HURRICANE IS WORST ALONG THE CAROLINAS

By United Press
NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 18.—A hurricane swept up the Atlantic coast today, crippling shipping, damaging property and driving residents from low places. Only one fatality had been reported at noon.

Chief danger appeared to be to shipping. Half a dozen vessels were flying distress signals from the Virginia Capes to the New Jersey coast. Coastguard cutters went to the rescue.

At noon the weather bureau gave hope the Atlantic coast would escape the brunt of the storm. However the threats to Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey remained.

The storm left a trail of inundated cities and extensive property damage. First reports from Elizabeth City, N. C., indicated it was one of the hardest hit communities. The three main streets were littered with wreckage. Other North Carolina cities escaped more lightly. Lack of casualties was attributed to widespread early warnings.

The fatality occurred at Atlantic City when one man was drowned.

Those maimed included Clyde Moon, Eastland county, serving three years for theft and aiding prisoners to escape.

Rainfall which had continued since Monday totaling more than 20 inches, ceased today.

The sudden rush of water down the Concho had flooded much of the business district and damaged more than 500 homes. Many houses were swept away.

Home Concern Is Building Planes For Australians

By United Press
SYDNEY—Purely in the interests of national defense, and with no expectation of making money for years to come, a $5,000,000 syndicate has undertaken to equip Australia with enough aircraft to insure national defense.

While the syndicate was formed at the request of the government, no subsidy will be granted, but the latter will place orders as fast as its finances permit for machines of the British service type to insure their interchangeability between the British Air Force machines and those used in Australia.

The syndicate is composed of the Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Ltd., the Broken Hill Associated Smelters, Ltd., and the General Motors-Holdens, Ltd.

A factory of the most modern type is to be installed. The British government will assist in furnishing technical information, but the utmost use of Australian materials and labor will be made.

Progressive development is envisaged, commencing with the airframes, following with the engines at the earliest possible moment.

In addition to manufacture for export, Air Force equipments, it is proposed to build for the local commercial field as well and also for export.

Mosquitoes Now Hum Along River "Down By The Old Mill Stream"

By United Press
FINDLAY, Ohio — The village queen is not "sweet sixteen," the old gray mare "ain't what she used to be" and neither is the Blanchard River, one-time limpid stream that inspired the song, "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

The languid brook that inspired Tell Taylor, cator and composer, to write the song that gained fame along with "Sweet Adeline," is so polluted and mosquito-ridden that a one-man campaign has been started to have it cleaned.

Cloyce W. Oxley, who lives near the river, became incensed with the condition of the stream because "you can walk across it on dead fish without getting your feet wet," he filled four quart jars with river water and took them to State Director of Health Walter Hartung in Columbus, asking the state to lend aid in ridding the Blanchard of organic matter and mosquito larvae.

Dr. Hartung promised to investigate and said the first step in cleaning the stream would be a more complete sewage treatment by the city of Findlay.

Tell Taylor, a native of the Blanchard River section and still a Findlay resident, wrote the song here in the early 1900's. He recalled that as he lay on the banks of the Blanchard and eyed an old watermill nearby, he waxed sentimental and wrote the song.

After writing it, Taylor forgot about it and let it lay for more than two years before turning it over to a vaudeville team in 1910. The song met with almost instantaneous success. More than 4,000,000 copies have been sold.

Railroads Plan Research School

By United Press
MINNEAPOLIS — The University of Minnesota experimental engineering department may conduct extensive research work into problems of vital importance to the carriers, it was indicated today.

The project would be financed by the leading railroads of the nation.

Preliminary discussions on the subject were conducted recently by Prof. F. B. Rowley, director of the experimental engineering laboratories, and L. W. Wallace, director of the equipment research division of the Association of American railroads, national organization of carriers.

Huge Laboratory Available
If the plans materialize, the research will be conducted in the new $100,000 research laboratories which the university will create in buildings once occupied by a tractor company. The plans for these laboratories include construction of a temperature control room large enough to accommodate two passenger cars and capable of inducing temperatures from 35 degrees below zero upward.

As conceived, Wallace explained, there is nothing as complete as this proposed room in the entire country. This, he said, led the carriers to consider a cooperative research program with the university.

Air Conditioning First
Subjects to be studied include: Air conditioning of passenger equipment. (It was explained that laboratories here would offer unexcelled facilities for experimental work looking toward further improvement in this field.)

Refrigerator car design and operation, aiming toward automatic control of temperatures.

Insulating materials for use in railroad equipment.

Lubrication problems of locomotives and cars, particularly in frigid temperatures encountered in Northern United States in winter.

Spanish Revolution Leader Served On The Texas Border

By United Press
EDINBURG, Tex. — Col. Francisco Franco, commander-in-chief of the rebel forces in the bloody Spanish civil war, began his military career on the Texas border during the World War.

Franco, according to Judge J. F. Carl, Edinburg attorney, is a graduate of the Spanish "West Point." At the outbreak of the World War he enlisted in the French Army and was sent to this country to counter-act German propaganda filtering into the United States from Mexico.

Franco was hired by Carl, who was then secretary and general manager of the Texas State Council of Defense, to work under cover along the Mexican-Texas border.

Judge Carl recalls that Col. Franco at that time "was a tall, dark-haired, aristocratic Spanish gentleman and one of the most polished men I remember meeting during those stirring times when I contacted hundreds of officers and men whose names later became household words."

