AGENTS SEEKING MISSING BOY NEAR AUSTIN

By United Press
AUSTIN, Oct. 21.—Department of Justice operatives throughout the Southwest today joined in the search for Dwight Saunders, 18-year-old University of Texas student missing since last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Saunders, parents of the missing boy who came to Austin to aid in the search said they believe his disappearance was connected with an active interest in communism.

"Since coming to the University Dwight has become interested in communism," Saunders said. "I do not believe it is prevalent in the university but I do believe it is a force working from outside the university. I run into it everywhere I turn."

Saunders could not explain his son's behavior.

Democratic Funds Are Being Raised In Local Canvass

No report had been made today on the amount of money collected the first day of the campaign to raise Ranger's part of the Eastland County quota for the national democratic fund.

Reports from other parts of the county indicated that an active campaign was being waged by those in charge, and a ready response was being accorded to the request for funds. This was believed to be partly due to the fact that Eastland County has received a good share of the money spent under the relief setup of the present administration.

Ray Newnam is actively in charge of the Ranger quota-raising drive and started his solicitations from the leading democrats of the city Tuesday afternoon.

When completed the entire list of donors to the democratic cause is to be forwarded to the state democratic headquarters, Newnam said.

Boys from County Live On $10 Per Month at A. & M.

Nineteen Eastland County boys who are attending A & M College as members of the Eastland County project group received board and lodging their first month at an average expense of ten dollars each, according to Jack W. Morris of Ranger, manager of the group. The project is made up of nineteen boys from all parts of Eastland County and was organized last summer in cooperation with Elmo V. Cook, County Agent, and other A & M Ex-students of Eastland County.

Early in September a committee composed of Wesley Lane of Eastland, Billy Jake Joyce of Rising Star, and Jack Morris inspected several vacant houses near A & M College and rented a large house in Bryan. They were assisted in their plan by Dr. Daniel Russell, Head of the Rural Sociology Dept. of A & M. Just before school started a truck was hired to pick up the boys' baggage and other equipment at Ranger, Eastland, Rising Star, and Pioneer and take it to Bryan.

A house mother was hired whose duty it is to prepare meals for the boys and see that they are properly supervised. Practically every boy in the group has gained weight since school started. Groceries and other supplies are bought co-operatively through the Rural Sociology Dept. of the College.

The A & M Project House idea started five years ago with one project. Last year there were over 500 boys in 43 groups. This year there are 1000 boys staying in project houses. A & M College has the largest enrollment in history, more than 4,000 boys. It would have been impossible to accommodate all these boys but for the project groups. In former years, expenses of boys staying in project houses have been less than half the expenses of other students.

Eastland County boys who are members of the project are Cleo Key, L. A. Dolberry, Andy Taylor, Robert Henderson, Jack Gaylor, and Wesley Lane of Eastland; Jack Gray, Billie, Billie Jake Joyce, W. R. Roberts, and Claude Chastain of Rising Star; Foster Cash of Pioneer; W. C. Robert of Desdemona; James Collins of Cross Plains; and Jack Morris, Jack Waggoner, Jack Palmer, Jasper Woods, C. F. Poynor and Barton Watson of Ranger.

Two Nominees Lost Presidency With A Popular Vote Plurality For Them

WASHINGTON — Twice since the Civil War the electoral college method prescribed in the Constitution has enabled Presidential nominees to win although paradoxically defeated by popular vote.

In 1876 Rutherford B. Hayes was elected by an electoral vote of 185 to 184 for Samuel Tilden. Tilden had 260,000 more votes on the popular count. In 1888 Grover Cleveland was 100,000 votes ahead of Benjamin Harrison, but the latter went to the White House.

The electoral system is a relic of the country's real "horse and buggy" days. It was devised by the Constitution framers for a system of indirect election of President and Vice President through representatives of the people rather than by popular vote.

State's Rights Involved

State's rights, difficulty of travel and other such motives were involved in the original decision. Contrary to the original design, electors now are honor bound to vote for a specified candidate, but the original basis of state electoral votes still stands. This consists of one elector for each member of Congress—House and Senate—from a state.

As the system works out, Connecticut, for example, with a population equal to that of Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming combined has only about eight electoral votes, compared with 12 for the four smaller states.

