The Drunks Are Driving Us Back to Prohibition

The man who flung his hat in the air and gave three cheers when the eighteenth amendment was repealed ought to be leading a campaign these days to rid the road of drunken motorists. For if there is one thing that could conceivably restore national prohibition, it is the deadly mixture of alcohol and gasoline.

Anyone who thinks that the American people will put up with this menace indefinitely is crazy. Traffic is dangerous enough even when all hands are stone sober. Add to it those half wits who don't see anything wrong in getting behind the wheel after they have had a few drinks, and you create an intolerable situation.

Continue that situation long enough and you will find a new sentiment for prohibition, just as surely as night follows day.

Here's an example. In Ohio the other day some 30 young members of a church organization hired a wagon and a team of horses and went out for an old-fashioned "hay ride" along a country highway. The wagon was lighted adequately with lanterns, fore and aft. The night was clear.

Up from behind came an automobile. There was plenty of room to pass, but the driver apparently never saw the wagon. He smashed right into it, knocking it into a ditch, where it overturned and pinned the young people beneath splintered wreckage. One lad was killed and 14 others were severely hurt.

The driver of the auto admitted that he had had "two beers and two highballs" before starting out to drive. Police said bluntly that he was drunk.

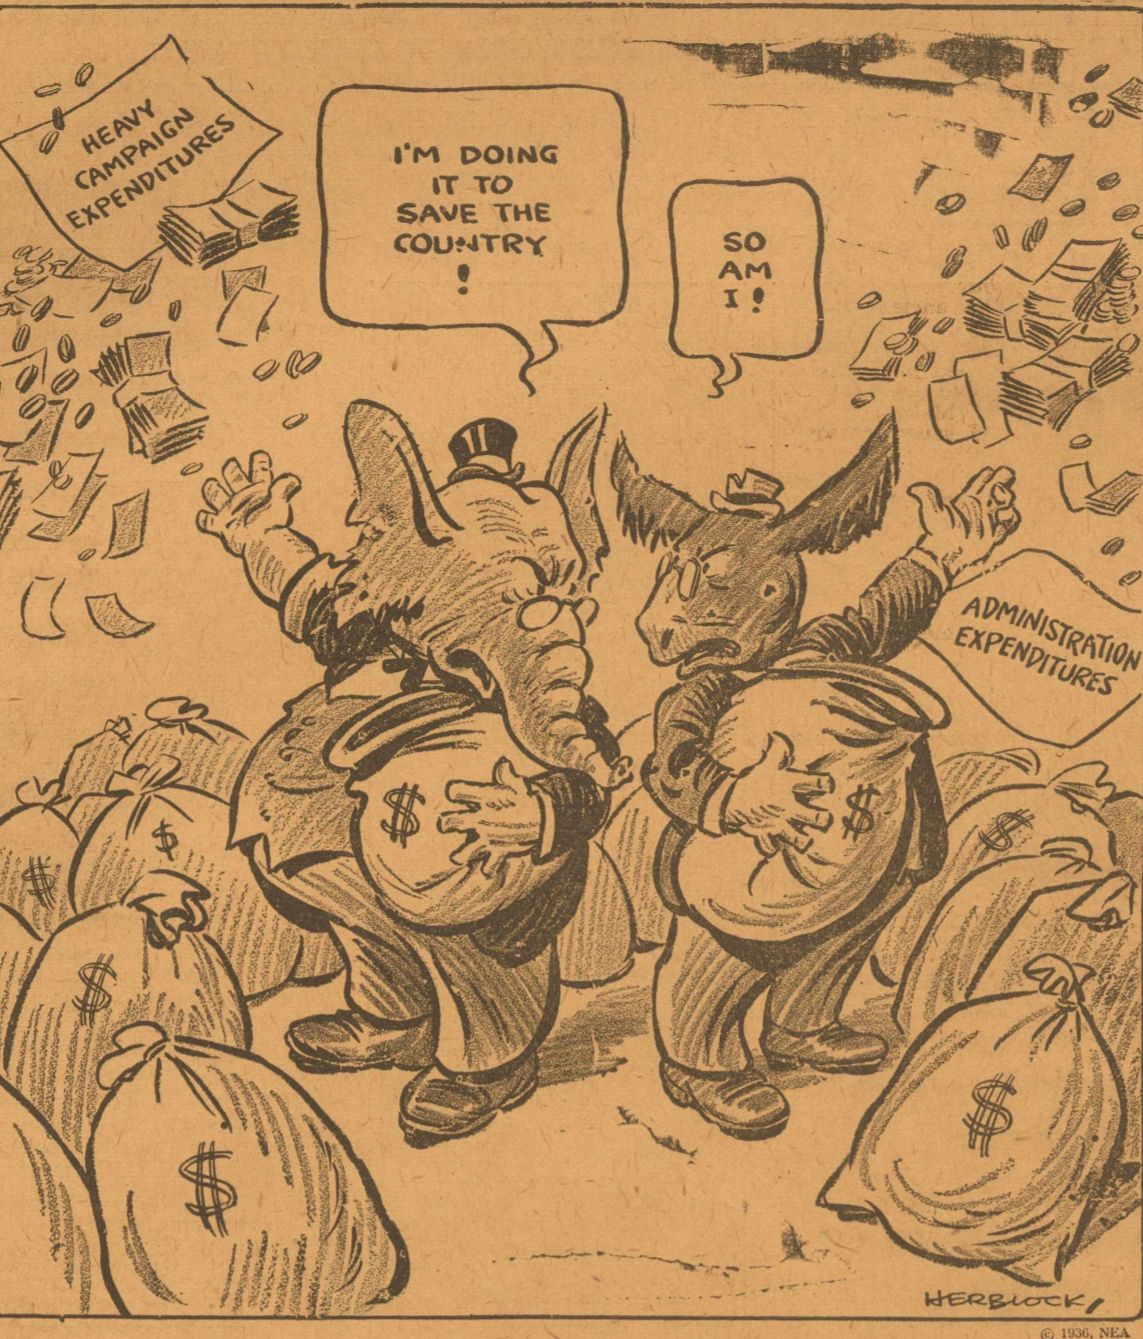

Now if you would go around among the survivors of that accident, and among their families, you might mind a surprising amount of sentiment in favor of a restoration of prohibition.

You could talk yourself blue in the face about the evils of bootlegging, about rum-runners and gangsters and the failure of enforcement, and all the rest. It is very doubtful that they would listen to you. They would feel that anything would be better than the present situation — and you could hardly blame them.

The traffic situation as a whole is bad enough, heaven knows, without being made more grievous by alcohol. Since the race contains a certain percentage of fools, we probably always will have drivers who cut in, pass on curves, and do the other things that cause accidents. But alcohol is a complication of our own addition.

Unless we do something drastic, and do it soon, to keep drunks from behind steering wheels, we are very likely to see a new demand for prohibition — a demand that will maze everyone who assumed that the question was settled for good when the eighteenth was repealed.