Col. Franco was paid a salary of $100 a month and expenses to circulate through the Latin-American districts of South Texas.

Man Asks Refund On 1881 Fair Ticket

By United Press
ALBANY, Ore. — Fifty-five years ago Frank B. Tichenor, now justice of the peace at Port Orford, Ore., bought a ticket to the Linn County Fair. But that Saturday, Oct. 1, 1881, was rainy and Tichenor never used the ticket. Recently he wrote Albany's mayor, enclosing the ticket, and requested a refund. He added, "I should have some interest, don't you think, after the use of my money all these years?"

Quality of the exhibits was praised by many. Secretary Davison of the Chamber of Commerce stated they were the best in two years. County Agent Cook and his assistant, Hugh Barnhart, also complimented highly the exhibits.

Mrs. John Knox, Eastland high school domestic science teacher and pupils, today also inspected the various exhibits.

LOYALISTS BLOW UP THE HISTORIC ALCAZAR BUT NO ESTIMATE MADE OF THE DEAD

The savagery of Spain's civil war was forcefully demonstrated today when loyalists dynamited the historic Alcazar in Toledo where more than 1200 rebel men, women and children have been besieged.

It was not apparent from first dispatches how many were killed. From descriptions of the explosion, however, it seemed likely that there must have been heavy loss of life.

It was estimated that more than 100 were killed or wounded, including 40 loyalists, in fighting at the Alcazar after it had been blown up.

The government decision to blow up the Alcazar was attributed to its need of relieving the forces which have been attacking the building so they can be sent to

Ugly War Stripped Of All Its Glamour

A lot of water has flowed under the bridge since the day when Jeb Stuart rode off to battle with a plume in his hat, a banjo-player at his side, and a scarlet-lined cloak floating from his broad shoulders.

Since then, war has had the glamour rubbed off; it has lost that indefinable combination of heroic attitudes and visible, conscious heroism which went by the name of romance; it has grown, to use the old expression, as ugly as home-made sin.

What we are getting from Spain seems to be a glimpse at mankind gone ravaging mad. We read of conquering troops herding prisoners into a bull ring and spraying the place with machine gun bullets until the prisoners were all dead; of priests crucified to church walls; of prisoners executed in cold blood to prevent their release by approaching armies; of cities going up in flame from the lust of destruction; of wholesale atrocities—committed, apparently, with a fine impartiality, by both sides—enough to make the heart sick.

This sort of thing is not romantic, according to any swords-and-roses standards which may have been bred into us by our reading of romantic war novels. There is in it none of the breath-taking pageantry of the charge of the Light Brigade; none of the color and thrill of Cambronne's defiance at Waterloo; none of the fine dash and flair of a Jeb Stuart cavalry raid.

And we shall acquire a little valuable wisdom if we realize that this sort of thing, after all, "comes with the bicycle." This Spanish war may be a more vengeful and bitter affair than some wars, but the essentials are always the same. Underneath, war always was like this.

For example: those slim British cruisers that patrolled the seas in the last war had a romantic look to them as they went about their lonely business on the tossing waters. But how romantic do you suppose they looked to German mothers who saw their children dying, or growing up stunted and deformed, for lack of the foodstuffs which those cruisers were keeping out of the country?

Or—to go over to the other side of the picture—how much romance did the silver-winged German planes have for British mothers who saw their children blown to bits by aerial bombs?

To realize all this, to understand that the unspeakable horror of the Spanish war is simply the horror of all war magnified just a little, is to fortify ourselves against tragedy. For when the danger of war is imminent, we are apt to be drummed into line by our emotions.

If we can get a real understanding of war's reality, we may be able to decide with our minds instead of with our hearts.

A Michigan driver who leaned on his horn all the way through town was pelted with eggs and tomatoes, a harvest idea for drouth-stricken farmers.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By NEA Service

WITH cooler weather on the way, you'll be thinking about baking again. And if there's one infallible way to get a reputation for being an experienced pastry cook, it's to make a real German Kase Kuchen or Cheese Cake.

If you have been buying what is often sold as German cheese cake you don't really know how good it can be. These "professional" cheese cakes too often have a spongy texture that destroys the cheese flavor, usually due to the use of baking powder.

A good cheese cake is moist and never has a pie crust. This recipe is authentic and one that has been tested dozens of times with unvaried success.

German Cheese Cake for 8

One and one-half pounds cottage cheese, 1 cup sugar, 4 eggs, 1-2 pint or 1 cup cream, speck of salt, 1-2 lemon, juice and rind, 1-4 cup flour, 1 (6 oz.) package zwieback, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 cup butter, melted.

Roll the zwieback with a rolling pin until it is reduced to fine crumbs.

Mix with the crumbs 1 cup of sugar, cinnamon and the melted butter. This makes the crust for the delectable cake.

Set aside 3-4 cup of this mixture to be used on top of the cake.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced oranges, oatmeal and cream, toast, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Cream of mushroom soup, Spanish omelet, corn muffins, Waldorf salad, tea, milk.

DINNER: Ham patties, candied apple rings, sliced eggplant, buttered spinach, cheesecake, coffee.

the form. This will make a thick, crumbly crust.

Beat the 4 eggs, without separating, with the other cup of sugar until light; add salt, lemon juice and rind.

Stir the cream in and then add the cheese and the flour.

Mix well together and strain through a fine sieve.