Former Resident Of Ranger Given Life Imprisonment

ROBY, Oct. 21—J. D. Echols received a life sentence Tuesday in 194th district court, as a conviction of conspiracy to rob the First National Bank of Rotan automatically carried with it conviction under the habitual criminal act.

Notice of appeal was given by defense counsel.

Charge of conspiracy to commit a felony followed the arrest of Echols, Frank Hardy and J. H. Nowlin at Odessa early this year. The state charged that the three entered into a pact to rob the Rotan First National Bank, and approached R. J. Yantis, night watchman at the bank, to solicit his aid. Hardy and Nowlin will be tried on conspiracy charges at a later date.

Echols' conviction in 12 felony cases previous to the current one, was brought out by the state through a string of peace officers, who testified.

Virge Foster, sheriff, and Marjion Seabourn, constable, said Echols had been sent to the penitentiary from Eastland in 1927, in 12 cases of burglary, theft and concealment of stolen property.

Big Spring Takes Things Easy Before Game with Ranger

BIG SPRING—Discouraged by a 38-0 loss to Breckenridge, but still ready and willing to bear down and take another "polishing" if necessary, Steer coaches sent their charges through a very light workout yesterday afternoon, shaping them up for the Ranger Bulldogs here Friday night in another Oil Belt conference fracas.

Ranger, classed as the weakest eleven in the 9-team Oil Belt circuit, is expected to be a breather for the locals, despite Big Springs' rather poor record this season.

The Bulldog record:
Ranger 6, Strawn 12.
Ranger 0, Abilene 59.
Ranger 0, Weatherford 26.
Ranger 6, Eastland 45.

Services for Mrs. B. P. Middleton, sister of Mrs. Fannie Almand of Gorman, who was killed with her husband and daughter near Big Spring in an automobile accident, were held at Merkel this week. The Middleton's daughter was Mrs. W. A. Whitley, Jr.

The accident occurred as the Middleton's, with their daughter and her husband and their baby, were en route to Lamesa to visit a son, B. P. Middleton, Jr., and Mrs. Middleton. The Middleton sedan and a seed truck, driven by Elvis Newman, 28, of Lamesa, crashed.

HOUSE DENIED A VOTE UPON PENSION LAW

AUSTIN, Oct. 21.—Deliberation of the Texas old age assistance law was temporarily barred from house consideration today when Speaker Coke Stevenson of Junction ruled against it.

A ruling was made by Lt. Gov. Walter Woodul in permitting the senate to adopt clauses restricting payment to those actually in need.

Belief Gov. Allred will send a new message including that topic was expressed by administration leaders. Allred had left the capitol when Stevens ruled and could not be reached for comment.

LOYALISTS IN BIG COUNTER ATTACK TODAY

Loyalists launched an attack in force in the Illinois sector today, with artillery, planes and infantry.

The new offensive followed the pledge of government leaders to "fight to the death" and was made by millitiamen whose morale suddenly was heightened, reportedly by receipt of ample war supplies from abroad.

News which reached London was that the arms shipment was of great importance.

At Madrid there was another drastic change in atmosphere. This time it was to a semblance of confidence. A complete reorganization was effected in the loyalist army setup.

Diplomatically a new crisis was brewing. Russia was expected soon to denounce the international non-intervention agreement on the grounds Germany, Italy and Portugal were aiding the nationalists.

Latin-American nations sent notes to Madrid in an effort to silence demands that 2,000 host-ages sheltered in Latin-American legations be surrendered.

A Hopeful World Turns Toward Democracies

It is noteworthy that people who are trying to figure out what will happen next in Europe are beginning to look to London and Paris rather than to Berlin, Rome, or Moscow.

For although it is far too early to tell what may be the final effect of the trend toward international co-operation which was started by the monetary stabilization agreements, it is beginning to look as if the democracies of the world were at last taking the offensive.

In the language of football, the democracies have possession of the ball at last. They may be backed up to their own 20-yard line, but they are not on the defensive. For a little while, at any rate, they can call the plays and determine the strategy.

And in that fact lies reason to hope that this next war we all have been talking about may be indefinitely postponed.

To understand why this is so, one need do no more than reflect on the psychological atmosphere that a dictatorship must create.

A dictator is secure only as long as his people are afraid of someone. If he can keep them keyed up, solidly conscious of national unity in a hostile world, he can hold to his job with a tight grip.

