Diary of Col. Travis Has Been Found

By United Press
AUSTIN.—The diary of Colonel William Barrett Travis, believed lost for almost 100 years, has been found and added to the James Harper Starr collection at the University of Texas. The Starr collection contains more than 100,000 documents concerned with Texas history.
The diary is said by historians to give a remarkable insight into the affairs in Texas prior to the fall of the Alamo, when Colonel Travis and 185 fighting men under his command perished in the fight for Texas independence. Though actually covering only 10 months, from August, 1833 to June, 1834, the diary sketches in past incidents as background material.
"The diary was kept with a great deal of abandon," historians said. "It gives a remarkable insight into the people of that period; their customs and their political problems. It is truly a cross-section of the life of that period."
The original Starr collection has been termed by many Texas historians the most valuable collection of historical documents of Texas in existence. They also consider the diary the outstanding find of the collection.
The ancient document was found among business papers of Dr. James H. Starr a few months ago. It is inscribed in Dr. Starr's own handwriting as the personal diary of William Barrett Travis. There is also a note explaining how it came into the possession of the Starr family.
After the Alamo fell and Sam Houston began his retreat he ordered San Felipe burned to keep it from falling into the hands of the Mexican army. Colonel Travis and J. T. Starr had been law partners at San Felipe. When the law office burned Starr managed to save the diary.
During his lifetime Dr. Starr served as surgeon general of the Republic of Texas and assistant postmaster general of the Confederacy.
The diary probably will be published by the Texas Historical Society in the next few months. For the present it will become a part of the society's historical exhibit at the Central Centennial Exposition in Dallas.
Donors are the grandchildren of Dr. Starr. They include Frank S. Pope, Benjamin S. Pope, Mrs. Ruth Starr Blake, Mrs. Hattie Starr Spellings, Mrs. Sally Starr McGee, all of Marshall, and Mrs. Mary Starr Niendorf, Dallas.

Failure to Face Facts Costs Americans Dearly

When we are afraid of a thing, we hate to hear its name used. And so it happens that the word, "Cancer," is more or less taboo.

A reminder of this came during recent sessions of the American Roentgen Ray Society in Cleveland. Three Philadelphia specialists addressed the X-ray experts on the question whether cancer sufferers should be told frankly that they have the malady.

The conclusion was that in most cases they should. The man who knows that he has a cancer will at least do all that he can do to get cured.

Eminently sensible, you say? To be sure — and yet it is the sort of advice which we seem to have an instinctive tendency to ignore.

There are certain diseases which we simply will not talk about. We actually seem to try to pretend that they do not exist.

The ostrich is not the only two-legged creature that likes to hide its head in the sand. We have the same habit. And — because some of these diseases could be brought under control if we would face them frankly — we pay a frightful cost for it.

We won't talk about cancer or even admit that it exists, if we can help it. We won't talk or write about venereal diseases — although you would not be exaggerating very much if you said that this was in some respects the greatest problem that faces the race today.

Syphilis is both preventable and curable. A proper program of public education, utilizing to the full that medical science has been able to find out about the disease could wipe this scourge of humanity off the books — or, at least, could reduce it to manageable proportions.

But will we stand for such a program? We will not. If a newspaper or a magazine as much as mentions it, we feel offended. If a public speaker touches on it, we feel that he has made a bad social error.

Yet a reliable authority tells us that there are 10,000,000 cases of the disease in America, with 400,000 new ones developing each year!

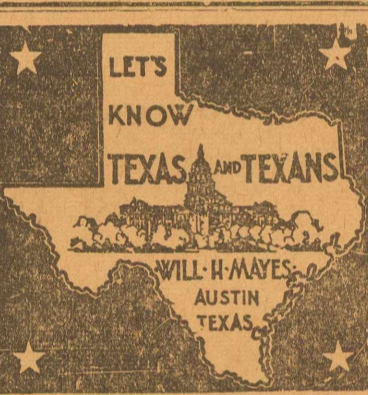

And so we go on, paying a horrible price in insanity, progressive physical deterioration, and death. We spend millions for asylums for the insane, workhouses, poor farms, and hospitals which this disease makes necessary.

In some supremely stupid way we seem to find this better than facing the issue frankly, and doing what is necessary to get the malady under control.

The doctor's greatest ally is public enlightenment; his greatest handicap, public ignorance.