Stir until smooth and pour into the zwieback-lined form, sprinkling the 3-4 cup of zwieback crumbs on top.

Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) for 1 hour.

Then turn off the heat, let stand in the oven another hour until cooled. This is done to avoid having the cheese sink by a sudden change of temperature.

Remove the rim of the spring form but not the tin bottom. Place on a serving plate.

This cake is not as difficult to prepare as it may sound and, cottage cheese and eggs being the basis of it, makes it fairly inexpensive.

Rice May Come Back on Gridiron For 1936 Season

BY ROY J. FORREST

United Press Staff Correspondent

HOUSTON—Football fortunes of Rice Institute, at low ebb in 1935, may make a comeback this fall—if the subdued but unmistakable enthusiasm of Coach Jimmie Kitts can be used as a reliable guide in forecasting.

Kitts admits, however, that things do not look so rosy when he scans the list of 12 teams his Owls will face during 1936. There isn't a "set-up" in sight; every game will offer a man-sized job, says the youthful Rice coach.

First intersectional encounter on the program will be a night contest at Baton Rouge, La., with Coach Bernie Moore's Louisiana State University on Sept. 26.

Armed with a report by backfield Coach Cecil Grigg on the Dnquesne University eleven, the Owls will go to Pittsburgh for another night battle on Oct. 2.

A week of rest then will precede consecutive week-end engagements with Texas A. & M. at Houston; University of Georgia at Athens, the first meeting of the two schools; University of Texas at Houston; George Washington University at Houston; University of Arkansas at Fayetteville; Sam Houston State Teachers at Houston; Texas Christian University at Houston; Baylor University at Houston and Southern Methodist University at Houston.

In the Texas, Arkansas, A. & M., T. C. U., Baylor and S. M. U. contests, Rice will point toward her second Southwest Conference pennant. The Owls won the championship of the conference in 1934.

Kitts lost 13 first-line performers through graduation last spring, including the famous "touchdown twins," quarterback John McCaulley, and halfback Bill Wallace. He regards the loss of Harry Witt, powerful fullback, as a major disaster.

Now, Kitts, and his assistants, Grigg and Eddie Dyer, face the task of building a formidable eleven around lettermen and squadmen who warmed the bench for the most part last season—with only a few exceptions.

"I can't complain about prospects for a starting line-up," Kitts said, "although we will have two untried sophomores filling doubtful positions."

The two problematic berths are center and quarterback, but Coach Kitts hopes he has made a discovery in Jack Russell, fleet 165-pounder from Amarillo.

"We plan to use Russell at quarterback," Kitts said. "He has about everything a quarterback needs—brains, speed, ability to pass, kick and run with the ball. He showed so well in practice last spring that we shifted Bill Brandon, our early prospect, to halfback."

Herman Price, 180 pounds, also an Amarillo product, will get the first call for the center position. He is a sophomore, and will fill the vacancy left by Henry Bollman, who graduated.

The Owls will have two talented ends in Frank Steen, 185, Dallas, member of the 1934 championship squad, and Bob Forbes, 175, Houston. Both excel in pass receiving and on defense.

Co-capt. John Frankie, 195-pound veteran of San Benito, and Arthur Hues, 205, San Antonio senior, will get the nod at tackles. Charles Moore, 190, San Antonio,

In the starting backfield with Russell, Kitts said he would place Brandon and Roy Royall, 170, Houston, at halves, and co-capt. J. W. Friedman, 190-pound fullback of Austin.

Kitts said he would have four complete teams available for action this season, each differing only in experience. There were enough squadmen left over from 1935 to bolster the 1936 edition, he said.

In the Southwest Conference, the Rice coach said, the strongest schools will be Baylor, Arkansas and the Texas Aggies, all of which had inexperienced but talented material last season.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

THERE are too many running race tracks, but it is pleasing to know that a beautiful one is to be opened near Lexington, Ky., this fall. The sport, in the true sense of the word, means much more to the good people of the Blue Grass than elsewhere.

Keeneland succeeds the Kentucky Association track which was the oldest in America last year when it was sold and razed to make way for building lots. The old Lexington plant was founded in 1826 and operated until 1933, when the legalization of betting in Illinois and many other states limited and destroyed historic Kentucky meetings. Lexington has not had a meeting since.

It being situated in Kentucky, you are not surprised to learn that Keeneland will be operated differently from all others in this country.

It really will be a model track, where racing actually will be conducted for the sport of it and for improvement of the horse. Commercialism has been eliminated.

Keeneland will be a non-profit organization, with the receipts being divided into three funds. One will be used to retire the stock, another for purses, and the third for improving the plant.

THERE is a fine gesture and much sentiment behind the completion of Keeneland.

Twenty years ago J. O. (Jack) Keene started construction of a track and clubhouse at his Keeneland Stud, five miles outside Lexington. Before the depression forced him to stop work in 1929, Keene, who once trained gallopers for the czar of Russia, had built a mile and one-sixteenth track and a massive, three-story stone clubhouse that resembled a feudal lord's castle.

Unable to complete his private racing layout, where he intended to conduct his own meetings and, then bequeath the place to residents of the Blue Grass, Keene last year sold his unfinished course to sportsmen who were endeavoring to restore racing in Lexington.

The track will open Oct. 15 for a nine-day fall meeting. A spring and fall program each year is planned.

INHABITANTS of Lexington have been matching thorough-breders ever since the earliest settlers cleared out enough Indians and trees to have a Main Street.