Therefore, we find Mussolini eternally calling the people of Italy to arms against this, that, or the other peril.

We find Hitler taking every chance to remind the Germans that the world is against them and that they can get what they need only by being ready to fight for it.

We find Stalin keeping the Russians always on the alert against the menace of the Japanese and the Fascists. As long as such men set the key for the international concert, it is foolish to expect harmony.

But within the last few weeks the tune has changed slightly. Men are beginning to rediscover the possibilities that lie in co-operation. They are beginning to realize again that there is more to be gained by working together than by working against one another.

The old ideal of a world in which international trade and finance flow freely is being seen again.

Will this changed atmosphere restore a more or less secure peace? It may. It depends principally on what the English, the French, and the Americans do.

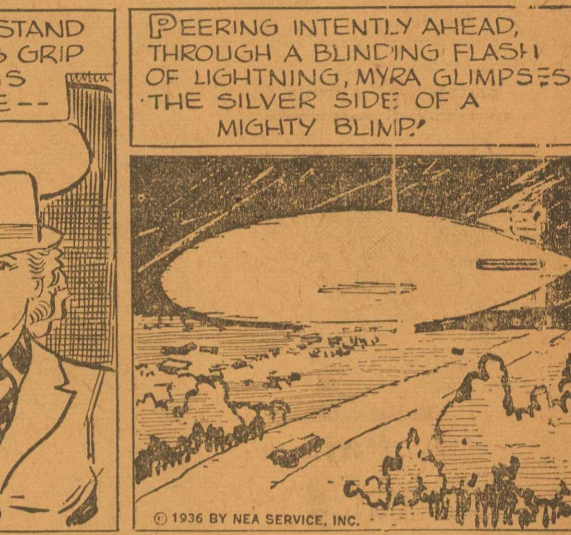

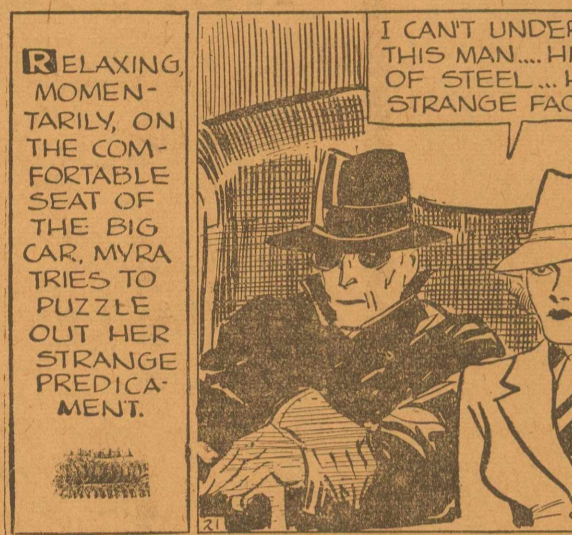

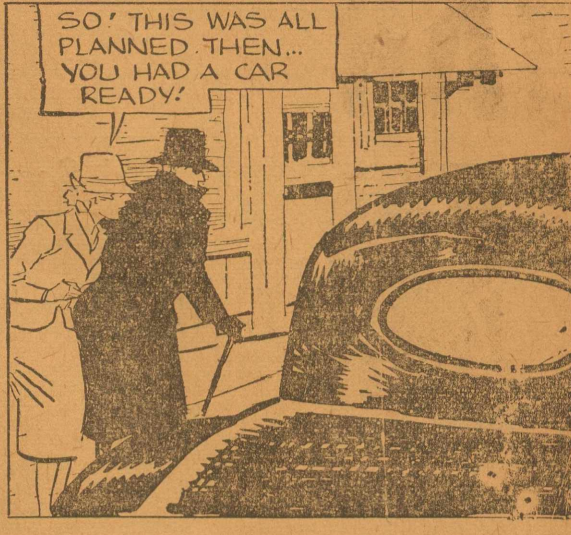

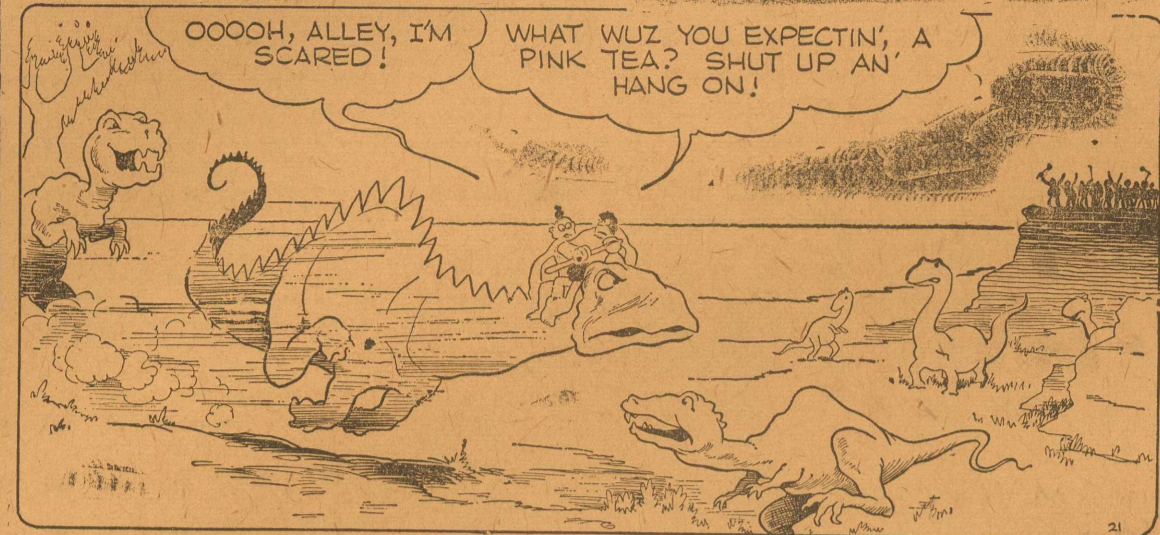

And that is the encouraging part about it. The democracies are not interested in keeping alive the threat of war. Above everything else they want a settled and peaceful world.

And when leadership in international affairs passes to their capitals, we at least have reason to hope that the world may eventually take a right turn away from war.

After seeing all the dust created by the midwest drouth, professional mudslingers are praying for a big rain before election.

THE LADY AND THE MOTH

This is the moth (inset) that laid the eggs that hatched the worms that spun the cocoons that supplied the silk that spun the yarn that made this hosiery so attractively displayed here. Silk, once considered too expensive for even an Empress, has gradually become a necessity of low price, worn daily by millions of women. During Ward Week, now being held at the Ward store, silk hosiery will be even lower in price than usual.

Filipino Group In Hawaii Asks For Envoy to Country