COINED BEEF with cabbage seems to be based on an unending human desire. But you can refresh your menus with a variation of the ancient theme. Scallop the dish and cover with a mashed potato top. Use 2-2 cups cooked corned beef, cut into 1-2 inch cubes, and 3 cups cooked cabbage. Make 3-3-4 cups smooth creamed sauce, seasoned lightly with mustard and a little lemon juice. Go easy on the salt because the corned beef will attend to that.
Pest Potato Well
Mix the corned beef cubes, cabbage and cream sauce. Pour into a casserole. Now for the cover. Mash your potatoes, mix with butter and hot milk, then beat and beat and beat. They should be fluffy, airy, ready to leap for joy. Spread over top of the other mixture, then place in hot oven long enough to brown the potato top. Garnish with a fresh sprig of parsley, then place before the family. A new idea certain to win you the admiration of your guests and your mother-in-law plus ability. Boil 4 cups water, stir in 1 cup white or yellow corn meal. Add salt to taste. Cook until meal begins to thicken. Grease a round baking dish. Line with corn meal. Use 2 cups cubed corn beef mixed with 1-2 cup cubed cubed potatoes, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 1/2 cup condensed tomato soup. Pour into corn meal shell. Over top place small balls of the moist, cooked corn meal. Bake in moderate oven for a little less than an hour. Turn the dish three different ways, and calculate to wake up any jaded appetite. And it is very inexpensive.
Creamed Corned Beef
Corned beef creamed and served on toast—a luncheon dish which need make no apology. To your cream sauce, add a tablespoon catsup and a little chopped parsley. Drop the corned beef, add and heat.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By Rodney D. Usher
WASHINGTON.—The United States Supreme Court has been rather effectively kept out of the election campaign and if it finds itself now involved it has only itself to blame.
The justices aren't passing on any more New Deal legislation before election day. But their answer to petitions for a rehearing on the New York state minimum wage law will generally be taken as approximately equating in importance the 5 to 4 decision against the law which the court handed down early in the summer.
The original decision had a pronounced influence on the two political campaigns and probably on the campaign as well. Popular reaction was such as to bolster somewhat the administration as against the court and to cause Governor Landon to suggest a possible constitutional amendment—the inevitable effect being to color what many politicians had figured would be a clear-cut issue.
Lately the politicians have again been figuring. New Dealers decided that if the court should grant the rehearing asked by New York, Illinois, and other states which have minimum wage laws, they would be able to cry out that even the supreme court itself had recognized that it wasn't infallible.
On the other hand, if the petition were denied, they would again be able to picture the five conservative justices as hard-jawed, biased reactionaries. Republicans, in the first instance, felt they could make a point of saying the court had proved itself flexible but fair, and in the second contingency could point to Landon's suggesting a possible amendment.
New York and 11 other states have undertaken to continue enforcement of their minimum wage laws for women and children since the decision. They have taken the position, outlined in the petition for rehearing, that the court didn't really pass on the validity of the New York law, but had erroneously assumed that New York wasn't asking it to reconsider principles asserted in the Adkins decision in 1923.
New York, Illinois, and other states came back with the emphatic request for such reconsideration, claiming that the reasoning in the Adkins case had been offset by subsequent court decisions.
The petition tended to put Justice Owen J. Roberts in a hole. Although he was able to stand with—and make—the majority last summer against the law, he declared in the Nebbia case that "so far as the requirement of a state is free to adopt whatever economic policy may reasonably be deemed to promote public welfare and to enforce that policy by legislation adapted to its purpose."
ONE table says the oldest of the justices has a life expectancy of more than four years and so it might be deduced that Roosevelt would have no chance to fill a court vacancy if re-elected.
On the other hand, since 1759 no five years have ever passed without the occurrence of a vacancy. The last one was in 1932, when Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes resigned and was succeeded by Cardozo.