Many of the greatest thorough-breders this country has ever known experienced their baptismal fire over the Kentucky Association track.

You still can find old-timers around Lexington who recall the epochal match race between Aristides, winner of the first Kentucky Derby, and Ten Broeck at the old course.

Rivalry was keen between the stables of Price McGrath, gambler and owner of Aristides, and Frank Harper, owner of Ten Broeck, in 1876.

So certain of victory was McGrath that he stood in the middle of the track accepting all wagers against his entrant without making notation of the bets, regardless of size.

It's a matter of record how well Aristides kept books that afternoon. Aristides won the four-mile race by 40 yards.

With such a background made richer in tradition each spring by the running of the Derby in nearby Louisville, it was no wonder that racing fans of the Blue Grass felt their loss keenly when the old Kentucky Association track ceased operation three years ago.

CHEAP Electricity

WORKS NIGHT and DAY in YOUR HOME!

Not an hour passes in the night or day but that CHEAP ELECTRICITY is making your home more comfortable, keeping it well lighted and helping with the multitude of daily household chores and kitchen tasks. And yet the cost for electricity is only a few cents a day—one of the smallest items of household expense.

With fall and winter approaching, look to the lighting in your home. You'll be surprised how much a good reading light improves the appearance of a room, and how little it costs to have plenty of light for reading or studying.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
PORTLAND, Me.—If the nation goes as Maine goes this year, it's going to be just too bad for the New Deal.

Most Democrats seem to expect defeat in the election of Sept. 14 when the state chooses a U. S. senator, a governor, and three representatives. But they are fighting desperately to avert a massacre.

A huge Republican victory would be exactly what the G. O. P. could use to wave before that large group of voters—and campaign contributors—who always want to be with the winner.

“As Maine goes, so goes the nation” is a slogan rather than a truism. Maine has always gone Republican in presidential years except in the Roosevelt-Taft split in 1912.

Although Democrats have won the presidency five times since the Civil War, only one of those times had they won the preceding September election in Maine and that was in 1932, when Roosevelt lost the state to Hoover in the following November just the same.

Republican campaign artillery sent to the state or about to arrive includes Col. Frank Knox, ex-Senator Edge of New Jersey, Congressman Hollister of Ohio, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Charles F. Taft.

Democratic operators for Maine include Governors Earle of Pennsylvania, Curley of Massachusetts, and McNutt of Indiana, and Senator Wagner of New York, to say nothing of Roosevelt's visit.

REPUBLICAN U. S. Senator Wallace White is opposing Gov. Louis J. Brann, and Secretary of State Louis O. Barrows opposes Democratic National Committeeman Harold F. Dubord for the governorship. Democratic Congressman Simon Hamlin is running against James C. Oliver in the First congressional district; Democrat Ernest L. McLean against Republican Clyde H. Smith in the Second district; and Republican Congressman Ralph Brewster against Wallace H. Mabee in the Third district.

Favored to win are White, Barrows, Brewster, and Oliver, with a lone Democrat, McLean, being conceded a good chance.

A Brann-Dubord victory, even by a small margin, would set most neutral political writers to predicting a national Roosevelt landslide in November.

Two years ago Brann, aided by the “wet” issue, was re-elected governor over a weak, aged opponent. He has since lost the support of several Republican newspapers, and ERA scandals have done him no good.

Brann treats the New Deal as a liability to his candidacy. But many Republicans say they'd rather have a Republican anti-New Dealer in Washington than a Democrat. On the other hand, New Dealers suspect Brann as a “power trust” friend and reactionary.

ON the other side of the picture, business is improving rapidly in Maine and potatoes are up from 50 or 75 cents to $2 a bushel.

Most factory and relief workers will vote Democratic, against a heavy Republican rural vote.

Dubord, energetic and popular, has been campaigning all summer, praising the New Deal. He came within 1200 votes of beating Senator Frederick Hale in 1934. Barrows, a small town druggist, long active in Republican politics, is not a spectacular campaigner or a statesman, but he is also popular. His chief campaign issues are federal expenditures, the national debt, and failure of Maine to benefit much from AAA.

Scoutmaster Tommie Hendrick of San Saba reports that his troop took an overnight hike. Archery was featured during the hike. Hendrick boasts that every scout in his troop has an archery set. Each scout has made his own set. Twenty flat bow staves have been ordered since camp. They are going to experiment with the round and flat type bows to determine which is preferable. A number of rabbits and squirrels have been shot by the bow and arrow at the hands of San Saba scouts.

Troop 33 of Lampasas sends in two new registrations. Scoutmaster Matthews says they are still holding together even though vacation period has taken some of their scouts.

Scoutmaster Sanders of Troop 24, Dublin, says that he has the best soft ball junior team in the county. Maybe some of his neighbors would like to see about that.

Scoutmaster Banes of Breckenridge had a note in the daily paper calling his scouts together with a statement that vacation time was over. That sounds like some advancement is going to take place. Banes also states that he is expecting at least twenty-four of the boys to attend the National Jamboree next spring in Washington.

Scoutmasters Hittson and Barton viewed the Centennial with about thirty-eight of their scouts, who were in the care of the scoutmasters. We have not heard from them since it all happened, but feel sure that they had a grand time.