By United Press
HILO, Hawaii—Appointment of an official representative of the Philippine Commonwealth in the Territory of Hawaii has been asked of President Manuel Quezon.

State Forest Area Greatly Reduced

AUSTIN, Texas.—Instead of the original Texas forest area of some 18,000,000 acres, there now remains less than one-half million acres covered with old growth of virgin timber, Mrs. Clara H. Lewis of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research points out in a recent article on Texas forest products from the magazine, "East Texas." She calls attention, however, to approximately 3,000,000 acres of second growth of pine and hardwood of merchantable size, and to another 4,000,000 acres covered with timber which has not yet obtained usable growth.

This depletion of State's forest resources makes it doubly important that every advantage be taken of the development of new uses for wood products, both from second growth timber and from logging and saw mill waste, as the result of chemical research, she said.

"It is not only in the manufacture of lumber, but also in the new uses which science and technology have found for forest products and from waste materials of sawmills, logging operations and stills that we see possibilities of new wealth in Texas forests," she said.

Moncado, addressing the meeting, commented at length on the situation of Filipinos in Hawaii. "I suggest that all Filipinos stay in Hawaii, labor hard on the plantations, and save money for the interest of themselves and their country," he remarked.

Moncado advised his listeners to "be friendly with plantation officials and the government." "Avoid any strike, and if possible, join to suppress any such trouble, for our own peace and happiness," he counselled.

Mariano R. Gorospe, Filipino business man, proposed a resolution following Moncado's address, asking President Quezon to create such a post as outlined by Moncado, and endorsing the latter for the position.

Approval of the resolution was made unanimous, despite reported differences between federation followers of Moncado and non-members of the organization.

