to 50 now served from the state library.

Miss Hazel M. Beckham, Tyler, secretary of the state commission for the blind, and Miss Adele Mitchell, who keeps the books circulating, are both enthusiastic about them. The machines look like a combination of a radio and the old-fashioned talking machine that preceded radio. The "books" are plate-like records like those that ground out "Dardanella" or "Wind That Blew My Gal Away."

They differ from the old phonograph records, being timed to a reading cadence. They are labeled with letters on one side and in Braille on the other, so they can be picked out by blind people. Lloyd C. Douglas' novel, "Magnificent Obsession" is the book most in demand at this time among blind readers. Miss Mitchell does not attribute the demand to its story of regained eyesight as there is similar demand in other type libraries. Fiction is more in demand than travel, biography, science, poetry or classics. The Bible records circulate rapidly but the demand for them does not equal the call for fiction. Blind Milton's "L'Allegro" and "Il Penseroso" are available but not his sonnet on his blindness.

Tragically, Humphrey Cobb's "Paths of Glory" was sent to a client who had been blinded in the war. "Please send me no more books about the war," he requested of Miss Mitchell. "I am trying to forget it. One blind reader is especially fond of Shakespeare. He has read all the plays of which records are available and asks for others. Because the records have been vocalized by readers who understand the passages thoroughly the blind reader frequently gets more out of his reading than the sight reader. This is true particularly of the clients who "read" Shakespeare or Browning. The records are speeded at ordinary reading tempo. The hearer, however, can hasten or retard the records, just as was possible with phonograph records. Ten to twelve records are required to complete an ordinary length modern novel. "Magnificent Obsession" required 14 records. "Jane Eyre," a typical old-length novel, required 34. Wilkie Collins' "Woman in White" is on 26 records. All the records necessary to complete the hearing of a novel are sent out together. The blind

How to Locate Two Comets Flashing Through Sky

Everybody's looking up these nights in search of two comets that have come close to naked eye visibility. One is Kaho's comet, discovered recently by a Japanese astronomer of that name. The other is Peltier's comet, located last May 15 by a young Ohio star-gazer. If you have sharp eyes, you can see Peltier's comet as it rushes through the eastern sky along the path shown on the star map above. Peltier's comet as it rushes through the eastern sky along the path shown on the star map above. Dates on the path give positions where the comet may be found at these times. It will be brightest and nearest the earth (close to 16 million miles) on Aug. 4. Nothing yet is known about Kaho's comet, but it can be seen, with the aid of field glasses or a small telescope, low in the western sky, just below the Big Dipper. This map is distorted slightly to include the sky area in which both comets appear. Hold the map before you, facing north, then turn toward the west for Kaho's comet and east and southeast for Peltier's comet. Picture at upper right is that of another comet, Morehouse's, taken through the powerful telescope at Yerkes Observatory.

Trade Is Stifled Between the U. S. And Australians

CANBERRA. — By adopting a drastic import licensing system, the Australian government has taken steps to offset its unfavorable trade balance with the United States, which since 1929 has varied from $35,000,000 to $125,000,000 annually.

While the new system will be extremely detrimental to American export trade, government officials declare Australia had no other alternative, because the United States did not negotiate a trade treaty with the Commonwealth. However, efforts to reach an agreement have not been dropped.

In accordance with the principles of the Ottawa Conference the restrictions will not apply to imports from any part of the United Kingdom or any other part of the British Empire, with the exception of Canadian motor units. On the other hand, the United States, the leading exporter of products to Australia, will be the nation hardest hit.

Besides the necessary license for importing from the United States definite quotas have also been fixed on various articles. The importation of motor units virtually is the only article on which a lower quota is not established. They can still be imported to the extent of 100 per cent of the amount of imports for the year ending April 30, 1936.

The importation of typewriters, however, will be decreased to 75 per cent of the imports for the past year.

In justification of the action which the Australian government has taken, officials point out that for the period of 1929-30, the adverse trade balance with the United States averages $125,000,000 a year.

For the 10 years ending in 1934-35, the average unfavorable yearly trade balance with America was $90,000,000. During the five years of the depression beginning in 1930-31 this was reduced to an average of $35,000,000 a year.

For the current financial year, despite an increase in wool exports from Australia to the United States, it is estimated that the unfavorable trade balance will be between $36,000,000 and $40,000,000.