Sport Glances By Grayson

FIVE years ago a horse of which much was expected came to the turf. His name was Action and he was a chestnut son of the once great distance horse, Olambala, out of Violet Play. Violet Play was a daughter of Fair Play, marvelous sire of the line of imported Australian horses and the sire of Man o' War, among others.
Action was bred by R. T. Wilson, a breeder of great note. In those days people still hoped for something great from Olambala, and Action, as his name would suggest, was one which could keep the fire going. But Action turned out as disappointingly as had the majority of the offspring of Olambala.
Tried in the crucible of racing, he enjoyed only indifferent success, and then only in claiming events. Distances of a mile to a mile and an eighth seemed to suit him best, and he reared among platers of the $3500 class.
Action changed hands several times, and then, because of his size and conformation, passed into the hands of the Sanford Stud. There he was broke for steeplechasing, with the hope that he would have the same success that many another stable had achieved when using sound, well-made, but slow horses for jumping.
But here again Action was a failure.
HIRSCH JACOBS, America's leading trainer for the last several years, saw the horse and liked him. He bought Action for his wife's account for $1000.
Action thrives on the mistakes of other and more famous trainers. He takes walk-bred failures from rich stables and makes consistent winners out of them.
He had that in mind for the 7-year-old Action, a failure for five years under half a dozen trainers, on the flat and over the jumps. But other trainers, knowing Action, thought he'd at last jumped off the deep end. But they figured without Jacobs' ability.
Hirsch Jacobs is the great genius of the training ranks. He has no Granvilles in his stables, nor any Cavalcades. He seldom has much to start with, but he knows how to make what he has blossom into class of sorts and stay there.
Action, a five-year failure, has won 11 of his last 12 starts and finished second in the other under Jacobs' handling. He started down among the lower platers, and, as he improved, Jacobs sent him after the higher ones. By the last of September he had the aging horse in top shape, and sent him out in one of America's famous races, the Manhattan Handicap.
DARK SECRET, one of our greatest distance cup horses, made this race famous. And though it is just a conditioner of a mile and a half for the two-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup, it is one of the best handicaps offered each year. Its purse is about five times the purchase price Hirsch Jacobs paid for the chestnut.
Action won the race as easily as any he has run this year, and in doing so humbled so good a horse as Firethorn, winner of the Gold Cup last year.
Where Action will stop no one can say. But if he continues his present winning stride, some breeder may give the dying line of Olambala one more chance to live.
In the summer of 1831, the number had increased to 5,665.

KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a Blue Grass farm with their grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALFIE and ZEKI. Kate is engaged to handsome MORGAN PRENTISS, who neglects her for EVE BELWELL, beautiful and wealthy.
Major Meed, subjected to drink, mortgages and the mortgage is foreclosed by JEFF HOWARD, bitter young mountaineer, who decides to settle among the Blue Grass families whom he hates.
While the Meeds are packing to move into a dilapidated tenant house, Jeff arrives to inspect his property. Kate treats him rudely and he responds with insolence. The day for the Meeds to move arrives.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XI
AFTER Kate and Caroline had finished painting the wood-work white there was a little paint left in one of the cans. Kate's brush was still temptingly wet. She said to Caroline, with an innocent look, "I must put Granddad's name on the mailbox. There's a law about it."
"Do it neatly," Caroline warned.
"The box sits right beside the front gate, you know."
Kate nodded and went out to the picket fence. With a corner of her brush she painted SAM MEED on the box in even, blocked letters. But beneath it she painted RICKETY HOUSE in letters twice as large and very straggling.
When Caroline came out and saw it she frowned and burst into laughter. She called her grandfather to see. He laughed, too.
The little joke caught on in town. Some of the younger set sensed the fact that humor was the only tolerable approach to the Meeds' new position, directed mail to them with that address attached. There came a dance invitation to the Meed girls of RICKETY HOUSE before a week had passed. It was from Cynthia Chenault who would be a senior at Wellesley the following year. The card was engraved, but there was an informal note accompanying it. Kate read it aloud:
"Dear Country Jakes! You will spend the night at my house, of course. Come before 7 o'clock. We'll have a tray dinner up in the library because the downstairs will be ready for the crush. I've two men coming for every girl, can you bear it? And a little orchestra you've heard over the radio. Louisville papers please copy. Don't worry about—"
KATE paused and scrutinized the paper. She said to Caroline with a sharp little frown below her eyes, "Cynthia's rubbed out something and written over it. At first she wrote 'don't worry about new dresses,' but she's rubbed out the last two words."

First Week Night Of Revival Here Draws Good Crowd

BY DR. L. H. GRAY

The first week-night service in the revival at the First Presbyterian church was fairly well attended. As on the preceding night, Mr. Cleveland gave a Bible to the side bringing the largest number. The young people are divided by the Endeavorers into the "Whites" and the "Blues", each side wearing their respective colors. Again tonight, a Bible will be given to the side of the young people bringing the larger number.