Moncado, in his address, praised Quezon as a great leader who tackled the job of creating a new Philippine government with tremendous energy and success.

Q. Where and when was there a Fort Ewell in Texas? K. G. D. A. It was on the Nueces river about 40 miles southwest of "Dog Town," now Tilden, and was the only stage stand between that place and the Rio Grande; it was established in 1852 and named for Capt. Ewell of the U. S. Dragoons.

Q. Who published "Texas Siftings" and what became of it? A. It was published by Alex E. Sweet and J. Armoyn Knox, first at Austin, and then at San Antonio, after which it was moved to New York and died. It was a much quoted, but rather radical humorous paper.

Q. How did (a) Sealy, (b) the Brazos river, (c) San Felipe, get their names? V. R. K. A. Sealy was named for George and John Sealy of Galveston, officials of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Ry.; (b) Brazos river was originally named Brazos de Dios, meaning "Arms of God," by De Leon expedition of 1869, and so-called because of its many tributaries; (c) San Felipe was first named San Felipe de Austin, July 16, 1823, for the Patron Saint Felipe and Stephen F. Austin.

Q. Do any other states than Texas permit consolidation of city and county governments? F. G. Several states have such laws. It is not a new movement even in Texas. As much as 50 years ago the Galveston Progressive Association was discussing the consolidation of the city and county government there for greater economy and efficiency.

Q. How is the battle of San Jacinto ranked among the decisive battles of the world? N. B. A. Cressy in his "Decisive Battles of the World," places it as sixteenth, because of the large territory reshaped as a consequence of the Texas victory.

"Texas Empire Builders of '36" Every man, woman and child in Texas should know the principal events of the momentous period of Texas history from March 1 to April 21, 1836—events that changed the shape and the destiny of the United States. The facts essential to this understanding are briefly set forth in a 32-page booklet entitled "Texas Empire Builders of '36," telling of the stirring days which all Texans, native and adopted, are celebrating in 1936. The booklet will be mailed postpaid for 10 cents. Send all orders to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Gilmer Preparing For Big Yamboree GILMER, Tex. — Residents of Gilmer began preparations today for the second annual East-Texas Yamboree, to be staged October 22, 23 and 24. The week of October 18 to 24 has been officially proclaimed "Yam Week" by Governor James V. Allred and practically all East Texas counties producing the delectable East Texas yam will join Gilmer and Upshur counties in the Yamboree climaxing "Yam Week." The Yamboree is designed to encourage agriculture in general and stimulate the production and consumption in particular of the famed East Texas sweet potato, which has gained a nation-wide reputation for its excellent quality.