Scoutmaster Jack Dwyer now takes over Troop 103, succeeding C. M. Allen. He starts off by taking a group of Eastland scouts to the Centennial. We understand that the scouts mowed lawns, washed windows, etc., to earn money for the trip. One of the scout laws is: "A Scout is thrifty—He does not wantonly destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing, and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money so that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need, and helpful to worthy objects. He may work for pay, but must not receive tips for courtesies or 'good turns'."

Scoutmaster Jessop of Troop 6, Eastland, we suppose, is working with his scouts on the new troop cabin, which they have started as a troop project for the coming winter.

Scoutmaster Bob Buckingham, Troop 115, Rising Star, says that he is looking for a good assistant scoutmaster to help him with his fall and winter program. Some of you fellows tell Bob how to 'bait his hook.'

Scoutmaster Noad, Troop 16, of Brownwood, is planning a parents' night for his troop in the near future. He states that summer attendance has been quite good, and field of last year's regulars. Providing the slippery hipped Russell regains his strike a fleet-footed, powerhouse team will be built-around him.

From tip to tip, a heavy crew of linemen will be prepared to scrap with Hardin-Simmons Cowboys in Baylor's opening game Sept. 26 at Waco.

Veterans of last year — Clois Manker, James Kimbriel and Ken Clark — will give Jennings fast material for the end positions. Sam Boyd and Julie Gernand, both sophomores, also will seek wing posts.

Owen "Ox" Parry, 210-pound Dallas youth, will be the Bears' tackle bid for all-conference selection. Hervey Blue, Emmett Driel and Shuford McDonald are competing for the other tackle position.

At center, John D. Reynolds, former Waco high school player, remains as one of the line stalwarts filling the shoes of James Cloyd, lost by graduation. Herman Rose, who has been groomed as the "second string" center, was taken ill last season and still is below his normal weight.

Several sophomores are counted on to bolster the lineup including Billy Patterson, Hillsboro high school passing backfield performer, Bitchell Parks and Ted Lewellen.

Bill Henderson, former Temple high school mentor and for several seasons assistant to Paul Tyson, Waco high school coach, will replace Bochey Koch, former All-American guard, as Baylor's line coach.

Coach Jennings, preparing for the Sept. 10 practice call, said he believed the conference would be more evenly balanced this year than last.

"No team will be as strong this season as T. C. U. and S. M. U. were last year," he said. "Look for all squads to be evenly balanced—but Arkansas and T. C. U. have a slight edge."

Fire Prevention Week Campaign Is Already Started

AUSTIN, Tex.—One of the most intensive campaigns ever waged against home fire hazards in Texas will be conducted during Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4-10, Fire Insurance Commissioner Raymond S. Mauk announced here.

The campaign will be conducted through the public schools.

Questionnaires are being sent to school superintendents with instructions to distribute them among the students. Schools in towns of less than 2,500 population will receive the blanks from the state commission. Larger ones are being asked to co-operate by having blanks printed. Results of the survey will be used by the commission in outlining a later fire prevention program.

In the questionnaire the children are asked questions pertaining mostly to fire hazards in the home. Only question not directly pertaining to the home is: "How would you turn in a fire alarm?"

Regarding the condition of the premises they are asked to note any trash that has accumulated, and if such a condition does exist what steps have been taken to improve it.

Fuel used in the home is gone into extensively. Questions include: "If gas is used are draperies, shades, etc., out of the way of open flame?" "Are risks taken when the fires are lighted?" "If the coal oil is used is the master can kept outside?" "If coal or wood is used are all chimneys and flues cleaned out?"

Every precaution is urged in keeping open fires covered as a protection to small children in the home. They are warned against using gasoline as a fuel, cleaner, and are warned never to keep it in the house. Oil mops and rags should be kept away from heat.

Electrical appliances should be renewed if worn, and cords should not be placed under the rugs, the children are told. Connections of both gas and electricity should be carefully checked. Use of coins as fuses is condemned.

Parents are urged to co-operate with the children in the survey.

Singing Quarter Is Bearing Burden of Hopes for Baylor

By United Press
WACO, Tex. — Baylor University's "singing" quarterback, Lloyd Russell, will carry the burden of the Green and Gold's campaign for 1936 Southwest Conference football honors—if his sprained left ankle heals sufficiently.

To say that upon Russell's ankle rests hopes of Baylor's success in the fall gridiron encounter would be no exaggeration, declares Coach Morley Jennings.

The "sparkplug" of the Bears' 1935 team is recuperating from a sprain suffered during an amateur baseball game in Cleveland, Ohio. Although his crutches have been set aside, a gloomy question mark remains.

Baylor fans are wondering if the injury can hold up under spectacular reeling and plunging as has marked Russell's career to date.

Jennings, however, is optimistic. Only one man is lost to the back-

"ALL-BRAN KEEPS ME IN SHAPE EVERY DAY"

"When I had eaten a heavy breakfast, I would feel lousy. After a couple of days of this, I would have to take a laxative."

"One morning I had a dish of ALL-BRAN. Believe me, it beats any laxative, as it keeps me in shape every day."—Wm. C. Billings, 1330 19th St., Denver, Colorado.

Why put up with half-sick days, when a delicious cereal will make you feel so good? Because ALL-BRAN has "bulk" which absorbs moisture within the body. Then gently sponges out your system, wipes away the listlessness, the "blues," the headaches.

Scientific tests prove this natural food is both safe and effective—worlds better than taking patent medicines. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Take it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek

Traffic Officer Uses Shaming Psychology

By United Press
PORTLAND, Ore.—Traffic Patrolman Walter C. Bender, "the world's" only finger-pointing traffic cop," thinks psychology is more effective on jaywalkers than the voice of a bull.