Two days from the electric chair, a Sing Sing inmate asked that the prison radio be turned on, since he can't have music wherever he goes.

It is more important for parents to know if the child is showing initiative or attaining self-control, or learning to play in harmony with others, than it is to know if his grade is 80 per cent or 100 per cent.

Rev. Mrs. Earl Alexander and her husband and Miss Gwendolyn Brazelle returned Saturday night from a two weeks trip to Chattanooga, Tennessee, where they attended the annual Assembly of the Church of God. While there, they drove up to the top of Lookout Mountain, where they could see points in seven states. On their return they stopped at Cleveland, Tennessee, and visited the two orphanages (of their church). At the same place they went through the publishing house where all their church literature is printed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Jones, of Gladewater, came Sunday to get their son, A. D. Jr., who had been here with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Stover, while he was recovering from a broken neck caused by diving into shallow water. The plaster cast was taken off of his neck about ten days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gentry, and three children of Wichita Falls, came down Saturday to spend the week-end with her brother, J. H. Rushing, Jr., and family. Mrs. Grace Bray, mother of Mrs. Gentry and Mr. Rushing, came with them and will remain for some time. Her many friends are glad to welcome Mrs. Bray back to our town.

Rev. E. M. Daily, in an effort to bring up the financial obligations of the Methodist church before the meeting of the annual conference Nov. 4th, invited the preachers from neighboring towns to speak to the congregation on each night last week until Thursday night, when a banquet was held. The ladies of the missionary society planned the dinner, which was served in the Sunday school rooms. All ladies of the church assisted the missionary society in providing the several items on the menu. Quite a large crowd was present and much interest was taken in the pastor's plans. On Saturday night, the presiding elder, Rev. J. B. Curry of Cisco, came down and preached that night and Sunday morning, closing the series of services with quarterly conference Sunday afternoon. Rev. Curry, Rev. Daily and his two daughters, Misses Rebecca and Rita Joyce, were noon dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee.

The many friends of G. N. Grice of Stephenville will be glad to know that he is improving at the Blackwell Sanitarium at Gorman, after having undergone a major operation on Thursday.

Y. L. Dabney of DeLeon was here Wednesday visiting his brother, Lee Dabney, and family, and looking after his property.

C. O. Bragg spent the week-end at Santa Anna and on Sunday brought home Mrs. Bragg and son, Charles, who had spent the week there as her father was ill. (We were in error last week in stating that her mother was ill).

The Methodist Missionary society met at the church Monday afternoon and had the second lesson in the study book, "Preface to Racial Relations." Mrs. W. H. Whitworth, superintendent of study, conducted the lesson with the several special assignments to Mrs. Preston Sparks, who had drawn a large map of Africa and talked on the different divisions of the continent, and the Mrs. S. B. Snodgrass, who had a paper on "The Plight of the Cotton Farmer" and to Miss Mollie O'Rear, who had a paper on the "Negro Worker," and to Mrs. C. O. Bragg, who read an article from Worth Star-Telegram, in which the writer commented on the new 12 million dollar building for the U. S. Supreme Court and then commented on a negro cabin. The president of the society, Mrs. Charles Lee, gave out sample copies of the Holland's magazine, for which the members will take subscriptions. Mrs. Bedford reported that several bottles of vanilla and several packages of Betty Brites had been sold. Also, during the short business session, it was voted that the society should buy some beaver board (and help to make the church more comfortable for the winter).

Mrs. Dick Cutting of Gorman visited her aunt, Mrs. Charles Lee, Sunday afternoon.

S. T. Stover returned Sunday night from a business trip to Del Rio. His sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daniels, brought him home from DeLeon, where he had come by bus.

W. F. MacDermott of Fort Worth was here on Tuesday, looking after his gasoline and oil business. While here he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Williams.

On Friday night athletic coach Travis Roach took the Desdemona Porkers to DeLeon, where they played their second conference game of the season, in which they defeated DeLeon by a score of 6 to 0. The pep squad girls and a large number of Desdemona fans accompanied the Porkers. The team made a record last year of winning every game, and was only scored on one time. The games of last season were not conference games, so the games won this year will be more important.

Mr. and Mrs. James Everett of Eastland and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Everett of Ranger visited Monday night with their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Stark.