BEGIN HERE TODAY KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a Blue Grass farm with their grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHY and ZEKIE. Kate is engaged to handsome MORGAN PRENTISS, who neglects her for EVE ELWELL, beautiful and wealthy. Major Meed has mortgaged the farm and the mortgage is foreclosed by JEFF HOWARD, a bitter young mountaineer. Jeff decides to settle among the Blue Grass people whom he hates. Kate encounters Jeff and, in her resentment, treats him rudely. He responds with insolence. The Meeds move into a dilapidated tenant house and Kate points the name, "Rickey House," on the mail box. The girls are invited to the home of CYNTHIA CHENAULT for a dance. The Major, left alone, dreams of the valuable Meed silver, buried in an unknown spot. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XII CYNTHIA came to meet Kate and Caroline and made the introductions as casually as if she had been checking off a laundry list. There were not so many, after all. Only another girl beside Cynthia—an attractive New Englander with an accent that interested the sisters—and four young men in the last stages of college. Two were from Dartmouth, two from the University of Pennsylvania. Soon food replaced cards. Someone spread a linen cover on the table and brought silver and ice-cream and plates of hearty food. Cynthia called across the room, "Relatives not allowed at the same table!" but the Meed girls refused to be moved. After the informal meal was over, the entire house party wandered about in pairs until it was time to dress. The dance was set for 9. Cynthia insisted that they all be ready, although she and Kate and Caroline knew that most of the guests would follow the time-honored southern custom of arriving an hour late. This proved to be the case. After the orchestra tuned up, the house party had a small dance of its own before guests began drifting in. Kate said to big Bill from Dartmouth, who had just told her how sweet she looked in the sea-blue taffeta, "Just wait! You'll meet girls so much prettier than I am that you'll look back on me as just an appetizer!" Her eyes over Bill's shoulder were watching the newcomers. She had told Morgan Prentiss that she was spending the night here. Then she saw him. He was lighting a cigaret in the hall and wearing new flannels. He looked handsome and casual. She caught his eye. She lifted the hand that rested on the unsuspecting Dartmouth shoulder and waved her fingers childishly. Morgan smiled tenderly in return, but he did not come to her. His eyes broke their rendezvous with hers and turned toward the stairs. EVE ELWELL was coming down. She was wearing pale yellow satin, cut on clinging lines, and rhinestone jewelry. Her wheat-colored hair crowned her head in small contrived ringlets which climaxed in curly bangs across her forehead. The effect was a theatrical sophistication. She seemed not to be a pretty girl at an informal dance but a light opera queen entering a hotel foyer. The stag line was drawn toward her as surely as steel filings are drawn to a magnet. Through the group of men at the foot of the stairs Morgan Prentiss moved deliberately until he had reached the laughing, golden creature who stood there. "Let's dance, Eve!" he said. And, to the boys who surrounded her, "Scat, lads! I fetched her!" Kate heard and saw. She caught her breath so audibly that the Dartmouth man held her at arm's length and looked at her. "What's matter? Winded? Scuse! Dance slower—" "No!" Kate said. "Oh no! Let's dance fast. Let's riot!" Eventually Morgan came to dance with Kate. He found her artificially animated. She found him courteously evasive. Kate said, smiling too brightly into his eyes, "However did you and Eve happen to get together? I thought she was coming with that Lexington man." Morgan replied, "She was. But he got himself in a smash-up today. Wrecked his car and couldn't get here. Eve enlisted me." Just the barest outlines. No details. He softly hummed the tune that the orchestra was playing. His thoughts seemed remote. They danced on and on. Through two entire numbers. Kate felt that he wanted to be rid of her. She found herself praying, "Lord, make somebody cut in, so he'll think I'm popular! Make somebody cut in—" NOBODY cut in. Kate had burned her bridges a year ago. She was Morgan Prentiss' girl, and she hadn't taken care to hide it. . . . She saw Johnnie Baird crossing the floor. She smiled at him, remembering that he used to drive four miles to see her when she was 17. Johnnie smiled back, but kept to his course. He cut in on Eve Elwell and had time to dance a dozen exciting steps with her before some other man claimed her. . . . Kate said to Morgan, "Eve's getting a rush tonight." "Always does," Morgan answered, which made Kate's observation sound critical, rather than complimentary. Kate's cheeks burned. Her heart was heavy. She thought, "So this is the way you feel when your lover's slipping away!" Suddenly she couldn't bear it. She couldn't bear the feeling that Morgan was a thousand miles away while his arm was around her. She couldn't bear the way he kept moving in close to Eve, calling bits of nothing to her as she passed. She couldn't bear the way Eve was encouraging him, flirting with him. . . . "Let's stop dancing, Morgan!" she said. "Let's go outside." "Try and find a place," Morgan replied. "The porch is full. So's the yard—" Kate said boldly, "Our old car's parked beside the garage—" She walked out of the room and out of the house, willing him to follow. He came. She led the way to the back yard, past the back porch, down the brick walk to the parked car. She opened the rear door and got in. He followed. . . . "Now kiss me!" she said with a small shaky laugh that was not as bold as her actions. Morgan complied. The role of the tender, ardent lover came back to him. Kate quivered happily as he kissed her eyelids and pressed her cheek against his own. Music and laughter came drifting out to them. Honeyuckles and fence-roses filled the air with fragrance. Even a cooling lover must be inspired by such a setting, but this did not occur to Kate. She only felt that she had miraculously found Morgan again and that her fears had been stupid dreams. Presently the screen of the back porch swung open and a serving man picked up a freezer of ice cream and carried it into the kitchen. "Heavens!" Kate said. "Supper already? I had no idea. We must go back, Morgan—I've promised one of Cyn's men— You'll be having to look after Eve, too—" Yet she stayed a moment longer in his arms and laughed happily when he said, "Damn Cynthia's man! And Eve, too! This is more important—" She took him into the house again, as he knew she would. He had fussed and won. Much later, just before dawn, when Kate and Caroline were getting sleepily into bed, Kate said contently, "Did you have a good time, darling? I completely lost track of you." "Wonderful," Caroline answered. "Not a rush like Cyn and Eve had, of course, but a good steady pace. Snuff hung around—" "I'm so glad, honey," Kate said happily. "Any gossip?" "Yes," Caroline told her, "but I'm too sleepy to go into it now. Remind me tomorrow to tell you something old Mrs. Dodd Chenaunt told me. It's about a silver tea service." (To Be Continued)