Violators cringe before Bender, who implies "fie, fie upon you" by simply pointing his left index finger at a fender-dodger and rubs it briskly with the index finger of his right hand. "I quit bellowing at them 20 years ago," he said, "because all I got was a sore throat."

Another Question About CARDUI
MOTHERS RECOMMEND IT

"Why do so many MOTHERS recommend Cardui to their daughters?"

Isn't it but natural that any good mother should tell her daughters about Cardui if the mother herself felt that she had been benefited by this medicine?

It is impressive that so many women report having taken Cardui on the advice of their mothers.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KAY DUNN, pretty young nurse, applies for a job as stewardess on Overland Airways. In the Overland office she encounters TED GRAHAM, veteran pilot, who flies the trans-Pacific route. Largely due to Graham's intervention, she is accepted for a trial period.

Two other girls, DORIS LEE and ALICE MILLER, are accepted on the same basis.

The three girls begin their preliminary training. Doris is first to win a regular job. Alice surprises her by announcing her marriage to Chuck Jones, a pilot. Kay is assigned to the western division, flying from Reno to San Francisco. She meets MONTY BLAINE, who is to fly the Pacific route with Ted Graham. Together they watch Graham make a landing in the big trans-Pacific liner. Graham apparently is pleased to see Kay again, though he speaks to her only briefly, then returns to work.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VIII
KAY awoke with the wish that she might fly down to the beach and find Ted Graham there, happily awaiting her. But it was the sun, streaming through the windows of the Girls' Club, that greeted her when she was wide awake.

This was her day! One day out of ten she could break the routine of her twice-daily flights as stewardess on the Overland Airways, to spend a day and night in Oakland. Her plane left at 3:05 for her home port of Reno, high up beyond the Sierra Nevada range on the fringe of the desert.

Standing in the shower, she sang. Last night she and Monte Blaine had danced until 3, but she felt completely fresh now after her sleep.

Just then the telephone jingled. Kay frowned and thought, "I'll tell him a thing or two." She wrapped the huge towel about her, went to the telephone and picked up the receiver, saying crossly, "Oh, don't be so tiresome. I was still in the shower."

But it was not Monte's laugh that greeted her; it was Ted Graham's voice.

"Crossed wires?" Ted said. "Monte was just in the office and said you were free until this afternoon. I've put him to work and now he's out of the way! But if you want to inspect the Mariner—or," he hesitated, "I'm driving up to the San Carlos valley to see the kid. You remember I told you about my adopted son, Dickie. When I'm in port I like to snatch him out of the military school and take him up to camp. It's lovely up there. Would you like to go?"

"Oh, I'd love it!" she said. "I can inspect the Mariner any time."

He said, "I'll come by for you in my car."

SHE dressed hurriedly. Ted, she knew, was anxious to see the boy and she didn't want to keep him waiting. She put on her simplest white linen frock with a gay kerchief, matching her green eyes, tied around her throat. She was waiting in front of the clubhouse when he drove up.

"There's something about you!" Ted said, puzzled.

Kay leaned back in the seat and watched the flashing panorama. They sped past the green hills of Berkeley and began to climb a road between the yellow walls of a canyon. Soon they were in a high valley where there were pleasant fields of wild flowers and little pines. Everything was freshly green and in bloom.

They drove up to a group of yellow buildings, nestled among some pines, and Ted got out, waiting for the steps to the waiting room. He came out a few minutes later with Dickie.

Dickie was going on 8, and in his smart grey uniform looked very manly. Kay thought he was adorable. He had curly yellow hair and blue eyes and one dimple.

When Ted introduced Dickie she saluted her gravely, and then took her hand. He sat between them, his gloved hands resting in his lap. To her first question he said, "Yes, ma'am," but she asked him to call her Kay.

He looked to Ted for permission, and Ted grinned.

LATER, at the cabin in the valley, Ted said, "Dickie's mother died when he was born. His father was killed in an airplane crash when Dickie was 3. The kid hasn't had much family life."

Ted wouldn't let Kay do anything. He told her she'd get her dress soiled or a smudge on her face. She sat, watching him prepare their lunch and eyeing him with amusement.

The cooking was simple enough. There were only wieners to boil and coffee to be made. All the rest, a prepared lunch, Ted had brought with them.

But she observed that he knew how to make good coffee. She passed him a compliment that made him blush under his tan.

"I've been hatching it for 15 years now—since my wife died. With Jerry Seales. Jerry was my bomber during the war and now he's a mechanic at the home port. Dickie adores him—but that was the trouble. The kid was hanging around the airport too much. That's why I put him in military school."

Ted busied himself with the pots and pans, then turned to her again.

"I'm pretty much of a lone wolf now. I've been living in the air—for the a's. Back there—15 years ago—I was terribly in love with my wife. That was when flying was really dangerous. I survived several bad crashes, but she died, I believe, from a succession of shocks caused by the dangers of my job. That's why I never married again."

Kay said nothing. Dickie was watching a family of chipmunks, and they could hear the shrill chatter of the mother and babies high up in a tree. Kay walked away from the fire, toward the little pine grove by the brook.

TED followed, caught up with her, and took her arm. "Do you like me?" he said.

She looked at him and smiled. "Of course I like you."