Repeated efforts on the part of the Australian government to remedy this situation by the negotiation of a trade treaty with the United States have failed, it is declared. It is for this reason, gov-

Lake Ship Sunk In '95 May Be Found

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich.—Efforts are underway to search for the ship, Chicora, which sank with 24 persons in a storm over Lake Michigan on Jan. 31, 1895.

The water-soaked hulk has been reported seen several times by airplane pilots. Allan Chesebro, under whose direction the search will be made, said that an airplane will be used in an effort to locate the ship, believed lying in about 80 feet of water, three miles west of here.

The Chicora carried a cargo of 30 carloads of flour and money estimated to have amounted to about $30,000.

HOUSTON, Tex.—Of 103,784 cattle inspected in Harris county for fever ticks during June, only 184 comprising herds 12 out of 6,862 were found to be infested according to L. J. Wardlaw, chairman of the State Livestock Commission.

ernment officials assert, that Australia had no alternative except to take import restrictions measures against American products.

The Australian government, it is asserted, as far back as June, 1934, called the attention of the United States to the untenable situation as far as Australia was concerned, and suggested the negotiation of a trade treaty that would balance export and imports between the two countries.

Sir Henry Gullett, minister in charge of trade treaties, has announced that he will continue his efforts to reach some amicable settlement with the United States.

Among a few of the more important lines of American exports that will be affected by the new system are automobiles and accessories, radio sets and equipment, electric refrigerators, canned fruits and vegetables, shoes, clothing, washing machines, iron pipes and plumbing fixtures, cinema projectors, steel plates and sheets, typewriters, artificial silk cotton goods, guns and rifles, electric fans, writing and typewriting paper, and machinery of virtually every kind.

1936 Lamb Crop 15 Per Cent Higher Than for Last Year

WASHINGTON.—The 1936 lamb crop in the 1 Western sheep states is about 2,700,000 head or 15 percent larger than that of 1935.

In actual numbers the total western crop amounts to 20,037,000 head, compared with 17,248,000 in 1935, 19,355,000 in 1934, and 18,492,000 in 1933.

The larger western crop this year was due directly to the increased percentage of lambs marketed, and only to a small degree on account of more ewes in lambing bands.

RESORT HOTEL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANN HAMILTON, pretty young secretary in a large business office, goes to a travel agency to make plans for her two-week vacation.

CHAPTER VII

WHEN ANN came down to breakfast she felt that some of the guests at the resort hotel eyed her askance.

She was wearing climbing togs. The porch sitters took up their positions and waited for something to happen.

Ann went down to meet him and they drove away on the Cascade road, toward the Marcy trail.

Jaime seemed changed. Ann thought perhaps she imagined it—that his face had a little more color this morning.

THE climb they were attempting wasn't arduous. They were going only part of the way up the mountain.

low. Ann jumped, and he caught her in his arms. They were both laughing hilariously when they sat down on the rock-island to catch their wind.

It hadn't been a bad climb, and now they were enjoying one of the most beautiful sights in the mountains. The sun, playing about the peaks, painted them with a fantastic mauve and purple.

Jaime smoked and was silent, contemplating the grandeur all about. Ann leaned back on the rock, and watched the cirrus clouds chasing one another in the sky.

"You see how marvelous it is up here?" she said. "This is a real vacation spot."

"At least it's better than that dark little hole—the betting room. But it was too much work getting here!" Jaime smiled lazily down at her.

She sat up suddenly. "Jaime, why don't you do something? People love you. They are snared by your charm, but they want to slap your hands and say, 'Get some ambition!'"

Jaime laughed at her. "I think you like me—just as I am," he said, and moved to kiss her.

"Conceited!" she answered, evading him.

He looked genuinely hurt, and sat very still, hugging his knees up to his chin.

THEY came back to the little inn at a quarter to 4. Jaime went to his own hotel, pleasantly tired.

After a hot shower Ann felt refreshed and joined the crowd for tea in the lobby.

The hostess, Aimee, was busy introducing new guests, and Ann felt like one of the oldest now.

"I'd love it," Ann told her. "But I'm afraid Mr. Laird is engaged—"

A cheerful, masculine voice boomed behind them. "But I'm not, and I love steak roasts!"

Ann turned to see the stalwart figure of Lefty Ponds. "Oh, it's you!" she said. "Aimee, this is Mr. Lefty Ponds. He's a guest here."