Soviet Needs Hair; Horses Lose Tails

MOSCOW—All Soviet farm horses will lose their tails before Nov. 1, under instructions of the commissariat of agriculture issued to state and collective farms.

The order was issued in a three column announcement in the agricultural press which featured a picture of a peasant docking his horse's tail.

It read:

"Attention of collective farmers, individual peasants and state farm workers! By organized cutting of tails and manes of horses we can supply our industry with very valuable raw material for production of goods of broad consumption.

"Docking of horses according to instruction of the commissariat of agriculture of the U.S.S.R. is ordered from Sept. 15 to Nov. 1.

"When the mane and tail are combed during the cleaning of horses much hair remains on the combs and brushes. Do not throw it away but collect it in one place.

"Deliver all hair collected as a result of cleaning and docking of horses to collecting organizations at fixed prices."

CARD OF THANKS

We thank the neighbors and friends for the many kind words and beautiful floral offerings during the recent death of our dear mother and wife. — J. A. Jones and Relatives.

Start Is Made On Collections For Band Uniforms

BY J. N. CRAWFORD

A very encouraging start was made Tuesday afternoon, when the band members "parent committee" collected from a number of "jars" that had been placed in various stores. The jars had been placed with attractive placards asking that spare pennies and nickels and dimes be placed in the jars to help start a new uniform fund.

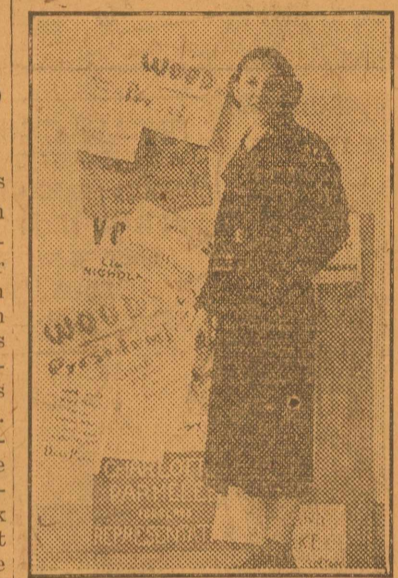

The list below shows the amount collected from each jar. The total money collected was deposited in the Commercial State Bank and the bank was requested that the account be made so that the money could be used for uniforms and for nothing else. This has been arranged, and no money can be taken from the account without the three signatures of the official band uniform committee. Reports will be made at regular intervals, so that the contributors may see how the fund grows.

On Thursday night a soft ball game is to be played and the proceeds will be deposited also on the same account.

The following jars have already been placed, and one collection has been made. Within a day or two, every merchant, store, filling station, restaurant, hotel, barber shop, etc., that will take a jar will have one placed for them.

She Wins!

Miss Mary Frances Woods of San Benito smiles triumphantly as she looks over the "spoils" from the recent freshman presidential election held at Texas State College for Women (CIA). After a vigorous campaign, approximately 1,000 freshmen chose this diminutive brunette to guide their class activities.

Rev. Cleveland Is Rotary Speaker

Felton Brasher was in charge of the Rotary program today and introduced Rev. L. C. Cleveland, Presbyterian minister who is conducting a revival meeting in Ranger.

Rev. Cleveland said in part that the Rotary Club was not seeking to serve itself but was serving the community.

He spoke of influence that the members had on the boys of the community. He said that boys needed, first:

A friend—Help some young man by a kind word and a pleasant smile and take time to counsel with them in their problems.

They needed a teacher—some one to teach them how to live and how to build homes and how to work and help them secure employment.

They needed an example—some one to follow. Some one to show them the right way. And above all they need some one to help them to be good men.

Announcement was made the club would exchange programs with the Breckenridge club two weeks from today.