"There was a time," he said, "when I was impulsive, reckless, but that was a long time ago. Now I simply look straight ahead. This trans-Pacific flight is my life! I've spent five years preparing for it, and I hope to spend the next 10 years flying it. It's changed the slant of my life. I'm living for the air!"

"And for Dickie," she said, smiling.

He laughed. "Yes, I suppose so. Even a pilot has to have some real living—"

He looked down at her, and laughed again. His white teeth flashed. He pulled her close to him and kissed her.

"You're inevitable!" he said, and then let her go. They knelt, side by side, to dip the water up from the mountain brook. Kay watched her face, shimmering in the water. If Ted could only have read what was going on in her thoughts!

"Don't pay any attention to me," he said, low. "I like you. I think you're a swell girl and have since the moment I first saw you. But I'm looking out for you. You're a lot younger than I am. Get this straight, Kay. I like to pal around with you—but no wedding bells. It isn't fair not to tell you outright. Romance is behind me. I've got my job."

Kay gazed at her features in the water, wondering if Ted could possibly read in them what she felt close to her heart. She was in love with him. For a few moments she couldn't meet his eyes.

Q. For whom was Willacy county named? G. D., Liberty.

Q. How was Caddo Lake formed? E. P., Longview.

A. An Indian tradition is that it was formed overnight, in 1812, by some kind of volcanic eruption in which many Indians lost their lives. It is fed by the waters of Cypress creek, a tributary of Red River.

Q. What was England's attitude toward annexation of Texas by the United States? E. B., Galveston.

A. England opposed annexation and endeavored to induce France to join with it and Mexico "in deprecating all interference on the part of the United States in the affairs of Texas, or the adoption of any measure leading to the destruction of the separate existence of the Republic of Texas. This active interest created a feeling that England had designs for the acquisition of Texas and became an issue in the presidential campaign and contributed to the defeat of Henry Clay.

Q. When and how was the Pilgrim Baptist Church, near Elkhart established? R. Y., Mansfield, La.

A. When Rev. Daniel Parker came to Texas on a prospecting tour and learned that Mexican authorities frowned upon the organization of Protestant churches in Texas, he returned to Palestine, Ill., organized the Pilgrim Primitive Baptist church there, composed of colonists moving to Texas with him in 1833, and located

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—What this campaign doesn't need most is a few more animals.

If P. T. Barnum were alive, one could imagine the old showman promoting a mammoth parade of these political animals up or down Fifth Avenue, led by an elephant and a donkey.

He might have Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton astride the elephant and Democratic Chairman Jim Farley atop the donkey—if the donkey were big and husky enough.

Then, by rights, should come the "six million little pigs"—or was it three million?—because they were the first quadrupeds to enter the campaign. They are still in it, despite a few tons of statistics and economic data which Secretary Wallace has on hand to prove that their slaughter three years ago was justified, even if the price of pork is going up at this time.

Then the pigs of Ed Pottle up in Eastport, Me., immediately leap to mind.

These are the porkers which were reported to be eating 800 pies a day at government expense because the army had contracted for the pies to feed Passamaquoddy workers who were no longer there to feed.

Inquiry developed that there had never been any such pies at Passamaquoddy, raised serious doubt as to whether Ed Pottle ever had any pigs, and even left vague misgivings as to whether there was any such person as Ed Pottle.

planted every time the RA photographer wanted to take a picture, although the photographer insists he found it and took a lot of pictures in the same area, never moving the skull more than 20 feet or so.

Farmer George Mays of Arcadia, Mo., and his six cows must also be given a place of honor, since they are understood to have been employed by the Republican National Committee.

The G. O. P. publicists heard that WPA had built a $20,000 sidewalk system in Arcadia which was used only by cows, and sent sound-movie photographers there for pictures. No cows being found on the sidewalk, but only people, the movie men are said to have paid Mays $25 to drive his cows along the sidewalk and also paid him a dollar a minute to make a sound-movie speech about it.

MAKE way, also, for a few thousand birds from the Carthage, N. C., quail farm of Julian T. Bishop, the New York broker who lives in Greenwich, Conn., and has been so worn down and oppressed by the New Deal that he has promised to sell the farm, quail and all, and move to Canada if Roosevelt is re-elected.

Thanks to publicity given to the offer of purchase from a New Deal fellow who said he would appreciate it the sooner Mr. Bishop left, and to the assertion of Minister of Public Welfare David Croll of Ontario that Canada didn't want Mr. Bishop, those quail also have become very famous.

And of course if one wants to be liberal as to the entry requirements, it would be possible to include such celebrated quadrupeds as Governor Landon's horse and the White House dog which bit Senator Hattie Caraway of Arkansas in the left leg. (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

Plaintiff Pays Jail Board To Balk Non-Paying Defendant's Freedom

By United Press
HADDAM, Conn.—Edward Lawrence, employed on a private estate here, may never collect a $1,683 judgment awarded to him at damages for a broken jaw, but he will have the satisfaction of knowing that his assailant, Tony Ventura, will remain in jail indefinitely, providing, of course, that he continues to pay the town of Haddam $3 weekly for his board and keep.

Lawrence, who is 30 years old, was friendly enough with Ventura, when an argument ensued over the hiring of Lawrence to drive Ventura to Hartford. A brawl resulted in serious damages to Lawrence, including a broken jaw.