But when Ann got him aside on the veranda, she said, "You are persistent, aren't you? I thought we settled this last night!"

"Oh, but you can't avoid me," he said easily, in his deep-throated, masculine tone. "An ex-football star—"

THEY danced once to the music from the radio, and then sat down on the veranda where they could watch the sun setting over the lake.

"Why do you married men think you have to kick up your heels like young colts when the wife's away?" Ann asked cheerfully.

"I simply like you," Lefty Ponds told her disarmingly. "I like to be with pretty girls. Is there anything wrong with that? But don't tell my wife," he added darkly, and then laughed. "What's a summer husband to do?"

"Why don't you go fishing in the Maine woods?"

"I don't like fishing. I'd rather talk with you."

"You are persistent!" she said, and then she stood up and walked to the rail. "What's a girl to do?"

A canoe made its way slowly before the hotel, and from it came the haunting melody of a guitar.

It was Ralph Spring, the head boatman, enjoying his busman's holiday. He stopped to wave up at Ann, and then he was gone, probably thinking about building bridges down in Rio.

Suddenly she wanted to go for a swim in the lake. She turned to Lefty and said, "How about a quick dip before the steak roast?"

He nodded and, hand in hand, they ran down the path toward the docks. The station bus drove up before the hotel, and they stopped to look at the new guests.

Ann's hand flew to her throat, and she went toward the blond young man who stood, with a suitcase in hand, beaming down on her.

"Bill Ware!" she exclaimed. "I turned the universe upside down," he told her, "to have my vacation changed, and here I am at Ann Racine. After six years of planning other people's vacations, the travel agent is going to have one of his own!"

Lefty Ponds frowned.

Derricks Reach Oklahoma Capitol

The march of the oil derricks goes on in Oklahoma City. Several of them, as pictured above, are springing up on state-owned property surrounding the capitol, latest step in the long controversy between city and state. Anxious to preserve the beauty of its capitol grounds, the city had forbidden such drilling, though private operators were permitted to drill nearby. Maintaining that the state should have the benefit of oil it owns, and that companies operating adjoining wells might drain state pools by drilling at an angle, state officials have fought for the right to sink wells on this property.

Many individual associations report striking increases month by month in investments from the public and in lending since they began operating under federal supervision.

Loans by federal associations are made on a long-term basis, providing for monthly payments including principal and interest that will completely retire the debt at the end of the period, which is normally up to 15 or 20 years. To repay a $1,000 loan at 6 per cent interest over 15 years requires a monthly installment of $8.44.

No Change Seen In Engineer For Highway Dept.

By Gordon K. Shearer
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Tex.—Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer since 1924, is expected to have a long tenure of office as a result of developments in state politics.

Interests that at first expressed fear that Gilchrist might be removed if Governor Allred were re-elected, turned wholeheartedly to Allred's support in the closing days of the primary campaign.

This was taken to indicate that their fears for Gilchrist's continuation as the head of the highway forces had been quieted.

The State highway engineer is named by the State Highway Commission. The commission is a three-member body and two votes elect the engineer. A governor has one highway commission appointment for each term. In his first term named Harry Hines, Wichita Falls, to succeed W. R. Elp, Abilene. In January he will have another appointment. Hines was reported to have opposed Gilchrist, D. K. Martin, commissioner from San Antonio, who favors Gilchrist holds a term that expires in January.

No promise about political appointments can be made by a Governor until after his election in the general election. When he is inaugurated he must swear that he has made no promise of office to obtain a vote. But there are legal ways in which surety could be given for Gilchrist's retention.

Commissioner Hines, for instance, might say that he now will favor retention of Gilchrist. Commissioner John Wood, appointed by Gov. Miriam Ferguson will have two years more to serve. His vote, with that of Hines, would retain Gilchrist, regardless of who might be named third commissioner.

That the Governor did not plan to reappoint Commissioner D. K. Martin, San Antonio, was inferred from his campaign speech at Corpus Christi, pledging completion of the Kennedy county short cut to the Lower Rio Grande Valley—a project Martin has not considered pressing.

If the Governor has decided to appoint Martin, Martin will have a record of appointments by four Governors. Gov. Pat M. Neff gave him his first term. Govs. Dan Moody, Ross Sterling reappointed him. Reappointment with such a short time was made possible because Governor Moody shifted the long term in making his appointments.