R. D. Hendrickson of Port Arthur visited his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Bruce, on Saturday night.

orchards had passed state and federal department of agriculture requirements for sugar and juice content but only one grapefruit orchard passed inspection during the first three days of the citrus season, according to Ray R. Losh, supervisor of maturity testing stations in the Upper Valley.

The first grapefruit to pass inspection came from the 10-acre orchard of J. C. Lowe on the Valley View Road south of Donna. Lowe's fruit was of the Marsh seedless variety and graded size 96 and larger Losh reported.

A total of 1,449 tests had been made in the Valley through the first of October, with the large majority showing lack of either sufficient sugar or sufficient juice content to permit releasing under regulations set up by the state and federal departments.

First truckload of 1936 oranges to leave the Valley was enroute to Houston from the plant of W. E. Baden of Pharr.

There's football on the air Saturday afternoon, with three games being broadcast by the Humble Oil & Refining Company over ten Texas stations. A BOUNTIFUL ending makes the whole meal good. If your dinner menu seems a little thin, break a 9-ounce package of dry mince meat into pieces, add 1-2 cup cold water, and loil until almost dry. Cool. Beat 1 egg slightly, add 1-2 cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind and 1-2 cups dry cake crumbs. Mix well, then add the moist mince meat. Pour into pudding mold, or into large, thoroughly cleaned coffee tin, filling 2-3 full. Cover tightly. Steam 1 hour with boiling water half way up on mold. If necessary, add more water. Serve warm with Foamy Sauce.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grape Nuts, wheat flakes, hot bacon rolls, coffee. LUNCHEON: Cream of spinach soup, toasted crisp rolls with melted cheese, ginger pears, nut cake, tea, milk. DINNER: Fruit cup, broiled ham steak, creamed potatoes, buttered young cabbage, steamed fruit pudding, foamy sauce, coffee.

KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a run-down Blue Grass farm with their grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHY and ZEKE. Kate is engaged to handsome MORRIS MORGAN, who neglects her for EVE ELWELL, beautiful and wealthy.

with bric-a-brac and clothes piled around her. The two cars reached the new house half an hour before the wagon arrived, all using a narrow dirt road that led through to the other pike. Caroline was grateful for the privacy of their progress, Kate was too emotionally involved to care.

the time of high tension and jittery nerves. She was accepting this comedown in life as calmly as old Dobbin and the two work horses would accept it.

WHEN they had come to a stop in the weedy yard of the place they mechanically got out and mounted the steps of the rickety porch. It was the first time the girls had ever been on the premises. When Althy and Zeke had cleaned it the week before they had not even questioned them afterward. They had held its existence at bay, like a trip to the dentist.

TOWARD evening, while the girls were attempting to mend a broken chair in the living room, a florist truck from town stopped before the house. Its driver spied Rutherford, peeping around a corner. "Boy," he called, "is this where Major Sam Meed's family moved to?"

As the Major opened the front door now with a crooked key and ushered them over the threshold, Kate asked, "Is this the hall?" "It's the sitting room," answered her grandfather.

At the boy's affirmation he got out, opened the rear of the truck and took out three of the most enormous boxes imaginable. "Ain't nobody died!" the little darkey told him.

When Kate and Zeke had cleaned it the week before they had not even questioned them afterward. They had held its existence at bay, like a trip to the dentist.

Kate answered. The delivery was for her. The man departed with grave respect and left her holding the enormous boxes, dismayed.

They went outdoors and discovered the fowls already at home within the wire netting of the chicken yard, where Zeke had put them that morning. "Silly things!" Kate hissed at Caroline as they watched them pecking.

They did. Each box held a dozen perfect American beauty roses with enormously long stems. In one box there was a sealed envelope. Kate took it to the porch to open it, unwilling to share the thrill of the moment even with Caroline.

A disturbance was heard and Caroline exclaimed with a giggle, "Look at our cavalcade arriving!" The two wagons presented a grotesque appearance. Especially the smaller one, driven by Althy, for at its rear end sat a small and intent colored boy—Althy's grandson, Rutherford—leading the girls' two riding horses by halters. Shep, the farm dog, brought up the ring to Zeke.

"Open them," Caroline suggested. They did. Each box held a dozen perfect American beauty roses with enormously long stems. In one box there was a sealed envelope. Kate took it to the porch to open it, unwilling to share the thrill of the moment even with Caroline.