Suing for damages, Judge Alfred Baldwin in Middletown Superior Court awarded $1,683 to Lawrence. No payment was forthcoming, and Ventura is alleged to have repeatedly told Lawrence that he'd never get his spite-money.

On June 3, the day before Ventura was signed up to pitch horseshoes in an Independence Day contest, a constable placed him in jail on a warrant which Lawrence had had issued.

On Aug. 1 Ventura obtained his liberty after taking a poor debtor's oath, and swearing he did not have more than $17, the legal amount in Connecticut to become a legal pauper.

But Lawrence was not to be so easily defeated. He produced evidence proving that Ventura owned two automobiles, whose appraisal exceeded $17.

Back into jail went Ventura, where he probably will remain until he pays, or until Lawrence gets tired of paying his $3 weekly board bill.

The average dream lasts about five seconds, which explains why we never get to spend that million left us in uncle's will.

all ought to be as thankful as we can be for the fine rains. God is always good to us. Now let's show our gratitude by giving him the best that we have. I am expecting large congregations Sunday, both morning and evening.

Injury to Cowboy Changes His Life to That of An Artist

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—David Gilleylan was a hard-riding Montana cowpuncher till a horse fell on him. Since then he has been a cripple, although he can walk without crutches.

His injuries ended range riding and branding activities, but it opened a new life for him which lends promise of some measure of fame and the possibility of considerable income.

The bunk house in Montana was full of carvings and drawings by Gilleylan while he was a cowboy. He carved with a pocket knife and used a file for smoothing purposes.

At the suggestion of other cowboys, when he was injured and learned he never again could pursue the rigorous outdoor life, he took refuge in his carving and drawing ability.

Gilleylan didn't have much money, but he "watched his corners," and studied at the University of Missouri art school. Later he entered the Kansas City Art Institute. Prizes have been his, and attention of art critics has been attracted to his wood and stone carvings of colts and horses and other ranch and outdoor subjects.

"I carve what I know—the ranch and corral and pasture, and I'm trying to improve them all along," Gilleylan said. "One day soon I hope to get to work on a large stone."

Most of his works have been necessarily small. Money is not his chief asset, and large stone blocks are expensive.

Kansas City critics call Gilleylan's best work a sandstone portrait of colts, called "Twins."

The feature exhibit at the annual outdoor art fair here was Gilleylan's. It was featured by "Twins" and surrounding the sandstone work were jade figurines which have attracted considerable attention, and horses carved from mahogany.

Texas Counties On "Vegetable" Roster

McALLEN, Tex.—Three lower Rio Grande Valley counties—Hidalgo, Cameron and Willacy—were listed among the five leading vegetable-growing counties of Texas during 1934 in the vegetable acreage report for that year just issued by William L. Austin, director of the Bureau of the Census, United States Department of Commerce, in Washington.

The valley counties, along with the Nueces and Zavala counties, were, according to the report, "the five leading vegetable-growing counties of the state and reported more than 37 per cent of the total state acreage of market vegetables in 1934."

Cat Travels 150 Miles To Be With Kittens

COURTNAY, B. C.—For cats that came back, Miss Pussycat, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Alep Hill of Victoria, holds a near record.

When the Hills moved from Courtnay to Victoria, 150 miles, they took Miss Pussycat with them, but left behind a family of nearly grown kittens. Shortly after arrival at her new home, the cat disappeared. Several days later she was back in Courtnay, but neighbors shipped her back to Victoria.

Police Enrolling At a University

EVANSTON, Ill.—Police will go to school at Northwestern University this fall. A new course offered by the traffic safety institute opens in October.

All the atmosphere of university work will attend this traffic study, with from five to ten fellowships available for officers ranking highest in local and regional examinations. Further atmosphere is lent by the fact that Evanston, home of the university, is termed "America's Safest City."

The scientific crime detection laboratory will be available for the students with emphasis on traffic accidents. Officers winning fellowships will participate in setting up accident prevention bureaus in one or more cities.

According to the Police Chiefs News Letter, increased attention is being paid traffic problems. A course at the University of Alabama this summer graduates 79 police officers, who represented every Southern state but two. A course sponsored by the Harvard Bureau for Street Traffic Research and the International Association of Chiefs of Police had an advanced enrollment of more than 75 officers.

ONTARIO TRAFFIC HEAVY

TORONTO, Ont.—All railway traffic records in Northern Ontario are being shattered by the invasion of United States this summer, railway officials here report. One company reported it handled 45 camping parties, with a total of more than 1,000 members, in one week-end.

Acamedy Sends An Explorer Out After Grizzlies

PHILADELPHIA—Major Nicholas Biddle, big-game hunter, explorer, and World War officer, is off on another expedition with gun and camera for a sortie against Rocky Mountain grizzly bear.

Biddle, president of the Pennsylvania State Game Commission, left here by airplane for Pitchfork, Wyo., scene of an earlier expedition, to bring back the bears for a display to be placed in the North American Hall of the Academy of Natural Sciences.

He will establish his headquarters on the ranch of Charles Belden, where in 1934 the game commissioner acquired the academy's habitat group of prong-horn antelope.

The academy is extremely eager to get the grizzly habitat group for their collection as the bear was named by George Ord, a former president of the academy.

Biddle has engaged in numerous hunts for birds and animals to be added to the collections of the academy. He has visited Honduras, Alaska, Haiti and British Columbia. On his expedition to Honduras, Biddle narrowly escaped death when his canoe overturned, drowning his guide.