Joke Succeeds As Pickpocket Robs Famed Detectives

By United Press

SARAJEVO — Ninety of Europe's most famous police chiefs and ace detectives, attending an international police conference here, were robbed by a pickpocket.

The detectives went out to buy presents in Sarajevo Oriental market. They stuffed the small articles in their pockets and returned to the hotel. Then came the discovery. Nearly every man's pocket had been picked.

The hotel manager was told. He rushed to the telephone to call the police. He had barely asked for the number when Dr. B. Vidovitch, a Sarajevo lawyer and former deputy, appeared with a sack containing the stolen goods.

Dr. Vidovitch had successfully "pulled the legs" of the pick of the world's police forces. He had hired a convicted pickpocket to follow the detectives and rob them.

California Race For Congress Crowded

By United Press

SACRAMENTO — Nineteen of California's 20 congressmen—the 20th is not a candidate for re-election—will have varying degrees of opposition when they go into the state primary Aug. 25 to compete for party nominations.

Four are conceded good chances of emerging from the primary in a strong position for the general election. The other 15 may face fights up to election day.

Altogether, 128 candidates filed for the 20 positions. Many of them entered their names on two or more party tickets, seeking to make a clean sweep in the primary.

Those who filed on more than one ticket must win the nomination of the party in which they are registered if they are to go on to the November election. If, for example, a Democrat wins the Republican nomination but loses the Democratic, he will be dropped from the race.

Communists entered the congressional fight seriously for the first time this year, competing for 12 of the 20 positions. Their party was legally qualified in California two years ago.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

"It will all come out in the wash."

Everyone knows the old, old saying, but mothers of lively families know they can't depend on it—not 100 per cent—when it comes to grass stains, fruit juice stains and similar laundry ills. Most of these disfiguring marks can be removed if the right process is followed. It should be done, though, before the clothes go into the regular wash.

Ice cream and frosted drink stains are common in the summer months. These need two treatments before they will disappear. They are usually caused by a combination of sugar, cream and fruit juice coloring. First of all, the cream must be treated with a grease solvent, such as carbon tetrachloride. Then, if the fruit juice is deep-seated, pour boiling water through the spot. If the color left is very faint, washing in soap and warm water will remove it.

To Remove Marks of Oil

Mayonnaise and salad oil are extremely penetrating and oil may even be unnoticeable when wet but show in grease spots or grayish-brown stains when the fabric is ironed. After careless laundering, oil is almost impossible to remove, so it is essential to remove all traces of grease before putting the fabric into water. Treat mayonnaise and oil stains with carbon tetrachloride before washing.

If you set to work to remove a grass stain while it's fresh it can usually be done with soap and water. If it is a day or more old, sponging with denatured alcohol usually is effective. Unwashable materials, of course, should be given the alcohol treatment.

Mildew is another summer stain that is hard to combat. Every once in a while I find that somebody has thrown a damp towel into the clothes hamper and traces of mildew make their appearance. In the early stages of its growth, this stain usually comes out by washing first in cold water, then in hot suds. If, however, the stains are stubborn, white cottons and linens may be bleached with a chlorine bleach such as Javelle water. Small scattered spots can be stretched over a bowl of hot water containing a few drops of ammonia. Then, with a dropper, put the bleach right on the stain and immediately rinse the material in the water in the bowl. You may need to repeat this several times. Large spots are more easily removed if they are soaked in a solution of two tablespoons Javelle water to one quart of clear water.

Rinse the Fabric

After using a bleach it is very necessary to rinse all articles thoroughly because the bleach weakens the fabric if it's allowed to remain.

Sunshine is a splendid bleach, too. If you have a place in the sun, try wringing the clothes from the last rinsing water not as dry as you do when you wring from the other waters. The sun will whiten the clothes beautifully as they dry.

Edward VIII Plans Sea Cruise

King Edward VIII of England will go on a month's leisurely cruise in the Mediterranean and Adriatic seas, starting Aug. 8, aboard the luxurious $1,500,000, 1574-ton yacht Nahlin, chartered from Lady Yule. The king will go overland to the Dalmatian coast of Yugo-Slavia, there boarding the yacht, shown in top photo. The map shows the waters over which the monarch will voyage, the Greek islands being one especial point of interest to him. He expects to make several inland visits. The yacht will be escorted by two destroyers.