Mr. Cleveland's message related to the deepening of consecration on the part of the church people. It was a strong, Biblical and heart-searching sermon. He is not a sensational preacher, but speaks with all the earnestness of his soul for the cause of Christ and His Kingdom. An earnest invitation and a warm welcome is extended to members of other churches and to all the Christians in the community to come and get the benefit of these services. Whether in the church or not, this is an opportunity for the citizenship of Ranger to secure a moral and spiritual uplift through the ministry of this man of God. Surely many more people in our city can find time for an hour or two of worship and work at the greatest task God ever gave to men—the salvation of the lost, and the rebuilding of the church in its most holy faith.

Services at 7:30 tonight, and each week night.

Says Rotarianism Brings Harmony in Rivalry of Cities

An opinion that Rotary clubs have done much to bring about a friendlier and more cooperative business and social relationship between the rival cities of Ranger, Eastland and Cisco was expressed Monday at the Eastland club by Fred Wemple of Midland, governor of the 41st district.

Beside the inter-city efforts of Rotary, Wemple stated the organization brings a practical accord of different factions and coordinates community effort.

Formation of a club at Tahoka, with 28 members, the first to be organized in the district since 1929, was announced by the governor. His district extends from Temple on the south to Dalhart on the north and from Odessa on the west to Arlington on the east. He said there are 60 clubs in the district with the addition of Tahoka. Wemple was introduced by Jim Horton.

Ben Hammer was presented with a past-president's pin.

Visitors were C. R. Slinger of Fort Worth and H. H. Kaderli of Midland.

Band Benefit Game Plans Go Forward

Plans were going forward today for the soft ball game, which is to be played at Municipal field on Thursday evening for the benefit of the Ranger Band.

Thursday evening, after the pep rally for the Ranger-Big Spring game, Robinson Grocery will play Lone Star Gasoline, under the sponsorship of the Elks.

Tickets have been printed, which will be sold by members of the pep squad, and a concerted campaign to sell as many as possible will be started. Admission prices will be 15 cents for children and 25 cents for adults.

All the proceeds from the game, above actual expenses for lights, will go to the band to help swell the fund that is being raised to purchase new uniforms.

Black-Draught High In Quality Without Being High In Price

Black-Draught is "easy to pay for" because it is so economically packaged and so reliable.

But as to quality, there's nothing "cheap" about it. For instance, its principal active ingredient is the leaves of a certain species of plant that are brought 10,000 miles from where they grow to the factory where the medicine is made. These leaves from far, far away, help to give Black-Draught its well-known "laxative reliability." They could not be left out, or substituted, without real loss of good medicinal quality.

For a good, purely vegetable laxative, insist on Black-Draught. About 25 doses in each 25-cent package.

Seaplanes Rescue Shipwreck Victims

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 20—Seaplanes landing repeatedly amidst floating wreckage saved 43 of 178 reported rescued from a mysterious disaster off Java, the steamship Vanderwijk, perhaps the result of an undersea earthquake.

CONCRETE HIGHWAYS PAY FOR THEMSELVES

Three reasons why concrete is the most economical pavement:

1. Long life and low upkeep—funds which would otherwise be spent for repairs may be used to complete your highway system.
2. Scientific investigation has proved that it costs motorists less to drive on concrete than on inferior surfaces.
3. Concrete builds business, promotes travel. A town on concrete is moved closer to all markets.

And in addition to these money-reasons concrete pavements give motorists relaxation... comfort... and swift travel with SAFETY!

Reports Take Time Of C. C. Directors

Reports from several committees took up a major portion of the time of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting Monday night.

A report on the banquet given the filling station managers last Friday night was presented to the directors, after which a motion was made and carried that prices be secured on large placards to give the outstanding facts about the city, the placards to be placed in each filling station. The motion was amended to include having the secretary get up information for the placards.

A. J. Raliff, chairman of the fair grounds committee, reported that his committee had not as yet selected a suitable site for a permanent fair grounds. F. P. Brashier made a report on the Rising Star fair, which closed recently, and which, he said, was one of the best of its kind in this part of the state.

Those present at the meeting were J. J. Kelly, R. V. Galloway, F. P. Brashier, A. J. Raliff, C. D. Woods, T. J. Anderson, S. P. Bood, F. D. Hicks and J. E. Meroney.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.