"Well, we're here!" Kate called out. "Critters and all!" There was a sound of relief in her voice, half-gay.

They went outdoors and discovered the fowls already at home within the wire netting of the chicken yard, where Zeke had put them that morning. "Silly things!" Kate hissed at Caroline as they watched them pecking.

It took them all afternoon to get the furniture in place. Kate, from time to time, would leave the confusion of the house and go to the barn lot to see if the horses were finding life endurable there. Caroline's little mare, Queen, was getting old. Though her black coat was still sleek and her small feet still trustworthy, she had passed

... There flashed into her mind the basket of heavenly food Morgan might have sent in place of them—a cake potted meats, olives, home-made rolls from the Exchange, some of those attractive assortments of cheese. She was very hungry, for, like the others, she had had no lunch. The kitchen stove was not up yet. Supper was still only a mirage. But Kate fed her soul on the flowers and did not know that she was hungry.

NEW YORK.—Political struggles of two European nations and an island in the Caribbean figure in the re-election of Congressman Vito Marcantonio in New York's Twentieth district. Not to mention Tammany Hall as a factor.

for him—whereas conservative Republicans in many cases support Lanzetta.

One of the most, if not the most, radical members of Congress, Marcantonio faces a hard fight. He is the man who last winter forced a partial investigation of the silicosis mass tragedy in West Virginia, which caused considerable horror around the country for awhile.

An even stronger reminder of European political alignments, in this district where candidates usually travel with bodyguards, is the fact that Marcantonio is not only the candidate of the Republicans and the All People's Party, but also of the People's Front—all three parties appearing on the ballot.

Large populations of Italian-Americans and Spanish-Americans reside in the tough Harlem district which this vigorous 33-year-old fighter represents. Which means that both the Fascist and anti-Fascist battle and the Spanish revolution are being fought, in a small way, in Marcantonio's bailiwick.

Marcantonio is not supporting Roosevelt—or Landon, for that matter—and the administration isn't supporting Marcantonio. But, unlike Roosevelt, he isn't repudiating Communist support and seeks all the radical votes he can get.

Marcantonio is against the Fascists both times a week, they're against him and it is all very bitter. Marcantonio is the Republican nominee.

Running on the All People's Party ticket with Marcantonio is Angelo Herndon, a colored Communist sentenced to 20 years on a chain gang for circulating Communist propaganda in violation of an old state anti-sectition law. The slogan is: "Keep Herndon out of jail by electing him to the assembly!"

HIS Democratic opponent is James J. Lanzetta, Tammany candidate and admirer of Mussolini. But several prominent liberal Democrats are out for Marcantonio—including his friend Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas, who will make a speech

The Caribbean comes into the Twentieth district picture by virtue of the fact that there are thousands of resident Puerto Rican voters whose support is sought by Lanzetta and Marcantonio.

MARCANTONIO was campaign manager for Fiorello H. LaGuardia when the latter ran for Congress in 1932, and subsequently won LaGuardia's old seat when "the Little Flower" was elected mayor.

BLUE EARTH, Minn.—Big cities and fast trains are fine things for babies, according to Mrs. Susan Frawley Eisele, who is back on her husband's farm near here after a visit to New York and Washington, where she spent two weeks as winner of The Country Home magazine's annual award for the best country newspaper correspondent.

She reports that Albert Alois, Jr., 8 weeks old, whom she took with her on her first journey east, gained two and a half pounds during the trip, and seemed to thrive on big hotels, express trains and city air. On returning, Mrs. Eisele found a mass of fan mail.

Another Question About CARDUI

MOTHERS RECOMMEND IT "Why do so many MOTHERS recommend Cardui to their daughters?" Isn't it but natural that any good mother should tell her daughters about Cardui if the mother herself felt that she had been benefited by this medicine? It is impressive that so many women report having taken Cardui on the advice of their mothers. Cardui has been found to benefit women when weakened by malnutrition (poor nourishment); and it helps to relieve much discomfort at monthly periods. Thousands of women testify Cardui helped them. Of course, if it does not help you, consult a physician.

IN THE 80's

AND 90's before the dawn of the motor age, and when the bicycle represented frivolity's peak, life was safer and accidents fewer. Today the need for accident and health insurance is apparent enough to those who understand statistics on sickness, injuries and accidental death. Don't put off getting that accident and health insurance.
